Cynthia Case Starts $25,000 Damage Suit Against Charles V. Wedell of DeKalb

By Special Correspondent

The trial of the case of Cynthia Cass against Chas. V. Wedell of DeKalb, is still in progress before Judge Shurtler, in the Circuit Court. The following jurors were selected to try the issues in the case. Frank Johnson of Shabbona, Curtis Fowler of Malta, Geo. Eychaner of South Grove, William Reid of Genoa, Maxwell Clerk of Sqaw Grove, H. D. Ranger of Sandwich, Henry Batty of Sycamore, Elmer Colton of Genoa, Stearl Hartman of Paw Paw, Don Fluellyn of Shabbona, E. P. Strong of Cortland and Noah Olson of Shabbona.

Harry McCartney one of the attorneys for the plaintiff made the opening statement to the jury detailing to the jury the facts which were expected to be proved. Among other things that in the year 1913 a corporation known as United Mercantile Company had been adjudged a bankrupt having assets of about $20,000. These assets were purchased by a corporation then organized and known as the United Agency, a South Dakota Corporation. Its principal business being that of a mercantile and rating agency similar to what is known as "Dunn and Bradstreet." That the United Agency, corporation was organized with a capital stock of $3,000,000 divided into 300,000 shares of $10.00 each. The assets so purchased from the bankrupt concern for the sum of $20,000 were transferred to the United Agency, corporation appraised on the books of the Agency at the sum of $1,500,000. That the Agency then caused to be issued about $600,000 of stock to the stockholders of the bankrupt concern, upon their paying but $1.00 per share therefore. Further that financial statements were furnished from time to time showing that on June 1913 the assets were $1,500,000. Liabilities except capital stock $40,000, and surplus $700,000. Finally on May 31, 1918 the statement showed assets of $3,685,386.60. Liabilities $252,900, and surplus $1,932,556.23. He further stated the proof would show that the Board of Directors caused to be passed certain resolutions reciting that the stock had a cash value of from $15, on July 1, 1913 to finally of $23.50 on December 1, 1917.

The Agency corporation finally went into bankruptcy and its assets brought in about $50,000.

The plaintiff desiring to make a better investment sought out the salesman for the Agency, and seeing the financial statement and believing that it was a going concern purchased a considerable block, which of course became worthless when the agency company failed. She seeks to hold the defendant liable by reason of the fact that he being one of the directors should have known the condition of the concern and when inquiry was made of him should have advised her accordingly.

Mr. A. G. Kennedy on behalf of the defendant then made his opening statements, stating that his proof would show that the defendant had no means of knowing except from the books which were in good condition, as to the condition of the company and that he himself had invested his money into it, believing it to be good. That he had no conversation with the plaintiff at any time regarding the purchase of her stock and that as a matter of fact the assets which were purchased for $20,000 were actually worth the amount they were appraised at.

The proceedings in Court proved very dry as the entire day was taken up with introducing into evidence, documents, such articles of incorporation, records, minutes, etc.

It is possible evening sessions may be held to complete the case, as Judge

GENOA WINS TWO

Defeat Burlington and Maple Park in Basket Ball Friday Night

The second team of the G. T. H. S. had little trouble in tucking the bacon under their arm last Friday night in a rather easy tussle with Burlington. Neither of the teams played very fast. The score was rather close at the end of the first half and then Genoa gradually crawled away leaving Burlington way behind at the finish.

In the second game between the G. T. H. S. first team and Maple Park there was very little scoring done. Genoa used a five man defense in the last three quarters of the game and Maple Park could count but two points in all that time. The game was very slow, owing to the defensive tactics of Genoa and the inability of Maple Park to penetrate the defense.

Friday night the 1917 H. S. team will play the Genoa boosters at the H. S. gym. Admission 25c. All funds received will be given to the G. T. H. S. Athletic Association.

A week from Friday night, January 6, Hampshire comes to Genoa for the annual struggle and believe the high school chaps when they tell you it will be some scrap. Don't miss this game.

START DRILLING IN 60 DAYS

Oil Well Machinery to Be Shipped from Oklahoma

Drilling for oil in the Boone-McHenry counties field will start within sixty days under the terms of a contract entered into between the Kishwaukee Oil and Gas Co. of Belvidere and a drilling and producing company of national importance.

Formal signing of the contract was reported last evening at a meeting of the directors of the Kishwaukee Oil and Gas Co., by a committee which had been appointed several weeks ago to negotiate such a contract.

The Kishwaukee Oil and Gas Company holds leases on a large acreage in Boone and McHenry counties and the first wells sunk in this vicinity will probably be sunk in the locality where the leasing conditions are the most satisfactory. The company with whom the Kishwaukee people have formed relations is operating in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma, and the well drilling outfit to be used in this field is to be shipped from Oklahoma.—Belvidere Republican.

FREE SEEDS

To Be Distributed by Congressman Fuller of This District

For the encouragement of gardening which furnishes, at little cost, a great part of the living of the average family, the government appropriated a larger sum than usual for the free distribution of garden seeds. The distribution is now being made for the coming season through the members of the congress. Residents of the 15th Congressional District desirous of these free seeds, have only to make request of Congressman Charles E. Fuller, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., and packages of the seeds will be mailed them free of cost, as long as the supply lasts.

CAR LINE TO QUIT HIGHWAY

Will Not Operate Street Cars on Lincoln Highway in DeKalb

At a special meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening of this week, an ordinance was introduced granting the DeKalb-Sycamore Interurban Traction company the right to remove its tracks from Lincoln Highway, also authorizing the company to cease operating cars on the Lincoln Highway.

According to reports, after the ordinance was read, it was moved by Adelman Hynde, seconded by Adelman Halloran that it be accepted up on roll call, all council members voted in favor of the motion.

Just when the work of removing the rail on the Lincoln Highway will be started, is not known today.—DeKalb Chronicle.

NEW SCHOOL

ONE OF BEST IN THE COUNTRY

Will Accomodate Several Times Number of Students Now Enrolled

We might entitle this short article "When Dreams Come True" for the dreams of students who are now in school and who graduated from the Genoa high school through the preceding years have at last become a reality. Not only has Genoa a modern building with every convenience but the structure will take care of the ever-increasing number of students for years.

From the boiler-room in the lower north-west portion of the building to the class-room in the upper south-east corner, the building is complete in every detail—not one feature of modernized construction of schools being omitted—and Genoa can proudly boast the beautiful structure at any and all times.

The auditorium or assembly room is very large and contains a stage that will permit giving of entertainments by the pupils of the school.

The various science classes have separate laboratory rooms and recitation classes have just as much privacy.

The heat is regulated by what is known as the "fan system." The heat is driven through the building by Men are busy this week moving in large fans operating from electricity, the equipment from the church and arranging the new supplies.

January 3 will see the pupils occupying the building and reaping the benefits of a school worthy of our city.

EUROPEAN RELIEF

Thousands of Garments Sent Overseas by Red Cross

More than 60,000 garments and 12,000 layettes have been shipped this year or are in the process of production as part of chapter quotas already pledged from Central Division headquarters in Chicago. This work of volunteering among the 750 chapters is supplying more than the average chapter quota.

Despite the local need which exists in many communities in the states of the Central Division field a constantly increasing desire to assist the children who are suffering so desperately in Europe is shown. When no other agency exists to care for local needs the Red Cross chapter is helping communities to adequately meet conditions caused by unemployment or crop failures and in addition is helping in this necessary overseas relief.

DEPLORABLE CONDITIONS

State Health Officer Raps DeKalb County

The general public, no doubt, is unaware of the deplorable conditions which exist throughout rural Illinois insofar as vaccination against smallpox is concerned. An officer from the state department of public health recently visited DeKalb county. Concerning his visit, the Chronicle of DeKalb remarks:

"For years past the state department of public health has urged vaccination as a prevention for smallpox, and it seems that each year Chicago has vaccinated to even a greater extent while the smaller cities and villages have paid no attention to the matter."

"The state officer going thru this vicinity stopped at a little country school and stated his errand, asking permission to give the children a hurried examination. He found that out of 29 pupils enrolled, of which 25 were present at the time, but one child had been vaccinated. This condition exists all over the state with the exception of Cook county.

"The officer said that when one stops to consider the size of Chicago and consider the fact that there has been very little smallpox contagion there this year, it is indeed deplorable that small communities should suffer an epidemic. He also stated that under conditions as they exist in DeKalb county at this time, should one or two cases of smallpox break out, there would be an epidemic.

"The health officer also commented on the apparent disregard of warnings regarding diphtheria. He said that if the children were given toxinantitoxin, the chances for a diphtheria epidemic in this community would be reduced to a minimum. As it is, no one knows when several cases may be found and then the epidemic."

The conditions above named are by no means local; they exist broadcast throughout the state. Cooperation with local boards of health, where they exist, and the prompt organization of such boards, where they do not exist, or at least where they are not functioning, will prevent much sickness and many deaths in Illinois.

COL. HEMENWAY'S FINE ENDORSEMENT

At Meeting of Citizens Last Friday Night

HOME TOWN SOLID FOR HIM

Citizens from Every Walk of Life Endorse Candidacy of Col. Hemenway For Office Of Sheriff

A very unusual occurrence happened at the Court House last Friday evening. Friends of Col. William F. Hemenway, in his absence from home and without his knowledge, passed word around the street that there would be a meeting at the Court House that evening in his interest. At 8 o'clock there assembled representative citizens from all walks of life. There were superintendents of factories, clerks, doctors, lawyers, merchants, mechanics, laborers, and farmers. In fact there was a representative from every factory and business house, and in fact from all walks of life in our town.

They organized by electing A. W. Sawyer chairman of the meeting and short addresses were made by many of our prominent citizens, commending Col. Hemenway as a man and a soldier. They spoke of him as a man possessing qualifications which fitted him for the office of sheriff, and the speakers were frequently applauded. In fact, there was the most spontaneous remarkable endorsement ever given a candidate for public office from his fellow townsmen in the memory of our oldest citizen. And it was manifest that so far as the good will of Sycamore could go it would be with Col. Hemenway, first, last and all the time.

This was not a political meeting, being non-partisan in its character, but it was demonstrated that the citizens of Sycamore are unanimously in favor of the nomination of Hemenway for sheriff, and irrespective of parties it was the intention of this meeting to let the voters from DeKalb county know what the people of Sycamore think of Bill Hemenway, and how proud they are of his record as a citizen and as a soldier.

It was also developed by the meeting that Hemenway has the solid support of the ex-service men of Sycamore. Charles B. Townsend was called upon and read to the meeting a petition signed by ex-service men, all commending Hemenway in highest terms and stating that he would have their unanimous support.

A resolution was prepared and read to the meeting and adopted by a rising vote. Every man present voting therefore. The resolution was ordered to be published and is as follows:

WHEREAS our fellow-townsmen, William F. Hemenway, is a candidate for the office of sheriff of DeKalb county to be voted on at the primaries, April 1922; and

WHEREAS he has been a resident of our city for many years, well known to us all and has always held the respect and highest regard of our citizens; and

WHEREAS he is a veteran of the late world war, with a fine record of service to his country, is a man of the highest character and ability and

GYPSY SMITH ROBBED

Taken Ill on Street Car in Chicago—Thief Gets $100

Pretending to be administering aid to Gypsy Simon Smith when he was seized with a spell of dizziness on a Chicago street car Monday the "good samaritan" extracted $100 from the evangelist's pocket. He was enroute from Belvidere, where he had just closed a series of revival meetings to his home in London, Canada.

Upon recovering his faculties, the evangelist discovered that his pockets had been picked. He is of the opinion that the man who hovered over him in the car and who to all outward appearances was endeavoring to resuscitate him, had a confederate.

A mail carrier, recognizing the evangelist and seeing his condition, assisted him to the railroad station and to his train.

The evangelist had been fighting off illness during the last few days of his services in Belvidere but refused to give up as he was anxious to complete all of his scheduled meetings and then get home for the holidays.—Belvidere Republican.

Gypsy Smith spoke in Genoa a few weeks ago to a very large audience.

eminently qualified for the position he seeks by reason of his knowledge of men and his well known principles in favor of the impartial enforcement of the law;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, by this mass-meeting that we hereby commend his candidacy to the voters both men and women of DeKalb county, and urge their united support for him, pledging ourselves to do all in our power to obtain his nomination.

The enthusiasm was running high and a motion was made and unanimously adopted that all persons present organize themselves to get behind the candidate and to do their utmost to obtain his nomination. An executive committee consisting of Geo. A. James, W. M. McAllister, Andrew King, S. M. Henderson and E. G. Cooper was appointed by the meeting to prepare a muster roll to be signed by all persons joining the club, and they were instructed to work out the details of an organization and empowered to call a meeting by a short day for the purpose of electing permanent officers, and to name committees to assist Hemenway in his campaign.

An old citizen of Sycamore who has taken an active interest in such matters for many years said that he never saw in the history of this town such a spontaneous feeling manifested in a public meeting. The voters of DeKalb county can put it down for certain that Sycamore is unanimously for Hemenway and will do all in its power to bring about his nomination, and that the ex-service men, former comrades of Hemenway, are with him to a man.—Sycamore Tribune. #### START THE NEW YEAR RIGHT

A few Suggestions on How to Enjoy the First Sunday of the New Year—Go To Church

Next Sunday is Jan. 1st and, New Year's Day, the first Sunday of the "Go To Church Campaign." Of course every man and woman who has an interest in the town, who acknowledges the claims of God and prizes the blessing of a home in a Christian land and community will cooperate. The old year's behind us, its record is made, we cannot change it. The New Year is before us. Its dawn has just come up out of the radiant east. Its record is to be made. It is within our power to determine what it shall be. We are at the top of the line of a new page. What sort of a start shall we make. Thank God for his blessings to you. Pay your vow to God. Begin the year right "Go To Church." Surely no business is so pressing that you cannot find time for prayer and worship on the Holy Sabbath Day. Honor God and He will honor you. How to enjoy the First Sunday of the New Year.

1. Stay at home Saturday night and get acquainted with your family. Retire a little earlier than usual.

2. Get up early and help do the necessary work of the home. An honest division of labor helps oil the wheels of the household; but a man who sits around reading the morning paper and letting his wife do all the work—

3. If possible, make your plans to go to the Bible School. Go to church. Religion and worship are necessary to a full grown life.

4. If you have a neighbor who doesn't go to church, invite him to go with you. If he faints away at your invitation, telephone to the head usher of the church and he will send an automobile for him.

5. Don't expect your wife to rush home from church and get an extra good Sunday dinner. Let the Sunday meals demand a minimum of labor for housekeepers.

6. Keep an inspiring book on hand for Sunday reading. Write some letters to friends or to the boy or girl away from home.

7. Ask some one who is not a Christian to confess Jesus as Savior. How long have you been a Christian yourself without doing this?

8. Get all you can out of the Sunday church services either as a worker or a good listener and doer. Don't criticize the choir. You're not such a great singer yourself.

9. Keep thanking God all day that you are well enough to work, and good enough to keep out of jail.

10. Close the day with a song and a prayer after calling the "preacher and telling him you plan to follow his advice when you go to work tomorrow."

MC HENRY WILL HAVE SCHOOL

Community High Proposition Carried Two to One

The voters of the McHenry community high school district No 156 surely did themselves proud at the polls last Saturday afternoon and as a result of that election the proposition for a new school was carried by a vote of nearly two to one.

While the boosters for a new school had hoped for just such an endorsement, few, if any, predicted any such a majority and therefore made the victory all the more pleasing to them as well as the high school students, who took such a keen interest in the election. More than one thousand votes were cast.—McHenry Plaindealer.

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

Shurtleff is anxious to dispose of the case this week.

The trial of the $25,000 damage suit brought by Cynthia Cass against Charles V. Weddell, of DeKalb is creating a lot of attraction in Sycamore, owing to the large amount of legal talent engaged.

The Circuit Court convened on Monday morning, pursuant to adjournment from Saturday. Judge Shurtleff of Marengo, presiding. The first case called for being Case vs. Weddell. The plaintiff in her declaration claims to have bought an aggregate of 716 shares for the charter purposes, among others being the carrying on of the business of mercantile rating, reporting and commercial agency, publishing and distributing books and magazines and dealing in books and merchandise of all kinds. She further claims to have paid the sum of $25,000 for the stock which she claims was represented to her by the defendant as one of the directors, to be a good investment and which was worthless. The defendant has denied the allegations of her declaration, stating that he had no dealing with her and made no representations to her and if any were made they were made by one Norris, an agent, and not by him.

The task of selecting a jury was begun and continued until 3 o'clock when the venire of jurors summoned for this term was exhausted and the Court was forced to adjourn until Tuesday morning at which time a special venire will have been drawn and more jurors will be available. The plaintiff is represented by Harvey Cunsel, Harry S. Macartney and L. B. Smith. The defendant is represented by Thos. M. Cliffe, A. G. Kennedy, Horace K. Tenney and Harold White last two named of Chicago.

The Supreme Court of the State of Illinois on Thursday handed down a decision in the case of the Town of Kingston against W. G. Anderson. It sustains the ruling of the County Court of DeKalb County, dismissing the proceedings brought to condemn a certain part of the land owned by Mr. Anderson.

On December 30, 1919, Clare B. Wilson, owner of land in the Town of Kingston, DeKalb county, petitioned the highway commissioner of the Township of Kingston, that he cause to be laid out "a private road" two rods wide and eighty rods long on the south side of land owned by W. G. Anderson in said Town, and terminating at the southwest corner of said land into said private road, and from the private road into the public highway. The Highway Commissioner decided to grant the request contained in the petition; caused a survey to be made by Walter Hay, a surveyor; endeavored to agree with Anderson as to the damages and failed; the Highway Commissioner then applied to a Justice of the peace of the Town of Kingston, A. J. Lettow, to summon the owner and a jury and have damages ascertained. Anderson was summoned into court and a jury heard the case and assessed the damages at $267.50, and the Justice entered a judgment for Anderson and against Wilson for the amount of the verdict. An appeal was taken by Anderson to the County Court and a motion to dismiss the proceeding was made by him and thereafter another was made by Wilson to amend the petition so as to pray for "a road for public and private use." These motions were heard by the County Court and the motion to dismiss the proceeding was granted and the motion to amend was denied. Wilson obtained an appeal to the Appellate Court where Anderson moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground that a freehold was involved and appeal should be to the Supreme Court instead. The Appellate Court for the Second District decided that it was a proceeding to condemn. The purpose for which Wilson desired to obtain a private road across the Land of Anderson as alleged in the petition was to be for the purpose of hauling gravel from the land of Wilson to a public highway in order to enable Wilson to furnish gravel for public highway purposes in "said district." The Appellate Court further decided that a freehold was involved as was a constitutional question and that the case should be transferred to the Supreme Court, which was done. The main questions involved being that under the laws of this State the Court has no power to entertain a condemnation proceeding to obtain a private road against the consent of the land owner and that the petition could not be amended in the County Court. The Supreme Court in its decision decided the questions as above stated.

Thomas M. Cliffe of Sycamore represented Anderson and Wm. L. Pierce of Belvidere, represented Wilson.

The verdict of the Jury in the Circuit Court of DeKalb County finding John Mason, formerly of Hinckley, guilty of an indecent assault on Mary Charmois, his niece, was affirmed by the Supreme Court in a decision handed down Thursday.

John Mason was convicted by a jury in the Circuit Court of DeKalb County on March 26th, 1921 after one of the most hard fought legal battles in DeKalb County, lasting six days, on charge of assault with intent to commit rape upon one Mary Charmois, his own niece. The facts in the case, many of which were most revolting showed that Mary Charmois was 13 years of age, when the offense was committed and that she had been born in a small village in France, within the zone of Army operations during the recent war. She resided there with her parents, sisters and a brother until about December 1919, when the defendant visited her home and while there told the child of his "castle" in America, his piano, beautiful gardens and solicited her to return with him to this country. She left France in his company and arrived at the village of Hinckley on January 10, 1920. Mason at this time was the owner of a large farm in Hinckley and lived there with his wife and two boys. About two weeks after her arrival in this country he began a course of indecent conduct toward her which continued until August 17, 1920 when he committed the act for which he was found guilty. Mary was often beaten by Mason and many times appeared at school with black and blue marks on her body. She complained of the brutal treatment to her little friends at school, who in turn told their parents at home and finally during the month of October she was taken from the home of Mason and went to live at the home of Oscar Ramer of Hinckley. A few days after being at the home of Mr. Ramer she told of the conduct of Mason toward her and and Mason was subsequently indicted. Mason being a man of means procured Thos. M. Cliffe, Harvey Cunsel and Samuel Stephens to represent him. State's Attorney Poust on assuming his office was confronted with the task of prosecuting Mason, against this array of legal batteries. In a manner showing careful preparation he presented the state's evidence which was met by a denial by the defendant who claimed an alibi. The pleas to the jury made by the state's attorney and attorneys for defendant will long be remembered as the most eloquent made in the Circuit Court room.

After the verdict of guilty a motion for new trial was made and overruled by Judge Slusser who presided at the hearing of the case. Mason thereafter gave bond and appealed to the Supreme Court assigning numerous errors. Voluminous briefs were filed by both sides. A number of the questions raised by defendant's attorneys had never been passed upon by the Supreme Court of Illinois and the reports of practically the entire Union were combed for authorities.

While the case was pending in the Supreme Court Mason sold his farm and removed to Aurora where he is residing with his family at present.

What About Churches and Business Men of Genoa?

In order to show our good will toward the church and the GO TO CHURCH Movement, which is being started now, we business men of Genoa, Illinois, gladly endorse the following:-

1. The church is God's institution for uplifting mankind spiritually and morally.
2. All good influence whatever can, in some way, be traced back to God's revelation in and through his spirited kingdom, the CHURCH.
3. Therefore, every sane and thinking man ought to be an active member of and for the Church.
4. To prove to God, Fellowman, and ourselves, our interest in the highest issues of life, we ought to attend Church.

President Markham of I. C. R. R. Asks
Employees to Investigate Charges

President Markham of the Illinois Central Railroad asks the employees of that great system to investigate and analyze charges against the executives of transportation companies which certain lawyers, statisticians and officers who represent the organized railroad men are in the habit of making before public bodies, in court and in various labor or radical journals. Mr. Markham suggests that the employees of the Illinois Central either verify or repudiate those charges—charges of waste, financial juggling, fraudulent practices, inefficiency and the like—so far as concerns the system for which they work and with which they are thoroughly familiar.

This is a fair and reasonable suggestion. In simple justice to themselves and the corporation that employs them, the railroad workers ought to adopt the policy recommended by Mr. Markham. It is well known that many of the assertions made by real or pretended spokesmen of railroad and other unions are reckless and unrelatable if not deliberate lies. They are not taken seriously by anybody. But they do harm, nevertheless, and the silence of the railroad executives is construed by the more extreme labor organs as confession of the truth of the charges.

Mr. Markham has done a courageous thing by urging the employees of the Illinois Central to confirm such charges against the officials of that road as they find to be true and brand others as false. He has set a good example. The employees of a railroad or any other corporation should not remain passive and indifferent while it is being assailed and condemned by men paid to serve them. They should investigate the charges made, ostensibly in their behalf, and take appropriate action upon the findings. Misrepresentation should be rebuked and repudiated.

Too many labor advocates seem to think they earn their pay and enhance their reputation by making irresponsible charges and by demagogical ranting. Organized labor should demand of its advocates reason, fair play and facts. No great movement can prosper long on falsehoods energized by the force of unbounded audacity.

World's Debt to American Sailor.

The famous Wind and Current Charts, published by Lieut. Maury, of the United States navy, in the middle of the last century, were immensely valuable to mariners in pointing out the quickest and safest routes for sailing vessels. British shipping alone is said to have benefited from them to the extent of $10,000,000 a year.

Playful Young Eagle.

Once a young eagle was observed having a great game. It had found a stack of peat, and, lifting a sod in its claws, it flew up to a great height. It then dropped the sod and swooped down upon it at a terrific pace, catching it in its claws again. And so the game went on.

Author of WEBSTER-MAN'S MAN, THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS, ETC. PICTURED BY A. W. HILL. COPYRIGHT, BY PETER B. KYNE.

"ORIENTAL GOODS."

Synopsis.—Captain Phineas P. Scraggs has grown up around the docks of San Francisco, and from mess boy on a river steamer, he has come to the ownership of the steamer Maggie. Since each annual inspection promised to be the last of the old weather-beaten vessel, Scraggs naturally has some difficulty in securing a crew. When the story opens, Adelbert P. Gibney, likable, but erratic, a man whom nobody but Scraggs would hire, is the skipper, Neils Halvorson, a solemn Swede, constitutes the forecastle hands, and Bart McGuffey, a wastrel of the Gibney type, reigns in the engine room. With this motley crew and his ancient vessel, Captain Scraggs is engaged in freighting garden truck from Halfmoon bay to San Francisco. The inevitable happens; the Maggie goes ashore in a fog. A passing vessel hailing the wreck, Mr. Gibney gets word to a towing company in San Francisco that the ship ashore is the Yankee Prince, with promise of a rich salvage. Two tugs succeed in pulling the Maggie into deep water, and she slips her tow lines and gets away in the fog. Furious at the deception practiced on them, Captains Hicks and Flaherty, commanding the two tugboats, ascertain the identity of the "Yankee Prince" and, fearing ridicule should the facts become known along the water front, determine on personal vengeance. Their hostile visit to the Maggie results in Captain Scraggs promising to get a new boiler and make needed repairs to the steamer. Scraggs refuses to fulfill his promises and Gibney and McGuffey, with a miscellaneous crew, Scraggs ships a fresh crew. At the end of a few days of wild conviviality Gibney and McGuffey are stranded and seek their old positions on the Maggie. They are hostilely received, but remain. On their way to San Francisco they sight a derelict and Gibney and McGuffey swim to it. The derelict proves to be the Chesapeake, richly laden, its entire crew stricken with scurvy. Scraggs attempts to tow her in, but the Maggie is unequal to the task and Gibney and McGuffey, alone, sail the ship to San Francisco, their salvage money amounting to $1,000 apiece. His crew having deserted him, Captain Scraggs induces them to return. At an "old horse" sale the three purchase two mysterious boxes which they believe to contain smuggled "Oriental goods."

For an hour Mr. Gibney sat on the stern bits and ruminated over a few advantageous plans that had occurred to him for the investment of his share of the deal should Scraggs and McGuffey succeed in landing what Mr. Gibney termed "the loot." About eleven o'clock an express wagon drove in on the dock, and the mate's dreams were pleasantly interrupted by a gleeful shout from Captain Scraggs, on the lookout forward with the driver. McGuffey sat on top of the two cases with his legs dangling over the end of the wagon. He was the picture of contentment. Mr. Gibney hurried forward, threw out the gangplank, and assisted McGuffey in carrying both crates aboard the Maggie and into her little cabin. Captain Scraggs thereupon dismissed the expressman, and all three partners gathered around the dining room table, upon which the boxes rested. "Well, Scraggs, old pal, old scout, old socks, I see you've delivered the goods," said Mr. Gibney, batting the skipper across the cabin with an affectionate slap on the shoulder. "I did," said Scraggs—and cursed Mr. Gibney's demonstrativeness. "Here's the bill o' sale all regular. McGuffey has the change. That bunch o' Israelites run th' price up to $10.00 each on these two crates o' ginseng, but when they see we're determined to have 'em an' ain't interested in nothin' else, they lets 'em go to us. McGuffey, my dear boy, whatever are you a-doin' there—standin' around with your teeth in your mouth? Skip down into th' engine room and bring up a hammer an' a col' chisel. We'll open her up an' inspect th' swag." Upon McGuffey's return, Mr. Gibney took charge. He drove the chisel under the lid of the nearest crate, and prepared to pry it loose. Suddenly he paused. A thought had occurred to him. "Gentlemen," he said (McGuffey nodded his head approvingly), "this world is full o' sorsers an' disappointments, an' it may well be that these two cases don't contain even so much as a smell o' ginseng after all. It may be that they are really Oriental goods. What I want distinctly understood is this: no matter what's inside, we share equally in the profits, even if they turn out to be losses. That's understood an' agreed to, ain't it?" Captain Scraggs and McGuffey indicated that it was. "There's an element o' mystery about these two boxes," continued Mr. Gibney, "that fascinates me. They sets my imagination a-workin' an' joggles up all my sportin' instincts. Now, just to make it interestin' an' add a spice t' th' grand openin', I'm willin' to bet again my own best judgment an' lay you even money, Scraggs, that it ain't ginseng, but Oriental goods." "I'll go you five dollars, just f'r ducks," responded Captain Scraggs heartily. "McGuffey to hold the stakes an' I decide the bet." "Done," replied Mr. Gibney. The money was placed in McGuffey's hands, and a moment later, with a mighty effort, Mr. Gibney pried off the lid of the crate. Captain Scraggs had his head inside the box a fifth of a second later. "Sealed zinc box inside," he announced. "Get a can opener, Gib, my boy." "Ginseng, for a thousand," mourned Mr. Gibney. "Scraggs, you're five dollars of my money to the good. Ginseng always comes packed in air-tight boxes." He produced a can opener from the cabin locker and fell to his work on a corner of the hermetically sealed box. As he drove in the point of the can opener, he paused, hammer in hand, and gazed solemnly at Scraggs and McGuffey. "Gentlemen," (again McGuffey nodded approvingly) "do you know what a vacuum is?" "I know," replied the imperturbable McGuffey. "A vacuum is an empty hole that ain't got nothin' in it." "Correct," said Mr. Gibney. "My head is a vacuum. Me talkin' about ginseng root! Why, I must have water on the brain! Ginseng be dog-goned! It's opium!" Captain Scraggs was forced to grab the seat of his chair in order to keep himself from jumping up and claspin' Mr. Gibney around the neck. "Forty dollars a pound," he gasped. "Gib—Gib, my dear boy—you've made us wealthy—" Quickly Mr. Gibney ran the can opener around the edges of one corner of the zinc box, inserted the claws of the hammer into the opening, and with a quick, melodramatic twist, bent back the angle thus formed. Mr. Gibney was the first to get a peep inside. "Great snakes!" he yelled, and fell back against the cabin wall. A hoarse scream of rage and horror broke from Captain Scraggs. In his eagerness he had driven his head so deep into the box that he came within an inch of kissing what the box contained—which happened to be nothing more nor less than a dead Chinaman! Mr. McGuffey, always slow and unimaginative, shouldered the skipper aside, and calmly surveyed the ghastly apparition. "Twig the yellow beggar, will you, Gib?" said McGuffey; "one eye half open for all the world like he was winkin' at us an' enjoyin' th' joke." Not a muscle twitched in McGuffey's Hibernian countenance. He scratched his head for a moment, as a sort of first aid to memory, then turned and handed Mr. Gibney ten dollars. "You win, Gib. It's Oriental goods, sure enough." "Robber!" shrieked Captain Scraggs, and flew at Mr. Gibney's throat. The sight reminded McGuffey of a terrier worrying a mastiff. Nevertheless, Mr. Gibney was still so unnerved at the discovery of the horrible contents of the box that, despite his gigantic proportions, he was well-nigh helpless. "McGuffey, you swab," he yelled. "Pluck this maritime outlaw off my neck. He's tearin' my windpipe out by th' roots." McGuffey choked Captain Scraggs until he reluctantly let go Mr. Gibney, whereupon all three fled from the cabin as from a pestilence, and gathered, an angry and disappointed group, out on deck. "Opium!" jeered Captain Scraggs, with tears of rage in his voice. "Ginseng! You and your imagination, you swine, you! Get off my ship, you lout, or I'll murder you." Mr. Gibney hung his head. "Scraggs—an' you, too, McGuffey—I got to admit that this here is one on Adelbert P. Gibney. I—!" "Oh, hear him," shrieked Captain Scraggs. "One on him! It's two on you, you bloody-handed rapscallion. I suppose that other case contains opium, too! If there ain't another dead corpse in No. 2 case I hope my teeth may drop overboard." "Shut up!" bellowed Mr. Gibney, in a towering rage. "What howl have you got comin'? They're my Chinamen, ain't they? I paid for 'em like a man, didn't I? Ain't right, then. I'll keep them two Chinamen. You two ain't got a cent yet, an' as for this five I wins off you, Scraggs, it's blood money; that's what it is, an' I hereby gives it back to you. Now, quit yer whinin', or by the tall o' the Great Sacred Bull, I'll lock you up all night in th' cabin along o' them two defunct Celestials."

Captain Scraggs "shut up" promptly, and contented himself with growling at Mr. Gibney. The mate sat down on the hatch coaming, lit his pipe, and gave himself up to meditation for fully five minutes, at the end of which time McGuffey was aware that his imagination was about to come to the front once more. "Well, gentlemen," (again McGuffey nodded approvingly) "I bet I get my twenty bucks back outter them two Chinks," he announced presently. "How'll yer do it?" inquired McGuffey jollily. "How'll I do it? Easy as fallin' through an open hatch. I'm a-goin' t' keep them two stiffs in th' boxes until dark, an' then I'm a-goin' to take 'em out, bend a rope around their middle, drop 'em overboard an' anchor 'em there all night. I see th' lad we opens up in No. 1 case has had a beautiful job of embalmin' done on him, but if I let them soak all night, like a mackerel, they'll lumber up an' look kinder fresh. Then first thing in th' mornin' I'll telephone th' coroner an' tell him I found two floaters out in th' bay an' for him to come an' get 'em. I been along the waterfront long enough t' know that th' lad that picks up a floater gets a reward o' ten dollars from th' city. You can bet that Adelbert P. Gibney breaks even on th' deal, all right." "Gib, my dear boy," said Captain Scraggs admiringly. "I apologize for my actions of a few minutes ago. I was unstrung. You're still mate o' th' American steamer Maggie, an' as such, welcome to th' ship. All I ask is that you nall up your property, Gib, an' remove it from th' dinin' room table. I want to remind you, however, Gib, that as shipmates me an' McGuffey don't stand for you shoulderin' any loss on them two cases o'—Oriental goods. We was t' share th' gains, if any, an' likewise th' losses." "That's right," said McGuffey, "fair an' square. No bellyachin' between shipmates. Me an' Scraggs each owns one-third o' them diseased Chinks, an' we each stands one-third o' th' loss, if any." "But there won't be no loss," protested Mr. Gibney. "Drayage charges, Gib, drayage charges. We give a man a dollar to tow 'em down t' th' ship." "Forget it," answered Mr. Gibney magnanimously, "an' let's go over an' get a drink. I'm all shook up."

CHAPTER VIII.

Had either Mr. Gibney or McGuffey been watching Captain Scraggs after he had left them they would have been much puzzled to account for that worthy's actions. First he dodged around the block into Drumm street, and then ran down Drumm to California, where he climbed aboard a cable car and rode up into Chinatown. Arriving at Dupont street he alighted and walked up that interesting thoroughfare until he came to No. 714. He glanced at a sign over the door and was aware that he stood before the entrance to the offices of the Chinese Six Companies, so he climbed upstairs and inquired for Gin Seng, who presently made his appearance.

Gin Seng, a very nice, fat Chinaman, arrayed in a flowing silk gown, begged, in pidgin English, to know in what manner he could be of service. "Me heap big captain, allee same ship," began Captain Scraggs. "On board ship two China boys have got." (Here Captain Scraggs winked knowingly.) "China boys no speak English—" "That being the case," interposed Gin Seng, "I presume that you and I understand each other, so let's cut out the pidgin English. Do I understand that you are engaged in evading the immigration laws?" "Exactly," Captain Scraggs managed to gasp, as soon as he could recover from his astonishment. "They showed me your name an' address, an' they won't leave th' ship, where I got 'em locked up in my cabin, until you come an' take 'em away. Couple o' relatives of yours, I should imagine." Gin Seng smiled his bland Chinese smile. He had frequent dealings with ship masters engaged in the dangerous, though lucrative, trade of smuggling Chinese into the United States, and while he had not received advice of this particular shipment, he decided to go with Captain Scraggs to Jackson street bulkhead and see if he could not be of some use to his countrymen. As Captain Scraggs and his Chinese companion approached the wharf the skipper glanced warily about. He had small fear that either Gibney or McGuffey would show up for an hour, for he knew that Mr. Gibney had money in his possession. However, he decided to take no chances, and scouted the vicinity thoroughly before venturing aboard the Maggie. These actions served but to increase the respect of Gin Seng for the master of the Maggie and confirmed him in his belief that the Maggie was a smuggler. Captain Scraggs took his visitor inside the little cabin, carefully locked and bolted the door, lifted the zinc flap back from the top of the crate of "Oriental goods" and displayed the face of the dead Chinaman. Also he pointed to the Chinese characters on the wooden lid of the crate. "What does these hea scratches mean?" demanded Scraggs. "This man is named Ah Ghow and he belongs to the Hop Sing tong." "How about his pal here?" "That man is evidently Ng Chong Yip. He is also a Hop Sing man." Captain Scraggs wrote it down. "All right," he said cheerily; "much obliged. Now, what I want to know is what the Hop Sing tong means by shipping the departed brethren by freight? They go to work an' fix 'em up nice so's they'll keep, packs 'em away in a zinc coffin, inside a nice obdurate and eventually the Chinaman paid over the money and departed with the remains of his countrymen. "I knew he'd come through, Bart," Mr. Gibney declared. "They got to ship them stiffs to China to rest alongside their ancestors or be in Dutch with the spirits o' the departed forever after."

"Do we have to split this swag with that dirty Scraggs?" McGuffey wanted to know. "Seem' as how he tried to give us the double cross—" "We'll fix Scraggs—all ship-shape an' legal so's he won't have no come-back."

They had not long to wait. Upon his arrival at Gin Seng's place of business Captain Scraggs had been informed that Gin Seng had gone out twenty minutes before, and further inquiry revealed that he had departed in an express wagon. Consumed with misgivings of disaster, Scraggs returned to the Maggie as fast as the cable car and his legs could carry him. In the cabin he found Mr. Gibney and McGuffey playing cribbage. They laid down their hands as Scraggs entered. Mr. Gibney began at once: "To show you what a funny world this is, while me an' Bart's settin' on deck a-waitin' for you to come back, along breezes a fat old Chinaman in an express wagon an' offers to buy them two cases of Oriental goods. He makes me an' Mac what we considers a fair offer. Lemme see, now," he continued, and got out a stub of lead pencil with which he commenced figuring on the white oilcloth table cover. "We paid twenty dollars for them two derelicts an' a dollar towage. That's twenty-one dollars, an' a third o' twenty-one is seven, an' seven dollars from twenty-five leaves eighteen dollars comin' to you. Here's your eighteen dollars, Scraggs, you lucky old vagabond—all clear profit on a neat day's work, no expense, no investment, no back-breakin' interest charges or overhead, an' sold out at your own figger."

Captain Scraggs' face was a study in conflicting emotions as he gazed in the eighteen dollars. "Thanks, Gib," he said frigidly.

"Me an' Gib's goin' ashore for lunch at the Marigold cafe," McGuffey announced presently, in order to break the horrible silence that followed Scraggs' crushing defeat. "I'm willin' to spend some o' my profits on the deal an' blow you to a lunch with a small bottle o' Dago Red thrown in. How about it, Scraggs?" "I'm on," Scraggs sought to throw off his gloom and appear sprightly. "What'd you peddle them two cadavers for, Gib?" Mr. Gibney grinned broadly, but did not answer. In effect, his grin informed Scraggs that that was none of the latter's business—and Scraggs assimilated the hint. "Well, at any rate, Gib, whatever you soaked him, it was a mighty good sale an' I congratulate you. I think mebbe I might ha' done a little better myself, but then it ain't every day a feller can turn an eighteen-dollar trick on a corpse."

"Comin' to lunch with us?" McGuffey demanded. "Sure. Wait a minute till I run forward an' see if the lines is all fast." He stepped out of the cabin and presently Gibney and McGuffey were conscious of a rapid succession of thuds on the deck. Gibney winked at McGuffey. "Nothin' new hat gone to h—l," murmured McGuffey. "The job that confronts us is to get these munitions down to our friends in Mexico." (TO BE CONTINUED.)

MIND HYPNOTIZED BY SIGNS

One Reason Why City Man Fails to Familiarize Himself With the Town's Landmarks. "Do you know why it is so hard to keep landmarks in your head in the city these days?" asked the old-timer. "It is something that has bothered me a great deal. I can remember that up to ten or twenty years ago I never had any trouble remembering that on such and such a corner was a three-story building with a wabbling tin cornice. On another corner was a yellow warehouse, etc. "But a fellow doesn't remember these things any more unless he makes it a duty. I mean that the mind is no longer impressed photographically with the appearance of buildings—or vacant lots. "The reason is the advertising signs that assault the eye wherever one looks. The letters of the alphabet are so familiar to the eye that when we see a sign the eye at once begins tracing the letters. This doesn't mean that we read all these signs. Our eye is just unconsciously attracted to the familiar type—and this type is about all it sees on a building or a vacant lot. "I don't refer only to sign boards. The merchants nowadays, particularly the smaller merchants, fill their windows with signs of all descriptions. The names of the stores are lettered all across buildings. The result is we remember neither building nor sign."

PROVERBS HELD IN COMMON. Remarkable Similarity of Ideas Noted Among Nations, Both of the Old and New World. The similarity of ideas all over the world is found in the similarity of expressions to convey the ideas. The old English proverb "A fool and his money are soon parted," finds its counterpart in the phrase, "There is no medicine for a fool." But the Japanese also claim that by good management they can do something even with fools, when they say, "Fools and scissors move according to the mode of using them." Some of us carry our Latin with us all our lives, just because we had a good teacher. To these, the old Latin saying, "The eagle does not catch flies," (Aquila non capit muscas) will recall old memories of the pride and sarcasm of the Romans. So also will they be pleased to read the Japanese aphorism, "The falcon does not peck at ears of corn," which is true, as falcons, especially those of the peregrine type, are much more likely to seize and carry small animals like lambs, rabbits, chickens.—Philadelphia Ledger.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS. Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again. Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say, "California"—or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Taking Precautions. A tourist in Scotland came to a wide river. It was a stormy day and the wind was constantly increasing, but he asked a boatman to take him across. The latter agreed to do so, if the tourist would wait until he'd take his cow over. Later, as they were nearing the opposite bank, the tourist asked: "Will you tell me why you took your cow over and made me wait?" "Well, now," explained the old fellow, "ye see the cow wur valuable, and I feared th' wind wud increase so the boat might upset on the second trip."

Mysterious Stove. At a recent electrical exposition a "mystic stove" attracted no little attention. This idea is by no means new; in fact, in one of its most spectacular forms it consists of a kettle of water boiling on a cake of ice. The solution of such mysteries is powerful magnetic induction, which causes the generation of powerful electric current in the pot, pan or kettle. The layman is, of course, greatly mystified, since water can be boiled, eggs fried, and so on, with no visible source of heat. The hand can be passed over the tapestry-covered table without feeling any trace of heat.—Scientific American.

Two Tunes. Ambrose, the piano tuner, had tuned the piano, and found it in good condition. A few days later he received a letter from the owner of the piano, stating it had not been properly tuned. The tuner made another trip, and tested every note, only to find no fault with the instrument. He told the lady so. "Well," she said, "it does seem all right, doesn't it, when you play on it; but as soon as I begin to sing it gets all out of tune!" Life is a festival only to the wise.

TAKE ASPIRIN ONLY AS TOLD BY "BAYER" "Bayer" Introduced Aspirin to the Physicians Over 21 Years Ago. To get quick relief follow carefully the safe and proper directions in each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." This package is plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross." The "Bayer Cross" means the genuine, world-famous Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years.—Advertisement.

OCEANS HARD TO IMAGINE. People of the Middle Ages Found It Difficult to Conceive Extent of Waters. Eratosthenes was right; the earth was a globe. But what philosopher ever imagined that it was so large! Homer was right when he sang of the "mighty flood," but he was thinking of the insignificant Mediterranean. What poet had imagination enough to picture the vastness of the Pacific! Many had surmised the truth, but none had realized its extent. When the caravels of Columbus had sailed and returned the wise ones of the Renaissance were astonished by the story brought home. It seemed impossible that there could be so much water. And still the girth of the seas was uncomprehended. It was only when Magellan's Santa Vittoria had circumnavigated the globe and dropped anchor in the Bay of San Lucar that a realization of the world of water began to dawn. The Atlantic was astonishing enough in all conscience; but the Pacific was overwhelming and dumfounding.—John C. Van Dyke.

Human Nature Much Alike. History and geography are not always the truest guide to a people's character. A great deal of the human nature of men is displayed in the local sayings and aphorisms; this will also tell us how human all races are. The remark of Valentine in the "Two Gentlemen of Verona," "that homekeeping youth have ever homely wits," finds its companion in the Japanese phrase "Kawai Ko Ni Wa Tabi Wo-Sase (a pet child should not be made to travel). A sentiment agreed to by all persons, except the fond mother and the pet. The Japanese express their contempt for the petted child even more strongly when they say: "A grandmother's pet is three sen cheaper than other boys."—Philadelphia Ledger.

John the Baptist. At one of the Protestant churches in Hendricks county the subject of baptism was the theme for the classes in the Sabbath school. John the Baptist was mentioned several times. A seventeen-year-old girl, besides giving attention to the lesson, kept turning her head to see the young men who entered the door. Just as she turned her head for the seventh time the teacher quickly asked her: "Mary, who came in at the door?" "John the Baptist," said the girl, somewhat confused. From that day on Mary gave close attention to the lesson.

A Fool Thurst. Averill Harriman, the steamship magnate, was talking about modern dances—the shimmy and suchlike. "These dances," he said, "may be suggestive, but I am sure the American girl dances them innocently. To the pure, you know—" "Yes, I am sure the cynical foreigner was quite wrong in his comment on our dancing. A brother foreigner said to him: "These American dances are infernally difficult. I wonder if I'll ever be able to dance them the right way." "Don't bother about that," his cynical companion answered. "American girls only care to dance them the wrong way." No matter how proud a girl may be of her family name, she's seldom averse to changing it. Man is a miniature universe; all things exist in him tinged with the manners of his soul.
