GENOA'S POPULATION

CENSUS BUREAU PLACES THE NUMBER AT 1257

INCREASE 107 IN TEN YEARS

Many are Surprised when the Figures are Made Known—Depression Felt in Manufacturing Lines

The census bureau has given out the figures showing the population of all the cities and villages in the state of Illinois. Many Genoa people will be surprised that Genoa has a population of only 1257. These figures should not be surprising, however, if one considers that all factory towns have felt the depression during the past few years. The times have not been "hard," but manufacturers have been turning out their products carefully, not daring to stack up a large supply of finished goods for stock. The failure of the Thompson Piano Co. to make good gave the population a set-back, but the outlook is now bright at the plant of the German-American, successors to the Thompson Co. The plant of the Cracraft, Leich Electric Co. is becoming a more important factor in the manufacturing industries of the country every day and before another ten years has passed will be one of the most prosperous of the country. They are turning out the kind of products that must find favor throughout the country.

Work at the shoe factory has been slack during the past few years, but many have faith in the future development of the plant. It was this factory that gave Genoa its first boom and we look forward to the time when it will be in the running for a "greater Genoa."

That Genoa has held its own and made a slight gain during the past ten years, while hundreds of other towns have slipped back, is encouraging, and shows that we will be there with the progressives when the time for the general revival in manufacturing industries arrives.

The population of Genoa and other villages and cities in this part of the state today and ten years ago follows:

Contractor Seymour's gang of workmen are now south of Genoa making improvements in the road bed and grade. Hall's hill has been cut down four feet, while some of the sharp curves have been lengthened along the line, cutting down the running expenses and enhancing the comfort of the traveling public.

S. T. ARMSTRONG DEAD

Familiar Figure in DeKalb County Affairs for Many Years

Shubael T. Armstrong, for 14 years circuit clerk of DeKalb county and for more than a quarter of a century, in some capacity, an officer of this county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Park Richmond, Chicago, at about 1:15 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Mr. Armstrong was exceptionally robust for one of his age, until last summer, when he had two fainting spells. He had been practically confined to the house since last September. In the latter part of October Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong left Sycamore and went to Chicago, where they had since been making their home with their daughter. They had planned to return to their pretty home in Sycamore next month. On Thursday, April 6, Mr. Armstrong was stricken with paralysis. He continued to fail, and on Thursday of last week became unconscious. Euremic poisoning was the direct cause of his death.

The remains were cremated at Oakwood cemetery in Chicago on Friday and were taken to Sycamore Saturday, being met at the Northwestern station by the Masons, and escorted directly to Elmwood cemetery and interred with the Masonic ritual.

Mr. Armstrong was a man of great physical and mental vigor. He had a remarkable mind, filled with information on almost all subjects. He was positive, direct and plain spoken. Yet he was notably generous and kind. In all his long official and professional career, there was never a suspicion that he ever committed any act of dishonesty or deceit. He had the entire confidence of all, and had thousands of friends and admirers throughout the county.

Powder Explosion Dries Well

J. G. Smith, a farmer living west of Batavia, in Blackberry township, has a well which went dry Thursday night, March 9, following the big powder explosion at Pleasant Prairie, Wis. The well has been a good one for generations, having about 30 feet of water before the explosion. Now, only four feet of mud and water remains at its bottom.—Batavia Herald.

Edward E. Noble Dead

Edward E. Noble died at his home in Dyer, Ind., April 18, 1911, aged 78 years and 16 days. He was born in Rutland, Vt. Mr. Noble was a veteran of the Civil war, enlisting in 1862 and serving until the close of the conflict in 1865, as a private in the 113th Ill. About four weeks ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis which left him nearly helpless, the last two weeks of his life being spent in bed. Mr. Noble resided for some time in Genoa with his son, L. S. Noble, and became quite well known to many of the people here.

MRS. JOHN FELGENHAUER

Came to America in 1866 Under Circumstances Most Distressing

Mrs. Karoline Felgenhauer, nee Guetschow, was born October 2, 1836, at Nueschnei, Germany. At this place she attended school and joined the Lutheran church. In 1860 she was married to Mr. John Felgenhauer. Seven children were born to them, two boys and five girls. In 1866 they left Hamburg, their ship carrying 1,000 passengers, but their journey to America proved to be a very long and terrible one, lasting 33 weeks, and of all the passengers only 300 were landed in New York City, 700, including the two sons of the deceased, found their graves in the Atlantic ocean. COLLEGE MEN WHO FAIL.

In every college there is a class of never-do-wells, generally composed of the sons of the rich. They go to college for the life there, to take part in social festivities, etc., and they care very little about study. College is to them merely an excuse for persuading their parents to permit them to spend four years in riotous laziness. At some colleges there are special courses, "easy courses," for such pupils. The college is not to be blamed for the inherent weakness of those men, although blame does attach to them for permitting students to waste their opportunities and their time. The smaller colleges are much more careful of the morals of those in attendance than are the great universities, where students are supposed to have reached the age of discretion, says the Charlton News and Courier. Discipline in the universities is largely a question of surroundings. Professors are there to teach, not to spend their time in enforcing discipline. The result is bad, not because the older men are unable to govern themselves, but because so many parents insist on sending mere boys to universities. Where they ought to be sent, is to the small college, finishing their work, if need be, at the university, when they have had enough experience to appreciate freedom from rigid control and to know how to manage themselves. To send a boy of 18 to a university where the vast majority of those in attendance are grown men is to invite his ruin.

It has long been a favorite that girls are smarter than boys, especially in school and college. Dr. Taylor, president of Vassar, explains the reason. "Women," he says, "go to college to learn; men do not. While a good many men do succeed, there are many more who are interested in sport, and even those who do study do not take any pride in letting the others know they are working. Girls are conscientious; they are far more humiliated by failure than men." Dr. Taylor admits there are physiological reasons why the girl is smarter than the man at the college age, says the New York American. But it is also probable that the restrictions imposed on girls in the past have tended to make them concentrate attention on their studies. College men have as many interests as their inclinations prefer; it is usually not until after they graduate that they settle down to making a living. Meanwhile they can afford to yield the palm to their sisters for superiority in youthful scholarship.

A Cleveland man who has divorced his wife explained to the court that he had to buy gowns costing $125 each for the lady, that she paid for $25 to $75 each for her hats, that her muffs set him back $120 and that she insisted on having a $250 diamond ring. Owing to the fact that he needed a few things to wear himself, had to pay $40 a month for a flat and keep a maid, not to mention the necessity of patronizing the grocer and butcher, he was unable to continue the arrangement on a salary of $1,800 a year. Some men seem to be such poor managers.

Platinum is taking pains to emphasize that it is more valuable than gold, its price having gone up to $43 per ounce. A quarter of a century ago its price was practically the same as that of gold, but its industrial and scientific use has increased so as to enhance its value. The rise in the past six months has been $10 per ounce. In 1906 it was up to $40, and a year later had dropped to $20, which indicates speculative operations rather more strongly than the depreciation of gold.

Every day or two we hear of some rich American who has rented a London palace for coronation week. We have personal assurances, however, that a number of Londoners will be there for the exercises.

We are told that a youth in Washington is about to wed a widow of 57 years and $5,000,000. Love may laugh at locksmiths, but it smiles most benignantly on bank rolls.

They have just ended the funeral ceremonies over the body of the late King of Slam, who died October 23, which probably will be a great relief to his many widows.

The first sign of hard times will be an editorial in some newspaper on "The Passing of the Automobile."

The worst about the man who says "It goes without saying" is that he often says it without going.

Tight trousers are coming into style again, but the tailors' bills will refuse to be cut smaller.

HELD FOR BOMB PLOT

ALLEGED WRECKERS OF LOS ANGELES TIMES BUILDING TAKEN INTO CUSTODY.

LABOR LEADER IN THE NET

Secretary of Bridge Workers' Union and Two Others Are Charged With Causing Death of 21 Persons—Quantity of Dynamite Is Seized.

Chicago, April 24.—Two men in Chicago and one in Indianapolis, Ind., have been taken to Los Angeles, Cal., to answer to the charge of murder in connection with the violent death of 21 persons.

They are charged with having blown up the newspaper building of the Los Angeles Times on October 1, 1910. Over their heads hangs a reward aggregating $100,000—to be paid for the capture and conviction of the perpetrators of this crime.

The two Chicago men have been held under guard and secretly in this city for a week, awaiting the arrival of Los Angeles police with requisition papers to take them away.

The Suspected Men.

John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' union of Indianapolis, captured there, alleged by the police to be the ringleader in bomb plot.

J. W. McNamara, Cincinnati, brother of Secretary John J. McNamara of the union.

Otto E. McManigal, 414 South Sangamon street, Chicago, member same union.

The latter two prisoners were captured in Detroit, Mich., by operatives of the William A. Burns National Detective agency, who have had them under surveillance since the Times building was blown up. The arrests were made April 12. McManigal and J. W. McNamara were brought to Chicago.

One of the prisoners in the party that left Chicago is alleged to be the mysterious "J. B. Bryce," to whom the dynamiting of the Times building had been traced and who has been held responsible by a grand jury for the murder of the 21 persons who perished in the explosion.

He proved to be James McNamara, who for years, according to the charges now brought against him, has been head of the secret, red-handed "wrecking crew" alleged to have been in the employ of Secretary McNamara.

Burns Serves Warrant.

The warrant for the arrest of Secretary McNamara was served by William J. Burns, head of the detective agency, in person, accompanied by Indianapolis detectives. The labor leader was arrested at the international headquarters of the union, while the executive board of the organization was in session.

The warrants for the arrests were based on indictments returned by a Los Angeles grand jury shortly after the fatal explosion took place. Responsibility for other destructive explosions in various parts of the country, the police say, will be placed on the men arrested.

In a large suit case and a valise carried by the men arrested in Detroit the police found 12 infernal machines, with batteries, clock fuses, and caps attached, all ready for use. The infernal machines are similar in every respect to those found by the police in Los Angeles and in various parts of the country where explosion outrages have taken place during the last two years.

Dynamite and Nitroglycerin.

Four hours after McNamara was arrested detectives found two quarts of nitroglycerin and 17 sticks of dynamite in a barn three-quarters of a mile west of Indianapolis. The barn, the detectives say, was rented by McNamara from T. H. Jones, the owner.

A later investigation of the international offices of the union disclosed, in a storeroom in the basement of the building, 64 sticks (about sixty pounds) of dynamite, 200 feet of fuse, 500 dynamite caps, one dozen small alarm clocks and a leather case made to carry a tea-pound can of nitroglycerin. The detectives took possession of all the explosives.

The arrests marked the end of one of the most thrilling criminal hunts ever recorded. Many times detectives knew in advance that certain explosions were to take place and dared not prevent them lest they warn the quarry of their presence. For six months, during which more than a dozen bomb outrages have been staged by the "wrecking crew," its members never have been out of the sight of a detective.

Find More Dynamite.

Tiffin, O., April 24.—Detectives William J. Burns and one of his operatives, J. A. G. Badorf, uncovered 400 pounds of dynamite in a shed in the heart of this city, within twenty minutes after stepping from a train which bore them from Indianapolis. The dynamite, Burns declares, was stored here by Otto McManigal.

FIFTEEN DIE NEAR MANILA

Launch Is Capsized, But All Americans Are Rescued by Fishermen.

Manila, April 25.—A steam launch carrying 12 passengers and a crew of 18 was swamped by high seas in a gale outside Cavite. Fifteen of those on board were drowned. Among those on board were three American soldiers. The Americans and several natives were rescued by fishermen.

23 MINERS ARE TRAPPED BY EXPLOSION IN MINE

Great Masses of Debris Block Tunnels—Rescuers Are Unable to Reach Entombed Men.

Elk Garden, W. Va., April 25.—Twenty-three miners were entombed in Ott mine No. 20 of the Davis Coal and Coke company, near here, by an explosion that wrecked the mine.

There is not believed to be one chance in a thousand that any one of the men is still alive. As tons of debris are blocking the way, it is not expected that most of the victims will be reached for several days. One body has been recovered.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined. Those in the mine are:

All but Busky are Americans. That the disaster was not even more dreadful is due to the fact that digging of coal had been suspended temporarily and a reduced force was cleaning the workings.

Whether the explosion was due to gas or dust will not be known until a complete investigation has been made.

TAFT ESPOUSES HIS FAITH

President Speaks in Defense of Unitarian Church and Makes Plea for Contributions.

Washington, April 24.—President Taft made a defense of the Unitarian faith at the services in All Souls' church, of which he is a communicant.

"The Unitarian church," said he, "stands for the broadest principles of Christianity, the brotherhood of men and the fatherhood of God."

The president made the statement in connection with the surprising announcement that during his campaign in 1908 a zealous supporter urged him by telegram to deny the report that he was a believer in the Unitarian faith. The president declared that such a demand indicated the need of spreading the doctrine of the church.

He also made an earnest plea for contributions to a fund for a proposed new edifice for All Souls.

MAY TRANSFER NOTED TRIAL

Jurors in Camorra Murder Case Dissatisfied Over Their Fees—Another Delay Is Caused.

Viterbo, Italy, April 26.—The trial of the Camorristas has been adjourned because of the illness of a juror who failed to appear when the session was to have been resumed. The man is said to be suffering from grip.

It is reported that the trial may be transferred to another city because of dissatisfaction on the part of the jury.

Early in the proceedings the members asked the court for an increase in the fees allowed them, but no response to their request has been made. As a consequence it is said that they are inclined to use obstructive measures.

PLAY INDIAN, SHOOT NOTABLE

Boys Shoot Gun and Buckshot Strike Dr. W. O. McDowell, Peace Conference Member.

New York, April 25.—Dr. William Osborne McDowell, president of the Journal of American History and a member of The Hague peace conference, is under the care of physicians. He narrowly escaped death from buckshot fired by a band of east side boys playing "Indians." While passing a vacant lot where the boys were at play he was hit by two of the shot, one striking him behind the right ear.

STEAMER ASIA GOES DOWN

Passengers and Crew Are Saved From Sinking Ship Off Finger Rock, China.

Tokyo, April 25.—The Pacific mail steamship Asia, from Hongkong for San Francisco, has sunk off Finger Rock, South China. The passengers are reported rescued and the mails saved.

The Asia struck while feeling her way cautiously through a thick fog, in the direction of Shanghai.

MOTHER SLAYS HER CHILDREN

South Omaha Woman Forces Little Ones to Drink Poison, Then Attempts Suicide.

South Omaha, Neb., April 25.—Mrs. Annje Natushek, twenty years old, forced her two-year-old boy and four-year-old girl to drink carbolic acid and then swallowed a dose of the drug herself.

Both children are dead and the mother cannot survive. Domestic trouble caused the tragedy.

Oil Car Explodes; Three Dead.

St. Louis, April 24.—An explosion of a tank car filled with gasoline killed three persons and injured nine others, four of them perhaps fatally. The car was standing on the Washburn tracks at the plant of the Bell Oil company.

ARMISTICE SIGNED

FIVE-DAY CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES AROUND JUAREZ FOLLOWS TRUCE.

PEACE IS NEAR IN MEXICO

Francisco L. Madero for Insurrectos and General Navarro for Federals Enter into Agreement While Peace Terms Are Being Discussed.

El Paso, Tex., April 24.—General Madero, in behalf of the Insurrectos, and General Navarro, acting for President Diaz, have signed an armistice, to continue for five days, at Juarez.

During that period terms that are expected to end the revolution will be considered.

The truce provides that there shall be no movement of troops of either side during the next five days and that provisions and medicines may be brought to either camp from the American side without payment of duty.

Actual peace negotiations preceded the armistice. It was, of course, known that a truce was agreeable to Madero, and a telegram from the City of Mexico informed General Madero that General Navarro had been instructed by President Diaz to enter into the compact.

Government Will Make Concessions.

The concessions which the government is willing to make have been known for two weeks to General Madero, ever since Frederico Moya, a business man of Chihuahua, visited General Madero at Rancho Bustillos. They were discussed at the meeting by the various leaders and members of the peace mission. Those present at the meeting were:

Francisco Madero, Sr., father of the rebel leader; the latter's brothers, Alfonso, Gustavo and Raoul Madero; Pascual Orozco, the original field leader of the revolution; Pancho Villa, former bandit and present staunch supporter of Madero; Giuseppe Garibaldi and General and Senora Madero. The last named is accounted a warm supporter of taking Juarez and then talking peace. Somewhere in her intuitions she fears that her husband would be better in a position to talk peace from Juarez than from the hills around it.

Diaz's Promises Are Liberal.

Much of the discussion was of such nature that its publication is not desired at this time. It may be stated, however, that General Madero has the most authentic assurances of a liberal attitude on the part of the government. In fact, it may be stated that President Diaz is anxious to adopt every measure which will insure the return of the revolutionary soldiers to their farms and shops with the feeling that the government at Mexico City is their government, and that every aid that government can give them to repair the ravages of neglect is theirs for the asking. It wants no rancor to remain on either side. The liberality of the president on every point intimately affecting the daily life of the people, as shown in the assurances given General Madero, exceeds the dreams of the revolutionists themselves.

PRESIDENT CHAMPIONS YOUNG WOMAN SCORNED

Naval Academy Official Will Apologize for Insult at Annapolis to Professor Beer's Daughter.

Washington, April 24.—Capt. John M. Bowyer, U. S. N., superintendent of the naval academy at Annapolis, will formally apologize to Prof. Henry A. Beers of Yale university and Miss Katherine Beers, his daughter, for the recent incident at Annapolis, in which Miss Beers was involved.

By direction of President Taft, Secretary of the Navy Meyer has made an investigation of the affair. President Taft is particularly interested in the case, because he studied under Prof. Beers at Yale.

Captain Bowyer offered to make an apology if the department thought such action desirable. Secretary Meyer thought an injustice had been done to Prof. Beers and his daughter, and it is understood, suggested that Captain Bowyer apologize.

According to the investigation made by the navy department, Miss Beers was employed as a companion to the wife of Lieutenant Commander William T. Tarrant, who is engineer officer of the battleship Michigan of the Atlantic fleet. She was invited to one of the naval academy hops by a midshipman. She attended the dance, and shortly afterward left for her home in New Haven.

One of the officers on duty at Annapolis suggested to the midshipman on the supposition that Miss Beers was a domestic, that she should not have been invited to the hop. The midshipman, according to the report received at the department, replied that he disagreed personally with the view of his superiors at the academy.

The interview developed that Captain Bowyer was responsible for the suggestion that Miss Beers was not a desirable guest at academy social events.

SAYS HINES BOASTED

NEW LORIMER FUND WITNESS TELLS OF LUMBERMAN'S 'PHONE TALK.

GOVERNORS ARE DRAWN IN

Names of Deneen and Yates Are Mentioned in Testimony—Tilden and Two Bankers Ordered Arrested by Committee for Contempt.

Springfield, Ill., April 26.—W. H. Cook, lumberman at Duluth, a stockholder in one of the Hines lumber companies, testified before the Helm investigating committee that he had a conversation with Edward Hines on May 1, 1909, in the Grand Pacific hotel at Chicago.

He said Henry Turrish, a lumberman now in Oregon, was present at this conversation. The witness said Hines approached him and Turrish and said he was "having a time in Washington." He said: "There is Stephenson; we elected him, and now he is working for free lumber." He said Turrish inquired about the senatorial deadlock, and Hines answered:

"It is all fixed. Lorimer will be elected. We had picked Bontell for senator, but when the lumber schedule came up he voted for free lumber. I took the matter up with Aldrich, and we agreed we must have another man. We agreed to take it up with Lorimer, and it is all fixed."

Money Talk Over the Phone.

"Whom did Hines mean by Stephenson?" asked Attorney John J. Healy.

"I don't know," said Mr. Cook, "but I thought he referred to Senator Stephenson?" asked Attorney John J. Healy.

The witness said he met Hines again by arrangement of C. F. Wiehe, brother-in-law of Hines, or Isaac Baker, a buyer for the Hines Lumber company. He met Hines in the lobby of the Grand Pacific hotel and went to his room to hold a long-distance telephone conversation. While there a message came from Springfield for Hines. Hines took the receiver, he said, and said: "Is this you, governor? Well, I just left Taft and Aldrich in Washington, and they tell me under no circumstances shall Hopkins be returned to the senate. Now, I will be down on the next train. Don't leave anything undone. I will have all the money necessary."

Hines and His Volubility.

Witness said he saw Wiehe about a year later in Chicago, in May or June, and had a conversation with him and William O'Brien, another lumberman, in the Grand Pacific hotel at midnight.

"Wiehe seemed anxious that we get out of town," said Cook. "He said if we did not we might be called before a grand jury which might investigate the Lorimer case. He said Hines had told him Lorimer had called him up and told him we were in town and for God's sake to get us out."

"O'Brien said they were making it hot for Hines. Wiehe said: 'Yes, they will get him, too. He talks too much. Every time a reporter approaches him he talks enough to fill two columns.'"

Confusion Over Deneen and Yates.

Cook said he saw Hines two or three weeks later in Alfred E. McCormick's office in the Rookery building.

"After talking about some business matters," said the witness, "Hines and I went down. As soon as we got out Hines spoke to me of a story about a telephone conversation, and said they got it all mixed up. He said they had him talking to former Governor Yates, whereas he said he was talking with Governor Deneen. He said he didn't want to betray the confidence of Taft and Aldrich, for if he did he wouldn't dare go back to Washington."

"My impression was that Hines was talking with Deneen when he used the telephone in my room in the Grand Pacific, but Mr. O'Brien, who was present, insisted Hines was talking with Yates."

Cook admitted he had business troubles with Hines, but said that would not lead him to make a misstatement to the committee.

Tilden Cited for Contempt.

Edward Tilden, head of the National Packing company and alleged treasurer of the Lorimer "slush fund," W. C. Cummings, president of the Drovers' Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, and George M. Benedict, cashier of the Drovers' Deposit National bank, were ordered arrested and held in contempt by the Helm committee.

The report of the committee was sent to the upper house of the legislature with the request that its action be concurred in and that officers be sent to Chicago at the earliest possible moment to bring the packer and the two bankers to Springfield to show cause why they should not be sent to the Sangamon county jail for a term to be fixed by the presiding officer.

WILL LOOK TO CANADA FOR WHEAT

ONE REASON WHY AMERICANS GO TO CANADA.

In the Chicago Inter-Ocean of a few days since reference was made to the fact that in 1909 the United States raised 737,189,000 bushels of wheat, and last year grew only 695,443,000, a decrease of 41,746,000 bushels. The article went on to say: "True we raised last year more than enough wheat for our own needs, but it is apparent that if production continues to decrease in that ratio we will soon be obliged to look to other countries for wheat to supply our rapidly increasing population."

The purpose of the article was to show that reciprocity was to be desired. This is a question that I do not propose to deal with, preferring to leave it to others who have made a greater study of that economic question than I have. The point to be considered is, with the high price of lands in the United States, and with the much lower priced lands of Canada, and their ability to produce probably more abundantly, is it not well for the United States farmer to take advantage of the opportunity Canada affords with its lower-priced lands and take a part in supplying the needs of the United States, which it is quite apparent must come sooner or later? It is probable there are now about 300,000 American farmers in Western Canada, cultivating large farms, and becoming rich, in the growing of 25- and 30-bushel-to-the-acre wheat, in producing large yields of oats and barley, and in raising horses and cattle cheaply on the wild prairie grasses that are there, both succulent and abundant. All these find a ready market at good prices. Amongst the Americans who have made their homes in Canada are to be found colonies of Scandinavians, and all are doing well. I have before me a letter from an American Scandinavian, now a Canadian, an extract from which is interesting. Writing from Turtle Lake, Saskatchewan, he says:

"I came up here from Fergus Falls, Minn., October 24th, 1910, and thought I would let you know how I have been getting along. We had a very mild winter up to New Year's, but since then it has been quite cold and lots of snow, but not worse than that we could be out every day working, even though we had 65 below zero a few times, but we do not feel the cold here the same as we did in Minnesota, as it is very still and the air is high and dry. This is a splendid place for cattle raising and mixed farming. There is some willow brush and small poplars on part of the land, which is rolling and covered with splendid grass in the summer. Not far from here there is timber for building material. There are only 3 Norwegians here, 6 Scotchmen, 2 Germans. The lake is 20 miles long and full of very fine fish.

"There is a lot of land yet that has not been taken and room for many settlers, and we wish you would send some settlers up here, as there are fine prospects for them, especially for those who have a little money to start with. Send them here to Turtle Lake, and we will show them the land, if they have secured plots, showing the vacant lands, at the Dominion Lands office in Battleford. Send us up some good Scandinavian this spring."

The Canadian government agents will try to meet his wishes.

SYNOPSIS.

Senator John Calhoun is invited to become secretary of state in Tyler's cabinet. He declares that if he accepts Texas and Oregon must be added to the Union. He sends his secretary, Nicholas Trist, to ask the Baroness von Ritz, spy of the British ambassador, Pakenham, to call at his apartments. While searching for the baroness' home, a carriage drives up and Nicholas is invited to enter. The occupant is the baroness, and she asks Nicholas to assist in evading pursuers. Nicholas notes that the baroness has lost a slipper. She gives him the remaining slipper as a pledge that she will tell Calhoun what he wants to know regarding England's intentions toward Mexico. As security Nicholas gives her a trinket he intended for his sweetheart, Elizabeth Churchill. Tyler tells Pakenham that joint occupation of Oregon with England, must cease, that the west has raised the cry of "Fifty-four Forty, or Fight." Calhoun becomes secretary of state. He orders Nicholas to Montreal on state business, and the latter means to be married that night. The baroness says she will try to prevent the marriage. A drunken congressman whom Nicholas asks to assist in the wedding arrangements, sends the baroness' slipper to Elizabeth, by mistake, and the wedding is declared off. Nicholas finds the baroness in Montreal, she having succeeded, where he failed, in discovering England's intentions regarding Oregon. She tells him that the slipper he had in his possession contained a note from the attaché of Texas to the British ambassador, saying that if the United States did not annex Texas within 30 days, she would lose both Texas and Oregon. Nicholas meets a naturalist, Von Rittenhofen, who gives him information about Oregon. The baroness and a British warship disappear from Montreal simultaneously. Calhoun engages Von Rittenhofen to make maps of the western country. Calhoun orders Nicholas to head a party of settlers bound for Oregon. Nicholas has an unsatisfactory interview with Elizabeth. Calhoun excites the jealousy of Senora Yturrio and thereby secures the signature of the Texas attaches to a treaty of annexation. Nicholas starts for Oregon. A British warship arrives with the baroness as a passenger.

CHAPTER XXVII.—Continued.

Yet she was the same. She seemed slightly thinner now, yet not less beautiful. Her eyes were dark and brilliant as ever. The clear features of her face were framed in the roll of her heavy locks, as I had seen them last. Her garb, as usual, betokened luxury. She was robed as though for some fête, all in white satin, and pale blue fires of stones shone faintly at throat and wrist. Contrast enough she made to me, clad in smoke-browned tunic of buck, with the leggings and moccasins of a savage, my belt lacking but prepared for weapons.

"I see, madam," said I, smiling, "that still I am only asleep and dreaming. But how exquisite a dream, here in this wild country! How unfit here am I, a savage, who introduce the one discordant note into so sweet a dream!"

I gestured to my costume, gestured about me as I took in the details of the long room in which we stood. I swear it was the same as that in which I had seen her at a similar hour in Montreal! It was the same I had first seen in Washington!

Impossible? I am doubted? Ah, but do I not know? Did I not see? Here were the pictures on the walls, the carved Cupids, the candelabra with their prisms, the chairs, the couches! Beyond yonder satin curtains rose the high canopy of the embroidery-covered couch, its fringed drapery reaching almost to the deep pile of the carpets.

Yet not quite the same, it seemed to me. There were some little things missing, just as there were some little things missing from her appearance. For instance, these draperies at the right, which formerly had cut off the Napoleon bed at its end of the room, now were of blankets and not of silk. The bed itself was not piled deep in down, but contained, as I fancied from my hurried glance, a thin mattress, stuffed perhaps with straw. A roll of blankets lay across its foot. As I gazed to the farther extremity of this side of the long suite, I saw other evidences of change. It was indeed as though Helena von Ritz, creature of luxury, woman of an old, luxurious world, exotic of monarchical surroundings, had begun insensibly to slip into the ways of the rude democracy of the far frontiers.

I saw all this; but ere I had finished my first hurried glance I had accepted her, as always one must, just as she was.

"Yes," said she at length, slowly, "yes, I now believe it to be fate." She had not yet smiled. I took her hand and held it long. I felt glad to see her, and to take her hand; it seemed pledge of friendship; and as things now were shaping, I surely needed a friend.

At last, her face flushing slightly, she disengaged her hand and motioned me to a seat. But still we stood silent for a few moments. "Have you no curiosity?" said she at length.

"I am too happy to have curiosity, my dear madam." "You will not even ask me why I am here?" she insisted. "I know. I have known all along. You are in the pay of England. When I missed you at Montreal, I knew you had sailed on the Modeste for Oregon. We knew all this, and planned for it. I have come across by land to meet you. I have waited. I greet you now!"

She looked me now clearly in the face. "I am not sure," said she at length, slowly.

"Not sure of what, madam? When you travel on England's warship," I smiled, "you travel as the guest of England herself. If, then, you are not for England, in God's name, whose friend are you?"

"Whose friend am I?" she answered slowly. "I say to you that I do not know. Nor do I know who is my friend. A friend—what is that? I never knew one!"

"Then be mine. Let me be your friend. You know my history. You know about me and my work. I throw my secret into your hands. You will not betray me? You warned me once, at Montreal. Will you not shield me once again. Come, can you betray a people of whom you can say so much?"

"Ah, now you would try to tempt me from a trust which has been reposed in me!"

"Not in the least. I would not have you break your word with Mr. Pakenham; but I know you are here on the same errand as myself. You are to learn facts and report them to Mr. Pakenham—as I am to Mr. Calhoun. Meantime, you have not reported?"

"No, I am not yet ready."

"Certainly not. You are not yet possessed of your facts. You have not yet seen these men—the same savages who once accounted for another Pakenham at New Orleans—hardy as buffaloes, fierce as wolves. Wait and see them come pouring across the mountains into Oregon. Then make your report to this Pakenham. Ask him if England wishes to fight our backwoodsmen once more!"

"You credit me with very much ability!" she smiled. She dropped into a chair near by a little table, where the light of the tall candles, guttering in their enameled sconces, fell full upon her face. She looked at me fixedly, her eyes dark and mournful in spite of their eagerness.

"Ah, it is easy for you to speak, easy for you who have so rich and full a life—who have all! But I—my hands are empty!" She spread out her curved fingers, looking at them, dropping her hands, pathetically drooping her shoulders.

"All, madam? What do you mean? You see me almost in rags. Beyond the rifle at my cabin, the pistol at my tent, I have scarce more in wealth than what I wear, while you have what you like."

"All but everything!" she murmured; "all but home!" "Nor have I a home." "All, except that my couch is empty save for myself and my memories!" "Not more than mine, nor with sadder memories, madam."

"Why, what do you mean?" she asked me suddenly. "What do you mean?" She repeated it again, as though half in horror. "Only that we are equal and alike. That we are here on the same errand. That our view of life should be the same."

"What do you mean about home? But tell me, were you not here married?" "No, I am alone, madam. I never shall be married." There may have been some slight motion of a hand which beckoned me to a seat at the opposite side of the table. As I sat, I saw her search my face carefully, slowly, with eyes I could not read. At last she spoke, after her frequent fashion, "half to herself."

"It succeeded, then!" said she. "Yet I am not happy! Yet I have failed!" "I pause, madam," said I, smiling. "I await your pleasure."

"Ah, God! Ah, God!" she sighed. "What have I done?" She staggered to her feet and stood beating her hands together, as was her way when perturbed. "What have I done!" "Threlka!" I heard her call, half chokingly. The old servant came hurriedly.

"Wine, tea, anything, Threlka!" She dropped down again opposite me, panting, and looking at me with wide eyes.

"Tell me, do you know what you have said?" she began. "No, madam. I grieve if I have caused you any pain."

"Well, then you are noble; when look, what pain I have caused you! Yet not more than myself. No, not so much. I hope not so much!"

Truly there is thought which passes from mind to mind. Suddenly the thing in her mind sped across to mine. I looked at her suddenly, in my eyes also, perhaps, the horror which I felt.

"It was you!" I exclaimed. "It was you! Ah, now I begin to understand! How could you? You parted us! I parted me from Elizabeth!"

"Yes," she said regretfully, "I did it. It was my fault." I rose and drew apart from her, unable to speak. She went on.

"But I was not then as I am now. See, I was embittered, reckless, desperate. I was only beginning to think—I only wanted time. I did not really mean to do all this. I only thought—Why, I had not yet known you a day nor her an hour. 'Twas all no more than half a jest."

"How could you do it?" I demanded. "Yet that is no more strange. How did you do it?"

"At the door, that first night. I was mad then over the wrong done to what little womanhood I could claim for my own. I hated Yturrio. I hated Pakenham. They had both insulted me. I hated every man. I had seen nothing but the bitter and desperate side of life—I was eager to take revenge even upon the innocent ones of this world, seeing that I had suffered so much. I had an old grudge against women, against women, I say—against women!"

that no woman in the world should be happy if I could help, I slipped in the body of the slipper a little line or so that I had written when you did not see, when I was in the other room. 'Twas that took the place of Van Zandt's message, after all. Monsieur, it was fate. Van Zandt's letter, without plan, fell out on my table. Your note, sent by plan, remained in the shoe!"

"And what did it say? Tell me at once." "Very little. Yet enough for a woman who loved and who expected. Only this: 'In spite of that other woman, come to me still. Who can teach you love of woman as I can? Helena.' I think it was some such words as those."

"I had not thought any one capable of that," said I. "Ah, but I repented on the instant! I repented before night came. In the twilight I got upon my knees and prayed that all my plan might go wrong—if I could call it plan."

"But again I could only turn away to ponder." "See," she went on, "for myself, this is irremediable, but it is not so for you, nor for her. It is not too ill to be made right again. There in Montreal, I thought that I had failed in my plan, that you indeed were married. You held yourself well in hand; like a man, monsieur. But as to that, you were married, for your love for her remained; your pledge held. And did not I, repenting, marry you to her—did not I, on my knees, marry you to her that night? Oh, do not blame me too much!"

"She should not have doubted," said I. "I shall not go back and ask her again. The weakest of men are strong sometimes!"

"Ah, now you are but a man! Being such, you cannot understand how terribly much the faith of man means for a woman. It was her need for you that spoke, not her doubt of you. Forgive her. She was not to blame. Blame me! Do what you like to punish me! Now, I shall make amends. Tell me what I best may do. Shall I go to her, shall I tell her?"

"Not as my messenger. Not for me." "No? Well, then, for myself? That is my right. I shall tell her how priestly faithful a man you were. Come," she said, "I will bargain with you, after all!"

"Any bargain you like, madam." "And I will keep my bargain. You know that I will."

"Yes, I know that." "Very well, then. I am going back to Washington." "How do you mean?"

"By land, across the country; the way you came." "You do not know what you say, madam. The journey you suggest is incredible, impossible."

"That matters nothing. I am going. And I am going alone—No, you cannot come with me. Do you think I would risk more than I have risked? I go alone. I am England's spy; yes, that is true. I am to report to England; yes, that is true. Therefore, the more I see, the more I shall have to report. Besides, I have something else to do."

"But would Mr. Pakenham listen to your report, after all?" "Now she hesitated for a moment. 'I can induce him to listen,' she said. 'That is part of my errand. First, before I see Mr. Pakenham I am going to see Miss Elizabeth Churchill. I shall report also to her. Then I shall have done my duty. Is it not so?'"

"You could do no more," said I. "But what bargain—"

"Listen. If she uses me ill and will not believe either you or me—then, being a woman, I shall hate her; and in that case I shall go to Sir Richard for my own revenge. I shall tell him to bring on this war. In that case, Oregon will be lost to you, or at least bought dear by blood and treasure."

"We will attend to that, madam," said I grimly, and I smiled at her, although a sudden fear caught at my heart. I knew what damage she was in position to accomplish if she liked. My heart stood still. I felt the faint sweat again on my forehead.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Drawing from the Senses. Sense picturing is the latest development in the training of the young idea how to draw, and it is certainly a great aid to accurate visualization. Taste picturing is perhaps the most popular, because it involves sweetmeats or fruit. Small picturing sometimes leads to curious results, as when a bunch of violets was held to the nose of a child and touched it. His sense of touch was stronger than his sense of smell, and he immediately drew a bird, taking the flowers for feathers. Sound picturing is also very deceptive, and it is astonishing how many people (it may be practised by grown-ups as well as youngsters) will mistake a plane for a saw. Touch picturing is especially difficult, and here the child who has had a little training in this kind of drawing will often beat the finished draftsman who is new to it.

DIFFICULTY IN RAISING PROFITABLE FLAX CROP

At First Yield Is Success, but After Comparatively Few Crops It Rapidly Falls Until No Money Is Made—Parasites Destroy Plants.

Drawing from a cross section of a diseased flax stem, showing the way the flax wilt fungus produces countless numbers of spores on the sides of the straws; B, fiber cells; W, woody cells; F, fungus threads or filaments; E, skin of the flax plant; S, mature wilt fungus spores. The magnification of the figure on the right is sufficient to cause spores to appear approximately 400 times longer than they really are.

(By H. L. BOLLEY, North Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station.)

The high price of flax seed and of its various by-products, associated with the effects of the great drought which has occurred in the flax seed growing regions of America, tends to make the question of cropping to flax one of extreme interest.

The short crop of 1910 was, in part, due to the excessive drought and in part to the very intense action of the root diseases of flax under drought conditions. The drought not only cut down the yield on new land where clean and properly treated seed was sown, but on those lands which were infested by root-diseases, it practically eliminated the crop.

Many of the finest fields that were to be seen growing during this season also suffered severely by early frosts. In most cases, the flax was late on these fields, not because the farmers had sown too late, but because the condition of the seed bed prevented germination until rain fell.

This very droughty year, therefore, should not be taken as an index as to what can be done with flax in the future. And, now that we know most of the causes which have brought about the rapid deterioration of the crop on new lands, there is no reason why flax seed growing should not prosper in a manner not previously possible. It was long known that flax is subject to rust and blights, but it is only of late years that investigations have been such as to demonstrate that plant diseases infesting the soil are the chief causes of the rapid deterioration in flax yields on new lands.

It is the history of the flax crop, that on new lands it at first is a success, but that after comparatively few crops the yield rapidly falls until it is no longer profitable. Farmers have usually assumed that the soil is depleted chemically, that some necessary chemical element is removed and many noted agriculturists have claimed that flax cropping is hard on the soil, injuring it for other crops. These beliefs, I believe, have been disproved. Flax is not particularly hard upon the soil, but the methods of cropping have usually been careless and of such nature that the soils speedily become infested by flax parasites, which destroy the plants.

These considerations make the questions as to what to do in order to grow flax on new lands and upon old lands of the greatest importance.

If the flax is not planted after corn, the ground should be plowed as early in August or September as possible, and the plowing should be followed immediately by a heavy packer of some sort, which will tend to firm down the land. After this, the field should be surfaced sufficiently to keep any weeds from growing, and, if it tends to become loose, the packer should be put on again.

In the spring this ground should not be loosened up with a disk, but should be only surfaced and packed so as to make it firm enough to hold the weight of the drill without the disks or shoes cutting any deeper than one inch. The planting should follow immediately after the last stirring of the ground, and if there is any tendency to loosen, a heavy roller or float should be put on to firm down the soil around the seed.

Each cow should have a name, which should always be spoken when approaching her. This one point counts for much in the successful handling of a herd. Suppose the cows are slowly filling into the barn, and you see that Rose is about to go into the wrong stall, a quick call of "Rose!" will attract her attention, and she will forget that she was about to go to her neighbor's stall to steal a mouthful of her feed. If Rose when in the yard, is about to hook another member of the herd, and just at that moment hears her name called, she will forget what she was about to do. Again suppose the herd is slowly wending its way down the lane to the pasture, and someone has thoughtlessly left a side-gate open, leading into a grain field. Rose is in the lead; and, as you see her turning toward the open gate, a quick, sharp call of "Rose!" will exert a wonderful influence in bringing her back into line. It is by such methods that a herd can be gradually taught to do the right things, to save you many steps, and at the same time bring a larger return.

GIVING COWS POPULAR NAME

Calling to Animal Will Have Wonderful Influence in Bringing Her Back Into Line—Method Tends to Increase Returns.

(By FRANCES J. BOENGER.)

Each cow should have a name, which should always be spoken when approaching her. This one point counts for much in the successful handling of a herd. Suppose the cows are slowly filling into the barn, and you see that Rose is about to go into the wrong stall, a quick call of "Rose!" will attract her attention, and she will forget that she was about to go to her neighbor's stall to steal a mouthful of her feed. If Rose when in the yard, is about to hook another member of the herd, and just at that moment hears her name called, she will forget what she was about to do. Again suppose the herd is slowly wending its way down the lane to the pasture, and someone has thoughtlessly left a side-gate open, leading into a grain field. Rose is in the lead; and, as you see her turning toward the open gate, a quick, sharp call of "Rose!" will exert a wonderful influence in bringing her back into line. It is by such methods that a herd can be gradually taught to do the right things, to save you many steps, and at the same time bring a larger return.

Feed the Ducklings. Growing ducklings thrive best on a feed composed of equal parts, by measure, of cornmeal, ground peas, bran and middlings, all made into a thick mash, either with scalding hot water or milk, the latter being the best.

Productive Land. We should try to make every acre of the farm produce something. If it can do nothing else, encourage a growth of valuable trees for future lumber or fuel.

TREASURED SECRET WAS OUT

Football Referee's Devotion to Duty Evidently Had Got Him into Serious Trouble.

The referee had swallowed the whistle. It was very unfortunate, but it was not his fault. A burly forward had charged him fairly in the center of his back, sending the whistle down his throat.

"The game must end!" cried some one. "We can't do without a whistle." "It's all right!" gasped the referee. "I've got a substitute. You can go on." He produced a latch key from his pocket, and as the game commenced blew several hearty blasts on his new whistle.

Suddenly a woman's voice, loud and angry, was heard above the roar of the game: "Ferdinand, what does this mean, sir! Where did you get that latch key?"

Then Ferdinand slunk off the field, for the voice was the voice of his wife.

Johnson and the Smart Children. Full of indignation against such parents as delight to produce their young ones early into the talking world, Samuel Johnson gave a good deal of pain, by refusing to hear the verses the children could recite, or the songs they could sing. One friend told him that his two sons should repeat Gray's Elegy to him alternately, that he might judge who had the happiest cadence.

"No, pray, sir," said he, "let the dears both speak at once."

A Jar of Resinol Ointment is a Handy Remedy to Have in the House All the Time.

In twenty years' experience as a nurse I have never found as good a remedy for Skin Troubles, Eczema, etc., as Resinol Ointment. Its cooling, healing effect on sore nipples is truly wonderful. Mrs. T. B. Henderson, Albany, N. Y. You can get Resinol Ointment at the drug store.

Poor Tom. A very youthful and entirely unknown musical composer read some verses by the renowned Thomas Moore which he liked very much. Forthwith the buzz of inspiration circulated through his brain, and the next thing he knew he had evolved a tune which went right prettily with the words of the Irish poet. Much elated, the very youthful composer took the product to a publisher of popular songs and sang it to him. The publisher shook his head.

"The music's all right," he opined, "but the words are bum."

His Business Improving. "Yes," said the old lady, "now that spring is with us business will pick up with the old man."

Asked what he did for a living she replied: "Well, he sells rabbit feet for watch charms an' to stave off hoodoos, an' he does fine with rattlesnake rattles, but he makes most at sellin' young mockin' birds an' prayin' fer rain."

Clearing Kansas of Grasshoppers. A live grasshopper will eat a dead grasshopper. A farmer mixed paris green and bran together and let a grasshopper eat it up, and they died. Four hundred ate those 20 and they died. Eight thousand ate those 400 and they died. A hundred and sixty thousand ate those 8,000 and died, and the farmer was troubled no more.—Anthony Bulletin.

DAME NATURE HINTS When the Food is Not Suited. When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is generally with the food; the old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once. To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. An Arizona man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried all kinds of breakfast foods, but they were all soft, starchy messes, which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterwards. Toast and coffee were no better, for I found the toast very constipating."

"A friend persuaded me to quit coffee and the starchy breakfast foods, and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice."

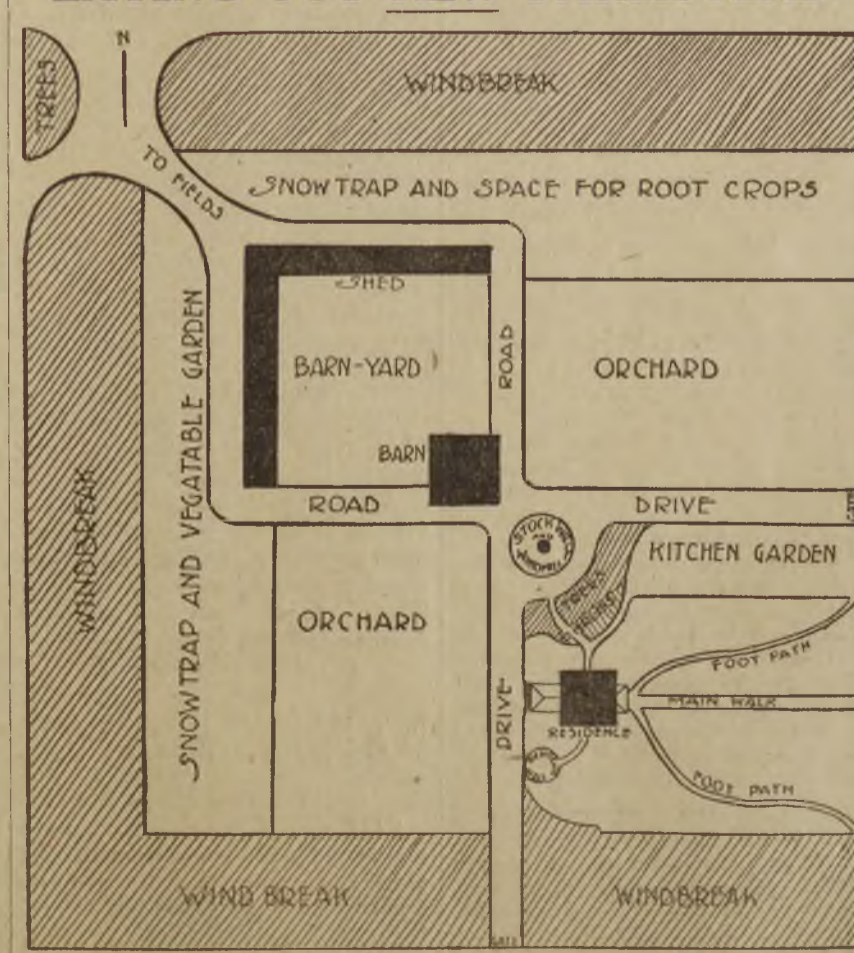

"The change they have worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I never have any headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way. Grape-Nuts make a delicious as well as a nutritious dish, and I find that Postum is easily digested and never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

LAYING OUT NEW FARMSTEAD

New settlers establishing themselves on homesteads have a good opportunity to plan the grounds to make them convenient and to arrange for shelter belts on the sides most exposed to storms. The illustration shows in a general way what may be done in planting trees on the north, west and south. The details can be arranged to suit individual tastes.

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell these was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."
MRS. LIZZIE PAINTER,
803 1/2 3d Ave. Evansville, Ind.

For twenty years we have been constantly receiving just such letters as these. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where there is not some one who can testify to the merits of this remarkably successful Heart Remedy.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

Ignore Him.
The best way to get rid of the mosquito, says the Brooklyn Eagle, is to get the habit of not minding him. Let the natives. No native or resident of a few months in a mosquito section minds mosquitoes any more than he does flies. But this method is slow in its appeal to the man who finds the pests attack him with more zeal than they do the natives.

High School Items
The Seniors are working hard on their play.
German II. will begin the novel, "Burg Neideck."
William Lankton is absent from school this week.
Show your loyalty to the high school by buying a season base ball ticket.
Monday Miss Penfield took the botany class on a field excursion to study trees.
A fire drill was practiced Monday afternoon. It was found that the building could be cleared in a few seconds.
The fourth year English class finishes reading "The Vicar of Wakefield" and the "Tale of Two Cities" this week.

Leta Brown, Blanche Hemenway and Emily Burroughs attended the base ball game at Sycamore Saturday afternoon.

Miss Mary Lowe gave a talk to the high school on "Life in India." She told us about the native homes, dress, customs, and many other interesting facts.

Friday evening Clayton and Floyd Brown entertained the Junior class at their home. The evening was spent in dancing. At a late hour a two-course luncheon was served, after which the Juniors departed for their homes, declaring that the Browns were capital entertainers.

Another victory has been added to the high school's base ball record. The team met the Sycamore high school on the latter's grounds Saturday, and decidedly whipped them. The final score was 11-3. Genoa made three scores in the first three innings, but Sycamore tied this during the next two. Genoa now got busy and piled up a lead of three runs and the score stood thus until the last of the ninth when Genoa scored five runs. In this inning Rutherford Patterson let in three men on his three-base hit. Evans also made a long drive that was good for two bases. The whole team did good hitting and Genoa's fielding was much better than Sycamore's. This makes two games won and one lost for Genoa this season.

GROWING PICKLES

Better Weather Conditions and Better Prices Make Prospects Bright

It looks as if this were going to be the year for the pickle growers. The crop has been very poor for the past two or three years on account of the dry weather and cold nights. The late spring this year would indicate that when it comes time to plant, conditions will be all right and will probably remain so.

The Squire Dingee Company have advanced their prices this year and they furnish the seed and take all of the crop that grows, paying cash for the deliveries as fast as received. It would seem under these conditions just the year to save a piece of ground for pickles and try the proposition out.

If the company's representative has not called to see you, you can obtain particulars by calling on J. Lembke.

HIS SIMPLE QUESTION.

He Didn't Mean It to Be Embarrassing, but It Was.

"I don't want to embarrass you, sir," said the tall, thin man as he leaned across the aisle of the street car to address the short, fat man, "but let me ask you if Washington is not called the Father of His Country?"

"Certainly," was the reply. "Again, without wishing to embarrass you in the slightest, let me ask if you have read American history?"

"What do you take me for?" exclaimed the fat man. "Perhaps you doubt that I can read. Of course I have read the history of my country."

"Then you must have read all about Washington as a commander. Don't be embarrassed over the question. If you have been too busy just say so and it will be all right."

"But I tell you I have read ten times as much about Washington as you have. Who are you to question me in this way?"

"Now, no hard feeling. I was simply getting ready to ask a question. Good lands, but I am not the man to embarrass another man! You say you have read of Washington in the field?"

"Of course I say so!"

"Then, sir, without any desire to embarrass you in the slightest degree and begging your pardon for the liberty I take, let me ask you to name two battle in which Washington commanded."

"Why—why?"

"Don't hurry, sir. Lots of time." But the eyes of all the passengers were on the fat man, and after half a minute he rose up with a very red face and passed out to the platform and dropped off.

"Too bad—too bad!" sighed the lean man. "I didn't want to embarrass him in the slightest, and then I went and embarrassed him a great deal. I must stop asking questions about Washington."—Exchange.

Too Far Entirely.
A young married pair prominent in exclusive circles have a child who has just reached the age when its hands are simply way stations to its mouth—things reaching the former being sure to reach the latter and in the shortest possible space of time.

The father of this infant is forced for business reasons to travel a great deal and always has a mileage book on hand. This the youngster found one day and proceeded to devour.

When he was discovered he had used, alas, about 500 miles. The mother at once told her husband of her baby's destructiveness, and quick as a flash he responded:

"Really, my dear, don't you think that's going a little too far?"—Philadelphia Times.

AN OLD TIME FEAST.

The Proper Caper in 1675 Was to Serve Thirty-two Dishes.

Our ability to eat, if one may judge from the old records, ancient cookbooks and such bits of literature as deal with the subject, is slowly dying out. A half glass of milk and a piece of bread are supposed by some persons to be an adequate meal for a man of today.

As against this it is interesting to set down what Gervais Markham in 1675 sets forth as "a human may keep in his family for the entertainment of his true and worthy friends."

First warning the master of the feast that he must consult the season of the year, since summer affords what winter wants, and vice versa, he goes on to say: "It is good for him who intends to feast to set down the number of his full dishes—that is, dishes of meat that are of substance and not empty or for show—and of these sixteen is a good proportion for one course unto one mess (meal), as thus for example: First, a shield of brawn with mustard; secondly, a boyled capon; thirdly, a boyled piece of beef; fourthly, a chine of beef roasted; fifthly, a neat's tongue roasted; sixthly, a pigge roasted; seventhly, chewsels bak'd; eighthly, a goose roasted; ninthly, a swan roasted; tenthly, a turkey roasted; eleventhly, a haunch of venison roasted; twelfthly, a pasty of venison; thirteenthly, a pigge with a pudding in the belly; fourteenth, an olive pie; the fiftenth, a couple of capons; the sixteenth, a custard of dousets. Now to these full dishes may be added sallats, fricassees, queque chosés and devised paste, as many dishes more, which make the full service no less than two and thirty dishes, which is as much as can conveniently stand on one table and at one mess. And after this manner you may proportion your second and third mess, holding fullness in one half the dishes and show in the other, which will be both frugal in the spender, contentment to the guests and much pleasure and delight to the beholders."—Harper's Weekly.

A Fatal Dose For Him.

A Good Yawn.

A good, wide, open mouthed yawn is a splendid thing for the whole body. A yawn is nature's demand for rest. Some people think they only yawn because they are sleepy. But this is not so. You yawn because you are tired. You may be sleepy also, but that is not the real cause of your yawning. And if you are where you can stretch at the same time as you yawn, stretch and yawn. This is nature's way of stretching and relaxing the muscles. Indeed, if you are very tired, but do not feel like yawning, there is nothing that will rest you so quickly as to sit on a straight back chair and, lifting the feet from the floor, push them out in front of you as far as possible, stretch both arms, put the head back, open the mouth wide and make yourself yawn. The tense nerves will relax, the contracted muscles will stretch, and the whole body will be rested.

Altogether Different Thing.

It is singular that those persons who talk most loudly about their bad luck never ascribe any successes they may achieve to good luck. These are always due to their own good management, and they complacently take great credit therefor.

King's Arm a Measure Standard.
Although innumerable yards of silk, satin and cloth are being bought and sold every day in this country, it is probable that very few persons, whether purchasers or salesmen, could say offhand how we got our yard measure. It represents the arm measurement of King Henry I, which was thirty-six inches, and it was he who ordained that the length of his own arm should be the standard yard of cloth measure—an ordinance that has been preserved in British commerce to this day. Observant Londoners and others may be aware that the imperial standard lengths are recorded in stone on the north side of Trafalgar square, where they were engraved in 1876.—Westminster Gazette.

THE FOUR LETTERED NAME OF GOD.

Is it not passingly singular at least that the name of God should be spelled with four letters in almost every known language? In Latin it is Deus; Greek, Zeus; Hebrew, Adon; Syrian, Adad; Arabian, Alla; Persian, Syra; Tartarian, Iga; Egyptian, Aumn or Zent; East Indian, Esgr or Zenl; Japanese, Zain; Turkish, Addi; Scandinavian, Odin; Wallachian, Zenc; Croatian, Doga; Dalmatian, Rogt; Tyrhenian, Eher; Etrurian, Chur; Margarian, Oese; Swedish, Codd; Irish, Dich; German, Gott; French, Dieu; Spanish, Dios; Peruvian, Lian.

Faith in the Doctor.
But if some men are skeptical others place an implicit faith in the doctor's prescriptions, and of these was a man in Limerick who went to the undertaker to order a coffin for Pat O'Connell.

"Dear me," said the undertaker. "Is poor Pat dead?" "No, he's not dead yet," answered the other, "but he will die tonight, for the doctor says he can't live till morning, and he knows what he gave him."—Le Fanu in "Seventy Years of Irish Life."

This in Philadelphia.

A cow fell into a hole in the street close to Philadelphia's smartest hotel the other night and created a sensation. Most cities the size of Philadelphia have an ordinance against passing animals on the thoroughfares—but then Philadelphia is a law unto herself.

The oil will not track as supposed by some and as a dust settler it has no equal. A test is being made this week at the corner of Main and Emmett streets where there is a great amount of traffic. As the sprinkler will not run for the side streets alone, it will be up to the people residing there to get busy also.
OLMSTEAD-FERSON
Young Genoa Farmer Gets a Bride in South Haven, Minn.
At the home of the bride's parents at South Haven, Minn., on Thursday, April 20, occurred the marriage of Mr. Floyd Olmstead and Miss Elsie Ferson. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a week's trip, crossing the lake and stopping at the home of the groom's uncle, John Olmstead, at Allegan, Mich. They returned to Genoa Wednesday and will soon begin house-keeping on Eugene Olmstead's north farm.
The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Olmstead, was born and raised in Genoa, and is a hustling farmer of the new school. He has taken an active part in the development of modern methods of farming and is at this time secretary of the Genoa Farmers' Club.
The bride was a resident of Genoa for some time, being book-keeper at the shoe factory. She made many friends here who will be delighted to extend congratulations.
American Surety Co.
City officials, administrators of estates and others required to give bonds will do well to call on C. A. Brown, agent of the American Surety Co., before asking their friends to sign their bond. Charges reasonable.
Eager for an Education.
A Poltava, south Russia, paper recently published an advertisement from a Jew who offered to pay the fees at a local gymnasium of three Christian children. The reason for the offer is obvious. By the admission of the three Christians an extra place, under the percentage form, would be provided for a Jew, and the advertiser hoped by this desperate means to secure the admission of his son.
Pernicious Doctrine.
Nonresistance is for the noncon-structive man, for the hermit in the cave and the naked sinit in the dust; the builder and maker with the first stroke of his foundation spade uses force and opens war against the anti-builder. —H. G. Wells.

Absent-Minded Bridegroom.

John Adams has always been absent minded, says the Kansas City Journal. Yesterday he went with Ida Lee of Kansas City, Mo., to Kansas City, Kan., to be married by Paul Huff, acting probate judge. When Judge Huff asked him if he would "take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife," he was looking out of the window and didn't answer.

"If you've any doubts about it we will stop right here," the bride said defiantly.

Adams protested that he had not hesitated at all, but had merely been thinking about something else. The ceremony was completed without further hitch.

Labrador's Future.

According to statements made the other day by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador, the Cinderella of British possessions has a brilliant future before it. Dr. Grenfell, who has lived twenty years in that snowy country, says that in days to come it will carry a population as easily as Norway does today. It is, he says, a better country than Iceland, and to be greatly preferred to Lapland, Finland, Siberia and northern Alaska.

Illinois Board Reports.

With the resources of the 17 state charitable institutions of Illinois greater than they were a year ago and the liabilities less, members of the state board of administration, in issuing their first annual report, made public, show figures which they believe will vindicate the present plan of operating the institutions. It started January 1, 1910, with the creation of the board.

A synopsis of the board's report of finances is contained in the February Institution Quarterly, edited by the board's statistician, Frederick Howard Wines, and published as the official organ.

The quarterly shows the board, when it assumed charge of affairs January 1, 1910, had to its credit $1,733,019.49 available. A further appropriation of $2,721,150 became available July 1. This made the total cash on hand $4,454,169.49.

The total expenses of the charitable institutions in the year amounted to $3,233,859.80, of which the items were divided into two classes—ordinary expenses or maintenance, $2,754,043.47, and special expenses, mainly building operations, $479,816.33. An indebtedness of $55,968.07 had been incurred by the former management, which increased the liabilities of the new board to a total of $3,289,827.87.

The method of discharging these liabilities is chiefly by transmission of the bills, when audited and approved by the board of administration, to the state auditor, who draws his warrants on the state treasurer for the amounts.

State Park and Forest Reserve.

The Illinois park commission created by act of the Forty-sixth general assembly to investigate the feasibility of certain historic and scenic sites in Illinois for park purposes has presented its report and recommends the purchase of Starved Rock and adjoining properties located near Ottawa on the Illinois river for the purpose of a state park and forest reserve.

The Illinois park commission is made up as follows: President, Dr. J. A. James, Evanston; secretary, A. Richards, Ottawa; Mrs. J. C. Ames, Streator; Mrs. F. B. Orr, Chicago, and Dr. W. W. Atwood, Chicago.

A bill embodying the recommendation of the commission has been offered in the Illinois general assembly, and it now rests with the advocates of state parks whether Illinois will follow the example set by the general government and other states in the conservation of her historic and natural beauty spots.

Illinois abounds in picturesque scenery and spots notable because of historical associations—probably the most conspicuous being that of Starved Rock on the Illinois river near Ottawa.

The Illinois park commission has made an investigation of the Starved Rock properties in La Salle county, and the mound region of Madison and St. Clair counties.

Fair Poster Designs Complete.

Plans were completed for securing 12,000 huge state fair posters for the 1911 exhibition, September 29 to October 7, the hangers to be distributed throughout the state, and to be in elaborate designs. The painting of the main entrance, a birdseye view of the fair grounds, and pictures of the seven largest buildings, will be shown on the posters. For the purpose of increasing premium lists, with awards to total $70,000, the state board will meet Thursday, April 20.

ILLINOIS NEWS TERSELY TOLD

Joliet.—A family feud of several years' standing, ended in the shooting of Matthew Feehan, aged thirty-six years, by Thomas Govran, a South Chicago street saloonkeeper, who met Feehan in South Chicago street, and pulling a revolver from his pocket, sent a bullet crashing through Feehan's body.

Mattoon.—Samuel Reed, owner of 1,100 acres of land in Cumberland county, died in Joliet, at the age of eighty-seven years.

Peoria.—What seemed at first to be a sensational robbery, fizzled out in most ignominious fashion when the alleged victim came to police headquarters and meekly admitted he had found the supposed stolen property in his own grip.

Assumption.—Local officers received $50 as a reward for the capture of John Hummel, who escaped from the Colorado state prison, where he was serving a term for murder.

Taylorville.—While stretching some barbed wire with a patent stretcher, the machine broke and Mike Toole was perhaps fatally injured.

Galesburg.—Mrs. Rena Eggleston is hovering between life and death, as the result of taking some medicine thrown on her porch guaranteed to cure almost any human ailment.

Chicago.—The body of a woman, about thirty-five years old and well dressed, was found in the Barry slip at the rear of 319 East Illinois street.

Joliet.—Resolutions setting forth the necessity of the proposed appropriation of $1,000,000 by the Illinois legislature for the erection of a new state penitentiary at Joliet, and asking that it receive favorable consideration, were adopted separately by the Joliet Commercial club and Will county board of supervisors. Rumors that the budget, which has been asked by the prison removal commission, is opposed by a few legislators caused the bodies to take action. Failure of the assembly to appropriate the money will set back the work of the new penitentiary two years, according to a statement of John Lambert, a member of the commission, at a banquet of the Merchants' association here.

Edinburg.—In trying to crank his automobile, George Harrod of this city suffered serious injuries when the machine back-fired, the crank striking him on the right leg fracturing the bone.

Galesburg.—George E. Ayer, Illinois division superintendent for the Santa Fe, who is now located at Chillicothe, may take up his residence with his family in this city within the near future.

Belleville.—The oldest resident of Belleville, Mrs. Sophia Fein, 98 years old, died at her home from fright when the house caught fire and neighbors were compelled to carry her to safety.

Galesburg.—Violently mad, frothing at the mouth, and barking like a dog, Fireman George Pralley created fear and excitement in the vicinity of the central fire station until he was overpowered.

Springfield.—The twelfth annual state congress of the Disciples of Christ is being held here. At a preliminary meeting of the Northern Illinois Christian Ministerial association, Gibson City was selected as the next meeting place. Rev. Milo Atkinson of Bloomington was chosen president, and Rev. G. W. Kink, Pleasant Plains, secretary-treasurer.

Verden.—The congregation of the First Baptist church has extended a call to Rev. O. W. Shields of Upper Alton to become the pastor of the church in this city. Rev. Mr. Shields has signified his acceptance of the call and will take charge the first of next month.

Rockford.—The board of education has decided that the deadly drinking cup must be banished in favor of sanitary drinking fountains in public schools.

Clinton.—The school election in this city marked a departure from the usual regime by the election of Mrs. Elvoro Downey to a membership on the board of education, she receiving 491 votes to 118 for A. W. Tilley, a former member of the board of education and a candidate for membership on the present board. The following were the members elected: President, Fred Ball, 600; Frank E. Harold, 548; Mrs. Elvoro Downey, 491.

Springfield.—Dr. Haldane Clementson, convicted of wife murder in Chicago, must serve his life sentence. The supreme court affirmed the judgment of the criminal court of Cook county.

Clinton.—There was an exciting time on the Tillman Lane farm when a large bald eagle was caught in a trap and captured alive. The bird measured six feet and nine inches from tip to tip of its wings and is the first of its kind ever captured alive near here. It was caught by Mr. Williams, a farm hand employed by G. L. Gibson, one and one-half miles north of Lane.

Litchfield.—Father O'Rourke, pastor of St. Mary's church at Farmersville, is contemplating a trip to his old home in Ireland the first of June. If nothing interferes Father J. P. Munday will have charge of the parish during his absence.

Taylorville.—Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Nelms were married 61 years ago in this city and have resided here ever since.

Freeport.—A nest of 35 snakes was uncovered by C. S. Allen, a farmer, living on the Wilcox farm, near Scioto Mills while he was plowing in a field near his home.

Maybe Sign Was Not All Good Latin, but She Translated It Without Difficulty.

Jack returned home from college, where he had won high honors as a student of ancient languages, but he pleaded ignorance one day when his young sister asked him to translate a sign she had seen of an optician's which read thus: "Con sultu sabo utyo urey es."

Jack struggled manfully with it for several minutes and gave it up.

"There are some words in it that are Latin. The others aren't, anyhow. It doesn't make sense."

"That is what I said," replied his sister. "But cook translates it without any trouble. She says it means 'Consult us about your eyes.'"

"ECZEMA ITCHED SO I COULDN'T STAND IT."

"I suffered with eczema on my neck for about six months, beginning by little pimples breaking out. I kept scratching till the blood came. It kept getting worse, I couldn't sleep nights any more. It kept itching for about a month, then I went to a doctor and got some liquid to take. It seemed as if I was going to get better. The itching stopped for about three days, but when it started again was even worse than before. The eczema itched so badly I couldn't stand it any more. I went to a doctor and he gave me some medicine, but it didn't do any good. We have been having Cuticura Remedies in the house, so I decided to try them. I had been using Cuticura Soap, so I got me a box of Cuticura Ointment, and washed off the affected part with Cuticura Soap three times a day, and then put the Cuticura Ointment on. The first day I put it on, it relieved me of itching so I could sleep all that night. It took about a week, then I could see the scab come off. I kept the treatment up for three weeks, and my eczema was cured."

"My brother got his face burned with gunpowder, and he used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The people all thought he would have scars, but you can't see that he ever had his face burned. It was simply awful to look at before the Cuticura Remedies (Soap and Ointment) cured it." (Signed) Miss Elizabeth Gehrk, Forest City, Ark., Oct. 15, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on the care and treatment of skin and hair, will be sent, postfree, on application to Potter D. & C. Corp., Dept. X, Boston.

Care of the Child.

It is announced that Los Angeles county government will in future expend as much money upon societies for the care of children as it does now upon societies that look after the welfare of animals.

This is well. Perhaps, in course of time, we may come to regard children as of equal importance with horses and dogs.

It will be welcome news to dyspeptics to learn of a remedy that, in the opinion of thousands, is an absolute cure for indigestion and all forms of stomach trouble, and, better still, it is guaranteed to do so. The remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

We all know the value of pure pepsin in indigestion, and add to this some exceptional laxative ingredients and you have a truly wonderful remedy. Mr. T. W. Worthy of Forsythe, Ga., got to the point where he could not even eat or digest vegetables and after many years of seeking he found the cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. Ruddy Kasner of Moline, Ill., was in the same bad predicament with his stomach, took Syrup

Willing to Make an Effort.

On a large estate in the Scottish highlands it was the custom for a piper to play in front of the house every week day morning to awaken the residents. After an overconfident Saturday night, however, the piper forgot the day and began his reveille (can it be played on the pipes?) on Sunday morning. The angry master shouted to him from the bedroom window: "Here, do you not know the fourth commandment?" And the piper sturdily replied: "Nae, sir, but ye'll hie—whuistle it ill—hie—try it, sir."

Creamerymen in Trouble

Cornell Bros., who operate several creameries in this part of the state, are having difficulty in disposing of their product, and they have been forced to put about $75,000 worth of their goods in cold storage. This has so impaired their capital that they are offering to pay their dairymen ten per cent in cash and the balance in notes, payable in monthly installments. Many of the farmers about Garden Prairie, it is reported, are accepting these terms, having faith that the company will soon be in position to pay off as formerly. The large supply of milk, or a lessened demand for the lactical fluid, is causing trouble for a number of creamerymen. It is hoped by all that these reported financial difficulties will be speedily overcome by Cornell Bros.
