SHERIFF CRAWFORD IS BUSY MAN

Now Has Twenty-Six Prisoners in the County Jail

SERVED 100 SUMMONS IN 1 DAY

Arrested Two Men Wednesday for Threatened Gun Play—Caught Driver Stolen Car Same Night

Due to the increasing vigilance of Sheriff Crawford and his deputies, there now repose in the county jail of this county twenty-six prisoners—the most that the jail has ever held at any one time since its erection.

Sheriff Crawford has been doing the work of three men lately and it is due to his untiring efforts and being on the job that averted what would have been a murderous conflict Wednesday night had he not disarmed four men and arrested the two principals.

It seems that about 7:40 p. m. Wednesday evening, May 23, he received a summons that a shooting affray was about to commence on a farm 4 miles south of DeKalb. He immediately jumped into his car, taking along deputy Solomon and another deputy, and rushed to the scene, said journey being made in about fifteen minutes. At the place of destination he found six men, the ring leader of whom was one McMinnum who was armed with a 44 revolver and a couple of the other men had guns. The Sheriff disarmed them and then walked up to the house inside of which was reposing the opposition party consisting of one Ward and two or three men, "Chief", not to be outdone by their reckless display of firearms, walked into the house and picked up a couple of 32 revolvers off the table, a shot gun and disarmed John Redmond, another inmate of the house.

After the men were under control further questioning developed that there was trouble over some land between McMinnum and Ward and they were about to settle in true Kentucky Mountaineer style. The sheriff's remarkable work in getting to the scene upset the plans evidently and Ward and McMinnum were brot back to Sycamore for trial which was to have taken place today (Thursday).

After Crawford returned to his office he received a tip that a stolen car was on its way to Sycamore from Chicago. He immediately called his deputy, Solomon, and together with Officer Petrie, went down to the negro quarter of Sycamore to await the arrival of the car. In a few minutes a new Ford delivery truck driven by one Jim Harris came onto the street and he was immediately apprehended and relieved of a 38 revolver and taken to the jail where he is now awaiting the Chicago authorities.

On the same day, previous to these two night jobs, Crawford served 100 jury summons in less than twenty-four hours time, said jury of three special panels to sit on the Wedded case.

That means some travelling and Sheriff Crawford is to be complimented on the speed and efficiency that is maintained by his office.

On this same Wednesday wherein occurred all of the above one Osinski of Chicago was sent to Sycamore to serve out a 60 day fine imposed upon him in Chicago by Federal Judge Wilkerson. The man had been convicted of robbing interstate box cars.

On Monday of this week the sheriff received from Judge Cliffe in Chicago federal court one Nicrito (white); one Henry Wilson (colored) and one Charles Friend (White) the latter very wealthy and all saloon keepers, last mentioned being from Argo. The trio were up on booze charges and are to serve 60 days of punishment in the county bastille.

Saturday one Sabol of Chicago was sentenced to a sixty day term in the county jail of this county by Federal Judge Wilkerson. The man was in for impersonating a revenue officer.

Tuesday of this week the sheriff received a tip from Jim Scott in DeKalb that a man wanted for forgery was in Cortland. Crawford immediately drove over to this village and picked up one Stanley Stine who is now being held for trial.

This brings the total of inmates in the bastille to 24 men and 2 women.

World Renowned Chautauqua Lecturer at M. E. Church Tonight (Thursday)

Dr. Louis Albert Banks, famous the country over as a chautauqua lecturer, author, evangelist and preacher, will deliver his address in the M. E. church auditorium this (Thursday) evening "Uncle Sam's World Adventure."

It is particularly hoped that a man of such a reputation and renown should talk to a large audience and everyone is urged and requested to attend this lecture, which Rev. Roberson assures us, will be "great."

Dr. Louis Albert Banks is the only one left on the platform who was a famous prohibition orator before Kansas went dry.

He is the author of more volumes of sermons and addresses than any man now living. His sixty-seventh volume has just gone to the publishers.

Dr. Banks has campaigned for prohibition in every state. He was a big factor in the achievement of national constitutional prohibition. He will be an equally big factor in securing nationwide enforcement of prohibition. His is a big soul, big brain, big body, with a big faith in the ultimate success of the world's biggest crusade. He has the sunny face, the sparkling eye, the hearty laugh that puts his audences in the same happy humor.

"HUNTING BIG GAME IN AFRICA"

H. A. Snow's Wonderful Production At Genoa, May 29, 30 and 31

H. A. Snow's "Hunting Big Game in Africa with Gun and Camera," is a record of a two years' expedition into the heart of Africa by a man who has devoted forty of his sixty years to just such adventure. This trip he had behind him the Oakland (Cal.) natural history museum. The picture he made are of inestimable educational value and as real entertainment there are few films that come up to them. There is plenty of dramatic action when a herd of elephants charge the hunters and plenty of comedy when a flivver and wart hog engage in mortal combat.

The picture starts with a landing at Cape Town and a little excursion over to an island inhabited only by the human-like penguin—millions of 'em. After the return to mainland there is a sidetrip to the diamond mines with interesting views of that mysterious industry.

Out upon the veldt then continues the ox train and the safari (company of servants) scaring up all kinds of wild animals and strange birds. These are seen at the water holes where they come to drink and are sometimes pursued into the brush. Subtitles on the screen tell of the habits of the different animals and how they were encountered.

Giraffes, said to be the hardest to approach because of their natural periscope which enable them to see approaching enemies, furnish one of the most amusing pictures.

The feat of capturing a family of lion cubs alive was accomplished and the encounter with rhinos made an exciting moment.

This great picture will be shown at the Genoa Opera house on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 29, 30 and 31.

ROCKFORD MARQUETTES SUNDAY

Kingston Will Play the Rubber Game in Genoa, May 30—Starting at 3:30 p. m.

Sim's tribe of dark huskies from the amalgamated lodge of the knights of the "Strutter's ball" alias the colored giants were minus old lady luck Sunday when they attempted to bag an 'ace-deuce' on the Genoa nationals and hole out in seven or eleven themselves. They were beaten badly in fact, we will say massacred, to the tune of 21 to 4.

The Genoa boys had their eyes set for base hits Sunday and the doubles, singles and, even home run, that were cracked out caused no end of trouble to the score keeper. Genoa made 2 hits for a total of 21 runs, while Sycamore's colored gentry, plus most of the colored men that are now working at Hart, hit the ball for nine safe wallops and 4 runs.

Of course Gustafson was in his element and whiffed fifteen men, knocked a home run and allowed nine hits. The Sycamore manager had told Mr. Overly before the game that his boys would put up a stiff battle, but after the agony was over he said that his regular 3rd baseman and pitcher were in Chicago—we believe it.

The young lad from the Hart gang who pitched for several innings held the locals to three runs. He has a world of speed and a decided hook on the ball.

We don't know whether it was because of the huge total of some 18 runs that piled up for Genoa in the first four innings or whether it was a remarkable improvement from the Sunday before; but Overly's men did not make an error all through the game which is very near perfect baseball in that department.

The Rockford Marquettes are due to play here this Sunday and the boys are out to increase their batting average again. It will be a stiff game, for this same team from Rockford hung the Indian sign on Kingston Sunday 7 to 4.

On Wednesday, May 30, Kingston Tigers will play the rubber game in Genoa, beginning about 3:30 in the afternoon.

SIEBENS FAMILY IN ACCIDENT

Auto is Wrecked as It Leaves Road Near Deer Creek Bridge

What may be termed a really miraculous escape was staged last Saturday night when the Siebens family car containing the Siebens family and driven by Mr. Siebens suddenly left the road near Deer Creek bridge north of town; cut down one telephone pole and plunged into the five foot ditch along side the road. In the brief space of time that this happened the fender and door of the car were ripped off, the axle bent and twisted and the crankcase frame of the engine broken.

Luckily no one was hurt. Mr. Siebens claims that an auto coming toward the car failed to dim and this blinded him so that he did not see the ditch into which the car plunged.

GEO. HASLER IN DITCH

Dust from Cars Obscured Vision and Auto Leaves the Road

Geo. Hasler had a narrow escape from serious injury last Thursday night when his car plunged off the road and smashed things up considerably. Mr. Hasler suffering nothing but a severe shaking.

It seems that Mr. Hasler had just passed three autos and the dust they kicked up made it impossible for him to see and before he could stop he was in the ditch alongside the road.

The wrecking machine was called from Sycamore and with the aid of several motorists the auto was hauled back to Sycamore for repairs.

LEGISLATORS VISIT DE KALB

Forty Members of State's Upper and Lower House Pay County Visit

Under the supervision of the chairman of the appropriations committee of the state assembly, Harry Wright, about forty senators and representatives paid the various state institutions in this part of the state a visit last Thursday Friday and Saturday.

The men enjoyed a boat trip on the Rock river at Dixon Thursday night and were guests of the Dixon chamber of commerce for the evening. On Friday they inspected the epileptic colony and the Pines at Dixon and then came to DeKalb where they were entertained at dinner by the DeKalb Chamber of commerce at the Innovation. About three hundred people were present including men from nearly every town in the county.

After the dinner, which lasted for about three hours, the party inspected the Illinois State Teachers' college and enjoyed a program there after which they were entertained at the home of Dr. Wright for a few minutes.

The party then left for Elgin where they were scheduled to inspect the Elgin State hospital and a few other state institutions Saturday, before resuming their journey.

LOCAL POST IS IN CHARGE

A Rockford Band Has Been Hired For The Occasion

REV. Wm. BRIGGS WILL SPEAK

Woman's Auxiliary in Charge of Flowers—Line of March Begins At Legion Rooms at 1:00 p. m.

Bayard. Brown Post No. 337 of the American Legion will have full charge of the exercises for memorial day, Wednesday, May 30. The Woman's Auxiliary of the Legion is working with the boys to make this event a huge success—the commemoration of the dead; the giving of thanks to the living and all honor to the country of the Grand Army of the Republic; the veterans of the Spanish-American War and the boys who participated in the late world war.

The local post has spared no expense in making the event one long to be remembered. A band from Rockford has been hired to furnish music for the afternoon. Rev. W. Briggs of Chicago, one of the youngest and foremost orators of the Middle West will deliver the main address while several of Genoa's most talented people will sing and speak.

Those that will be in the line of march, this includes legion members, men of the G. A. R., sons of veterans and Spanish-American War veterans and all soldiers and sailors of the late war; and school children. Every one marching should be in front of the legion rooms at 12:30 p. m. Autos will be provided for members of the G. A. R.

As has been customary in the past, the flowers will be in charge of the auxiliary. Note: Mr. Briggs, who will be the main speaker served two years in France as Chaplain of the 35th infantry, where he made a remarkable record. He is presented as lecturer, preacher and platform manager. He is eminently qualified for his tasks at Chautauqua and is tremendously human. The local post is greatly pleased in being able to get so pleasant and forceful a speaker on this auspicious occasion.

PROGRAM OF THE DAY Meet at Legion rooms at 12:30 p. m.—March to cemetery at 1:00 p. m.—Music by band. Covering of graves of soldiers with flowers by children. Music by band. Invocation by Rev. Roberson. Chorus—under direction of Albert Morehouse. Solo by Mrs. Ed Baldwin. Music by band. Reading of Gettysburg Address by Mrs. Frank Wallace. Music by band. Introduction of speaker by Rev. NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Secretary Hughes Declares
League of Nations a Failure in Enforcing Peace.

FRIENDSHIP IS ONLY WAY

President Harding's Comment on New York's "Wet" Legislation—Greece Threatens to Fight Turkey—Great Britain and Russia Likely to Reach Accord.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

AN FRANCISCO, Cleveland, Chicago and Buffalo are seeking the Republican national convention of next year, with Chicago apparently in the lead. Which one do you think should be awarded the prize, and why?

SECRETARY OF STATE HUGHES has definitely joined the ranks of those Americans who are opposed to American membership in the League of Nations. Since his campaign statement in 1920, in which he and 30 other Republican leaders urged the election of Mr. Harding as the most effective way to obtain changes in the covenant that would make it safe for the United States to join the league, Mr. Hughes has observed what he thinks is the utter failure of the league to enforce peace and has concluded the machinery set up by it for that purpose is impracticable.

Mr. Hughes' utterances, which it is fair to assume had the advance approval of the President, were made in an address to the National Conference of Social Work in Washington. He did not mention the league by name, but here is what he had to say on that subject:

"The more we reflect upon the essential conditions of peace the more clearly it appears that they are not to be found in any artificial arrangements, important as these may be as facilities; that it is the disposition of peoples that counts.

"Any sort of contrivance will fail if peoples are not disposed to peace, or are not able to find ground for belief in each other. It is idle to talk of proscribing war unless the peoples are intent on maintaining peace. You cannot maintain peace by force, for you will supply, who will control, who will direct, the force?"

"Great nations may indeed discipline a weak power, provided they are united in policy and provided always that the weak power is not a necessary weight in some contrived balance of power. But when great nations do not agree among themselves, who shall guard the guardians? In that case, all the arrangements made to depend upon their harmony of view are bound to fail.

"If those who are keenly desirous of enduring peace will descend to the contemplation of realities, it will be seen that there is only one way to the goal—a long and difficult way—that is, by the cultivation of the spirit of friendship and good will among the peoples through which alone the sources of dangerous strife can be dried up.

"If you find anywhere in the world—as, for example, we happily find in the case of our relations to our neighbor to the north—a complete assurance of lasting peace, it is not because of treaties or political arrangements of any sort; it is simply because the roots of amity strike deep in the thoughts and convictions of both peoples."

SENATOR MOSES of New Hampshire has returned from a foreign tour ready to fight not only American membership in the league but also American membership in the world court. He says he found no one in Europe who believes for a moment that the court is distinct from the league. Mr. Moses is vexed because, as he says, "anyone who happens to believe from personal knowledge and experience that it would be destructive of the best interests of his country to become enmeshed in the politics of Europe is branded as a candidate against President Harding."

THIS leads to consideration of the report from Washington, after a series of political conferences in the White House, that Attorney General Daugherty will not manage Mr. Harding's campaign for renomination owing to his continued ill health. Indeed, it is believed he may soon resign from the cabinet for the same reason. His successor as pre-convention manager for Harding was not selected, but among the men discussed for that work were Charles D. Hilles of New York, Will H. Hays and A. D. Lasker, retiring chairman of the shipping board. Those participating in the conferences had no doubt, seemingly, that the President would win a renomination.

These leaders had a good deal to say about the situation in New York state where they fear the effects of the prohibition issue. There was a rumor that Theodore Roosevelt would offer himself as a gubernatorial candidate next year, his admirers asserting he is the one man who might defeat Al Smith.

PASSAGE of a bill repealing the New York prohibition enforcement acts led a citizen of Newburgh to write President Harding urging that congress be convened and that every legislator who voted for the bill and Governor Smith, if he signs it, be suspended as traitors. In replying, the President reiterated the statement that his administration would use every means to enforce the prohibition amendment to the Constitution, and continued:

"I venture that, if by reason of the refusal or failure of any state to discharge its proper duty, the federal government is compelled to enter upon the territory and jurisdiction of the state and to set up those police and judicial authorities which would be required, the most difficult and trying situations would inevitably arise.

"More or less conflict between state and federal authorities would seem unavoidable in such circumstances. The impression would be created that the federal government was assuming to interfere with the functions of the states, and the distressing results that would ensue readily suggest themselves."

FROM various government agencies in Washington there came last week reports further confirming the stories of enormous general prosperity in the United States. The railroads are doing a record-breaking business, in hauling the products of factory and farm, and although agriculture has not yet come in for its full share of the good times, the increased buying power of the farmer is shown by the spring orders of general stores and in its report on industrial employment conditions for April 30 the Department of Labor says there is little unemployment anywhere in the country, and increased demands for all classes of skilled labor, skilled mechanics and farm hands were general during April. The predicted shortage of competent farm labor already is a fact.

What is declared to be a "serious situation throughout the country" confronts the building industry, and representatives of all its branches who met in conference in New York last week adopted a resolution recommending that all new building construction be deferred for a few months in order to check the steadily mounting cost of both material and labor. Projects under way should be completed. It is stated that building projects totaling $100,000,000 in New York city and $75,000,000 in Chicago already are held up indefinitely by high costs. In the face of this some of the building construction unions in both cities are demanding further advances in wages, and dealers in materials show no disposition to lower their prices.

AT THIS writing the Americans and Europeans held as hostages by the Chinese bandits near Linchiny have not been released, and anxiety over their fate is increasing. The outlaws have enlarged their demands, and there is likelihood that they will be incensed to the murder of their captives by the fact that the government, instead of withdrawing its troops from the region, has kept it surrounded. Worse yet, a detachment of bandits that was moving to join the main band was attacked by soldiers and driven back. Through the courageous efforts of several foreign residents food, clothing and medicines have reached the captives, some of whom are in serious condition.

IF THE peace conference at Lausanne adjourns without definite result it seems likely that war between Greece and Turkey will follow. Venizelos informed Ismet Pasha that Turkey's demands for reparations from Greece must be dropped, since his country would fight rather than pay a cent. The prospect of renewed hostilities caused rejoicing in Greece and the economic and financial conditions there improved immediately. The Greek army in Thrace, numbering about 150,000, was said to be under orders to be ready to march on Constantinople. The French foreign office has made it clear that France will support Greece, asserting that it had positive information that responsibility for the war in which she was beaten does not devolve on Greece.

By a financial coup a British syndicate has purchased control of the famous Berlin-Bagdad railway, a pet project of the former kaiser of Germany. It is, of course, but partly completed and is in poor condition, but its potential value is immense. The concessions connected with it conflict with the Chester concession, especially along the Mosul frontier. This achievement by the English has enraged the French government. It is said, as they and the Americans now have obtained the two biggest things in Anatolia.

RELATIONS between Great Britain and Russia probably will not be ruptured despite Curzon's ultimatum. That fierce note, it seems, was really dictated by the foreign minister's offended amour propre and was not backed up by the business men of England. The soviet government, also, was not desirous of trouble and Leonid Krassin flew from Moscow to London in an airplane to try to smooth over the difficulties. He declared Russia was quite willing to adjust any complaints, and was graciously received by the British officials. It was predicted in London that the net result would be that relations with Russia would be strengthened and made closer instead of being broken.

Rumania, however, has shown sharper disapproval of the soviet regime. Envoys from Moscow were in Bucharest to negotiate a commercial treaty. They demanded that Rumania recognize the soviet government, and Premier Bratianu replied that it was necessary to the making of the treaty, his country would get along without the pact. The Moscow envoys were then given their passports and sent home.

SETTLEMENT of the costs of the American army of occupation was reached last week so far as it could be by Elliott Wadsworth and the allied representatives in Paris, but it may be Washington will not accept the plan. The allies agreed, as Mr. Wadsworth asked, that the sums advanced by America for the costs of its army of occupation shall be repaid over a period of 12 years; second, these payments will be made by the reparations commission from the cash sums paid by Germany on the reparations account with absolute priority of 25 per cent on each year's payments for 12 years.

But these conditions were attached: First, the United States is to negotiate separately with Germany for the payment of 1,000,000,000 gold marks; second, such payments when made, are to go through the reparations commission, undergoing the customary process of the Belgian priority before the American share is taken out; third, the United States promises not to pass any "recovery act" or high import tax on German goods.

NOT so serious as at first reported but bad enough was the disaster that befell Hot Springs, Ark., known as the "American Spa." Following a terrific flood, fires broke out and many buildings, including several hotels, were destroyed. The property loss was estimated at $1,000,000, but no lives were lost.

Bandits.

BRIGANDS WELL ORGANIZED

Many of Them Served in France During the War and Learned Western Languages—Some From Good Families.

Peking, May 22.—The time has passed when parleys will accomplish anything toward release of the foreigners held captive by bandits in the mountains of Shantung. The powers must now decide whether to use force. As a result of this opinion, held to by a man by foreign representatives who have investigated the situation in the bandit area, diplomats are in close touch with their governments, discussing what action should be taken.

Foreign commercial organizations are pressing their respective legations to use extreme measures toward effecting release of the prisoners. The government having failed to reach any terms for settlement with the bandits, the matter is now squarely up to the legations.

Falling a settlement, the most favorable outlook for the prisoners, as the situation exists now, is indefinite captivity under the most trying conditions. A most serious possibility also rests in the threat of the bandits to kill their prisoners if troops harass their mountain stronghold. The brigands' ultimatum, threatening to kill two foreigners if Chinese troops are not withdrawn has expired.

Finally, the bandits' secret agents are communicating with bands throughout Shantung and adjoining provinces with a view to enlisting reinforcements—action which carries the possibility of the whole country-side being swept by bandit warfare.

Roy Anderson, the American-born negotiator, who recently made a trip to the bandit stronghold for the Chinese government, was closeted with United States Minister Schurman at the American legation.

"The bandits are excellently organized," Mr. Anderson said. "Many of them served in France during the war and learned western languages. Forty per cent of them have been bandits since childhood. The rest are from good families, but turned criminals under years of heavy taxation and government oppression."

N. Y. Bricklayers Strike for Twelve Dollars a Day

New York, May 22.—Prospects of a complete tieup of $200,000,000 worth of construction within a month if the bricklayers who went on strike remain out were seen here by employers. The bricklayers demand $12 a day. Building employers are reported to have offered $10 a day, with a bonus amounting to $2 during the present building emergency.

United States Treasury Revokes Tax Refund Ruling

Washington, May 22.—The treasury revoked its decision of two weeks ago declaring exempt from income taxation corporation dividends distributed out of profits of subsidiary earnings accrued prior to March 1, 1913. The ruling, officials said, would have resulted in the refunding of many millions of dollars in taxes.

Colorado Snowslide Kills Four at Top of the World

Denver, Colo., May 22.—A gigantic snowslide, sweeping down the mountain at terrific speed, struck the west end of tunnel No. 32 on the Denver and Salt Lake railroad, between Corona and Dixie Lake, Colo., killing four members of a working party and injuring two others.

Five Railroads Give Wage Increases of $2,130,000

Chicago, May 22.—Five railroad systems Monday announced pay increases aggregating more than $2,130,000 annually. The roads are the Philadelphia and Reading, the Bangor and Aroostook, the Central of New Jersey, the Pennsylvania and the Lake Superior and Ishpeming.

United States Fleet Is Mobilized at Shantung Port

Washington, May 22.—Almost the entire Asiatic fleet, consisting of 13 destroyers, a gunboat, supply ship and other auxiliaries, is concentrated at Chifu, Shantung port nearest the bandit stronghold, ready for any emergency.

BUY EGGS NOW FOR WINTER
 So Says Bulletin from DeKalb Co. Farm Bureau—How to Keep Them
 It is known that April, May and June are the low months in the price of eggs and the following process for preservation of eggs for next winter's use is given by the DeKalb Co. Soil Improvement Association:
 The simplest process for home preservation is what is known as the water-glass method. Commercial water-glass (sodium silicate) may be obtained at any drug store. It should be mixed with pure water at the rate of one quart of water-glass to ten or twelve quarts of water. The safest procedure seems to be to use boiled water although many persons have reported successful results with ordinary unboiled well or spring water.

 Five-gallon earthenware jars or new galvanized garbage or ash cans make desirable containers. A five-gallon jar will hold fifteen dozen eggs. Pour the solution into the jar and immerse the eggs afterward. The solution is dense enough so that if an egg be placed just beneath the surface and released it will settle slowly to the bottom without danger of breaking. If eggs are piled in the jar before adding liquid there is great danger of those in the bottom being crushed by the weight of eggs above.
 None but fresh, clean, sound shelled, unwashed eggs should be preserved. Place the eggs in the solution the same day they are laid, if possible. If only a few hens are kept add the eggs from day to day until the jar or container is full. Cracked eggs may be detected by tapping each egg lightly before placing in the solution. A cracked egg will give an entirely different sound when thus tapped than will a sound egg. Avoid the use of thin-shelled eggs that would be likely to break. Eggs laid in May keep better than those laid in the summer and are usually lowest in price. Infertile eggs keep better than fertile ones.

 See that the top eggs are at least an inch below the surface of the liquid. Cover the container to prevent evaporation and set in a cellar or other cool room where it may remain until winter. There is no harm in moving the jar later, provided only that it be carefully done so as to avoid breaking any eggs.

ISAAC WALTON LEAGUE MEETS

Several from Genoa and Vicinity Hear
Dr. Bradley Speak in Elgin—Club here?

It was the honor of several Genoa men and members of Isaac Walton club in this vicinity to hear Dr. Preston Bradley, charter member of the Isaac Walton League of America, delivered a most remarkable address before the league at Elgin, Ill. last Friday night. Dr. Bradley is a speaker of national reputation and seldom leaves the chautauqua platform long enough to deliver an address before a local club. However, he promised the Elgin fellows if they would get two hundred members in a month, he would speak before them.

The club secured the members and Dr. Bradley spoke with very gratifying results. His lecture in part and in substance is as follows:

The Isaac Walton League of America is an organization of fishermen, hunters and lovers of the out-of-doors pledged to the restoration and preservation of sports afield and astream in the United States and the Dominion of Canada, the saving of the fragments of the out-door America of our ancestors, having and seeking no commercial gain or aggrandizement nor having political interests or affiliations.

The Isaac Walton League of America advocates: The practice of true sportsmanship in hunting and fishing; and strenuous and unremitting opposition to illegal, destructive and unfair methods.

An aggressive program calling for national and state legislation to eradicate pollution from coastal and inland waters.

Increased protection and intelligent conservation of our forests and reforestation of cut-over and burned over lands.

Full recognition of the fact that the recreational value of the forests and streams surpasses the commercial values.

Due consideration of the disastrous results of indiscriminate drainage projects and the obstruction of natural water courses.

That adequate public shooting, fishing grounds and game refuges be established by the state and national governments.

Sufficient fish hatcheries and game farms for the increased propagation and wider distribution of fish and game.

Prohibition of the sale and interstate shipment of game fishes from inland waters.

Scientific regulation of the taking of salt water game fishes.

The strictest enforcement of the migratory bird law.

To endorse the recommendations of zoologists who recognize the critical need of building a sufficient number of biological experiment stations, by the federal government and by the several states so that the aid of scientifically trained men may always be available to pass upon the natural conditions of waters and the proper species of fishes to be planted therein.

The united support of those public officials regardless of their party affiliations, who show themselves to be in sympathy with the principles of true conservation.

The fullest measure of co-operation between all organizations devoted to the interests of the outdoorsmen of America.

The league was organized in Chicago by a group of fifty-two men, who realized something had to be done for posterity, the Outdoors of Our Forefathers. This chapter was organized a year and a half ago and is spreading rapidly over the United States and Canada. There are chapters as far away as Canada, California and south to Florida.

Elgin, DeKalb, Sycamore and Rockford have chapters and Marengo is organizing.—Let's go Genoa and get a club here.

Read the Amazing Experience of Mr. Henry L. Carpenter

Three weeks ago, Mr. Carpenter, who lives at 424 N. Winnebago Street, Rockford, came to my office. He was suffering from a form of paralysis which had atrophied his left arm and right foot. Since October, 1922, he had been forced to use a strap suspended from his left elbow and his right foot dragged helplessly on the ground.

After a careful analysis of Mr. Carpenter's condition I gave him his first adjustment. His fingers began to twitch for the first time in months. After the second adjustment the patient was able to open and close his fingers, and now after fourteen adjustments, he has a grip as strong as he has ever had. He is able to walk freely and briskly with only a slight, scarcely noticeable, defect in his step.

CHIROPRACTIC CURED HIM

Because it removed the cause.

You, too, can be relieved by means of this remarkable science which has helped thousands. When asked if he objected to having his name printed, Mr. Carpenter replied "No, I would almost be willing to sell the papers myself. I am convinced that thousands of people, now suffering can be relieved by CHIROPRACTIC."

Profit by this experience.

Lose no time. See me tomorrow.

UNCLE JERRY

SYNOPSIS.—Living in a barn, converted into a dwelling, Mrs. Penfield is manager of an apartment building known as "The Custard Cup," originally "Cluster Court." Her income is derived from laundry work, her chief patron being a Mrs. Horatius Weatherstone, whom she has never seen. Living with her are "Crank" and "Thad," homeless small boys whom she has adopted. They call her "Penzie." Thad tells Penzie a strange man was inquiring for her under her maiden name. A tenant, Mrs. Gussie Bosley, induces Penzie to take charge of a package, which she does with some misgivings. Searching a refuse dump for things which might be of value, Crank, veteran at the game, encounters a small girl, Lettie, who proves a foeman worthy of his steel. He takes her to Penzie, and Lettie gets an invitation to join the family.

Mrs. Penfield covered her ironing board with an old sheet and propped it in a corner. Turning, she stood a moment in deep thought, her brown eyes on the prickly piece of childhood on the wash bench, her mental vision absorbed in problems of arithmetic.

The question confronting Mrs. Penfield was complicated only by the limitation of food for the family. The ugly accretions of speech and behavior disturbed her very little, because she believed that underneath them there is always a bit of life that is sweet and true; one has only to pry off the handicaps and give it a chance.

"I was only thinking," she said briskly, "that it might be a mercy if Lettie'd stay. I got 'most a box full of clo'es that Mrs. Weatherstone sent down that's betwixt and between, too small for me and too girly for Thad. I expect they'd fit Lettie fine."

That young lady shot a wise glance out of bright black eyes. The eyes were young, but the expression was centuries old, full of gathered shrewdness and mockery. "My clo'es ain't never stumped anybody yet," she observed scornfully. "It's victuals that cuts the ice, anyway."

"And I'll get her a sleeping-box down to the grocery," added Crink eagerly, more and more captivated every minute by the sterling peppiness of the newcomer.

"Sure. We'll have it worked out in no time. 'Bout all the real difference an extra one makes is that you're happier to have another one in the family. Now, Crink, you set the table—and be s'pry, 'cause I'm going to dish right now. You'll find an extra spoon in the egg box. Lettie need no knife and fork. This here s'pper's simple to eat."

With the cover of the saucepan in her hand, Mrs. Penfield made a dash for the outside door. "Thad!" she called, in a practiced neighborhood yell. "Thad! Tha-aad! My land, she continued, dishing up stew with a worn agate ladle, "I 'most forgot to call that blessed baby. He's been watching Mrs. Catterbox' garden. She promised him a penny to keep the chickens out two hours while she went uptown. He's been in 'bout seven times to know if he sure could spend it himself, the dear!"

These intimate revelations were cut short by the entrance of the new capitalist. One glance at the occupant of the wash bench reduced his high enthusiasm to a round, double stare, framed in amber eyelashes.

"Thad," said Mrs. Penfield formally, "look what we got while you were gone." With the agate ladle she pointed toward Lettie with the air of an entomologist who indicates a particularly fantastic bug. "This here's Lettie. And Lettie, this here's Thad." Having thus separated their personalities with the convenient ladle, she reached for another bowl.

The setting of the table had not been a difficult thing for Crink to learn. On a cloth composed of four flour sacks, united by hand, were four plates, four bowls, four tumblers of water, four spoons, and, in front of Mrs. Penfield, a plate of cornbread, a small piece of butter, and a knife.

"Now, boys," signaled Mrs. Penfield. "And mind you go slow and mean what you say. You know God can't hear nothing unless you mean it."

Then the mixed chorus said slowly: "Lord, we thank Thee 'cause we got big appetites and good things to eat, Amen."

Lettie forgot her hunger momentarily and opened her black eyes wide. "That beats me," she commented. "Do you always talk that way 'fore you begin? What in tarnation do you do it for?"

"So we won't forget for a minute how thankful we are," returned Mrs. Penfield mildly. "Now sail right in, Lettie."

Lettie sailed—or rather she plowed. No engrossed letters of resolution ever held so deep a tribute as was accomplished by Lettie. When the meal was over, she hunched down on her stool in the relaxation of absolute content, and fixed her black eyes on Mrs. Penfield.

"I'll stay with you forever, if you want me to," she announced.

Mrs. Penfield acknowledged her triumph, but bore it with remarkable modesty.

CHAPTER IV

Uncle Jerry.

Many times Mrs. Penfield had speculated about the identity of the man who had been searching for her—who had even traced her to The Custard Cup and then failed to find her. Several days had passed since Thad's report, and she had heard nothing further; neither had she the slightest clue, except that it must have been someone out of her girlhood, out of the past from which she had supposed herself cut off by the severing of all close ties. That past was filled with painful memories.

It was not an unmixed joy to know that a previous acquaintance might be near, and that at any moment she might be called upon to talk casually of those years which were buried deep in her heart. The very sound of her maiden name had stirred lethargic recollections into renewed life, into the power of shooting like darts of agony through the commonplaces of daily routine.

Inevitably, since imagination is a more vivid artist than reality, she had exaggerated the possibilities of the encounter, anticipating them with a dread which she was far from feeling when that encounter actually occurred. She even answered the ring of the bell with the serene conviction that a neighbor was calling.

"Good morning," she called brightly, as she rolled aside the big door.

A man stood on the warped board that took the place of front steps. He was about fifty years old, rugged, weather-beaten, giving the impression of out-of-doors and hard work, incessantly combined.

He said nothing. Hat in hand, he regarded Mrs. Penfield with a smile of inexplicable significance, which somehow checked the rest of her usual greeting—the part about coming right in. Her brown eyes blinked in question.

"Am I supposed to know you?" she inquired at last.

"I was hoping you'd guess me," he returned, in a deep voice that filled the narrow alley.

Mrs. Penfield shook her head.

"Then I'll tell you," he said, in evident disappointment. "I'm your Uncle Jerry."

"My Uncle Jerry! I didn't know I had one."

He laughed. "Wasn't James Winston your father?"

"Yes." Her eyes widened.

"I'm his youngest brother, John Jeremiah Winston."

Mrs. Penfield extended her hands. "Come right in. I didn't know I had a near relative in the world. I'm tickled to death."

Jerry Winston entered, walking slowly. As he sat down, he caught his hand against his side with a grimace of pain. "Tree fell on me," he explained presently. "Lumber camp in Oregon! It was my finish for that kind of life, but I was lucky to get off so easy."

They sat in silence for several moments, each absorbed in thoughts which the presence of the other had roused. It was the first time since his boyhood that Jerry Winston had been face to face with a member of his own family. He had cut himself off voluntarily, called by the freer life of the western woods. Mrs. Penfield had never seen him before. During her childhood he had been mentioned only at rare intervals, and then with the reserve that hides all wanderers as behind a curtain of tact criticism.

Jerry Winston cleared his throat. "It's mighty little I got to tell you 'bout myself," he began. "Lor, it makes me lonesome to think of the life I've had to give up. Seems like I can smell the woods in my dreams. I could smell 'em when I was a youngster, and finally I couldn't stand it any longer. That's why I ran away. But that wasn't why I didn't keep in touch," he added quickly. "No, sir, that was 'cause the family didn't forgive me for not staying home and going into the store, as they'd planned. So naturally I—" He finished the sentence with a wave of his hand.

"And now you're living near here?"

He hesitated. "Yes, a few blocks over," he replied vaguely. "I don't know whether I shall hang 'round or not. Depends."

Her fine eyes grew deep with sympathy. "Do you mean you can't find anything to—do?"

"I'm trying out one or two things," he answered shortly.

This time the evasion was unmistakable. Mrs. Penfield was sorry she had pressed the matter. "I do hope you'll stay," she said. "It has been lonely. There ain't nobody left—nobody."

He looked at her keenly, pityingly. "Nobody?"

She shook her head. "Neither of my family nor—I had a few years of happiness, and then—" She broke off, her lip quivering.

"Say, Car'line, that's tough," he put in awkwardly. "Looks like your old uncle might as much as dropped you a line, but I guess he wasn't realizing— What's that? Somebody coming?"

"Yes." She breathed more easily. A complaining tenant would be a relief from the tension of a painful reminiscence.

"No, I can't come in, Mrs. Penfield." It was Gussie Bosley, in the smartest of hats, carrying the smartest of bags, drawing on the freshest of gloves as she talked. "I'm going downtown."

"You always are," commented Mrs. Penfield, laughing.

"Yeh, I gad a lot." Mrs. Bosley smiled good-naturedly. "I've left a card on my door, telling anybody that calls to come here."

"All right."

"And if anybody does come, will you please say I've gone to Sacramento and won't be back for a couple days?"

Mrs. Penfield's eyes grew wide. "Sure I will," she said slowly. "If you'll do your part."

"My part! What do you mean?"

"I mean if you'll go to Sacramento."

"Ain't you smart?" snapped Mrs. Bosley. "I ain't asking you to do a crime. Ain't no harm in your saving me a little bother."

"Ain't no bother saved by doing a little harm, either," retorted Mrs. Penfield pleasantly. "I'm always glad to help out, but I can't go so far's that. I'm sorry."

"Very well." Gussie tossed her head angrily. "All I got to say is, you'll trip over something bigger, holding your head so stiff." She turned with a wrathful flourish and clicked off, her high heels pounding out echoes from the sides of the narrow alley.

"Some little lady!" commented Jerry Winston, with a laugh. "Hot and peppery like a Spanish sauce!" His face straightened; his merry eyes grew keen and cold. "You don't like Mrs. Bosley, do you?"

She stared at him. "How did you know who 'twas?"

He shrugged. "Oh, I've met her husband. Saw 'em together once."

"Where?"

"Downtown," he mimicked. "Not in Sacramento."

It was Gussie Bosley in the Smartest of Hats.

She did not return his banter. Her brows twisted. "Of all the people in The Custard Cup—" she began absently.

"I'll bet you're worrying 'bout my tentacles," she laughed. "That's what it is to get near a relative. Why, bless your soul, that feller's harmless."

"Oh, yes, of course," she replied, recovering herself. "I ain't criticizing. I was only surprised."

Thad strolled in from the kitchen. "By George!" cried Jerry Winston. "So that little shaver belongs to you, does he? I didn't know you had any youngsters."

"I have two—three—by adoption."

"Queer you ain't sure of the number," he commented slyly.

"One of them is brand-new," she smiled. "I haven't had her but a day. Thad, dear, this is your Uncle Jerry. Ain't that nice?"

While they were getting acquainted, Mrs. Penfield went into the kitchen. "We'll have lunch pretty soon," she called back. "I've got some cornbread warming in the oven, and I'm making dried-beef gravy. I've been saving a jar of strawberries hoping we'd have company, and now I can open it for one of my very own family. Ain't it wonderful?"

Mrs. Penfield circled around by the front door. "It's time for Crink," she said, looking out into the driveway. "Good morning, Lorene. Ev'rything going smooth?"

Lorene Percy paused on her way past Number 47. She was a pretty girl with deep violet eyes, small features, and masses of sunny brown hair. She had an excellent business position, besides singing in a choir, and she was frankly a favorite with Mrs. Penfield.

"No, not everything," smiled the girl. "Dick Chase and I have been invited on a lovely trip to Mount Diablo, and he can't—he won't—go."

"Why, that's too bad, Lorene. I wish you could go."

"I can see Lettie's going to be a comfort, Car'line. I'd stake my life she's got some go in her."

Satin in Reigning Modes;

Wide Brims in Summer Hats

GRANTED that the story of printed silks and gorgeous fabrics is unfolding in brilliant array throughout fashion's pageantry. However, in this contest for supremacy the prestige of soft, supple, conservative satin, loses not at all. Indeed, there is a growing sentiment for satin and its revival is attested among many of the foremost models for summer.

Representative of the current mode of the feminine mind the broad-brimmed picture hat will have to be of a most persuasive sort to compete with the lovable little bonnet types.

In spite of the lure of the popular poke and the snug-fitting cloche, who could resist the fascinations of a wide-brimmed transparent hair-body hat, such as is shown in the millinery group herewith? It is in pastel colorings, the sheer brim a subtle green

Satin Frock Representing Present Mode.

In this satin frock in the accompanying picture. The long panels extending beyond the hem line are characteristic of the mode's trend. Another point in favor is the long sleeve. The presence of monkey fur responds to the fashion of a "touch of fur" on summer frocks.

Canton crepe moire is one of the newest materials and its elegance precludes the necessity of further adornment. Gray is a very fashionable color. A noted model exhibited recently showed a bit of dyed fox fur to match. Other favorite fabrics for afternoon gowns include kitten's ear faille, blister crepe and various flat crepes.

In regard to colors there is a steady demand for black, with evident favor that with a georgette-draped crown to match. The plume is orchid and green.

There is a disposition to employ American Beauty shades, and it is this rich, beautiful color which is carried out in the huge timbo straw hat shown, and the roses are of the same glorified coloring with waxen foliage in deepest green tones.

A characteristic feature of present millinery vogue is the back-trim. This is noted both on large hats and small. In fact, the Nineteen shapes, as they call the wee scuttle brims which tilt square up at the back, are quite the last word, and they are filled in with flowers or ribbon across the coiffure.

Wide Brims Favored in Summer Hats.

The model portrayed with a spreading lace fan at the rear of the crown shows the effectiveness of the back-trim in connection with the chapeau of wider proportions.

Gay-colored parrots find placement on many a summery hat. As a background for two slender tailed birds of brilliant plumage a large leghorn hat is shown to the top of the accompanying group, the same having a delicate maize-colored georgette crown.

Coming! Picture hats graced with brims of immense proportions. So say the prophets versed in millinery fashion lore. From the standpoint

Mrs. Robinson Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Amarillo, Texas.—"My back was my greatest trouble. It would ache so that it would almost kill me and I would have cramps. I suffered in this way about three years; then a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, keep house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."—Mrs. C. B. ROBINSON, 608 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Tex.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings, nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

AGRICULTURE

Spraying Equipment

"Most orchardists are under-equipped," says W. S. Brock, specialist in horticulture at the University of Illinois. "Not only are spray outfits too few in number, but altogether too many units are too small. A small outfit is always overworked, and often breaks down at the critical time. Lack of power usually means poor spraying, because time is short and more speed spells fewer gallons of material per tree.

"Outfits should be thoroughly overhauled, spare parts such as diaphragm rubbers and pump packings should be kept in stock and extra lengths of hose should always be bought well ahead of the immediate requirements. Even such a small thing as a missing rubber gasket can keep a team and two men idle for an hour while a leaky connection is being repaired. Many men are keeping an outfit on reserve, and estimate that the overhead thus incurred is easily justified. Another method is found in the use of a 'conveyor' or wagon with small rotary or centrifugal pump driven by a small engine. Such a unit may cost $125 and in terms of acreage sprayed is equivalent to a $600 sprayer. The conveyor idea makes it possible to increase the efficiency of the best workmen, and good spray hands are scarce at best.

"The average sprayer is equipped with some form of tank filler operating usually on the jet principle; a very few have rotary pumps operated by a flexible gear from the engine. These tank fillers are time-savers, and are far ahead of filling by hand; they do, however, result in wear and tear on pump and motive power which should be expended on actual spraying. A good type of equipment to replace the tank filler is a stationary pump outfit consisting of a two and half or three-horsepower engine and a rotary pump. If more than one source of water is used, this unit can be mounted on skids to be moved from place to place. "Since any engine may get balky at times, the elevated platform upon which is a tank of 400 to 600 gallons capacity can be utilized as a reserve to keep spray outfits going until the filler engine or pump can be repaired. Under this plan the spray tank is filled by gravity.

"When the topography of the land will permit, the gravity filling station is ideal. The spray pond is located so that a pipe driven horizontally from the bottom will still be high enough at the outlet to fill the tank of the sprayer. A two-inch discharge pipe will thus fill a 200-gallon tank while the workmen are getting the spray materials into the tank. "Spray materials are corrosive, and spray machinery deteriorates more rapidly than most kinds. Every night the pump and engine should be looked over, and wiped off with oil waste or rags. Any threads or bolts which may need adjustment from time to time should be carefully oiled daily to prevent the action of spray materials. It is an unfortunate fact that three-fourths of the pressure regulators in use cannot be adjusted without damage to the regulator. This and most other difficulties can be avoided. "The spray gun is an admirable implement and in the hands of a skillful operator can possibly be made to save both time and material. The spray gun has been much abused. The originator of the gun designed it for use on a high-powered outfit of large capacity. Most of the guns in use at the present time are found on outfits which were never designed for an output greater than that of two lines of hose with one or two whirlpool nozzles each. It is no uncommon thing to see some men trying to operate a gun with a two-cylinder pump and a three-horsepower engine. It is possible, of course, to diminish the size of the disk to an output which will not tax the capacity of the smaller pumps, but in so doing there is nothing gained over the rod and whirlpool nozzle. The spray gun should not be used with less than 300-pound pressure, and the pump should be able to maintain this pressure with the gun wide open."

Abandoning Farms

There is no need for abandoning farms in Illinois. Part of the 5,500,000 acres of Illinois land that is now subject to serious soil washing has already been abandoned. More will be abandoned unless further erosion is checked. The abandoned land which, in practically every case, is a yearly expense, can be made useful and give some return on the investment needed to redeem it. Southern states have been using various methods for preventing soil erosion for years. In some localities it is difficult for farmers to borrow money from banks unless their land is terraced or will be terraced. One federal farm loan agent allows a valuation one-third greater on terraced land than on unterraced land. We have some proof of the value of preventing soil erosion on Illinois land by experiments conducted at Vienna field in Johnson county. This field comprised 16 acres, of which all but three acres had been abandoned. The results of experiments conducted on this field between 1907 and 1915 are briefly summarized in the following:

Four methods were used: (A) terrace, (B) embankment and hillside ditches, (C) organic matter, deep contour plowing and contour planting, and (D) the most convenient way, without giving any special attention to prevent washing. The terrace method produced an average of 31.4 bushels of corn in 7 crops, 9 bushels of wheat for 7 crops, and .68 ton of clover for 3 crops. The second method produced 32.4 bushels of corn for the average, 12.7 bushels of wheat, and .97 ton of clover. The third method produced 27.9 bushels of corn, 11.7 bushels of wheat, and .80 ton of clover. The fourth, or check, plot produced only 14.1 bushels of corn, only 4.6 bushels of wheat, and only .21 ton of clover.

The land was divided into sections A, B, C, D, and different methods of preventing erosion practiced on the A, B, and C plots, while D remained as a check, or, in other words, was farmed in the most convenient way without any special attention to prevent washing. These results show the possibilities of improving abandoned Illinois land, and the results to be obtained for Illinois land that is now subject to serious erosion, but not abandoned, would no doubt be striking if figures were available. By all means, farm land should not reach the stage of abandonment before any measures are taken to redeem it.

Flowers and Flower Beds

Harry Mohlman.

Do you know how to estimate the number of plants or bulbs you will need for a round bed? It is very easy. For instance, you have a bed three feet in diameter, and you want to plant gladioli bulbs six inches apart. Starting at the center of the bed, put one bulb there, then the first row is 6 inches from the center and will contain 6 bulbs. The mathematical formula is $2 \times 3.14 \times 6$ to get the circumference of a circle, so $2 \times 3.14 \times 6$ equals 36. Dividing this by 6, the distance apart the bulbs are planted, will give 6. After the number of bulbs in the first row has been calculated, the number for each successive row may be obtained by adding 6 to the number in the preceding row. Thus, in the above case, the second row contains 12 bulbs, and the third 18. Then add the number of bulbs in each row, plus the one in the center (1 plus 6 plus 12 plus 18) which gives 37 bulbs as the total number necessary to fill the bed.

This formula will always work out the same if the bulbs are planted the same distance apart each way. For example, if the bulbs are 5 inches apart in the rows, the rows must be 5 inches apart.

Flowers used for cut-flowers must possess certain qualities. They should have long stiff stems, harmonious colors, good keeping qualities, and a fragrance if possible. Annuals that are to be grown for cut-flowers should be planted apart from those grown in beds or borders, as the cutting of the flowers would spoil the effect of a bed. There may be a harmonious grouping of colors, however, even if planted in rows, and the taller growing forms should not shade the lower growing plants.

Following is a list of those annuals most desirable for cut-flowers: Antirrhinum or Snapdragon, Aster—various types, Calendula or Pot Marigold, Candytuft, Centaurea or Bachelor's Button, Chrysanthemum, Cosmos, Galliardia or Blanket Flower, Gomphrena, Helianthus or Sunflower, Hunnemannia or Tulip Poppy, Larkspur, Marigold, Mignonette, Nasturtium, Phlox Drummondii, Scabiosa, Sweet Peas, Zinnia.

County Organization—the Home Bureau

When any group of women have formed a preliminary county organization, have expressed their desire to become a part of the home economics service of the state, and have succeeded in raising sufficient funds to reasonably insure success, an assistant state leader comes in and assists in forming what is known as a county home bureau. In Illinois particular stress is laid on local initiative in the organizing of the county unit and no attempt is made to hasten the workers unduly or to form a permanent organization before the preliminary organization is well established and financed.

Wrap Meat in Paper

If cured meat is to be kept any length of time it should be wrapped in paper and placed in a tight paper bag. After this is done the bags of meat should be hung up in a dry, dark, vermin-proof building until required for food. To protect the meat from skippers it is sometimes dusted with borax.

AMONG LEGION FUNMAKERS

Howard E. MacDonald of Seattle, Holds Office of "Correspondent National" of the Organization

Although the Forty Hommes et Huit Chevenux organization is known as the "playground society" of the American Legion, its formation and development required the strenuous efforts of a number of Legionnaires.

Among the leaders in the funmaking body is Howard E. MacDonald, of Seattle, who holds the office of "correspondent national" or national adjutant of the organization.

MacDonald was a charter member of the third Legion post organized in Seattle, Rainier No. 21, and served as assistant adjutant and adjutant. This post later was consolidated with Elmer J. Noble Post No. 1, and became Rainier Noble No. 1.

He went to Kansas City as a delegate to the first Promenade Nationale of the Forty and Eight. It was largely through his efforts that order was brought out of the chaos then existing in the national organization.

Upon the election of Edward J. Elvers, of Portland, Ore., as chief de chemin de fer (national president) of the order, MacDonald was made "correspondent national," and was reappointed to that office following the last convention at New Orleans.

MacDonald served 22 months in the army. He was overseas 14 months as a sergeant major, senior grade, Coast Artillery corps, at First Army Artillery headquarters.

LEGION WILL WAR ON DOPE

Americanism Commission Director Powell Makes First Announcement of Organization's Activity.

Ninety-five per cent of the ever-increasing dope peddlers in America are of alien birth or parentage, declared Garland W. Powell, director of the Americanism commission of the American Legion, in an address at Indianapolis recently. Mr. Powell said that if the drug menace is not checked this country will become a drug-soaked nation within 25 years.

This is the first official announcement that the American Legion would enter the war on illicit narcotic dealers and dispensers of habit-forming drugs. Mr. Powell urged that the restriction of immigration to this country would check the traffic in dope and that the Legion would proceed to that end.

In describing the activities of the dope peddlers, Mr. Powell made these assertions: "One person in every seventy-three uses drugs as a habit. There are 1,500,000 persons now in America who cannot face existence without drugs, and who are swiftly sinking into a condition of hopelessness and death.

"The death of the drug addict is premeditated murder on the part of the peddler, for he knows the fatal result of the habit. If I were in a position to introduce a bill in congress or in state legislatures, I would make capital punishment the penalty for peddling drugs."

Mr. Powell made the statement that the use of dope is steadily growing among children. He declared that federal investigators had recently found cases of drug addiction among high school students and also among the pupils of lower grades. He cited one instance where a peddler was arrested as he waited outside for his "customers" to come from their classes.

Alaska Women Active.

Women enrolled in the American Legion Auxiliary at Juneau, Alaska, are so earnest in their efforts to aid the disabled ex-service men that they have decided to "adopt" a hospital. They have written to E. E. Arne, director of war service, Pacific division of the Red Cross, suggesting that Walla Walla, Wash., hospital doubtless would be pleased to be "adopted" by the Auxiliary and receive the comforts they are eager to supply.

Drive for Better Streets.

The American Legion post of Rockdale, Tex., led a drive by the citizens there on the bad streets of the town. Every man, woman and child took a day off to repair the thoroughfares. All the trucks and wagons in the city were used to haul gravel and other materials, while the citizens did the manual labor. Although the Legion post is less than a year old, it owns a suite of well-equipped clubrooms.

FOODS THAT ARE GOOD

To be healthy and wise the family should have onions in some form served twice a week at least. The following dish is delicious.

Stuffed Onions.—Use the large, mild southern onion if possible, if not, large native onions. Peel six and cook in boiling salted water until nearly done, cool a little, cut a slice from the end of each and scoop out the center. Chop three-fourths of a cupful of pecan meats; stir in three-fourths of a cupful of bread crumbs, one-third of a cupful of melted butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley and pepper to taste. Fill the onions and place in a buttered baking dish, pour in a cupful of hot water and bake in a moderate oven one-half hour, basting occasionally with butter and hot water. When ready to serve pour over a half cupful of cream or a cupful of rich white sauce.

Franconia Potatoes.—Pare the potatoes and boil ten minutes in salted water. Drain the potatoes and place in the pan with a roast forty-five minutes before the meat is done. Baste frequently to brown the potatoes. Potatoes served in this manner are good with any kind of a roast, but a beef roast is especially good.

Bread Pudding.—Spread slices of bread with butter and any liked jam, place in a baking dish and pour over a pint of hot grape juice. Cover with chopped nuts and serve, after baking, either hot or cold with a custard or whipped cream.

Carrots With Peas.—Cut into half-inch cubes enough carrots to make two cupfuls and cook fifteen minutes in boiling water. Drain and while still hot add one-third of a cupful of butter; shake well so that each piece is well-covered with butter, then add one-third of a cupful of granulated sugar mixed with a tablespoonful of fresh mint finely chopped. Cook slowly until the carrots are tender and well-glazed. Have ready a pint of heated French peas. Pile the carrots in the center of a hot platter and arrange the peas as a border.

Bread Crumb Bread.—Take one cupful of milk, two-thirds of a cupful of lukewarm water, one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of fat, one cake of yeast, one and two-thirds cupfuls of bread crumbs, two and three-fourths cupfuls of flour. Mix as usual, knead ten to fifteen minutes, let rise until double its bulk, shape and when again double its bulk, bake one hour.

Man has been called "the representative product of the universe"; and we do well to remember that in this position his actions represent the worst of which nature is capable, as well as the best. He summarizes her goods and he summarizes her evils.—L. P. Jacks.

SPRING FOODS

It is one of the surest signs of nature's friendliness for man that she seems always eager to provide what he needs when he needs it and in such a form as to make its use agreeable. In summer when heat and humidity combine to make heavy foods really dangerous nature furnishes us with fresh juicy fruits rich in cooling acids, vegetables and greens to supply the needed tonic for the system clogged by the heavy foods of winter.

Spinach, dandelion and many of the so-called weeds of the garden make most palatable dishes when cooked and well seasoned. Egg and Spinach Salad.—Put two hard-cooked eggs through a coarse sieve, one pint of cooked and chopped spinach, one tablespoonful of mild onion finely chopped, one green pepper chopped, one-half cupful of celery finely cut, salt and pepper to taste. Mix all the ingredients and moisten with mayonnaise dressing. Mold and when ready to serve garnish with egg white cut into petals, and mayonnaise dressing. Chill well before serving.

Clubette Sandwich.—Prepare plain scrambled eggs. Toast medium-thin slices of bread, butter and cover one slice with a layer of the cooked egg, sprinkle with finely minced parsley and Spanish onion, cover with a leaf of lettuce, spread mayonnaise on the lettuce, then cover with the other slice of toast. Serve garnished with crisp bacon and dill pickle cut into waterlike slices; spread in the form of a fan.

Egg and Fish Loaf.—Take three hard-cooked eggs, one cupful of tuna fish, one cupful of boiled rice, one teaspoonful of minced onion, three thin slices of bacon cut into tiny bits, salt and pepper to season and milk to moisten. Mix all the ingredients and put into a greased baking mold. Slice the eggs and arrange around the fish. Bake thirty minutes, turn out on a hot platter and serve with tomato sauce.

When the cup is full carry it even.

JAMES MITCHELL GAINS 20 POUNDS

Tanlac Fully Restored Health of Both Self and Wife, Says Farmer.

"I don't wonder at it being praised so highly everywhere," says James Mitchell, prosperous farmer, on Route 2, Mackinaw, Ill.

"I was in such a bad fix with stomach trouble that I lost twenty pounds and had to quit work altogether. Everything disagreed with me, my head and back ached terribly, and although I spent a small fortune I was getting worse so fast I thought my days were drawing to a close.

"But the Tanlac treatment has made me feel like a man made over. I have regained my lost weight and a few pounds besides, can work from sunup to sundown, and in fact, never felt better in my life than I do now. My wife suffered much the same way I did, and Tanlac has her looking the picture of health, too. If anyone doubts this statement, just let him write me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses. It is not recommended for relieving.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Poetry Must Be Marxian.

The persecution of opinion in Russia is more severe than in any capitalistic country. I met in Petrograd an eminent Russian poet, Alexander Blok, who has since died as the result of privations. The Bolsheviks allowed him to teach aesthetics, but he complained that they insisted on his teaching the subject "from a Marxian point of view." He had been at a loss to discover how the theory of rhythmic was connected with Marxism, although, to avoid starvation, he had done his best to find out. Of course, it has been impossible in Russia ever since the Bolsheviks came into power to print anything critical of the dogmas upon which their regime is founded.—Bertrand Russell in "Free Thought and Official Propaganda."

A young soldier from the backwoods section had been invited to a military dance and was frankly horrified at the up-to-date ways of the young women. His partner, after spending half of the dance in agony over his awkwardness, suggested that they sit out the other half of the dance, and led him to the veranda. There she drew out a gold cigarette case and remarked: "Of course, you don't mind girls smoking?" The young soldier was determined to be just as modern as she.

Would Do Some Thinking. Billy was giving a birthday party and was much excited over the idea of possible presents.

"You mustn't expect the children to bring them, dear," said mother. "Remember to thank the ones who do—and don't notice it if some of the children come without gifts."

"I won't say anything," Billy replied, gloomily, "but I can't help thinking my thanks."

SMOOTH STRANGER WORKING
Has Cashed Worthless Checks At Several Rockford Stores Recently

Either R. D. Murphy is a pretty smooth customer or else the merchants of Rockford are easily swindled is the way a paper in a nearby town puts the situation for it seems that one R. D. Murphy has cashed several checks in Rockford taking stock and cash in return for the change, the checks being drawn on the Farmers State Bank of Belvidere, signed with the name "Andrews & Beckington" and backed by "R. D. Murphy. Not so bad at that, for three Rockford retail stores fell for it. The stranger is about 45 years old, weighs around 210 and is 5 feet, 10 inches tall.

It will be remembered that two stores in Sycamore were hounded out of money in this same fashion not over two months ago. Perhaps its the same man.

COURT HOUSE NOTES

Effie J. Ashelford of the city of DeKalb, brought suit in the circuit court of DeKalb county for divorce against Albert Ashelford, a wealthy stockbuyer of DeKalb, on Saturday, May 19, 1923.

It appears from the bill of complaint filed by Mrs. Ashelford that she was married to the defendant on November 3, 1900 at Sycamore and lived with her husband until May 13, 1923. No children were born out of the marriage. The complainant states in her bill that on or about December 23, 1919 the defendant attacked the complainant with a bloody butcher knife, chased her in to a corner of the house and would have killed had she not warded him off with a chair; that on the 30th of March, 1923 defendant treated to burn the house they lived in and imprison her in the burning structure."

The defendant, it is alleged, is the owner of considerable real estate, notes, securities, etc., of the probable value of $15,000 and has an income of $6,000 annually from his occupation as stockbuyer.

Judge Fulton entered an order prohibiting the defendant from disposing of any of his property until further order of the court.

In the foreclosure proceedings of the Pierce Trust & Savings Bank against the Marvel Tire and Rubber Company, and the two other mechanics lien cases consolidated with it, M. G. Reinecke, Acting collector of U. S. Internal Revenue, was ordered substituted as defendant for John C. Cannon, for collector, who died.

The Marvel Company owed some money for luxury taxes to the government and it is the reason why the collector was made party defendant in the case.

GIFTS

We know of no period in the whole year that lends to itself the spirit of the occasion as graduation time does to the young men and women who are about to start out upon the road to success or failure whichever they may choose.

We know that if they are equipped with a Shaeffer fountain pen or pencil that they will attain the highest standard in writing that it is possible to procure. In order that scenes may be recalled in after years, but now seem merely of pleasing interest, an Eastman Kodak would be a gift of appreciation for meritorious work accomplished.

Again, a person's individuality is more fully emphasized if all communications are written on the best of writing papers. Our line is complete with the latest creations of the designer's art.
