The dry goods stock of Honey & Schaefer at Belvidere was damaged by fire last Wednesday to the extent of $15,000.

The new city council at Sandwich has raised the saloon license from $850 to $1000 a year and raised the salaries of city officials.

"A Philadelphia man is under arrest charged with marrying 150 women," says the Detroit Free Press. No doubt he needed a rest.

Bids for construction work at the Naval Station will be opened at Washington May 1st. It is estimated that there will be about $2,000,000 expended.

Hanging a calf on a meat hook by its gambrel joints before he slaughtered it cost E. E. Jueal of Stillman Valley $25 and costs Saturday, the total being over $32.

Dr. W. H. Simpson and Sergius Lloyd of Sycamore shot an old wolf and captured seven young ones on the Lloyd farm four miles north of that city last Thursday.

Stephen Earl Dales, eighteen years of age, fell dead in Fair Grounds park at Rockford Thursday just at the close of a practice game of ball. The coroner's jury decided that death resulted from heart failure.

Theodore Wahlgren, formerly supervisor of the Northern Hospital for the Insane at Elgin, has been sued for $10,000 by Miss Edna E. Ewing of Chicago on a charge of breach of promise to marry. Wahlgren says it is blackmail.

Mrs. Anderson, widow of Andrew Anderson, the section man who was killed in the recent wreck at Geneva, has been given $3,000 by the Northwestern railroad company as damages. Mrs. Anderson is a sister of F. O. Holtgren.

Henry Roe, a Wisconsin Central engineer was held to the circuit court in Elkhorn recently, charged with murder in the fourth degree. Roe testified that he had been sick for several days past but thought himself strong enough to attend to duty. He had orders to stop and side track the freight engine was pulling at Lake Beulah. But he went to sleep and passed the side track and only awakened when he collided with another train. One man was killed in the wreck, named Jordan.

The human pulse has rather a wide range, but the general average may be put about as follows: At birth, 140; at two years, 100; at from sixteen to nineteen years, 80; at manhood, 75; old age, 60. There are, however, great variations consistent with health. Napoleon's pulse is said to have been only forty-four to the minute. A case is also reported of a healthy man of eighty-seven whose pulse was seldom over 30 during the last two years of his life, and sometimes not more than 28. Another man 87 years of age enjoyed good health and spirits with a pulse of 29.

A LITTLE SURPRISE

T. M. Frazier and Miss Margaret Hewitt are Married

Mr. Thomas M. Frazier and Miss Margaret E. Hewitt were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hewitt, on Tuesday evening of this week, at 9:30 o'clock, only the immediate members of the family of the bride being present. Mr. and Mrs. Frazier left Genoa at six o'clock Wednesday morning and will spend their honeymoon in the East, visiting the groom's mother in Pennsylvania. The ring ceremony was used at the wedding, Rev. T. E. Ream officiating.

The affair was one of the most complete surprises sprung on the people of Genoa in many days. Even those who thought they knew that Cupid was hovering over the corner grocery, had no idea that the event was to take place Tuesday, the most intimate friends of the couple being in the dark.

The happy man is one of Genoa's most popular business men and is known for his honest business principles. For several terms he has been village clerk and has conducted the affairs of that office as conscientiously as he does his personal affairs.

The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hewitt. During the past few years she has been employed by Sears, Roebuck & Co. of Chicago. She is well liked by her acquaintances, always being jolly and friendly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frazier will reside at the Hewitt home for the present.

BURKE GETS FOOT IN IT

Anti-Saloon League Attorney Is Checked by Legislature

J. F. Burke, formerly attorney for the Illinois Anti-Saloon League now attorney for the league in New Jersey, has, by his audacious and false charges, got both feet in it. He was recently hauled up before the New Jersey legislature, tried for abusing members of that body and "forbidden the privilege of the floor of the house."

It will be remembered that Burke made some raw statements during the campaign he conducted in this county last fall and even uttered absolute falsehoods on the street in Genoa. It looks as tho the little fellow had received just what was coming to him. The Anti-Saloon League of Illinois has been able to accomplish something since Burke left the state.

Should do Something

DeKalb county should not be permanently subject to such criticisms as appeared in the Chicago Tribune today. It says: "DeKalb—Sane and insane men and women mingle together. A year ago an insane girl gave birth to a child in the almshouse. No separate provision for the insane. They mingle with the paupers day and night. A cell contains a box seven feet long by about two and a half wide and three feet deep. It is mounted on top of a bed frame. It has strong iron hinges, two hasps and a bolt. The superintendent stated that it was used for an inmate, Fran Hale, who was locked up in the box at night. The Tribune article may be highly colored but it is certain that new buildings should be erected to properly take care of the unfortunate people. Especially should the different sexes have different apartments."

A girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Bright at their home in Chicago April 17.

WRECK AT HAMPSHIRE

BROKEN WHEEL CAUSES CARS TO PILE UP

HALF MILE TRACK DAMAGED

Hundreds of Ties are Ruined and Track Twisted out of Shape—Floyd Sowers on Train

Traffic on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad was tied up entirely for a few hours Saturday night and was seriously hampered all day Sunday as the result of a wreck at Hampshire at about 6 o'clock Saturday evening. One wheel on a car loaded with sheet iron broke just this side of Hampshire and piled the several cars over the right of way.

Witnesses of the wreck state that the train was making about 40 miles an hour when the accident happened.

The car which was loaded with sheet iron was about the middle of the train. When the wheel broke the car was thrown from the rails, west of the depot. In this condition the train continued on its way past the depot demolishing ties and twisting the rails out of position for nearly half a mile. When the train reached a few hundred feet east of the station the damaged car was thrown across the rails and three cars following were thrown on top of it. A car load of sugar, which was directly in back of the broken freight car was completely demolished and the barrels of sugar were scattered over the road bed.

The train was slowing down for the Main street crossing or the damage might have been much greater. Conductor Confare, of Chicago, was in charge of the wrecked train.

The through passenger trains were tied up for several hours on account of the wreck. The Hampshire section force was summoned and constructed a side track around the wrecked cars and passenger trains passed on this. The temporary track was used Saturday night and all day Sunday. Sunday afternoon the wrecker arrived from Chicago and cleared the main tracks.

Floyd Sowers, son of G. W. Sowers of this city was brakeman on the wrecked train, but he escaped as did all the trainmen with no other damage than a severe shaking up.

"Kling" in the Game

"Kling" Rorabaugh, who was one of the best on Genoa's base ball team last year, is playing second base with Belvidere this season and is filling the position with his usual skill. He is also doing some stick work according to the following taken from the Belvidere Republican's write up of Sunday's game:

"The fame of Nogi and Kuroki and Bihecki is a pale lavender by the side of the glory of Rorabaugh, who picked out a nice sample of the Buckman shoot as it sauntered across the plate and with a mighty swipe landed it over the left garden for three bags, scoring three men ahead of him."

The Wind Blows

Genoa was the center of a severe wind and rain storm Sunday night, the first real blusterer of the season. No great damage was done, but dozens of small out houses were turned over and shingles torn from roofs. On Monday night we were the victims of a typical March storm, consisting of wind, rain, sleet, hail and snow. And the first picnic of the season was held a month ago.

BUTTER TWENTY-SEVEN

Price Drops Six Cents—Who is Responsible for this?

Butter was quoted at twenty-seven cents on the Elgin board of trade Monday, a drop of six cents from the price of last week.

There is about as much consistency in this as there would be in selling silver dollars at 100 cents today and 50 cents tomorrow.

It is claimed that the price dropped this week because the pastures are becoming good. Such rot! Did Sunday night and the weather on Monday give the quotation committee such visions of pastures green that they anticipated rivers of milk flowing into the creameries? Was there any real reason why the price last week should have jumped from thirty to thirty-three cents? The outlook for green pastures then was brighter by far than on Monday of this week. The Elgin quotation committee put the price at 33 cents and the next day it was quoted at 30 cents in New York, 500 miles from the greatest dairy center in the world.

If the dairymen who sell the milk could profit by the raise in prices we would say let her soar. As a matter of fact there was no occasion for the three cent advance last week, but the six cent drop this week was more in keeping with the present price of milk and the demand for butter.

DROWNED IN CISTERN

Sad Accident Happens in Mayfield Last Sunday

The three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hanson, who reside on the Vonken farm in Mayfield, was drowned last Sunday afternoon by falling into a cistern. The child had been in the water nearly an hour before being discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson were visiting at the home of R. B. Thomas on the McKeag farm and while there the little boy was missed by the parents. The entire community was searched, several people assisting the anxious parents and in this manner nearly an hour was consumed. Mr. Hanson finally went to the cistern on the McKeag farm and was horror stricken to see the lifeless body of his boy in the water, which was about four feet deep.

The cistern had a large tile opening which was covered. Had this cover been off, the parents would have searched there at once, but everything being as left by Mr. Thomas no one gave the matter a thought. Finally the father, little expecting to find his boy, lifted the cover and made the awful discovery.

It is the supposition that the little fellow lifted the cover just enough to get his head under and leaning forward too far fell in, the cover falling back into place.

John Bodean, well known in this vicinity, is the boy's grand father.

Heavy Fines

Nineteen saloon-keepers are missing in Bureau county and thirty-two more have been fined. The nineteen missing were indicted by the last session of the grand jury, and, fearing heavy fines, they disappeared. They together with the thirty-two who were fined, were charged with violating the Sunday closing laws in a number of towns in Bureau county. Those who were fined paid an average of $114 each. Those who disappeared operated in mining towns and might have been compelled to serve jail sentences for lack of money to pay the fines.

T. M. FRAZIER Village Clerk

Sues Woodmen for Insurance Through her attorneys, Raymond & Newhall, of Aurora, Mrs. Ruby Bowditch, of DeKalb, has commenced suit against the Woodmen to recover insurance amounting to $2,000. The question is in regard to the occupation of the deceased, her husband, who was employed as a hand in the steel mills in DeKalb. One day while helping switch a car he was killed.

The engine was the property of the company. The question has arisen as to whether the deceased was a switchman, and if so the company will not be obliged to pay, otherwise it will.

HIGHS WIN ANOTHER

DEFEAT DEKALB HIGH SCHOOL LAST SATURDAY

FANS PLEASSED WITH GAME

Both Teams Play Good Clean Game—Paterson Makes a Hit in Center Field

The Genoa and DeKalb high school base ball teams came together on the local diamond last Saturday and the result was quite satisfactory to the fans present. The Genoa boys kept the honors at home by winning, the score being 7 to 3.

The visitors did better stick work than the locals but lost out in field work, making costly errors when the Genoa sprinters were on bases. The latter stole bases with as little compunction as a fox among a flock of chickens, much to the chagrin of Gilbert.

The locals handled the ball perfectly, the only errors made being errors of judgement which could almost be excused owing to the strong wind.

Senska gives promise of pitching a good game this season and from present indications he will have good support.

Patterson made a hit in center field, getting several long difficult drives which looked good for three bags when they left the bat.

The score follows:

FEW STRIKES ARE EXPECTED ON MAY 1

IN SAN FRANCISCO ALONE IS TROUBLE WITH LABOR TO BE EXPECTED.

All Is Peace in St. Louis—Conditions Better Than for Many Years in New York, Pittsburg, Boston and Philadelphia.

St. Louis, April 29.—Employers and labor leaders of St. Louis and the southwest report labor conditions better for May 1 this year than for many years past. Practically all wage scales in St. Louis and the surrounding territory for 200 miles are signed. In St. Louis alone this includes 120,000 union men.

The unions allied with the building trades council here are all signed for the year with the exception of a very few men employed in small shops. There are about 40,000 men in these unions. Other branches of trade show a similarly good condition. The brewery workers, who were on a strike a few months ago are now signed, as are also the other important trades.

Employers and labor leaders say there will be nothing this year in local circles to hinder a great building activity and that on May 1 there will be cause for jollification for laborers and employers alike.

Bright Outlook in New York.

New York, April 29.—The opening of the out of door construction season finds New York, both city and state, without apprehension of serious labor troubles. In the building trades especially prosperous and reassuring conditions prevail. There is a large and well met demand for both skilled and unskilled labor, due to the extensive private construction projects now under way and the tunnels, railroad terminals and other undertakings of a public or quasi-public nature. This contentment is generally reflected in the manufacturing and industrial centers, and beyond a few localized and sporadic strikes, the labor situation is regarded as brighter than for many years.

Peaceful in New England.

Boston, April 29.—According to the union officers and business agents of workmen's organizations the industrial situation in New England, May 1, will be marked by fewer contentions between capital and labor than for many years. In the building trades several small strikes are threatened in a number of cities, but in Boston there promises to be little suspension of work in any branch of industry.

Pittsburg Men Satisfied.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 29.—May day in Pittsburg and vicinity is expected to pass off with fewer labor disputes than in previous years. Heretofore considerable difficulty has been experienced between the workmen and building trades, but this year scales have been signed and the men are apparently satisfied.

With the exception of the machinists, about 300 of whom are already on strike, it is believed all the wage scales will be amicably adjusted. The machinists are striking for an increase of wages and shorter hours. At two foundries the men are now out under orders from the union and it is said the trouble will become general unless the union scale is agreed to by May 1.

Philadelphia Is Quiet.

Philadelphia, May 29.—May day, which marks the beginning of the fiscal year in labor circles, promises to be passed in this city with little friction between workmen and employers. With few exceptions the agreements under which the union men are working are acceptable and trouble is not anticipated. At a meeting of the Central Labor union Sunday it was said there would be few labor troubles.

Frisco May Have Big Strike.

San Francisco, April 29.—The approach of May 1 finds San Francisco facing serious labor troubles. Eleven unions, including every branch of the metal trades, have called meetings to be held between now and next Tuesday night to consider the refusal of employers to grant an eight-hour day with nine hours' pay. A vote will be taken to decide whether the men shall accept the offer of a continuance of the nine-hour day with five per cent. increase of wages, or go on strike. About 10,000 men are involved.

The street car men have issued a call for a mass meeting at midnight Tuesday for the purpose of taking a vote on the refusal of the United railroad to grant the motorman and conductors an eight-hour day and a wage rate of three dollars per day. If a strike should be voted the entire street car traffic of the city will be paralyzed.

Armour Car Line Defies Law.

Lincoln, Neb., April 30.—The Armour Car Line company, in a letter to the state railway commission, made public Monday evening, declines to file its schedule of rates. The general counsel of the company writes, in response to a note sent out by the commission, that he has "tried to give the law a broad interpretation," but that as the Armour Line does its business exclusively with the railroads and not with the public generally, he does not consider that it comes under the commission's jurisdiction.

Indiana Veteran Dies.

Arkansas City, Kan., April 30.—Colonel Elias Neff, commander of the Fortieth Indiana volunteers during the civil war, died here Monday aged 69 years.

TO HONOR GEN. M'CLELLAN

STATUE WILL BE UNVEILED IN WASHINGTON ON MAY 2.

Feature of Army of the Potomac Reunion—President Roosevelt to Make Principal Address.

Washington, April 29.—The most interesting feature of the thirty-seventh annual reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac this week will be the unveiling on May 2 of the heroic bronze equestrian statue of Gen. George B. McClellan, who was the organizer and first commander of the army of the Potomac.

The statue occupies a prominent position in the northwestern section of the city, being at the intersection of Connecticut avenue and Columbia road. President Roosevelt is to make the principal speech and addresses also will be made by Gens. Sickles, Howard and Dodge. A feature of the exercises will be a brief history of the statue, which is the work of Frederick Macmonnies, the American sculptor residing in Paris, by Gen. Horatio C. King, secretary of the society.

About 5,000 troops, regulars and militia, will participate in the ceremonies. They will be commanded by Maj. Gen. Bell, chief of staff, with Gen. Duvall as his chief of staff and Col. Benjamin Alvord as adjutant general. Mayor Geo. B. McClellan, of New York, is expected to attend. The program is interspersed with patriotic selections by the United States Marine band.

The reunion is to begin on May 1 and will continue four days. On May 3 the veterans are to be received by the president at the White House and there will be a banquet that evening.

PACKERS MUST PAY FINES.

Federal Court of Appeals Affirms Conviction for Rebating.

St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—Judge Sanborn Monday filed the opinion of the United States circuit court of appeals, which he had written, affirming the judgment of the United States district court for the western district of Missouri against the packers for accepting concessions of 12 cents a hundred pounds from the portion of the established rate for the transportation of provisions on through bills of lading from Kansas City to Christiana and other points in foreign countries. Judges Hook and Adams concur in the opinion.

The lower court imposed a penalty of $15,000 on each of the indicted firms, and these fines have been affirmed.

The defendants in the case involved in the decision are Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co., and the Cudahy Packing company.

STROMBOLI AGAIN ACTIVE.

Violent Eruption of the Volcano Terrifies the Peasants.

Catania, Sicily, April 29.—The royal observatory on Mount Etna registers an extraordinary eruption of the volcano on the island of Stromboli. The volcano is throwing out large quantities of ashes and cinders, which are damaging vineyards in both Sicily and Calabria.

Messina, April 29.—The Stromboli volcano is again in active eruption. An explosion so strong that the concussion broke a window here was felt Sunday. The peasants were terror-stricken. The extent of the eruption is not known here, as the cable line to the Lipari Islands is interrupted. The only news received at Messina has been by means of signals.

TRAIN DITCHED IN INDIANA.

Man Going to See Wreck Killed in Automobile Accident.

Portland, Ind., April 29.—Train No. 7 on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad was wrecked at Collet, four miles south of here, Sunday and about a dozen passengers were injured. Only two were seriously hurt. A truck under the tender of the engine collapsed, throwing the train into the ditch.

While going to the scene of the wreck in an automobile Frank Kenworthy and a party of four from Winchester, Ind., ran into a fence and were thrown out. Kenworthy landed against a telegraph pole and his neck was broken. He died a few minutes later. George Edwards, another of the automobile party, was seriously hurt.

SHEEP CAMP DYNAMITED.

Seven Hundred Animals Perish in a Fire in Cheyenne, Wyo.

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 30.—An explosion of dynamite at John Linn's sheep camp in Trapper Creek, Big Horn county, Sunday night, killed 700 sheep and completely destroyed camp wagons and other possessions of the camp. The story of the outrage was told by a herder who said that a band of masked men raided the camp and after binding him securely arranged for the work of destruction. A similar attack was made upon a sheep camp in the Trapper section two years ago.

Minneapolis Physician Is Dead.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 30.—Dr. William Huntington Leonard, who had practiced medicine in Minneapolis for 52 years, died at his home in this city Monday, after an illness lasting almost a year. He was 85 years old and was the oldest practicing physician in Minneapolis. Dr. Leonard was born in Mansfield, Conn.

Torpedoes Exploded by Wireless.

Cartagena, April 29.—Successful experiments were made here Sunday in the explosion of torpedoes at long distance by means of the Hertzian waves system. The device was invented by a Spaniard named Balsera.

Bombs in Kaulbar's Villa.

Odessa, April 29.—Sixteen bombs were discovered Sunday in a villa which Gov. Kaulbars had rented for a summer residence.

REJECTED SUITOR KILLS YOUNG WOMAN

FOLLOWS HER FROM PRUSSIA TO AMERICA AND PHILADELPHIA.

Fatally Shoots Himself—Had Tried to Murder Her in Old Country Where She First Refused to Become His Wife.

Philadelphia, April 30.—Martha Korais, a comely Prussian girl, was shot and instantly killed here Monday under unusual circumstances, by Franz Endrukut, an enraged lover, who after murdering the girl, sent a bullet into his own brain, inflicting a wound from which he cannot recover.

Endrukut, who was angry because the girl would not marry him, followed her to this country from the province of Pomerania in Renish Prussia, where four years ago he attempted to kill her by beating her over the head with a hatchet. After this attempt he cut his throat in an effort to end his life, and after lying for four months in a hospital, according to the information given to the coroner, he was sentenced to one year and eight months' imprisonment.

Followed Her to America.

After the assault in Europe, Miss Korais, who was the daughter of a physician and a school teacher, came to Philadelphia. Endrukut, despite the refusal of the girl to marry him in his native country, followed her to America and to Philadelphia. He went to work at Cramps' ship yards and boarded in the northern section of the city. Miss Korais secured a place as maid in the home of August Ramstein, in the southern section of the city.

Endrukut met the girl by chance in the street on Easter Sunday and immediately endeavored to renew his attentions. He was repulsed. He followed her about and threatened to kill her unless she married him. Finally Miss Korais caused a warrant to be issued for his arrest, but at the last minute she declined to prosecute him.

Took Her at Her Word.

Endrukut Monday met Miss Korais and followed her from the home of her employer to a nearby bakery and again pressed his suit. The girl told him she would sooner die than marry him, whereupon he drew a revolver and sent two bullets into her brain. He then turned the weapon upon himself and sent one of the leaden missiles into his head, falling unconscious across the body of the girl. Endrukut is 33 years of age and his victim was 22.

UNION CITY HAS $300,000 FIRE.

Chair Company Plant Burned and Several Hotels Threatened.

Corry, Pa., April 30.—Fire Monday night destroyed the Union City Chair company at Union City, nine miles west of here and several small adjacent structures, and damaged the Union City electric light plant, causing a monetary loss estimated at over $300,000.

For a time it was believed the St. Charles Commercial and Warner hotels would be burned. Aid was sent from this city and the fire was got under control.

An hour after the fire started the water supply failed through a breakdown at the pumping station of the water company. When the water supply failed the lower portion of the city was threatened with destruction and was only saved by the prompt arrival of fire apparatus from this place.

FLOOD NEAR OKLAHOMA CITY.

Lightning Creek Out of Its Banks—Lowlands Become a Swamp.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 30.—With Lightning creek out of its banks and the Canadian river rising steadily, the people in the lowlands of Capitol Hill, a suburb of Oklahoma City, are facing a situation that will become critical if the heavy rains of the last 24 hours continue.

The lowlands have been converted into a veritable swamp, crops have been ruined and much stock drowned. No human lives have been lost so far as can be learned. Residents of the bottoms were forced to leave their homes Sunday night and several persons were kept in trees all night. One house floated down the Canadian river with a family inside. The occupants were rescued.

Four inches of rain, accompanied by heavy hail and high winds, fell throughout southwestern Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle early Monday. JAMESTOWN FAIR IS OPENED TO WORLD

PRESIDENT IS CHIEF FIGURE IN THE CEREMONIES AT NORFOLK.

Quells Incipient Panic—Reviews the International War Fleets, Makes a Vigorous Address and Presses the Gold Button.

Norfolk, Va., April 27.—President Roosevelt, the diplomatic, naval and military representative of 37 of the nations of the world, and the governors of a score of states participated Friday in the opening exercises of the Jamestown Tercentennial exposition.

From the firing of a sunrise salute of 300 guns by the United States army, through the picturesque review of the international fleet of war vessels anchored in Hampton Roads, through the ceremonies of dedication at which the president spoke, and down to a late hour at night, when the chief executive went aboard the naval yacht Sylph to spend the night, in the lower bay, the day was crowded with notable incidents.

President Averts a Panic.

Not the least impressive of the day's events was the action of the president in assuming command of the situation in front of the crowded grandstand from which he spoke, when a panic seized the surging throng of spectators. Pressed against the guard ropes by thousands of eager persons in the rear of the gathering, who were forcing their way forward, the safety of life and limb of those who had the more favored positions was endangered.

President Roosevelt had just been introduced by Harry St. George Tucker, the head of the Jamestown Exposition company, when the disorder and unrest in the crowd reached its height and the civil guards in front of the grandstand seemed about to be swept from their posts. With the agility of a schoolboy, the president jumped upon the table which had been placed in the speakers' balcony and, waving his arms, cried out to the men of Virginia to live up to their traditions of gallantry and cease the crowding which was threatening the lives of the women and children in the assemblage.

Soldiers Quiet the Crowd.

The crowd heeded the president's warning at once, but when he had settled down into his speech, and the words were fairly blown from his mouth by the southeasterly gale which was sweeping the great parade, the immense audience became uneasy again, and those on the outskirts began to press forward once more.

The president was interrupted and mounted officers and men of the United States cavalry were called in to take charge. They rode up and down along the front of the crowd and gradually opened it up and relieved the pressure.

The military encamped about the exposition grounds began the day's ceremonies with the firing of the three-gun salute. Soon thereafter from across the waters of Hampton Roads came the boom of ship cannon, signaling the beginning of the review by the president of the most formidable fleet of international battleships and cruisers the world has witnessed in many years.

Review of the Great Fleet.

On board the tidy cruiser yacht Mayflower, the president, with a few especially invited guests, was greeted first by a roar of 21 guns from each of the vessels, foreign and American. Then, as he steamed along the lane of the visiting men of war, he was saluted individually and in turn by every battleship and cruiser at anchor in the roads. The marine picture, viewed from shore by thousands and from the decks of excursion and pleasure craft by almost as many more, was at once imposing and impressive.

When his yacht had anchored in the very midst of the naval vessels the president received on board the flag and commanding officers of the foreign feet and the flag officers of the house squadrons.

Booming cannon again greeted the president as he stepped upon the temporary structure which is eventually to be a magnificent water gate known as Discovery Landing. President Tucker, of the exposition, personally welcomed Mr. Roosevelt, saying simply:

"Mr. President, Old Virginia salutes you, sir."

The president returned the salutation and, with Mrs. Roosevelt, was driven to the grandstand on the parade between two lines of soldiers from the Twenty-third United States infantry.

Presses the Golden Button.

The ceremonies of dedication were brief, the features being the addresses of President Tucker of the exposition and President Roosevelt. The latter, at the conclusion of his address, pressed the gold button, which formally marked the opening of the commemorative enterprise. Then followed an informal luncheon to the president and 40 other guests in the Auditorium or administration building. The repast ended, the president repaired again to the grandstand, from which he reviewed the parade of United States soldiers and sailors. A reception by the president in the Auditorium brought the day's events at the fair grounds to a close.

At night the warships were beautifully illuminated.

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST

She looked up at him, embarrassed, and stepped back across the narrow trail, her head down again, so that he was free to pass. But instead of passing, she became aware that he had dismounted.

When she looked up, he was busily engaged in adjusting something about his saddle, with an expression of deep concern in his blue eyes. His hat was on the ground and his yellow hair glistened where the hand had pressed it about his head.

"It's that latigo strap," he remarked, in a tone of some annoyance. "I've had to fix it every five miles since I left Kanab." Then looking up at her with a friendly smile: "Dandy most stepped on you, I reckon."

The amazement of it was that, after her first flurry at the sound of his voice and his half-seen movements up the trail, it would now seem all so commonplace.

"Oh, no, I was well out of his way." She started again to cross the trail, stepping quickly, with her eyes down, but again his voice came, less deliberate this time, and with words in something less than intelligible sequence.

"Excuse me, Miss—but—now how many miles to what's the name of the nearest settlement—I suppose you live hereabouts?"

"What did you say?"

"I say is there any place where I could get to stop a day or so in Amalton?"

"Oh—I didn't understand—I think so; at least, my father sometimes—but there's Elder Wardle, he often takes in travellers."

"You say your father—"

"Not always—I don't know, I'm sure," she looked doubtful.

"Oh, all right! I'll ask him,—if you'll show me his place."

"It's the first place on the left after you leave the canyon—with the big peach orchard—I'm not going home just yet."

He stroked the muzzle of the horse. "Oh, I'm in no hurry, I'm just looking over the country a little. Your father's name is—"

"Ask for Elder Rae—or one of his wives will say if they can keep you over night."

She caught something new in his glance, and felt the blood in her face. "I must go now—you can find your way—I must go."

"Well, if you must go,—he picked up his hat,—but I'll see you again. You'll be coming home this evening, I reckon?"

"The first house on the left," she answered, and stepped once more across the trail and into the edge of the pines.

When she knew he must be gone, she came out again to her nook beside the stream where, a moment before, her dream had filled her. But now, though nothing had happened beyond the riding by of a strange youth, the dream no longer sufficed.

In place of the moonlit balcony was the figure of this young stranger swaying with his horse down between the hollowed shoulders of the pine mountains and reining up suddenly to sweep his broad hat low in front of her. She was surprised by the clearness with which she could recall the details of his appearance,—a boyish-looking fellow, with wide-open blue eyes and a sunbrowned face under his yellow hair, the smallest of moustaches, and a smile of such winning good-humor that it had seemed to force her own lips apart in answer.

The picture of him stayed in her mind, the sturdy young figure,—rather loose-jointed but with an easy grace of movement,—and the engaging naturalness of his manner. But after all nothing had happened save the passing of a stranger, and she must go alone back to her dream. Yet now the dream might change; a strange youth might come riding out of the east, sitting a sorrel horse with a star and a white hind ankle, a long rangy neck and strong quarters; and he—the youth—would wear a broad, gray hat, with a band of silver filigree, a scarlet kerchief at his throat, a scarlet sash at his waist, and yellow dogskin "chaps."

Still, she thought, he could hardly have a place in the dream. The real youth of the dream had been of an unearthly beauty, with a rose-leaf complexion and lustrous curls massed above a brow of marble. The stranger had not been of an unearthly beauty. To be sure, he was very good to look at, with his wide-open blue eyes and his yellow hair, and he had appeared uncommonly fresh and clean about the mouth when he smiled at her. But she could not picture him sighing the right words of love under a balcony in the moonlight. He had looked to be too intensely business-like.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Gentile Invasion.

When she came across the fields late in the afternoon, the strange youth's horse was nickered where the bunch-grass grew high, and the young man himself talked with her father by the corral bars. She had never realized how old her father was, how weak, and small, and bent, until she saw him beside this erect young fellow. Her heart went out to the older man with a new sympathy as she saw his feebleness so sharply in relief against the well-blooded, hard-muscled vigor of the younger. When she would have passed them, her father called to her.

"Prudence, this is Mr. Ruel Follett. He will stay with us to-night."

The sombrero was off again and she felt the blue eyes seeking hers, though she could not look up from the ground when she had given her little bow. She heard him say:

"I already met your daughter, sir, at the mouth of the canyon."

She went on toward the house, hearing them resume their talk, the stranger saying, "That horse can sure carry all the weight you want to put on him and step away good; he'll do it right at both ends, too—Dandy will—and he's got a mighty tasty lobe."

At supper and afterwards Mr. Follett talked freely of himself, or seemed to. He was from the high plains and the short-grass country, wherever that might be—to the east and south she gathered. He had grown up in that country, working for his father, who had been an overland freighter, until the day the railroad tracks were joined at Promontory. He, himself, had watched the gold and silver spikes driven into the tie of California mahogany two years before; and then, though they still kept a few wagon-trains moving to the mining camps north and south of the railroad, they had looked for other occupations.

Now their attention was chiefly devoted to mines and cattle. There were great times ahead in the latter business. His father remembered when they had killed cattle for their hides and tallow, leaving the meat to the coyotes; but now, each spring, a dozen men like himself, under a herd boss, would drive 5,000 head to Leavenworth, putting them through ten or 12 miles a day over the Abilene trail, keeping them fat and getting good prices for them. There was plenty of room for the business. "Over yonder across the hills," as Mr. Follett put it, there was a herding ground 400 miles wide east and west, and a thousand miles north and south, covered with buffalo grass, especially toward the north, that made good stock feed the year around. He, himself, had, in winter, followed a herd that drifted from Montana to Texas; and in summer he had twice ranged from Corpus Christi to Deadwood.

Down in the Panhandle they were getting control of a ranch that would cover 5,000 square miles, and some day they would have every one of its 3,000,000 acres enclosed with a stout wire fence. It would be a big ranch, bigger than the whole state of Connecticut—bigger than Delaware and Rhode Island "lumped together," he had been told. Here they would have the "C lazy C" brand on probably a hundred and fifty thousand head of cattle. He thought the business would settle down to this conservative basis with the loose ends of it pulled together; with closer attention paid to branding, for one thing; branding the calves, so they would no longer have to rope a full-grown steer, and tie it with a scarf such as he wore about his waist.

But they were also working some placer claims around Helena, and developing a quartz prospect over at Carson City. And the freighting was by no means "played out." He, himself, had driven a six-mule team with one line over the Santa Fe trail, and might have to do it again. The resources of the west were not exhausted, whatever they might say. A man with a head on him would be able to make a good living there for some years to come.

Both father and daughter found him an agreeable young man in spite of his being an alien from the Commonwealth of Israel. He remained with them three days looking over the country about Amalton, talking with its people and making himself at least not an object of suspicion and aversion, as the casual Gentile was apt to be. Prudence found herself usually at ease with him; he was so wholly likable and unassuming. Yet at times he seemed strangely mature and reserved to her, so that she was just a little awed.

He told her in their evenings many wonder-tales of that outside world where the wicked Gentiles lived; of populous cities on the western edge of it, and of vast throngs that crowded the interior clear over to the Atlantic ocean. She had never realized before what a small handful of people the Lord had set His hand to save, and what vast numbers He had made with hearts that should be hardened to the glorious articles of the new covenant.

When he left he told them he was making a little trip through the settlements to the north, possibly as far as Cedar City. He did not know how long he would be gone, but if nothing prevented he might be back that way. He shook hands with them both at parting, and though he spoke so vaguely about a return, his eyes seemed to tell Prudence that he would like very much to come. He had talked freely of war and the surgeon-general of the army—work that should be recognized as the best and finest ever done in its especial line.

The women who were not members of organizations before the outbreak formed themselves with wonderful promptness and efficiency into aid societies under various titles and do faithful and valuable work. They sewed through the long hours of hot summer weather; they wrote letters; they offered themselves as nurses, some of them first qualifying themselves for the latter work by several courses of hospital training—severe because hurried, the usual instruction being crowded into a few weeks with no allowance, such as is usually made, for rest and recreation.

One of the loveliest of their many gracious deeds was the visiting, comforting, providing for the families of the men who were "gone to the front." Hot and cold, dust and rain they regarded as trifles—or not at all.

As I was then living near one of the hospital centers, at Fort Monroe, the letters that came to me were numberless. They came from all parts of the country, their writers asking only a place to work in.

Some of the women were trained nurses, some had the training of home care of the sick, some were wholly inexperienced, all would give themselves freely to the work if only a place might be found where they could serve. Young women of the highest social position, descendants of royal ancestors, volunteered to me to do kitchen work if a diet kitchen were established here by volunteers, as at one time seemed not unlikely to become necessary. From the far north, from our farthest south, from California, from our eastern coast, the offers came to me, and so I am sure there must have been many others in other quarters.

A noble example of womanly patriotism was shown by the wives of the officers and men of the regular service. The women of the navy families live in constant expectation of being left with all the care and responsibility of those families when the men are "ordered to sea" and were in a measure prepared, their courage and patience seem unflinching and their spirit was well expressed by the words of the wife of our great naval commander, who wrote to me at the outbreak of the war: "How shall we live that we may be worthy to be the wives of these brave men!" That seemed their only thought. The weak, the selfish, the craven were so few that we need not count them, and in the face of such trials we may surely forgive them.

But too much cannot be said in praise of the women of the army families, upon whom the terrible order to their men to go beyond the seas fell like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. The heats and droughts of Arizona and New Mexico, the desolation of the "Bad Lands," the biting cold at the far northern forts, the isolation of "one company" posts, the separations from home and friends, they had borne uncomplainingly, but this was the unknown. The tropical and pagan lands were to those poor women regions of mystery and dread which swallowed up their protectors in forests and jungles, leaving women and children bereft of the comfort and support of their strong and devoted companionship. Small wonder if they blanched and shrank back appalled at the prospect!

Yet complaint was rare and courage and patience almost unflinching. Usually a semblance of hope and confidence was maintained that sent the men out to their hard duty, cheered with the thought of the women's bravery and their ability to bear the burdens suddenly thrust upon their unaccustomed shoulders.

Half the time you lose in explaining why things are not just right easily might secure you an increase in salary.—John A. Howland.

Santa Fe trail, and of what a fine man his father, Ezra Calkins, was. It was the first time he had mentioned the name and her ear caught it at once.

"Your father's name is Calkins?"

"Yes—I'm only an adopted son."

Unconsciously she had been letting her voice fall low, making their chat more confidential. She awoke to this now and to the fact that he had done the same, by noting that he raised his voice at this time with a casual glance past her to where her father sat.

"Yes—you see my own father and mother were killed when I was eight years old, and the people that murdered them tried to kill me too, but I was a spry little tike and give them the slip. It was a bad country, and I like to have died, only there was a band of Navajos over trading ponies, and one morning, after I'd been alone all night, they picked me up and took care of me. I was pretty near gone, what with being scared and everything, but they nursed me careful. They took me away off to the south and kept me about a year, and then one time they took me with them when they worked up north on a buffalo hunt. It was at Walnut creek on the big bend of the Arkansas that they met Ezra Calkins coming along with one of his trains and he bought me 50 silver dollars for me to the chief.

Well, when I told him all that I could remember about myself—of course the people that did the killing scared a good deal of it out of me—he took me to Kansas City where he lived, and went to law and made me his son, because he'd lost a boy about my age. And so that's how we have different names, he telling me I'd ought to keep mine instead of taking his."

She was excited by the tale, which he had told almost in one breath, and now she was eager to question, looking over to see if her father would not also be interested; but the latter gave no sign.

"You poor little boy, among those wretched Indians! But why were your father and mother killed? Did the Indians do it?"

"No, not Indians that did it—and I never did know why they killed them—they that did it!"

"But how queer! Don't you know who it was?"

Before answering, he paused to take one of the long revolvers from its holster, laying it across his lap, his right hand still grasping it.

"It was firing my leg where it was," he explained. "I'll just rest myself by holding it here. I've practiced a good smart bit with these pistols against the time when I'd meet some of them that did it—that killed my father and mother and lots of others, and little children, too."

"How terrible! And it wasn't Indians?"

"No—I told you that already—it wasn't Indians."

"Don't you know who it was?"

"Oh, yes, I know all of them I want to know. The fact is, up there at Cedar City I met some people that got confidential with me one day, and told me a lot of their names. There was Mr. Barney Carter and Mr. Sam Woods, and they talked right freely about some folks. I found out what I was wanting to know, being that they were drinking men."

He had moved slightly as he spoke and she glanced at the revolver still held along his knee.

"Isn't that dangerous—seems to me it's pointed almost toward father?"

"Oh, not a bit dangerous, and it rests me to hold it there. You see it was hereabouts this thing happened. In fact, I came down here looking for a big man, and a little girl that I remembered, whose father and mother were killed at the same time mine was. This little girl was about three or four, I reckon, and she was taken by one of the murderers. He seemed like an awful big man to me. By the way, that's mean whisky your Bishop sells on the sly up at Cedar City. Why, it's worse than Taos lightning. Well, this Barney Carter and Mr. Sam Woods, they would drink it all right, but they said one drink made a man ugly and two made him so downright bad that he'd just as lief tear his wife's best bonnet to pieces as not. But they seemed to like me pretty well, and they drank a lot of this whisky that the Bishop sold me, and then they got talking pretty freely about old times. I gathered that this man that took the little girl is a pretty big man around here. Of course I wasn't expecting anything like that; I thought naturally he'd be a low-down sort to have been mixed up in a thing like that."

He spoke his next words very slowly, with little pauses.

"But I found out what his name was—it was—"

He stopped, for there had been an indistinct sound from where her father sat, now in the gloom of the evening. She called to him:

"Did you speak, father?"

There was no reply or movement from the figure in the chair, and Follett resumed:

"I guess he was just asleep and dreaming about something. Well, anyway—I found out afterwards by telling it before him, that Mr. Barney Carter and his drunken friend had given me his name right, though I could hardly believe it before."

"What an awful, awful thing! What wickedness there is in the world!"

"Oh, a tolerable lot," he assented. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Looking Forward.

"Have you any watches with water-proof cases?" asked the young man.

"No," replied the jeweler. "What is your object in wanting a water-proof watch?"

"Oh, I may have occasion to soak it occasionally," answered the young man.

She found able assistants in her work in her two daughters, who placed themselves under the tuition of a trained nurse so that they might work with skill and knowledge among the stricken men.)

A great man found the work of the women of the United States in the civil war worthy of commemoration in one of his great speeches, and although no one has as yet paid a like tribute to the work of our women during the Spanish war it is not less worthy of some record.

The difference between the work of the four years from 1861 to 1865 and that of the four months from April to August, 1898, was a difference of quantity, not of kind. The spirit which prompted and sustained it was of the same high quality.

The strain upon mind and heart and soul was less during the Spanish war by the absence of the corroding terror that danger to the nation caused during the war of the rebellion. It was perhaps more trying because of the question which must arise in the strongest heart as to whether the dear lives of our dearest were not too heavy a price to pay for any good thing.

But whatever the questioning the action did not fail. Women with heart-strings torn asunder by those "partings," such as wring the life from our hearts" went loyally to work—real work.

Hospital stores of all kinds, food, medicines, clothing were issued to every point where they would be received and any request for such aid was granted as soon as made.

One instance will illustrate the invariable method pursued by them.

It came to my knowledge that the Manitoba, a hospital ship, was to sail from Newport News for a West Indian port to bring home sick and wounded men. At the same time I was told that the ship was nearly unfurnished with medicines and hospital stores.

The brigade surgeon, Dr. Birmingham, at my request made out a list of the most important things and this was telegraphed to the secretary of the Colonial Dames at Washington, D. C., one morning at nine o'clock. At three o'clock on the afternoon of the same day the stores and medicines were shipped. They reached Newport News the following morning and a day later the Manitoba had sailed with a "full supply of hospital necessities," as the brigade surgeon telegraphed. The women did that important piece of work in six hours.

Those who will look into the matter will find the promptness and efficiency of the civil war work very worthily continued in the Spanish war.

Those who may think that the women were undertaking to do work that should have been left to the war department and the surgeon-general's office are urged to reflect that on the contrary the women were only supplementing in isolated cases and in a small way the great and admirable work accomplished by our secretary

ADVICE TO RHEUMATICS

Noted Physician Tells How to Prevent and Cure Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

(By Geo. Edmund Flood, M. D.)

If you would avoid Rheumatism and Kidney and Bladder Troubles, be moderate in the consumption of heavy, rich foods, substitute as far as possible soups, broths, fresh milk and drink water—lots of water. Take plenty of time to eat, and don't eat after you have had enough, even if it does taste good. If your work is confining take a moderate amount of exercise each day in the open air.

Of course, neither diet, water, rest nor exercise will cure these afflictions. I advise them as preventives only. For the benefit of the readers of this article who are now afflicted with Rheumatism, Kidney, Bladder or Urinary trouble, and desire to be cured quickly, I give below, complete in every detail, the famous prescription which has made me so successful in the treatment of these diseases. It is the most certain cure for these diseases that I have ever used. It is pleasant to take, it is not expensive, it can be filled by any druggist, and I believe it is the greatest prescription for Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder Trouble ever written. It is also a valuable spring tonic and blood purifier. If you are a sufferer, save this, take it to your druggist and have it filled, or get the ingredients and mix them at home.

Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, ½ ounce.

Concentrated Barkola Compound, 1 ounce.

Fluid Extract Prickly Ash Bark, ½ drachm.

Aromatic Elixir, 4 ounces.

Adult dose, take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime; children, one-fourth to one-half teaspoonful after meals.

After you are cured follow the advice I have given you in regard to diet, exercise and water, and you will not need the services of a physician again for these ailments.

Other papers are privileged to copy.

One Way.

A reverend gentleman was addressing a Sunday school class not long ago, and was trying to enforce the doctrine that when people's hearts were sinful they needed regulating. Taking out his watch, and holding it up, he said:

"Now, here's my watch; suppose it doesn't keep good time—now goes too fast, and now too slow—what shall I do with it?"

"Sell it," promptly replied a boy.—Harper's Magazine.

It is a pity to be ill! Take Garfield Tea, the laxative exactly suited to the needs of men, women and children; it is made wholly of herbs; it purifies the blood, eradicates disease, overcomes constipation, brings Good Health.

The archdiocese of Cologne, Germany, is the largest in the world, with a Catholic population of more than 2,000,000.

Nature makes occupation a necessity to us; society makes it a duty; habit may make it a pleasure.—Carpelle.

TRY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR YOUR RHEUMATISM.

The Pills Have Cured the Disease in Almost Every Form and Even in Advanced Stages.

Rheumatism is a painful inflammation of the muscles or of the coverings of the joints and is sometimes accompanied by swelling. The pain is sharp and shooting and does not confine itself to any one part of the body, but after settling in one joint or muscle for a time, leaves it and passes on to another. The most dangerous tendency of the disease is to attack the heart. External applications may give relief from pain for a time but the disease cannot be cured until the blood is purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine for this purpose as their action is directly on the blood, making it rich, red and healthy. When the blood is pure there can be no rheumatism.

Mrs. Ellen A. Russell, of South Goff St., Auburn, Me., says: "I had been sick for fifteen years from impure blood, brought on by overwork. My heart was weak and my hands colorless. I was troubled with indigestion and vomiting spells, which came on every few months. I had no appetite and used to have awful fainting spells, falling down when at my work. I frequently felt numb all over. My head ached continuously for five years."

"About two years ago I began to feel rheumatism in my joints, which became so lame I could hardly walk. My joints were swollen and pained me terribly."

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended to me by a friend, after I had failed to get well from the doctor's treatment. When I began taking the pills, the rheumatism was at its worst. I had taken only a few boxes, when the headaches stopped and not long afterward I felt the pain in my joints becoming less and less, until there was none at all. The stiffness was gone and I have never had any return of the rheumatism."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured such diseases as nervous headache, debility, indigestion, nervous headache, neuralgia and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. As a tonic for the blood and nerves they are unequalled.

A pamphlet on "Diseases of the Blood" and a copy of our diet book will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Obituary—Mrs. M. M. Durham

(By Rev. T. E. Ream)
Mrs. M. M. Durham, maiden name Nutt, was born in Boone township, Boone county, Ill., on the 18th day of October, 1871, and passed away at her home in Genoa, April 23, 1907, being 35 years, 6 months and 5 days of age at the time of her decease.

Mrs. Durham has spent most of her lifetime in Genoa and has been well known in this community for more than 20 years, most of her relatives still living here.

On the 28th day of February, 1890 she was united in marriage to Mr. Milton M. Durham and into their home four children were born, three sons and one daughter. Their only daughter, Pearl, passed away about one year ago. She leaves to mourn her bereaved husband and three children, all of whom are bowed down in deep sorrow realizing that a devoted wife and a loving, sacrificing mother has been taken from their home.

Of her father's family she leaves in her death her sorrowing father, Hiram Nutt of Genoa, also three brothers and one sister. Her brothers are Freeman and Hiram Nutt, both residing in Genoa, and Herbert Nutt of Elgin. Her sister is Mrs. Ella Erickson of Rockford, Iowa. But besides her own loved ones and relatives our deceased sister leaves many dear friends and neighbors who in precious memory will think of her, her womanly qualities, her devoted and beautiful Christian life and character as she labored and sacrificed for those whom she loved.

Mrs. Durham lived a Christian life and at last enjoyed that blessed assurance, which is the rich reward of all Christians that her "Name was written in the Lamb's Book of Life."

About nine years ago Mrs. Durham was baptized in the Christian faith and joined the Genoa M. E. church and was a member in good standing at the time of her death. She was true to her vows and whenever her health would permit or conditions would allow she found her way to the house of God to join with God's people in worship. She was a member of the Genoa Court of Honor.

She seemed especially at times to realize her serious sickness and often spoke about going home meaning her home in heaven. Not many days before her departure she made it known to neighbors and loved ones that she was God's child and was ready to go. Such of God's children never live in vain, but the memory and blessed influence will ever reach out to the hearts of the loved ones of the home and to the hearts and minds of neighbors and friends who live within the circle of human influence for it is true that no man lived unto himself and no man dieth unto himself.

The funeral services were held on Friday afternoon at 1:30 at the home and at 2 o'clock at the M. E. church. Rev. T. E. Ream officiated at the services and the ladies quartette furnished the singing.

It's too bad to see people who go from day to day suffering from physical weakness when Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea would make them well. The greatest tonic known. 35 cents. Tea or Tablets. Slater & Douglas and Hunt's Pharmacy.

MAN WHO TRAPPED 'FRISCO BOODLERS HAS FINE RECORD CALLED KING OF DETECTIVES

William J. Burns, Most Clever of the Secret Service Agents Employed by Uncle Sam, Has Earned Proud Title by His Many Successes in Running Down Offenders Against the Law—His Methods Are Shrewd, Direct and Straight Forward, and He Has Yet to Record Failure in Any Case in Which He Has Been Employed—Land Grabbers, Boodlers or Counterfeiters All One to Him.

San Francisco.—William J. Burns, the United States secret service agent who trapped every member of San Francisco's corrupt board of supervisors into a full confession of their guilt, is called "the king of detectives."

Although Burns has this international reputation as a detective, it is hard for his intimates to remember always that Burns is a detective. Thus Francis J. Heney, the prosecutor with whom Burns has worked through the land fraud cases in Oregon and in the San Francisco boodler cases, finds his associate a source of continual surprise.

"Burns amuses me," said Heney one day recently, as he looked out the window of his office in the unburnt "Western Addition" of San Francisco, Trapping a Boodler.

while Burns was whirling by in his automobile.

"Look at him!" he exclaimed. "He is as placid and dignified as a lord in his carriage."

Burns was leaning back at his ease in the rear seat of the big tonneau, immaculately groomed, with a look of imperturbable boredom on his face.

The lawyers associated with Heney in the prosecution of Abe Ruef and Mayor Schmitz were in the room at the time, and they fell into a discussion of the man.

Methodical in Everything.

"What interests me most about Burns is that he never misses a meal," said Cobb, Heney's partner. "I never saw him in too much of a hurry to take his hour for dinner at the regular time. He is methodical in everything. It is all in a day's work with Burns, and when he turns in at night he sleeps like a top."

"Yet he never procrastinates," put in District Attorney Langdon. "I asked him the other night if he thought he could get a man we wanted and bring him to the office in the morning."

"What's the matter with getting him now?" said Burns. "Taking down the receiver from the phone he called up a saloon. His man was there. Burns told him it would be better for his health to surrender himself at our office without delay. The man came at once."

"What interests me about Burns," put in J. Dwyer, another of the attorneys of the graft prosecution, "is his personality. He gets the men he is after to like him. Ruef likes him now better than any of his own men. Those two swap stories to each other until you can't believe Burns is working all the time to land Ruef in San Quentin prison."

"He can mimic a Frenchman, an Englishman, a Dutchman to perfection, and the stories he tells sound like good fiction. I believe it is his magnetism as much as his persistence that wins for him."

His First Important Case.

This is the story of Burns' first important case, as told by himself: "It was in 1890, in St. Louis. A number of firebugs had been burning down houses for insurance money. They rented these houses; then they put in velvet carpets, elegant furniture, pianos and so forth, which they insured. As soon as they had their policies, they would move out of the furniture. Then they would light a two-hour candle, and at two o'clock in the morning the house would burn down with a complete loss. In this way they had got hundreds of thousands of dollars out of the insurance companies.

"When I was called into the case it had been pretty thoroughly gone over by Pinkerton men, who had located the suspects. The difficulty was to get legal evidence. Jim French, who later fled to Honduras, after having served his first sentence, which I got against him, was the leader of the gang.

"The difficulty in all such cases is to uncover the tracks of the criminals while avoiding direct methods. Instead of going out to induce some of the marked men to come to the front with a confession, I went to them under the name of 'Williams' and told them that I had been sent by the insurance companies to investigate the detectives that had been working on the case who were accused of misappropriating their expense money. While carrying on this 'special investigation' I was able to gather around me all the gang. From them I selected the one man who, I thought, could give me the evidence. This fellow, John Rudd by name, never knew until the day that he was called into the grand jury room that he had been aiding in the apprehension of the incendiaries.

Suspected Informer Killed.

"When all was ready I went before the grand jury and explained the case. The insurance agents told their losses and then we called in Rudd and explained to him his part in the case. After indictments had been brought in there was a terrible uproar. Some member of the grand jury told the gang that a man by the name of Burns had come before them and told the whole story. No one knew Burns. I had been going under the name of Williams, but the following night one of the gang was suspected by his fellows of being 'Burns' and was shot dead in a saloon. They never knew until the first day of the trial who I was.

Marshal McDonald was trying the case. I was sitting beside him. When Rudd was on the stand he was asked, on cross-examination, to whom he had first told the story.

"To a man who called himself 'Williams,' he replied.

"Do you know his true name?"

"I understand now that it is Burns."

"Oh, this mysterious Mr. Burns! How long is it since you saw him last?"

"Just now."

"Is he here now?"

"Yes."

"In this room?"

"He is sitting beside you," was the answer.

"This was the first that Jim French and the rest of the gang knew of the part I had taken in the investigation."

As Burns sat at his desk telling the story, he had the appearance of a banker explaining a deal in stocks. He is as far from the dime novel detective as he is from the wonderful Mr. Sherlock Holmes or Conan Doyle's novels.

"Chief Wilkie of the secret service once remarked to me," said Heney, "that Burns was a man with a sixth sense, who could tell as if by instinct when a man was telling the truth, and when he had told all he knew. My experience with Burns bears this out. Once in the Oregon land fraud cases I thought a witness was holding something back. Burns said he had told all he knew, and Burns was right. At another time I thought a witness had made a complete confession. Burns said: 'Keep at him!' sure enough the most incriminating part of his story came out afterward."

"One thing that has surprised me in Burns," added Langdon, "is this. He never wastes any time in bluffing. Every one here in town knows his automobile. But, do you think if he wanted you to-night he would stop a block away and send his machine back? No, sir. He would go straight to your door. Toot, toot, and ring the bell."

Never Wore a Disguise.

Burns himself has this to say about his work as a detective:

"People seem to think that there is something uncanny about detective work. They imagine we go around disguised in false whiskers and wearing blue goggles. I never use a disguise, except a change of clothes. But I can take one of my men and let you talk with him; then bring him in to-morrow and let you see him and you would not believe him the same man. Here in San Francisco every one knows me—at least all the crafters do—so it would be useless to try a disguise."

Burns' methods all through the Ruef case have been surprisingly open. When he started out to capture Ruef after his friends, the sheriff and the coroner, had been pretending to search for him in vain for a week, Burns assembled his posse in half a dozen automobiles in front of Heney's office; with Ruef's lawyers' offices but half a block away. He had ten men with him, but the open way with which he went about the job made the attorneys for the grafter think it must be all a ruse, and no effort was made to follow the party. They went straight to the resort at the Trocadero in the outskirts of San Francisco, where Burns knew that Ruef was in hiding. Burns had the house surrounded; then he walked in and surprised Ruef at dinner. He had his man back at Heney's office within three hours.

Surprising a Bribe-Taker.

Of his present work Burns himself says: "This San Francisco case is one of the most interesting I have ever had. Of course municipal graft cases are all somewhat alike. You know who the men are who have got official favors. The first thing to do is to single out the official who you think will accept a bribe, and then get at him by inducing him to accept what he thinks is a bribe. Of course your money is marked. Then you surprise him in the act. After that you have him cold. Through him you get at the bribe-givers."

"When I started in on this work in San Francisco I expected to get after each of the supervisors singly, but one of the newspapers got wind of it and published the story how we were working on one man. That spoiled things for us, and I had to resort to other methods."

What Burns had done was to induce the proprietor of a skating rink who had fallen out with Mayor Schmitz to have an ordinance in his favor introduced in the board of supervisors. Then he arranged to buy the vote of one of them—Lonergan by name—for $500. Burns was concealed in the room when the marked money was passed. He pounced forth at the psychological moment when Lonergan was taking the bribe.

"Take the money," said the trapped boodler, pale as a sheet. "I am done for."

"I'll take the money, and I'll take you, too," said Burns. With that he scared him into a complete confession. Previous to this he had secured another confession from one of Lonergan's colleagues who was ill and thought he was about to die.

A Boodler Trapped.

With the inside information of these two confessions Burns got to work on all the other supervisors. They were so scared that the whole 18 came through with a rush. When Heney and then branched out into making hundred dollar bills.

"In the letter I opened I found three of the bills which were being sent to Taylor and Briddell by Kendig & Jacobs, cigar merchants in Lancaster, Pa., with whom they operated. I marked the bills, replaced them in the envelopes and remailed the letters.

"Later, when Chief Wilkie and I went to search Taylor and Briddell's place and put them under arrest I pried open a drawer in their desk. I found two of the three bills I had taken from the letter and marked.

"Wilkie was standing beside me at the time, and I said to him, loud enough for the two men under arrest to hear:

"That's funny. Jacobs told us there were three of these bills."

"Briddell bit at the bait."

"Burns," he said, "how many men have you got under arrest in this case?"

"I named every man who was connected with the case. None of them was under arrest at the time."

"That's enough for me," said Briddell. "We don't make any more trouble for you."

"He gave me his full confession on the spot. It was opening the letter that did the trick. Of course Jacobs had told us nothing."

Counterfeiters Caught.

An illustration of careful detective work is Burns' method in running down two counterfeiters from Central America. They were Gen. Frederico Mora and Ricardo de Requensens. These two men had been making counterfeiters in the United States of the 100 peso notes of Costa Rica. Our government was asked to apprehend the counterfeiters, and Burns was entrusted with the job. Others had worked at it before, but all Burns had to start with was a sofa wrapped up in burlap in which $3,000,000 of the counterfeit notes had been stuffed for shipment to Costa Rica. On the burlap was the mark, "XX 1634."

Starting from this, Burns found that in packing a shipment of overalls from a factory in Newburg, it was the shipping number, in Newburg Burns went over the books of the factory and found that those particular overalls had been shipped to a dry goods store in Long Island City. There they told him that they had recently sold one of the pieces of burlap to an old lady by the name of Mrs. Chevins. It did not look promising.

But, when Burns learned that Mrs. Chevins had a son-in-law, one Ricardo de Requensens, who hailed from Costa Rica, he thought the trail was getting warm.

De Requensens was living with a young widow from Pittsburg at the house of his mother, Mrs. Chevins. Burns placed De Requensens and the widow under arrest. Then he sent one of his men to the jail with an alleged message to the effect that if he would produce the plates of the counterfeit notes the government would abandon his prosecution.

After the messenger left, De Requensens was visited by his mother-in-law. When she left him Burns followed her to her home in Long Island City.

TATE MAKES HIS ESCAPE.

Man Much Wanted in Peoria Gives Authorities the Slip.

Peoria.—"Eddie" Tate, the Chicago "gentleman burglar" who confessed to complicity in the Peoria school board safe robbery last January, and who incriminated prominent citizens of Peoria in his confession, escaped from St. Francis hospital, where he had been taken on account of illness after his recent arrest.

Tate's escape is believed to be a part of a plot to enable men implicated in Newton C. Dougherty's embezzlement to escape being brought to trial. This plot began with Dougherty's incarceration in the penitentiary. The destruction of the incriminating evidence in the school board safe was the first result of the conspiracy.

After Tate's arrest in New York for dynamiting the school board safe he was brought to the Peoria jail to await the action of the grand jury. A short time ago he complained of being ill, and was taken to St. Francis hospital, where he recovered and was pronounced convalescent. From there he escaped.

Tate, while in the penitentiary, worked side by side with Dougherty on the prison records, and the conspiracy was said to have had its beginning there. Dougherty is said to have arranged with influential friends to secure first the parole of Tate from the penitentiary and then for the payment to him and his pals of $4,500 in return for destroying the documents held in the Peoria safe.

These documents were to have been used to convict Dougherty on further charges after his release from the penitentiary, and, it is asserted, implicated a number of prominent Peoria men in the operations through which Dougherty stole nearly $1,000,000 belonging to the Peoria schools.

Youthful Kidnaper.

Mount Vernon.—William E. Thomas, aged 14, of St. Louis, is in jail in this city, charged with kidnaping his 12-year-old brother. The warrant was sworn out by his father, who resides here. The boy's parents are divorced and he makes his home with his mother in St. Louis. He came here to kidnap his eight-year-old sister also, according to his story, and would have done so had not his father had him arrested.

Batterton, of Menard county, and Edgar Pruitt, of Sangamon county. Ten districts are partly in both counties. The decision was withheld until a future session.

Parole Body Hears Linn Case.

Joliet.—The case of John A. Linn, of Chicago, came up before the parole board at the penitentiary. Mr. Linn has been in the hospital ever since he was brought to Joliet, suffering from a complication of rheumatism and asthma. It is understood that one of the main arguments for his release at once is the condition of his health.

Jacksonville.—James McCool of Glasgow, Scott county, while dynamiting a pond for fish on the Sangamon bottoms, had his hand literally torn off, both eyes put out and his head terribly mangled by a stick of dynamite which exploded in his hand. Pe-ru-na Relieves Spring Catarrh.

MISS DORA HAYDEN.

"Without hesitation I write to thank you for the great relief I have found in your valuable medicine, Pe-ru-na, and will call the attention of all my friends suffering with catarrh to that fact. Besides I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering with catarrh in any form."—Miss Dora Hayden, 819 6th St., S. W., Washington, D. C.

A Case of Spring Catarrh.

Mrs. N. P. Lawler, 433 1/2 N. Broadway, Pittsburg, Kas., writes: "Last spring I caught a severe cold, which developed into a serious case of catarrh. I felt weak and sick, and could neither eat nor sleep well."

"A member of our club who had been cured of catarrh through the use of Pe-ru-na advised me to try it, and I did so at once. I expected help, but nothing like the wonderful change for the better I observed almost as soon as I started taking it. In three days I felt much better, and within two weeks I was in fine health. Pe-ru-na is a wonderful medicine."

Fighting with Ants.

The Indians of the Mauritius dispose of termites, or white ants, in this manner: When they see their covered way approaching a building, they drop a train of syrup from this way to the nearest nest of black ants. The first ones that see the syrup follow it up till they reach the termite passage. They return to their nest, and in a few hours a black army starts out for the white ant stronghold. With great fury they rush into the galleries, and in a short time entirely destroy the enemy, and each one, on its way home, carries a dead termite, probably to eat.

The Eternal Feminine.

The sons of men rule the world, but the daughters of men govern it through them. It is woman who founds society in its artificial aspects. It is woman who creates class distinctions and insists on maintaining them. It is woman who imbues man with desire to emulate, who instills into him social ambition that inevitably brings in its train the restless fever of acquisition, the madness of greed, the ambition for power through financial success. It is woman who is at once the social bulwark, the autocrat and the snob.—Woman's Life.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hail's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ON THE TRAIL OF THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

This Distinguished American Journalist Is Traveling Around the World for the Purpose of Investigating the American Foreign Missionary from a Purely Disinterested, Secular and Non-Partisan Standpoint. Illustrated with Drawings and from Photographs.

THE RELIGIOUS ROMANCE OF TRANSFORMED HAWAII

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.) Honolulu, T. H. — As a paradise of natural beauty, Hawaii is of interest to the tourists; but to the student of religious, social and political questions its greatest importance lies in the swiftness of its transition from a savage community, bound by the practice of human sacrifice and the allied and greater curse of the taboo, into a self-governing, orderly and prosperous community, admitted into the sisterhood of the American union within 75 years after the time it began to emerge from rank barbarism.

A Complete Product of Missions. As a widely-heralded completed product of missions Hawaii has long been advertised by missionary workers. It has been said, times without number, that this is one of the few places on the globe where the missionaries finished their task; leaving to support and direct themselves as a Christian nation, the people whom, little more than a generation before, covered, Capt. Cook, were populated by a race of remote Aryan origin, who in the sixth century before had been driven north from the Samoan islands, over thousands of miles of sea, in canoes of their own making. As late as the thirteenth century they maintained relations, mostly warlike, with the people of the southern Polynesian archipelago. They never practiced cannibalism, though human sacrifice was one of their religious rites. They were a race of unusual vigor, longevity and comeliness. Their skill in handicraft is attested by the marvelous feather cloaks once worn by Hawaiian royalty, and now the almost priceless possession of a few museums.

Such was the stock from which came the 14-year-old boy, bearing the euphonious name of Obookiah, who, in 1809, was found weeping on the doorsteps of Yale college. He had fled from Hawaii, having seen his parents slain before his eyes in a civil war, and had made his way to America in one of the New England products and occupants all belonged to the chiefs and the king. A system of taboo safeguarded the power of these; it was taboo and death for a common man to let his shadow fall upon a chief, or to stand when the king's bathing water was carried by, or his name mentioned in song. It was taboo for a woman to eat with her husband. It was taboo and death for a man to enter his canoe on any day named as sacred by the priest. So ran the endless system of oppressions, despite which the race continued hardy and numerous, and against which the nation arose while the missionary ship Thaddeus was en route to the islands. Ripe for a new religion, having spurned the old, the natives gave eager welcome to the missionaries. The king and the chiefs were the first pupils, reversing the common experience, which is that Christianity works from the bottom upward. Within three months the king is said to have been able to read English. The New England devotion to education spurred the missionaries on, so that within two years the native speech had been reduced to writing and a spelling book printed in it. Within four years the chiefs formally agreed to recognize the Christian Sabbath, and to adopt the Ten Commandments as the basis of government. They also prohibited the practice of native women's swimming out to visit incoming ships for immoral purposes.

Shaping a Nation's Future. Extraordinary success attended the efforts of the missionaries. That generation of Hawaiians was practically conquered by them. Great revivals arose all over the group; hundreds and even thousands were baptized in a day; on one occasion Titus Coan baptized 1,200 natives, sprinkling them with a brush. Not all held out, however. Churches and schools were established. The first of the former was a grass building, like the native huts. It was shortly replaced by one of similar material, which seated 4,000 persons. When it burned, the present structure, on plain New England lines, was built by devoted converts, who quarried and carried the volcanic stone and dived into the sea for the coral with which to make lime. In this Kawaihahao church, which is now one of the sights of the city, many Hawaiian kings and queens worshipped.

As to education, it is enough to say that all the schools and academies and colleges on the islands, had their origin with the churches. Conspicuous among these is the venerable Oahu college, which, in its Bishop museum, perpetuates the memory of the last of the royal line of Kamehameha the Great. Punahou college enrolls the students of the best families of Hawaii. Of so high a grade were the educational institutions established by the missionaries that Californians used to send their children to Honolulu to be educated. English is now the only language taught to the children of this polyglot people; and the percentage of illiteracy on the islands is said to be lower than in some parts of New England. Nothing is more marked about the present-day religious activity of the islands than the prominence given to education. Industrial schools, kindergartens and night schools are too common to enumerate. Seminars for young women, theological schools, and what may be styled "academies" as well as the night schools, are, one or all, a department of the work of almost every religious agency to be found here, including the Buddhists. Naturally, the printing press has been used from the beginning, and the oldest English periodical west of the Rockies is "The Friend," which is still published by the Hawaiian board, the local successor to the American board.

Savages Turned Missionaries. The Kanakas, once missionary objects, are now missionary givers. They support mission work among their own people, and for 47 years have been generous givers to missionary work on the Gilbert islands, and elsewhere in Polynesia. At least 20 native Hawaiians have gone out as missionaries. There are now 75 ordained, native ministers on the islands. The theological seminary for natives, the Mid-Pacific institute, is just now expanding, so as to include in one organization the board's three schools, which begin the new era with an enrollment of more than 300 students. The benefits to Hawaii from the missionary invasion may be summarized as follows: The naked savage was clothed. A reign of law and justice was established. People ceased to be mere vassals of a king; and the lands, instead of belonging entirely to the rulers, were apportioned among the inhabitants. Self-government was instituted. The Hawaiian tongue was reduced to writing, and a system of education was introduced which today compares favorably with that of the mainland. The very land itself, bare of vegetation, was made to bloom with the verdant beauty which evokes exclamations of delight from every traveler. A people without music, of whom it was said so late as 1841, that "their efforts to sing illustrated piety rather than melody," have become famed musicians, with a band touring the large cities of the continent. The decline of the race has been arrested. Homes have been evolved where there was little worthy of that name. The spirit of chastity has been created within a race to whom it was not instinctive. Seventy thousand natives have been enrolled in the membership of Christian churches. A people who, less than a century ago were benighted objects of Christian benevolence, have themselves freely sent and carried the gospel to other islands. In a word, a future state of the American Union has been made out of the Sandwich islands.

The Romance of the South Seas. Things had been in a bad way in the Hawaiian islands. Civil war had for centuries been the rule, until Kamehameha the Great, a sort of dusky Napoleon, had consolidated the islands under one rule. Vice at its worst was common and open. Two-thirds of all the children born, it is estimated, were killed in infancy and aged parents were often buried alive. Human sacrifice was an essential part of the religious system. Stealing was a fine art; even kings and chiefs kept servants for the express purpose of committing theft. Gambling went on by wholesale. When food was plentiful, the native would gorge himself six or seven times a day, even rising in the night to eat. At other times he would eat but once a day, or go hungry altogether. "Science they had none; no written language, nor the least conception of any mode of communicating thought but by oral speech."

Government was oppressive; lands, they had found naked savages. For in 1863 the American board formally withdrew from the Hawaiian islands, which it had entered in 1820.

Are the Missionaries Graters? There, broadly stated, is one side of the situation. On the other hand, it has been charged, by innumerable persons and publications, that while the missionaries to Hawaii pointed the benighted native to mansions in the skies they at the same time quietly took possession of the native's earthly real estate. That the whole island, even since it has become a territory, is the private graft of the missionaries and their sons is an accusation familiar to almost everybody.

Hawaiians Still Worshipping Devils. Even more serious, to my mind, was the charge made by Prof. William T. Brigham, director of the famous Bishop Museum of Polynesian objects, in Honolulu. Prof. Brigham has spent a lifetime in the study of South Sea Island history, manners and customs. He declared to me that the work of the Christianization and civilization of the Hawaiian people has been altogether superficial, and that, if the whites were to move out to-morrow the native would be found restoring his old altars and worship the very next day.

As proof of this he said that he had recently found a native judge in one of the Honolulu courts—I think he said a United States court—worshipping at an old native altar in one of the remote parts of the Island of Oahu. Within a stone's throw of the Bishop museum, where we were talking, was a broken down altar, which, at the time of the political overthrow in 1893, was reestablished, along with a somewhat general recrudescence of idolatry throughout the islands. Within three months, he further said, in the city of Honolulu itself, a native priest had fallen dead while conducting heathen rites before the altar. The worshippers, fearful that the devil would catch them also, quickly bundled up the appliances of idol worship and carried them to Prof. Brigham, for they said, he would know what to do with the devil better than any other man of their acquaintance.

Obookiah and the Haystack. Before setting down the conclusions of a first-hand investigation of religious and social conditions on these islands (which investigation has included interviews with thoroughly-informed representatives of all parties, and a study of a great mass of documentary evidence, available only here) it is necessary to tell the story of Obookiah, and of the islands as the missionaries found them.

Justice Geo. E. Law, of Brazil, Ind., Has Married 1400 Couples.

Justice Geo. E. Law, of Brazil, Ind., has fairly earned the title "The Marrying Squire," by which he is known far and wide, having already married some 1400 couples. Ten years ago he was Deputy County Treasurer. "At that time," said Justice Law, "I was suffering from an annoying kidney trouble. My back ached, my rest was broken at night and the passages of the kidney secretions were too frequent and contained sediment. Three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in 1897, and for the past nine years I have been free from kidney complaint and backache."

STUDENT MADE HIS POINT.

No Doubt the Policeman Understood What He Meant.

W. H. Mallock, the well-known English writer and political economist, said at a dinner in New York, apropos of a new definition of socialism: "I find that definition rather confusing. It reminds me of the young Oxford student's badinage with the policeman. 'Officer,' said the youth late one night, 'I'd like to ask you a question.' 'Very well, sir.' 'Does the law permit me to call you an ass?' 'You move on,' the officer growled. 'But stop a bit,' continued the youth. 'Does the law permit me to call an ass a policeman?' 'The law don't say nothing about that,' was the gruff reply. 'Then,' said the youth, 'good-night, Mr. Policeman.'"

Awful Humor Eating Away Face—Body a Mass of Sores—Corticura Cures in Two Weeks.

"My little daughter broke out all over her body with a humor, and we used everything recommended, but without results. I called in three doctors, but she continued to grow worse. Her body was a mass of sores, and her little face was being eaten away. Her ears looked as if they would drop off. Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and before I had used half of the cake of Soap and box of Ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's face and body were as clear as a new-born babe's. I would not be without it again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents. Mrs. George J. Steese, 701 Coburn St., Akron, O., Aug. 30, 1905."

Remarkable Typewriting Feats.

A woman in a typewriting contest in Paris recently won a victory over more than 150 competitors by writing 16,500 words in four hours. A man wrote 17,000 words, but he made so many mistakes that he was ruled out. An American woman has surpassed the French woman's record, for in the ordinary course of business she once wrote 10,500 words in two and a half hours, and made three copies as she went along.—Youth's Companion.

IN WESTERN CANADA.

Delicate in the Old Home; Better Health in the New.

Churchbridge, Sask., December 1st, 1906.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir, I came to this country from the State of Wisconsin three years ago, and must say that I am greatly pleased with the outlook in this western country. For my own part I am entirely satisfied with the progress I have made since coming here. I have raised excellent crops of grain of all varieties. Last season my wheat averaged 23 bushels of wheat to the acre, oats 60 and barley 40.

We had a splendid garden this year, ripening successfully tomatoes, muskmelons, water melons, sweet corn and kindred sorts.

The country is well adapted to wheat growing and mixed farming, and to my mind it is the best country under the sun for a man with a family and small means, as it is possible for a man to commence farming operations with much less capital than is required in the older settled countries.

The climate is all that could be desired, being very healthy and invigorating.

My wife came out about six months ago, and although inclined to be delicate in the old home, she has enjoyed the best of health since coming here.

In short, I am more than satisfied with the land of my adoption, and I am also satisfied with the laws of the country.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) JOHN LANGDON.

The School Journal, commenting on the recent meeting of the Society for Moral and Social Progress, reported in THE UNION SIGNAL of January 3, says: "Each sex of school children needs special instruction and regular and thorough study. The use of pamphlets gives strength to the wrong idea of mystery, secrecy and shame. It is not a subject for concealment. The scientific method of teaching it in connection with biology and physiology is the best because this is where the subject belongs and through this channel it is approached naturally, without a sensational atmosphere and without arousing home criticism. The difficulties are largely imaginary; they lie with the teachers, not with the children. Our assumption that we are treading on dangerous ground, our apologetic, hesitating manner creates the wrong impression and defeats the purpose desired. Those who have sincerely and calmly given this instruction testify that its reception has been all that could be desired."
