Henry Baker Must Answer for Shooting Wife Last Year—Elgin Band Back to Life

A vested choir of twenty-five to thirty voices will be organized in the Presbyterian church at Belvidere.

The day's receipt of milk at the condensing factory at Grays Lake last Sunday was 75,000 pounds, the greatest since the establishment of the factory.

By subscribing for $25,000 worth of stock in the enterprise Rochelle can secure a factory for manufacturing barb wire to fill war orders. After these orders are completed, the manufacture of barb wire for domestic uses would be continued.

The watch factory band of Elgin, famous during the World's fair, and for many years before and after that event, a musical organization of national fame, will be in the big "Preparedness parade in Chicago June 3.

Mr. M. Biers, of Mendota, a candidate at the special election held in Rochelle last week to vote on the proposition for a township high school, but little interest was manifested on such an important question. There were only 560 votes cast, 297 votes in favor of the proposition and 256 against, giving a majority of 41 votes in favor of the proposition.

tract with the United States Government to furnish 1,000 horses for the cavalry. He and his buyers are now busy looking over the country and picking out the right kind as Uncle Sam is very particular what kind of horses he buys for his men to ride. Good prices are being offered for the horses which will come up to the requirements.—Mendota Bulletin.

Peter Wagner of La Salle, had two wives, not at the same time, however, and both were named Anna. He also had an insurance policy for $1,000, taken out away back in 1860, and made payable to his wife, Anna. Now Peter and both Annas are dead and their children are fighting for the money, which the company declines to pay over until the court says which Anna's children shall have it.

Henry Baker, well known Hampshire resident, who is under indictment on a charge of attempting to kill his wife a year ago, is expected to be placed on trial for assault with intent to commit murder in the circuit court at Geneva this week. All efforts to settle the case are said to have failed. Mrs. Baker, who lay in a dangerous condition in an Elgin hospital for several weeks after the shooting, is now living in Sycamore, and is said to be ready to appear as the principal witness for the prosecution.

Another motor truck costing $5,300 for use in road making was delivered to Kane county last week. County Superintendent of Highways George Lamb has the truck working at Dundee, where the other truck is being used. This truck is a combination of fair and not only hauls material for the road but also makes a crown. The county machine will be sent to St. Charles and Sugar Grove after the work is completed at Dundee. The first truck is used for hauling material and rolling roads all winter.

A new ordinance at LaSalle fixes the fees for pack peddlers at $20 per year, $8 per month, $5 a week and $3.50 a day. Peddlers who sell from wagons and vehicles propelled by power other than human being are to be assessed at the rate of $50 a year or $5 per diem. The ordinance, was passed at the request of local merchants who think they should be protected. The license in Genoa is $10 a day. Needless to say that Genoa has no peddlers.

An old document issued by the school board of Lancaster, Ohio, in 1828, and brought to light by being recently published in "Railway Engineering" brings a broad smile to our faces as we make application to our own time. Here it is: "You are welcome to use the school house to debate all proper questions in, but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossibilities and rank infidelities. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God had designed that His intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of 15 miles an hour by steam, He would have clearly foretold thru His bold prophets. It is a device of Satan to lead the immortal souls down to hell."

CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM A COMMUNITY UPLIFT

OUR Chautauqua is for the purpose of providing our community with a week of wholesome entertainment. The best companies brought here from all parts of the country delight the people and also set the standards for higher ideals. The lecturers coming from all corners of the earth add another educational feature to the program. These men and women are good talkers and also know how to make the people laugh while they are telling them the truth.

A good Chautauqua, such as we have, is a fine advertisement for a town. It brings people from the country and surrounding towns. It helps business and shows our town is alive. The Morning Chautauqua for the children and young people is worth the whole effort, as it helps to mold their ideas of life.

The Lincoln Chautauqua, with eleven years' experience, has definite ideas along educational lines that endeavor to uplift the community, help make better people, vitalize the churches and be an aid to the public schools.

Italy has suspended the exportation of macaroni.

There are sixty-five beet sugar factories in the United States. The daylight-saving scheme was instituted at Halifax on May 1, all clocks being advanced one hour at midnight.

Labeling of fabrics with an indication of their constituent materials is proposed in a new bill (H. R. 15491, page 163) which deals only with cotton goods.

George A. Burrell, chief gas chemist of the Pittsburg station of the federal bureau of mines, estimates that in 1909 the consumption of gasoline in this country was 11,000,000 barrels. In 1916 he estimates the amount will be 38,000,000 barrels.

Uncle Sam's messengers brought in to Sears, Roebuck & Company's big establishment an average of about $350,000 a day during 1915 from all over the world who find it more convenient to drop a letter into the mail box than make a trip—or even telephone to the store.

Any one having a few calves' stomachs they haven't got any particular use for can realize some real money for them, which manufacturers of rennet extract are prepared to furnish. About $180,000 in good American coin has been going across the water to European farmers for calves' stomachs. This trade has been stopped since the war, and it is up to us now to conserve our calves' stomachs so as to help out the cheesemakers.—Elgin Dairy Report.

One thousand skilled mechanics are working day and night rushing the construction of the new Gary, Ind., tin mills of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Co., which must be completed by August 1. The mills cover 112 acres, some of the buildings being a third of a mile long. Built at a cost of $5,000,000, the mills will employ 3,000 highly paid tin workers.

By federal law a barrel used as a measure for fruits and vegetables will mean the same thing all over the country on and after the first of next July. The standard barrel will contain 7,656 cubic inches, which approximates three bushels or 105 quarts. The new law will help buyers of potatoes and apples, for instance, to know what they are getting for their money.

A petition is being circulated at Davis Junction and vicinity for the purpose of calling an election to vote on the proposition of establishing a high school district and erect a new high school at Davis Junction.

Congressman Makes Great Speech at Belvidere Sunday

In his Memorial Day speech at Belvidere last Sunday Congressman Charles E. Fuller stated his position fully on the great question of adequate protection and in the matter of preparedness spoke as follows:

"Like nearly all other citizens of this Republic, I am for peace, lasting peace, with all nations, but it must be an honorable peace, and in the present condition of affairs in the world, the only way I know to insure such a condition for this country, is by being adequately prepared to defend our country and its institutions and our rights by force if that should become necessary. We would not think of leaving any of our cities without police protection, because we know that there are lawless men in every community who can be restrained only by force, or by the knowledge that force may be employed. So we know that even the most civilized nations may go to war for causes real or imaginary, and with passions aroused as they are now we do not know when we may be attacked. We hope none will attack us; we hope we may not be drawn into the maelstrom of the European war—but the decision of that momentous question may not rest with us. It is our duty which we owe to ourselves, to our families and to our country to be prepared to defend ourselves from whatever may come. We should have a trained and disciplined army sufficient at least to take care of the Mexican bandits who raid our border. And we should and must have a navy that can protect our coasts from invasion. I have seen enough in the past few months to know that as the President well said, 'dangers real and imminent confront us,' and just as I would insure my house against fire, although I do not expect it to burn, so I would insure as best I could our country and homes against possible invasion and destruction. This country and our free institutions have cost much in blood and treasure, and if patriotism has not died out, as I do not believe it has, we must be ready at all costs to preserve and perpetuate what the boys of 1861 to 1865, and the patriots of other wars have bequeathed to us."

First Installment of Great Serial, "The Iron Claw," at Petey Wales' Show

Petey Wales announces that he will start the great serial, "The Iron Claw," next week, it being one of the greatest feature pictures of the year. The story of The Iron Claw opens on a beautiful island off the coast of Carolina where was situated Enoch Golden's home. In his employ was Dr. Jules Legar whose attentions to Mrs. Golden had caused his employer much unrest. Not long after, in a jealous rage, Golden accused his wife of betraying his confidence and sent her away. At his orders, Legar's face was horribly mutilated and his hand crushed off in a vice. In place of the hand, Legar provided himself with an iron claw, the significance of which Golden understood. Swearing ven-

Action of Voters at Vinton Shows the Spirit of the Times

The state of Louisiana, a state of which the people of this part of the country seldom think in the matter of progress, is forging to the front when it comes to the school question. Some of the best schools in the United States are located in old Louisiana, the result of modern thinking. At a recent election in the Vinton special school district by a majority of seven to one the voters approved the issuance of $30,000 bonds for an addition to the present $60,000 plant. The special district takes in two other villages or community centers besides Vinton.

In its write-up of the election outcome, The Vinton Booster says: "An important step toward school consolidation has been taken by the voting of this bond issue. Edgerly and Ged are in the district, and heretofore the school facilities at these two points have been limited. Now an auto transfer service will be arranged from Edgerly and all the children will be taught at Vinton. All the high school grades will be transferred to the new building and the additional pupils will be taught in the other structure."

NARROW ESCAPE

Four Rockford Men in Bad Auto Smash-up Sunday

An automobile occupied by four men supposed to be from Rockford dashed down the hill leading to a bridge half a mile south of Cherry Valley Sunday, swerved first one way on the curved approach, then the other, and smashed directly into the steel railing on one side of the bridge, coming to a stop with one wheel at the edge of the stone abutment and the radiator crumpled up against the steel supports says the Belvidere Republican.

The machine stopped but the passengers did not, with the exception of the driver, whose face was crushed down against the steering gear, suffering several painful bruises. One of the passengers did a spread eagle over the front of the machine and landed on his stomach in some nice soft mud at the bottom of the ditch below. The mud was deep and the identity of the man was practically obliterated, but the muck saved him from worse injury, and he could breathe all right after he got it dug out of his respiratory orifices. Another of the passengers hit a wire fence, which took generous chunks of his clothing and an occasional bit of hide. The third passenger landed somewhere, but in the general mix-up no definite notice was taken of him. Anyway, none of the men were seriously hurt, but the machine was nearly wrecked.

Will Head Affairs of Woodstock and Sycamore Traction Co.

Elgin News:—Mrs. Mary A. Landon of South Elgin is one of the few women in the world who is at the head of an interurban company. She is now in active charge of the affairs of the Woodstock-Sycamore Traction company to the presidency of which she was elected at the annual stockholders meeting in Genoa Monday. She succeeds J. P. Mason, Elgin farmer, who was president of the company for several years. Mr. Mason was not at the meeting and Mrs. Landon was elected without opposition.

In announcing her policy as head of the road, Mrs. Landon explained today that during her administration she hopes to complete the reconstruction which has cleared the company from $20,000 in debts during the last two years.

"Two years ago there was a big meeting in Elgin when we took things into our hands and prevented a group of Chicago men from forcing us into bankruptcy," she said. "They wanted our road as a part of a system leading from Chicago into the lake region."

"At that time we were $20,000 in debt. Now we are clear of debt, have our taxes paid and own a road which is operating cars on a regular schedule."

"Three gasoline cars are in service on the road between Sycamore and Marengo. We own the right of way to Woodstock."

"Within a short time we will be in a position to sell the road so as to clear the title."

ROCK ISLAND TO BOOM

Arsenal of That City to be Made a Great Munitions Factory

Rock Island arsenal is to be made one of the greatest munition factories of the country under appropriations made by the House committee on appropriations, the plan to be perfected by the War Department. A field artillery ammunition plant costing $1,250,000 is to be erected at this arsenal, an initial appropriation of $500,000 being made for the purpose. Increased facilities are to be made for the manufacture of field artillery vehicles at a cost of $90,000. In all, $755,200 is appropriated for immediate improvements at the arsenal. In addition the Secretary of War is authorized to locate and have constructed a new powder plant at a cost of $500,000. This new plant may go to the Rock Island arsenal because of the existing facilities there and the desire of army authorities to have a middle west factory located in the interior of the country, and beyond reach of a possible enemy.

DEAD ARE HONORED

Graves of Forty-seven Veterans are Decorated on Sunday

PLEASEING ADDRESS BY JENKS

Aurora Speaker Holds Attention of Audience During Entire Speech—Beautiful Day for Exercises

The weather man was surely with the Veterans and Modern Woodmen last Sunday. The day dawned bright and clear, giving every promise of being in absolute keeping with the program of the day in Genoa, and it kept the promise. Promptly at the appointed time the Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Woodmen and children gathered at the hall from which they marched to the cemetery, the column being headed by the drum corps. This stirring martial music, which surely carried the veterans back fifty years, was furnished by Dr. Hemenway, W. H. Hemenway and S. H. Matteson of this city and Harvey Matteson of Burlington. The latter is a veteran of the civil war and despite the weight of years that are upon him, manipulated the fife with as much vigor and as faithfully to time and tune as he did in '65.

The program at the cemetery was carried out as announced in The Republican-Journal a week ago. There was an abundance of flowers, the woods and fields at this time being glorious with Nature's offerings. The musical part of the program was excellent as was every number.

Dean O. R. Jenks of Aurora College again pleased the audience with his patriotic address. After his appearance here two years ago many earnestly requested that his service be secured at some future date. Bearing this in mind, the Sons of Veterans went after Mr. Jenks and got him. And none were disappointed. The speaker has a way of entertaining that is all his own. He is well versed in history, a patriot thru and thru, a fluent speaker and gets just enough wit into his talk to hold the close attention of every man, woman and child.

B. C. Awe spoke in behalf of the Modern Woodmen and held his part of the program up to a level with the rest.

Capron Wants High School

On Monday, June 12, the people of Capron and the adjacent territory embracing a tract about seven miles east and west and from six to nine miles north and south, with Capron as the center, will vote on forming a high school district, the purpose being to build a union high school at Capron. The territory embraces a part of McHenry county and is fully described in placards which have been posted. The election has been called in response to a petition filed with Miss Harvey, county superintendent of schools. It is understood that it is the intention to establish a four year high school should the question carry, and a new high school be built.

A Story of Today and of All Days

SYNOPSIS.

Alan Wayne is sent away from Red Hill his home, by his uncle, Mr. Y., as a moral failure. Clem runs after him in a tangle of short skirts to bid him good-by. Captain Wayne tells Alan of the fall of the Waynes. Clem drinks Alan's health on his birthday. Judge Healey defends Alan in his business with his employers. Alan and Alix, Gerry's wife, meet at sea, homeward bound, and start a flirtation. At home, Gerry, as he thinks, sees Alix and Alan eloping, drops everything, and goes to Pernambuco. Alix leaves Alan on the train and goes home. Gerry leaves Pernambuco and goes to Piranhas. On a canoe trip he meets a native girl. The judge fails to trace Gerry. A baby is born to Alix. The native girl takes Gerry to the ruined plantation she is mistress of. Gerry marries her. At Maple house Collingford tells how he met Alan—Ten Per Cent Wayne—building a bridge in Africa. Collingford meets Alix and her baby and gives her encouragement about Gerry. Alan comes back to town but does not go home. Gerry returns to the city. Gerry begins to improve Margarita's plantation and builds an irrigating ditch. In the morning Gerry reads letters and dreams of home. Gerry pastures Lieber's cattle during the drought.

TO YOU WOMEN

Suppose your husband deserted you because you played a rather dangerous prank on him—danger of family dishonor? Suppose, after he had been gone two years, another man came along and laid his love at your feet? Would you do right in encouraging him? Should you wait longer for the husband?

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

Gerry still waited. It was terrible to wait. Then she called to him, "Gereel! Gereel!" He leaped up and pounded on the door but nobody came. Yesterday they had all been servile to him; today he was nothing. He shouted, "I am here! I shall always be here." She did not call again. He paced up and down the veranda saying to himself, "A little roll of blue ribbon—a little roll of blue ribbon!" He stumbled on the saddle that Lieber had sent him. It held his eye. He picked up the bride and ran down to the pasture. He caught the oldest and gentlest of the horses, opened a gap in the fence and led him out. Then he called Bonifacio. "Listen," he said, "you must take the fattest of the steers—the red one with the blazed face—you must drive him into town and sell him."

The darky demurred. "It is too late for market, master."

"It does not matter. You must do as I say," said Gerry angrily. "You must sell the steer. If you cannot sell him you must give him for blue ribbon. Do you understand? You must bring back blue ribbon for your mistress. She says you must have a little roll of blue ribbon."

Hours passed and Bonifacio returned. He laid a little package and some money beside his master. He unsaddled the old horse and turned him into the pasture; then he came back, sat down at Gerry's feet and slept. Gerry looked with wonder on his nodding head. Then the door opened and Dona Maria came bustling out. "Come in," she cried; "thou art the father of a man child."

Gerry went in and knelt beside the bed. Margarita looked at him and smiled faintly, proudly. He laid the little roll of blue ribbon in her weak hand. She turned her head slowly and looked down. She saw the glint of blue and understood. She turned her eyes, swimming black pools in a white, drawn face, to Gerry. To sacrifice she added adoration.

Chapter XVII

The calm which had settled on Alix's life puzzled her. She wondered if she was beginning to miss Gerry less. She was still debating the point when Collingford arrived in the city. Upon arrival he called on Mrs. J. Y. and then on Nance and then, of course, on Alix. As she came into the room he felt a strange fluttering in his throat. It stopped his words of greeting. He stammered and stared. He had never felt so glad at the sight of any one.

"What are you looking so dismayed about?" cried Alix with a smile and holding out her hand. "Has a short year changed me so much? Am I so thin or so fat?"

Collingford recovered himself. "Neither too thin nor too fat. It is perfection, not imperfection, that dismays a man. You call it a short year?" he added gravely. "It's been an eternity—not a year!"

But Alix was not to be diverted from her tone of badinage. She looked him over critically. "Well," she said, "I congratulate you. I didn't know before that bronze could bronze. What a lot of health you carry about with you."

Collingford smiled. "Clem said I looked as though I had been living on babies."

They sat and stared at each other. Each found the other good to look upon. Seen alone, Collingford's tall, tense figure or the fragile quality of Alix's pale beauty, would have seemed hard to match. Seen together, they were wonderfully in tone. Alix grew grave under inspection, Collingford nervous. "There is no news?" he asked.

"None," said Alix and a far-away look came into her eyes as if her mind were off, thousands of miles, intent on a search of its own.

Collingford broke the spell. He jumped up and said he had come for just one thing—to take her out for a walk. It was one of those nippy early winter afternoons out to it a walk. Alix must put on her things. She did and together they walked the long length of the avenue and out into the park.

By that time they had decided it was quite a warm afternoon after all—almost warm enough to sit down. They tried it. Collingford sat half turned on the bench and devoured Alix with his eyes. And just as he was going to say a word Alix gave him a full, measuring look and said, almost hastily, "It is too cold, after all. Quite chilly. It is our walking so fast deceived us." She rose and started tentatively toward the gate. "Come on, Honorable Percy," she said playfully.

Collingford caught up with her and said moodily, "If you call me Honorable Percy again I shall dub you Honorable Alix."

"They were walking down the avenue. "Honest Alix isn't half bad," he continued thoughtfully. "The race has got into the habit of yoking the word honest to our attitude toward other people's penes but it's a good old word that stands for trustworthiness, sincere, truthful and all the other adjectives that fit straight riding."

"Speaking of riding, Mr. Collingford, you're riding for a fall," Alix glanced at him meaningly.

"How did you know?" he stammered and then went on rather sullenly. "Anyway, you're wrong. I'm not. But I was just going to." He prodded viciously at the cracks in the pavement with his stick.

"Don't," said Alix. "Don't do that. I mean, you'll break your stick and it's the one I like."

Collingford turned a flushed face to her. "Look here, Alix," he said, "you are honest and sincere and all those things I said. Don't let's hedge—not just now. If your bad luck doesn't let up—if you learn anything—anything you don't want to know—I can't say it right out—would you'd you think you ever would—"

Alix did not smile. He was too much in earnest and she liked him too much—was too much at one with him—not to feel what he was going through. "I like your Honest Alix," she said, after a pause, "and I'm going to let her do the talking for a moment. If I learned absolutely that—that Gerry can never come back to me, that there is no man that I would turn to quicker than to you," Collingford gave her a grateful look and the flush under his tan deepened. "Don't misunderstand me," she went on "I like you a whole lot, but I have never thought of marrying anyone but Gerry. I'd like to marry Gerry. I've never married him yet. Not really."

They walked on for some time in silence. Collingford's thoughts had raced away southwards and Alix followed them unerringly. "Don't make one horrible mistake, Percy," she said when she was sure. "Don't imagine that I could ever love the bearer of ill tidings."

Collingford flushed, this time with shame. "No, of course not," he stammered.

"You see—or can't you see?" she went on, "that all this new life of mine I've hung on to a single hook of faith. I could not break out from this probation for any other man. I do not mean that a woman can love but once—not necessarily. But I do think that one's life must spring from a new chrysalis to meet a new love fairly. Second loves at first sight have a tang of the bargain counter and the ready made. Love is not a chance tenant. He must build or grow into a new home."

They walked on in a full silence. Collingford's shoulders drooped. For the first time in his life he felt old. "You are right—you are always right," he said at last. "I shall go away—somewhere where it's easy to sweat." "Somewhere where it's easy to sweat!" exclaimed Alix. "What an ugly thought!"

"It's only Bodsdy," said Collingford reminiscently. "Bodsdy says you can drown any woman's memory in sweat. Good old Bodsdy! I wonder where I shall find him."

"Oh," said Alix, "if it's Bodsdy's, one mustn't quarrel with it simply because it is ugly. But—"

"But what?" said Collingford.

"I was going to say, 'But what naked language!' Perhaps it is one of those truths one shrinks from because it starts in by slapping one's face. Anyway, even if it is a truth, it's horrid. It hurts a woman to be forgotten."

Collingford smiled. "So," he said and stopped before an up-town ticket agency. "Do you mind?" he asked, with a wave of his hand. They went in and he bought a passage for England. He was to sail the following afternoon. He looked so glum over it that Alix consented to lunch with him and see him off.

He came for her the next day a little late but, when she saw his face, she felt a shock and forgot to chide him. Her eyes mirrored the trouble in his but somehow she felt that it was not the parting from her that had turned him pale in a night. He helped her into the waiting cab and then sank back into his corner.

Alix laid her gloved hand on his knee. "What is it?" she asked.

Collingford's face twitched. He fixed his eyes through the cab window on nothing. "Bodsdy," he said, "is dead. He has been dead for months."

"Oh," cried Alix. "I'm sorry. I'm sorry for you." She did not try to say any more. She had put all her heart into those few words.

Collingford drew out his pocket-book and took from it a soiled sheet of paper—a leaf torn from a field notebook. He held it out to her with trembling hand. "I wouldn't show it to anyone else. Trouble has made you great-hearted. Read it."

Alix puzzled over the slip of paper. "What's the name of the place? I can't make it out."

"It's a little hole on the borders of Tibet. That paper's been handed along for five months. The envelope it came in was in tatters."

"Dear Old Pal," read Alix. "Do you remember what I used to tell you? When a man has seen all the world he must go home or die. When we last parted I had three places left to see, but they haven't lasted me as long as I thought they would. I have sent you my battery. The bores are a bit too big for the new powder and you can't use the guns, I know, but you'll have a home, old man, and you can give them a place in a rack. They will make a little room as wide as the ends of the earth. I didn't kill her. I made her kill herself, Bodsdy."

Alix was puzzled again but then she remembered. "So he didn't kill her, after all," she said.

"Kill her! Kill what?" said Collingford. "Oh, yes. I remember. As if that mattered."

"It matters. It does matter," cried Alix, outraged.

"Forgive me," said Collingford. "I had forgotten that you never knew understand. Have you ever sat in the desert on a moonlit night and looked at the Sphinx? It holds you—it holds yours eyes in a vice. You wonder why. I'll tell you. It knows. That's the way it was with Bodsdy. He only towered—knew—understood. If that is nothing, Bodsdy was nothing."

They were silent. Presently Collingford helped her out and together they passed through the rich foyer, the latticed palm room, and up the steps into the latest cry in dining rooms. A little table in the far corner had been reserved for them. As they crossed the crowded room a hush fell over the tables. Some looked and were silent because Alix was beautiful and daintily gowned and Collingford all that a man should be, but those who knew looked because Alix was Alix and Collingford was Collingford. These soon fell to whispering, predicting a match. Alix bowed abstractedly here and there as she followed the head waiter to her seat.

They sat down, each half facing the room. Alix caught her breath. "Whirling the old air?" asked Collingford.

"No," answered Alix. "Only sighing. I feel so out of it and that always makes one sigh whether one wants to be in it or not."

Alix paused. "Go on," said Collingford.

"There are only a few men in the room, but almost all of these women have husbands. The husbands are in two tenses—past and future. There must be a present but it is nebulous. I didn't know before but I know now that in time these women will go back or forward to their husbands. Some day they will get dizzy and fall and the shock will wake them up."

"You see, you understand, you are prophetic," said Collingford, smiling.

"But I do not tower like your Bodsdy," said Alix and then bit her tongue at the slip.

A shadow seemed to fall on them. The room's high, delicate paneling and the painted oval of the ceiling seemed to hover over a suddenly darkened emptiness. The hum and chatter of the throng became little and far away. Collingford and Alix felt as though they sat alone and yet not alone. Collingford nodded as though Alix had spoken. "Yes," he said, "Bodsdy has come back to us. Don't regret it. I don't know how it is with you but I feel that we two are alone with him and that it's a world while. He's come on us like a cloud."

"But I like clouds," he continued, "big black clouds. If it were not for them you couldn't see the lightning or hear the thunder. They make lightning and thunder—the arm and the voice of the gods."

"Bodsdy was elemental. He was an element. He could not produce but he could make fertile the lives of lesser men. I've sat at his feet ever since the first time he spoke to me. I didn't know I was doing it but I can see it now. And the result is this: Bodsdy couldn't go home. But I can and I'm going home before I've seen the whole world. Only—I wish I could take you with me."

"There, there," said Alix, playfully, but her eyes were soft. "We must go now or you will miss your ship."

CHAPTER XVIII

As Alix and Collingford left the dining room she said, "They weren't all butterflies after all. I saw a man and a woman."

"Not really?" said Collingford.

"Who?"

"Alan Wayne and Dora Tenel."

At Alan's name Collingford's face lit up with interest. "Ten Percent Wayne, eh? Yes, you're right. He's a man. And Dora Tenel, ex-Lady Braeme. Yes, she's a woman too—in a way."

"Has she a tarnished reputation?" Collingford stopped short in his stride and looked keenly at Alix. "My dear lady," he said, "that is a question one does not put to a man. However, it doesn't embarrass me to answer it in this case. She has not. What on earth put it into your head?"

"I don't know," said Alix. "Oh, yes I do. I remember. Someone told me once that Alan surrounded himself with tarnished reputations."

Each followed the train of his own thoughts until they reached the pier. Alix did not get out of the cab. She looked from the window and said good-by. Collingford held her hand and her eyes long, then he turned away and hurried into the elevator.

When Alix got home she sat down and wrote a note to Alan—just a line to tell him that she was ready and wished to see him. He came the following afternoon. At first he was a little awkward, straining just the least too much not to betray his nervousness. But the sight of Alix put him at his ease. She had become a true woman—true in the sense of honor—and she was tempered as steel, but with the softness of motherhood. About her there was the peace of an inner shrine. She drew him into it unhesitatingly and he suddenly felt unclean just as he had felt unworthy on that other day when he had recoiled from Nance's loving arms around his neck.

"You're not looking very well, Alan," said Alix when he was seated.

"No, I'm not on the top of the wave just now," replied Alan. "Touch of river fever. It's like memory—a hard thing to shake."

"I'm not trying to shake mine," said Alix calmly. "My memories have made me."

"No wonder you don't quarrel with them," said Alan in frank admiration.

PRISON REDEEMS SLAYER OF WOMAN

Becomes Student and Philosopher During Six Years in Institution.

JUDGE PAINTS HORRORS

Condemned Man Finds Something Different in Prison Life From What Jurist Had Promised When Delivering Sentence.

Chicago.—Six years ago Joseph Welcome, confessed murderer, was sentenced to life imprisonment. That he might feel the full horror of his fate the judge told him of the terrors that awaited him. He had killed a woman.

"The instinctive unreasoning horror of mankind regards death as a severe punishment," said the judge. "You are now to receive a sterner punishment. Your victim died but once. You will die a hundred times. You will be wiped out of human knowledge. Henceforth you will be known only by a number. You will have no right except only the right of mere existence."

"In four or five years the eternal solitude and silence will begin to crush in upon you like an iron weight. You hear that street car bell ringing in the street? You will remember it in after years as the most exquisite music. There will be few worse men than you in that great prison, but the law has taken its full and ample revenge upon you."

Mrs. Sarah Welcome has just sued for divorce from the man in Joliet penitentiary. The bare notice recalled the judge's stern decree six years ago, and a reporter journeyed to Joliet to see Welcome and discover if life in prison had crushed the man who murdered. The prison authorities are interested in Welcome.

At Peace With the World. Down the corridor sounded the cheerful whistle of a man at peace with the world. Then came the light step on the stone flagging. Through the doorway stepped a man of thirty-two years, dressed in the homely gray garb of the prison.

"How do you find life in prison?" asked the reporter. "You have been here almost six years now."

"I understand," he said quietly. "You have in mind the statement made by the judge when he sentenced me."

"He paused and reflected a moment. "Some day I hope to communicate with the judge," he went on. "I would write him without malice or enmity. And why should I not? I regard him as a spiritual elixir that aided my barren soul. When he sent me here he forced me to find myself. "The judge was wrong. He did not send me to a hell on earth. When I killed, I threw myself on the mercy of the court and he proved most merciful. "The six years I have been here I have studied."

"You're Not Looking Very Well, Alan."

"The Six Years I Have Been Here I Have Studied."

write him without malice or enmity. And why should I not? I regard him as a spiritual elixir that aided my barren soul. When he sent me here he forced me to find myself. "The judge was wrong. He did not send me to a hell on earth. When I killed, I threw myself on the mercy of the court and he proved most merciful. "The six years I have been here I have studied. I have studied mathematics, English, history and literature. I confess with pride that I have achieved what I hitherto regarded as unmanly—an understanding of the classics. "And I do my share for my fellow men. You know, I am an instructor in the prison school, and they say my instruction is good, because I can take the learning of wise men and put it into the language of the day for the men who understand only that language. Quotes From Classics. Joe Welcome talked on and on of his dislikes and likes in literature. He quoted Burns and Tennyson side by side with Chaucer and Confucius. Then Welcome arose to say his farewell. "Good-by," he said. "Or may I say 'Auf wiedersehen?' I learn from everyone. Auf wiedersehen." Father Peter and the other officials smiled when they spoke of Joe Welcome. He was sent to prison for the murder of Mrs. Mary McLean in a lodging house. Welcome, who had led a sordid life, came to demand money of his wife. There was a quarrel and he shot her. Mrs. McLean, proprietor of the boarding house, stepped in to remonstrate, and he shot her dead.

Considering his past delinquencies, do you believe that Alan Wayne has a moral right even to hope for Clem's hand in marriage? Will this fine, clean girl look on Alan with favor?

YOUNG WOMEN MAY AVOID PAIN

Need Only Trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, says Mrs. Kurtzweg.

Buffalo, N.Y.—"My daughter, whose picture is herewith, was much troubled with pains in her back and sides every month and they would sometimes be so bad that it would seem like acute inflammation of some organ. She read your advertisement in the newspapers and tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She praises it highly as she has been relieved of all these pains by its use. All mothers should know of this remedy, and all young girls who suffer should try it."—Mrs. MATILDA KURTZWEG, 529 High St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

If you know of any young woman who is sick and needs helpful advice, ask her to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Only women will receive her letter, and it will be held in strictest confidence.

HOYT'S HEADACHE AND NEURALGIA COLOGNE

A harmless and refreshing remedy that quickly relieves headache, neuralgia, vertigo, faintness, exhaustion, sleeplessness, etc. Only by inhalation and outward application. For sale by all druggists.

The Cure. Robert W. Chambers, the popular novelist, said in an anti-suffrage address in Brooklyn:

"A modern girl—one of those pretty, vote-chasing, athletic modern girls who ride astride, swim in men's swimming suits, smoke cigarettes and read Wells and Shaw—a modern girl of this type repined one day at a tea because she could not be an aviator in the war.

"Oh," she sighed, blowing a cloud of cigarette smoke from her lips—"Oh, if heaven had only made me a man!" "Heaven did, my dear," said a placid matron, "and you'll find him some day, and then all this new-thought nonsense of yours will cease forever."

Unassisted. "I hear that poor Blank died without the aid of a doctor."

"Yes, he managed it alone, poor chap."

Rest Those Worn Nerves

Don't give up. When you feel all unstrung, when family cares seem too hard to bear, and backache, dizzy headaches and irregular kidney action mystify you, remember that such troubles often come from weak kidneys and it may be that you only need Doan's Kidney Pills to make you well. Don't delay. Profit by other people's experiences.

An Illinois Case

Mrs. William Hinkle, 217 Caroline St., Pekin, Ill., says: "I suffered severely from pains in the small of my back and the least exertion made them worse. My kidney secretions also troubled me and I was miserable. Doan's Kidney Pills removed these ailments and best of all, I haven't suffered from another attack since."

Sport Shirts And Athletic Underwear

We have made ample preparations for the hot weather needs of the young man, especially in shirts and underwear.

Sport Shirts will be the thing this year and our line is equal to any in this part of the country. Do not wear that stiff collar this summer; fashion decrees that you should wear a soft, roomy collar. It is a sensible style and one that every young man should take up. Call and look over the new lot. There will surely be something here that will please you. The old style balbriggan underwear for the young man is obsolete, in fact many men well along in years are beginning to realize that the new athletic styles of underwear give the comfort for which they have been longing for years. They are cool in the hottest weather and give comfort you would never believe possible without trying them. Call and talk it over.

AN APPEAL TO REASON

There are just two points to consider when the saloon question comes up at any election, one is the matter of morality and the other, finance. The first is soon disposed of, for there really is no argument. The liquor industry has not a leg to stand on from a moral standpoint, and the so-called "wets" never put up an argument in that direction. One may like his beer and another may take his occasional drink of spirits and no one can dispute his right to do so, provided, that in so doing he is not demoralizing society. The man who drinks moderately is not necessarily demoralized. The great army of "drys" in this country has no quarrel with the man who drinks, but rather with the methods by which those drinks have been dispensed. The dries argue that with the American saloon doing business the chances for the moderate drinker to remain in that class are about one to a hundred, and they hit it about right. Drawing this conclusion, they are after the saloon and it looks as tho they were going to get it, but

How about the other point? The financial question is one on which the wets spend all their energies and one that the dries usually cast aside as having little to do with the saloon problem. It is a fact that money in no way should stand in the way of eradicating an evil. When a man clears a piece of timber land to make it more valuable he is not satisfied with merely chopping down the trees and hauling away the trunks. He has done the major part of the work, to be sure, but the land is still worthless unless he goes back and cleans up the underbrush and branches.

The dries have cut the saloons out of Genoa, but they have won only half the battle. They must now go back and assist in picking up the debris which accumulated since the election of two years ago and this year Genoa, like many other cities placed in the dry column, is in financial straits. There is only one business-like way in which to get out of the hole and that is thru a BOND ISSUE.

The dries should work for this issue just as diligently as they did on the direct question of saloons or no saloons. Here is a moral issue in another sense. Genoa is in debt and those debts must be paid. Some of the wets are now out working against this bond issue, in most cases against their own better business judgment, just so that they may have the pleasure of seeing the city of Genoa and the "drys" embarrassed. If one cast his vote as a dry for the betterment of the city's conditions, he will vote for the bond issue for the same reason. As stated in The Republican-Journal in a recent issue, these debts must be paid, either by issuance of bonds or thru a judgment. If the latter course must be taken by the creditors, the entire debt, with accrued interest and costs, must be paid in one year instead of being spread over a period of four years. A bunch of taxes like that coming onto the people of Genoa next year will not be an incentive for a dry majority the year following.

It is time to wake up and work for the best interests of Genoa from every standpoint.

The festive fly is now looking for a suitable breeding place. Are you providing that place Mr. Householder? If you are, you will be a better citizen in this case by going slow on that kind of hospitality. Clean up the alley and manure piles, apply sulphate of iron in vaults and cess pools and "swat" unmercifully. See that there are no stagnant pools of water or partly filled tin cans about the place. These make ideal breeding places for mosquitos.

There is not a shadow of a doubt regarding the attitude of the majority of the people of the United States on the matter of preparedness. How many great "preparedness parades" will be necessary to cause the leaders in congress to wake up?

One Week's Treatment Free
Dr. Seawell will be in Genoa Saturday, June 10 and will give one week's treatment free. For full information see ad in next week's issue. There are no strings attached for the free treatment.

For Circuit Clerk
I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for Circuit Clerk and Recorder of DeKalb County, and will appreciate the support of the voters at the Primary September 13.

NEW ADVERTISING RATES

As a result of the contest recently closed by The Republican-Journal the subscription list was increased fifty per cent, thus giving the advertiser just fifty per cent more for his money than before the contest opened. Every advertiser should bear in mind that every week he is talking practically to every family in Genoa and Kingston townships and a large majority of those in Riley. This paper also circulates liberally in the neighboring portions of Sycamore, Burlington, Hampshire, Franklin and Spring townships. The publisher paid a big price to gain this circulation and of course expects something in return.

Beginning with this issue new advertising rates will be in force, as follows:

No display adv. less than 50 cents
Regular local advertising, 10 cents per inch.

Occasional local and foreign advertising, 15 cents per inch.

Readers, 10 cents per line. Special rates, however, will be made when readers are used regularly by an advertiser.

Legal notices, 5 cents per breviline. Administrator's and Executor's notice, $1.00 per issue.

The rates for want ads. will remain as they have been.

It will be noted that there is a big jump from the rate charged the regular advertiser to that charged the one who uses the columns only occasionally. This is due to the fact that to insert the adv. of the occasional advertiser necessitates an entire change in the make-up of the paper, requiring additional time and often an extra page or supplement. Many times additional space is sold for one week at a dead loss.

The publisher also gives the local advertiser the assurance that there will be no foreign advertising which in any way conflicts with his line of business, provided that at all times there is enough space used by local merchants to warrant taking such action.

During the past year The Republican-Journal has been purely a local paper, containing the advertisements of no other retail merchants than of those located in Genoa and Kingston.

LAST OF THE MAYOS

Sister of the Late Mrs. T. E. Bagley
Dead at Sycamore

Tribune:—Catherine A. Mayo, the last member of the immediate family of the late Judge Edwin L. Mayo family, died Thursday evening of tuberculosis from which she had been a sufferer for a considerable period.

Miss Mayo was born in 1860 in the old brick homestead where the Sycamore Congregational church stands today. She was the youngest of a family of 10 children, 6 of whom died in infancy. She was the daughter of Edward L. and Emily K. Holden-Mayo who came to Sycamore in 1841 and who occupied the very highest positions in social and church circles of this county. In legal and political circles, Judge Mayo was so prominent that Abraham Lincoln quoted his utterances in the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates.

Miss Kate is the last to go, Dr. E. L. Mayo, a brother of DeKalb, died about ten years ago. Mrs. T. E. Bagley of Genoa died four years ago and Mrs. Maj. J. W. Burst of Sycamore, died about two years ago.

Genoa Chautauqua—July 16-21.

James Albert Holroyd

James Albert Holroyd, son of James and Adelia Holroyd, was born October 20, 1866, in Kingston township and passed away May 24, 1916, at his home in Genoa. He lived all his life in this vicinity, with the exception of eleven years spent in Minnesota. He was united in marriage to Miss Belle Thurlby September 4, 1885.

Besides his widow he leaves one daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Kiefer, and two grandchildren of Chicago and two sisters, Mrs. Maggie Drake and Mrs. Grace Westover, both of Genoa.

Funeral services were held in the home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Wm. Tuttle of Pearl City officiating.

The wife of the deceased was one of a family of sixteen children, thirteen of whom, including herself, were present at the funeral. Two are dead and one brother was not able to attend on account of illness. The six brothers acted as pall bearers.

The body was taken to DeKalb and placed in the mausoleum to await the construction of the mausoleum in this city.

Card of Thanks
The family of the deceased desire to express their sincere appreciation for the kindness shown by friends during the illness and after death of husband, father and brother.

WOODMAN PICNIC

Old Time Doings in Northern Illinois to be Revived

The first step looking toward the revival of the old Northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin Woodman picnic was taken at a meeting of Rockford Camp, No. 51, last week. A committee was named to ascertain the sentiment of other camps in this section for such an outing and if the sentiment is lacking a picnic for the Winnebago county camps will be arranged. Fifteen or twenty years ago the Modern Woodmen picnics were among the biggest features of the year in this section. The picnic idea gradually died out and for many years the Woodmen of this section have not given the matter any particular thought. Now that the rate squabbles are over and the order is on the high road to prosperity again the picnic could be revived and made the old-time success.

ORDINANCE CHAPTER NO. 93

An ordinance providing for the issuance of bonds of the City of Genoa, for the amount of Forty-five Hundred Dollars, for the purpose of procuring funds for paying and funding the floating indebtedness of said city, represented by outstanding and unpaid city warrants, issued prior to May 1, 1916, and providing for the levy and collection of a direct annual tax to pay the interest on the principal of said bonds and fixing other details of the issue.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Genoa, DeKalb County, Illinois:

Section 1. That, for the purpose of providing the necessary funds here-with to pay and fund the floating indebtedness of the City of Genoa, represented by outstanding and unpaid city warrants issued prior to May 1, 1916, there shall be borrowed on the credit of the City of Genoa the sum of Forty-five Hundred Dollars ($4500.00), and to evidence such loan, there shall be and there is hereby ordered and directed to be issued, negotiable coupon bonds of said City of Genoa for said sum of $4500.00. Said bonds shall be designated "Funding Bonds" shall be four in number, numbered from one to four inclusive. Bond number 1 shall be for the sum of $1500.00 and bonds number 2, 3, and 4 shall be of $1000.00 each. Said bonds shall bear date of July 1, 1916, and shall become due and payable as follows:

- Bond No. 1 on July 1, 1917.
- Bond No. 2 on July 1, 1918.
- Bond No. 3 on July 1, 1919.
- Bond No. 4 on July 1, 1920.

Said bonds shall draw interest from the date thereof until paid at the rate of five (5) per cent per annum, payable annually on the first day of July in each year, which interest installments shall be evidenced by proper coupons attached to each bond, and both principal and interest shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the office of the City Treasurer of the City of Genoa, DeKalb County, Illinois.

Section 2. That each of said bonds and each of the interest coupons to be attached thereto shall be in substantially the following form, respectively, to-wit:

Know All Men By These Presents; That the City of Genoa, in the County of DeKalb and State of Illinois, acknowledges itself to owe and for value received hereby promises to pay to bearer the sum of $ _____ Dollars in lawful money of the United States of America on the first day of July A. D. 19____, together with the interest on said sum from the date hereof until paid, at the rate of five per cent (5 per cent) per annum, payable annually on the first day of July of each year, as evidenced by and on the presentation and surrender of the interest coupons hereto attached as they become severally due; both principal and interest payable at the office of the City Treasurer of the City of Genoa, County of DeKalb and State of Illinois. And for the prompt payment of this bond, both principal and interest as the same become due the full faith, credit and resources of said city are hereby irrevocably pledged. This bond is one of a series, issued under the authority of the laws of the State of Illinois and in pursuance of an Ordinance duly passed and adopted by the City Council of said City on the 12th day of May, A. D. 1916, for the purpose of procuring funds for paying and funding the floating indebtedness of said City, represented by outstanding and unpaid city warrants issued prior to May 1, 1916.

It is hereby certified and recited that the Ordinance authorizing and directing the issuance of the bonds, of which this bond is one of the series, has been submitted to the voters of the City of Genoa at a special election called for the purpose and approved by the majority of such voters voting upon the question, and that all things, acts and conditions required by the laws and constitution of the State of Illinois to happen and be done and performed, precedent to and in the issuance of this bond, have happened and been properly done and performed in the regular and due form as required by law, and that the total indebtedness of said City, including this bond, does not exceed any constitutional or statutory limitations; and that provision has been made for the collection of the direct annual tax, in addition to all other taxes, on all the taxable property in the City of Genoa, sufficient in amount to pay the interest hereon, as the same falls due, and to discharge the principal hereof at maturity.

In testimony whereof, the City of Genoa, by its City Council, has caused its corporate seal to be hereto affixed, and this bond and each of interest coupons hereto attached, to be signed by its Mayor and attested by its Clerk, this First day of July, A. D. 1916.

Section 3. That each of said Bonds shall be impressed with the Corporate Seal of said City and each of said bonds and interest coupons shall be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk of said City, and said officers are hereby authorized and directed to so execute said bonds and interest coupons for and on behalf of said City of Genoa.

Section 4. For the purpose of paying the interest which shall accrue on said bonds and to pay the principal of said bonds at maturity, there shall be and there is hereby levied on all property subject to taxation within the City of Genoa and the same is assessed and equalized for State and County purposes. In addition to all other taxes, the following direct tax, to-wit: For the year 1916 a tax sufficient to produce the sum of $1725.00 being $225.00 for interest and $1500.00 for principal.

For the year 1917 a tax sufficient to produce $1150.00, being $150.00 for interest and $1000.00 for principal.

For the year 1918 a tax sufficient to produce $1100.00, being $100.00 for interest and $1000.00 for principal.

For the year 1919 a tax sufficient to produce $1050.00, being $50.00 for interest and $1000.00 for principal.

And the City Clerk of the City of Genoa is hereby directed forthwith to file a certified copy of this ordinance with the County Clerk of DeKalb County, Illinois, to the end that the said County Clerk may, in each of said years from 1916 to 1919, both inclusive in accordance with the duties imposed on him by law ascertain the rate per cent required to produce the aggregate tax herein levied for each of said years respectively, and extend the same for collection upon the tax rolls, in connection with the taxes levied in such year by said city for general city purposes; and in each of said years from 1916 to 1919, both inclusive, the taxes hereinbefore levied shall be collected by the same officers at the same time and in the same manner as the taxes levied by the said City of Genoa for general purposes for such years are collected, and when collected shall be placed in a special fund and turned over to the City Treasurer of the City of Genoa and by him kept in a special fund and used solely for the purpose of paying the interest and principal of the bonds hereby authorized when, and as the same mature.

Section 5. Said bonds shall be sold by the Mayor and city council at not less than their par value, and when properly executed as aforesaid, said bonds shall be delivered by the Clerk of said City to the purchaser or purchasers of the same, and the proceeds derived therefrom shall be placed in a special fund by the City Treasurer and used solely by him for the purpose for which said bonds recite that they were issued.

Section 6. This ordinance shall be submitted to the voters of the City of Genoa at a special election hereby called and ordered to be held for that purpose on Tuesday, June 13, 1916, and the bonds authorized by this ordinance shall not be issued unless this ordinance is approved by a majority of said voters voting upon the question.

Section 7. All ordinances, or parts of ordinances in conflict with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby expressly repealed.

Section 8. This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication and when it has been approved by a majority of the voters on the question at the special election to be held as aforesaid.

Passed by the City Council this 12th day of May, A. D. 1916, and approved by the Mayor this 12th day of May, A. D. 1916, and deposited and filed in the office of the City Clerk of said City this 12th day of May, A. D. 1916.

MRS. SUSAN CHURCHILL

Resident of Genoa for Many Years
Passes Away in Minnesota

Mrs. Susan Churchill passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. L. Holroyd, at Monticello, Minn., May 26, 1916. The body was brought to Genoa Monday where funeral services and interment took place. Dean Jenks of Aurora College officiated.

Susan, daughter of John and Susan Riddle, was born in Knoxville, Tenn., March 15, 1827. Her parents were early settlers in Illinois, locating a half mile from the present site of Kirklund in 1837. The deceased is the last of six children born to Mr. and Mrs. Riddle. She was married to Samuel M. Stewart in 1850. Three children William, Jane and Samuel, were born to this union. Mr. Stewart died in 1856. Mrs. Stewart was married again in 1861 to Richard Churchill. To them three children were born John, Susan Holroyd and Frank. Of the six children three are now surviving as follows: Samuel Stewart, Mrs. Susan Holroyd and Frank Churchill. There are also fourteen grandchildren, and one great grand child.

Mrs. Churchill was a resident of Illinois for 75 years. During the past four years she has made her home with her daughter in Minnesota. Many years ago she joined the Advent Christian church and was a faithful member at the time of death.

The following from out of town were here to attend the funeral: Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Holroyd of Monticello, Minn.; Frank Churchill, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Griggs of Chicago; Dr. W. A. McDowell, Mr. and Mrs. F. Koch and Mr. and Mrs. S. Stewart of Rockford; Mrs. J. Koch of Fairdale; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stewart and Miss Susan Kirk of Kirklund; Mr. and Mrs. P. Churchill of Belvidere.

Prince Albert gives smokers such delight, because —its flavor is so different and so delightfully good;

—it can't bite your tongue;
—it can't parch your throat;
—you can smoke it as long and as hard as you like without any comeback but real tobacco happiness!

On the reverse side of every Prince Albert package you will read:
"PROCESS PATENTED JULY 30TH, 1907"

That means to you a lot of tobacco enjoyment. Prince Albert has always been sold without coupons or premiums. We prefer to give quality!

PRINCE ALBERT
the national joy smoke

YOU'LL find a cheery how-do-an-top no matter how much of a stranger you are in the neck of the woods you drop into. For Prince Albert is right there — at the first place you pass that sells tobacco! The tippy red bag sells for a nickel and the tidy red tin for a dime, then there's the hand-some pound and half-pound tin humidor and the pound crystal-glass humidor with sponge-moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such bang-up trim all the time!

in goodness and in pipe satisfaction is all we or its enthusiastic friends ever claimed for it!

It answers every smoke desire you or any other man ever had! It is so cool and fragrant and appealing to your smokeappetite that you will get chummy with it in a mighty short time!

Will you invest 5c or 10c to prove out our say-so on the national joy smoke?

A Mistake in the Policy of the Bethlehem Steel Company

To the People:

The Senate of the United States has passed a bill to spend $11,000,000 of the People's money to build a government armor plant. The measure is now before the House of Representatives.

It is said that manufacturers of armor have "gouged" the country in the past, and that a government plant is necessary to secure armor more cheaply.

The mistake of the Bethlehem Steel Company has been that it has kept quiet.

We have allowed irresponsible assertions to be made for so long without denial, that many people now believe them to be proven facts.

We shall make the mistake of silence no longer.

Henceforth we shall pursue a policy of publicity. Misinformation will not be permitted to go uncorrected.

It is and has been the policy of our Company to deal with the American Government fairly and squarely.

We shall henceforth place the details of our relations with the Government before the American People.

The United States has for twenty years obtained the highest grade of armor and has paid a lower price for it than has any other great naval power.

Figures officially compiled for the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs from the Naval Year Book show that under conditions prevailing just before the European war, the chief naval powers of the world were paying these prices for armor:

England, $503 per ton; France, $460; Germany, $490; Japan, $490; UNITED STATES, $426.

A government plant cannot make armor any cheaper than we can do it; and—

We are prepared to manufacture armor at any price which the Government itself shall name as fair. THAT BEING SO, SHOULD $11,000,000 OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY BE WASTED TO BUILD A GOVERNMENT PLANT?

Grim death thru the medium of the automobile took another life in the south part of the county Sunday. This time the victim was a young man about eighteen years old, Leville Wrigley by name and the son of Charles Wrigley, prominent merchant and postmaster of Lee. He lost his life when the automobile in which he was riding turned turtle and his head crushed by the fender of the car.

The terrible accident happened Sunday afternoon about five o'clock when the automobile, driven by Raymond Kittleson, was speeding south from Lee toward Shabbona. At a point about a mile and a half from the former the driver took his eyes off the road for an instant and in that instant the car was out from under his control and in another second the heavy machine had turned over spilling the occupants out and crushing Wrigley under it.—DeKalb Chronicle.

Illinois Mayor Caught
 Because the concreted brick roads of Vermillion county are excellent speedways, the commissioners have found it necessary to appoint special traffic police for the patrolling of the roadways. Half a dozen officers, with commissions from the state, are already on duty and as many more are to be appointed. During the first three days of the traffic squad's work, six persons were arrested for driving at a greater rate of speed than twenty-five miles per hour. J. Howard Nills, mayor of Ridgefarm, and who introduced a traffic ordinance in his home town, was the first man to be caught.

NO COMMUNITY SCHOOL
 People in U. P. Church District Will Wait for Unanimity

Somonauk Reveille.—The school election which was held Wednesday to decide the proposition of whether a new community school district was to be organized out of territory including the north part of Sandwich and Somonauk townships and the south part of Squaw Grove township and a portion of the towns of Victor and Clinton, went by default so far as those friendly to the new district were concerned.

A careful poll of the taxpayers and voters of the district was taken at a conference of the advocates of the new district a few days ago and it was estimated that the proposition would have carried by a majority of about five votes. It was determined, however, that in order to make the new school, as the name implies, a community affair, where all would take hold and make it a complete success, the sentiment in favor of the school should be nearly unanimous. As this condition did not seem to prevail, those who were friendly to the project concluded to remain away from the election and permit the proposition to be defeated.

The Allen

Having purchased one of these cars for my own use and having satisfied myself as well as some of the skeptical ones as to its merits and ability, I am in a position to accept orders for a limited number of these cars.

If you intend to pay around $800 for a car, you owe it to yourself to see the Allen before you buy a Motor Car.

I believe you will find after a fair investigation, that the Allen really does embody more good points than any other car at the price.

Send for the Allen Catalogue.

Miss Blanche R. Patterson very pleasantly entertained the Suffragette Club at a miscellaneous shower Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Elna Lord, who will be married in the near future to H. Whipple. The guests of honor was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

The Fairdale Union Band will give a series of concerts on a new band stand on the street at Fairdale this summer, the business men of that village having provided money to defray expenses. The next concert will be given on Thursday evening of next week. A dance is scheduled to follow the concert in the new Upstone hall.

The members of the Genoa Women's Club were delightfully entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Burroughs south of Genoa, by Mesdames Corson, Buck, Brown, Abraham, Austin and Burroughs, after which the following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Urania Ovitiz, President; Mrs. Alma Kohn, Vice-President; Mrs. Eva Stewart, Secretary, and Mrs. Carrie Cruikshank, Treasurer.

Misses Ruth Morgan, Cora Christian and Beth Scott were hostesses to a pre-nuptial party, last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Fannie King, given in honor of Miss Edna King and Miss Dora Kuehl, who will be brides of the near future. The home was beautifully decorated in crabapple blossoms and bridal wreath. The party was in the nature of a kitchen shower and the guests of honor received many useful culinary articles. The evening was spent in playing cards and a dainty lunch was served by the hostesses.

The little Grant runabout, owned by the ex-superintendent of water works, L. C. Duval, is in the Hoover hospital for repairs. Mr. Duval was returning from Sycamore Tuesday evening and a short distance from that city met a large touring car. The driver of the latter took all the road at a fast clip and sideswiped the Grant, tearing off the tool box and the left rear wheel. The driver of the car did not stop to ascertain whether any were injured, but just kept going. Luckily the Duval machine remained right side up and the occupants escaped with a few scratches.

Mrs. Martin Anderson arrived home Friday after having spent nearly eight weeks at the bedside of her son, Robert, who has been fighting for his life nearly three months at the St. Paul hospital, in charge of Dr. Edward Boeckmann who had other prominent physicians of the Twin Cities and Fargo examine the case. It consists of an abscess in the muscles of the pelvis, puss flowing into the bladder and later bursting into the rectum. At present he is being attended by his wife and a trained nurse. Since Mrs. Anderson's return she has learned that Robert's condition has taken a change for the better and the chances for his recovery are much better.

The Fortnightly Club went by autos to the beautiful country home of Mrs. J. R. Furr Saturday afternoon, May 27. This was the last meeting of the season. First the election of officers for the ensuing year was held. Mrs. Hemenway was chosen president; Mrs. T. J. Hoover, vice-president, Mrs. O. M. Barcus, secretary and Mrs. R. H. Brown, treasurer. The lesson was on the subject of "Household Science." Mrs. Elmer Harvey gave a synopsis of the work as taught her in Evanston, and Mrs. Rutherford Patterson had the subject, "Everyday Practice in the Home." The young mothers handled their subjects ably and gave splendid advice. As a conclusion to the afternoon, Mrs. Furr and Miss Minnie Johnson served a five o'clock luncheon and at the same time entertained with an Artist's Recital on the Victrola. This was one of the most enjoyable afternoons of the club year, and each member said to herself, "We hope there will be many happy returns of this day."

Yet another glorious day was enjoyed by the Catholics and others of Genoa, on Sunday last. Favored with most pleasant weather they witnessed the blessing of their church bell, by the Rev. Fr. Flannagan of Rockford, specially delegated by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Muldoon, who afterward spoke to the parishioners. He eloquently and in the most instructive manner told them of the Catholic meaning of church bells. During his learned discourse he explained the meaning of church bells, emphasizing the fact that the tone of the bell, symbolizing the voice of Christ, includes His message of love and charity to all men and therefore the sound of the bell should be for us a reminder of first love and secondly, love one another. He concluded by exhorting the parishioners to give their support to their energetic pastor, Fr. T. O'Brien, who has succeeded in establishing the Catholic faith and erecting churches in Genoa, Kirkland and Davis Junction, where the voice of the Catholic teaching had previously rarely been heard. During the service the church choir, under the direction of Mrs. B. F. Kepner, rendered very appropriate music, supplemented by Rev. Fr. Reedy of Rockford, who pleasingly sang, "O Salutaris" and others. During the afternoon a most sumptuous luncheon was served by the ladies of the parish, and everyone who partook of their hospitality have testified to their ability to entertain.

VODKA BEFORE FIRING SQUAD

Bullets of Russian Soldiers Shattered the Kegs Before Thirsty Villagers' Eyes.

The Kentucky mountains have no monopoly on moonshine whisky. From Transcaucasia, Russia, comes the report of difficulties encountered between the mountaineers and the Russian officials engaged in the prevention of the manufacture of illicit spirits.

A striking example of the manner in which these officials impressed upon the semibarbaric mountaineers the power of authority is seen in their disposition of a large quantity of moonshine vodka seized in the district of Enzel.

A platform was erected in the middle of the village, and upon it were placed in rows the confiscated kegs. The villagers were commanded to assemble and bidden to stand at one side of the square.

Troops were lined up and a firing squad chosen. At the word of command a volley and then a second volley was directed against the kegs. The bullets splintered the staves and the liquor ran out all over the ground.

There has been no illicit distillation in that region since.—Boston Globe.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription of this—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

Ready-Witted George.

"Poor, dear woman, she has probably been working hard all day. I must not disturb her," murmured Jones, as he crept upstairs at 3 a. m., on all fours. He was just going into the bedroom when one of those infernal boards gave a squeak. Mrs. Jones turned over.

"George!" she whispered. Immediately George dived under the bed. "George!" repeated Mrs. Jones. No reply.

"George!" continued Mrs. Jones, in sterner tones, "you may as well come out, for I know you are there." There was now no help for it. George crept out, rubbing his eyes. "Bless my heart, Maria," he said, "I was dreaming I was out motoring!"

Ideal "Cottage for Two."

The proverbial "cottage built for two" is a place of much economy of space and much expense of temper, time and toll. The architect whose field lies among country mansions laughs at the "toy house" idea; and the smugly satisfied city dweller, from his ill-lighted and excessively cramped apartment, finds a theme for many jokes in "the cottage built for two." But every day in every little hamlet and big town sane young people are demonstrating the truth that the little house well planned, with abundance of sunlight and fresh air, and with absolutely practical arrangement of rooms and full equipment of modern conveniences, is not only a possibility but also a most satisfactorily proved fact.—Raymond Comstock in Countryside Magazine.

Uncultured Confidence.

"Do you enjoy grand opera?" "Very much," replied Mr. Cumrox. "If I had it to do over, I'd be a grand opera singer myself." "But you can't sing." "That's why I'd choose grand opera. I can't carry a tune very well; but I can holler like everything."

You can please the other fellow best by lending a hand instead of giving advice.

DENIES THAT GENERAL GRANT WAS UNFEELING

One Who knew the "Silent Man" Well Tells of Instances That Prove Rumor's Falsity.

GRANT did not select the Wilderness as the scene of his first engagement; he was compelled to take it, writes Samuel H. Beckwith, chief cipher operator to General Grant, 1862-65. But he was not caught unawares, as some unfriendly writers have argued. We will know that the "Johnnies" were somewhere before us, ready to oppose brisk defense to our forward movement, and every possible precaution was taken to protect our troops against surprise.

When the fight started we were prepared for them, so far as an army could be prepared for the struggle upon such a field.

During the first day's engagement General Grant was not idle. He wanted to learn first-hand what was going on about him. A personal inspection, therefore, was necessary, and Cincinnati, that magnificent war horse, was drafted into service. There have been many horses that have gained conspicuous places in equine history, but this noble animal deserves place among the best. He was a chestnut gelding of rare mettle, and when in action upon a smoke-covered field he certainly was an object of admiration.

I was the general's only companion on that ride, and for one excellent reason, among others, my mount could keep pace with his. There were a few moments during the ride in which I was reasonably sure that our time had come. As we emerged into a small clearing a line of Federal troops groping their way along clashed, in our immediate front, with a detachment of Confederates who were pushing through the tangle of wood. A fusillade of bullets was the result, and several sang an ominous song about our heads. We reined up, and then, as our men drove the enemy back to cover, he continued on his way with this comment:

"When our time comes, Beckwith, we'll go, and not before. There's no use trying to avoid it."

And avoid it he did not.

UNDISMAYED BY TIDINGS.

As was inevitable under such conditions as prevailed in the Wilderness, reports of the vicissitudes of the engagement were numerous and conflicting. To headquarters, where Grant awaited the outcome of the second day's fight, came courier after courier bringing news of the progress of the contest from various portions of the field.

Some of these were alarmingly incorrect. But the evil tidings didn't disturb the silent Grant. Several times during the night I visited his tent to receive or deliver messages, and found him apparently unmoved by the direful rumors.

He had done all that any commander could do to insure victory; the result was with Providence. Even with some of these disquieting tales unrefuted, he retired to his cot to snatch a much-needed rest, the least ruffled of the group about headquarters.

The morning of the 7th broke upon a battlefield strewn with the wreckage of terrible fighting, but the two formidable opponents had finished writing into history the Battle of the Wilderness. The forces of Lee had retired behind their intrenchments; the Federal troops were unwilling to attack them so protected.

Orders were issued late in the afternoon for a night march of the entire army toward Spotsylvania. Early in the evening the lieutenant-general and Meade with their staffs started out upon the way. When we reached Hancock's corps, the brave fellows were lying behind their works most of them asleep, and we picked our steps carefully along in the darkness to safeguard the recumbent soldiers.

Grant sought a brief interview with General Hancock and the twain crawled into an ambulance wagon and held converse for some time. I had been riding close behind my superior and now I dismounted and threw my bridle rein across the limb of a fallen tree nearby while I flung myself down upon a pile of brush to await the reappearance of the general. I was pretty well fagged out and a few moments rest was most welcome.

It wasn't long before the boys sensed the presence of Grant, and although orders had been given to refrain from cheering, owing to the proximity of the enemy, when they learned that he was facing southward, they sprang to their feet and the rocks and woods sent back the echo of their boisterous shouts.

Some rather harsh criticism has been directed at General Grant for the tremendous sacrifice of life in the Wilderness campaign, and his alleged callousness at the wholesale slaughter of his men.

STOICISM OF GREAT CAPTAIN.

Let me, who was his constant companion during three years of the Civil war, bear testimony to his possession of a genuine humanity and manly sympathy. His was a most peculiar nature. Where others would fret and grieve, manifesting their anxiety in words and actions, he preserved a stern silence. But I am certain he felt as keenly and deeply the barb of misfortune and sorrow as did those about him.

During the bloody days of relentless attack and stubborn defense in the spring of 1864 I noticed an almost indefinable sadness in Grant, a sort of moody reticence, that convinced me, who understood the man, that he was suffering at the destruction of so many gallant troops.

It was after the battle of Cold Harbor that I went to the general's tent to deliver a ciphergram, and found him sitting alone, smoking a cigar and evidently buried in thought. His face bore a care-worn expression that indicated sleepless nights and wearisome days. For a moment he was oblivious of my presence; then he nodded to me and I entered, handing him the message. After reading it he turned to me with a sigh.

"Beckwith," he said, "the hardest part of this general business is the responsibility for the loss of one's men. I can see no other way out of it, however; we've got to keep at them. But it is hard, very hard, to see all these brave fellows killed and wounded. It means aching hearts back home." And he lapsed again into ruminating silence.

There were two occasions when I saw General Grant actually shed tears. The one was in the forepart of July of 1864, while we were in headquarters at City Point in the operations before Petersburg. A telegram came in from Gen. W. T. Sherman, who was grappling with Hood at Atlanta, Ga., conveying the painful intelligence of the death of McPherson, the beloved commander of the Army of the Tennessee.

This rugged and gallant leader, by his intrepid and cavalier bravery, had won for himself the enthusiastic support of his men and the unreserved confidence and admiration of Grant and his generals. It was a telling blow, just as this time, to the hopes and aspirations of the North.

I took the dispatch to the general, and he read it silently. He was hard hit, I could readily see that. His mouth twitched and his eyes closed as if he were shutting out the baleful words. Then the tears came and one followed the other down his bronzed cheeks as he sat there without a word of comment. It was most eloquent silence.

The other occasion was in October of the same year, when the news of the death of Gen. T. E. C. Ransom reached us. Ransom and Grant had been comrades in arms in the West in the early days of the war, and a strong friendship had grown up between them. The loss of the young officer struck home with peculiar force and none felt that loss more deeply than General Grant.

Gardens of the Dead

Out to the gardens of the dead, With low-bowed heads and solemn tread, The few remaining veterans go, The screech of life and roll of drum Bring back again the feet grown numb, The measured step and slow.

Pierced by the rays of springtime's sun, Like drops of blood the dew-drops run From new-born leaves and flowers, And tear-drops mingle with the dew, As memory brings some face to view, Like rain-drops after showers.

Upon each sleeping comrade's tomb, They placed the lily's fragrant bloom, And bleeding-hearts, bright red— And near each head-stone white and fair, They hung Old Glory to the air, In honor of their dead.

Long may we keep their memory dear, Let every heart their deeds revere; For us they fought and died, And as those living pass away, Let sons and grandsons keep this day, And deck their graves with pride.

MEMORIAL DAY

IT IS quite interesting to compare the photographs of the young volunteers who went out in the sixties with those taken today. One can scarcely recognize in those ill-fitting uniforms the men who today will commemorate the deeds of valor of the comrades gone before. They were as royal a set of young fellows as ever took up musket or handled a sword in defense of civil liberty. They still wear the blue, some of them, and they look their best on Decoration day. There is a badge on each breast. The hand has grown feeble, the hair is turned gray, and with irregular footsteps they follow the band and the children of the schools, all bearing bouquets to the graves of their fallen comrades.

It is not the procession that marched down to the battle front away back yonder in the long ago that we behold today. It is but a remnant of that mighty host; but for a half century they have been keeping the folds of the old flag bright and the graves of their unforgettably heroes green, and reminding a new generation of the horrors of war, of the beauty of patriotism and the fidelity of the old guard for each other. It is the epic of the unforgettably years. It is the incarnation of memories that have grown holier as the years have sped away. They have dropped out, one by one, from the blue files of the living with the badge upon their breasts and liberty's emblem around them. Beneath the green mounds, and the fragrance of immortelles they await the roll call on the eternal morning.

If in the bright afterlife, some chronicler, with more than mortal prescience, were to write the achievements of the men who today occupy the place of honor in our ceremonies, there would be found written something like this: The greatest service the men of '61-'65 rendered to their country was not merely the preservation of an undivided flag, but in holding before our nation from year to year in this beautiful service the glorious ideals of civil liberty, and the awful cost at which these national virtues are maintained. It was one thing to preserve the Union, it has been another thing to keep before the oncoming generations the principles which have been embedded in shot and shell. This has been done by the Grand Army of the Republic in a way to call forth the admiration of humanity. If there is one thing more than another that has burned the love of freedom into the soul of our young manhood and womanhood, it has been the May-day tramp, tramp of the veterans, bearing their memorial wreaths to the graves of their patriots dead. It is a sight calculated to cause even the most stolid to admire the principles which have been embalmed in sacrificial blood.

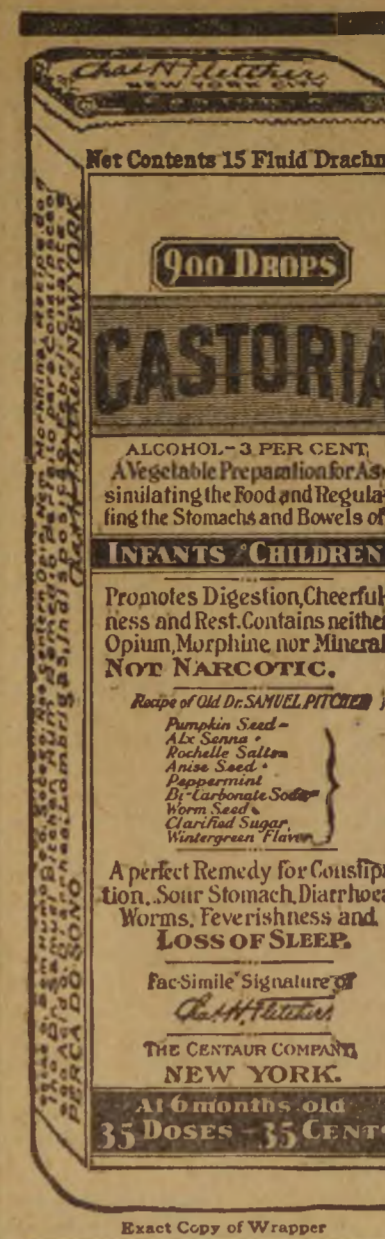

The tears of the blue and the gray have healed the wounds of fratricidal strife. There are monuments to each that are sacred and holy. Today the same stars look down upon each, the same flag is beloved by all, a united country is our mutual heritage. There is no hatred in the veteran's hand-grip nor enmity in his salutation. God has made his blossoms to bloom over unmarked graves and has filled the old trenches with lilies of the valley. Wild vines clamber over ruined ramparts and the cannon of war, beaten by the storms of half a hundred years, stand as mute mementoes in parks and city squares, memorials of the valiant years, which, if it please God, will never come again.

Debt Must Never Be Forgotten. The American people have been patriotic beyond the example of other nations in providing for those who left home and all its comforts, business and all its prospects, life and all its ambitions, to fight for the flag, for the Constitution and the Union. This is as it should be, and until the last man who "fought that good fight" is laid away in mother earth forever, we hope the American people will never forget for a moment the debt they owe to the valor and endurance of those who fought the nation's battles in those days now growing dim even in memory. Their graves should be kept green with the tears of a grateful people, and as each Memorial day comes around in the year, flowers, the sweetest and brightest, should be strewn profusely over the graves where the patriot dead lie sleeping "the sleep that knows no waking" on earth and in time.

Ever the Same. The thin blue line of 1861 is fading away in numbers only. It's still the same old blue.

Tommy had a cold in his head, which confined him to the house, so he was allowed to invite his young friend, Jack, to tea.

Afterward the two small boys commenced playing hide-and-seek, and Tommy rushed into the dining room and asked his father to conceal him. This the father did, behind a big arm-chair.

Presently in came Jack, and instead of beginning his search, calmly threw himself down on the rug before the fire.

"Come, Jack," said Tommy's father, "aren't you going to look?" "No fear," was the small boy's calm retort. "I'm waiting till he sniffs!"

Not Exactly Comforting Scripture. At the anniversary meeting of the Bible Reading association Rev. W. Y. Fullerton of the Baptist Missionary society told a story to illustrate the fact that some people needed guidance in the selection of their Bible reading.

According to the Westminster Gazette the story was a reminiscence of Mr. Fullerton's mission days, when a man came to one of his meetings and told of his efforts to comfort his wife as she lay upon the sickbed. "I read to her every night," he said. "What did you read to her?" asked the missionary.

"Well," said the man, "I began at the first chapter of the Book of Proverbs, and when I had finished the book she died!"

The Wheat Yield Tells the Story of Western Canada's Rapid Progress. The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For, while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions. The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York. Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country; while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common. Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc. There is no war tax on land and no conscription. JULIUS POTTS DEAD

Passed Away at His Home North of Genoa on the 26th
Julius Potts was born in Germany, May 30, 1842, and passed away at his home near Genoa May 26, 1916, at the age of 73 years, 11 months and 26 days.
He came to America and located in Elgin in 1866 and was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Elvin in 1847. To them four children were born, Jennie, Josephine, Georgia and Dora, all of whom have passed away except the latter who is the wife of E. Hall, residing south of Genoa. Besides the widow and this daughter he leaves eight grand children and a number of nephews and nieces.
Mr. Potts was a good father, loving husband and a kind and true neighbor. He was a member of the Modern Woodmen.
Funeral services were held from the home Monday afternoon, Rev. R. E. Pierce officiating. Interment took place in Genoa cemetery.
Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

You Want Quality And Comfort

It is somewhat of a gamble these days buying summer dress goods of any nature that contain colors. The customer must depend almost entirely upon the word of the dealer. Right here is where the Douglass quality comes to the rescue. If you buy a piece of cloth here that is guaranteed to be fast color, you may be assured that it is fast color. During the many years we have been engaged in business in Genoa people have found that quality is always the first consideration here and the price is right. If you want anything now in summer goods, do not hesitate about asking for our guarantee.

ORDERS TAKEN FOR JUNE DELIVERY OF Hard Coal

NOW

While this talk of national preparedness is going on, you should not forget to make preparations for the winter. We are now taking orders for June delivery of hard coal and urge the people to take advantage at once of the present prevailing prices. The future for the anthracite coal trade is not bright, in fact conditions at the coal fields and in transportation matters are serious and growing more so every day. No one can tell what the future may bring in advanced prices. If the present controversy between railroad employes and the companies results in a strike, it will result in the greatest tie-up of traffic in the history of the United States. Our advice to you is to place your order right now and be on the safe side. There is not a doubt about the price of coal advancing, the only question is how great the advance will be.

Jackson
No hill too steep
No sand too deep

45 H. P. $1195 Weight 2565 Lbs.

Jackson Light "Eight" has One Horsepower for Every 57 lbs.

Here is a Jackson extraordinary. It is an "Eight." It is light in weight (weighs but 2565 pounds complete); it is light in price, and it is built on four full elliptic springs.

That brief paragraph, analyzed, reveals why Model "348" Jackson is making such a sensation. It explains why hundreds of buyers in every center have waited for this car, why dealers have so eagerly looked for it.

There is magic in Eight-Cylinders; practical magic that reveals itself in a new type of flexibility; a new conception of power—power continuous, even, flowing in an uninterrupted stream with entire absence of vibration.
This sort of magic wins you at once. Makes you unwilling to temporize with any other type of motor. Makes you eager to run a Jackson "Eight."
Think of having one full horse power (eight-cylinder power) for every fifty-seven pounds of car weight! Do you wonder that Jackson "348" takes hills with an ease that makes it seem as if you fairly floated up; that it is utterly indifferent to sand—that it eats up space like a speed car?
And the many economies of light weight—the saving of tires, the saving in gas, the saving of lubricant, are all prominent in this extraordinary car.

These advantages are intensified to an almost incredible degree by the use of four full elliptic springs.
Full elliptic springs absorb the shocks before they get to the car. They add amazingly to the tire life, to car life. They make it possible to take country roads at a speed above the ordinary in comfort.
You can't believe what a difference four full elliptic springs do make until you've ridden in a Jackson.
No matter what you've been thinking on the car question you owe it to yourself to see the Jackson "Eight" before making a decision.
Come and see this car. Note its exceedingly attractive body lines, its very complete equipment, its many valuable features.
