LOST—A pair of gold frame glasses in a tin box. Leave at this office.

The election returns were received at the St. Paul depot Tuesday night and a large number were present to hear them as they came in. It was a very chilly atmosphere for the Democrats and but few remained. The result was so one-sided that but little interest was manifested.

Everything was comparatively quiet here Halloween through the efficient service of Officer Miller and his aids. It was not the fault of the boys however, for they had planned any amount of deviltry; but their plans did not seem to materialize—Dundee Hawkeye. 'Twas an entirely different state of affairs in Genoa. The boys made their plans and carried them out, but our—, well let it go at that.

Shoe Factory Pegs.

2481 were turned out last week. It was a good week considering lost time in putting in the engine.

B. Goldman was in Chicago last week.

C. Schwind is now working in the heel building room.

Jennie Patterson is back again after a short illness.

The ISSUE office has just completed a large order for the factory, among which was 50,000 "Top Notch" labels.

A MIGHTY AVALANCHE.

It was a slaughter, pure and simple. The reckless tinkering with the tariff, the enforced idleness of thousands of laboring men, the unfulfilled promises of the Democratic party, was the undoubted cause of this mighty avalanche. Every state that has ever given a Republican majority gave an increased majority Tuesday. The greatest of which is New York, with 150,000. Illinois, after two years of Democracy rolls out a protest of something over 125,000. Ohio, not to be outdone, adds her protest and goes Illinois 5,000 better. Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa roll up majorities that are simply bewildering in their magnitude.

Even Chairman Wilson, to whom the administration extended every aid in their power, went down in the awful whirlpool. The magnitude of Democracy's defeat is incomprehensible. Suffice it that the party has suffered a defeat that two years will not overcome.

Genoa's vote was exceedingly disappointing, as to total number of ballots cast. Out of a registration of some four hundred male voters, less than 254 votes were cast. The Prohibitionists got every vote that was possible, nearly overtaking the Democrat according to a comparison of the vote it shows a gratifying Republican gain over 1892, showing a general return to the ranks of the party.

The women polled about fifty-eight votes, 37 going to the prohibition candidates, 15 to the Republicans, 5 to Democrats, 3 to the People's party. Were it not for the women the People's party would not have received a vote in Genoa.

The following is the vote of Genoa in detail:

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies, without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by F. T. Robinson.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

THE GREAT LARAN REBELLION.

BY NYM CRINKLE.

(COPYRIGHT, 1894.)

CHAPTER I.

In the early autumn of 18— a young man who was registered at the Lexington (Ky.) military academy as Surden Bench, aged twenty-two, got up about three o'clock in the morning and, taking eight hundred dollars belonging to the academy and his fellow-students, decamped.

The significance of the circumstance at the time arose from the discovery of the deliberate and ingenious method pursued by Bench to accomplish his purpose. He had conceived some kind of a town celebration and induced the young men to write home for funds. He also succeeded in getting them to make him the depository of the money, which according to the books amounted to eight hundred and fifty-four dollars. He disappeared from Lexington and all the efforts of the faculty and the authorities to trace him failed.

It is now known that when he left the academy he struck across country to the Salt river, where he had a skiff in hiding, and presumably a negro confederate. With characteristic Kentucky impulse, the young men of the school held an indignation meeting and offered the eight hundred dollars to anyone who would capture him and turn him over to the authorities. This reward put upon his trail several western deputy sheriffs who tracked him to Cairo, Ill., where it was suspected that he had changed his boat, bought ammunition and supplies and set off down the Mississippi, traveling generally in the night and hiding in the bayous during the day.

Deputy Sheriff Col. Abner Pettingill, of Frankfort, published in the Louisville Journal a year later a communication setting forth that his party had tracked Bench to a bayou, somewhere between Tiptonville and Fulton, on the Tennessee shore, where the fugitive had sunk his boat and struck through the wild tract of country extending to what is known as the "Highland Rim," in Henderson county. This communication is curious in one statement. It says: "We discovered, after much tedious searching, the sunken boat and then struck his trail in the woods. We had not followed it far before we came to the conclusion that he was accompanied by a woman."

Col. Pettingill then states that it was his belief and the belief of his party that Bench met with an accident somewhere on the Rim, for all traces of him disappeared, and after camping out for two weeks in the wilderness and discovering no new trail the party returned.

The fact is Bench had accidentally discovered the Laran cave.

In his endeavor to escape from his pursuers, he had struck straight up the rim and in jumping from one of the concealed and worked out one of the most astounding and gigantic schemes with which the history of audacity and indomitable will makes us acquainted.

CHAPTER II.

He is not heard of again until five years have elapsed, and the second event of which it is necessary briefly to make mention here occurred exactly three months before he came to the surface in the furtherance of his vast project.

In the winter of 18— occurred the revolution in Venezuela known as the Vargas rebellion. A Spanish bark, the Valencia, carrying arms and supplies for the insurgents which had been bought in England, encountered a heavy storm while off the Gulf of Maracaibo, and springing a leak ran off past Point Gallinas, and the captain, in order to relieve his craft, threw overboard two four-inch breech-loading rifled steel guns, at a point called the Bahiata Bank. The mate of this vessel claimed to be an American and when the Valencia was captured two days later he managed to escape by connivance of the authorities and went straight to New Orleans. It is supposed that he met Bench there. At all events, he went back to Caracas as soon as the revolution was over and is victs, let his hand drop to his side with the letter in it. With the other he took off his glasses and looked at Mr. Kent with a broad smile.

"Why, bless your enterprising soul," he said, "that old alligator won't talk. You couldn't pump ten words out of him if you worked a month."

"Nevertheless," replied Mr. Kent, "I am here to make the attempt with your kind permission."

"Take a seat," said the governor. "I never heard that Laport was mixed up in politics."

Mr. Kent sat down. "Well, sir, it isn't generally known. But he is nevertheless the depository of certain secrets which to hold will no longer be of any service to him and which if he will give them away, as we say, will secure for him the influence of a number of powerful friends who can, if they set to work, get him a commutation of sentence."

Mr. Kent was evidently a clever talker; he was thoroughly posted in the political situation; he brought with him from New York a good deal of inside news and several rattling stories that were new. He candidly confessed that he had no stomach for this job and wanted to be back in the metropolis. But duty was duty and he'd have to make the attempt. He did not think he'd get much out of it, but if he did it would be a feather in the cap of the present administration and an additional plume for himself.

Mr. Kent talked so long that the governor invited him to take dinner with his family, and the guest proved such an interesting talker that Mrs. Ixte late in the afternoon proposed to the governor that it would be far more hospitable to have the gentleman stay with them than to go off to a hotel.

He played backgammon that night with the governor; sang the latest songs for Miss Ixte and accompanied himself on the piano; and he sat up till twelve o'clock talking politics and drinking the governor's whisky.

"LAPORT, HERE'S A GENTLEMAN WANTS TO TALK TO YOU."

known to have bought up, on some plea or other, the shells and ammunition originally shipped with the guns that were lost and for which the government had no use.

The guns, however, were not lost. They lay in plain sight on the Bahiata bank at low water, and, having been carefully sealed, had suffered little damage.

CHAPTER III.

Three months later Bench comes to the surface at the Moyamensing prison, now a federal penal establishment. He arrived there as the representative of an influential New York paper with a letter to the governor—the officer that under the old system we knew as the warden.

And here the story of the great conspiracy properly begins.

A card was brought to the official bearing the name of "Andrew Kent," with the title of the New York newspaper in the corner, and it was followed by a well-dressed man of about thirty, whose easy dignity and informal heartiness impressed the warden favorably.

"You are Gov. Ixte, I presume?" The governor smiled and said he was. "I am from the New York newspaper whose name you saw on the card. I have been sent on an errand which this letter will explain."

The governor put on his glasses and read the letter that was handed to him. It ran as follows:

"TO THE GOVERNOR OF THE FEDERAL PRISON, ETC., ETC.: The bearer of this, Mr. Kent, is connected with the staff of this paper and is sent to you to obtain, if possible, an interview with the prisoner Jean Laport, now under sentence for manslaughter. The interests of the political party now in power can be materially advanced if this man can be induced to talk, and, if possible, furnish some information concerning his confederates in a vast scheme to rob the government. It is assumed that the prisoner, who is virtually under a life sentence, can have no good reason for longer keeping silent, and it is thought by the managers of this paper that an adroit man, like the bearer of this, if furnished the facilities, may succeed in eliciting the information, which will be of great service in the coming campaign to the administration, of which you are a loyal adherent.

"Respectfully, etc., etc." Gov. Ixte, a plethoric and good-natured man when not dealing with con-

"I think I'll lock him up for a day or two. It will make him civil."

"I wish," said Kent, "you'd lock me up with him for half an hour. If I don't make any headway then, I'll give up the job and go back."

The next day the governor's family went to a church picnic and Kent accompanied them. He proved on this occasion to be the life of the little party. There seemed to be nothing that he could not do, from making an omelette in the woods to making a speech to the children. The governor was really quite proud of his guest.

Kent had now been three days inside the prison jurisdiction, and how well he had improved his time appeared afterwards. When they were coming home from the picnic he told Mrs. Ixte that he had overstayed his time and must finish up his business on the morrow. If the governor would lock him up with Laport he thought he could make the fellow confidential.

The upshot of all this was that on the fourth day Kent was taken to Laport's cell, carrying nothing but a pencil and pad which the governor had furnished him, and jocularly remarking as he was going through the corridor that they ought to search him first, for he might have some files about him and let that rascal out to teach the world a golden silence.

The governor laughed, as he now did at almost everything Kent said, and only remarked: "If he gets away from me, I'll take all the blame."

"All right," rejoined Kent, "but, as you value a human life, don't forget to let me out inside of the half hour. Make it twenty minutes."

They entered the cell together. Laport was sitting on the stone floor with his head between his knees. He neither rose nor looked up as they came in. The place was dimly lit by one embrasure. It was furnished with an iron pallet and a pail.

Kent went toward the light and looked at a large gold watch. "It is ten minutes of ten," he said. "Give me till a quarter past."

Laport looked up and addressed himself to the governor:

"Are you going to put this lunatic on me?" he said, "till I knock my brains out against these walls?"

"The best way to get rid of him," replied the governor, "is to treat him civilly. He doesn't want to annoy you, and he comes from some of your friends."

"Yes," said Kent, "you can treat me confidentially. The governor is going to leave us together for a few moments. If you will answer some of my questions I can be of service to you."

Laport dropped his head between his hands. The governor gave a shrug and turned to the door. "I've heard of squeezing pig-lead out of a sponge," he said. "It's holiday work to squeezing that old bundle of serap-iron."

"For God's sake, don't forget me when the time's up," said Kent, and sat down on the iron bed.

The governor then went out. Kent heard the great bolt shot with an iron clang.

"Now then," he said so that the Governor could hear him on the other side of the door if he listened. "This is the last chance I've got to talk to you, my friend. If you will tell me what I want to know it will secure you the influence of powerful friends."

He listened. He heard the retreating footsteps of the governor in the corridor. He sprang softly but quickly to the iron door and put his ear down. The governor was some distance away.

Laport looked up with something like a momentary interest in the strange actions.

A FUNNY SIGN.

The Joke That an American Had on an Englishman.

A certain Philadelphia gentleman of more name than fame was ordered by his physician to travel for the benefit of his health.

He went to England, and after tiring of bumping through London he decided to hire a trap and see the beauties of interior England in dignified ease and luxury.

Just then he fell in with a hearty, good-natured Englishman, and as they soon became fast friends, the American invited the other to attend him on his coaching trip.

The son of John Bull accepted, and during the days of pleasure that followed, each frequently and in a joking manner improved every occasion to laud his own country and express his contempt of the other.

On the evening of the fourth day, as they were driving along a dusty road, the American pulled the horses up suddenly and proceeded to read a sign: "To Manchester twenty miles," and underneath were the words: "If you cannot read this sign apply for information at the blacksmith shop."

"Well, I'll be darned!" said the American. "If that isn't the most ridiculous sign I ever saw!"

"Jove, old man," replied the Englishman, "that sign is all right, isn't it? I don't see anything the matter."

"You don't, eh? Well, then, you just sleep over it and see what you think in the morning."

The next morning the Englishman came down beaming.

"I say, old man," he said, wisely, "that was a funny sign to put up, for don't you see the blacksmith might not be in after all, you know."—Boston Budget.

A POOR SHOT.

An Indian Territory Sheriff Bungles an Execution.

Failing to Put a Bullet Through a Murderer's Heart, He Smothers His Dying Victim by Holding His Nostrils.

SOUTH MALESTER, I. T., Nov. 5.—Silas Lewis, the condemned Choctaw murderer, was shot at Wilburton at 10 o'clock Monday morning by Sheriff Pursley. The bullet from the sheriff's Winchester missed the condemned man's heart by an inch, passing through his body, and he had to be strangled to end his sufferings.

Sheriff Pursley anticipated trouble, having just before the execution received a telegram from Lewis' friends threatening vengeance, and had over 100 heavily armed men at the scene. Arrived at the place of execution, Lewis offered up a prayer, following it with a short talk. He then pulled off his coat, vest and boots and the sheriff painted a cross over his heart. Lewis then sat down and was blindfolded, and while two men held his hands the sheriff retraced his steps 5 feet and fired. The bullet went through the murderer's body, but had missed its mark, and Lewis, throwing back his head, sank groaning to the ground, the blood spurting from the wound. To end the horrible work the sheriff was finally compelled to take hold of the man's nose and smother him to death. He lived thirty minutes after being shot.

Twenty-six of the Indians are under indictment for the same murder for which Lewis was executed. When they come to trial trouble is anticipated, as their sympathizers are aroused. Lewis was 54 years old. He had been given frequent chances to escape, because of the sheriff's dread of carrying out the law, but refused to take advantage of them.

[During the political troubles of 1892 between the Jones and Jackson parties, and right on the heels of the election in which Jackson was defeated by what his party declared fraudulent means, four Jones men were murdered in Gaines county by Jackson men, who were led by Lewis and others. It had been determined to assassinate the leading Jones men in every county in the nation, and men were appointed to carry out the plans, but failed to act in every county except Gaines.]

SUING FOR PEACE.

China Asks the Powers to Put a Stop to the War.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Central News says: "There is reason to believe that China has resolved to formally ask the powers which have immediate commercial interests at stake to stop the war. The Chinese minister is said to have communicated the request to the foreign office in London Monday afternoon. Monday evening he started for Paris to seek interviews with M. Hanotaux, minister of foreign affairs, and President Casimir-Perier."

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Daily News has information that China is suing for peace—in fact, has instructed her envoys in Europe to submit to the powers the terms which she is willing to offer. It is a formal renewal or repetition on a larger scale of the overtures made to the British government a month ago.

The News expresses again its approval of Lord Rosebery's effort for joint intervention and speaks regretfully of the reluctance of the powers to see the matter in the same light. It says:

"No European government can desire to see this disastrous conflict prolonged. Even the United States, despite the Monroe doctrine, must be concerned for the regularity and security of their trade with Japan. Sooner or later—and better sooner than later—there must be an international settlement. It will be difficult to contend that interference will be premature now."

The Graphic has this dispatch from Rome: "According to a telegram from Peking, China is disposed to conclude peace upon the basis of the acknowledgment of Corea's independence and the payment of an indemnity to be fixed by the powers. The powers who are willing to support this arrangement are requested to intervene."

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Daily Chronicle says: "If China desires peace, she should address her request to Japan and not to Europe. However unpleasant that task may be, it is to the victors that the vanquished must appeal."

SHANGHAI, Nov. 6.—The Chinese troops under Gen. Sung have evacuated Chin-Lien-Cheng and now occupy the mountain pass on the road to Peking. Orders have been given to all military commanders to defend Peking at all hazards. The Japanese are marching northward, aiming to get behind Gen. Sung's army. It is expected that all foreigners will be requested to leave Peking within a fortnight.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Special dispatches received here from Tokio say that all idea of a Chinese raid upon the Japanese coast has been abandoned and that orders have been issued to remove the torpedoed from Tokio bay. Navigation into the harbor is now declared to be free. The decree forbidding the sale of gunpowder in Japan has been cancelled.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A dispatch from Corea says that an engagement took place October 15 at Ah Sung, southward of Seoul, between Korean and Japanese soldiers and a body of Tonghak rebels. The Koreans and Japanese attacked the rebels. The combined forces lost 150 killed and many seriously wounded.

"I HAVE BEEN SENT ON AN ERRAND WHICH THIS LETTER WILL EXPLAIN."

upturned cretaceous strata he had landed upon a depression which gave way beneath his weight and he fell perpendicularly into a crevice twelve feet deep. This crevice has since become famous as the Laran portal.

At its bottom he discovered the descent which led to the arena and having exploited the place, he and his companion lived there until the following winter. As soon as he felt satisfied that the search was given over, he sent the woman out for supplies and built a brush house over the opening to conceal it from the negroes who brought them game and provisions.

They must have remained in and about the Laran cave very nearly three months.

In that time Bench made a very thorough investigation of it and prepared maps and topographical diagrams of the surrounding country. Some of these drawings may now be seen at the Government museum at Rock Island, and, considering the rude means at Bench's command, they are singularly careful and accurate specimens of cartography.

In those three months Bench had

I'm a Democrat.—Hill. I'm elected —Morton.

We did not tell you so but of course we expected it.

THE People's party expectations were rudely shattered.

PECK's Bad Boy outbursts can soon be expected from Wisconsin.

FROM Massachusetts to California it's only a question of the size of the majority.

WERE it not for two more years of Algeidism we could be reasonably contented.

WE are satisfied with Franklin McVeagh's ability as a groceryman. So are the voters.

A LANDSLIDE is but a mild expression when speaking of the Democratic defeat Tuesday.

AND Chairman Bill Wilson and his little bill did not receive that endorsement so earnestly desired. With that other Willie from Kentucky he can truthfully say, "I knew not that it was loaded."

THE ISSUE is well aware that to advise republicans generally to be kindly and courteous and thoughtful and delicate to democrats just now is hardly necessary, for Republicans are good of heart naturally, but to the few thoughtless a word or two may not be out of place. Let us deal gently with the erring. Democrats are not always to be blamed for being Democrats. The shape of their heads has most to do with it, and they are not responsible for the shape of their heads. Let us remember all, in this season, when their little mouths are full of Dead-sea apples and their little ears hear only the paeans of victory of the other side, and when they don't know whether or not life is worth the living, but rather think it isn't.

Let us be kind to the Democrats. If not as high in the scale of human life as are some other creatures, they still have a degree of feeling. Having knocked them down and jumped on them once or twice, so to speak, let us not insist on rolling them in the mud—that is, not a great deal. Let us be sorry for them. Let us when we meet them smile pleasantly, but in a restrained sort of way, just to show that we appreciate their situation but are too noble and magnanimous to add torture to their misery. THE ISSUE trusts that even the most thoughtless of republicans will bear this advice in mind.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours without any interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at F. T. Robinson's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Four Big Successes.

Having the needed merit to more than make good all the advertising claimed for them, the following four remedies have reached a phenomenal sale. Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, each bottle guaranteed—Electric Bitters, the great remedy for liver stomach and kidneys. Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world, and Dr. King's New Life Pills, which are a perfect pill. All these remedies are guaranteed to do just what is claimed for them and the dealer whose name is attached herewith will be glad to tell you more them. Sold by F. T. Robinson.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale by F. T. Robinson.

HALLOWE'EN.

According to ancient history Hallowe'en, is derived from the vigil of Hallowmas or All Saints Day. Tradition has it that Hallowe'en was regarded as a season at which the faeries were both unusually active and unusually propitious.

There is no question about activity.
Had the same amount of labor been required of the observers in a proper channel it would have taken several days to have accomplished the amount that was done. It was no fairy forms that pulled up sign posts, nor moved out-buildings blocks away, oh, no, they were of more substantial mould.

Had ancient observers of this night or old neck himself been on the scene last Wednesday night they would have received some pointers on a 19th century observance of the epoch.

Cussedness pure and simple, with unrestrained hands was let loose, and never, outside of certain sections in Arkansas, did such a scene meet the eye of the early riser as did Main street last Thursday morning. Pigs in the parlor were a full dress reception as compared to it. It was ludicrous if disgusting.

It is needless to moralize now. The proper time was before, and was in the hands of the village authorities.

Schiller Theatre.

The production of the great emotional and historical drama, 'Charlotte Corday,' now running at the Schiller theatre, by Mrs. Potter, Kyrle Bellew and their accomplished dramatic company, has resulted in a popular hit.

That it would achieve an unusual, and indeed, a signal success was anticipated by those familiar with the rare genius, personal beauty of Cora Urquhart Potter, while Kyrle Bellew, in impressive and finished dramatic illustration never disappoints. 'Charlotte Corday' is a great subject, strong in its supremely human, even tender interest, and developed upon a plane of exalted sentiment. The unhappy life of the beautiful and unfortunate heroine of the French Reign of Terror, patriotically devoted as she was to her distracted country, even to the sacrifice of her life upon the guillotine, to preserve its liberties, furnishes the beautiful and accomplished representative American actress Mrs. Potter, with an inspiring theme a supremely fascinating dramatic figure.

Kyrle Bellew, who plays the tyrant Jean Paul Marat, the most brutal of all those tyrants who plunged France into the bloodiest epoch of her revolution, makes of the character a marvelously complex and realistic creation, a despotic tyrant yet abject coward 'Charlotte Corday' is a drama which for intense interest and effective dramatic illustration is remarkable.
It is a realistic stage picture the like of which is seldom seen, indeed rarely equalled. The action of the play is exceptionally well wrought out. The first act discloses Charlotte Corday in her quiet country home; the second shows her in the studio of David, the painter, to whom she is posing for his picture of 'Judith'; the third carries the development of the story to the assassination of Marat in his house, stabbed to death in his bath by Charlotte, she having gained admission to his chamber by subterfuge; the fourth act reveals her in prison under sentence of death, the drama concluding with a tableau of the guillotine scene.

The play is splendidly mounted upon the Schiller stage. The scenic illustration and stage accessories with which it is presented are very elaborate, and the production as a stage picture is most strikingly effective.

The company of players supporting Mrs. Potter and Mr. Kyrle Bellew this season is one of great efficiency and furnishes for this most interesting play an admirable cast.

Robert Mantell: That popular actor of the romantic school, Mr. Robert Mantell, supported by his own company, will on Sunday the 13th of November commence an engagement for one week at the Schiller. He will be seen in repertory of his strongest and most attractive plays, "Monbars,"
"The Corsican Brothers," "The Marble Heart," and a new play "Parbasius" in which he has recently made an immense success.

Among the recent visitors we are pleased to record the names of Mrs. F.
H. Jackman and Mrs. John Patterson.
We are always glad to see those who are interested in the welfare of the schools.

The reading circle will meet this Thursday evening at 7:30 at Prof.
Overaker's. Let there be a full attendance.

The Superintendent now hears three classes daily from the Primary department. This is to assist the teacher in this grade who has entirely too much work. Will the good people of Genoa, give us more room next year?
We must have it or else lower the standard of our school.

The class in literature are quite enthusiastic. They have made a special study of American poets and are now reading selections from the masterpieces of James Russel Lowell.

A Pleasant Evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Swan very pleasantly entertained a number of friends on election night. Various amusements and refreshments aided the company in enjoying an evening of pleasure. Those participating were: Messrs. and Mesdames Ira Brown, J. D. Page, and G. E. Sisley, Miss Nellie Johnson, Miss Nora Mlana, Ernest Sisson, Walter Taylor and T. F. Sholes.

Mrs. W. D. Kable, of Kirkland,
Miss Emma Kable, of Rockford, Miss Anna Prescott, of Shannon, and Miss Kate Perry, of Forreston, were the guests of Miss Mae Burroughs last week Thursday.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhea of long standing in six hours, with one bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer.
Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is very pleasant to take. For sale

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square-Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, conditions in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 10 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $250.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and feat of the day.
Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies.
Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

A Graphic Picture of the Future Life in Heaven.

The Agonies and Perplexities of This World Unknown and Unfelt There, But to Gain this Reward One Must Repent.

Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is now nearing the close of his globe-circling tour and will shortly reach American shores, selected as the subject of this week's sermon through the press: "Victory Over Pain," the text being:

Neither shalt there be any more pain.—Revelation, xxi. 4.

The first question that you ask when about to change your residence to any city is: "What is the health of the place? is it shaken of terrible disorders? what are the bills of mortality? what is the death rate? how high rises the thermometer?" And am I not reasonable in asking, What are the sanitary conditions of the heavenly city into which we all hope to move? My text answers it by saying: "Neither shall there be any more pain."

First, I remark, there will no pain of disappointment in heaven. If I could put the picture of what you anticipated of life when you began it, beside the picture of what you have realized, I would find a great difference. You have stumbled upon great disappointments. Perhaps you have expected riches, and you have worked hard enough to gain them; you have planned and worried and persisted until your hands were worn and your brain was racked and your heart faint, and at the end of this long strife with misfortune you find that you have not been positively defeated, it has been a drawn battle. It is still tug and tussle—this year losing what you gained last, financial uncertainties pulling down faster than you build. For perhaps twenty or thirty years you have been running your craft straight into the teeth of the wind.

Perhaps you have had domestic disappointment. Your children, upon whose education you have lavished your hard-earned dollars, have not turned out as you expected. Notwithstanding all your counsels and prayers and painstaking, they will not do right. Many a good father has had a bad boy. Absalom trod on David's heart. That mother never imagined all this as twenty or thirty years ago she sat by that child's cradle.

Your life has been a chapter of disappointments. But, come with me, and I will show you a different scene. By God's grace, entering the other city you will never again have a blasted hope. The most jubilant of expectations will not reach the realization. Coming to the top of one hill of joy, there will be other heights rising upon the vision. This song of transport will but lift you to higher anthems; the sweetest choral but a prelude to more tremendous harmony; all things better than you had anticipated—the robe richer, the crown brighter, the temple grander, the throng mightier.

Further, I remark, there will be no pain of weariness. It may be many hours since you quit work, but many of you are unrested, some from overwork and some from dullness of trade, the latter more exhausting than the former. Your ankles ache, your spirits flag, you want rest. Are these wheels always to turn? these shuttles fly? these axes to hew? these shovels to delve? these pens to fly? these books to be posted? these goods to be sold?

Ah! the great holiday approaches. No more curse of taskmasters. No more calculation until the brain is bewildered. No more pain. No more carpentry, for the mansions are all built. No more masonry, for the walls are all reared. No more diamond cutting, for the gems are all set. No more gold beating, for the crowns are all completed. No more agriculture, for the harvests are spontaneous.

Further, there will be no more pain of poverty. It is a hard thing to be really poor; to have your coat wear out and no money to get another; to have your flour barrel empty, and nothing to buy bread with for your children; to live in an unhealthy row, and have no means to change your habitation; to have your child sick with some mysterious disease, and not be able to secure eminent medical ability; to have son or daughter begin the world, and you not have anything to help them in starting; with a mind capable of research and high contemplation, to be perpetually fixed on questions of mere livelihood.

Poets try to throw a romance about the poor man's cot; but there is no romance about it. Poverty is hard, cruel, unrelenting. But Lazarus waked up without his rags and his diseases, and so all of Christ's poor wake up at last without any of their disadvantages—no almshouses, for they are all princes; no rents to pay, for the residence is gratuitous; no garments to buy, for the robes are divinely fashioned; no seats in church for poor folks, but equality among temple worshippers. No hovels, no hard crusts, no insufficient apparel. "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them nor any heat." No more pain!

Further, there will be no pain of parting. All these associations must some time break up. We clasp hands and walk together; and talk and laugh and weep together; but we must after awhile separate. Your grave will be in one place, mine in another. We look each other full in the face for the last time. We will be sitting together some evening, or walking together some day, and nothing will be unusual in our appearance our conversation; but God knows that it is the last time, and messengers from eternity, on their errand to take us away, know it is the last time; and in Heaven, where they make ready for our departing spirits, they know it is the last time.

Oh, the long agony of earthly separation! It is awful to stand in your nursery fighting death back from the couch of your child, and try to hold fast the little one, and see all the time that he is getting weaker, and the breath is shorter, and make outcry to God to help us, and to the doctors to save him, and see it is of no avail, and then to know that his spirit is gone, and that you have nothing left but the casket that held the jewel, and that in two or three days you must even put that away, and walk around about the house and find it desolate, sometimes feeling rebellious, and then to resolve to feel differently, and to resolve on self-control, and just as you have come to what you think is perfect self-control, to suddenly come upon some little coat or picture, or shoe half worn out, and how all the floods of the soul burst in one wild wail of agony! Oh, my God, how hard it is to part, to close the eyes that never can look merry at our coming, to kiss the hand that will never again do us a kindness. I know religion gives great consolation in such an hour, and we ought to be comforted; but anyhow and anyway you make it, it is awful.

On steamboat wharf and at rail-car window we may smile when we say farewell; but these good-byes at the death-bed, they take hold of the heart with iron pincers, and tear out by the roots until all the fibers quiver and curl in the torture and drop thick blood. These separations are wine-presses in which our hearts, like red clusters, are thrown, and then trouble turns the windlass round and round until we are utterly crushed and no more capacity to suffer, and we stop crying because we have wept all our tears.

On every street, at every door-step, by every couch, there have been partings. But once past the heavenly portals, and you are through with such scenes forever. In that land there are many hand-claspings and embracings, but only in recognition. That great home-circle never breaks. Once find your comrades there, and you have them forever. No crape floats from the door of that blissful residence. No cleft hillside where the dead sleep. All awake, wide awake, and forever. No pushing out of emigrant ship for foreign shore. No tolling of bell as the funeral passes. Whole generations of glory. Hand to hand, heart to heart, joy to joy. No creeping up the limbs of the death chill, the feet cold until hot flannels can not warm them. No rattle of sepulchral gates. No parting, no pain.

Further, the heavenly city will have no pain of body. The race is pierced with sharp distresses. The surgeon's knife must cut. The dentist's pincers must pull. Pain is fought with pain. The world is a hospital. Scores of diseases like vultures contending for a carcass, struggle as to which shall have it. Our natures are infinitely susceptible to suffering. The eye, the foot, the hand, with immense capacity of anguish.

The little child meets at the entrance of life manifold diseases. You hear the shrill cry of infancy as the lancet strikes into the swollen gum. You see its head toss in consuming fevers that take more than half of them into the dust. Old age passes, dizzy and weak and short-breathed and dim-sighted. On every northeast wind come down pleuritis and pneumonias. War lifts its sword and hacks away the life of whole generations. The hospitals of the earth groan into the ear of God their complaint. Asiatic cholera and ship fevers and typhoids and London plagues make the world's knees knock together.

Pain has gone through every street and up every ladder and down every shaft. It is on the wave, on the mast, on the beach. Wounds from clip of elephant's tusk and adder's sting, and crocodile's tooth, and horse's hoof, and wheel's revolution. We gather up the infirmities of our parents and transmit to our children the inheritance augmented by our own sickness, and they add them to their own disorders, to pass the inheritance to other generations. In A. D. 262 the plague in Rome smote into the dust five thousand citizens daily. In 544, in Constantinople, a thousand grave-diggers were not enough to bury the dead. In 1813 ophthalmia seized the whole Prussian army. At times the earth has sweltered with suffering.

Count up the pains of Austerlitz, where thirty thousand fell; of Fontenoy, where one hundred thousand fell; of Chalons, where three hundred thousand fell; of Marius' fight, in which two hundred and ninety thousand fell; of the tragedy at Herat, where Genghis Khan massacred one million six hundred thousand men, and Nishar, where he slew one million seven hundred and forty-seven thousand people; of the eighteen million people this monster sacrificed in fourteen years, as he went forth to do as he declared, to exterminate the entire Chinese nation and to make the empire a pasture for cattle.

Think of the death throes of the five million men sacrificed in one campaign of Xerxes. Think of the one hundred and twenty thousand that perished in the siege of Ostend, of three hundred thousand dead at Acre, of one million one hundred thousand dead in the siege of Jerusalem, of the one million eight hundred and sixteen thousand of the dead at Troy, and then complete the review by considering the stupendous estimate of Edmund Burke—that the loss by war had been thirty-five times the entire then present population of the globe.

Go through and examine the lacerations, the gunshot fractures, the saber wounds, the gashes of the battle-ax, the slain of bombshell and exploded mine and falling wall, and those destroyed under the gun carriage and the hoof of the cavalry horse, the burning thirsts, the camp fevers, the frosts that shivered, the tropical suns that smote. Add it up, gather it into one line, compress it into one word, spell it in one syllable, clank it in one chain, pour it out into one groan, distil it into one tear.

Ay, the world has withered in six thousand years of suffering. Why doubt the possibility of a future world of suffering when we see the tortures that have been inflicted in this? A deserter from Sebastopol coming over to the army of the allies pointed back to the fortress and said: "That place is a perfect hell!"

Our lexicographers, aware of the immense necessity of having plenty of words to express the different shades of trouble, have strewn over their pages such words as "annoyance," "distress," "grief," "bitterness," "heartache," "misery," "twinge," "pang," "torment," "affliction," "anguish," "tribulation," "wretchedness," "woe." But I have a glad sound for every hospital, for every sick room, for every lifelong invalid, for every broken heart. "There shall be no more pain." Thank God! Thank God!

No malarias float in the air. No bruised foot treads t at street. No painful respiration. No hectic flush. No one can drink of that healthful fountain and keep faint-hearted or faint-headed. He whose foot touches that becometh an athlete. The first kiss of that summer air will take the wrinkles from an old man's cheek. Amid the multitude of songsters, not one diseased throat. The first flash of the throne will scatter the darkness of those who were born blind. See the lame man leaps as a hart, and the dumb sing. From that bath of infinite delight we shall step forth, our weariness forgotten. Who are those radiant ones? Why, that one had his jaw shot off at Fredericksburg; that one lost his eyes in a powder blast; that one had his back broken by a fall from the ship's backyards; that one died of gangrene in the hospital. No more pain. Sure enough, here is Robert Hall, who never before saw a well day, and Edward Payson, whose body was ever torn of distress, and Richard Baxter, who passed through untold physical torture. All well. No more pain. Here, too are the Theban legion, a great host of six thousand six hundred and sixty-six put to the sword for Christ's sake. No distortion on their countenance. No fires to hurt them, or floods to drown them, or racks to tear them. All well. Here are the Scotch Covenanters, none to hunt them now. The dark cave and imprecations of Lord Claverhouse exchanged for temple service, and the presence of Him who helped Hugh Latimer out of fire. All well. No more pain.

I set open the door of Heaven until there blows on you this refreshing breeze. The fountains of God have made it cool, and the gardens have made it sweet. I do not know that Solomon ever heard on a hot day the ice click in the ice pitcher, but he wrote as if he did when he said: "As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

Clambering among the Green mountains I was tired and hot and thirsty, and I shall not forget how refreshing it was when, after awhile, I heard the mountain brook tumbling over the rocks. I had no cup, no chalice, so I got down on my knees and face to drink. Oh, ye climbers on the journey, with cut feet and parched tongues and fevered temples, listen to the rumbling of sapphire brooks amid flowered banks, over golden shelvings. Listen! "The Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them into living fountains of water." I do not offer it to you in a chalice. To take this you must bend. Get down on your knees and on your face, and drink out of this great fountain of God's consolation. "And lo! I heard a voice from Heaven, as the voice of many waters."

—Lieut. Guyot, of the French army, who recently rode on a bicycle to Constantinople and back, had a hard experience in Turkey, where he was only able to make thirty miles in three days. In that time he had nothing to eat but four hard-boiled eggs with vinegar, and muddy water with a little raki to drink. The natives insisted on getting upon his machine, and he had great trouble with the dogs. In Bulgaria there were no roads at all, though some were pegged out, and the mud was very sticky. He rode one thousand eight hundred and sixty miles without stopping, except to eat, sleep and have his machine mended, yet he was seventy-three days on the way.

trustworthy and interesting information, has sent this dispatch: "The czar died at 2:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon. He was fully conscious. When he felt that his last hour was approaching he asked for extreme unction. This was administered by Father Ivan, who afterward conversed with the dying man for some time. The czar next asked that his family should gather around him. He spoke with each member separately, but at the greatest length with the czarina. He then gave all his blessing.

Allegiance to Nicholas II. "Finally he bade all farewell. Little by little he grew weaker. His voice at last became hardly audible. Soon after he passed away quietly. The oath of allegiance to Nicholas II. was then administered to the whole family, and at 4:30 o'clock cannon were fired to announce the fact to the world. "The entire Seventh army corps will pay military honors to the dead emperor when the body shall be embarked at Yalta. The train from Odessa to St. Petersburg will stop at every important station, where the local garrison will be drawn up to render military honors to their dead commander. "The czarina is quite broken down and the doctors are again fearful that her health may not withstand the weight of her grief." Officially Notified. WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Prince Cantacuzene, the Russian minister, received the following telegram from M. De Giers, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, Thursday afternoon: "St. PETERSBURG, Nov. 1.—It has pleased our Lord to recall to Him our much beloved sovereign. Alexander III. died at Livadia this afternoon, the 20th October (1st November) at 2:15."

Prince Cantacuzene formally forwarded a copy of the telegram to the department of state.

Upon receipt of the official notification of the czar's death Mr. Adce, second assistant secretary of state, acting secretary during the illness of Secretary Gresham, called upon Prince Cantacuzene and conveyed verbally to him the condolence of the president and secretary of state. A formal letter of condolence from Secretary Gresham will later be sent to him.

Victoria Deeply Moved. LONDON, Nov. 3.—News of the czar's death reached Balmoral castle at 7 p. m. Thursday. The queen was not surprised as she had been informed of every phase of the czar's illness, nevertheless she was deeply moved when she learned that the end had come. She sent a long telegram to the czarina, and issued to the court officials the usual instructions as to mourning.

The News in Paris. PARIS, Nov. 3.—The first news of the czar's death came to Paris in an official dispatch to the foreign office. It was simply that the czar was dead, and was conscious to the last. The dispatch was shown at once to President Casimir-Perier. He read it, laid it down, and after a long silence said: "He was France's strong and loyal friend."

William Hurras for the New Czar. BERLIN, Nov. 3.—At a banquet Thursday night Emperor William announced that he had received news of far-reaching gravity, the death of the czar. "He was mindful of our ALEXANDER III. The famous one-armed military leader will retire from active service during the month of November. He was born in Leeds, Me., Nov. 8, 1830, graduated from West Point academy July 1, 1854; served through the Seminole Indian revolt in Florida, 1855-57, and distinguished himself for bravery from the beginning to the end of the civil war. Later he conducted several successful campaigns against the Indians in the west. In 1888 he was placed in charge of the military division of the Atlantic, with headquarters at Governor's Island, N. Y. Gen. Howard has always been an active worker in religious and temperance fields. His success as an author has also been remarkable. Three colleges have conferred on him the degree of LL. D.

traditions," he added, "which in times bound us into brotherhood to the Russian imperial household and in recent times again brought us together. With our sympathy for the new emperor we couple the desire that Heaven may give him strength for his difficult office. Long live Emperor Nicholas II. Hurray!" The band then played the Russian anthem.

The Dead Monarch. Alexander III., emperor of Russia, was the second son of Alexander II. He was born March 10, 1845. The death of his older brother Nicholas left him czarowitz, or heir apparent to the throne. In 1869 he married the Danish Princess Dagmar, sister of the princess of Wales. Their first child, Nicholas Alexandrovich, who will be the next czar, was born May 12, 1868. When the nihilists killed Alexander II. in 1881 the Russian monarchy was so severely shaken that no attempt was made to celebrate the coronation of the new emperor. In 1883, however, Alexander III. was crowned at Moscow with ceremonies, the splendor of which will never be forgotten.

Frequent attempts were made on Alexander's life, the most serious being that of April, 1887, when he was fired at by an army officer at Gatchina. Although the pistol was discharged at close quarters, the czar escaped uninjured. The would-be assassin was arrested, and his examination led to the discovery of a plot, implicating over 800 persons. A little later a military plot to kill Alexander was discovered in the Caucasus, and as a result over 100 army officers were arrested. The chief conspirator proved to be a staff officer who had served more than thirty-five years and whose breast was covered with decorations. The last years of the czar's life were a real burden. Frequently he awoke in the morning and found daggers or pistols lying on his pillow. Once a skull and crossbones were drawn in chalk on the headboard of his bed. Although his entire entourage was changed several times these ghastly warnings never failed to appear. The strain finally proved too great, and after a severe trial of thirteen years the czar's nervous system succumbed to the secret intimidations of his enemies.

Politically the czar was reactionary. He believed in the principles of autocracy, and early in life joined the Pan-Slavist party, whose motto is "Russia for Russians." He antagonized Germany and formed an alliance with France. The darkest blot in his history was his persecution of the Jews, thousands of whom were deprived of their property and forced to emigrate.

A NOBLE FIGHT.

Eminent Southern Lawyer's Long Conflict with Disease.

Twenty-Five Years of Prosperity, Adversity and Suffering. The Great Victory Won by Science Over a Stubborn Disease.

[From the Atlanta, Ga., Constitution.]

Foremost among the best known lawyers and farmers of North Carolina stands Col. Isaac A. Sugg, of Greenville, Pitt Co., a man who has been on the edge of eternity and whose life had been measured by minutes.

"It has been twenty-two years since I became a resident of this town," said Col. Sugg, in telling his story to a reporter, "even then the first symptoms of Gravel were asserting themselves but were slight. Gradually, however, my disease developed, and fight it as I would it seemed to gain a stronger foothold day by day until my misery was complete. For sixteen years I never knew what it was to be free from pain, not pain as an ordinary man thinks of it, but agonizing, excruciating, unendurable pain. Tortured from head to foot, at times thrown into spasms when it would require the united strength of four men to hold me until I was stupefied with stimulants and opiates. I could not sit, lie or stand in any one position but the shortest time. Sleep was out of the question unless brought about by the strongest stimulants or opiates. Oh how many, many times have I thought of putting an end to that life of suffering. But then my mind would revert to my wife, my children, my home, and I would restrain my hand with the hope that some other means of escape would be offered. I searched the archives of medicine for relief. Doctors were consulted, lithia waters, mineral waters, drugs, opiates and stimulants of all sorts were tried without avail. Why I sent clear to the West Indies for medicine and yet the result was the same.

"I kept at my work as long as I could but nature gave way at last and I succumbed to the inevitable. My entire nervous system had been shattered by the stimulants and opiates I had taken, my blood had actually turned to water, my weight had dropped from 173 pounds to 123, and it seemed to everybody that the end was in sight. Why I could not bear the gentle hand of my wife to bathe my limbs with tepid water. I was simply living from hour to hour. I had made my will, settled my business and waited for the last strand of life to snap.

"It was at this time that a somewhat similar case as my own was brought to my notice. This man had suffered very much as I had, his life had been despaired of as mine had and yet he had been cured. Think what that little word meant to me—CURED. The report stated that the work had been accomplished by a medicine known as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I investigated the report thoroughly and found that it was true in detail. Then I procured some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began taking them and began to get better. I began to sleep like a healthy child, sound, calm and peaceful. My appetite came back and my nerves were soothed and restored to their normal condition and I felt like a new man. But the greatest blessing was the mental improvement. I began to read and digest, to formulate new plans, to take interest in my law practice, which began to come back to me as soon as my clients realized that I was again myself. After a lapse of 10 years I ride horseback every day without fatigue.

"That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life is beyond doubt, and I am spreading their praise far and wide."

Inquiry about the town of Greenville substantiated the above facts of Col. Sugg's case, and that many others are being benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are considered an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or 6 boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100 by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

A DISRESPECTFUL PRINCE.

He Played Leap Frog with a Dignified Village Justice.

When Louis, prince of Conde, who afterward became a great general of France and one of the most famous men of the seventeenth century, was a boy at school at the Academy Benjamin, he excelled in gymnastics and also in a certain kind of personal audacity. As the future head of one of the most powerful princely houses of France, he was much courted and "toddied to"—a circumstance which did not greatly please his boyish disposition.

One day he was met on the road to school by the village justice, who made him an extremely low bow, and, remaining in the bowing attitude, began a sort of oration to the young prince.

Louis did not care to go away and leave the functionary in this attitude; but he did worse. Placing both hands on the shoulders of the obsequious townsman, he jumped clear over him, a la leap-frog, and brought up behind him.

Upon this the justice turned about, bowed again, but not so low as before, and recommenced his oration; whereupon the young prince once more put his hands on the great man's shoulders and leaped over his head.

This time the orator did not resume his discourse, but went down the street grumbling.

At this time Conde was sixteen years old; and when we read, in connection with the incident, that in the very next year he was given an important military and political command in Burgundy, we are not surprised to learn that he became an arrogant and tyrannical man. All his circumstances and education had tended to spoil him.—Youth's Companion.

SLAIN BY FIENDS.

Two Little Children of an Ohio Farmer Murdered by Brutes.

PAULDING, O., Nov. 6.—A terrible crime was committed near this city Sunday night. George and Nellie Good, aged 9 and 8 years respectively, children of Samuel Good, who lives about 3 miles north of Paulding, were found by a searching party Monday morning in the woods near the house with their throats cut from ear to ear, their bodies terribly lacerated and blackened from a fire started with the object of removing all trace of the crime. Sunday afternoon the Good children were playing in the road near their home, and wandered into a near-by wood. They failed to return at supper time, and could not be found by their parents. At dark a searching party was organized and the search continued throughout the night, but no trace of the little ones was found until 8 o'clock Monday morning when a party of men found the bodies in a brush heap 40 rods from the road and less than a mile from their home. The little girl's head was pounded to a pulp, her throat cut and she had been disemboweled. The little boy's head was nearly severed from his body, which was terribly mangled. The sight was a most revolting one, and caused the men of the party to go mad with rage. The little bodies had been tied together with a tarred rope and thrown into the brush, which had afterward been fired, but owing to a heavy rain was too damp to burn and only blackened the mangled bodies.

There was but one theory advanced as a cause for the crime, and that was that the little girl had been outraged and then murdered, and her companion killed to prevent his telling the awful tale. Sheriff Staley arrived upon the scene at 10 o'clock and arrested Charles Hart, aged 19 years, a boy who resides near the Good home, on suspicion. Hart is an illiterate boy, and by some considered insane. His arrest was due to his strange actions at the time the bodies were found. Leo Cain, a negro, 21 years of age, who lives with a family named Jackson, and who has been a companion of Hart's, was also arrested and placed in jail.

Paulding was quickly filled with men who were talking wildly of lynching the arrested persons. Judge Snook and leading citizens made an effort to quiet the mob by delivering numerous speeches on the streets. At 3 o'clock Monday afternoon a bloodhound was sent to the scene, but there was little hope of its being able to do anything to throw any light on the crime. The attitude of the mob continued to grow more and more threatening, and the prisoners were quietly slipped out of town and sent to Van Wert for safe keeping.

FOUND GUILTY.

Ben Clendennin Convicted of Murder at Charleston, W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 6.—The trial of Ben Clendennin, charged with murdering Dr. J. W. Davis, near Montgomery, August 9, resulted Monday in his being convicted of murder in the first degree. A new trial was asked for. It was well established that the killing of Dr. Davis was the result of a conspiracy on the part of the miners who took part in the battle with Wyant's men at Eagle during the strike there last March. Many men were wounded and Dr. Davis was their physician. They feared his testimony against them in the trial which was then in progress and at which the murdered man was to testify the next day. Davis was waylaid on a lonely mountain road and shot as he passed in his buggy.

SEVEN SHIPS ABLAZE.

With Their Cargoes of Cotton They Are Fired by Incendiaries.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 6.—Flames broke out Monday night in six British cotton ships in the harbor almost simultaneously. Six hours later a seventh fire was discovered, also in a British cotton ship. The ships were the Skidby, Baltimore, Castlegarth, Stag, Delgarth, Petunia and Armenia. In the hold of one of the vessels was found some phosphorus, which gives a clew to the fires, which are thought to be of incendiary origin, due to trouble between shipbrokers and union loaders. A total of about 4,000 bales of cotton were damaged, and the loss is estimated at $65,000.

A JURIST WEDS.

Associate Justice White, of the United States Supreme Court, Gets Married.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Mr. Justice White, of the United States supreme court, and Mrs. Linden Kent, the widow of a prominent Washington lawyer, were married Monday at the church of St. Francis Xavier, New York city, by Rev. Father Fulton, S. J. The nuptial mass was said by Rev. Father Murphy. The ceremony was strictly private.

RESULT OF A QUARREL.

Resident of a Cleveland Suburb Kills His Wife and Himself.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 6.—Humphrey Johnson, a well-to-do farmer in Collinwood, a suburb of Cleveland, shot and killed his wife, thirty years his junior, Monday afternoon, and then committed suicide by the same means. He was somewhat penurious, and she was liberal in spending his money. Their quarrels were frequent and ended in the tragedy.

Finding Fault.

The winds refused to blow; "No use," said they, "to try, From north, or south, or east, or west These folks to satisfy. The north wind 'is too cold' The west wind, 'bold and rough.' The east is 'chilly,' they complain; The south, 'not cool enough!'" And so the windmills stopped, The ships lay idly by, The sun beat down from morn till night Because no clouds could fly. The people sighed for wind; "Blow hot or cold," said they, "From north, or south, or east, or west, 'Twill be the wisest way!" —Youth's Companion.

Fronting the Sun.

Take to thy cheerless soul the lesson taught By the wise groom, in that far Orient day When all in vain the emperor made essay To mount the mettled charger, which had caught Sight of its own weird shadow as it lay Exaggerate behind. "Tis this has wrought His restless frenzy. When his face is brought To front the sun, his fright will pass away." Turn thus, disheartened one, and face the light Of God's clear shining, and the darkness cast by thy own fears shall all be overpast; And, standing in His radiance, thou shalt find That fear has vanished in the effulgence bright, And that the shadow has been left behind. —Margaret J. Preston, in S. S. Times.

Tommy.

All the sadnesss elsewise life Darkens not my maiden life When Tommy smiles; Serious moods are changed to gay— Care and worry speed away When Tommy smiles! Little cupid's jerk the bow, Showing dazzling teeth below, When Tommy smiles; And those cupid's, sans disguise, Peep from out his handsome eyes When Tommy smiles! I know a heart that's light as air, Singing, dancing everywhere, When Tommy smiles; Whose it is you could not guess— So this much will I confess; Tommy smiled—at me! —Sara Stafford, in Chicago Record.

KINGSTON.

Miss Minnie Arbuckle, of North Kingston, was quite sick last week.

B. P. Penn has been taken down a peg or two by the scholars of the high school as they have made a distinction between janitor and chief law giver, and he is now just as harmless as any other colored man, without a razor.

Not much damage was done here on Halloween night, except the moving of the Kishwaukee R. to the south part of town, and the carrying to the C. M. & St. R.'s depot to Chapmanville. The boys also amused themselves by tangleing up things at the school house.

Master Edmund Holmes concluded that as he had but one birth day in a year, he would celebrate the close of the first decade of his existence by giving his numerous playmates a party on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weber were very pleasantly surprised at their home on last Thursday evening by a large company of young people from Kingston and Mayfield. The young people report a rousing good time and before departing to their many homes, presented to host and hostess a cane rocker and a silver set of knives and forks.

S. F. Mauck, Geo. Sexauer, and C. B. Chalmers were initiated into the Knights of the Globe last week.

Mr. Pierce, of Chicago, will visit his family for Mrs. W. F. Walker, of this place for a short time.

Ellis Mayne, of Galesburg this state and P. R. Gibbs, of Iowa, came here last week on the account of the serious illness of Mrs. Gibbs, who is at her son's home in Charter Oak.

Rev. E. J. Rees returned Thursday of last week from his trip to Canton where he has been visiting friends and relatives. His wife and daughter will return the last part of this week.

Col. L. H. Whitney, of Chicago, was out here over Sunday visiting relatives and friends.

The floors of the Fellon's building are groaning under the weight of the large stock of ladies' cloaks, coats and shoes and gent's furnishing goods placed in the building by Ed Brown. He did a good business last Saturday and he expects to enlarge it very much next week, as the bargains he offers cannot be resisted.

The last of the series of wells, which is being dug on the corner of Main and Second St., will soon be finished and then the water supplies of our village will be almost inexhaustible in case of fire.

Mrs. J. W. Foster and Martin Dunbar went to Oregon, Ogle Co, last Friday, to visit the family of W. Foster at that place. They returned on Tuesday.

As the attendance of tuition pupils at the High school is being increased. The school board were obliged to purchase new seats. The number of county pupils is greater than ever before.

Martin Dunbar came near losing a hand while grabbing north of town. He got one of the fingers of his glove caught in a pulley and one of his fingers was drawn in and smashed quite badly.

Hiram Clark visited the family of Brakeman Gre., at Byron on Saturday.

Mrs. Pond and daughter, Jessie visited M. W. Con and family over Sunday.

A three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Larsen, of Mayfield, was buried in Sycamore, on Sunday.

H. G. Burgess now succeeds O. B. Chalmers as night operator at this place.

Mrs. V. G. Gilder, of Sycamore, visited her daughter Mrs. John Thurston last week.

Ira Harper was attacked quite suddenly with hemorrhage of the lungs last Sunday. He is much improved at this writing.

The youngest and only remaining daughter of Rev. Brown, of Cherry Valley, who is well known to the Baptist audience here was married to a popular young man at that place last week.

There will be a union service at the M. E. church next Sunday evening as Mrs. Emma Norton, of Marengo, will address the audience in behalf of the W. C. T. U. She will also address the ladies of the W. C. T. U. on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All ladies are invited. She is an excellent speaker and will interest all.

O. S. Lowe is entertaining two young nephews from Iowa.

Miss Vera Walker will give an elocutionary entertainment at the Baptist church, at Cherry Valley, on Friday evening, Nov. 9th.

OBITUARY.

Eugene Mann was born in Burlington, Ill., October 19, 1870, and departed this life, after a short illness, on the morning of October 31, 1894, being 24 years and 12 days old.

At the age of twelve years he came to Genoa where he resided with his parents about five years when he, with his family, returned to Burlington.

He graduated in Genoa and his school days were marked by unusual manliness and high aims.

During his residence here he was converted, while yet a boy, baptised and received into the M. E. church by M. W. Satterfield, then pastor at this place, and upon removing to his birth place, where he has since resided, he was transferred to the M. E. church of Hampshire.

Since his conversion, he has always been an active worker in all the departments of the church, and in his death the Methodist society has lost a kind brother, zealous and earnest in the advancement of all its interests.

He was widely and favorably known and his sudden death was a great shock to all who knew him. His life though short, was one of exceptional purity, and worthy of the highest imitation. Always cheerful, genial and kindly disposed, none knew him but to love him, and all mourn his death feeling they have sustained a personal loss.

His funeral services, which took place at Burlington, Nov. 3, were conducted by his old pastor, M. W. Satterfield, and were attended by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends from Burlington, Genoa, and the surrounding country.

The M. W. of A. of Hampshire, of which he was a member, attended and took part in the services.

The floral decorations were unusually tasteful and appropriate. A beautiful piece, representing "The Gates of Hell," were presented by his home Sunday School.

He leaves a wife and son, a father a mother, and two sisters to mourn his loss.
