

FATHER AND CHILD KILLED

Sycamore Family in Terrible Auto Accident on Lincoln Highway

WERE STRUCK BY A FAST TRAIN

George McNaughton, Jr., and Daughter the Victims—Others Injured

In an automobile accident early on Sunday morning at Union Grove, between Sterling and Morrison, George McNaughton Jr. of Sycamore was instantly killed, his daughter, Martha, aged five years received injuries from which she died a few hours later and Mrs. George McNaughton was so injured that she lies in the Sterling hospital in a serious condition.

The automobile party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Nehring of DeKalb, formerly of Sycamore, and Mr. and Mrs. George McNaughton, son George and daughter, Martha, of Sycamore. They left DeKalb on Sunday morning at 2 o'clock, to visit their relatives and friends at Mechanicsville, Iowa. Mr. Nehring was driving his car, an Overland sedan, and on the front seat with him was Mrs. Nehring and George McNaughton aged 10. On the rear seat Mr. and Mrs. McNaughton and their daughter, Martha, aged 7.

At Union Grove a station consisting of a grain elevator, a general store and a few dwellings, Lincoln Highway crosses the North-Western railroad, on a curve, and only about 500 feet of track are visible from the highway, a crossing that is considered dangerous. The driver of the auto slowed down, but not hearing a train drove on to the track and would have cleared it two feet more when the fast passenger train which stops between Clinton and Chicago only at Malta bore down on the automobile, throwing it about 40 feet, turning it so that it faced in the opposite direction and making it a complete wreck. The first knowledge of danger the driver of the auto had was the screech of the whistle and then the grinding of the automatic brakes. The train of eleven cars was stopped before it had cleared the crossing.

Mr. McNaughton was found beside the tracks dead. The little daughter survived for about ten hours, but did not regain consciousness. The son, George, aged 10, was thrown through the automobile door, and escaped with slight bruises. Mrs. McNaughton was severely injured, and is in the Sterling hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Nehring, although painfully bruised and shaken, so far recovered as to be able to be removed in an ambulance to their home in DeKalb. It is believed they will fully recover.

Paul Nehring, of Sycamore, founder of the Nehring Insulated Wire Co., of DeKalb, of which his brother, Randolph Nehring is foreman, drove to Sterling Sunday on receipt of news in noon on receipt of a telegram informing him of the tragedy. The injured were taken by train to Morrison for first aid, and then to the Sterling hospital. An inquest was held.

The remains of Mr. McNaughton and his daughter arrived in Sycamore Monday. The funeral services were held at the home on South avenue in Sycamore Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, Rev. Edward K. Masterson, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating.—True Republican.

WILSON PLEADS GUILTY

Kingston Man Waives Jury and Submits to Fine and Costs

Before Judge Stott last Friday morning Warren Wilson of Kingston pleaded guilty to reckless driving in Genoa and was assessed a fine of $35.00. The costs added made the total sum of $46.90. Wilson waived a jury after withdrawing his plea of not guilty.

Warren Wilson was arrested some time ago by Sheriff Decker, following reckless driving in the city of Genoa. An attempt was made to arrest Wilson after he left Genoa and it was at that time that Robert Furr was seriously injured while assisting the police.

Officer Crawford and Mr. Furr overtook the Wilson wagon near the "Drake bridge" west of Genoa and in attempting to stop the team, the wagon struck Mr. Furr, dislocating his hip. He was in the hospital about two weeks and is still using crutches.

MOTORISTS DEMAND ACTION

Bill for Patrolling and Marking Highways Inactive

What has become of the Moents good roads law for the maintenance, patrol and marking of the state bond issue roads in Illinois an why is the machinery to put this law in operation practically at a standstill while neighboring states are forging ahead in road work?

This is a query propounded by the Illinois State Automobile Association, which, in a bulletin, urges action to fulfill pledges made to the people who have voted for good roads and still maintained highways but we are still patiently waiting for them.

In the Moents bill, $3,000,000 was voted for a biennial period to carry out the provisions of the law providing for the maintenance, patrol and marking of state and federal aid roads. This law became effective on July 1. Two months have flown by and still none of the designated highways have been touched to indicate that such a law had been passed.

"I can see no feasible reason for delay in carrying out the provisions of the Moents good roads law" said Henry Paulman, chairman of the good roads committee of the Illinois State Automobile Association.

"This bill passed the state senate with only one dissenting vote. It went through the house with only twelve representatives voting against it. It proved one of the popular measures of the session although it contained a paragraph breaking down our civil service of which the motor interests of the states do not approve.

"Despite the passage of this bill almost unanimously, we have no action to indicate that its provisions are being carried out. Two months have gone by and there is no action I can understand why there should be some delay in getting the organization under way but the marking of our highways should have been attended to at once. Well marked roads attract tourists and cause favorable comment. The fearful lack of road markings in Illinois has been a disgrace to the state.

"There are thousands of unemployed men walking the streets of our cities who could be put to work. We need the roads and these men need the work.

"Over in Michigan, which was far behind Illinois in its original program, they are pushing their road marking program with a rapidity that is attracting general notice. We have had enough delay in Illinois."

MAN LOSES HAND

Kirkland Brakeman Falls Under Train at Elgin

Pat Conway, of Kirkland, thirty year old brakeman of the Milwaukee railroad, is in Sherman hospital with his right hand cut off, the result of falling under a freight train on the Milwaukee track in Elgin.

Conway, who was not on duty, had walked north on the Milwaukee tracks early in the evening.

While walking alongside the moving train he stumbled and fell with his hand on the rail.

Dr. O. L. Pelton was called and immediately ordered Conway taken to the hospital. Officer Wallace responded with the police ambulance. Nurses at Sherman hospital in charge of Conway, stated that the injured man appeared to have been drinking.

Conway had not been working for two days and was not in the employ of the Milwaukee railroad at the time of the accident.

CHAUTAQUA RETURNS

The Mutual Chautauqua closed a five days' engagement in Marengo Sunday evening. The programs were excellent and were much enjoyed. The crowds were fair, though not so large as anticipated, but this is believed to have been partly due to the fact that the engagement in Marengo conflicted with the county fair dates, many persons wishing to attend the fair one or more days. A deficit in receipts was made good by the guarantors. The chautauqua will come to Marengo again next year, enough guarantors having been secured to assure their return.

MONTHLY PUBLICATION

A monthly publication, the first of which will be mailed out soon, is to be issued by the McHenry Soil Improvement association. The publication will be mailed to every member of the association in the county.

AMERICAN LEGION ANNUAL PICNIC

Electric Park to be Scene of Big Program September 11

SOMETHING DOING EVERY MINUTE

Ball Game, Irish Polo and Dancing—Sycamore Legion Extends Invitation

The largest crowd of the many large crowds that have gathered at the old-time amusement resort Electric Park, between Sycamore and DeKalb, gathered on the occasion of the first annual picnic a year ago under the auspices of Sycamore Post, No. 99, American Legion, and these wide-awake young men who responded so promptly and effectively to their country's call, are responding in like manner to make this public event for the benefit of their organization as big as was their first picnic.

It will be held, as before, at Electric Park, where there is plenty of space for parking the hundreds of automobiles, and which is easily reached by electric cars and by concrete pavement from both cities.

It will be held Sunday, September 11.

It will be an all-day basket picnic. Free coffee will be provided at noon. Irish polo and other games and sports will be provided for men, women and children. A pie-eating contest for women will be a feature. Performers will pass among the crowd and entertain. There will be "something doing" and a laugh every minute, the ex-service men say.

Those exceedingly clever ball players, the Sycamore and Hinckley ball teams will play at 3 o'clock.

There will be dancing afternoon and evening. Chandler's popular orchestra furnishing the music. The Mardi Gras ball at night is expected to be a great attraction.

Stands will provide refreshments of all kinds and much else.

At this time will be given away to those holding the lucky numbers' three prizes, as follows:

- First prize—The choice of either a Ford touring car, value $566, or a Fordson tractor, value $650.
 - Second Prize—Victrola, value $125.
 - Third Prize—Choice of either a man's Elgin wrist watch or a woman's Elgin wrist watch, value of each $35.
- The people generally for many miles around are invited to attend this picnic and help the ex-service men.

BUILDING NEAR MARENGO

Large Gang Now Working on Grant Highway

Marengo Republican: Active work was started on Section 12 of Grant Highway concrete road through Marengo. Section 12 extends from the eastern city limits of Marengo to the Garden Prairie cemetery.

The Federal Paving Co. of Chicago who have the contract for the work on Section 12 and 13, have sublet the grading and culvert work on the same to the J. J. Lewis Paving Co. of Milwaukee. The Lewis people have established headquarters in Marengo, having rented the Gill property residence at the west end of Prairie street where about thirty men have been quartered. These men are in charge of H. A. Allie.

According to Mr. Lewis of the paving company, and who will have supervision of the work in this locality, they plan to start work at the McHenry county line and work east toward Marengo. About forty men have been secured and as the work progresses more help will be added until about ninety men will be employed, their supply of labor being taken from time to time from other jobs which they have under construction, mostly in Chicago.

Mr. Lewis also stated to a Republican-News representative that he believed their part of the work, that of grading and putting in culverts on Section 12 and 13, would be completed in about three months. He also stated that it was his information that as soon as they had completed a mile or two of grading, the Federal Paving Co. would follow directly in their path, laying the roadbed and pouring the cement.

How Different.

A Baltimore laundry advertises: "We wash everything but the baby." How unaccommodating compared with the Boston concern which advertises: "You dirty kids cleaned for 15 cents."

LEG SMASHED

Automobile and Motorcycle Collide on Sycamore Street in Genoa

Ed Anderson of Belvidere lies in the hospital in that city with a compound fracture of the leg as a result of a collision on Sycamore street in this city last Friday morning. The motorcycle driven by Anderson and a Ford Sedan, driven by S. R. Crawford, coming together head-on near the M. E. church.

In the side car of the motorcycle at the time were Reuben Peterson, also of Belvidere, and Marshall Roach of Sycamore. Roach jumped in time to escape injury, but Peterson was cut on the lip when he hit the ground.

Mr. Crawford was driving to town from the Illinois Central station when the accident occurred and the men in the motorcycle, employed in the construction gang at the Illinois Central trestle west of Genoa, were on their way to the station. There was a misunderstanding of intentions when the two machines approached each other near the church. Mr. Crawford (that the driver of the motorcycle intended to pass on the left hand side of the road and turned to the west. It seems, however, that Mr. Anderson had no such intention, hence the wreck.

Anderson's left leg was caught between the bumper on the Ford and his motorcycle, the impact being so great that the bones of the leg were pushed thru the skin. It was at first thought that amputation would be necessary, but it has been learned that the leg can be saved.

The motorcycle was only slightly damaged. The Ford was put out of commission with lights and fenders smashed and one wheel broken from the car.

While there is great sympathy for the man who suffered the injury, everyone of his friends are just as much in sympathy with Mr. Crawford. His mental suffering since the accident has been as great as the other's physical discomfort. The former never drives over ten or fifteen miles an hour and is about the most careful fellow imaginable.

STORM HITS DEKALB

Cyclone Sunday Evening Causes Damage to Extent of Thousands

The severe wind storm which swept over Northern Illinois Sunday evening, hit the city of DeKalb with fair fury causing thousands of dollars worth of damage and injuring many people. The path of the cyclone was confined to Lincoln Highway where many automobiles were damaged, plate glass windows broken and people injured by flying debris.

One of the Haish factory buildings, occupied by the Nehring insulated electric company, was left without a roof, while part of the roof of Felle's garage was torn away.

Many trees on the side streets were uprooted and broken. Despite the fact that the air was filled with glass, timbers and other articles "too numerous to mention", no one was killed, although several were taken to the hospital with badly bruised bodies.

The storm broke when few people were on the street. Had it struck DeKalb at the same hour Saturday night there would have been loss of life.

CAN NOT FRIGHTEN HIM

States Attorney of Lake County Defies Booze Ring

"If the contemptible cowards who threatened my family think they can frighten me into stopping my prosecution of liquor sellers, they are very much mistaken. I am not only going to put in jail every violator of the law in Lake county, but I will find and punish the men responsible for this outrage."

The above was the reply of State's Attorney Smith of Waukegan, to the lawless booze element that is supposed to have been responsible for the bombing at Mr. Smith's home recently. Mr. Smith is gaining a reputation by his activities against blind pigs and is causing heavy fines and jail sentence to be made against many resort keepers of Lake County.

HENRY ADAMS DEAD

Operation at Belvidere Hospital Proves Fatal

Henry Adams was born in Genoa township January 7, 1872, and passed away at the St. Joseph hospital in Belvidere Sunday morning, Sept. 4, following an operation for Bright's disease, from which he did not rally.

Mr. Adams had been suffering nearly two years, following the amputation of both feet. His feet were frozen when he was enroute to Rockford from Genoa in January, 1920. At the time Mr. Adams was taken to the general hospital at Beloit where he remained four months, from there going to the house of his sister, Mrs. Minnie Wait, 113 East Second street, Belvidere, where he has made his home since.

There survive besides Mrs. Waite, another sister, Mrs. E. O. Marshall of Sycamore and one brother, Frank, of Genoa. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Methodist church, Rev. J. E. Robeson officiating. Interment in the Genoa cemetery.

SYCAMORE GETS SHORT END

Genoa Nationals Slip One Over on the County Seat Sunday

The Genoa Nationals slipped one over on the county seat bunch of ball players last Sunday at Electric Park to the tune of 11 to 9. True, it was not a big margin, nor was the game one that could be called a fancy exhibition of the national game, but it remains that the wind was taken out of the Sycamore sails. Said sails were all puffed up since the defeats administered the Nationals some time ago and it did the Genoa fans a lot of good to see the slump.

Both teams made errors, but the Genoa aggregation bunched hits at the right place and put over the winning scores. LeDeaux pitched the game for Genoa. A really good exhibition of fancy curves and hot stuff was served up to the Sycamore team.

GENOA RESPONDS

Called to Will Little Farm Tuesday Morning to Fight Fire

A blaze at the farm home of Will Little in Herbert Tuesday morning caused several hundred dollars' worth of damage in actual fire loss while the loss due to water will amount to other hundreds. The blaze started in the one story kitchen and before the flames were subdued the entire roof was destroyed. Farmers who were working near the Little farm responded to the alarm and soon a large bucket brigade was on the job. Many from Genoa went to the scene, taking with them the chemical engine, but the fire was practically extinguished before they arrived. All the furniture was removed from the house and little was damaged by water or breakage.

Mr. Little first discovered the fire as he was about to drive away from the farm in his automobile. When he reached the house it was so filled with smoke that he could not reach the second story at once. When the windows were opened the situation was somewhat relieved and people could enter and remove the furniture. It is thought that the fire started as the result of a defective chimney, there having been a fire in the kitchen range that morning and the evening before.

The financial loss is fully covered by insurance.

BOYS JUDGE CATTLE

Hinckley Lad Wins Highest Honors at DeKalb Picnic

DeKalb Chronicle: Although there were not a great many boys who entered the stock judging contest at the farmers' picnic at Annie's Woods Wednesday, due to an apparent lack of interest, those who entered did exceptionally good work.

The winners of the contest are announced today by P. M. Furr of the high school, as follows:

Poland China brood sows, Macklin John. Shabbona; Duroc Boar pigs Leonard Rich, DeKalb; horses, Joseph Greek, DeKalb; best all around Judge, Orin Reminsnyder, Hinckley. Donald Nelson was second best all around judge.

It is to be hoped that should another event of this kind be staged at any future date that boys of today will show a greater interest in the matter of better farming and better stock raising farms are going to depreciate in serious proportions.

It is believed that if the farmers could be called together once a month and the farm work could be handled from a more practical standpoint in the schools, as is planned now, approaching disinterest can be averted.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the many friends for their words of sympathy and assistance during the sad hours following the death of our brother, Henry Adams. The floral offerings were greatly appreciated.

The brothers and sisters.

BETTER ROADS BETTER HEALTH

Both Important but Latter Receives Least Consideration

CONFERENCE HELD IN SYCAMORE

To Promote Better Health Conditions in Public Schools of County

A public health conference was held at Sycamore on September 1, 1921, at the call of Supt. of Schools Hubbard to discuss the betterment of the public health, especially of the children of the county, thru more efficient working together of visitation nurses employed by various organizations of the county. At present visitation nurses are employed by the city of Sandwich and the school board working together and employing one nurse; by the district school board of the city of DeKalb, one nurse by the American Steel and Wire Co. at DeKalb employing a nurse; by the Tuberculosis Association of the County employing a nurse and by the DeKalb County Chapter of the American Red Cross, with headquarters at Sycamore, employing a nurse. Other organizations are considering the question but unless the field is in some way consolidated the expense is too great to allow for it. It is therefore the object to bring together the organizations interested with those who want this service in an attempt to thoroughly cover the county among the school children, infants and adults as the work may develop. It is proposed to hold clinics in various parts of the county at different times which will give to anyone in the county this work without charge; to concentrate the work when emergencies arise at points where contagious diseases may break out and stifle the malady before it spreads; to examine at regular intervals each child in the schools of the county and to make a record of the same to be filed at some central headquarters so that the progress of the child may be observed to note improvement or otherwise in health as progress is made thru the schools.

In pursuance of the instructions of this conference a call has been issued for a meeting of the heads of all organizations interested in this work, either actively or in contemplation, to attend a meeting to be held Saturday, September 10, at Sycamore at the Court House at 10 a. m. to consider ways and means of working together in a manner that will extend the benefits of this work to all of the people of the county. The invitation is open to anyone to attend who may be interested.

It is well known that better health conditions among the children leads to better intellectual work in the schools; that many health troubles of later life may be avoided if taken in hand in infancy or youth, and that after all good health is the best asset any mortal can have. Shall we give the boys and girls a square deal and a fair show in the race of life by administering to their ailments while they are young and susceptible to education along the lines of better health?

It has been shown that we are spending one dollar for this kind of work where we spend fifty dollars for road improvement work. If we must have road improvement to the extent of about a quarter of a million dollars a year in DeKalb County should we not have some agency devoted to health improvement that costs one twenty-fifth part of what is expended for roads?

HAMPSHIRE STILL LEADS

Get Best of Genoa Foresters in Tug of War Monday at Picnic

Genoa must again acknowledge the superiority of Hampshire brawn. The tug of war team again put its over on Genoa Monday at the Forester picnic. For many years our neighbors have had the reputation for being the best men at the end of a tug-of-war rope and they are still holding onto that reputation. The Hampshire Forester base ball team also put one over on the Genoa Foresters. In the races for ladies, however, the Genoa entrants were easy winners as the Genoa delegation came home feeling that all was not lost.

There was a large crowd in the beautiful grove south of Hampshire Monday, both Hampshire and Genoa being well represented, as well as many surrounding towns.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Federal Government Steps In to Put Down Insurrection in West Virginia.

TROOPS TO END MINE WAR

Freight Rates for Export Grain Reduced—Germany in Political Ferment—Revolt in India Suppressed—Progress of The Irish Negotiations.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Thousands of armed men led by professional trouble makers, massed in the hills of West Virginia determined to invade the coal mining counties to unloose the miners there, and defying the order of President Harding to disperse and go home. Thousands of volunteer troops, deputies and mine guards gathered to resist the invasion. Two regiments of the regular army at Camp Dix and one at Camp Sherman ready to start for the scene of disturbance to enforce the edicts of the president. Army airplanes with bombs and machine guns waiting at Charleston. Proclamation of martial law in several counties of West Virginia signed by President Harding and about to be issued.

Such was the status of our own "war" at the time of writing. The condition was serious enough to demand the undivided attention of the President and his cabinet. Brig. Gen. H. H. Bandholtz, who had been sent to West Virginia to report on the situation, had found that there was no likelihood that the insurgents would disperse until a snow of force was made by the government and had asked Secretary Weeks to send federal troops at once. General Bandholtz, it was understood, would be in command. In Washington Secretary Weeks said: "I don't want to say what will be done, but if we are forced to use troops, it will be a plenty."

The trouble in West Virginia is of 20 years' standing. In 1901-02 the miners' union began their attempts to unloose the coal fields there, and the Glen Jean strike was called. Ever since then the warfare has been going on, at times more serious than at others but never ceasing entirely. In recent years the conditions have been growing worse, for the I. W. W.'s and Communists and other agents of disorder and violence flocked to the region. A year ago last May the operators in Mingo county undertook to evict a number of union miners who occupied company houses, and bloody fighting resulted. The unions retaliated by calling a strike in the border counties, but the operators obtained plenty of nonunion men. The present outbreak really began last May, after federal troops were withdrawn. There was what amounted almost to an insurrection. Until now the miners have fought only with the state troopers and the deputies. Early last week Governor Morgan sent to President Harding and Secretary of War Weeks a plea for federal troops, saying the insurrectionists were beyond the control of the state forces and were seizing passenger trains to transport their re-enforcements and cutting all telegraph and telephone wires. He declared the men assembled to resist the invasion of Logan county would be utterly unable to repel the attack. General Bandholtz, who had been sent to investigate the situation, reported to Washington that the state had made only feeble efforts to check the growth of the insurgent movement, but nevertheless the President on Tuesday issued his proclamation warning the insurrectionists that if they did not at once disperse and return to their homes the army would be used to suppress them.

Although John T. Lewis, president of the national miners' union, asserts that all the trouble is traceable "to the continual assaults and outrages perpetrated upon individual mine workers by the armed Baldwin-Felts guards employed by the coal operators," he has not gone so far as to defend the miners in their defiance of constituted authority. Vice President Murray of the mine workers went to the scene of disturbance to try to induce the insurgents to return home. Other union officials had been attempting this for several weeks without avail.

All the nations invited to take part in the Washington conference on disarmament and Far Eastern questions have agreed to send delegations, the acceptance of Italy having been received last week. It will be comforting to the representatives of those nations at the meeting to learn that they will probably be accorded the same privileges as extended to duly accredited foreign diplomats, and that therefore they will be permitted to bring alcoholic beverages with them. Our government will do nothing in the way of prohibition enforcement that might embarrass the conference.

President Harding, speaking at the full term of the war college on Thursday, expressed the belief that the time was coming when the burdens of armament could be diminished, but declared that "no matter where the best aspirations of the world lead us, there never may be a time without the necessity for armed forces."

Despite the objections of railroad men, the interstate commerce commission authorized western and southwestern railroads to reduce 5 1/2 cents a hundred pounds the rates on grain and grain products for export from Missouri and Mississippi river points and on grain from the territory between the rivers and from Illinois to Gulf ports, Mobile to Galveston, inclusive.

The commission also authorized the railroads to publish on five days' notice reductions on grain ranging from 1 cent to 5 1/2 cents a hundred pounds from the territory west of the Missouri river in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma to Gulf ports.

The rates from Missouri and Mississippi river points and territory between and Illinois may be published by the railroads on less than the usual 30-days' notice.

American food for the starving children of Russia is being unloaded at Riga and Revel in immense quantities and rushed by rail to Moscow. The American relief administration has declined to pool its work with the general plan of the British, French, Italians, Belgians and Japanese on the ground that the latter plan would be too much in the control of the soviets. The Socialist national executive committee of America, running true to form, has cautioned the members of the party and other workers against giving any support to the Hoover relief organization, whose agents, the Socialists assert, "under the guise of assisting the masses of Hungary, used its machinery for counter-revolutionary purposes."

The assassination of Herr Erzberger at the instance of his political foes has thrown Germany into a ferment of demonstrations and counter-demonstrations, accompanied sometimes by rather serious rioting. First the royalists took the field, at Potsdam, for the ostensible purpose of celebrating the victory of Tannenberg. The Communists and Independent Socialists from Berlin, some 30,000 strong, enraged by the Erzberger murder, marched to the suburb and attacked the royalists. The police were compelled to intervene and killed several persons. Next day representatives of 11,000,000 organized workers assured Chancellor Wirth that they were ready to go to the front for the republic, and both the majority and Independent Socialists demanded that the government proceed fearlessly against the elements responsible for the anti-republican demonstrations and the death of Erzberger. At the same time President Ebert issued a proclamation declaring the intention of the government to suppress with the "iron hand" and with "unrelenting severity" all opposition to the republic. He threatened the nationalist press with suppression and confiscation and prohibited meetings, demonstrations and publications likely to encourage seditious movements. On Wednesday the day the murdered ex-chancellor was buried, 300,000 workmen and employers in all parts of Germany left their work to take part in meetings "for the republic and against political murder." There is little doubt that the government will be able to control the situation in Germany and in general keep the reactionaries within bounds.

Over in Hungary one Lieutenant Hejus is emulating the exploits of D'Annunzio in Fiume and Korfany in Upper Silesia. The treaty of St. Germain gave the territory of Burgenland to Austria, and the Hungarians were highly displeased. Hejus translated their feeling into action, organized bodies of irregular troops and seized considerable parts of the disputed region. The entente officials and troops there were powerless to stop them, but the Austrian government was given all moral support and told to establish its rule as best it might. Thousands of Austrian troops well equipped were moved into the territory and at latest reports were preparing to start operations against Hejus and his forces centered at Odenburg.

It may be assumed that the Upper Silesian row is ended, at least for the present. The council of the League of Nations has accepted the task of solving the problems involved and already has begun their discussion. Meanwhile the British, French and Italian governments have decided to send re-enforcements to Upper Silesia and have called on Germany to arrange for their transportation.

The victorious progress of the Greeks in Asia Minor toward Angora came to a pause after they crossed the Sakaria river. Their right wing found itself in the salt desert where water was scarce and many of the men were stricken with malaria. The Turks attacked and in three days' fighting the Greeks were forced back across the Sakaria and lost heavily in men and material. At the same time they found their communications threatened on the extreme left wing by the capture of Bilejik by the Kemalists. However, the Greeks speedily rallied, both on the right wing and in the center, and resumed their advance on Angora. At this writing they are reported as in contact with the Turkish second line of defense at the Iliza river.

And now we move on east to India—for each of the relatively small wars demands some attention. On the Malabar coast, where the Moplahs, who are Mohammedans of Tartar descent, have been in revolt, the British have regained the upper hand and the fanatics are reported to be fleeing into the hills, having lost about 700 of their number. Before they ran away, however, they massacred many Hindus and killed a number of British soldiers and civilians. The Malabar coast is under martial law and the home-rule plans of the Moplahs have gone glimmering.

This brings us to Great Britain's greater trouble—the Irish question. Premier Lloyd George, growing weary as the rest of the world of the endless row, told the Sinn Feiners that they must accept or reject his proposals, for the constant exchange of notes was getting them nowhere. Whereupon the Sinn Feiners dispatched another note to the premier. It was drawn up by the Irish republican cabinet, for Dail Eireann had adjourned after entrusting the cabinet with plenary powers. The note was carried by a courier to Scotland, where Lloyd George was taking a holiday, and at this writing its contents are a secret. If, as is probable, it is only a further elaboration of the arguments put forward by Sinn Fein, the premier is likely to lose the temper over which he usually has such complete control.

In Belfast the truce was broken last week, and for several days there was continual and bloody fighting between the nationalists and the Oranmen, with a number of fatalities. At first the military there contented themselves with patrolling the streets in armored cars pleading for peace. But when the lord mayor protested against their inaction they adopted more vigorous methods, with good results.

SECRETARY DAVIS ASKS MORE JOBS

Increase Employment to Aid 6,000,000 Men Out of Work, He Urges.

SPEAKS AT DETROIT MEETING

Demands That Public Work Be Started and Places in Mills Made—Against "Living Wage;" Wants the "Saving Wage."

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7.—Labor day dawned on a situation that calls to every loyal American for the best thought, the mightiest effort and the strongest faith he can summon. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis said at a Labor day celebration on Belle Isle. "This year Labor day must be dedicated first of all to meeting the imperative human need of the nearly 6,000,000 idle," said he.

"All over the country a strange hush has fallen. The great American productive machine, the wonder of the world, has slowed down.

"The country is sick from overindulgence and one and all we have had to go on the operating table for the removal of false values.

"Labor day this year must be the day to dedicate to finding the answer to the question, 'What will put us back to health and work and prosperity again?'"

"The problem of unemployment calls for instant and energetic action. Cities, counties and states should start at once the making of road repairs, building reservoirs and other public works. Much such construction or repair is in heavy arrears of account of the interruption of the war and now is the time to have it done. A double need will be met, the public will be served and the idle are given tasks to do and money to earn.

"For lack of courage we are neglecting any number of large undertakings that would give a mighty shove to the great stalled engine of American production.

"What article, for instance, besides steel enters more intimately into every process of life than coal? Yet the situation we have on our hands is a perfect example of that paralysis of mind and will on the part of us all which accounts for our paralysis in business.

"Mines are idle and miners with them because people think the prices of coal could and may be lower.

"Dealers and operators are in suspense because they think that wages and freight rates should and may be lower. The railroads are in suspense because they fear the attitude of employees. And employees, the miners with them, fear the attitude and suspect the fairness of employers.

"So we travel in a vicious circle, and no one has the courage to break it. The consequence is that coal is scarce and will be high this winter of all winters, when people should have their coal at the lowest possible price.

"The price will never be lower, the situation will never be broken until one or the other party to it has the American courage to take a loss, to make a move and start the flow of coal.

"For some time the railroads have been the keylog in the business jam. Like the parties involved in the coal situation, but on a scale that much more widely and adversely affected the country, the railroads have been locked in a rigid tangle.

"With the allotting of $500,000,000 to the railroads, at President Harding's solicitation, one of the great central vicious circles at the heart of the national business will be broken.

"The cause of labor is more alive today than it ever has been.

"A few employers have taken this period when jobs are scarce and the workman is at a disadvantage, to break down their workers' organizations.

"It seems to those people a good time to even up old scores, to revenge themselves for the high wages they were forced to pay a year or two ago, and see to it that such a wage scale never obtains again.

"The peril in this speaks for itself. To employers everywhere I would say, 'Don't set your wages by the hungry crowd at the gates of your mill.'

"Let the open shop mean what it says—open to all," he added. "Any employer knows that crushing the unions cannot be done in the first place; he knows that it would not be safe in any case. We want no Russia in this country, no hordes of disgruntled, leaderless men, reduced to such a state of starvation that charity must go to their aid."

"Opposition to the principle of the living wage also was expressed by Mr. Davis.

"I am against the living wage," he said. "It is not enough. We need to hear something of the saving wage."

Starving Crowd Samara. Samara, Russia, Sept. 7.—Hunger and death go virtually unnoticed in the neglected streets and alleys of Samara. Refugees from famine districts, estimated from 30,000 to 50,000, are huddled together in deserted buildings.

Gompers' Message to Labor. Washington, Sept. 7.—American labor was urged "to go forward" through organization up to the "5,000,000 mark" by Samuel Gompers in his annual Labor day message to the workmen of the United States.

Why That Bad Back?

Is backache keeping you miserable? Are you "all played out," without strength or vigor for your work? Then find what is causing the trouble and correct it. Likely, it's your kidneys! You have probably been working too hard and neglecting rest and exercise. Your kidneys have slowed up and poisons have accumulated. That, then, is the cause of the backache, headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Illinois Case

A. J. Hanley, retired farmer, 807 5th St., Vandalia, Ill., says: "My back ached and I had darting pains catch me across my kidneys so I couldn't straighten after stooping. I had to stay away from my work for days at a time. I became weak and my kidneys acted irregularly. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time they cured me."

Canada a Good Customer.

Canada is the second best customer of the United States. This is proved by trade statistics recently issued by the Canadian government covering the fiscal year ended March 31. Great Britain is the largest buyer. Canada's imports from the great republic last year averaged $100 per capita of Canada's population. Its total imports amounted to $1,240,125,056. This was an increase of $175,000,000 over imports of the previous year, due, according to authorities, to heavy buying in the United States. The grand total of trade done by Canada during the last year was $2,450,553,175.

CATARRAL DEAFNESS

Is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions. Circulars free. All Druggists. WOULD GIVE LEG FOR LEGION

Colonel Miner Who Lost Limb in Service, Is Proud of Membership in Organization.

"The loss of my leg is more than justified by the privilege of being a member of the American Legion," declared Asher Miner, president of a large milling company at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., who suffered the loss of a leg in France as the result of a shrapnel wound received while leading his men. Mr. Miner was a colonel in the Twenty-eighth division and since has been appointed brigadier general of the Pennsylvania National guard.

Mr. Miner was among the guests of honor at a banquet tendered American Legion officials by the New York Shipbuilding Corporation upon the occasion of the first trip of the new liner "American Legion." He was one of the speakers. He did not tell, however, how after he had suffered the amputation of his leg he insisted upon being carried out to his men to inspire them in "carrying on." This was told by one of the other speakers, who knew of the colonel's courageousness.

The military record of Mr. Miner begins with his enlistment in 1884 in a Pennsylvania militia company. He saw active service in the Spanish-American war and in 1907 was appointed colonel of the Ninth Infantry. At the expiration of his commission he was reappointed and commanded the Third Pennsylvania Field artillery on the Mexican border. He went to France in 1918. He was cited for bravery and awarded a Distinguished Service cross and later received a Distinguished Service medal.

THE GOOD "LITTLE MOTHER"

Wichita (Kan.) Woman Regular Visitor to Boys in Hospitals Who Served in World War.

The mother of six boys and three girls, Mrs. Grace I. Jackson, is qualified for her role as "little mother of Uncle Sam's boys" in the three hospitals of Wichita, Kan., where American soldiers still are suffering from their part in the World war.

As chairman of the welfare committee of the Woman's Auxiliary to the American Legion, Mrs. Jackson has made 114 visits to the men in the wards. Each week she visits the three hospitals, taking fruit and flowers, candy and cakes to the boys, who are perforce motherless. Her's is the pleasant task of distributing to them the warm dressing gowns, the smokes and the magazines contributed by her committee; upon her the stricken heroes of the world's struggle bestow smiles for their reflection to the other good souls of her organization.

Eight of Mrs. Jackson's children live at home with her. One son served in France with the One Hundred and Thirtieth Field artillery of the Thirty-fifth division, his immediate junior was physically disqualified and the remainder were too young to be accepted.

"A post of the American Legion is a valuable asset to any community," says Mrs. Abby Howe Forest, mayor of Thayer, Kansas, booster for Ex-Service Men.

"Mayoress" Forest is a friend of the ex-service man and takes a deep interest in the affairs of the local Legion post. The project of the Thayer post is to erect a community house which would be the center of activities for the town and country adjacent. Mrs. Forest has been an untiring worker for this civic improvement, "and we can always count on her support," declares C. B. Adams, the post adjutant.

In addition to her interest in the American Legion, Mrs. Forest is an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and an officer of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic.

ACTIVE IN VIRGINIA LEGION

Kate Waller Barrett, an International Figure, Is Chosen President of Women's Auxiliary.

Kate Waller Barrett, Alexandria, Va., one of the foremost women sociologists of this country, and an international figure in women's organizations, has been chosen president of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion for the department of Virginia. She has been called four times to serve as a special representative of the government on important missions, and has been national president of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations.

While serving as president of the National Florence Crittenton mission, co-operating with the United States public health service, which position she still holds, Mrs. Barrett was a leading spirit in the conference on the care of delinquent children, called by President Roosevelt. She was a delegate to the international conference of women, a special representative of the government to investigate conditions in Europe surrounding alien women, delegate to the peace conference at Zurich in 1919, and special representative of the bureau of immigration in Europe the same year.

During the war Mrs. Barrett was the only woman appointed by the governor of Virginia to the committee on training camp activities. She is state regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a member of the Societe Academique Historie Internationale and an honorary member of the Argentine Council of Women of Buenos Aires. Mrs. Barrett is now devoting most of her time to the auxiliary of the American Legion.

Eleven days after being inducted into the service without claim of exemption, Logan E. Dillman was summarily discharged. The medical corps unit to which he was assigned had discovered that he had a wooden leg! "Stumpy," as he is known by his comrades, registered at Trinidad, Colo., and when called to Fort Dodge, Ia. Evidently there was little ceremony about his introduction to the khaki. He made no complaint because of his desire to serve, if possible. But after five days of drilling, he said that the amputated limb became so sore that he couldn't make it work any longer.

WAS IN SERVICE ON ONE LEG

Nervy Member of Medical Corps Unit Was Not Discharged From Duty for Eleven Days.

"The sergeant did excuse me from play sometimes, but I drilled right along with the rest of them," Dillman said.

Even when discharged from the draft after his 11 days of service, Dillman's paper stipulated that the act "does not operate as a permanent bar to his subsequent entry into the military service" and "does not excuse the holder from obedience to the process of exemption boards." However, no subsequent call was made by the authorities.

Dillman is now a member of Harry E. Everist post No. 115, American Legion, at Mankato, Kan. The post claims to be the only one having a member "who entered the service on one 'pin'."

When the American Legion accepted the invitation of the French government to send a party of former service men to France for a tour of the old war zone, John J. Wicker, Jr., a member of the Legion's national executive committee, was called to New York to manage the pilgrimage. Wicker is especially qualified to conduct a tour to France or any foreign land.

Before going into the practice of law, Wicker spent some time in the organization and conduct of travel parties to Europe, Palestine, Egypt and the Orient as well as to all parts of the United States, Canada and Alaska. When the World war started he was in Rome with a travel party of 54 persons in his charge. After many thrilling experiences he succeeded in getting his party through France on military trains and finally back to the United States.

IMPORTANT STYLES FEATURED IN SLEEVES AND IN COLLARS

ONCE again embroidery and fur lend their rich and luxurious flavor to the new suits for fall and winter, and once again designers indicate their choice of these decorative features. Embroideries have been developed in ways new to us and fur collars have taken on added importance because of their novel and very becoming shapes. They invite one to snuggle down into their soft and cozy depths and between them and the equally soft and protecting hats that droop about the face, there is little chance for the cold to make headway against the merry eyes that can laugh at it.

Ever since a famous Paris designer introduced sleeves that are so large and so much emphasized by decoration that the rest of the garment became a mere background for them, sleeves have become more and more important in all outer garments. All sorts of embroideries find place on them—beads, silk, and especially the new braid embroideries. These rich embellishments invite the company of fur and a very handsome example of this new mode appears in the suit shown at the left of the two pictures. The coat has trim lines and reveals a conservative interpretation of the decorative sleeve, for some of these sleeves are huge with arm's-eyes extended nearly to the waistline. In this model the coat is almost knee length, cut with a slight flare in the skirt and much improved by large patch pockets. It is in that dark gray shade known as "spinks" with cuffs and collar of dark beaver fur. Handsome bone buttons are something more than a fastening for it—a long, close-set row of them down the front makes the best possible finish for the embroidery.

FOR THE STORK LUNCHEON AND THE GUEST CHAMBERS

A WASTE basket that can be refreshed with a new lining and decorated with a new cluster of flowers every once in a while will commend itself to every home-maker. Also it accommodates itself to color schemes when the time comes for redecorating walls and supplying new furnishings, and it makes a pretty and inexpensive gift. Such a basket is pictured here. The basket part is one of those simple wicker affairs that are strong and light. They may be used in their own light tan color or painted, orenameled to harmonize with the room they are to serve in.

The basket pictured, meant for a sleeping room, is enameled in white. Its lining is a medium light blue crepe paper which looks like silk, shirred in at the top and bottom, but is far less expensive and much easier to insert. The paper is pasted along the top and bottom of the basket "fulled" in so that it appears to be shirred. The bottom is also covered. For a finish, strips of the paper about an inch wide are twisted at intervals of less than an inch, making what looks like narrow ribbon shirred into scallops. This is also pasted down.

WARM WEATHER DISHES.

Crisp vegetables, cool drinks and all kinds of ices and sherbets, together with the luscious fruits and melons that are so plentiful, will help to make the warm days of late summer more pleasant.

Cucumber Salad.—Slice three cucumbers, three hard-cooked eggs, one cupful of olives, chopped, three-fourths of a cupful of nutmeats; serve with mayonnaise in tomato cups or on crisp lettuce leaves.

Combination Salad.—Take two cupfuls of tender green peas, cooked until tender, one cupful of finely diced celery, one-half cupful of rolled peanuty, crisp and freshly roasted, one-half cupful of olives finely chopped, a tablespoonful of scraped onion, added to the salad dressing which should be highly seasoned. Line a salad bowl (after rubbing it well with a cut clove of garlic) with crisp heart leaves of lettuce and heap in the salad. Garnish with three hard-cooked eggs, or add two of the eggs to the salad and use the remaining one for a top garnish.

Ginger Ice Cream.—Take two cupfuls of scalded milk, one teaspoonful of four, one cupful of sugar, one beaten egg, a dash of salt, one quart of thin cream, one tablespoonful of vanilla, one-half cupful of Canton ginger cut in small pieces, and three tablespoonfuls of the ginger syrup. Scald the milk and the egg, cool and add the other ingredients, then freeze as usual. Plain vanilla ice cream is delicious with a ginger sauce if one is fond of that flavor.

Mint Julep.—Boil one quart of water and two cupfuls of sugar together twenty minutes. Strain twice large sprigs of mint, let steep closely covered five minutes in one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water, strain, add the liquid to syrup. Add one cupful of orange juice, one cupful of strawberry juice and three-fourths of a cupful of lemon juice. Pour into a punch bowl, add a block of ice and two pints of charged water. Garnish with sprigs of mint and whole strawberries.

Muskmelon Cocktails.—Use a small potato scoop and arrange the balls in chilled sherbet glasses. Pour over a syrup made of sugar water and orange and lemon juice, or canton ginger syrup, with some of the chopped ginger in the sauce, is especially delicious. Garnish with a sprig of mint. Serve ice cold.

I deal with water and not with wine. Give me my tankard then. —B. Jonson. Men really know not what good water's worth.—Don Juan.

GOOD THINGS TO CHERISH.

The following recipes are worth putting into the family cook book for once tried they will be used again and again.

Italian Tutti-Frutti Ice.—The combination of fruit for this delicious dish may be made to conform to one's taste and the season. Oranges, plums, strawberries, raspberries, small balls of watermelon, apricots and other fruits in season. The pulp and grated rind of the oranges are used. The stones from the plums and apricots are removed and the fruit is weighed, allowing an equal weight of sugar. Make layers of the fruit and sugar, having the sugar on top. Let stand over night and in the morning just bring to the boiling point to make sure that the sugar is dissolved. Do not boil, however; cool and when cold freeze as for any ice.

Grape Juice Ice.—Take one pint of sweetened grape juice, one quart of thin cream, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, taste and sweeten if necessary, then freeze. Serve in sherbet cups, top with whipped cream or a spoonful of vanilla ice cream.

Old Southern Cake.—Cream three-fourths of a pound of butter, add one and one-half pounds of sugar. When well mixed add the yolks of six eggs well beaten, then three-fourths pound of pastry flour, about three cupfuls sifted with one-half a grated nutmeg and one teaspoonful of ground cloves, added alternately with one pint of rich milk. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites and one pound of sultana raisins chopped and mixed with flour. Bake in a large pan, about three inches deep, the batter half filling the pan.

Tomato With Macaroni.—Mix two cupfuls of well cooked macaroni or spaghetti with one cupful of white sauce, sprinkle with one-half cupful of grated cheese. Spread this on a deep glass pie plate. Over the top place tomatoes cut in halves, cut side up. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dot with bits of butter, and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake in a hot oven until the tomatoes are soft but unbroken.

THE TRIALS OF A HOUSEWIFE

How They Have Been Endured and How Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Experience of a Providence Woman

Providence, R. I.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female trouble and backache. It began just after my baby was born, and I did the best I could about getting my work done, but I had awful bearing-down pains so I could not stand on my feet. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the good it was doing other women, and I have got dandy results from it and will always recommend it. You can use these facts as a testimonial if you wish.—Mrs. HERBERT L. CASSEN, 18 Meni Court, Providence, R. I.

Ohio woman for three years could hardly keep about and do her housework she was so ill. Made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound: Fayette, O.—"For about three years I was very nervous and had backache, sideache, dragging-down pains, could not sleep at night, and had no appetite. At times I could hardly do my housework. I got medicine from the doctor but it did not help me. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in a newspaper and took it with good results, and am now able to do my housework. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish my testimonial.—Mrs. CHESTER A. BALL, R. 15, Fayette, Ohio.

An Illinois woman relates her experience: Bloomington, Ill.—"I was never very strong and female trouble kept me so weak I had no interest in my housework. I had such a backache I could not cook a meal or sweep a room without raging with pain. Rubbing my back with alcohol sometimes eased the pain for a few hours, but did not stop it. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and six bottles of it have made me as strong and healthy as any woman; and I give my thanks to it for my health.—Mrs. J. A. MCQUITTY, 610 W. Walnut St., Bloomington, Ill.

The conditions described by Mrs. Cassen, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. McQuitty will appeal to many women who struggle on with their daily tasks in just such conditions—in fact, it is said that the tragedy in the lives of some women is almost beyond belief. Day in and day out they slave in their homes for their families—and beside the daily routine of housework, often make clothes for themselves and for their children, or work in their gardens, all the while suffering from those awful bearing-down pains, backache, headaches, nervousness, the blues, and troubles which sap the very foundation of life until there comes a time when nature gives out and an operation seems inevitable. If such women would only profit by the experience of these three women, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the natural restorative for such conditions it may save them years of suffering and unhappiness.

There is hardly a neighborhood in any town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman does not reside who has been restored to health by this famous medicine. Therefore ask your neighbor, and you will find in a great many cases that at some time or other she, too, has been benefited by taking it, and will recommend it to you. For more than forty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring suffering women to health and strength.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Life's Little Courtesies. Petrified Apple. Stillwell seemed in none too good a humor when he got home from the office. "Hang it all!" he exclaimed. "We'll have to call on the Mortons tonight!" "Why, Henry," said Mrs. Stillwell, "you said you wanted to stay home with me in comfort tonight." "Yes; but Morton told Collins he and his wife meant to call on us tonight. We can leave their house earlier than we could make them leave ours."

The Spirit of "Color Discard" glazes at you from certain walls. Disease casts its baleful shadows from unsanitary walls. Cheerfulness, happiness, health, serenity, beauty, is the beautiful "Spirit" of Alabastine walls.

Brighten Up Your Walls This Fall

Have the walls of your rooms cheerful and sanitary, to reflect cheerfulness instead of gloom. Have walls that will harmonize with rugs and furniture, colors that will enhance and not detract from your gowns and personal appearance.

Alabastine

for Your Walls—Instead of Kalsomine or Wallpaper

Alabastine will give you that soft, pastel effect in neutral colors that so many are enjoying in the most attractive homes and public buildings. Alabastine is artistic, sanitary, durable and economical. Alabastine has distinctive merits recognized throughout the world; ready to mix and use, by adding cold water.

Our Decorative Service Department

Our decorative department has the ability to serve you, and the desire to do so. We have the experience of planning interior decorations for thousands of the best homes and that experience is yours for the asking. Remember, there is only one quality of Alabastine and at a very economical cost. You purchase the same identical material that goes into the home of the millionaire. The Alabastine packages always have the cross and circle printed in red and are identical in quality. This being the case, the question of whether your walls are artistically decorated depends on the proper treatment of colors. Write us a postal that you are interested and we will send you a Chart that may be easily filled in with the information that will enable our artist to work intelligently and there will be no cost or obligation on your part. Our reason: A properly decorated building is one of our best advertisements.

THE ARMY MACHINE

The efficiency of the army has again been demonstrated, the quick work in West Virginia being an example of the force of perfect and unquestionable organization and discipline. No one doubts the sincerity of efforts on the part of several sheriffs and their deputies in attempting to quell the uprising of miners in the coal regions. The deputies in particular were picked up and sworn in without adaptability and very few of them would be willing to step out into the open in an attack on the armed miners. The miners themselves were aware of this fact, and were not filled with awe, nor were they turned back. When Uncle Sam's regulars appeared on the scene, how different was the attitude of the miners. They knew that there was no recourse but to disband or suffer. They knew that the commanding officers had been ordered to do a certain thing. They knew that the soldiers would obey these officers to the last detail. In this one case the trained army, by its very reputation for doing the thing it sets out to do, saved hundreds of lives. The standing army of the United States, thru the knowledge of its existence, saves more lives than it takes, even counting loss in war.

NEAR FATAL ACCIDENT

Labor Foreman at Illinois Central Trestle Struck Down by Timber

Wm. Bradshaw, labor foreman at the Illinois Central trestle west of Genoa, was struck on the head by a 2x6 timber Wednesday afternoon and rendered unconscious by the blow. He was taken at once to the rooms in the May Hotel, occupied by himself and wife, where he lay in a stupor for several hours. This morning (Thursday) Mr. Bradshaw was much better there being every chance of a complete recovery.

Workmen were removing scaffolding from the old iron trestle Wednesday afternoon when one of the planks fell a distance of about twelve feet and struck Bradshaw, who was seated directly underneath, a terrific blow on the head. It was at first thought that the skull had been fractured and it was only by the merest chance that the sharp edge of the timber did not strike the victim's head.

SCHOOL NOTES

School opened on Tuesday with a good enrollment in all classes. In the High school 100 pupils are enrolled, 58 in the four upper years. The six elementary grades have 150 pupils, making the enrollment of 250 at the start. The largest class is Miss Drake's primary with 44 pupils.

Mrs. Harvey will have the fourth and fifth grade room, teaching all the fourth grade work and three of the fifth grade classes—reading, writing and arithmetic.

Mr. Morris Wagoner will teach science and agriculture in the high school and coach the basket ball team. The basketball prospects for this year are bright. Mr. Wagoner is a graduate of the University of Illinois has had special work in education and in agriculture, and was on the Illinois soil survey.

He has taught science and coached basket ball and besides his degree from the University of Illinois holds the degree of bachelor of arts from McKendree college.

The biology class has the largest enrollment in the senior high school and the domestic science classes are larger than last year. The course in world history is popular and the Latin classes show a large enrollment with 19 in the beginning class in the seventh grade.

A large number of seventh and eighth grade pupils from the country are taking advantage of the work offered under the Township organization and pupils are entered from Kingston, and from Kane and McHenry counties.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In the article appearing in The Republican last week pertaining to Genoa schools, the name of Mrs. Louise Harvey, teacher of the 4th and 5th grades was unintentionally omitted, the error being made in the printing office and not by Superintendent McKenzie. Mrs. Harvey taught these grades last year successfully and was engaged for this year on the merits of that success.

Flat-Foot Facts.

Are you flat-footed? If you don't know, the next time you take a bath, observe the impressions that your wet feet make. If your feet are normal, there will be a narrow line from heel to toe on the outside; if they are flat, the entire bottom of the foot will show. How can you correct flat-footedness? Buy a handful of barbles, place them in two rows, and start picking them up with your toes. To do this you must curl up your toes; as a result the muscles of the feet will be exercised and thereby strengthened.

Country's Secondary Lakes.

The Great Salt Lake is the largest lake in the United States besides the great lakes. The Lake of the Woods, lying partly in Minnesota and partly in Canada, is next in size.

The Labor Day club, composed of Locust street residents, held their annual picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Holroyd Monday. In the afternoon the men pitched quoits and played ball, while the women sewed and chatted. Fried spring chicken was served at dinner and supper.

The highway under the Illinois Central railway west of Genoa is about the meanest place for traffic in this neighborhood. Perhaps the Kingston commissioner has not been over this road for some time and does not realize the condition. A man with a pick could eliminate the dangerous bumps in a few hour's time. The commissioner did a fine job when he cemented the road immediately under the tracks. Now he will win the everlasting gratitude of Kingston and Genoa motorists by leveling the bumps leading to the culvert. The Illinois Central company should also adjust the planking in the side track at that point.

Preached 45,000 Sermons.
John Wesley is said to have preached nearly 45,000 sermons, averaging three sermons a day for 54 years.

Good Point of Motion Pictures.
Jud Tomkins says motion pictures appeal to him because the audience is not expected to applaud and call the actors out to spoil the effect of a good scene.

As It Works Out.

By the time the small boy who now revels in dirt gets old enough to drape and oil the car for dirt he'll be so afraid of soiling his hands that he won't go near the job.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

"It was from Waldron then, no doubt. I'm glad you told me. The chances are they will both be where we are going, unless they have already quarreled over that bunch of easy money you spoke about."

"But has that been paid over by Krantz? Who has it?"

"The fellow who put a knife into Alva—whatever he may be."

"And you don't know who the assassin was?"

"No. Only it must have been one of certain men; perhaps two were in the affair. At first I figured it out to be Waldron alone; now I am not so sure that Harris didn't have some hand in it. They may have had the affair all planned—the money was passed over to Alva early in the evening. I didn't know it then; I learned this later. Krantz told me when we were alone on the way back to New York. Let's move along; there is a policeman coming yonder."

The officer passed us slowly, swinging his club, and eyed us curiously as he went by; I did not turn my head, yet felt certain he stopped and looked back as though wondering what our business could be in that neighborhood. We turned down a still darker side street before exchanging further speech.

"I believe I know what you are," I said at last in low tones close to her ear, "an agent of the Secret Service."

"Oh, no; the honor you offer me is far too great. I have not attained to any such official dignity."

"I rather expected you to deny; but you offer me no other explanation."

"And so you decide to believe that? Very well, Mr. Severn, I shall let you have it your own way. You deserve reward; only, pray, never suggest this theory to any one else. Let it remain our secret, will you?"

"Your mockery does not change my mind."

"I had no expectation that it would; neither does it bring me a salary. But, seriously, forget all this rallery to-night, and remember only that you are with Marie Gessler. Whatever her purpose may be, you are to be loyal only to her."

"I am, absolutely," I replied with a conviction my voice was unable to disguise. She turned her face quickly, and in the dim light our eyes met.

"You said that very earnestly. You make me believe I judged you right, Philip Severn. Here is my hand."

I clasped it tightly, the firm pressure of the warm fingers sending an instant thrill through every nerve of my body. It was not withdrawn, and we walked so closely together I could feel the slight pressure of her form, almost resting against mine.

"Where are you taking me?"

"To Perond's French cafe—have you ever heard of it?"

"No, I think not."

"I have been there with slumming parties once or twice, with a plainclothes man along, of course, to show us the sights. It is not very respectable, I believe, although really I never saw anything particularly dangerous. Interesting and unconventional, of course, but I anticipate no trouble, unless we care to make it ourselves. You see the cluster of lights at the next corner. That's Perond's."

As I gazed forward, she drew her hand from my grasp, and her form straightened.

"What am I to do when we arrive?"

"Merely be the attentive escort—but not too attentive, please. Have you dined?"

"No. I was going to ask you."

"You need not ask me—I am famished, and this place is really famous for its meals."

Perond's was really underground; at least you descended a broad pair of steps to attain its entrance, and the glass in windows and doors fronting the street was heavily draped, preventing any view of the interior from without. What was overhead could not be determined in the darkness, my eyes merely discerning the outlines of a tall building, without a gleam of light showing anywhere from top to bottom. The front of the restaurant, however, was brilliantly lit, and a colored man in uniform promptly held open the door as we began descending the stairs.

Within the vestibule a maid relieved us of outside wraps, and thus unencumbered we advanced through open doors directly into the main room. This was a surprisingly large apartment, filled with tables of various sizes and shapes, the majority occupied by men and women, either eating or drinking. Near the center was a cleared space for dancing, but at that moment unoccupied, while against the farther wall, on a rather high stage, two cabaret singers were noisily entertaining the crowd. Altogether it was a stirring and attractive scene, bearing to my mind no resemblance of any preconceived notion of the underworld. I could have easily imagined that we had entered, rather, the restaurant of an ultra-fashionable hotel the other side of Broadway.

Nor did our entrance create the slightest interest, beyond awakening the attention of the head waiter, who met us smilingly.

"A table for two, M'sieur?"

"A booth, please; have you one near the center?" and I slipped a bill into his hand, which closed it instantly out of sight.

"Ah, certainly; the very thing, M'sieur. I will show you. Francois, the central booth for the gentleman. Ah, see, M'sieur—bien, tres bien!"

It was indeed a cozy spot, with the heavy curtains held aside. A divan of soft plush across the end, a table covered with snowy linen, and already glistening with silver and glass, in the center, and three exceedingly comfortable chairs.

"It is very fine, M'sieur," I said. "Quite to my satisfaction. You might lower one of those curtains, if you will. Yes, that is much better. Is Francois our waiter?"

"Out, M'sieur; you would be served? The table de hoit, Francois. These dishes are ready—but, M'sieur, we serve quickly whatever you wish."

He spread his hands expressively, glanced swiftly about to assure himself all was well, and backed out, still politely bowing, leaving the attentive Francois beside me, pad in hand. At my suggestion the lady gave the order, using discretion, I thought, while I supplemented with a bottle of wine, in spite of the energetic negative conveyed to me across the table. As the waiter departed I surveyed my companion, realizing as never before how extremely attractive she was. She must have read something of this in my eyes, for her own smiled wistfully.

"What is it you were thinking about?"

"Perhaps I had better not tell."

"Another secret? Well, then, answer this—what do you think of Perond's?"

"Actually I am unable to realize where I am," I answered honestly. "The contrast from those dark streets, the big jobs in New York were plotted at these tables."

"I begin to comprehend," I said jocularly, "why I was received as a distinguished guest. The headwaiter must have recognized me as an old pal—my face is my fortune."

"He may have mistaken you for Duly," she admitted soberly, "but more likely it was your tip which made him so attentive. You are some spender, Mr. Severn."

"That depends on who I am with; this is an unusual occasion."

She did not smile, or look at me, but leaned slightly forward, drawing back a fold of the curtain with one hand, so as to gain a wider glimpse of the large room without. A moment she remained motionless; then turned her face sideways toward me.

"Waldron is already here," she whispered warningly. "He is alone at that second table, against the pillar. Step around this side and you can see; the man with gray, bushy hair."

I could not easily have mistaken the fellow; his appearance was too emphatically that of the Russian Jew of a certain type to enable him to conceal his birthright. His back was toward us, yet as he occasionally cast his eyes about over the faces of those around him, I had a glimpse of a beaked nose, and a sorrow, dull complexion, which seemed to blend naturally into a scraggling beard of no perceptible color. His hair though was iron-gray, apparently uncut for weeks, and thrust back from an unusually high forehead, so as to give the man a ruffled, unkempt appearance far from pleasing. He was big all over, strangely burly for a Jew, with broad shoulders and large hands, thickly covered with hair.

I moved back around the table as Francois appeared, and resumed my seat, keeping silent until the waiter again vanished, and left us alone.

"And now that you have located the fellow," I asked curiously, "what do you propose doing—go out and talk with him?"

She shook her head.

"I have reason to believe he expects to meet some one here," she explained. "I do not know who; that is one thing I desire to find out. From what you have told me tonight I rather think now it may be Harris."

"To talk it over, at least; they'd hardly bring the stuff in here. Probably by this time that is safely planted."

Francois came back, and we devoted ourselves to the meal, although I could observe her glancing constantly through the opening in the curtains to make sure of her man. Finally Francois disappeared with the remnants, while we awaited the serving of dessert. From my seat I could see nothing of the Russian.

"No one arrived yet?" I inquired.

"The Jew still there?"

"He remains alone eating. Ah! my guess was right—isn't that Harris, who has just come in?"

It was "Gentleman George" beyond the shadow of a doubt. He had evidently located Waldron the moment of entering the room, and with no other thought in his mind headed straight toward where the letter sat. The Jew glanced up, saw him approaching, and drew partially back from the table, the knife he had been using still gripped in his hand.

His posture was that of defense, of one who anticipates possible attack. Nor did Harris' expression and manner render this improbable. The latter pushed his way forward with angry strides, until he reached the man he sought, leaning over the table to front him, his face black with passion, his first words plainly audible to us above the din of a jazz band.

KEEP ACCURATE CASH ACCOUNTS

Farm Household Records Valuable as Supplement to General Farm Business.

IMPORTANT AID TO ECONOMY

First Step Toward Saving Usually Lies in Finding Out Where Unnecessary Expenses Are Incurred—Two Good Methods.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Household expenses on the farm are very intimately connected with the business of the farm itself. The farm normally supplies much material which otherwise would become a household expense. The household, in turn very often furnishes food for farm labor, which would otherwise be a farm expense. Merely from the standpoint of keeping track of household expenses as related to the farm business, household accounts are desirable and should serve to supplement and round out farm accounts.

But the value of household accounts goes beyond this. Such accounts are an important aid to economy. A dollar saved is a dollar made, and the first step toward the saving usually lies in finding out where unnecessary expenses are incurred. This can be determined only by keeping careful records of expenses for the whole year.

Methods of Keeping Records. There are two general methods of keeping a record of household expenditures. One is to record the purchases or money paid out, without classifying the expenditures. The other is to classify when the record is made.

The first method is very simple, requires no special form, and gives all necessary information regarding expenditures. At the end of the month or at the end of the year the total expenditures may be quickly added up. In order, however, to know the totals for each kind or class it will be necessary to make up a monthly summary, in which the items will be distributed in different columns by classes. This extra work at the end of each month (or at the end of the year) may cause discouragement and neglect of classification, with the result that the greatest good that could be derived from the records is not realized.

Under the second method, in addition to being entered all together in one column, the items are classified in separate columns. This method has the same advantages as the first method and the additional advantage of allowing for the distribution of items of expenditure to the proper classes without the inconvenience of turning to some other page. The distribution may be left to moments of leisure if the housewife is busy at the time the entry is made. When the page is filled the next page is begun, the top line next to the heading being reserved for the total carried forward from the preceding page. The items may be totaled at the end of the month and these totals carried to the summary page at the end of the book.

Kind of Account Book to Use. The kind of book to use is not important. An ordinary blank daybook or ledger book with a stiff cover may be bought at a reasonable price. If the vertical rulings in the book do not serve the purpose others may be inserted with a pen or pencil. A blank book, with a stiff, pressed paper cover, 12 inches long and 7 inches wide, with 34 spaces for items and containing 48 pages, is excellent for the purpose and sells at retail for 25 cents. With vertical ruling and headings inserted it serves the purpose admirably. In order to eliminate the necessity of writing the headings on each page, the tops of a number of pages may be cut off, allowing one set of headings to serve for all pages.

Accounts are sometimes kept in a book having small pages, but a small page is soon filled, is often crowded, and the information is scattered over too many for convenience in recording and studying the expenditures.

Farmers' Bulletin No. 964, "Farm Household Accounts," gives full directions for keeping such accounts, and in it are to be found simple plans of different methods in use with classifications of expenditures. This may be had without cost, by application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

LATE VARIETIES OF FRUITS FOR DRYING

Apples Should Be Reasonably Mature but Not Soft.

Care Should be Exercised in Picking and Handling to Avoid Bruising—Get Peeled Product Into Evaporator Quickly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Late winter varieties of apples and pears are best for drying because they are sweeter than the early varieties. Apples for drying should be reasonably mature but not soft, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Handle with care in picking and handling, so as to avoid bruising, as bruised spots become discolored and must be trimmed off to make an attractive product. Apples discolor rapidly. Preparations, therefore, must be made to get the product into the evaporator as rapidly as possible after it is pared. If a number of people are doing this work, this may be accomplished by dividing the paring, coring and spreading on trays, so that an apple spends only two or three minutes on the way from the paring knife to the drier.

If only one person is working, drop the pared fruit either into cold water or into a salt solution made by dissolving one tablespoonful of salt in four quarts of water. Do not allow the fruit to stand in the water any longer than is necessary, because the water will dissolve the sugar and other valuable elements and the apple will absorb water, which will necessitate longer drying in the evaporator. Carefully pare and trim the product to remove all discolored places. When a paring and coring machine is used, the apples, before being placed in it, should be worked over with a knife to remove all discolored spots.

Care should be taken when slicing by hand to make the slices as nearly the same thickness as possible. Three-sixteenths to one-fourth inch is the best thickness. Apples may be quartered or cut into eighths, but they do not dry so uniformly or so quickly as the sliced rings. The rings may be blanched in hot water or not as desired. Spread the rings in a single layer on trays and place either in the sun or in a warm drier. Apples when drying should be covered with muslin or mosquito netting to prevent insect infestation. A few minutes' exposure will often cause the products to be infested.

Dried apples that are brown or chocolate colored from the discoloration resulting from drying without blanching possess a high nutritive value and often have a better flavor than the more attractive-looking blanched products.

Dried apples will not be brittle when finished, but if a handful of the pieces are pressed together they will feel elastic and springy and will separate promptly when released, leaving no moisture on the hands. When one of the pieces is broken in two, it should not be possible to press moisture out of the center.

Once a year every cellar should be whitewashed to sweeten it.

PARROT SAVES MAN FROM CELL

Finds Himself in Embarrassing Situation When Police Find Him Breaking Into Home.

IDENTIFIED BY POLLY

"Hello, Ed, Whataya Got on Your Hip?" is Greeting of Bird When Police Take Him In to Prove Assertion He Lived There.

Chicago.—"Arraw! Row! Howsa boy? Howsa boy? Raw! Raw!" It was the voice of the old green parrot in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson at 2124 Bingham street. The family upstairs took note. Someone went to the window, saw a man climbing into the window just below, and called the Shakespeare avenue police.

The intruder told Lieut. Joseph Palczynski a tale that was hard to believe.

Lost the Key, He Says. "I'm a brother of Mrs. Johnson," he said. "She and Paul, her husband, went away over the holidays, and asked me to take care of the parrots and the canaries."

"Don't make me laugh," said the lieutenant cruelly, "it's too hot. Why didn't you open the door? Didn't they leave you the key?"

"Yes, but I lost it. And those birds have to have food and water."

"A lad as clever as you," said the big policeman, "has no business being a burglar."

"But I can prove it all," said the man.

"Prove it to the judge," said the other. "What's your name and address?"

"Edward Peterson, 2108 Western avenue. And say, give me a chance. I'll prove it to you. I'll show you I'm right. Take me back to the house."

The lieutenant sat back and laughed. He laughed until it hurt.

"Prove it by a parrot," he said. "Prove it by a bird that caused his arrest. Officer, throw this cuckoo downstairs. He's getting me over-excited."

The Parrot Greets Them. Peterson, however, pleaded so earnestly that the lieutenant finally consented. They went to the Johnson home in the patrol. The lieutenant got in first, then Peterson, then a couple of policemen.

"Raw!" said the parrot to the hot lieutenant.

"Hello, Polly," said Peterson. "Hello, Ed," said the parrot. "What-tayagot on your hip?"

"You win," said Lieutenant Palczynski, albeit still a bit thoughtful. "The bird sure knows you. But maybe he'll call me 'Ed,' too."

"Try it," invited Peterson.

"Hello, Polly," said Palczynski. "Howsa Polly?"

Said the parrot: "Go to —"

And so Peterson will be allowed to climb through the Johnsons' window every day to feed and water the birds.

BEES STING DOG TO DEATH

Animal Tied in Kennel Unable to Escape When Angry Insects Attack Him.

Medford, N. J.—Attacked by bees while tied to its kennel, from which it could not escape, a dog owned by Andrew Shoemaker was stung to death by the insects. Several persons who tried to rescue the dog were driven off by the infuriated bees.

The dog's kennel was near several bee hives, and when in some manner the insects were disturbed they turned upon the dog.

Shoemaker was absent at the time and when notified by telephone of the situation made a hurried trip home, but arrived too late to save his pet.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Western Canada Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Attractive climate, good neighbors, churches and schools, good markets, railroad facilities, rural telephone, etc.

The Poor Boy Must Still Be Able to Climb Upward Economically.

By DR. DAVID KINLEY, President University of Illinois.

A new frontier has risen before the American people, particularly in the past ten or fifteen years. It is a frontier of problems of public policy. We have before us a group of problems, physical, economic, social, political, educational, requiring solution. The kind of solution we choose will determine the policy and fix the character of the American people for a hundred years to come.

The old political problem was to establish a government strong enough to win obedience and deserve recognition; to show the people the need for and the character of a political organization able to exercise authority over matters of common interest which required regulation. This was a more difficult thing than at first might appear, for the individual on the frontier felt little need for government help. He could take care of himself.

The political problem of the new era is different. It is not merely to keep order but to evolve national unity out of racial, economic and political diversity. True, this problem has been present from the beginning; but it has not been the important phase of the political problem until our numbers grew so great as to make necessary a wider and more intense recognition of the authority of the government.

The new social problem is to preserve that spirit of democracy, that spirit of equality of individuals, which marks the frontiersman. The newcomer in a frontier community was not asked where he came from or who his ancestors were. The password of his admission was, "What can you do?" We must prevent the establishment of caste.

The new economic problem is so to conserve and utilize the resources that remain as to keep open to every individual in this democracy equality of opportunity in the road to economic success. If democracy is to continue, we must make it possible for every individual newcomer into our democratic group to earn his living and to win his economic independence. We must still make it possible for the poor boy and the poor girl to climb upward economically as a result of his honest efforts under conditions recognized by the laws of a democratic people. If we do not, then we must make up our minds that classes and castes will grow and that across their lines it will not be possible for individuals and citizens to move. That will be the end of democracy.

Trade Between United States and Latin America Passing Through Crisis.

By JOHN BARRETT, Pan-American Union.

Trade between the United States and Latin America is passing through the most severe crisis it ever has faced. The foundation of the trouble is the exchange situation, which is most unfavorable to Latin America and reacts correspondingly on the United States. Today there are over $50,000,000 worth of American exports undelivered in the ports of several South American cities, and these must be disposed of before there can be any improvement.

Naturally, Germany, Great Britain, France, Spain, Belgium and Japan are taking advantage of this situation to the disadvantage of the United States.

The present crisis is due almost entirely to after war speculation in the export and import trade, such as has characterized the entire world, and it should not be held in any way against the real value to the United States of Pan-American commerce, in which the total exports and imports of the United States have grown in the last two decades from about $300,000,000 per annum to the immense total of $3,000,000,000.

Country Child's Chance in Education One-Half That of City Child.

By PROF. MABEL CARNEY, Columbia University.

The country child's chance for the start in life that hinges on education is just one-half of that offered the city child. The country boy and girl are worrying along with one-half the school efficiency, less than half the supervision and not quite half the efficient administration of his school affairs that is everywhere allotted the urban youngster. That country children get on well as they do is because of wholesome home influence throughout the rural districts, and not because of any helpful training offered in the schools.

Almost half the school children of the United States—that is, 8,000,000—attend one and two-teacher rural schools. They are housed in box car buildings, many of them dilapidated and neglected beyond description.

Their school term averages 137 days a year. The same term for the city child averages 183 days.

Furthermore, country children cannot attend school with any degree of regularity. The average daily attendance for city school children is 80 per cent, while for country children it is 65 per cent.

Weak-Kneed Officials Are Destroying the Local Self-Governments.

By J. FOSTER SYMES, U. S. District Attorney for Colorado.

One does not have to be connected with the legal department of the United States government for a great length of time to be impressed with the extent of federal jurisdiction and the powers exercised from Washington over the health, safety, business and morals of the average citizen.

Frightened citizens are too wont to call for outside help; not only to preserve law and order, but to regulate the habits of their fellowmen to the utmost degree. If the village constable will not maintain order, it inevitably follows that the state and national government will, and when this happens, the authority of the smaller political units is permanently crippled. Federal power should be called upon only after all other means have been exhausted.

Weak-kneed local officials are causing this destruction of local self-government, which is going on today, by shirking their public duties and leaving them for the authorities of the larger jurisdiction to perform.

ESCAPING JUICES CAUSE MUCH LOSS

Leaching and Fermentation During Ensiling of Corn Is Made Subject of Inquiry.

SILAGE SAMPLES ANALYZED

Evidence Found of Downwash of Liquid in Silo Carrying With It Soluble Food Materials—Results Not Yet Complete.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Every farmer who has a silo knows that some change takes place in the substance of the corn or other crop conserved by this means, and it is generally assumed that some loss in substance of both moist and dry matter takes place as a result of fermentation and leaching. To ascertain as definitely as possible the amount of this loss, its causes, and means for wholly or partially preventing it, the dairy division of the United States Department of Agriculture has been conducting a series of experiments. The results of two years' tests are covered in a professional paper, Department Bulletin, 953, Nitrogen and Other Losses During the Ensiling of Corn.

Samples of Silage Analyzed.
Samples of silage in cheesecloth sacks were buried at various depths and positions in a silo 42 feet high by 14 feet in diameter, holding approximately 150 tons. The bags were weighed when put in, and samples of the silage analyzed. When the bags were reached in feeding out the silo, the contents were again weighed and analyzed.

The two years' work furnished evidence of a downwash of the juice in the silo carrying with it soluble food materials, so that the silage in the lower part of the silo may gain in food material at the expense of the upper part. There was an average loss for all the bags of nearly 10 per cent of the dry matter, which apparently is due largely to the fermentation of the carbohydrates and to the carrying away of soluble material by the juice. The sugars almost entirely disappeared. There was a considerable loss of crude fiber and of the furfural-yielding bodies. There was a loss in total nitrogen, which was larger when the corn put into the silo was immature than when mature corn was used. It is probable that this loss is due largely, if not entirely, to the nitrogenous compounds in the juice. The albuminoid nitrogen suffered a loss of over 50 per cent, while the non-albuminoid forms increased several times their original weight.

Big Escape of Juice.
There was a gain of ether extract, probably due to the formation of new ether-soluble bodies. The second season nearly 10,000 pounds of juice escaped from the silo. This juice carried a considerable percentage of nitrogen of various forms which in ordinary practice would remain in the silo.

The results are as yet incomplete, and the tests are being continued.

PUREBREDS BEST PRODUCERS

Enormous Differences Among Dairy Cows Have Been Brought Out in Number of Cases.

The value of purebred stock, say specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture, is most noticeable in those cases in which the capability of the animals is measured most directly. Among farm animals the best illustration can be found in dairy cattle, though careful yearly tests of milk and butterfat production are relatively recent affairs. The enormous differences among dairy cows when given the same opportunity have been brought out clearly in a great number of cases, and these differences are strongly inherited through both the sire and the dam. The average production for purebreds and grades is much above the average of all milk cows, which is about 4,000 pounds of milk and 160 pounds of butterfat annually.

BURN DEAD POULTRY IS EXCELLENT PLAN

Especially True in Case of Death From Disease.

Burying Not Satisfactory Because Dogs and Other Animals May Dig Carcass Up—Concrete Crematory Is Not Expensive.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Accumulations of manure in the henhouse are objectionable upon grounds of sanitation, but not more so than dead poultry. How often have you seen a dead chicken thrown into the road or trampled into the burn-yard manure? The disposal of these dead bodies offers a problem for the poultryman, the correct solving of which may in many cases become a very important matter, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This is especially true, of course, in cases of death from contagious diseases, and this includes a large proportion of poultry deaths.

To throw a dead chicken on the manure pile or into the road is to invite the spread of disease. Burying is not entirely satisfactory, because unless the grave is dug deep the carcass may be scratched up by dogs or other animals. Furthermore, in the winter the ground may be frozen. Therefore, specialists declare, the best way to dispose of dead poultry is to burn the bodies.

Many town and city homes have garbage burners which may be used, but where this is not available some poultrymen have hot-water heating systems burn the bodies in the furnace. This cannot be done in the summer, though, so small crematories have been built on some poultry plants. Some of these are of concrete, the size depending upon the number of birds kept on the place, and others are ordinary iron wood-burning stoves. A concrete crematory will not be expensive, and would pay for itself in safeguarding the health of all the poultry.

TOWN MAN MAY KEEP PIGEONS

Bird Has Place in Scheme of Poultry Production, but Not Always Desirable on Farm.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The one kind of poultry of questionable economic status on the farms is the pigeon, the specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say in Secretary's Circular 107. Almost exclusively a grain eater, the pigeon renders no notable service as a conservator of waste, unless it is shattered grain in the fields, and that in large measure would be taken up by other poultry and by pigs. The pigeon has a place in the scheme of urban poultry production, but, except in isolated instances where conditions are peculiarly favorable, its production on farms may not be desirable.

DRINKING WATER IN SUMMER

Supply for Hogs and Chickens Overlooked on Many Farms—Skim Milk Not Sufficient.

Perhaps no animals on the farm suffer more for fresh drinking water during the summer than hogs and chickens. Hogs, particularly, are usually left with only slops and skim milk, when these hot months they crave cool water. Water in chickens' pans quickly evaporates, and is too often forgotten. It is positively cruel to forget any animal's drinking water needs in the summer months.

FIND FAULT WITH SEPARATOR

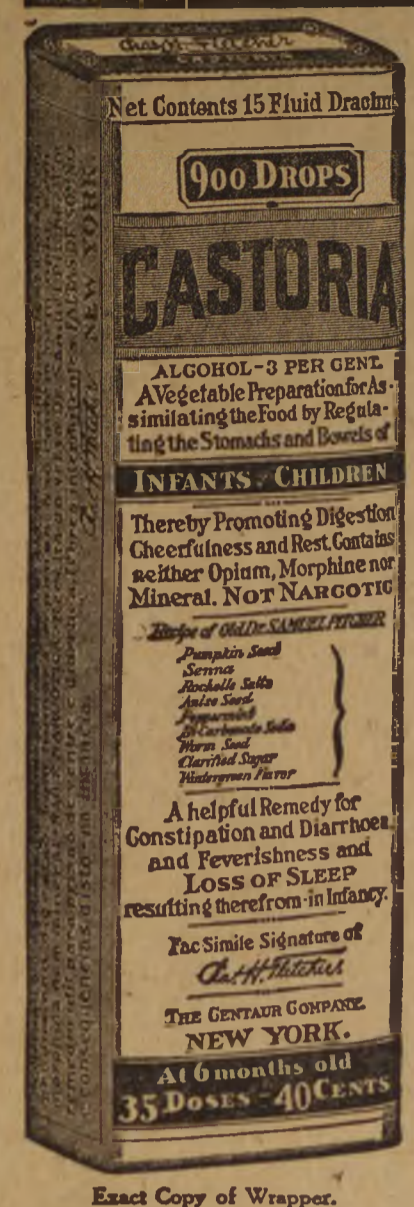

Pays to Investigate When Flow From Cream Spout Seems Smaller Than Ordinarily.

If the flow from the cream spout of the separator seems smaller than ordinarily, it usually pays to investigate. In spite of all precautions, it often happens that foreign matter lodges in the cream screw, thus causing part of the cream to be retained with the skim milk.

INFERTILE EGGS KEEP BEST

Surplus Roosters Should Be Disposed of as Soon as Hatching-Egg Season Is Over.

Infertile eggs keep best when placed in water glass. This means that useless "roosters" should go as soon as the hatching-egg season is over. Eating the big roosters is not like tender young fryers, but the housewife with a fireless cooker can turn the toughest old male birds into several fine chicken dinners.

Children Cry For Fletcher's

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

QUEER METHOD OF DEFENSE

Fishes That Have the Power of Inflating Their Bodies, Frightening Their Enemies.

The swell fishes of tropic coast waters have the power of suddenly inflating the body with water or air until they assume an approximately globular form several times the normal diameter, which must be disconcerting to any enemy about to seize one. The porcupine fish, in addition to doing this, has the body everywhere covered with long, sharp spines which project in every direction like the quills of a hedgehog. The trunk fishes, instead of being protected in this way, have the body encased in a bony shell, like a turtle. In the East Indies there are rectangular species, but ours are three-cornered, beehive-shaped. They go by various names—cuckold, shell-fish, and so forth, the cowfish being a species with two hornlike spines projecting from its forehead. They are excellent eating, cooked in the shell like a lobster. The back muscles of the swell fishes are sometimes eaten, but make a risky delicacy, as there are well-authenticated instances of severe poisoning from eating these fishes. The poison seems to be localized in the viscera and to permeate the rest of the fish after death.

Poorly Equipped.

"Funny how some people try to get along with no household equipment at all," remarked Juggins. "Why, those new neighbors of mine haven't a lawn mower, a hose, a stepladder, a saw, a fishing rod, an ice cream freezer or any new books."

"How in the world do you know they haven't?" asked Muggins.

"Why, the day after they moved in I stepped over in a neighborly way and tried to borrow those things."—New York Sun.

HERE'S A TIP FOR MOTHERS

Sage Advice Offered Without Charge by the Pastor of the Arkansas Thomas Cat.

Take a little tip from ye pastor of the Thomas Cat, mothers, and maybe the angels will fight on your side. Watch your young daughters' friends. Scrutinize carefully her men friends, for many wolves there be in sheep's clothing. Keep a wary eye on her girl friends, because birds of a feather are supposed to flock together, and one silly, loud, indiscreet young person can compromise all who associate with her. But as you value your daughter's safety, turn a searchlight of investigation upon the character and antecedents of her middle-aged women acquaintances.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

Why Wives Get Fractions.

"Mrs. Gawker is the envy of everybody in her set," said Mrs. Gadsper. "Why so?" asked Mr. Gadsper. "She has a French chauffeur who says 'Out out, madame!'" "Ump!" replied Mr. Gadsper. "I could teach George, our colored chauffeur from Mississippi, to say that in five minutes."

Security.

"Pa, what is security?" "Security, my son, is something worth fifty dollars on which a banker will lend you two dollars."

Be fair; then you need fear neither Gor nor man.

BALKED AT WORD "COMMON"

Profiteer Felt It Was Due to His Dignity to Have Nothing But the Very Latest.

Bishop Homer Stunts said at a dinner in Omaha:

"If we were all as ambitious to progress ethically as our war profiteers are to progress socially, it would be a very good thing."

"A war profiteer decided recently to drop the Baptist faith and turn Episcopalian, as all the bang-up people in town went to the Episcopalian church."

"So he visited the bookstore and asked for the hymnals, Bibles and so forth that he would need in his new way to worship."

"He seemed well enough pleased with the volumes that the salesman laid before him till he came to the Book of Common Prayer. Over this he frowned and shook his head."

" 'This'll hardly do,' he said, and he tapped the title with his forefinger. 'Let's have something a little more select, bo.'"

Too Full for Utterance, Maybe. "When Parson Goodleigh tried to start his flivver he choked the engine off three times in succession."

"Ha! Did he make any remarks appropriate to the occasion?"

"No, he didn't, but he didn't have exactly the same kind of expression on his face he wears when he says, 'Let us pray.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Folly of Cheating Nature

Many people get the idea that they can keep their nerves on edge and their digestion upset year after year, and "get away with it." They sleep only half as much as they should—and never get properly and thoroughly rested.

If you tire out easily, if you are getting pale and anemic, if your food doesn't digest as it should, would it not be well to stop and consider whether coffee or tea is having its effect on you?

The caffeine and their found in coffee and tea are drugs, as any doctor can tell you. Is it any wonder that the steady use of these drugs sometimes causes serious damage?

If you really want to be fair with yourself, and give yourself the opportunity you deserve in order to do your best work, make up your mind to quit coffee and tea for awhile—and drink delicious, appetizing Postum instead.

Postum permits sound, refreshing sleep which builds strength, energy and endurance.

Order Postum from your Grocer today. Drink this hot, refreshing beverage in place of tea or coffee for 10 days and see what a wonderful difference it will make in the way you feel.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

You'll enjoy the sport of rolling 'em with P. A.!

FIRST thing you do next —go get some makin's papers and some Prince Albert tobacco and puff away on a home made cigarette that will hit on all your smoke cylinders!

No use sitting-by and saying maybe you'll cash this hunch tomorrow. Do it while the going's good, for man-o-man, you can't figure out what you're passing by! Such flavor, such coolness, such more-ish-ness—well, the only way to get the words emphatic enough is to go to it and know yourself!

And, besides Prince Albert's delightful flavor, there's its freedom from bite and parch which is cut out by our exclusive patented process! Certainly—you smoke P. A. from sun up till you slip between the sheets without a comeback.

Prince Albert is the tobacco that revolutionized pipe smoking. If you never could smoke a pipe — forget it! You can—AND YOU WILL —if you use Prince Albert for packing! It's a smoke revelation in a jimmy pipe or a cigarette!
