Kane county has lost 105 hogs, valued at $1,000, from an epidemic of hog cholera. The disease recently attacked the animals being fattened at the county farm. The result is a heavy loss, and alarm is spreading over the neighborhood.

W. J. Bryan was paid at the rate of about six dollars per minute when he lectured at the Plattville, Wis., chautauqua recently. He spoke for 65 minutes in the tabernacle where 4,500 people had gathered to hear him, and his share of the day's receipts amounted to $306.85.

The lightning rod swindlers of a number of years ago gave the lightning rod business a setback that will take some time to overcome. It is being overcome, however, and in time we will see buildings that are protected by rods that protect and are sold by honest dealers at prices that are right.

Basing claim for damages upon injuries sustained in an automobile accident on the Dundee-Algonquin road June 6, Rev. Robert G. Good news comes from Michigan. A dispatch states that two counties of that famous fruit state will harvest more than four hundred thousand barrels of apples, a record breaking crop. This report is especially pleasing in view of the fact that this crop in Illinois is a failure this year. But other sections of the country are more fortunate and this most delicious fruit will probably be good and plentiful.

About forty families in Bradford are now sleeping in tents at night, and the appearance of certain parts of the village resembles a tent colony. Those who are trying the experiment are all of the same opinion, that it beats sleeping in the house "all hollow." As a sleep producer the cool breezes of the evening are far better than any "dope" made, and the pure, fresh air breathed at night, goes a long way in curing that "tired feelin'" upon rising in the morning.

ROCKFORD IS WIDE OPEN

Police There Say Arrests Would be Ridiculous Without Prosecution

The state's attorney's office and the police department admit that the city is being run in an almost wide open manner as regards the local option law. In answer to the accusation that they are to blame, the police as individuals, point to the state's attorney and say, "Guarantee us that you will prosecute all we arrest and we will nab them all." The state's attorney, with perfect fairness, states that the people themselves are to blame. "I cannot be two places at once," he declared, and then he showed the proofs that there is state work laid out for him for three months to come.

That "soft drink" parlors are selling intoxicating liquors with little or no discrimination is the talk of the city. Almost every citizen who is about the streets much knows to a moral certainty that this place or that one is selling beer or whiskey. The officers on the beats know it, the state's attorney knows it, and it is an admitted fact. The great question of all is, "What can they do about it?"

COMMITTED SUICIDE

Miss Madge Brundage Drowns Herself in Lake at Lake Bluff

Miss Madge Brundage committed suicide by drowning at Lake Bluff last Thursday morning. Miss Brundage was a guest at the home of C. D. Flint, a relative, and was well known in Genoa where she had visited on different occasions.

Last Thursday she arose early, as was her usual custom to take a morning stroll. That was the last seen of her until her body was found in the surf on the shore of Lake Michigan by a boy who was passing that way.

She left no word before leaving the house and the cause of the deed remains a mystery to her friends. She was a little over thirty years of age.

AERONAUT IS KILLED

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT AT ELECTRIC PARK MONDAY

FALLS OVER 1500 FEET

Parachute Falls to Open and Fred Banker of Aurora Dashes to Ground—Lives Several Hours

The failure of his parachute to open after he had cut loose from his balloon at a height of 1500 feet cost the life of Fred Banker, an Aurora aeronaut, who was making an ascension at the I. O. O. F. picnic at Electric Park Monday.

A crowd of several thousand people watched in horror stricken silence as the aeronaut shot down like a stone, vainly trying to untangle the controlling apparatus of the big umbrella, which had become clogged in some way. Banker had only soared a short distance from the park when the accident happened and he fell almost at the feet of the big crowd, while scores of women fainted at the sight.

Banker was an experienced balloonist, having made more than 100 ascensions. The balloon got away from the ground in good shape and shot almost straight upwards. When it reached a height of about 1,500 feet Banker was seen to be struggling with his ropes to cut the parachute loose. The apparatus failed to open at all, although the operator kept on trying until he struck.

He landed in a field not three yards from a giant straw stack, which probably would have saved his life if he had struck it.

He was hurried to the Sycamore hospital where he died at one o'clock Tuesday morning, his hip bones being torn from their sockets and protruding several inches through the flesh, while one side of his face literally is scraped off. Banker is about 32 years of age and unmarried.

MASS MEETING

Milk Producers' Protective Association Saturday Afternoon

The Milk Producers' Protective Association will engineer a mass meeting at Crawford's hall on Saturday afternoon of this week, at which time farmers will be urged to join the association. One of the directors of the organization will deliver an address. A meeting will also be held at Sycamore in the evening of the same day.

'Twas a "Wet" Council

The city council of Mendota has forbidden the use of the city park to the churches for open air meetings, claiming an abuse of the privilege. For some weeks past a number of the churches have been uniting and holding open air meetings at the park by permission of the council. A week ago Sundav Hon. H. L. Sheldon of Chicago addressed the audience. He proved to be a temperance worker and passed out cards at the close of the meeting seeking contributions from the Mendota people in the fight of the church against the saloon. Some persons took exceptions to the churches being allowed the use of the park for services and then bringing in a temperance worker. They took the matter up with the council and that body has voted that the churches be denied the use of the park because they were mixing politics with religion.—Ex.

GETS THIRD MONEY

Lee Wyld's Horse Shows up Well at Belvidere Races

In the 2:35 pacing event at the Belvidere fair last week L. A. Wyld's horse came in for third money, with Geo. Donohue at the reins. There were five one mile heats out of which the Wyld horse got two 4ths, two 3rds and one 2nd. Those who witnessed the race state that the Genoa horse stood the test better than any other in the field, finishing the last heat strong.

There was nothing to the running race, W. H. Heed leaving the entire field in the rear, although some good horses had been shipped in to capture the prize.

PEARL BRINGS $1,000

Ottawa Men Find Rare Gem and Sell it at Top Price

Ottawa Republican-Times: J. A. Quam, president of the Farmers' and Merchants' State Bank at Sheridan was here recently. Mr. Quam is very much interested in the pearl industry, and while he isn't much of a fisherman himself, he occasionally buys a pretty specimen. "The river at Sheridan is filled with pearl hunters every day," said Mr. Quam, "and some good finds have been made this season. I believe that fully $10,000 worth of pearls have been taken from the Fox river.

"You hear of the fellow who makes a good find, but you won't hear of those who spend a whole season hunting pearls and find nothing."

The big pearl, weighing 31½ grains, found in the Fox river a few days ago by James Ahrens and Nicholas Bohler, of Ottawa, was sold to W. D. Burd, a pearl dealer of Vincennes, Ind. The consideration was $1,000.

ALGONQUIN MAN CRUEL

Fined $200 by Woodstock Justice for Starving Horses and Cows

"What is the use of feeding stock when you have no work for them to do?"

That was the answer given by Patrick Gannon, a farmer living near Algonquin, Ill., when Justice Arnold of Woodstock asked him why he had not fed two horses and two cows that state humane officers found to be mere skeletons. Gannon admitted that he had no use for the stock after he began working by the day two years ago.

When humane officers went to Gannon's place to investigate complaints of neighbors that the horses and cows were starving, they were driven away with revolvers by Gannon and his brother, John. The next day they took the sheriff with them and the brothers were arrested.

LARGE NEW PRIMARY CLASS

Teacher of Languages Is Detained at Her Home in East St. Louis with Attack of Rheumatism

The Genoa public schools opened last Thursday morning with all the teachers at their places except Miss Garrett of East St. Louis, the one who has been engaged to teach the languages. A telegram was received from Miss Garrett announcing that she was confined to the house with an attack of rheumatism and can not get to Genoa for a few days. Miss Williams of Rockford has been engaged to substitute for Miss Garrett, she being fully competent to carry on the work.

There was some delay in getting books but on Monday morning these had arrived and now everything is running smoothly or as good as one can reasonably expect for the first week.

The new class in the primary department numbers about thirty. Owing to the large number in this class all the 2nd and 3rd grades were placed in the second room under Miss Parker. She will be assisted, however, by the first primary teacher, Miss Drake. All the teachers are going at the work with a vim that will bring results if they have the good will and co-operation of the patrons, and we feel confident that they are going to get the confidence of the people of Genoa. Let's pull together.

OBITUARY

Susan M. Pratt, daughter of Peter S. and Barbara Pratt, was born in Cannon, Columbus Co., N. Y., May 12, 1834, where she lived until 10 years of age when, with her parents, she came to Illinois. On March 8, 1854, she was married to James P. Brown and to them 13 children were born, 12 of whom grew to maturity and are all living and here today except Lenna Dean, who passed away February 3, 1908, at her home in Belvidere. Mrs. Brown was converted in early life and at the age of 15 years was baptized and joined the Baptist church of which her mother was a member. After moving to Genoa she attended services whenever her health would permit. She leaves besides her husband, James P. Brown, one brother, John L. Pratt of St. Paul, Minn., one brother-in-law, Mina Jones Pratt of Sycamore, eleven children, three grandchildren and five great grandchildren. The sons are, James I., and Arthur of Genoa, William J. of Marengo, and Frank B. Brown of Belvidere; the daughters are, Etta Anderson, Carrie Reed and Alta Fenton of Genoa, Elva Banks of Irene, Lora Adams and Susie Miller of Belvidere and Ethel Geithman of Freeport. Mrs. Brown was a member of the W. C. T. U. for many years and also a member of the Aid Society of the M. E. church and believed in supporting every good work in the community. She was a loving wife, a kind and devoted mother, a good neighbor and will be missed by a large circle of relatives and friends.

It Was His Way.

A Kansas farmer was telling recently about the eavesdropping that goes on along the farmers' telephone line he is on. He said that whenever he talked he could hear the "click, click" of different receivers coming down. "And you can bet," he amended, "that they never hear my receiver coming down. No, sir; I always hold on to the thing and let it down so easy that it doesn't click!"—Kansas City Journal.

Who May Secure a Homestead.

Under the homestead laws of the United States any person, male or female, who is not the owner of more than 160 acres of land in any state or territory, who is a native born citizen of the United States, or has been naturalized, or declared his intention to become a naturalized citizen of the United States (i. e., one who has taken out his first papers of citizenship), who is over the age of 21 years or the head of a family, may make a homestead entry of not exceeding 160 acres of any of the unoccupied public lands of the United States.

Enough Till Eternity.

The biggest marble quarry in operation in the world lies almost within a stone's throw of the heart of West Rutland, Vt. Around its mouth is a stock of 12,000 pieces of finished marble. There is a great gap in the hillside. The marble crops out as bare of soil or vegetation as a billiard ball. You can walk over that hill and never step on anything but marble, and after two score years of blasting and drilling they don't know how deep the deposit lies. It seems there's enough marble in that one hill for an eternity.

The Marriage

MATCHES AND MAT

BY VIRGINIA VAN DE

The matchmaker rushes in where angels fear to tread. And yet she is no fool. And her lot is not an easy one. She is suspected by the world-wise, tolerated by the young and uninitiated, and frequently ashamed of herself. Still she exists and continues to make matches.

In one of the Gypsy Brenton books, dear to the childish heart of a quarter-century ago, the small boy says that God made matches, but that "He used the burning brimstone from the bad place to put on the tips." Later a well-known author makes her heroine remark: "Matches may be made in heaven, but they sometimes serve to light the fires of—well—the other place, very effectually." The fact that the two characters mentioned referred to different kinds of matches does not alter the truth that may be drawn from both remarks. This truth is applicable to the match with which we have to do more than to the innocent little wood and brimstone article of commerce.

It is not difficult to understand why the devoted mother attempts to have a hand in the settling of her daughter's marriage. She takes it for granted that she will marry—most women do—and no woman knows true happiness until she is a beloved and loving wife and a joyful mother. Is it strange, then, that the elderly woman in whose power the happiness or unhappiness of her child cannot always rest longs to play destiny for her darling and establish her in life as she thinks will be most conducive to her future welfare? To this end she wants her girls to marry a gentleman, and—here she is the rock upon which many a mother and child spilt—a man with enough money to support his family in comfort.

Love must be the keynote of a happy marriage, but the keynote alone does not make a "grand, sweet song."

This is not pessimism; it is truth.

The mother knows it is truth, and frowns upon penniless John's suit, knowing that if he is accepted the pretty girlish hands must wash dishes, perhaps make fires. At best, there must be the turning and twisting of every five-cent car fare, the making over of last year's dresses, the lying awake far into the night wondering how the forthcoming bills of doctor and nurse are to be paid.

We may, therefore, pardon the mother who tries to make a "good match" for her child. If she sometimes sets aside the child's wishes, it cites her to a cold, practical consideration of marriage that is to be deplored, we must remember that her over-zeal is due to a great love, and

MARITAL V

BY GERTR

I am not prepared to say, as an unqualified assertion, that there is more marital infelicity among the rich than in other classes of society. But there are many reasons which might go toward bearing out the claim.

For one thing, people who are very rich are often prominent socially. When such couples fall out the newspapers, eager for gossip and knowing the interest the world at large takes in the wealthy, stir up the dissension.

Foremost, however, among the reasons for especial matrimonial unhappiness among the rich (if such unhappiness really exists to a greater degree than among the poor) is the "marriage of convenience." Among people composing the wealthy set in our large cities marriages are oftener matters of policy and desirability than the mere outcome of mutual affection. There is, in many cases of this sort, no real love from the very outset. Women marry men of great wealth and social position because their families are ambitious and desire to see them well placed in the world.

It is but natural under such circumstances that more or less jar and lack of congeniality should ensue. Nothing but an unusual degree of tact can avert such friction.

Such people are, after all, but human, and a woman, who is forced by her family's ambition to marry a man for whom she has no natural inclination or affection, is not unlikely to meet a man with whom she falls seriously in love. This is a condition which might perhaps have been wholly avoided had she been born in a less exalted financial sphere and allowed to choose a husband for herself. Family fortunes are thus maintained or raised, sometimes at a cost far greater than mere money involves.

Another cause is the manner of life led by so many of the very rich. They have little of real interest to occupy their attention. Their lives become idle and vapid. There is too much leisure. Where a poorer woman would be too busily occupied with home and family the woman who has some cares are reduced to a minimum by money has time to become bored by her husband or to yearn for other interests.

I have an old-fashioned belief that a husband and wife should be helpmeets; that a husband's busi-
