

SCHOOL OPENS

SEPTEMBER 6

Pupils Will Report to the M. E. Church

EIGHT TEACHERS ON THE FORCE

A Few Notes Written by Principal, H. Mackenzie, regarding the Year's Work of 1921-22

School will open Tuesday morning, September 6, for the fall term. The new building will not be completed in time for the opening, so classes will meet in the Methodist church and the manual training work will be continued at the pumping station for the present.

The high school course covers six years from the seventh through the twelfth grades, and offers work in the regular academic subjects, wood work, domestic science and agriculture. The new building will provide opportunity for physical culture for boys and girls. There are eight teachers on the force. Graduates are admitted to the University of Illinois upon certificate.

Pupils living in Genoa Township are admitted to the High School subject to evidence of ability to carry the work offered. Ordinarily, promotion from the sixth grade will be accepted as satisfying the entrance requirement. The right is reserved, however, to examine any applicant for admission and to set back any whose preparation proves to be inadequate for the work undertaken. Pupils of more than average ability will be permitted to advance as rapidly as possible, although they will be encouraged to cover a wider range of work rather than to finish the high school course in less time.

Pupils living outside of Genoa township are admitted upon the same conditions, and the payment of tuition charges of $5.00 per semester due in advance. The school year of 180 days is divided into two semesters of three terms each.

There will be a few changes in the curriculum. In the ninth grade a course in American History and Civics three days a week, and in the tenth grade biology will be required. A course in World History will be given in the tenth grade, and plane geometry will be advanced to the eleventh year. Three units of English will be required instead of four. A course in Social Problems will be offered in the twelfth year.

The review class in the seventh grade will be concerned with the fundamentals in arithmetic and English, with particular emphasis on silent reading. Pupils who plan to take Latin are asked to commence it in the seventh grade. If they do not continue it beyond the eighth, they will not lose high school credit by dropping it then, and if they carry Latin thru the ninth grade work in Caesar they will receive one credit toward graduation for the seventh and eighth grade work. In this way they will get extra credit, and at the same time a better foundation in Latin, and the benefit of training in vocabulary and grammar in connection with their English grammar, by beginning Latin in the seventh grade.

For graduation from the high school students are required to complete 16 units of the work offered in the four upper grades and to maintain a satisfactory record in school activities. Of the 16 units, 3 must be in English, 3 in one of the other academic courses—i. e., history, mathematics, science or Latin—and 2 in another with 2 more from any of these five. The remaining 6 credits may be chosen from any of the subjects offered. One unit of credit is given for a year's work requiring preparation outside of the class and recitation five times a week, or the equivalent.

Pupils planning to attend college should study the college entrance requirements and decide their electives early in the high school course. Studies may be changed or dropped only upon permission of the Principal.

Parents are invited to consult the Principal with regard to the election of courses, and to visit classes. Punctual and regular attendance is essential to school success, and parents are requested to co-operate with the school by insisting upon a systematic schedule of home study and by preventing interruption through social engagements on school nights.

THE USE OF LICENSE MONEY

Investigation to Gather in Half Million Dollars

Reports of the work done by the automobile investigators during the month and a half since they were appointed under the new law passed by the last general assembly, indicate that nearly half a million dollars in license fees which has been escaping in the past will be brought into the state treasury through this agency. In every community visited by the investigators up to this time, according to the automobile department of Secretary of State, Louis L. Emmerson's office, the number of applications for chauffeur's licenses has increased 100 per cent and there has been a large increase also in applications for duplicate plates where license plates have been lost and for additional license plates where one owner operates more than one car.

When the new law was passed giving Secretary of State Emmerson power to appoint investigators with authority to make arrests for the violation of automobile laws, it was estimated that collections from automobile and chauffeur licenses would be increased by this means to the extent of $250,000. Indications now are it is claimed, that this figure will be greatly exceeded. The state good roads fund will benefit, as a result, for all money collected from this source goes directly into this fund.

Investigators are finding, it is said, that the law relative to chauffeur's licenses has been very laxly observed in practically every community in the state. Under the law no body under 18 years of age is permitted to drive a car or truck for hire, and every person who drives a car or truck must have a chauffeur's license. This applies to the delivery boy, to the clerk in the store who occasionally drives the delivery truck, to the taxi driver, the service car driver, and to all truck drivers who operate for hire.

"Another provision of the automobile laws which is not fully observed," Walter W. Miller of the automobile department said, is the section relating to the use of dealer's licenses. The licenses are issued for the convenience of automobile dealers, and can legally be used only on cars offered for sale or for demonstration purposes. A great many dealers, investigators find, are re-using dealer's licenses on service cars and cars let out for hire. This is clearly a violation of the law. Cars used in this way must have individual license plates.

"The investigators also are after drivers who have but one license plate on their cars. Some persons who own two cars have avoided buying two sets of plates by using one plate on each car. The law requires a license plate both on the front and on the rear of every car, and if one of the plates is lost, application for a duplicate must be made at once to the secretary of state."

DEKALB GETS MORE

Chronicle: According to Engineer Lamb, of the highway commission of the state of Illinois, there is a good possibility that the highway work north and south of DeKalb and also east to the cement may be begun this year. It is stated that the contracts are to be awarded August 23, and as the season is early, the state officials believe that there will be nothing to hinder the beginning of the work at once, and completion of a great part of it before snow flies or cold weather compels a letup.

This work consists of building the road between the cement on south Fourth street leading to the Waterman road and also on the Sycamore road to the C.M. & G. tracks which connect with the hard road leading into Sycamore. Should these roads be started this fall and there is every probability they will, DeKalb will soon be on two routes which lead out of the city onto cement roads.

It is also stated that a proposition has been made to the highway authorities that if the township of Clinton and Afton will share the expense, a shoulder of gravel will be laid along the cement road leading to Waterman.

A. D. STERN GETS JUDGMENT

A. D. Stern through J. N. Finnegan, his attorney, entered up a judgment note against Martin Thorsen on Monday for $532.09. The note was given to Stern & Lucas for $1,075 and had been paid down to the confessed amount. It was made payable in Kirkland, Illinois. It's date was December 11, 1920, and was payable six months after date.

STOCK MEN

MAKING PLANS

Committee to Meet in Chicago to Discuss Conditions

STOCK MARKET IS GLUTTED

To Form a National Association of Co-operative Live Stock Producers

Live stock producers of Illinois and every other state in the union, will be asked to send representatives to Chicago in September to help out the details of the new national live stock marketing plan of the Committee of Fifteen, according to a report received today by the DeKalb County Farm Bureau from the Illinois Agricultural Association.

The Committee of Fifteen is a body of fifteen agricultural experts selected by the American Farm Federation who began work last February to study the live stock marketing situation. After seven months of investigation, aided by the Government, they have presented a new co-operative live stock marketing plan which will be put into effect as soon as it is approved by producers. The plan is briefly as follows:

1. A national association of co-operative live stock producers with headquarters in Chicago. Belonging to this association; terminal live stock commission association at the various live stock markets of the country. Belonging to these terminal associations; local co-operative live stock shipping associations.

2. No contract to be signed by producer by a board of not less than seven, nor more than fifteen directors, chosen by producers. The terminal live stock commission associations are to provide for producer-owned and controlled co-operative live stock commission firms at the markets where they are needed. Subsidiary to each of these firms will be a stocker and feeder company, from which the patronage dividends will be propagated back to the consignee-member. The usual commission charge will be levied by the commission firms, but all earnings will be probated back among producers.

3. No contract to be signed by producers is contemplated. A conference is to be called in Chicago on Sept. 2 with the object in view of standardizing local co-operative shipping associations the country over into an ideal form of organization not more than three producers representing each state, these producers to submit advice and suggestions to the Committee of 15.

4. Producers of the United States are to be asked to attend a ratification conference at a date to be set between Oct. 15 and Nov. 1, to consider the plan of the Committee of 15 and to offer suggestions.

H. W. Mumford, director of the live stock marketing department of the Illinois Agricultural Association and W. J. Carmichael are the two Illinois members of the Committee of Fifteen.

A producers-owned and controlled co-operative live stock commission firm will be established at once at the East St. Louis Stock yards. Mr. Mumford is on the committee to help select the board of directors for it and set up the firm in operation.

THE PUBLIC STRIKES, WHY?

A farmer feeds a hog 7 1/2 bushels of corn to make 100 pounds of pork, but he pays 1 1/2 bushels of corn to buy a pound of bacon.

A farmer bought a pair of shoes with a cowhide last year. Today if he ships a cowhide he is worse off than nothing.

A farmer is now glad to get $1 for five pounds of wool, enough to make a genuine all-wool suit, but it costs him 630 pounds of wool to buy a suit.

Last year six bushels of corn would buy a ton of coal. Today that ton costs 35 bushels.

Last year a bushel of corn bought five gallons of gasoline. Today it buys a little more than two gallons.

MARK WESTLAKE IN HOSPITAL

Well Known Farmer Living in this Vicinity Injured in Car Crash

Mark H. Westlake, the well-known, extensive farmer living four miles south of Genoa, had a miraculous escape from instant death, and lies at the Sainal hospital at Milwaukee suffering from injuries the exact extent of which are not known. They are the result of a strange accident that occurred in that city last Friday night. John Lowe, who was with Mr. Westlake, escaped with minor injuries.

The two men had driven to Milwaukee with Mr. Westlake's large farm truck, loaded with a tractor engine and heavy jack, to have the tractor repaired at the factory where it was manufactured, which is located in Milwaukee. Arriving there just before quitting time, they drove into the unloading platform, which they did before the engine could be unloaded from the truck, the working force quit for the night, and as the terrific storm of Friday night was then on the two men decided to wrap up in blankets and sleep in the truck rather than go to some distant hotel.

At midnight or later a switch engine crew cut out a loaded freight car and switched it on to the private track of the factory in which the two men were sleeping. The car that was thus cut out refused to stop when shunted off on the private track, due to a defective brake, and went crashing through the doors and walls of the building, striking the truck in which the two men were sleeping driving it and the men through the walls of the stone building.

The truck was completely demolished. The tractor engine, which weighs a half ton, was lifted from its base and thrown across the body of the truck. The heavy jack was tossed about as an egg shell. Mr. Lowe was the first to awaken as the loaded freight car came crashing through the building, and how he jumped to safety he cannot tell.

Mark Westlake was thrown thru the walls with the demolished truck, and when he attempted to rise found that he had been injured. He was taken to the emergency hospital and then to the Sainal hospital at Milwaukee.—True Republican.

CLEVER SWINDLER

Fine Looking Stranger Uses Novel Method and Gets By With It

True Republican—A swindler whose method is unique has been working in several places in Illinois, his victims including banks in large and small cities.

A fine looking man enters a city makes inquiry to rent a home in order to engage in business; looks up a teamster and acquaints him with his plans, displaying a bill of lading for a carload of personal effects, on which freight is paid from a southern Illinois city to a northern one.

Then follows introduction to a banker with a request to cash a check of from $300 to $1000, the bill of lading being exhibited, made out in railroad style. The bank exercises every ordinary precaution, but once in a while fails for the smooth guy, who sometimes represents himself as a barber, again as a fruit dealer.

The swindler has been able to get by with sufficient forged paper to arouse banking house insurance companies to keep detectives on his trail. Thus far he has been able to evade them, but he has been operating only a short time, it is stated.

PRODUCER'S COMMITTEE MEETS

The advisory committee appointed at Monday's meeting of twenty-one locals of the Milk Producers' co-operative Marketing company supplying the Bowman Dairy company plants met today with the executive committee in Chicago to go over future plans.

The committee appointed at the meeting held in Dundee included Professor Larson of the Illinois Agricultural association and W. McDonald of Hampshire. At yesterday's meeting the Bowman company had no representatives and had no answer to the marketing company delegates' demands for the elimination of non members. Another meeting will be held next Monday.

FOR ONE CENT PER MILE

For Members of American Legion & 3rd Annual Convention

Kansas City, August 25, eleven railroads the state of Illinois have granted a rate of one cent a mile to American Legion members and their immediate families who attend the Third Annual National Convention at Kansas City, October 31, November 1 and 2.

The fare reduction is expected by convention officials to result in large Illinois delegations to the national gathering, since it will be possible for the veterans in all parts of the state to take advantage of the low rate. The reduced fare from Chicago to Kansas City will be approximately five dollars.

The railroads which have granted the one cent rate cover the greater part of Illinois. They are: Missouri Pacific, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Santa Fe, Wabash, Rock Island Burlington, Chicago and Alton, Chicago Great Western, Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central, and Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis.

ELIZABETH HOOVER FILES SUITS

Carl Medine of Genoa is Defendant

Mrs. Elizabeth Hoover of Sycamore brought two suits in the circuit court against Carl Medine of Genoa, seeking to distrain the goods and chattels of Carl Medine which are liable for rent amounting to $2,000 and $650. It is alleged that the farm commonly known as the Richard McCormick farm was leased by the defendant on March 1, 1921, from the plaintiff for a term from the first day of March, 1921, to the first day of March, 1922. It is further claimed that the defendant has, without the consent of the plaintiff, sold and removed from the premises certain crops which has endangered the lien of the landlord for the rent, and has further executed a chattel mortgage on all his personal property for $2,000, which lien for rent, crop, live stock, machinery and an automobile were distrained for the rent under the warrant. The claim of $650 is for rent due last year.

CURLING IRON BURNS EYEBALL

Woman Victim of Painful Accident Last Week

Mrs. Oscar Sandman sustained a serious injury to her eye Wednesday morning, when she accidentally stuck a hot curling iron against the eyeball, inflicting a painful burn. A blister, which partially covered the pupil of the eye and spread over the eyeball resulted.

Mrs. Sandman was placed under the care of Dr. Thiel, Belvidere eye specialist, who states that with proper care and treatment he believes the eyesight can be saved. Mrs. Sandman's many Marengo friends deeply sympathize with her in her affliction and wish her complete recovery.—Marengo Republican.

In a One-sided Contest Kirkland Defeated 11 to 3

The Genoa Nationals motored over to Kirkland Sunday and scalped the base ball nine for 11 markers against 3 for the defenders of the diamond. 'Twas an easy victory for Genoa and not once did they have to extend themselves.

Next Sunday the boys go to Maple Park where they will meet some real opposition. A good game is expected and the locals contemplate bringing home the bacon.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

The splendid attendance at Sunday school and church last Sunday morning was indeed very gratifying and yet we missed many. Still, there is room for more. We wish every member and friend to be present Sunday morning at Sunday school and morning service. We are very desirous that the church shall minister to the Community and its services be worth while. Will you not co-operate?

A word in reference to the Centenary movement. We have entered our third year in this great work. The church has kept faith with every giver. Will we not keep faith with the church. Many subscriptions of both last year and this are still unpaid.

We have less than six weeks until Conference. Before the session of conference the pastor is obliged to make a detailed report to the Centenary Treasurer and the Dist. Supt., reporting the name of every subscriber and amounts paid to date. Will those in arrears kindly make their payment to the Pastor or Mr. A. C. Reid as soon as possible.

Pastor's subject Sunday morning: "The Seven Ancient and Modern Wonders of the World."

We extend a welcome to all.

BOY IS TOO INQUISITIVE

Cat Stricks Boy Severely About the Head

The natural inquisitiveness of William Williams, two year old son of Mrs. Sig Williams of Chippewa Falls, resulted in his being severely scratched on the face by a cat Friday.

Little William thrust his head through a hole in a barn door to watch a cat and her kittens when the cat flew at him and scratched him deeply beneath the eye. The baby's head was caught in the opening and it was some time before he was extricated.

CRAWFORD GETS

ANOTHER FORGER

"Chief" Crawford Arrests Man in Officer's Hat and Overalls

BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

Had Forged Two Checks and Cashed Them in Town Before Getting Arrested

Bert Stewart also known as Bert Mattox, a 22 year old youth was arrested at Genoa on Thursday, which resulted in a charge of forgery being preferred against him. Stewart or Mattox as he is known about six years ago while in Genoa, made a boast to Marshall Crawford that whenever he was dressed up in a pair of overalls that was the time he was hard and looking for trouble.

Last Wednesday Marshall Crawford saw a dashing young army officer, with a gold hat cord on the street here, with a pair of overalls on. The Marshall remembered that the war was over and that army officers as a rule do not wear fatigue uniforms, so he decided to look him over, and when he did he recognized him, remembered the boast of the overalls and called his bluff.

He searched him and found a regular young arsenal on him. One revolver with a holster and 100 rounds of ammunition were found on his person and with the present agitation for disarmament he took him to jail. It was then discovered that Stewart had been spending money rather recklessly, buying a watch and other things and when questioned where he obtained all his money he stated he had cashed some checks.

Investigation disclosed that he had forged one check for $50, making it payable to Thomas Jones and signed by Jesse Rogers of Genoa. This he cashed and received $50 on it. Another check he forged for $6.00 payable to Frank Burns and signed by Roy Bennett. This was cashed by Harvey Ide and received $6.00 on it. He then made another check for $50 and tried to cash it but was unsuccessful.

State's Attorney Poust and Sheriff Decker came to Genoa on Friday morning and after a severe examination by the State's Attorney, Stewart confessed his guilt.

He stated that he was born at Mount Pleasant, West Virginia, and when about eight years of age had been sent with his two brothers to a correction school where he remained for six years. He later was arrested there for assault and battery on his father and served 60 days in jail.

About six years ago he came to this city and worked here for a while as a farm hand. When war broke out he enlisted in the army and after several desertions was sent overseas and for a while was with a labor battalion. He was later sent back and given a dishonorable discharge. He claims to have bought the officer's uniform at a second hand store in Rockford, with a 6th Division insignia on it.

Stewart was given a preliminary examination by State's Attorney Poust before Justice Stoot and was given over to the October grand jury under a $2,000 bail.—Chronicle.

August Lindfors, operating a store on Pleasant street in DeKalb Friday reported to the police he was swindled out of $25 by a man by the name of Fred W. (), who presented a check signed by Charles Waldberg for that amount.

The check was paid through another bank before presented to the First National bank on which it was drawn it was found to be a forgery.

The matter was immediately taken up with the police but the man had cashed the check and had an opportunity to get out of the state before the matter was brought to the attention of the department.

Hartman and Muhre also purchased 7 head of pure bred Poland China's at Wm. Wrigley Jr.'s sale at Lake Geneva Friday, August 19, where some of the greatest hogs in the world are bred and sold.

MINISTER DISCUSSES HIS WIFE'S TROUBLES

Rev. A. H. Sykes, former pastor of the Watkins Park Presbyterian church, Nashville, Tenn., says: "After seeing what Tanlac has accomplished in my wife's case, I am convinced that it is a medicine of great power and extraordinary merit. I do not think I have ever seen anything give such prompt results. Mrs. Sykes had been in delicate health for ten months, suffering from stomach trouble and nervous breakdown. "I frequently sought medical advice but Tanlac is the only thing that gave her any relief. After taking the medicine only a short time, she was able to sit up and help with the household duties. I think it only a short time until her health will be fully restored."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

ASPIRIN

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so. But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

MONUMENT AT NEW ORLEANS

Memorial to World War Fallen Heroes Regarded as One of the Most Interpretative.

One of the most truly interpretative memorial monuments erected since the World war was recently completed at New Orleans. It is the work of Charles L. Lawhorn, designer, and C. H. Dodd, sculptor. Local American Legion posts presented the monument to the city.

Memorial Monument at New Orleans.

ornamentation relieves the severity of the shaft. On each side of the monument is an insignia, denoting the departments of service in which Americans gave their lives—the army, navy, marine and aviation. The four figures created by the sculptor represent four phases of military experience. T. Semmes Walmesley, chairman of the Legion's national committee on memorials, was deeply interested in the erection of this tribute to the fallen comrades in New Orleans, where he makes his home. Mr. Walmesley pronounced it the most remarkable conception he had seen.

LEGION MEN DO NOT FORGET

Tuberculosis Victim Is Sent Back to His Home in California by Faithful Buddies.

Walter Hamilton.

His application for compensation has been on file for more than a year, but no action has been taken by the bureau of war risk insurance, although time and time again, Pinnell's critical condition has been brought to the bureau's attention. So he has been existing without compensation and dependent upon members of the American Legion who visit the hospital regularly, for the many little necessities dear to the heart of every sick man. Walter T. Hamilton, chairman of the Bronx county Welfare committee of the American Legion visited the ex-gob and the latter confided to him that he longed to be back home in California among his people. Hamilton got busy. The next day he took the matter up with his committee and $450 was raised by the Legionnaires to provide for Pinnell's transportation and an attendant nurse.

Pinnell is home now with his aged father. His country for whom he fought may have forgotten, but his buddies—never.

Pies for Sailor Boys. One thousand home-made pies were dispensed by members of the women's auxiliary of the American Legion at Seattle, Wash., to the 1,400 sailors of the Pacific fleet who took part in a parade there. Other rations were distributed in as generous a measure. Pity the poor ship's cook on a night like that!

Carrying On With the American Legion

Not to be outdone by the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion and the various associations of war mothers, "Dad" is now forming an association of his own. The new father's organization is known as the "Order of Loyal Dads." It will co-operate with all patriotic orders, and will be especially affiliated with the American Legion. "Dad" Sheldon Foote, of Ft. Myers, Fla., is the founder of the paternal order. Its principles will be "clean, patriotic living, irrespective of party, politics, race or creed." Men whose sons served in the Spanish-American or World wars, or who served in the army or navy at any other time, will be eligible.

A sales system for the hundreds of practical articles and ornaments that are being made by disabled veterans, is being developed by the East Side post at St. Paul, Minn. The sale opened on Bastille day, July 14, with a carnival, the proceeds of which will aid their unfortunate comrades in civil re-establishment. The American Legion Welfare Bureau of St. Paul, is fighting for the unemployed ex-service men with financial handicaps in what it terms a determined effort to "keep the bread line and soup kitchen out of St. Paul."

Thomas J. Hannigan, the new vice commander of the American Legion, is well-known in New England for his record as chairman of the legislative committee of the Connecticut department of the Legion. He waged a fight against politicians who, he declared, were trying to "commercialize, federalize and politicize soldier legislation." As a result of this campaign the state of Connecticut turned over to the American Legion as disbursing agent, a fund of $2,500,000 for the relief of needy ex-service men and their dependent families.

Capt. Harry C. Brumbaugh, formerly executive officer of General Pershing's information force which kept track of every man in France and the movements of all troops and individuals, has been chosen executive secretary of the World war veterans' state aid of Oregon. Brumbaugh was formerly treasurer of the Legion Publishing corporation and assistant national treasurer of the American Legion.

After surviving several engagements of the World war in which he won a Croix de Guerre and was twice cited for bravery, Clifford A. Laflin, member of the American Legion, died at St. John's hospital, St. Paul, Minn., as the result of a pin scratch. Laflin was a first lieutenant in the Seventeenth field artillery. Infection from the scratch caused his death within a few days.

National Commander Emery of the American Legion placed a wreath on the casket of Private Gresham at memorial services which marked the return of the hero's body from France. HOOVER FIGHTS SHIP CRAFTERS

Secretary Asks Resignation of Shipping Commissioner at New York.

WILL CLEAN UP ALL OFFICES

Department of Commerce Says Special Agents Found That Systematic Graft Has Been The Rule for Several Years.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Graft is rampant in the offices of federal shipping commissioners, and there is to be a "clean sweep" in that branch of the bureau of navigation at Atlantic as well as Pacific ports, it was officially stated on Tuesday at the Department of Commerce.

Secretary Hoover requested the resignation of Shipping Commissioner Quinn at New York. Hoover said he "would clean up" the New York bureau with a "scrub brush" to remove all traces of corruption.

Special agents found that in New York systematic graft has been the rule among all employees for several years.

Reports laid before Secretary Hoover revealed that the graft secured by government officers in the form of securities of shipping companies far exceeded the salaries paid to government employees.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are alleged to have been so paid to government agents for special concessions.

The "clean-up" at New York is the forerunner of drastic measures at many other ports to reorganize completely this branch of the service.

Commerce department officials said with regard to the New York situation that no evidence has been obtained to show that Commissioner Quinn participated directly in the graft, but other proof is before the department which tends to show that he was lax in eliminating these and other practices.

Mr. Gompers added that he had received a letter of appreciation from President Harding after visiting the White House and suggesting that American labor be permitted representation in the conference.

"Labor has always been an advocate of disarmament," said Mr. Gompers, "and the full force of organized labor of America backs President Harding in his move to bring about world peace through disarmament."

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I work in a millinery shop and I went to work every day, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so I made up my mind to try it. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about your medicine and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments. You may use my testimonial as you like."—STELLA LINXWILER, 6 Second St., Evansville, Indiana.

Some girls lead lives of luxury, while others toil for their livelihood, but all are subject to the same physical laws and suffer in proportion to their irregularities, headaches, backaches, bearing-down sensations and "the blues," girls should profit by Miss Linxwiler's experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Not Quite Alone. Bobbie had been pouring scorn on girls and their ways till his little sister was ready to cry.

"Ugh!" said Bobbie. "You've no pluck! You aren't go into that dark room by yourself!" "I dare!" said the little girl angrily. "I dare! You just come with me and see me do it!"—London Weekly Telegraph.

OUR WATER SUPPLY GOOD

In the current issue of the Public Health News, the official monthly bulletin of the state board of health, it is learned that tests show DeKalb county's water for drinking purposes to be good.

"A good public water supply is the most important public improvement in any municipality" says the Health News. "By good water supply is meant a supply that at all times is adequate and of safe quality for all purposes. Any public improvement in any municipality" says the Herald News is based on the good that it does or comfort that it will provide. Paved streets, electric lights, good public buildings are desirable but a man could struggle along without them. Cut off a city's public water supply and within a very few hours very serious health conditions would exist and a fire might wipe out the entire community.

In every instance according to the table of municipality reports cities and towns in DeKalb county show to be good.

A NEW DISEASE

A minister not a thousand miles from Hinckley who is too modest to allow his name to be used has discovered a new sickness or disease. In describing it he says the patient shows no symptoms on Saturday, night, awakes Sunday feeling fine and eats a hearty breakfast. About church time the attack comes on and keeps him or her at home. About noon the patient feels easy and hungry and eats a good dinner. In the afternoon he is able to walk out. He comes back and eats a hearty supper, but just about church there is another attack. He retires early, sleeps well, and on Monday morning is able to get up and go to work. The disease never makes its appearance except on Sunday, and never interferes with sleep or appetite. The pastor says there is no cure for it but faith and that it is the disease which is yearly carrying thousands to the devil. He suggests that a very appropriate name for it would be "Sunday sickness." —Hinckley Review

Mason Bee's Substantial Nest.

The mason bee, as its name implies, is a builder of structures of stone and mortar. The nest is attached to almost any solid structure and actually does consist of small stones cemented together with mortar. The house consists of many cells of oval shape, and into each an egg is laid. The cell is lined with silken webs by the mother, who gets out of it by a hole in its top. Before leaving, however, she meticulously seals up the cell.

SARA'S OIL STOCK

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD.

(Copyright, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"There!" exclaimed John Chester, turning the key in the old lock. "That's over!" He swung down the trim, box-bordered path, and out through the sagging gate, and along the elm-shaded dirt road that led to the millroad station.

So intent was he on catching the afternoon train to the city that he failed to notice the slim girl coming up just behind him, and she, at his disregard, merely sighed without quickening her pace to overtake him. She sighed because it was, in all probability, the last she would ever see of John Chester.

Nor did she need the "For Sale" sign which John had just tacked up to know what for days had been town gossip—that the last of the Chesters had rejected the manner of living of his fathers and was going to the city to seek his fortune. But, because of it, she sighed.

Not that there had ever been a love affair between them. As the days passed, the sign of the shuttered old Chester house, fast showing signs of unoccupancy, grew to trouble Sara. The farm, unsold and untenanted, was running down. This fact, coupled with reports which drifted back from the city that John Chester's fortune was proving elusive, and that he was shifting from one job to another, tormented her with a sense of the waste of good material and of her own impotency in the matter.

Came a sunny day in late March when Sara cast a bombshell at the feet of the aunt with whom she lived.

"Aunt Julie," she gave out casually over her cup of tea, "I'm going to spend next week-end in the city."

"Sara!" her aunt's voice was startled. "Of all things, Sara!"

"Yes, that's just what I'm going to do," returned Sara unperturbed. "And furthermore—do you remember those oil stock certificates that Cousin Jenny left me? Well, I'm going to take them along. Who knows, perhaps they're not as worthless as I've thought them. Just suppose—" and her blue eyes grew dreamy, "perhaps they will bring me my fortune!"

Now it happened that several days after this conversation there walked into the outer office of Whitby & Whitby, brokers, a shabby looking youth with tired lines about his eyes and mouth. A sound of voices from the inner office assured him that his employer was occupied, and sitting down at a dingy desk he rested his head on his hand while his thoughts traveled backward over the discouraging months. Where was he headed? This all but questionable firm in whose employ he was at present held out no future for him. Little by little, taught by bitter experiences, he had learned how unfitted he was to compete with men trained for their jobs.

Into his meditations crept memories of home, of green fields tilled by his father and his grandfather and his grandfather's father, of substantial barns, of the cheery homely dwelling. And with those visions arose persistently the picture of a certain slim, blue-eyed person, the playmate of his boyhood, whom, in his feverish pursuit of fortune, he had all but forgotten.

John Chester sat suddenly upright. Who in thunder was in the inner office talking with old Whitby?

"—yes, I hoped," went on a plaintive voice that awoke in him a sudden, tremendous response, "to realize something on this stock. You see, I have a chance to make a splendid investment. I can buy the old Chester place back home. It is a farm farmed for generations by men who knew how to husband the resources of the soil. But if these certificates are worthless, as you say—"

And then followed the suave tones of his employer. "Just so much waste paper, my dear young lady. Too bad."

A moment later the door opened and John, risen to his feet, met the level, blue-eyed gaze of Sara Cary.

"I—why, why, Sara!" was all he managed. Then: "Wait—let me walk a way with you."

For several blocks through the streaming late afternoon traffic of which neither was aware, they walked silently. Sara was the first to speak. "John," she said gently, "the—the bluetts are up in the swamp place. And Dutchmen's Breeches. Remember how we used to go after them?"

"Do it?" exclaimed John fervently. Then he turned impulsively. "Sara!" he cried, "I'm—I'm sick of it all—the hurry, the noise, the crowds. I'm—oh, Sara, I'm going back home!"

But not until their very wedding day did John learn the real secret of Sara's trip to the city. "I can't bear to think," he had chanced to say as they stood for a moment side by side on the elms-draped porch of the old homestead after a simple ceremony at Sara's home, "of you, my darling traveling about the city trying to get rid of worthless old stock. You need a husband to keep you from such things."

But Sara threw back her head with a merry laugh. "Why, John Chester!" she cried gayly, "of course I knew they were no good. Only—well, those certificates furnished me with a proper excuse for going to the place I had heard you were employed. You see, if once I saw you, I thought, I hoped—"

"You did," said her husband and kissed her tenderly.

BUSINESS MATERS.

The materials of action are variable, but the use we make of them should be constant.—Epictetus.

IT IS just as important for a woman to have regard for the rules of good form in the transaction of her business affairs as in matters purely social. Sometimes a woman who is irreproachably correct in all social conduct, and who is courteous and good breeding personified in her social relations, is careless of rules of courtesy and good breeding in her business transactions. In a small town especially, such duplicity of conduct is sure to lead to unpopularity. What good is it if a woman is charming to Mrs. Smith, whom she meets in her club, if she is discourteous to Mrs. Smith's husband, who is cashier in her bank, or what good can it do to be punctilious in all her dealings with Mrs. Brown if she neglects to pay what she owes to Mr. Brown, who runs the grocery store.

Remember then that when doing any sort of business with any sort of person, you should begin the transaction with a courteous "good morning." If you ask a favor of a tradesman or anyone with whom you do business, do not fail to let him know that you regard it as such.

If you are not going to be able to pay your bills on the first of the month, do the courteous considerate thing about it. Go to the grocer, or butcher, or doctor, or dentist, and tell him that you find it impossible or inconvenient to do so, and ask him for the favor of extended credit. Do not simply neglect payment and then pretend when you do pay that it is simply a matter of carelessness or forgetfulness on your part.

If a tradesman is courteous enough to remember your name in doing business and addresses you by it, do not forget that it is just as considerate if you remember his name likewise.

Remember that it is just as inconsiderate to ask your grocer to make a special trip of his delivery wagon because you have carelessly forgotten to give your order till afternoon, as it is to ask a neighbor to put herself out to do some favor for you. If the grocer does accommodate you, then you should express your appreciation with just as much courtesy as though the transaction was one of a social sort instead of purely business.

Moving a Hill into Rio Bay.

The municipality of Rio de Janeiro is removing one of the old landmarks of the city—Castle hill. A contracting firm is transferring the hill to the bay, where it will form a valuable addition to the area of the city. This new extension is centrally located, and lies at the foot of the famous Avenue Rio Branco. The exposition buildings, to be used in connection with the centenary celebration, which takes place in September, 1922, will be erected on this site. A $200,000 monument, a gift from the American colony in Brazil, and friends in the United States, to the Brazilian government, in honor of its one-hundredth birthday, will be permanently placed in this addition to the city.

A BRAGGING ROOSTER.

MRS. HENNY HEN had a large family of chickens and I am sorry to tell you that sometimes they did not behave, but pecked and flew at each other, quarrelling just as some little children do, bothering their mother very much.

Little Rooster Chick thought because he was the brother that he was braver than the sister chicks, and he also thought they should mind him and do just as he told them.

Of course, this made sister chicks very angry and caused many quarrels, but one day something happened which changed all this and made little Rooster feel very foolish.

One warm day Mrs. Henny Hen took her family under the bushes out of the heat and told them to keep quiet, but little Rooster began to brag that he was very brave and that some day he would be the cock of the yard and that all the others would have to obey him.

"I shall drive out all the other roosters and I shall have all the corn I want to eat before I let any of the hens eat a bit," said little Rooster.

"I guess you will have to be braver than you are now," said one sister chick. "I saw you run when the cat chased you the other day and Mother had to drive her away."

"I wasn't afraid of that old puss," fibbed little Rooster. "I wanted to see her run, and when I grow up I shall drive her out of the barnyard."

But his sisters did not believe this, and they all told him he was afraid and not brave enough to be the ruler of the barnyard.

"I am brave," piped up little Rooster. "I will show you how brave I am some day when a hawk comes to carry off mother. I will fly right at him and drive him away."

Mrs. Henny Hen did not hear her children quarrelling, for she had left the shade of the bushes and was scratching for worms a little way off, and just then she clucked to her children to come and have part of the feast she had found.

All the chicks ran, but little Rooster reached her side first, and just as his mother was dragging from the ground a large, plump worm a very large Mr. Blackbird, who was sitting on a limb of the tree just over Mrs. Hen, flew down and grabbed the worm.

He did not get it, because Mrs. Hen was too quick for him, but little Rooster, thinking it must be a hawk, peeped loudly and ran as fast as he could back to the bushes.

All his sisters peeped and fluttered about, calling him a "fraidy chick" and telling him he would never be a brave Rooster who could protect the larnyard fowl.

Little Rooster felt very foolish, but it cured him of bragging, for every time he began to talk of his bravery all his sisters would peep. "Who was afraid of Mr. Blackbird?" and little Rooster would stop bragging right away.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

WHAT A MAN READS.

SOMEONE has said that Charles E. Hughes, the secretary of state, did not read novels or verse while he was at the university, and that he was so absorbed in science as to miss all the poetry and romance of college life. To disprove this statement the librarian of the John Hay library at the recent commencement of Brown university showed in a glass case the very books that Mr. Hughes had taken out. They included the regular novelists that everybody is supposed to read, and such poets as Tennyson and Longfellow.

Variety in reading is just as necessary as variety in food.

Some good people did not understand this when they objected to novels on principle as frivolous and a waste of time.

A celebrated man of science of the latter part of the Nineteenth century used to find himself losing interest in his work every now and then. When this took place he would shut himself up with a great supply of dime novels and read nothing else for a week. Then he would go back to his laboratory as fresh as ever.

On the other hand, a certain French novelist, whenever he found himself in need of a mental rest used to read the Criminal Code.

Charles Darwin as he grew older lost all interest in poetry, but found recreation in novels with good lively plots that held his attention.

One reason why detective stories are so popular with all sorts of readers is because they appeal to the love of mystery which is almost universal.

It has been said of Poe that he would have made a good detective because of his gift for fitting together a criminal mystery. The idea was that he would have been able to take criminal puzzles to pieces as well as put them together. One side of his work kept him interested in the other.

When a boy is at school or college his reading is divided into two sorts—"voluntary" and "involuntary." He reads for pleasure and he reads for business.

As nobody's education is ever finished the same division should mark later life.

Mrs. Asquith in her celebrated "Autobiography" tells how she belonged to a sort of society the members of which agreed to do an hour's serious reading every day.

Doctor Johnson said that if a man read any subject for an hour daily he could not help becoming "learned." His own great difficulty was that he was unsystematic.

By reading certain things for recreation and at the same time following a course laid down in advance, a person gets the additional benefit of discipline.

In the Eighteenth century they thought nothing of reading through Homer, Virgil and Shakespeare once a year. No wonder they were able to think in those days.

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

TRAINING SALESWOMEN

IT WAS a thriving little store in a small village in New England. I had some chintz to get, and she was a real help in finding something, though the stock was necessarily limited. But she had taste, and a sense of color, and she was interested.

I found that she had graduated that year from high school, and gone into the store to earn money during the summer, and that she meant to go to the city and try for the position of saleswoman in one of the large department stores. She asked me what I thought of her chances.

I advised her to go to the highest-class store of the kind she wished to work for.

"Take a lot of pains with your appearance. Remember that you are not only applying for the job that is now open to you, when you are ignorant and untrained, but for the job in the future when you have got your training and when you know your possibilities."

There are splendid opportunities for saleswomen nowadays. It is one of the big professions now open to women. But it is a difficult one, with much competition and an almost endless amount of training. It requires hard work and natural aptitude. I think the girl I met that day is going to succeed. She had the right idea and the love for it, too. But don't think, when you hear of the big salaries and wonderful opportunities in that profession, that you can get these without deserving them.

A Sarcasm.

"You must admit that your political antagonist uses good English."
"He ought to," replied Senator Sorghum. "His ideas are so slight that he doesn't have to think about anything but the grammar."

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name, its history, meaning, when it was derived, significance, your lucky day and lucky jewel.

EDNA.

IF THERE was ever a name without home or country antecedents or parentage it seems to be Edna. Etymologists record frankly nothing in the case of Edna. She seems to have just appeared. Something about her is reminiscent of the Norse and we can imagine Valkyries or the daughters of Vikings bearing such a name, but history falls to back up our fancy.

It must seem then that Edna came in some way from the ever popular masculine Edward. It may, indeed, be a contraction of the feminine form Edwina. Such being the case, Edna's ancestress must have been the famous, Frau Uote, mother of Kriemhilda, who interpreted her dream and predicted the early death of her bridegroom.

She is the original source of Edwin and from her came Auder, a female Viking, one of the first Icelandic settlers who was later known as Alda.

There were three famous Aldas; one the wife of Orlando the Paladin; one a queen of Italy 926, and another a lady of the house of Este in 1393.

The masculine forms, Edwin, Edward, Edgar and Edmund, were flourishing in England, especially among royalty, and the name of Edward, the greatest of the Plantagenets, was carried by his granddaughter to Portugal where its honor was well sustained by her noble son.

Edna's talismanic gem is rightfully, then, the royal ruby, which gives power and courage and invincibility to its bearer. It is the king of gems and one who wears it is assured kingly qualities, so the old legend goes. Monday is Edna's lucky day, 7 her lucky number, and the poppy is her flower.

"A new reformer has come to town."
"What's he up to?" asked the bilious-looking citizen.
"He's going to start a crusade against 'home brew' parties."
"Well, if he'll just get in touch with a few people on the morning after they've attended a 'home brew' party he'll make some converts. It's been my experience that they'll sign anything then."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

YESTERDAY.

NOW where, you ask, is Yesterday? I hold it safely stored away Deep in my heart, to keep for aye.

It thrills with fondest memory Of things of Joy life's given me. And promise holds of things to be.

Its pains and tears it holds, and yet There's joy my soul can never forget Even in its moments of regret.

Tomorrow may be full of lure, But be it safe or insecure, The joys of Yesterday are sure. (Copyright.)

Makes Powerful Appeal.

An Ominous Possibility.
 "Pretty bad fire you had here last night," commented the recently arrived guest.
 "Eh-yah!" replied the landlord of the Petunia tavern. "The fire company had it pretty nearly put out, and then the mayor came and took personal charge of the conflagration, and yelled orders till he got the firemen so mixed up that they couldn't do anything. And I reckon if it hadn't begun to rain directly the whole doddered town would have been hosed-caused. But I s'pose it might have been worse."
 "How could it have been worse?"
 "Why, the governor or a congressman might have come and took charge instead of the mayor, and it might not have rained."—Kansas City Star.

"That's what's got my goat," Costigan admitted grudgingly. "He said he'd be back in an hour, but he ain't showed up since, nor sent any word. I don't want to shove my nose into your affairs, but I'm gettin' a little nervous 'bout George, that's a fact."
 Somehow the fellow gave me the impression of being square—honest according to his lights—and intensely loyal to his friends. Of course, I could not inform him as to the whole story, but it might be of benefit to give him some inkling of the situation.

"There's no harm, so far as I can see, in telling you a part of the plan, Mr. Costigan," I replied slowly, endeavoring to guard my words carefully. "I know Harris has every confidence in you, so I'll take a chance. We're both on a million-dollar pot—easy money, it looks like."
 "The h—! that's some boodle!" excitedly leaning forward.

"It don't come every day. I'll not explain details, or how the two of us run together on the trail, and agreed to split the pot. That's our business, you'll admit."

"Sure; what was it? A bank job?"
 "Better than that—South American revolution fund; coin sent over here from London to pay for arms, and maybe a murder or so. It is all in one bundle, and what we need to do is get our hands on it. We know where the stuff is, but we're still scouting around for a chance to grab it; it's locked up yet."

"I see. Ain't been handed over to the gink who's got to pay it out. That's what George is a-trachin' out now, I suppose?"

"No doubt that is what he started after this morning—shadowing the fellows to whom it was to be paid. What gets me is, why he doesn't get—turn—the guy is dead."

"Judas Priest! How do you know that? What's happened?"

"Why, it's in all the papers; he was murdered last night over in Jersey City—stabbed through the back in an automobile. You saw it, didn't you?"

"H—! that guy? He was a Chilean captain, or something. Yer don't think that maybe George bumped him off, do yer?"

"No; I know he didn't; Harris was with me all last evening."
 "And you haven't any notion who did?"

I shook my head negatively. Costigan sat for some moments, his chin cupped in his huge fist, his pipe extinguished and his forehead creased in thought. Then he looked up suddenly, a strange light in his eyes.

"Say, Daly," he asked in a hoarse whisper, "do you know if there was a Russian Jew mixed up in this affair anywhere?"

CHAPTER VIII.

A Friend at the McAlpin—The Dagger Matpin.

His unexpected question startled me. In a way it was an odd echo of the vague suspicion which had been pursuing me ever since the early afternoon. Somewhere there was a mysterious hand operating—but whose hand?

"A Russian Jew?" I questioned. "Why should you ask that?"

"Well, I'll tell you. Maybe it don't amount to nothin' an' then again it might give us the right steer. A fellow they call 'Sly Lewy'—he's a cheap thief, a dip mostly—blew in yer last night with a note for Harris. He left it with one of the night barkeeps, an' seemed ter be in a h—l of a hurry ter have it delivered. The d—d thing was sealed, but not stamped, an' there wasn't no address on it either. So I didn't think it was no penitentiary sentence to pry it open, usin' a bit of steam to loosen up the flap. But I didn't find much, only two lines spelled out in print letters. 'Where you met K, eight tomorrow. Don't fail; important. I. W.' That was every d—n word. Do you make anything of that?"

"Yes, I do," I said heartily. "It's part of this job. I'll explain after a bit. What did you do then?"

"Sealed it up, an' give it back to Joe. I didn't see no harm in it. Do you happen to know who this 'I. W.' stands for?"

"I can make a mighty good guess, Costigan—a Russian Jew, all right; Ivan Waldron."

The scowl on his face remained unfixed; evidently the name was unknown.

"Don't know the fellow? Likely enough not; he doesn't operate in your line, but he is a crook just the same. I never saw him myself, but have heard about him for a long while—never anything good. He's an agitator, an anarchist, a revolutionary orator; one of those bugs who fight society and government, and hate everybody but themselves, a loud-mouthed nuisance."

Costigan's mouth was open.

"Say," he interrupted, "what's that kind of guy got to do with George Harris?"

"He's got this to do with him—he's out after the coin. He saw some easy money, and naturally reached out for it. He was the first one to get onto this particular game. They were using him, this Chilean gang, to pull their chestnuts out of the fire, and that's how he tumbled to this bunch of money floating about, begging somebody to pick it up. He had wormed himself inside, and knew it was coming. But he didn't have nerve enough to tackle the game alone. He wanted somebody else to run all the risk, and then turn over his share. Do you get it now?"

"Sure; he blew the thing to Harris."

"In a way—yes. He sent for him to come back from England, but with-out explaining just what his graft was. On the way over Harris picked up another end of the same net, and went after it himself. He wasn't under any obligation to Waldron, and preferred to play his hand alone."

"And the Russian has found that out, and now he butts in."
 "That's the way I'd read the cards, Costigan."

He sat silent a long while, and I lit a cigar and watched him, his great hands closing and unclosing, as he slowly reviewed the situation.

"Say, this guy what was bumped off—did, whoever did it, get anything?"

"His pockets were rifled, the papers say—all but a little change."

"Are you sure this fellow Alva didn't have that bunch of money along with him?"

"No! I'm not sure, of course, but Harris had been shadowing him for a month. Still, come to think, Alva was with Krantz the same night. He might have touched him."

"With who?"

"Krantz—Adolph Krantz—the banker. Kuh, Krantz and Company, over in Wall street," I explained.

"Is he the same guy that 'K' stands for in the letter?"

"No doubt. He and Harris had an interview at 247 Le Compte street."

"Le Compte, hey! I wonder who lives there?"

"Well, I can tell you—it's Ivan Waldron."

His fist came crashing down onto the arm of his chair.

"H—! That's all clear enough then. He and George are up to some deal together. Say, I believe this Russian guy is the buck who got Alva."

"Do you think so? Well, I am not so sure of that. But, anyway, what shall we do?"

"Wait until George comes back. There ain't any cause for us to butt in yet. This is his game, as I see it. If it was you, Mr. Daly," he added grimly, "you wouldn't thank nobody to shove in uninvited—would yer now?"

I was unconvinced by his argument, yet knew of no way of answering it. He must have read my predicament in the expression of my face.

"It'll come out all right, Daly," he volunteered. "I know George, an' he ain't the kind to be outwitted by no Russian Jew. Let's have a drink an' we'll call it off for tonight. You leave me your telephone number an' if anything happens I'll let you know."

I took a taxi back to the hotel, feeling restless and dissatisfied, yet unable to decide on any definite action.

As I asked for my key, the clerk handed it over, together with a card in the box, which I read in bewilderment. "Mr. Philip Severn, C-145. Call Hotel McAlpin." Could this be Harris, endeavoring to reach me privately with some message? Or was it merely an acquaintance who had learned of my presence in the city? I found the McAlpin exchange number in the telephone book and gained connection, my pulses throbbing with excitement.

A woman's voice answered.

"The McAlpin."

"This is Philip Severn. You left a call here at the hotel for me."

"Oh, yes, Mr. Severn. I'm requested to ask you to come at once to the parlor of the McAlpin, on the mezzanine floor—a friend wishes to see you."

 "But really, I do not recognize your voice."

"Which is not altogether strange, as I am only the clerk on this floor. I am making this request in behalf of a guest."

"A man or a woman, may I ask?"

She laughed good-humoredly.

"Really, I am not at liberty to say. You will come?"

"Yes, of course."

Before I had really finished my sentence the connection had been severed. However, there was no doubt now in my mind but that it was Harris. I took the subway and was at the entrance within twenty minutes, eager to learn what had actually transpired during the past twelve hours. Without using the elevator I passed up the marble stairs to the mezzanine floor, pausing in uncertainty at the top to look about in search of some familiar face. A number of people were congregated about the railed opening looking down into the lobby, while others were scattered around on convenient divans, or at small writing desks.

From the recesses of the ladies' room at the left came the strains of piano music, and the sound of a soprano voice singing. The song ceased to a clapping of hands. The faces I was able to distinguish were all strange and I moved forward in search.

I had attained the opposite side of the room before I came to a halt, suddenly arrested by a vision as startling as unexpected. Leaning over the rail, gazing intently down on the jostling crowd to the lobby below, apparently unconscious of all else, was Marie Gooder. There could be no doubt; I stood motionless, looking at her intently, satisfying myself that I could not be deceived. No. It was certainly the same girl I had talked with the evening before, dressed more elaborately, changed somewhat in appearance by a more careful toilet, yet assuredly the same. She must have felt the intensity of my stare and thus sensed my presence, for she suddenly looked about with a little start, saw me instantly and arose to her feet. There was a second of hesitation, barely perceptible, before she ventured a step forward, her lips smiling, her gloved hand held out.

"You were very nice to come," she exclaimed quietly. "Especially in response to so ungracious a message of invitation."

"It was you then who sent for me?"

"Of course. Did you imagine some one else?"

"I came rather blindly," I admitted, unwilling to mention Harris. "Your messenger refused to satisfy my curiosity even to the extent of telling the sex of the one calling."

She laughed, quite at her ease now, and seemingly amused.

"She was duly warned. I confess I feared you might hesitate to respond if you once knew what awaited you."

"No fear of that."

"But I didn't know," her voice more earnest, her eyes on my face questioningly. "You have not thought very well of me, have you? Let us go over there in the corner, where we can talk without being overheard—there are two vacant chairs."

We reached there and seated ourselves in silence. I felt the necessity of restraint, the desire to permit her to lead the conversation in whatever direction she thought best. She appeared younger in the bright light, her face even more attractive than in my memory.

"You are thoroughly puzzled, are you not?" she asked gaily. "Well, so was I, last night. It is only right I should pay you back in your own coin; that is perfectly fair, I am sure. Now I know who you are, but I am still an enigma. You accepted me on blind faith before; I wonder if you are willing to do it again?"

"I can hardly refuse."

"Answered like a gentleman. But suppose I tell you nothing and yet ask of you a dangerous service? Would you risk your life for me, not even asking who I am or why I make the request?"

There was a grave earnestness to the voice, an entreaty in the eyes not to be ignored. This was no idle question to be thrust aside with a smile.

"I believe I can make the pledge—to you," I replied soberly. "It is very unusual, but—"

"But you are Philip Severn," she interrupted, with an expressive gesture. "Had you not been I would have never asked."

"It is very nice of you to put it in that way, I am sure, but how do you chance to know that I am Philip Severn?"

"Suppose I insist that also is my secret? Yet surely you could not believe I would be here with you, unless I knew? You must have faith in me, in spite of all."

"Undoubtedly I do. I hardly hold it a reasonable faith, however. More, a certain amount of curiosity should be gratified, especially when a young lady asks unquestioning devotion to an unknown cause. You admit that?"

Making History.

INFANT MORTALITY in past ages has been something frightful, something almost beyond belief, and even today it occupies the time and the mind of leading physicians in all countries. The death rate among infants is being gradually reduced through new methods of hygiene, new preventatives and new remedies for infants. This reduction in the death rate has NOT been accomplished by adapting the precautions taken and remedies used by adults. Rather has it been to keep clear of the old methods, and choose after long research the precautions and remedies specifically applicable to infants.

This being so, is it necessary for us to caution mothers against trying to give her baby relief with a remedy that she would use for herself? Will she remember that Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for infants and children?

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Of Course You Love Your Baby.

You love it because of its very helplessness, because it can't tell you what is the matter when it feels bad. It can only cry and look to you for help. But the more you love baby, the more you want to help baby, the more you ought to realize what a wonderful remedy Fletcher's Castoria is. It has been used for babies' ailments for over thirty years.

An experienced doctor discovered Fletcher's Castoria especially for babies' use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Doctors who know what is safe and best for babies have only good to say of it.

Don't neglect your baby. Get a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria and give baby a few doses of it. See how the little one smiles at you as if trying to thank you for helping it. Soon you will learn to depend on Fletcher's Castoria, made just for Infants and Children, and of course you would not think of using anything for them that was not prepared especially for Infants and Children. So keep it in the house.

Checker Player's Opponent Was the One to Get the Benefit (?) of Those Cigars.

A general storekeeper in an Indiana town, whose name was synonymous with all that is popular in the game of checkers, received a box of cigars from an enthusiastic drummer from Chicago during the course of the merchant's last battle with an ex-champion from Missouri.

"With those cigars," said the donor, "you can beat the world."

"Well," said the storekeeper, quietly and significantly, "I have to play Jones this afternoon."

"Never mind, old man; with those cigars you will play all right."

Later in the day they met again, and the storekeeper informed the drummer that he had won a game from Jones that afternoon.

"Fine! Those cigars were a help?"

"I hardly think so," said the storekeeper.

"Didn't you smoke them?"

"Me smoke them?" cried the storekeeper. "No! I don't smoke. But I gave one to Jones."—Philadelphia Ledger.

IF IT HADN'T BEEN SUNDAY

Cook Certainly Would Not Have Overlooked the Use of That Insulting Pronoun.

The ritual of society, as women make it, is very exacting the world over, even in almshouses. In this relation there is told a story showing the serious difficulty that arose among a set of workhouse officials in a Western town.

The infirmary nurses, three in number, had demanded a separate sitting room and the delight of Sunday dinner therein, and the matron had sought to humble them by sending the cook to enjoy her Sunday dinner in their company. The brawny cook described what occurred as follows:

"Well, Nurse Jones, she comes down and gets inside the door. 'Four plates?' she says. 'Four? Who's the fourth?' 'Me,' says I. 'You!' she says, and with that she tosses her head and walks away."

Here the cook drew a long breath, and then continued: "If it hadn't been Sunday, gentlemen, I should have let her have it for calling me 'you!'—Exchange.

First Nunnery Founded in France. The first nunnery in Europe was established in France. St. Marcellina, sister of St. Martin, is credited with having created the first of these institutions in 391 A. D. Some historians claim that Germany was next in line, but according to the best authorities it was England that sanctioned the establishment of Europe's second nunnery. This edifice was erected at Folkestone by Edwald, king of Kent, in 630.

Envy Found Everywhere. Envy is a weed that grows in all soils and climates, and is no less luxuriant in the country than in the court; is not confined to any rank of men or extent of fortune, but rages in the breast of all degrees.—Lord Clarendon.

Intelligence of Animals. "Some animals," wrote the small boy in his composition on the above subject, "are more intelligent than others. I once saw a talking horse at the circus, and father says there were spell'ng bees when he was young. The only bees I have met so far are the stinging kind."

Black Opals. Black opals are usually the result of artificial coloration, but true black opals have been mined extensively in a small district at the head of the River Darling in northern New South Wales.

Wisdom. Every man makes a fool of himself occasionally, but the wise ones are those who don't make mistakes as often as the others.—Athenian Globe.

Quilts an Ancient Game. The game of quilts was probably played in the streets of Jamestown, St. Mary's City, Port Tobacco, Dumfries and Piscataway, ancient towns in tidewater Virginia and Maryland, by the early citizens of those places. It was no doubt played in the stable yard of the barnyard of southern and eastern homes more than a century before America began to think of a Declaration of Independence. White men in zuckskin clothes and coonskin caps, and Indians nearly naked looked on as the players tossed the horse-shoes and did or did not "ring" the "lob."

Poor Fish. A New York scientist has discovered a land-living fish. No need to be a scientist to do that; we know a lot of them.

When you come right down to reason, what is there to "discount" tires—

THE next time a friend comes to you all excited about some wonderful tire bargain—ask him how much value he ought to get for each dollar of tire money.

It's astonishing that any car owner today should not know all the tire service he is entitled to.

Nor how to check up between the economy of par quality on one hand—and big discounts, surplus stocks, discontinued lines and retreads on the other.

For two years U. S. Tire makers have been telling the American people all about tires.

They have laid open the tire business from every angle.

They have always led the fight for better tires.

They have consistently maintained quality first standards with certain economy for the tire buyer.

They have established 92 Factory Branches all over the country. Perfecting U. S. distribution so that you get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire.

So when a man once decides on U. S. Tires he knows what he is getting in quality—service—economy.

In support of his own judgment he gets the pledged word and reputation of the largest and most successful tire concern in the world.

A sound reason for the fact that you see more U. S. Tires on more cars than ever this year.

"You get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire."

The U. S. CHAIN TREAD

One of the few tires of which it may be said that they deliver economy year in and year out and tire after tire.
