BIG BATTLE NEAR

CHINESE REBELS, 65,000 STRONG, ARE ADVANCING ON 20,000 MANCHU TROOPS.

CAPITAL OF HONAN FALLS

Kai-Fung is Already in Hands of Revolutionists and Nanking and Other Cities Are Surrounded—German Marines Fight Mobs.

Peking, Oct. 18.—Kai Fung, the capital of Honan province, has fallen before the revolutionists and Nanking is surrounded.

The greatest battle of the war is imminent as 65,000 revolutionary troops are marching against 20,000 Manchu soldiers sent from here to the relief of Kai Fung and other cities in Honan province.

The Imperial government has begun aggressive preparations for the recapture of Hankow and Wu-Chang. The first train load of troops from the north has arrived and camped north of Hankow.

The Imperial naval force in the river was augmented by the arrival of one of the navy's modern gunboats, which carried Admiral Sah Chen Ping, who took command of the situation.

His first move was to assure the foreign consuls that the foreign concessions would not be endangered by any bombardment he might undertake.

The Red Cross society, organized by the revolutionary leaders, began removing the heaped up corpses from the streets of Wu-Chang. Well-to-do Chinese are subscribing liberally for the work.

Revolutionary determination to end the regime of official graft was brought sharply to attention by the execution of an officer appointed to collect funds for the rebel cause.

No Trains Leave City. No trains are leaving the Hankow terminal for the north and it is uncertain when service will be resumed.

The rebels are massacring Manchus, the local Manchus are adopting Chinese dress. One paper is publishing the revolutionaryist proclamations.

German Marines Fight Mob. Hankow, Oct. 18.—A German force of marines, reinforced by German local residents, has been landed at Hankow and engaged in a fight in the streets with a Chinese mob.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17.—Gov. Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, advances his opposition to the plan of a national reserve association proposed by former United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, the governor asserting that such an association will develop a money monopoly, which will have the public at its mercy.

Governor Folk proposes a national department of finance, to act as part of the treasury system and to have the power to issue currency and to control the volume of the country's money.

JOHN R. WALSH LEAVES CELL FOR CHICAGO HOME

Aged Financier Overjoyed at Parole as He Departs From Leavenworth Prison.

Leavenworth, Kan., Oct. 16.—An order from Washington paroling John R. Walsh, the former Chicago banker and railway president, was received at the Federal prison here. The prisoner at once began preparations for the start home.

Mr. Walsh up to the time of his parole had served one year eight months and twenty-six days of his five-year sentence.

The order of parole arrived from Washington. When told that he was to be released the aged prisoner happily showed his pleasure.

Supported on the arms of his son, Richard Walsh, and his son-in-law, Dr. L. Blake Baldwin, the former banker tottered feebly from his automobile into the house, where he remained behind closed doors.

Those who saw him for the first time since his conviction for bank wrecking were shocked at his apparent decline in health. His hair, less than two years ago only mottled gray, is now snow white, his walk is slow and painful and his face reflects a prison pallor.

Only a few hours after the home coming he was forced to take to his bed, and, according to Doctor Baldwin, is in a critical condition.

All attempts to secure an interview with him were futile.

DEMANDS 24-FOOT WATERWAY

Lakes-to-Gulf Convention Makes Immediate Action National Political Issue—State Canals Indorsed.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—With cheers for "14 feet through the valley," and "24 feet eventually," the sixth annual convention of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway association at the Auditorium closed its sessions here.

The resolutions committee reported unanimously for reaffirming the 1910 platform embracing an unequivocal stand for full depth, despite unfavorable government reports, and for immediate action.

To this was added a plan for forcing the deep waterway plank into platforms of the national parties in the 1912 presidential campaign, and for demanding support of the movement by every political candidate.

The resolutions indorsed the proposed Indiana waterway connecting Lakes Michigan and Erie and recommended a general survey, and also the Minnesota movement for connecting Lake Superior and the Mississippi.

HONOR CARDINAL GIBBONS

Ecclesiastical Celebration of His Golden Anniversary as Priest is Begun in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 16.—James Cardinal Gibbons, America's only Prince of the Church, commenced the ecclesiastical celebration of the 50th anniversary of his priesthood and the twenty-fifth anniversary of his elevation to the Cardinalate yesterday.

The ecclesiastical demonstration surpasses any previous gathering of the Catholic clergy ever held in America. Prelates from all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico are housed in the many Catholic buildings of the town, and Catholic hospitality has been taxed to such an extent that the priests have been forced to take quarters in the hotels.

In deference to the cardinal, today was proclaimed a legal holiday that the ceremonies might be properly observed.

Harvester Official Asked to Pay Sum of $25,000 as Balm to John Henning.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company, and prominent in the exposure of the alleged $100,000 Lorimer election fund, was sued for $25,000 for alienation of affections. The suit was filed in the circuit court by Attorney Donahoe and Hartnett for John Henning, and charges that Mr. Funk alienated the affections of Josephine Henning, Mr. Funk characterized it as "some more of that Lorimer business."

"I don't know any John Henning, or his wife," declared Mr. Funk. "If such a suit has been filed against me it is only some more of that Lorimer business I cannot discuss it."

SEVEN DIE, 24 HURT

FREIGHT CRASHES INTO MISSOURI PACIFIC PASSENGER TRAIN NEAR FORT CROOK.

TWENTY-FOUR ARE INJURED

Surgeons at Army Post Render First Aid to Victims—Gov. Gilchrist of Florida Assists in the Work of Rescue.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 16.—Seven passengers were killed and 24 were injured in a head-on collision on the Missouri Pacific railroad, near Fort Crook, Neb., when the St. Louis passenger, north-bound, collided with an extra freight south-bound.

The injured were rushed to the post hospital and the surgeons from the fort were the first on the scene to give attention to those hurt.

Cars Are Telescoped. The scene of the accident was within less than one mile of the post. The passenger was belated and was endeavoring to make up time. At this point the Missouri Pacific and Burlington are parallel and within 100 feet of each other. Each engineer thought the other train was on the Burlington track, a slight curve preventing a realization of the impending collision until the locomotives were within 100 yards of each other.

ATHLETICS WIN THIRD GAME

Philadelphia Americans Now Lead New York Nationals in Contest for World's Championship.

New York, Oct. 18.—Philadelphia Athletics won the third game in the world's series in the eleventh inning by a score of 3 to 1 by a rally in which the Mack men scored two runs on three hits off Mathewson and two bad errors by Merkle and Fletcher.

With the game a tie, 1 to 1, Eddie Collins came up in the eleventh and drove a single to left center. Baker, who had tied up the game in the ninth inning by driving a home run into the right field stand, beat out a hit to Herzog. Collins and Baker advanced when Herzog's throw eluded Merkle.

Singles by Meyers and Mathewson in the second inning and a force out by Devore gave the Giants an early lead, which they held until the last half of the ninth inning.

TAFT TRAP FOILED

THIRTY-SIX STICKS OF DYNAMITE AND A FUSE ARE PLACED UNDER BRIDGE.

TRAIN SAVED BY WATCHMAN

He Exchanges Shots With Two Men Discovered on Southern Pacific Railroad Structure Over Which President's Special Was to Pass.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17.—A report received here by officials of the Southern Pacific Railway company from C. E. Brown, section foreman for the road at Naples, Cal., gave details of the discovery of 36 sticks of dynamite under the Caltran viaduct, 20 miles north of Santa Barbara, several hours before President Taft's special train passed over the bridge, en route to Los Angeles. The dynamite was found after the watchman had engaged in a revolver battle with two men, who escaped.

The dynamite was discovered at two o'clock in the morning. The president's train passed over the bridge at 5:51. The night watchman saw the men on the bridge shortly before two o'clock. They were at the opposite end of the 1,000-foot span and ran when ordered to halt.

Men Fire on Watchman. The watchman hurried across the bridge, firing several shots, which were returned.

After the pair had escaped in the darkness the watchman returned to the bridge and began an investigation. Near the center of the span, lodged on one of the supports of the viaduct, he found the 36 sticks of dynamite with a ten-foot fuse attached to one of the sticks.

The president's train followed the regular train from San Francisco, ten minutes behind, and if any trouble had been encountered there would have been plenty of time to flag the special. All of the railroads are handling the Taft train with the greatest care.

TAFT GIVEN HEARTY WELCOME

President Taft received a hearty welcome in Los Angeles and Pasadena. The streets were thronged and there were cheers all along the route. It was entirely a nonpartisan reception. Senator Works and Gov. Hiram Johnson of the insurgent wing of the Republican party accompanying Mr. Taft on all his travels.

The president's principal address, at the Auditorium, was on the subject of vetoes and the tariff board. Following an appeal for support for scientific revision of the various schedules, based upon reports of the tariff board, Mr. Taft called out a storm of cheers by announcing to the lemon growers that the tariff on their product would not be changed until the board had had time to investigate and report on the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad.

Backache Means Dying Kidneys

A Remarkable Treatment That Saves the Kidneys. How You May Cure Yourself Quickly and Thoroughly.

With the progress of science comes one remarkable treatment for kidney disease. It has been so thoroughly tested and its results have proven so revolutionary that a well-known firm in Michigan has undertaken its distribution into every part of the country.

Those who suffer from kidney trouble and the diseases resulting from it will be pleased to know that every package of this treatment is thoroughly guaranteed. This should assure at last a positive cure to every sufferer.

Every man and woman should know that backache is usually a well-defined symptom of advancing kidney disease which may end fatally unless treated in time; that rheumatism and bladder trouble are caused from nothing more or less than kidneys that do not filter the poison from the blood; that dropsy, Bright's disease, diabetes, and bladder stones are caused by bad kidneys.

Once they are made to work properly, these diseases should quickly disappear. This is done by the new treatment, Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills.

To Farm Out Copper Lands. A party of Houghton capitalists have under consideration the establishment at a point on the Copper Range railroad south of Houghton a 600-acre experimental farm. The lands have already been secured, but are at present heavily timbered.

Steps will be taken during the coming winter to cut the timber and early next spring the stumps will be removed and the land made ready for cultivation. It is hardly probable that crops will be planted before 1913, but the enterprise when established will prove one of the biggest from an agricultural standpoint in the copper country.—Michigan Manufacturer.

The Hidden Purpose.
A young lieutenant from a New York regiment surveyed the Texas scenery gloomily and reflected upon his great distance from the lights of Broadway. The smoke from a smelter and the swirling sand from the low lying hills had spoiled the lieutenant's disposition. "Tell me," said an editor from El Paso, "Isn't there some hidden purpose behind this mobilization?" "There is," replied the lieutenant. "We are going to force Mexico to take back Texas."

An Anti-Sulicide Fence.
One of the strangest fences on record is that which the common council of Yonkers, N. Y., has just ordered built. It will be a fence to keep suicides away.
Several times in recent years dependent persons have shuffed off the mortal coil by leaping into the Fort Field reservoir, one of the reservoirs supplying Yonkers with water. Sometimes the bodies have been recovered quickly, but on a few occasions the corpses were in the water for a day or so. The loss of water in draining the reservoir is a big item and is especially to be guarded against since the city found it necessary to husband every drop of its supply. So the council has appropriated $4,000 to build a wire netting fence around the reservoir. When it is completed any one on suicide bent will find a barrier nine feet high between him and eternity.

Breathing Exercises.

Your Subscription

During the month of August and September many subscriptions to the Republican-Journal expire. It would be well to bear in mind that all subscribers outside the county are asked to pay in advance, while those in the county are allowed only one year's credit. This ruling is made necessary by the postal laws. Look at the label on the wrapper or on the paper today. If it reads Aug 11, it means that your subscription expires on the last day of August, 1911. If it reads Aug 10, it means that your year of credit has expired and that you owe the publisher $1.25. Every subscriber to the Republican-Journal outside the county is now paid in advance, and it is the desire of the publisher to eventually have all subscribers inside the county paid in advance as well. We believe that we have the best list in the county today as far as paid up subscribers are concerned, a fact that is due to the sense of justice on the part of our subscribers. Look at your label now and if it shows you to be in arrears come in and join the ranks of paid-in-advance subscribers. If outside of the county, and the time has expired, send your $1.25 today before the name is taken from the list.

The BRONZE BELL

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE
AUTHOR OF "THE BRASS BOWL," ETC.
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

SYNOPSIS.

David Amber, starting for a duck-shooting visit with his friend, Quain, comes upon a young lady, equestrian who has been dismounted by her horse becoming frightened at the sudden appearance in the road of a burly Hindu. He declares he is Behari Lal Chatterji, "the appointed mouthpiece of the Bell," addresses Amber as a man of high rank and pressing a mysterious little bronze box, "The Token," into his hand, disappears in the wood. The girl calls Amber by name. He in turn addresses her as Miss Sophie Farrell, daughter of Col. Farrell of the British diplomatic service in India and visiting the Quains. Several nights later the Quain home is burglarized and the bronze box stolen. Amber and Quain go hunting on an island and become lost and Amber is left alone on a boat, a mysterious boat, finally reaches a cabin and recognizes as its occupant an old friend named Rutton. He is a man of mysterious ways and summons Rutton to a meeting of a mysterious body. Rutton seizes a revolver and dashes after Amber, who has killed the Hindu, takes poison, and when dying asks Amber to go to India on a mysterious errand. Amber decides to leave at once for India. On the way he sends a letter to Mr. Labertouche, a scientific friend in Calcutta, by a quicker route. Upon arriving he finds a note awaiting him. It directs Amber to meet his friend at a certain place. The latter tells him he knows his mission is to get Miss Farrell out of the country. Amber attempts to dispose of the Token to a money-lender, is mistaken for Rutton and barely escapes being mobbed. A message from Labertouche causes him to start for Darjeeling, on the way he meets Miss Farrell, and at their journey's end asks her to become his wife. A Hindu conducts Amber to a secret place, and in the presence of a beautiful woman who mistakes him for Rutton.

"See, my king!" she cried, her voice vibrant, her eyes kindling as they met his. "Look down upon thy kingdom. North, south, east, west—look!" she commanded. "Wherever thine eyes may turn, and farther than they can see upon the clearest day, this land is all thine. . . . for the taking. Look and tell me thou hast strength to renounce it . . . and me, beloved!"

She opened her arms with infinite allure. "It is so little that is asked of thee—only to ascend thy father's throne and be honored of all Bharuta, only to wield the scepter that is thine by right, only to reign an undisputed king in two kingdoms—Khandawar and thy Naraini's heart!"

"I am very sorry," he returned. "It is quite impossible. Besides, it seems that you leave the sarkar altogether out of your calculations. It may not have occurred to you that the supreme government of India may have something to say about the contemplated change."

He saw her bite her lips with chagrin, and the look she flashed to his face was anything but kind and tender. "Arre!" she laughed derisively. "And of what account is this frail, tottering sarkar's will besides the Will of the Body? Of what avail its dicta against the rulings of the Bell? Thou knowest—"

"Pardon, I know nothing. I have told thee, Rane, that I am not Har Dyal Rutton."

She was mistress of a thousand artifices. Brought to a standstill on the one line of attack, she diverged to another without a quiver of an eyelash to betray her discomfiture.

"Yea, thou hast told me," she purred. "But I, Naraini, I know what I know. Thou dost deny thyself even as thou dost deny me, but . . . art thou willing to be put to the proof, my king?"

"If you've any means of proving my identity, I would thank you for making use of it, Rane."

"There is the test of the Token, Lalji."

"I am not aware of it."

"The test of the Token—the ring that was brought to thee, the signet of thy house. Surely thou hast it with thee?"

He thrust a hand within his shirt and brought forth the emerald. "Here it is," he told the woman, cheerfully. "Now this test?"

"Place it upon thy finger—so, even upon thy little finger, as was thy wont with it. Now lift up thine arm, so, and turn the stone to the west, toward Kathapur."

Without comprehension he yielded to this whim, holding up his right arm and turning the emerald to the quarter indicated by Naraini.

The hour had drawn close upon dawn. A cold air breathed down the valley and was chill to them in that lofty eyrie. The moon, dipping towards the rim of the world, was poised, a globe of dull silver, upon the ridge of a far, dark hill. As they watched it dropped out of sight and everything was suddenly very bleak and black.

And a curious thing happened. Naraini cried out sharply—"Aho!"—as if unable to contain her excitement. Somewhere in the palace behind them a great gong boomed like thunder.

A pause ensued, disturbed only by the fluttering of the woman's breath; for the space of thirty pulses beats nothing happened. Then Naraini's fingers closed like bands of steel about Amber's left wrist.

"Sobe!" she cried in a voice of awe, while the bracelets shivered and clashed upon her outstretched arm. "The eye, my king, the eye!"

Amber shut his teeth upon an exclamation of amazement. For just above the far, dark mountain ridge, uncar-paddle drove the boat out of the secret entrance, in an impassive silence. In the stern Amber watched the indefinite grey light of dawn wavering over the face of the waters and wondered.

The boat swung in gently to the marble steps of the bund. Amber rose and stepped ashore, very tired and very much inclined to believe he would presently wake up to a sane and normal world.

"Hazor," the voice of Dulla Dad hailed him. He turned. "Hazor, I was to say that at the third hour after sunset tonight this boat will be waiting. You are to call me by name, and I will put in for you, hazor."

"What's that? I don't understand."

"Oh, very well."

"And I was to say further, my lord, these words: 'You shall find but one way to Kathapur.'"

Amber shook his head, smiling. "If you don't mind getting yourself disliked on my account, Dulla Dad, you may take back to the author of that epigram this answer: 'You shall find but one way to Jehannum, and that right speedily.' Good morning, Dulla Dad."

"The peace of God abide always with the heaven-born!"

Amber entered the bungalow, to find the khansamah already awake and moving about. At the Virginian's request he shuffled off to prepare coffee—much coffee, very strong and black and hot, Amber stipulated. He needed the stimulant badly. He was sleepy and his head was in a whirl.

He sat lost in thought until the khansamah brought the decoction, then roused and drank it as it came from the pot, without sugar, gulping down huge bitter mouthfuls of the scalding black fluid. But the effect that he expected and desired was strangely long in making itself felt.

He marveled at his drowsiness, nodding and blinking over his empty cup. Out of doors the skies were hot and blue-white with forerunners of the sun, and the world of men was stirring and making preparations against the business of the day; but Amber, who had a work so serious and so important to his hand, sat on in dreamy lethargy, musing.

The faces of two women stood out vividly against the misty formless void before his eyes; the face of Naraini and that of Sophie Farrell. He looked from one to the other, stupidly contrasting them, trying to determine which was the lovelier, until their features blurred and ran together and the two became as one and the khansamah tiptoed cautiously

into the room and found the Virginian sleeping like a log, his head upon the table. His face was deeply colored with crimson, as if a fever burned him, and his breathing was loud and stertorous.

Pausing, the native beckoned to one who skulked without, and the latter entering, the two laid hold of the unconscious man and bore him to the charpoy. The second native slipped silver money into the khansamah's palm.

"He will sleep till evening," he said. "If any one asks for him, say that he has gone abroad, leaving no word. More than this you do not know. The sepoys have an order to prevent all from entrance."

Beneath the spreading banian, by the clatern of the goldfish, Naraini with smoldering eyes watched Amber disappear in the wilderness of shrubbery. He walked as a man with a set purpose, never glancing back. She laughed unceasingly but waited motionless where he had left her, until the echo of his boot-heel on the marble slabs had ceased to ring in the neighboring corridors. Then, lifting a flower-like hand to her mouth, she touched her lips gently and with an air of circuity. The resentment in her eyes gave place to an emotion less superficial. "By Indur and by Hari!" she swore softly. "In one thing at least he is like a rajput; he kisses as a man kisses."

The east was gray with dusk of dawn—a light that grew space, making garish the illumination of the flickering, smoking, many-colored lamps in the garden. Naraini clapped her hands. Soft footsteps sounded in the gallery and one of her handmaids threaded the shrubbery by her side.

"The lamps, Unda," said the queen; "their light, I think, little becomes me. Put them out." And when this was done, she composedly ordered her pipe and threw herself lazily at length upon a pile of kincob cushions, her posture the more careless since she knew herself secure from observation; the garden being private to her use.

The tread of boots with jingling spurs sounded in the gallery, warning her. She sighed, smiled dangerously to herself, and carelessly adjusted her veil, leaving rather more than half her face bare. Salig Singh entered the garden and found his way to her, towering over her beneath the canopy, brave in his green and tinsel uniform. She looked up with a listless hauteur that expressed her attitude toward the man.

"Achcha!" she said, sharply. "Thou art tardy, heaven-born. Yet have I waited for thee this half-hour gone, heavy with sleep though I be—waited to know the pleasure of my lord."

There was a mockery but faintly disguised in her tone. The maharana seemed to find it not unpleasant, for he smiled grimly beneath his mustache.

"There was work to be done," he said briefly—"for the cause. And thou—how has thou wrought, O Breaker of Hearts?"

The woman clasped her hands behind her head. "Am I not Naraini?"

"The man is ours?"

"Mine," she corrected amiably. His face darkened with a scowl of jealousy and she laughed in open derision. Were I Naraini could I not divine the heart of a man?"

"What means that?"

"What is that to thee, O heaven-born?" She snuggled her body complacently into the luxurious pile of cushions. "If I have accomplished the task thou didst set for me, what concern hast thou with the means I did employ? Thou art only Salig Singh, maharana of Khandawar, but I am Naraini, a free woman."

"Thou—!" Rage choked the rajput. "Thou," he sputtered—"thou art—"

"Softly, heaven-born, softly—lest I loose a thunderbolt for thy destruction. Is it wise to forget that Naraini holds thy fate in the hollow of her hands?" She sat forward, speaking swiftly and with malice. "Thou art pledged to produce Har Dyal Rutton in the Hall of the Bell before another with assumed disdain. It was no part of wisdom, in her understanding, to tell him of her interview with Amber. A man's jealousy is a potent weapon in a woman's hands, but must be wielded with discretion.

"Be of good heart," she comforted him. "If he doth fail to survive the ordeal—Har Dyal Rutton hath died. If he doth survive—"

"Har Dyal Rutton shall die within the hour," Salig Singh concluded, grimly. "But . . . I am troubled. I cannot but ask myself continually: Were it not wiser to confess failure and abide the outcome?"

"How long wouldst thou abide the outcome, my king, after thou hadst informed the council of this deception to which thou hast been too willing and ready a party?" He who misled you died a dog's death. But thou—art thou in love with death?"

"Unless thy other name be Death, Naraini."

"Or if the council should spare thee—as is unlikely? The patience of the Body is as the patience of kings—scant; and its mercy is like unto its patience. . . . But say thou art spared; what then? How long art thou prepared to wait until the Members of the Body shall again be in such complete accord as now? When again shall all Hindustan be ripe for revolt?"

Ah! Thou wouldst have sweet patience in the waiting, Salig Singh! Let matters rest as they be, my lord—this a trace imperiously. "Leave the man to me; I stand sponsor for him until the Gateway shall have received him and—perhaps for a little afterwards."

"Thou art right as ever." He lifted his gaze to meet hers and his eyes flamed. "I leave my life on your knees, Naraini. I love thee and . . . by all the gods, thou art altogether a woman!"

"And thou . . . a man, your highness?" she countered provokingly. "Nay!" she concluded, evading him with a supple squirm, "be content until this affair be consummated. Wait until the time when an empress shall reign over all Bharuta and thou, my lord, shall be her minister of state."

The man's voice shook. "That hour is not far off, my queen. Thou wilt not keep me waiting longer?" She gave him the quick promise of her eyes.

She swept away from him, toward the parapet. He took a single step in pursuit and halted, following her with a glance that was at once careless and a threat.

With eyes half-veiled by long languorous lashes the woman threw back her head until her swelling throat was tense. She raised her arms and stretched them wide. The sun, soaring suddenly, a crimson disk above the ridge, seemed to strike fire from her strange, savage beauty as from a jewel.

Her parted lips moved, but the man, who had drawn near enough to hear, caught two words only.

Instruction in Cartoons.

I have found that one of the easiest and most interesting ways of teaching my growing boys current events is by having them make a scrapbook of the cartoons that appear in the daily papers and magazines. As soon as the papers have been read, the cartoons and pictures that bear on the leading questions of the day are carefully cut out and put in a special place till the end of the month. Then we look over them together and save for the scrapbook only the best and clearest.

It is really surprising what a delightful little recreation this makes for the evenings. It encourages a discussion of current history, in which the father usually joins, and at the same time promises a feeling of good comradeship between parents and children.—Harpers' Bazar.

FREQUENT FAILURES MADE IN CONSTRUCTION OF THE SILO

Mistake Most Commonly Encountered Is That of Not Preparing for Outward Pressure of Silage—Walls Should Be As Nearly Perpendicular As It Is Possible to Make Them.

Modern Cement Silo on Fernwood Dairy Farm, Royersford, Pa.

Some of the failures of silos have been due to carelessness in filling, but more often to faulty construction of the silo.

Formerly many silos were made by sheathing one of the bays in the barn. With these silos and other forms of wooden square silos a lining must be built across the corners and the silage well tramped down along the edges or there will be considerable loss of what would otherwise be valuable stock feed. This style of silo, however, has become less common, and but few square silos of any kind are built at the present time. Even when silos are built inside of a barn they are often circular. The octagon silo is an improvement over the square form, but as a rule the walls of this form of silo have not been made rigid enough.

Too often the walls of silos are not made air-tight. Unless the walls of wooden silos are made air-tight, with tar paper, felt pads, or clay worked into the joints, much silage will be wasted. Ninety per cent of stave silos are not air-tight at the foundation. The shrinkage and swelling of staves breaks the cement, which must be frequently mended. Some losses have occurred because the ends of the staves have been decayed.

The iron bands of a stave silo must be examined frequently, or they will fall down as the staves shrink. Sometimes the iron splices rust. Unless a stave silo is well anchored it may be moved from its foundations or even blown down.

The walls of a silo must be rigid or they cannot stand the pressure. When the sides begin to bulge, air can get between the silage and the walls.

Brick silos without reinforcement have been failures because of the pressure from the inside.

The modern silo is a structure with air-tight walls and a height usually twice its diameter, and is strong enough to withstand the natural pressure of its contents when full. This pressure is greatest from two to six days after filling. The silage at this time begins to heat and settle, and, if the walls are not sufficiently rigid to prevent any bulging, a considerable loss of silage will result. The walls should be as nearly perpendicular as possible, and the diameter should be the same from the bottom to the top.

A mistake sometimes made was in building the silo of too large a diameter for the size of the herd so that the silage spoiled by too long exposure of the surface. In one case a man with a small herd built a silo in his barn 18 feet square and 16 feet high. After two years' trial he gave up the use of the silo in disgust because the silage did not keep.

A year or so later he sold his farm to a more progressive man, who built partitions across the same silo, making four small silos out of the large one, and had no difficulty in obtaining good silage for his stock. The silo should be deep. The deeper the silo the better the silage.

The diameter should conform to the size of the herd, and if two inches of silage are fed each day there will be no loss from surface exposure.

It is desirable to prevent silage from freezing. The double wall concrete silo and those built of rectangular building tile accomplish this object as well as any. Stone silos prevent freezing, but many owners of stone silos do not like them because moisture collects on the inside of the walls and rots silage along the edge. A roof helps to keep out the frost, snow and rain.

Don't Burn Off Pasture.
In the opinion of Professor Tom Eyck, it is a poor practice to burn off the pasture in late fall or early spring.

LABOR SAVING FARM MACHINE

Portable Gasoline Engine Can be Used for Shredding Corn, Sawing Wood and Other Jobs.

(By L. G. JOHNSON.)
Those who have never used a gasoline engine can hardly realize what a labor saving and profitable machine it is on the farm.

To do any and all kinds of work the farmer wants at least a ten-horsepower and with much less cost and the cost of running one is but very little more than the cost of a smaller one and with the larger engine you can do a great deal more work than with the smaller one.

With my engine I can drive a corn-shredder just as easily as a steam engine would and with much less cost as the engineer's wages are saved, besides the cost of fuel for steam power, which is greater than the cost of gasoline for the same power.

For ten hours' running of my engine, which is ten-horse power, it takes ten gallons of oil per day. This at eleven cents per gallon, makes the cost of running for ten hours $1.10—that is when running up to its full capacity.

But, when the work is not so heavy you can run on less oil. This depends altogether on what you are doing, or the power necessary to do it.

This same engine may be used for driving a wood-saw. All you need is a saw frame, a good-sized circular cut-off saw and about 40 feet of six-inch belt and you are well equipped for wood-making.

With this outfit two men will saw as much wood in five hours as four men will saw in ten hours with the common cross-cut saw and do it so much easier and cheaper.

I also use my engine for pumping water and running a cream separator.

Through my milk house I have a line shaft and by means of small belts and pulleys I can attach my cream separator, my pump and a grindstone. By means of tight and loose pulleys I can run one or all of them at the same time.

This line shaft extends through the milk house and six feet into the shed. To this end of the shaft I connect my engine by means of a clutch coupling and when I want to use any of the above-named machinery all I have to do is to turn on the oil and let it go.

Of course to do several kinds of work with the same engine it is necessary to have the machine on portable skids so as to be able to move it from one place to another.

The skids should be large and long enough to place the engine and tanks on the same base by having one end of the skids slanting like a sled runner.

It is an easy matter to move the engine from one place to another with a pair of horses.

Outbreak of Cholera.
When an outbreak of hog cholera occurs on a farm the herd should be quarantined and all possible precautions taken against the spread of the infection in the neighborhood.

Avoid Close Grazing.
Close or late grazing should be carefully avoided because the young plants need their green leaves in order to produce a vigorous root growth.

Murphysboro.—Senator Walter Clyde Jones, who is canvassing the state in an automobile, spoke here. In part he said: "I favor the enactment of an anti-pass law. The railroads should be relieved of this species of graft. If the pass was the gift of the railroad, a different question might be presented. It is the general traveling public that must pay for the pass. Every man who rides should pay the same rate. The legislator who rides free is riding at the expense of the legislator or private citizen who pays for his ride. Two years ago the salaries of legislators were increased on the plea that they could then dispense with passes. They took the increase in salary and then defied the anti-pass bill. The people of Illinois should create such a healthy public opinion on the subject of passes that legislators would not dare accept a pass."

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

There are two ways to tell if you have weak kidneys. The first is through pains in the back. The second is by examining the kidney secretions. If you suspect your kidneys, begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once. Mrs. J. L. Warrick, 406 W. Mulberry St., Lebanon, Ohio, says: "No tongue can tell the agonies I suffered. My feet and limbs were lifeless and there were weeks when I could not put my feet to the floor or stand alone. As a last resort, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. In six weeks I was as free from kidney trouble as if I had never had it."

PIMPLES ON FACE 3 YEARS

"I was troubled with acne for three long years. My face was the only part affected, but it caused great disfigurement, also suffering and loss of sleep. At first there appeared red, hard pimples which later contained white matter. I suffered a great deal caused by the itching. I was in a state of perplexity when walking the streets or anywhere before the public.

"I used pills and other remedies but they failed completely. I thought of giving up when nothing would help, but something told me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a Cuticura Booklet which I read carefully. Then I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and by following the directions I was relieved in a few days. I used Cuticura Soap for washing my face, and applied the Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. This treatment brought marvelous results so I continued with it for a few weeks and was cured completely. I can truthfully say that the Cuticura Remedies are not only all, but more than they claim to be." (Signed) G. Baumel, 1015 W. 20th Place, Chicago, Ill., May 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page booklet, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 23 K, Boston.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

Last Monday night at 11:45 Miss Jennie who was 12 years old, passed away after a long illness. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the home, Rev. L. A. Holb officiating. Interment in Kingston cemetery. She was born in Mayfield March 13, 1899.

During her illness she was under the constant care of a trained nurse, but all medical aid and tender care could not harken the voice which was calling her to the haven of rest. She was the fourth child of a family of nine children, two sisters having preceded her to that home above.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO ATTEND NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW.

The National Dairy show, Chicago, has been growing steadily in importance, and President Taft has accepted the invitation of the board of directors and will attend the show and address the people Monday morning, Oct. 30. After his address the president will be escorted to the dairy products exhibit, where he will be invited to cut the world's greatest cheese, which this year weighs 12,000 pounds—six tons—and stands higher than a man.

JACOBA IRENE, CHAMPION LONG DISTANCE COW OF THE WORLD.

Jacoba Irene, who holds the greatest long distance record in the production of milk and butter fat of any cow in the world, made her wonderful record when she was owned by Hon. A. O. Auten, who is the general manager of this year's National Dairy show, which will be held in the International amphitheater, Union stockyards, Chicago, Oct. 26 to Nov. 4. In one year Jacoba produced over her own weight in butter. Hundreds of other heavy producing cows undergoing yearly tests will be on exhibition at the show.

JUDGING CONTEST AT NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW.

One of the most interesting features of the National Dairy show, Chicago, International amphitheater, Union stockyards, Oct. 26 to Nov. 4, will be the students' judging contest. The illustration shows the conclusion of one of these contests, judging Ayrshire cows. This year the Jersey and Holstein Breed associations have been offered a $400 agricultural scholarship. The Guernseys will award a magnificent silver cup for the best team of students judging Guernseys.
