Many Judgment Notes Are Executed for Huge Total

R. G. OBERLIN AND WIFE SOUGHT

Jumped Board Bill at the Hotel DeKalb in DeKalb—Police Are Looking in Chicago

Judgments by confession are in vogue these days according to the records of the circuit court clerk's office, as six judgments were entered up within two days aggregating $15,486.02.

G. C. Fairclo of Aurora obtained a judgment by confession for the sum of $108.35 against E. John. On December 10th the defendant executed a note payable to the plaintiff in the payment of which default has been made.

G. C. Fairclo of Aurora obtained a judgment by confession against Joseph Moser and Signe Moser for the sum of $1765.74 and costs on a note dated February 19, 1920 payable at Elgin, Illinois, to the order of the plaintiff.

William J. Smith also of Woodstock obtained a judgment against both defendants, Joseph Moser and Signe Moser, in the sum of $5464.82, and costs.

William Hacker and William P. Hays trustee under the will of Henry Hacker, deceased, recovered a judgment by confession against both the Mosers in the sum of $7665.74, and costs, on a judgment note executed by defendants on February 19, 1920.

The three notes on which judgments were obtained are part of notes secured by a mortgage on a farm of the defendants located in McHenry county.

C. H. Conlin of DeKalb appealed to the circuit court from a judgment for the sum of $54.30 and costs, rendered against him in favor of A. H. Johnson, at a hearing before Justice of the Peace W. F. Sell, of Sycamore.

W. D. Whistler of Hinckley appeared from a judgment which David Boe, also of Hinckley, obtained against him before Justice of the Peace John H. Bauder, for the goods sold and delivered, to the circuit court. The judgment was recovered on October 28, 1922.

Christopher Nesheim appealed from a judgment for the sum of $44.00 and costs recovered against him by Nels Miller on November 6, 1922, before Justice of the Peace Sell of Sycamore. R. C. Flewellyn & Son of Shabbona obtained a judgment by confession against Paul S. Hoffa for the sum of $131.63 and costs. The judgment is based on a note June 8, 1920, for the sum of $100, payable on demand, in the payment of which default has been made.

A warrant charging R. G. Oberlin with obtaining food and lodging with intent to defraud, was issued by State's Attorney Poust on complaint of Joseph Brothers, the owners of the hotel DeKalb of the city of DeKalb.

Oberlin and a woman claiming to be his wife registered at the DeKalb hotel on Saturday, November 11, 1922 and after spending several days there skipped out without paying for their board. They left behind them a suit case which when opened revealed a blanket with the initials of the Woodruff Inn of Joliet and several minor toilet articles. The owner of the Woodruff Inn was notified and identified the blanket as one belonging to him. The parties had stayed at his hotel overnight before reaching DeKalb.

Information obtained by the Joseph Brothers indicated that Oberlin is at present in Chicago and the police there have been notified to arrest him.

POLECATS SCRATCH WAY TO WIN

Half Soles Loose Second Game of Their Hectic Career

Last Thursday night in the old gym a noteworthy fete was accomplished, the Polecats won a game from the Greasehounds.

For four innings the cats were held scoreless while the slippery boys amassed a total of some nine runs. In the fifth the old feline instincts of the muchly stepped on cats aroused themselves from the stupor in which they had been playing and brought home ten runs. These added with a few more acquired in the next two innings were enough to salt away the game.

The first struggle of the evening between the Moon dogs and polecats ended in favor of the former by the score of 13 to 8. It was a good game and was featured with the shorp fielding on the part of several of the Moon dog players.

The second game brought two ancient and honorable teams into combat; one to hold the honors of being the only team to defeat the Half soles and the other to see that it didn't happen again by the highly touted Spark plugs. However Senska was "right" and with a little coaching on the finer points of the game by manager Sell breezed home a winner with a few runs to spare. The last game between the Pole cats and Greasehounds ended as aforesaid.

(This) Thursday night the Half-soles and the Pole cats play the first game; the Greasehounds play in the last two contest with the Spark plugs and the Moon dogs.

SHERIFF CRAWFORD MOVING

Will Occupy the Apartment Formerly Occupied by Sheriff Decker

Sheriff Crawford, alias "Chief" and family are moving this week from their home in this city to the house formerly occupied by Sheriff Decker, who has vacated in favor of the new master-in-arms of the law. Sheriff Decker will take over the job of county treasurer on the 4th of December, the same day that he relinquishes control of the sheriff reigns and Crawford steps in.

For eight years Genoa has had the expert services of Officer Crawford on the night watch and it is with great reluctance that we are forced to chronicle his resignation.

Frank Fay, a former police officer of this city will take Mr. Crawford's place.

Ralph Browne and family will also move to Sycamore in the near future in order that he may be near his work as chief-deputy under Sheriff Crawford.

We hope we are voicing the citizen's wishes of Genoa in wishing to Mr. and Mrs. Crawford and family and to R. H. Browne and family the best of wishes in their new work and hope at the end of four years we will again see those familiar faces on the streets of our own city.

ANSWERS TO NUMEROUS QUESTIONS

Compiled By The State Committee On Submission and Address

QUESTIONNAIRE ON THE NEW LAWS

Read the Following Carefully and Call at The Republican Office for Comparison of Whole Constitution

1. Q. What is a constitution?

A. A constitution is the fundamental law of a state; it provides for the form of government, defines the powers and duties of the principal agencies of that government, and puts such limitations upon the powers of the government itself as experience has shown are necessary to the preservation of liberty.

2. Q. How many constitutions has Illinois had?

A. Three; 1818, 1848 and 1870. The present constitution is that of 1870.

3. Q. How was the proposed new constitution framed?

A. In 1918 the people of the state voted to call a constitutional convention to revise the constitution. The legislature called the convention the following year and delegates, two from each senatorial district, were elected in November 1919. The convention assembled in January, 1920 and adjourned October 10, 1922, after completing the draft of the proposed new constitution.

4. Q. What is the date of the election at which the voters will decide upon the adoption or rejection of the new constitution?

A. Tuesday, December 12, 1922. It will be a special election.

5. Q. What measures are being taken to inform the voters of the provisions of the new document?

A. The constitutional Convention through a committee on submission and address is printing and distributing one and a half million copies with explanatory notes and an address to the people explaining the major revisions.

6. Q. Is there any concerted effort of a people's organization to inform the voters of the issue before them?

A. A voluntary general citizens' committee, headed by Justice Orrin N. Carter of the state supreme court, has been organized to conduct a campaign of education. A similar committee conducted the campaign four years ago which resulted in the calling of the convention.

7. Q. How may a copy of the new constitution be obtained?

A. By writing to Henry I. Green, chairman, committee on submission and address, Urbana, Illinois, or by applying to your county clerk or the county chairman of Justice Carter's committee. In DeKalb county this is Judge Pond.

8. Q. What is the question before the voters?

A. Is the proposed new constitution, framed by your representatives, better than the constitution under which you now live?

9. Q. In what attitude must the question be considered?

A. With the welfare of the whole state and all its population in mind. Also, in the knowledge that a constitution is not and cannot be a statutory code dealing with legislative matters and details of organization. A constitution must confine itself to fundamentals.

10. Q. What was the main question before the convention?

A. Three: A revision of the present revenue system of the state; Cook county representation and home rule for Chicago; and the re-organization of the state judiciary.

The Revenue Section

11. Q. Why is the revenue reform needed?

A. Because real estate is paying more than its just share of the tax burden, while stocks and bonds and other intangible property escape.

This was the controlling reason for calling a constitutional convention.

12. Q. Why does the present system of a tax by valuation on all property impose unjustly on real estate?

A. It was commenced over a century ago when practically all property in the state was either real estate or simple chattels which could not escape the assessor. Today approximately one-half of the property of the state is intangible and cannot be reached under the present constitutional limitations.

ECKHARDT PERMANENTLY LAME

Former County Soil Advisor is Able to Leave Hospital

William G. Eckhardt, well-known as an agricultural advisor and expert in matters pertaining to soil fertility, returned to his home last Friday in DeKalb from the Sycamore hospital where he has been confined for two months with injuries sustained when he fell from a tree.

He suffered a broken shoulder, fractured hip and other injuries. He had hardly been able to turn over since that time and many of the long hours were spent in a plaster cast.

His surgeon is of the opinion that Mr. Eckhardt will be compelled to use crutches for a month, at least, and that one leg will be permanently lame to some extent.

VACCINATION LEGISLATION O. K.

United States Supreme Court Upholds Legislation Compulsory Vaccination

The supreme court of the United States has upheld the validity of legislation compelling vaccination of school children.

The ruling of the court makes valid and enforceable all legislation and vacuity ordinances which compel the vaccination of children against disease as a school entrance requirement.

The decision was handed down in the case of Rosalyn Zucht of San Antonio, Texas, high school girl who sued the health authorities of that city because they barred her from school following her refusal to submit to vaccination.

The supreme court denied her claim for damages and declared the ordinance legal.

TELEGRAPH OPERATOR MISSING

DeKalb Western Union Man Steps Out as Auditor Steps In

Frank Tanna, operator in charge of the Western Union Telegraph office at DeKalb, disappeared last Wednesday afternoon about 3 o'clock when an auditor of the company arrived to check over records with Tanna, and there is alleged to be a little some of $600 of the company's funds missing.

The auditor stepped into the office and explained his mission. Tanna said he was going to the bank and stepped out. The last seen of him was on the corner of Second and Lincoln highway when he paid a debt of $10 and started east.

The auditor did not appeal to the DeKalb police for two days later when Chief Riddell asked him if he had notified the district superintendent so that he would notify the bonding company, the auditor replied he had not.

It is also alleged that he cashed a check for a small sum at a restaurant in the city and the check was returned marked "no funds".

The restaurant keeper immediately went to the office of the company to effect a settlement.

According to considerable information, Tanna of late had been leading a wild and weird life, as reports from the police station show that the night officer has found the door open on three or four occasions and Tanna asleep in a chair or on a table.

There are several reports concerning the young man's activities in the city during the last two or three months, and it is not believed by the authorities here that he will return in that case it is up to the bonding company to bring about his capture and the squaring of his accounts.

EXPLAINS NEW BONUS BILL

Senator Harold Kessinger Explains Some Details

OFFICIAL CANVASS IN JANUARY

After Canvassing Bonds Will Be Offered for Sale; Then Money Will Be Distributed

Of interest to all, and especially to the ex-service men of DeKalb county, will be the following letter written by Senator Harold Kessinger to the Aurora Daily Star, and explaining the details of the Soldier Bonus bill:

"Editor Star: I am glad to comply with your request and give what information I have at hand concerning the time, amount, and conditions surrounding the payment of the State Adjustment Compensation.

"It is my recollection that in December, the vote cast November 7th, for both candidates and the bond issue will be canvassed by the State Canvassing board at Springfield.

"This vote will be re-canvassed the first week in January when the Legislature meets.

"As soon as this official canvass takes place, then the bonds will be offered for sale, and when sold the money will be distributed according to the law, passed by the last General Assembly.

Strong Local Interest

"This has a local interest because it means that Oscar Nelson, of Genoa, state treasurer-elect Governor Small and General Black will have charge of the payment of the money.

"After getting the Star's request for a statement upon this matter, I had an interview with Charles Day, compensation officer of Aurora-Rock-evelt Post of the American Legion and Mr. Day showed me a letter from General Black, which stated that the questionnaires already filled out were merely for reference purposes, and that all ex-service men would be asked to fill out official applications for their compensation. These official applications according to General Black's letter to Mr. Day will be ready within the next thirty or forty days.

The canvassing board meets in December and the Legislature meets the first week in January; the members of the house and the new members of the senate are sworn in; the canvass of the voters for state officers and the bonus takes place; then the fifty-five million dollars worth of bonds are printed and signed by the governor and the state treasurer.

"I haven't had time to look up all these details, neither have I had an opinion from Attorney General Brundage, which I will write for at once. But my recollection of the steps taken, when we had the sixty-million dollar good road bond issue, made me believe that about the same will be necessary in this adjusted compensation matter.

"This will probably mean that the money will not be available before the first of February. The official application banks will not be ready for at least thirty days.

"As soon as I receive an official opinion from Attorney General Brundage I will forward same to you.

"Below brief other provisions of the compensation bill.

"Hoping that this explanation is what you want, I am

Sincerely

Harold C. Kessinger,
State Senator."

Those Who Will Share The Bonus

Only those who were residents of the state of Illinois when they entered the service.

Only those who entered the service between April 6, 1917 and Nov. 11, 1918.

Only those honorably discharged from the service or still in active service.

Only those who were in the service for a period longer than two months.

What The Bonus Gives Them

Such persons shall be paid at the rate of 50 cents per day for each day in the service, with a maximum payment of $200. Thus the man who was in the service the longest receives the largest compensation.

If the person entitled to compensation is deceased, then such compensation as he would have been entitled to if living shall be paid to the fol-

"Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

TRAD OF 1620 H.H. Kitson

PIRGIT EXILES Broughton

But as he warmed and glowed, in his simple and eloquent language, quite forgetful of self, and full of the praise of his rival, Archy the maiden smiled, and, with eyes overrunning with laughter, said, in a tremulous voice, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

—H. W. LONGFELLOW.

THE U. S. A. is never going to forget the Pilgrim Fathers. There isn't a chance on earth, and some day every American citizen will know about them.

Of course there are people nowadays who are a bit hazy about the Pilgrims and the Mayflower and the whole business. Doubtless there are some who know of Plymouth Rock only as a kind of chicken.

Certainly there is many a native-born American who doesn't know the difference between the Pilgrims and the Puritans; maybe he even thinks they were the same!

But nobody's going to have a chance to forget the Pilgrims. There's Thanksgiving day, which is not complete without appropriate references to the Pilgrims and that first Thanksgiving dinner of wild turkey, cranberries and pumpkin pie. That's a yearly reminder.

And there are the thousands upon thousands of "Mayflower Descendants," whose activities are nation-wide.

And there are the thousands upon thousands of priceless family heirlooms brought over on the Mayflower—you wouldn't think from the accompanying reproduction of her replica that she could have carried so many, would you?

Some future Americans may escape the descendants and the relics. But Thanksgiving will get most of them and the story of Priscilla Mullins and John Alden and Capt. Miles Standish will get the rest. Why, every schoolboy and every schoolgirl is brought up on this story; to escape it the future American will have to play hockey all his schooldays and dodge Longfellow all his life.

This Plymouth Rock romance is really quite a story. It has several claims upon fame, aside from Longfellow's melodious version.

In the first place it's a true story. If you don't believe there were any such people, please know that John and Priscilla became the parents of eleven children—and their descendants are now numerous enough to have a society all by themselves.

Secondly, Priscilla perpetrated the first recorded American leap-year proposal. To be sure, she didn't pop until 1620 was past and gone, but the principle is the same.

Thirdly, it's the first American triangle—an innocent one, adorned with admirable features.

Longfellow, himself descended from John and Priscilla, appears to have stuck pretty close to the facts—for a poet. But he was a mere man and how could he tell the story of a girl's love! Elizabeth Poe retells the story in the Washington Post and here are some of the points she makes as to why Priscilla took John instead of Captain Miles:

The perversity which guides a woman in love matters was evident in Priscilla Alden's choice. John Alden was a stalwart youth, and made her a good husband. She saw heaven in his blue eyes, beyond doubt, but to most women the valiant soldier of fortune, Capt. Miles Standish, would have had more appeal. Standish was surrounded with the halo of romance and adventure in a dozen countries; he was strangely like that other doughty adventurer of America's beginnings, Capt. John Smith—a stout heart his, and fitted thereby for the stern tasks that awaited these Pilgrim folk, who sought on the bleak New England coast the right to accept the dictates of their own conscience and "freedom to worship God."

Perhaps Priscilla felt that to men of such type women are more or less "incidents," proving the poet Byron's confession that "Love is to men a thing apart. 'Tis woman's whole existence."

Perhaps she had the fear that in years to come Miles Standish might weary of the tamedness of the Plymouth hearth fire and harken to the call of wanderlust once more. John Alden, on the other hand, was the steady-going kind, a student, of judicial temperament, imbued with the tenets of the Pilgrim faith, while Miles Standish as a soldier of the church militant was perhaps not over-troubled with religious theories and intricacies, a "fighting roundhead," so to speak, caring more for the battle like the fighting Quaker Elliotts of Maryland, who have managed, in spite of being Friends, to be in every scrap in which Uncle Sam has had a hand.

It may come as a surprise to most people that the Pilgrim fathers were not "graybeards," as generally supposed, but, on the contrary, young men. Only two of the whole company were more than fifty years of age and only nine were more than forty. Standish was thirty-six years old; John Alden was only twenty-one. There again comes in another reason why John Alden was chosen by the sprightly Priscilla and Standish turned down by proxy. It was youth calling to youth with Priscilla and John Alden. To her seventeen-year-old eyes Captain Standish was an "old man."

John Alden was of her own generation. May preferred to wed with May instead of September, and there's no gainsaying a woman's "because," which in one word sums up any given action of hers.

Moreover, John Alden offered Priscilla the flower of a first love; Miles Standish had buried his heart in a woman's grave—that of his first wife, lovely Rose Standish, frail of body but great of heart, who succumbed with fifteen of the twenty-nine women who had sailed from England and Holland to the hardships of the first Plymouth winter, leaving no child to comfort her sorrowing husband.

Priscilla at this time was only sixteen, just on the verge of womanhood. We can picture Priscilla not in the conventional uniform attire of the pictured Pilgrim, which with its gray gowns with dainty white collars and cuffs with stiff caps and dark capes is a mere artistic caper, according to the best authority. Women of Priscilla's station in life, and it was of the upper middle class, wore the English dress of the period. This was often full skirts of silk of varied colors; long, pointed stomachers, often with bright tone; full, sometimes puffed or slashed, sleeves, and lace collars or "whisks" resting upon the shoulders. Often the gowns were plaited or silk laced; they often opened in front, showing petticoats that were quilted or embroidered in brighter colors. Later came the dress restrictions, but not in the early days of the colony.

Fortune had severe trials in store for Priscilla Mullins. During that terrible first winter not only her father but her mother and brother as well died, and she was left alone, orphaned and friendless in a strange new world. Her plight seems to have aroused the sympathy of the entire colony. The women adopted her en masse, and as her beauty was as evident as her goodness, all the young men in the colony would have liked to have done the same thing.

Meantime the Mayflower was returning to England. Alden, crushed, disappointed, not daring for loyalty to his angry friend to push his suit with Priscilla, planned to return to the old home, forsaking forever the Plymouth colony. He threw together his scanty belongings and went to the shore where the Mayflower waited, straining her anchors. A crowd had gathered there, and as Alden was about to step on the gunwale of the boat which would take him out to the waiting vessel, he saw amid the solemn faces of the Pilgrims the tear-stained countenance of Priscilla Mullins.

Reproach, grief and unutterable longing were in her eyes. He gazed long into them across the distance between them, then jumped back on shore. "Here I remain," he vowed, raising his hand to heaven. So under the providence of God it happened that not one went back in the Mayflower and the colony was intact, save for the ravages made by death.

When a woman is as determined as was Priscilla to wed the man of her choice, mere man hath little, indeed, to do with it. Thus it happened that before he knew it John Alden was safely betrothed to Priscilla and the wedding day was set.

Finally, the best day arrived and the Pilgrims were gathered in the meeting house for the wedding ceremony. Miles Standish had left town some weeks before on another Indian expedition. After the wedding sermon, according to the goodly custom of the day, had been heard, a form appeared on the threshold of the church, clad in armor. Behind him pressed his "invincible army," now reduced to eight. It was Capt. Miles Standish, returned from the wars to find the lady he loved the bride of another.

Dead silence fell over the church. Priscilla glanced archly at her erstwhile lover from the shelter of her husband's strong right arm. With one stride Standish came to their side. He put out his hand to the bridegroom and said, "Let us be friends again." John Alden's face was aglow as he gladly grasped the hand of his old friend. Turning to Priscilla, Standish bowed low and said simply, "I should have remembered the adage, 'If you would be well served, you must serve yourself,' and moreover, no man can gather cherries in Kent at the season of Christmas." Priscilla laughed and flushed.

It was not long, however, before John Alden and his reconciled friend went to Duxbury, Mass., and started a settlement there. The bruised heart of Miles Standish had been healed by the soft fingers of a certain Barbara, one of the passengers on the second coming of the Mayflower. She became the second Mrs. Miles Standish and in amity and affection the two families lived side by side in Duxbury. Priscilla became the mother of eleven children. Thus this Pilgrim romance, like the story book tale, ends aptly with the old phrase "And they lived happily ever after."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies; in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Have You
Ordered Your

COAL?

It not

It would be a wise thing to order your coal at once in order to insure future delivery of a sufficient amount to last through the winter. It is hard to get and what does come in will be divided among the orders on hand. This is done out of necessity because it can not be purchased in large enough quantities to fill every order.

Safeguard your home by ordering today. It may mean health and happiness to you. Don't delay.

ZELLER & SON

INDIAN LEGEND OF TOBACCO

Believed to Be Gift of Spirit to Whom Their Hunters Had Been Generous.

An Indian tradition as to the first appearance of tobacco in North America is to the effect that a Swedish minister who took occasion to inform the chiefs of the Susquehanna Indians, in a kind of sermon, of the principal facts on which the Christian religion is founded, was thus answered by an old Indian orator:

"What you have told us is very good; we thank you for coming so far to tell us those things you have heard from your mothers; in return we will tell you what we have heard from ours. In the beginning we had only flesh of animals to eat, and if they failed we starved. Two of our hunters having killed a deer and broiled a part of it, saw a young woman descend from the clouds, and seat herself on a hill hard by. Said one to the other: 'It is a spirit, perhaps, that has smelt our venison; let us offer some of it to her.' They accordingly gave her the tongue. She was pleased with its flavor, and said: 'Your kindness will be rewarded; come here thirteen moons hence, and you shall find it.' They did so, and found maize growing; where her left hand had been, kidney beans; and where she had sat they found tobacco."

HE WHO PROVIDES IT ALL

William G. Sumner Gave Credit to the "Forgotten Man" for His Patient Industry.

Wealth comes only from production, and all that the wrangling grabbers, loafers and robbers get to deal with comes from somebody's toil and sacrifice. Who, then, is he who provides it all? Go and find him, and you will have once more before you the Forgotten Man. You will find him hard at work because he has a great many to support. Nature has done a great deal for him in giving him a fertile soil and an excellent climate, and he wonders why it is that, after all, his scale of comfort is so moderate. He has to get out of the soil enough to pay all his taxes, and that means the cost of all the jobs and the fund for all the plunder. The Forgotten Man is delving away in patient industry, supporting his family, paying his taxes, casting his vote, supporting the church and school, reading his newspaper and cheering for the politicians of his admiration, but he is the only one for whom there is no provision in the great scramble and the big divide. Such is the Forgotten Man. He works, he votes, generally he prays—but he always pays—yes, above all, he pays.—William G. Sumner.

CHANGED IN TIME'S COURSE

Formation of Quotation Marks Not Always Exactly as They Are Seen Today.

The use of quotation marks dates from about 1550. They were not common in books of the eighteenth century in England, and when they were introduced the English printers refused to accept the French form, which consisted of two parentheses at the beginning and end of the quotation.

When the English printers decided to use quotations, they substituted two inverted commas for the beginning and two apostrophes for the end of a quotation. Later, quotation marks in imitation of these, necessitating the setting of merely one type instead of two, were cast by certain founders.

In his "Practice of Typography," Theodore L. DeVinne in the chapter on "Correct Composition" uses nothing but quotation marks beginning with tails up and closing with tails down. He illustrates the use of the French method of double parentheses.

The introduction of quotation marks with tails down at the beginning of a quotation as well as tails down at the end is a comparatively recent innovation due to our appetite for novelty to create new forms.

In the old Ben Franklin type the beginning quotations had their tails up; in the Bodoni type of today the quotations have their tails down. The standard of American typographical practice as reflected by the trade publications as well as books treating of the subject shows in the beginning quotations have tails up and ending quotations have tails down, but the craft cannot prevent the introduction of idiosyncrasies.—Literary Digest.

USE FIREFLIES AS ORNAMENTS

Cuban Ladies Employ Them for Adornment—Give Light for Domestic Purposes in Haiti.

The most brilliant fireflies are found only in the warmer regions of the world. The ordinary firefly gives off a very much brighter light if placed in warm water. Fine print can be read by the light of one kind which is found in the West Indies. In Cuba the ladies have a fashion of imprisoning them as dress ornaments, and in Haiti they are used to give light for domestic purposes, eight or ten confined in a vial emitting sufficient light to enable a person to write. The fireflies seen so often on summer evenings in America are similar to the species of beetle called the glowworm in Great Britain, although the glowworm there does not give as much light as the firefly in America.

It is really only the female which is the firefly, for the male is not equipped with any lighting power. She seems to possess the power of moderating or increasing the light at will.

Houghton and Copper Industry.
Up to ten years ago the little shed in which Douglas Houghton made the experiments in metallurgy which later resulted in his demonstrating the copper possibilities of the upper peninsula of Michigan was standing in Fredonia, N. Y.

Houghton, son of a judge who was a pioneer of the town, was regarded as a phenomenally bright boy, and established a chemical and metallurgical laboratory when in his teens. Old residents tell of his once producing an explosion which nearly ended his career.

He became an instructor in chemistry in one of the colleges of the state at twenty-one, and was less than thirty years old when he was drowned in Lake Superior, after having been the means of establishing a mining industry that brought untold millions to Michigan.

Wideawake Snoring.
A group of women were in the dressing room of the Pullman, laughing good naturedly over having been kept awake all night by the snoring of their own husbands and the husbands of each other. The whole car had resounded with the mighty chorus throughout the night.

As they were making their way back to their seats again they heard their husbands talking.

"Didn't sleep a wink last night," one said.

"I never do on a sleeper," said a second.

"I knew every time the train stopped," said a third. (The train had made but one stop.)

And all agreed to a sleepless night, while the wives, poor dears, took comfort in the fact that no one husband was more truthful than the other.

Maryland Names.

Maryland cities and towns received their names largely from Indian tribes, their lodges once dotting the shores of Maryland's fine streams. The Maryland Academy of Sciences mentions the following tribes which have left their imprint on the state, although the names now in use have been changed somewhat: The Secowocomocs, the Patuxents, the Pamunkeys, the Yawcoomocs, the Patuxents, the Wighcomicos, the Nanticookes and the Delawares.—Baltimore News.

PARENTS OF NAVAL ORANGE

From Two Trees Has Grown an Industry Which Is Now Estimated in Millions.

From two lone orange trees, to which buds of the seedless "navel" orange of Brazil were grafted some years ago, has grown an industry which last year showed a net profit of some forty million dollars. Today one hundred and seventy-five thousand acres of California land is planted to navel oranges, which are set out in numbers ranging from 80 to 130 trees to the acre.

William Saunders, one-time superintendent of the government horticultural grounds at Washington, D. C., learned in 1870 that a new seedless orange had been developed at Buhai, Brazil, and procured 12 of the young trees through the aid of a missionary. They were brought to the United States and planted under conditions as nearly those of their native land as could be found, but they could not withstand the more rigorous northern climate, and they soon died. Buds had been taken from them, however, and grafted upon sprouts of native propagation. Two of these sprouts survived and were transplanted to the West coast in 1875.

From them have sprung the thousands of trees which have made the navel orange the foremost among the many varieties of oranges. Every year buds have been taken from them to impart navel characteristics to home-grown seedlings, and still though somewhat ravished by time, these patriarchs annually add their small quota to the thousands of bushels of fruit their offspring yields.

One of them stands just outside Riverside.

PASS UP ALL KINDS OF WORK

Masculine Natives of the South Sea Islands Cannot Be Brought to Do Any Labor.

The natives of the Marshall Islands, 50 years ago, before the advent of the missionaries, were typical savages of the South seas. They lived a natural wild existence, unburdened by clothes, and eating only what nature provided for them—coconut and the pandanus fruit. They had no houses. They lived under thatched roofs, supported at the four corners by poles.

Today the natives wear white linen suits. The stiff white collar seems to make their faces blacker than they really are, and to bring out the designs of the tattoo marks more clearly. They have schools and hospitals, which were started by those brave missionaries of half a century ago. Their chief is particularly modern. He lives in a house, and since Japan has taken possession he has a wireless station on his island, the island of Wotje. He even dictates to a stenographer, who sits on the floor with a typewriter between his legs. The natives are not so far modernized, however, that the men will bestir themselves to do any work. They do not believe in work. They leave work to the women. The hardest task the men perform is to carry around the babies. They do this so the women will have nothing to interfere with their work.

Plants Have Heart and Pulse Beat.

Plants have a heart and pulse and a "blood circulation" very similar to that of the animal world. This is the sensational discovery of Sir Jagardis Chandra Bose, the famous Indian botanist. According to Sir Jagardis, great quantities of water are absorbed daily by the average tree. This water is driven up to the very top of the tree and then breathed out again through the leaves. Experiments were carried out by Sir Jagardis at his botanical institute in Calcutta. He says there is no characteristic manifestation of animal life which could not be found in simple form in plants also. The plant has a heart beat and a "pulse" astonishingly similar to that of animals. Besides, it also reacts upon stimulation in almost the same way, and shows that it possesses a nervous system.

To Honor Congo Martyr.

A tablet is to be placed in one of the wards of a London hospital in honor of the Congo chief, Mandobi, who volunteered, when sleeping sickness appeared among his tribe, to go to England and submit to all the experiments necessary to determine the cause of this malady and to discover a remedy. For several months he permitted himself to be bled daily in order to supply material for the microscopists. At length the germ of the sleeping sickness was discovered; but almost simultaneously the volunteer subject of these researches paid for that discovery with his life.—The Living Age.

Barbarous Treatment of Prisoners.
Formerly, all prisoners were "ironed," even in their cells, and the irons used were of enormous weight. Up to the eighteenth century great weights like round shot were attached to the legirons, so that the wrenor could not walk unless he picked up the weights and carried them.

A PROCLAMATION

Issued by Governor Small of the State of Illinois

Whereas, the season of the year has come, when in accordance with the custom handed down to us by the Pilgrim Forefathers, we pause in our busy lives to acknowledge humbly and with thankfulness the blessings we enjoy as a people, and as a Nation;

The fourth year since the close of the Great War has marked a revival of business and industry thruout the land. We have safely passed through a period of readjustment which severely tried our political and economic structures, and the future holds for us bright promise of prosperity and peace. Our land has yielded a harvest sufficient for our needs, and to spare for others less fortunate. For all these Divine gifts we should be grateful, and it is fitting that we express in appropriate manner our gratitude to the Giver of all good; and

Whereas, the President of the United States, by proclamation, has designated Thursday, November 30, as a day of Thanksgiving.

Now, Therefore,
I, Len Small, Governor of Illinois do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 30th day of November, to be observed by the people of Illinois as a Day of Thanksgiving and I ask that on that day, in our homes and in our places of religious worship, we humbly and reverently give thanks to Almighty God for the manifold blessings which have been vouchsafed us during the year now drawing to a close. I suggest, as a further fitting observance of the day, the general display of our beautiful National ensign, and the holding of patriotic community Thanksgiving exercises, to the end that the spirit of patriotism may enter into our devotions and the ideals of American principles of self-government be inculcated anew in the minds and among us who will eventually seek hearts of our citizens and of those among us who will eventually seek American citizenship.

And, on this Thanksgiving Day, let us not be unmindful of distressed humanity in the Near East. There, as the result of age-old persecution, men and women and children are suffering in dire want. Food, clothing, shelter and medical supplies and attendance are urgently needed for their relief. The lives of thousands of fatherless and destitute children depend upon the help which must come largely from America. From the plenty with which we have been blessed, surely we can give a part to ameliorate the condition of these afflicted and sore beset people. America must lead in this humanitarian work, and Illinois will do its share.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of State to be affixed.

Done at the Capitol in the city of Springfield this seventeenth day of November in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-two, and of the State of Illinois the One Hundred and Fourth.

Irish Nature Faker. The following telegram, writes an Irish reader, was sent by a Western I. C. man from a outlying district to his sergent: "Motor just passed at furious rate in direction of town. Killed helper containing four gentlemen and two greyhounds, one of which was a clergyman."

But It's a Wrong Conclusion. The evil things, the materialistic things, the negative, destructive things, always make so much more noise than the forces of harmony and beauty that the average individual may be forgiven if he concludes that there is nothing but turmoil and discord and blatant vulgarity in the world.—Herbert Hagedorn.

The train came then, and he put me on board, and he kissed me again—but I was expecting it this time, of course. Then I whizzed off, and he was left standing all alone on the platform.

father of my little girl, and I think she should hear him speak. Therefore, Hattie, I intend to take her." And then she asked Grandfather again when Father was going to speak. I'm so excited! Only think of seeing my father up on a big platform with a lot of big men, and hearing him speak! And he'll be the very smartest and handsomest one there, too. You see if he isn't!

TWO WEEKS AND ONE DAY LATER

Father's here—right here in Boston. I don't know when he came. But the first day of the meeting was day before yesterday, and he was here then. The paper said he was, and his picture was there, too. There were a lot of pictures, but his was away ahead of the others. (I told you it would be that way.)

Mother saw it first. That is, I think she did. She had the paper in her hand, looking at it, when I came into the room; but as soon as she saw me she laid it right down quick on the table. If she hadn't been quite so quick about it, and if she hadn't looked quite so queer when she did it, I wouldn't have thought anything at all. But when I went over to the table after she had gone, and saw the paper with Father's picture right on the first page—and the biggest picture there—I knew then, of course, what she'd been looking at.

I looked at it then, and I read what it said, too. It was lovely. Why, I hadn't any idea Father was so big. It was prouder than ever of him. It told all about the stars and comets he'd discovered, and the books he'd written on astronomy, and how he was president of the college at Andersonville, and that he was going to give an address the next day. And I read it all—every word. And I made up my mind right there and then that I'd cut out that piece and save it.

But that night, when I went to the library cupboard to get the paper, I couldn't do it, after all. Oh, the paper was there, but that page was gone. There wasn't a bit of it left. Somebody had taken it right out. I never thought then of Mother. But I believe now that it was Mother, for—

But I mustn't tell you that part now. Stories are just like meals. You have to eat them—I mean tell them—in regular order, and not put the ice cream in where the soup ought to be. So I'm not going to tell yet why I suspect it was Mother that cut out that page of the paper with Father's picture in it.

Well, the next morning was Father's lecture, and I went with Mother. Of course Grandfather was there, too, but he was with the other astronomers, I guess. Anyhow, he didn't sit with us. And Aunt Hattie didn't go at all. So Mother and I were alone.

We sat back—a long ways back. I wanted to go up front, real far front—the front seat, if I could get it; and I told Mother so. But she said, "Mercy, no!" and shuddered, and went back two more rows from where she was, and got behind a big post.

I guess she was afraid Father would see us, but that's what I wanted. I wanted him to see us. I wanted him to be right in the middle of his lecture and look down and see right there before him his little girl Mary, and she that had been the wife of his bosom. Now that would have been what I called thrilling, real thrilling, especially if he jumped, or grew red, or white, or stammered, or stopped short, or anything to show that he'd seen us—and cared.

I'd have loved that. But we sat back where Mother wanted to, behind the post. And, of course, Father never saw us at all.

It was a lovely lecture. Oh, of course, I don't mean to say that I understood it. I didn't. But his voice was fine, and he looked just too grand for anything, with the light on his noble brow, and he used the loveliest big words that I ever heard. And folks clapped, and looked at each other, and nodded, and once or twice they laughed. And when he was all through they clapped again, harder than ever.

Another man spoke then, a little (not near so good as Father), and then it was all over, and everybody got up to go; and I saw that a lot of folks were crowding down the aisle, and I looked and there was Father right in front of the platform shaking hands with folks.

I looked at Mother then. Her face was all pinky-white, and her eyes were shining. I guess she thought I spoke, for all of a sudden she shook her head and said:

"No, no, I couldn't, I couldn't! But you may, dear. Run along and speak to him; but don't stay. Remember, Mother is waiting, and come right back."

I knew then that it must have been just my eyes that spoke, for I did want to go down there and speak to Father. Oh, I did want to go! And I went then, of course.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

First Known Use of Ink. The bureau of standards says that the earliest use of liquid which can be described as ink is found in the remnants of ancient Egyptian civilizations, going to be another big astronomy meeting here in Boston this month, just as there was when Father found Mother years ago; and Grandfather brought home word that Father was going to be one of the chief speakers. And he told Mother he supposed she'd go and hear him.

"Well, yes, I am thinking of going," she said, just as calm and cool as could be. "When does he speak, Father?"

And when Aunt Hattie pooh-poohed, and asked how could she do such a thing, Mother answered: "Because Charles Anderson is the

The Hopkins' Soil Bins

By E. E. TURK—Department of Agronomy.

Since comparatively few people know the nature or the purpose of the Hopkins' soil bins, it has been thought well to make a brief statement concerning this equipment at the University of Illinois, and the investigation which is being carried out by its use.

In the maintenance of most agricultural soils in humid climates at their maximum productive capacity, the supplying of nitrogen constitutes one of the most difficult problems for solution. One of the fundamental principles upon which the Illinois system of permanent soil fertility rests is that this element be supplied so far as possible by means of fixation by bacteria, from the inexhaustible supply in the atmosphere. Crop rotations have been planned in which it is believed that the nitrogen supply is adequately taken care of by the growth and proper use of legumes in the rotation. If this is true, the purchase of commercial forms of nitrogen is unnecessary. If it is not true, such purchase will ultimately become a necessity. To answer this important question was the primary object in view in the construction of the Hopkins' soil bins. In order to answer this question, it is necessary to know not only the nitrogen content of the soil, but also the amount of this element added to the soil in the manures, by legume fixation and by rainfall, as well as the total amounts removed in crops and in drainage water. In order to approach actual field conditions so far as possible, and yet provide for the accurate determination of nitrogen added to and lost from the soil, the soil bins were constructed.

These soil bins consist of 16 concrete bins, one rod square by one-half rod deep, so arranged that all of the drainage water from each may be collected, measured and sampled for analysis. They are filled with natural field soil made as uniform as possible and are subjected to field conditions with respect to natural environment, cropping system and cultivation. It is hoped, by means of the soil bins, that we may be able to answer the important question relating to the supply of nitrogen for the production of farm crops. At the same time similar studies may also be made with respect to other plant food elements that are subject to loss from the soil by leaching, such as calcium, sulphur and potassium.

A Forestry Survey

An economic survey of selected portions of the state, the object of which was to determine the place of forestry in Illinois and to outline a forestry policy for the state, has just been completed. One feature of the survey will be a determination of the value of the woodlands to the farmers, carried out by means of questionnaires which will be sent to selected farmers named by the county agents. An effort is being made to determine the value of the forest as a crop on land and the balance which should be maintained between forestry, horticulture, farming, grazing, etc. This involves several factors, such as stumpage value of timber, the amount which can be produced on different classes of soil, and the economic importance of wood in the different industries. A preliminary report will be published some time during the winter, but the completion of the survey will require a much longer time. It is believed the farm woodlot has great value in Illinois and that there are great possibilities in the line of education of the farmers by actual demonstration in the improvement of the woodlot. This involves some research and the carrying of the results of this research and experiment to the farmer through extension work, just as is done with other crops. Illinois, according to authorities, should be more concerned about forestry than some of the states which have a larger supply of timber, because she imports such a large per cent of her timber. The farmer is especially interested because more than 45 per cent of the timber produced in the country is used on the farm.

New Manure Bulletin

An average of 30 dairy cattle units per 100 acres of tillable land would be necessary in order to provide sufficient manure to annually cover one-fifth of the land at the rate of ten loads per acre, according to an investigation made by the University of Illinois. The data is presented in a new bulletin, No. 240, published by the university's experiment station.

The aim of this study was to ascertain with some accuracy the amounts of manure recovered and applied to the fields under general dairy farm conditions in Illinois, to show the common practice of progressive farmers in the utilization of manure, and to present data on the labor cost of hauling and spreading.

The data were derived from 224 farm records of one year each, and involve an aggregate amount of 65,471 loads of manure recovered.

The average amount of manure recovered annually was 6.0 loads for each of the 2,229 work animal units which were maintained on these farms. These amounts include both the clear excrement and the bedding.

With the system of manure management which was practiced on these farms, an average of 30 dairy cattle units per 100 acres of tillable land would be necessary in order to provide sufficient manure to annually cover one-fifth of the land at the rate of ten loads per acre.

Approximately one-third of the acreage of these farms was in corn, and to this one-third was applied two-thirds of the recovered manure. The greater part of the remaining one-third was applied to hay and small grain crops.

On the farms studied, nearly half (45.5 per cent) of the total amount of manure recovered was hauled during the months of March, April and May, and of this amount over 70 per cent was applied to corn. June, July, September and October were the months in which the least amount of manure was hauled.

The average amount of labor required in hauling and spreading a load of manure was 1.05 man hours and 2.10 horse hours. The labor per load was least during the months when the greatest amount of manure was hauled.

Sunflowers as Silage

Sunflowers have come into quite general use as a silage crop in regions in which successful corn raising is un- certain on account of insect pests or climatic factors. Reports from those who have fed sunflower silage to dairy cows indicate wide differences in the degree of success attending the results of the use of sunflowers for silage. With the object of ascertaining if possible, the cause of these differences and methods of overcoming the difficulties involved, the University of Illinois undertook an investigation which has recently been brought to a conclusion.

As a result of the data secured, it was concluded that under the field conditions obtaining at Urbana, sunflowers ensiled at a comparatively immature stage of development (that is, when twenty to twenty-five per cent of the plants begin to show the rays of their blossoms) make much better silage than those harvested at later stages of development, and there are no advantages, from the standpoint of a silage crop, to be gained by allowing the plants to become more mature. Some of the factors which led to this conclusion were as follows: Sunflowers ensiled at the immature state mentioned yielded silage which was more palatable than that produced from the more mature plants. The sunflower silage produced from the immature plants served to maintain the production of milk more nearly on a level with that of corn silage rations than did the sunflower silage from the plants ensiled at more advanced stages of maturity. The silage from the earliest cut plants proved more digestible than that from the later cut. Although the total amount of dry matter in the crop continued to increase somewhat until the seeds became mature, there was no significant increase in the crop yield of digestible nutrients per acre after the crop had passed the stage when about twenty-five per cent of the plants were in bloom. The corn crop, on the other hand, normally continues to increase rapidly in total digestible nutrients until the crop reaches the stage when it is ready to be put in the "shock."

The results obtained warrant the recommendation that where sunflowers are grown for silage under field conditions similar to those at Urbana the crop be ensiled before it has passed the stage when twenty to twenty-five per cent of the plants are in bloom.

Mrs. Linton Tells How Helpful Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is at This Period

Denver, Colorado.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for seven years and I cannot tell you the good it has done me. It is good for young and old and I always keep a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for Lydia E. Pinkham's help. My husband saw your ad. in the papers and said 'You have taken everything you can think of, now I want you to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.' So let him get it, and I soon felt better and he told me 'I want you to take about six bottles.' So I did and I keep house and do all my own work and work out by the day and feel fine now. I tell every one about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well.'—Mrs. R. J. LINTON, 1850 West 83d Avenue, Denver, Colorado.

After reading letters like the above, and we are constantly publishing them, why should any woman hesitate to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound if she is in need of help? It brings relief where other medicines fail.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

The common milk cracker or Boston cracker may be split, soaked in the ice water long enough to be filled with water—five minutes is sufficient; carefully drain, using a skimmer and put into a baking pan with a piece of butter on each. If to serve with a salad sprinkle with a little cheese or paprika; if for the afternoon tea, sugar and cinnamon; bake in a quick oven until puffy.

If eggs to boil in the shell are cracked, add a little vinegar to the water and they can be boiled satisfactorily.

When molding jelly rub the mold with olive oil and it will turn out very easily.

Add cooked oatmeal to hamburger steaks and sausage as well as meat loaf; it saves the meat and is not noticed in the mixture unless too much is added.

When rugs lose the sizing and become flimsy re-size them. The rug should be thoroughly cleaned, then spread face down on the attic or porch floor and tacked, stretching as tight as possible. Place a pall with two gallons of water, or less (depending upon the size of the rug) over the fire; when boiling hot add a pound of pulverized glue, sifting it in so that it melts without lumping. Boil for 15 minutes. Cool to lukewarm and spread over the rug, wetting any seams with an extra wetting. Iron out with a heavy iron. When dry the rug will be as good as new.

Just inside most furnace doors is a ledge large enough to accommodate a dish or two. Beans put into a pot or iron kettle may be baked here; potatoes to bake placed in a row near the coal, turned once will be baked in a short time. Furnace cooking is a heat-saver, and if one can cook a dinner with the heat on the ledge, the saving in gas or kitchen fuel is worth while. One must use utensils which can stand the heat, and with a few experiments many dishes may be cooked well in the furnace.

Democracy knows that every man's interest, rightly used, helps every other man's, and that men are never natural enemies.

Bake one hour.

Mix the sugar with the fat; add the milk and one slightly beaten egg, the dry ingredients, beat well, then add the broken nut meats. Pour into well-greased pan and cover with oiled paper. Steam for two hours.

Steamed Date Bread.—Take one and one-third cupfuls of cornmeal, one cupful of graham and one-half cupful of white flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cupful of sour milk, one cupful of sweet milk, one-half cupful of molasses and one cupful of dates finely cut. Mix well, steam three hours.

ALLIES UNITED ON NEAR EAST

To Fix Turk Peace Conditions Behind Closed Doors at Lausanne.

SECRET DIPLOMACY TO RULE

Political, Territorial, Financial and Economic Future of Turkey is Now Under Consideration in Switzerland City.

Lausanne, Nov. 21.—The big three of the Near East peace conference—Premier Poincare of France, Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary, and Premier Mussolini of Italy—have united upon a program, it was indicated at the opening of the conference.

Old-style diplomacy replaced the Wilsonian principle of "open covenants openly arrived at" for the making of the allied peace with Turkey. The Near East peace conference will be carried out in strictest secrecy on the demands of the allied delegations.

The press and public were admitted to the gambling rooms of the Casino, where baccarat and roulette formerly were played, while President Haub of Switzerland welcomed the delegates with remarks about "peace on earth and good will to men."

Lord Curzon remarked during the course of his response that he hoped peace would be concluded in two or three weeks, saying that the British delegation came in a conciliatory spirit.

Ismet Pasha, chief of the Turkish Nationalist delegation, said the Turkish people wished peace but demanded full liberty and complete sovereignty such as other free governments possessed.

No other public meeting will be held until peace is signed.

Female Leader and Her Chinese Buccaneers Seize British Ship—Wounded in Battle.

Hongkong, Nov. 21.—Stories of a female pirate leader and her desperate band of Chinese buccaneers, who seized the British steamer Sui-An, overcame the ship's crew after a singularly battle, and then escaped with all the cash and valuables on board, were related by the passengers who were landed from the vessel.

Throughout the piratical adventure the woman leader is said to have calmly directed the movements of her band and was wounded together with three of the buccaneers when the passengers and crew engaged them in battle.

The real fight on ship aid is in the senate, and the senate will not start consideration of the bill until the regular session.

Chef Had Plenty But He Could Hardly Eat

Even an expert chef for an up-to-date restaurant, with everything heart could wish in the eating line and the skill to prepare it in the most appetizing manner, finds life miserable and work a burden with his appetite gone and his health all broken up on account of stomach trouble.

According to his own statement, such had been the case for two years with William Lackey, 865 North Wells St., Chicago, Ill., chef at a popular North Clark St. restaurant, who says he recently found relief by taking Tanlac.

Mr. Lackey now boasts of a "wonderful appetite and a stomach that digests such things as ham and eggs, corned beef and cabbage, and rich pastries, foods that would have almost put me out of commission before I took Tanlac."

"Before I ran across this medicine," said he, "I was having to lay off from my work for a week at a time just on account of the numerous ills I suffered from indigestion. But when I tell you I have gained fifteen pounds, eat and digest anything, and am on the job every day feeling fine, you may know how I appreciate Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. —Advertisement.

The Boomerang.
My most embarrassing moment was at a family gathering where a lot of cousins, step-sisters and half-sisters were present. We had not met in several years and there was a little jealousy among us.

I heard them mention the name Marie several times, so finally asked: "Who is Marie? Is that Marie, with her name styled up to Marie?"

A sarcastic old aunt replied: "Yes, Maggie, just as yours is styled up to Marguerite."—Chicago Tribune.

SIGHS FOR REAL SUCCO-TASH
Oldtimer Deplores Fact That the Dainty Seems to Have Gone Out of Fashion.

When I was a boy I was very fond of succotash, and down in New England years ago we were told that it was made as the Indians made it, just pole beans and corn boiled together, and maybe it wasn't good!

In traveling around the country at various hotels I often ask for succotash especially at this season of the year when the beans and corn are just right, but what offerings are placed before me under the name of succotash!

In many parts of the country lima beans are used in making succotash but I don't think the Indians knew anything about lima beans.

Succotash, Johnny-cake, hockcake, apple turnovers, frizzled beef, do you remember them?—From a Letter to the New York Herald.

Airing Her Secret.
One evening I was to have a young man caller. As I didn't have a new dress and couldn't wear my old one, I finally succeeded in borrowing sister's.

MADE HER GRIEVANCE PLAIN
Woman Annoyed When Male Escort Got the Benefit and She Received the Abuse.

A woman had annoyed many people who were waiting in line for tickets on a Saturday afternoon at a railway station. The woman had come up at the other side of the window, and though she had been told to get in line, she had put down her money for two tickets and had obtained them at once.

"Just like a woman," muttered some of the men in line. But the woman turned to the man she had just joined and burst forth audibly:

"I don't think it's fair, Jim. You make me do that horrid trick of trying to beat the line because you say men never do such things. And women get the abuse. But I bet that every woman who does that has a man somewhere in the crowd who has insisted that she hurry."

Paper for Dark Room.

Modern photographic plates are so sensitive that often a screen of red glass in the dark room is not sufficient to prevent fogging. A French photographic expert gives the following prescription for making a paper screen, which is 50 per cent more effective than red glass: Take unsized paper and dip it thoroughly in 100 cubic centimeters of water containing six grams of tartrazine. Then pass it over blotting paper and dry it. To render the coloring matter more adherent, a little gum arabic may be added to the solution.

MADE HIM FEEL THE COLD
Young Man's Excellent Exemplification of the Power of Mind Over Matter.

The power of mind over matter has been discussed since mankind found itself.

Epictetus, the Roman slave, knew much about it; so did Marcus Aurelius; Bishop Berkeley of England had his theory; in our day and country it has been made much of by many persons. The latest advocate is Emile Cote, the French exponent of auto-suggestion.

Examples of this influence may be discovered anywhere.

In an elevator, for instance, two young men were discussing the weather.

"Pretty cold this morning," said one. "Not so cold," declared the other, throwing out his chest.

"It was 38 degrees by my thermometer," said the other.

"Gee!" shivered the second. "If I'd known that I'd a put on my overcoat."

Counter-Thread.

Little Tommy Boggs and the boy next door were having a row in the back yard. The neighbor had thrown a stone at Tommy, and the latter was making divers threats. "If you throw another stone at me," he finally yelled, "I'll set my dog on you!" "You will, will you?" retorted the neighbor. "Just you come into my yard and I'll sick my mother on you!" —Philadelphia Press.

How much sleep do you need?

IT isn't so much a question of the number of hours you spend in bed, as it is of the quality of the sleep you get. Is your sleep sound and restful, or is it fitful and unrefreshing?

One common cause of wakefulness at night is over-stimulation from coffee drinking. For coffee contains caffeine which irritates the nerves and frequently leads to insomnia.

If you have any idea that coffee keeps you awake at night, or makes you nervous, make a change from coffee to delicious Postum.

This pure cereal beverage contains nothing that can harm health, and its flavor is much like coffee. In fact, many people prefer Postum for its flavor alone.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

How to keep feed money out of the mud

Extensive tests prove that hogs fed on concrete feeding floors gain 80% more weight than hogs to which the same amount of feed is thrown on the ground. Isn't it time to stop throwing feed money into the mud?

You can easily build a good feeding floor at low cost with Marquette Cement. Figuring 15 sq. ft. for each hog, 150 sq. ft. of 4-in. floor for 10 hogs can be laid with only 13 sacks of cement, 1 cu. yd. of sand and 1½ cu. yds. of stone.

A curb on three sides of the floor will keep the feed where the hog can get it. One sack of Marquette Cement will build 4½ feet of curb, 4 in. higher than the floor and extending one foot in the ground. The above quantities are based on a 1:2:3 mix.

Marquette Cement will assure satisfaction on all your concrete work. See your Marquette dealer for construction details on any job you may have in mind.

"Death Valley" on Island of Java.

California is not alone in the distinction of having a "Death valley."

On the island of Java is an oval-shaped hollow, near the summit of a mountain, about 35 feet in depth and half a mile wide, which, from the deadly nature of its atmosphere, is known as the "Valley of Death," or the "Poison valley." The atmosphere is loaded with carbonic acid gas, and though not at once fatal to human beings, proves so to dogs or foxes.

The valley has seldom been explored much beyond the borders, as from there it is seen that the surface of the ground is strewn with the bones of tigers, pigs, deer and all kinds of birds, and also human beings.

Raleigh's Tobacco Box.

Sir Walter Raleigh was no niggard of his tobacco, if one may judge from the size of his box. It was cylindrical in form, about seven inches in diameter, and thirteen inches high; the outside was of gilt leather, and in the inside was a cavity for a receiver of glass or metal, which would hold about a pound of tobacco. A kind of collar, connecting the receiver with the case, was pierced with holes for pipes.

ANSWERS TO NUMEROUS QUESTIONS

from income derived from personal service, $1,000 to the head of a family plus $200 for each dependent child under 16 years, and $500 to one not a head of a family. Third, deductions to prevent taxation both of property and the income derived from property.

15. Q. Does either of the income tax provisions establish an additional tax?

A. No. The first provides a method by which the large amounts of securities and other intangible property which have heretofore escaped taxation may be reached for taxation without confiscation. The second provides a method whereby the legislature may provide an income tax. Such tax would not impose an additional burden upon the present taxpayer but would lessen that burden by deriving much of the state revenue from sources which do not now contribute. These provisions merely permit the legislature to enact such law.

16. Q. Does the new constitution establish an income tax?

A. No. It merely gives the legislature power to establish this form of taxation within the limits prescribed, provided the people of the state desire it.

Three Cities in One.

Peking is really three cities in one. There is an inner or Manchou city and an outer or Chinese city. The inner comprises the imperial city, which, in turn, contains the "Forbidden City," or the purple forbidden city, inside the walls of which again is the imperial palace. Peking itself is one of the oldest cities in the world, being known to exist in the Twelfth century before Christ, but although it is of immense size, being 25 miles in circumference, much of the space within the walls is unoccupied.

Asoka Sovereign of Ancient India.

Asoka of Magadha, whom H. E. Wells selected as one of the world's greatest men, was a sovereign of India who reigned 255 to 223 B. C. over the whole of northern Hindustan. He embraced Buddhism and forced his subjects to do likewise. Many temples and "stupas" in India are attributed to him. He wielded a powerful influence and was the "nursing father" of Buddhism, as Constantine was of Christianity. Asoka is often called "the king beloved of the gods" by natives of India.

Business Is Business.

A dozen or more men were waiting for arraignment in the detention pen of a New York city court. Among them was an old man who had been arrested for peddling suspenders without a license. He had a pile of suspenders hanging over his shoulders but he was not sitting down with the rest of the prisoners. He was busily trying to make a sale among them; in fact he did manage to get rid of one pair before he was called before the judge.

Sunset Joy.

What a sunset! How golden! How beautiful! . . . The sun just disappearing, and the narrow line clouds, which a few minutes ago lay like soft vapory streaks along the horizon, lighted up with a golden splendor that the eye can scarcely endure.

Another minute and the brilliant orb totally disappears, and the sky above grows every moment more varied and more beautiful as the dazzling golden lines are mixed with glowing red and gorgeous purple, dappled with small dark specks and mingled with such a blue as the egg of the hedge-sparrow. To look up at that glorious sky, and then to see that magnificent picture reflected in the clear and lovely Loddon water is a pleasure never to be described and never forgotten. My heart swells and my eyes fill as I write of it and think of the immeasurable majesty of nature and the unspeakable goodness of God who has spread an enjoyment so pure, so peaceful and so intense before the meagrest and the lowest of His creatures.—Mary Russell Mitford.
