

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

Short Session of Court Presided Over By Judge Slusser Friday

SCHOOL INJUNCTION DISSOLVED

Construction on DeKalb High Building Will Continue—Several Firms Paid Balance Due Them

Federal control of railroads for war purposes ended at midnight on February 28, 1920.

The railroads of the United States, therefore, have been operated by their respective companies for a little more than three years.

During this period the outstanding accomplishments were:

1. Railway operating expenses reduced approximately one billion dollars a year.

2. Out of this reduction in operating expenses over half a billion dollars a year turned over to the public in reduced rates.

3. Only about one-third of the reduction in expenses has come from decreased wages.

4. The balance of the reduction has come from increased efficiency and economy of operation.

5. The wage reductions made leave railroad wages substantially above the cost of living—or, in other words, railroad wages have not declined as much as the cost of living has declined.

The increase in efficiency and economy of operation is illustrated by the following fact:

In the second six months of 1922 traffic was almost as heavy as in the second half of 1920. Yet this traffic in 1922 was moved with an average of 1,697,310 employees as against an average of 2,109,188 employees in 1920.

While these substantial benefits have been conferred on the general public and on railroad employees, the compensation of railroad capital from railway operation has been increased from practically nothing in 1920 to about $760,000,000 in 1922, or approximately a 4 per cent return.

We note the difference in operating efficiency and revenue and return on investment to be nothing, so to speak, when the government had it, and a payroll of some half million extra employees. There is only one conclusion to draw from facts, correct as these are, and that is, a government should not own public utilities.

As further proof we will cite places in Europe where it has been tried. The following is a statement of Julius H. Barnes, as President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who with a delegation of American business men recently returned from an investigation of European conditions.

He writes "The outstanding fact which impressed us in all these countries in Europe is the very clear conviction that State ownership and State operation of public facilities—I won't say public utilities, but public facilities—has distinctly written itself as a failure.

"Not only is this shown in Italy's effort to get all its public State-owned facilities in private hands, but it is shown in Austria, where there is a recasting of the Government railroad service and a discharge of 100,000 superfluous employees.

"It is shown in Great Britain, where the railroads under their return to private operation have greatly quickened the business and economic life of that island and greatly improved the service and at the same time reduced the rates.

"It shows there is a general appreciation throughout all of Europe that these facilities must not only be in private hands but they must be regulated so wisely that they will present a field of attraction for the superior grade of private ability to enlist themselves in their admiration, and that it is true that where this has been tried, as in Great Britain, there are meetings with satisfactory results.

It is remembered that a correspondent of the Chicago Daily Tribune visited Switzerland a few weeks ago and came back with the startling information that even Switzerland, a country noted for its rigorous methods in saving money and earnest desire to make every dollar go as far as possible, had abandoned the government ownership of railroads because it was too costly, the

BILLIARD PARLOR IN NEW HANDS

Frank (Turk) Brennan Purchased Redwood Hall Wednesday

Frank Brennan pulled a surprise on the fellows about town Wednesday morning of this week when he closed a deal with R. B. Field to take over the Redwood Billiard Parlors, Mr. Bock having declined to complete the purchase.

Frank, "Turk" as he is more popularly known, is one of Genoa's most likeable young men and has hundreds of friends who will wish him all success possible in his new venture.

Mr. Brennan figures that if all goes well in the next few days, the place will be open for business Saturday.

YEOMEN SOCIAL GATHERING

The Genoa Yeomen held an outdoor social meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Holmes July 12. Over fifty members of the order and their families were present, the event of the evening being a "Weenie Roast."

All kinds of outdoor games were played until 11 p. m. when the fire was started and all gathered around to enjoy the roasted meat, buns and coffee. At a late hour the guests departed all claiming to feel 10 years younger and looking forward to the next meeting which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rowan on July 26.

RURAL SANITATION

The East St. Louis Journal sounds the following timely warning: "With the approach of the summer camping and vacation season, it is timely that health officials are issuing warnings regarding the danger which may be met in the use of water for drinking and cooking purposes, which is found in springs or stream in camps or other places."

The larger cities, today, with improved housing conditions, the installation of sanitary plumbing, the purification of public water supplies and the pasteurization of milk have lowered case rates from communicable diseases, and have lower death rates than the rural communities. The Journal continues: "Tourists and others who do yield to the temptation to drink from a spring that appears to be entirely safe may take into their systems the germs of typhoid fever, thereby running the risk of long illness or possible fatal results. It is better to be thirsty for a half hour longer until an approved source of drinking water may be reached."

FREIDEN'S PICNIC

The picnic that was to have been held last Sunday on the grounds of the Freiden's church was postponed until this Sunday because of the rain. It will be held in the Eureka Park north-east of the church all day long. The public is cordially invited.

LADIES' AID TO MEET

The M. E. Ladies' Aid Society will meet with Mrs. J. M. Clarke Friday afternoon. The July committee will serve. Each member is requested to bring a friend.

TO BUILD ST. ALBAN GYM

William Small, architect of Chicago, was in Sycamore last week getting specifications for building plans in the erection of a new gym for St. Alban's school. The old building was destroyed by fire about a month ago.

ANOTHER WRECK ON C. M. & ST. P.

The Milwaukee Road was the scene of another big wreck near Shannon, Illinois, last Friday when 12 freight cars loaded with merchandise were totally demolished. A broken bar was the cause. The damage is estimated at about $75,000.

GENOA HOTEL MOVES

The Genoa hotel closed its doors Monday and the proprietor and furnishings moved to Rockford.

roads operating at a loss every year of the government control. Immediately the private interests took control there was a cut in employees of some 50,000 and the road began to show a fair return on the investment because of increased efficiency of operation.

These are cases cited because of their proven truths, that government owned utilities do not pay and should not even be considered from any standpoint for no two political parties would run the same business the same way, and given a chance, they would pull about our necks one of the greatest calamities of all time.

GENOA NEEDS CHEMICAL TRUCK

Fire Fighting Equipment in This City Needs Above Addition

OF GREAT BENEFIT TO FARMERS

A Safe and Sane Way to Be On the Right Side in Case of Emergency—Necessity Not to be Overlooked

There is some agitation in and around Genoa for an auto chemical truck with a pump attached, and such talk is justifiable from any viewpoint.

Not only is the loss by water much greater than by fire in most instances, but the pumps and electric power are by no means in constant working order. We live in jeopardy of a heavy loss such as has been sustained by Sycamore and Belvidere within a recent date.

Of course, Genoa has a fine water supply, in fact we will say the best in the state, but what good is it under the ground if a fire breaks out and there is no "juice" to run the pumps. You may say the gas engine can be started up and after an intermission of ten or fifteen minutes enough pressure can be obtained to throw the water a distance of about fifty feet, but in those fifteen minutes a fire can gain great headway, so much in fact that the damage will amount into hundreds of dollars instead of just dollars which would be the case if the city possessed a chemical outfit that is always ready on an instant's notice.

Again, with the engine driven chemical tank, a pump can be obtained which will make its own pressure and draw water from any well or cistern, a valuable asset to farmers in this vicinity, who are at the mercy of a blaze, no matter what its size.

The plan of the men who have this project in hand is to solicit the names of the people who will give something toward such an outfit, and the amount they will subscribe; no money to be collected, however, until sufficient subscriptions have been obtained to offset the cost of the machine.

When the person comes to your door to explain the proposition, give him every consideration possible, it may be the means of saving you a great amount of money in the future thru loss by fire and water.

Let's not be like Sycamore, Marengo, Belvidere and numerous other towns in our vicinity that have woken up to the fact that a chemical outfit with pump attached thereto is a necessity, proof of which became only too evident after a disastrous fire.

THIS WAS NEWS 20 YEARS AGO

Items Clipped from the Republican Issue of July 17, 1903

Genoa celebrated the fourth of July with paid in subscriptions of $443.00. The dance cleared $78.00 and the expenses were $41.52. The extra money was given back to the donors pro rata. It is estimated that 5000 people attended this celebration.

Miss Ethel May Rafferty of Burlington took carbolic acid and died shortly afterwards. She thought she was taking medicine, but accidentally got hold of the wrong bottle.

Carloads of machinery arrived last week for the Eureka Electric Co. Work is supposed to start within a week or two.

A milk shipper at Hampshire is held responsible for the water in sixteen gallons of milk that was thrown into the sewer at Claybourn place, Chicago, by the inspectors of the health department.

Al Yalden narrowly escaped death when his jacket caught in the elevator shaft at Coochson & Lawyer's elevator. By terrible force Mr. Yalden tore the clothes from his back and escaped certain death, the only injuries received were strained muscles.

HARSHMAN FAMILY REUNION

The Harshman family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Harshman of this city on Sunday, July 15, five brothers and their families being present. They were Jas. Harshman and family of Oregon, Geo. Harshman, M. V. and John Harshman and families of Sterling, Ill. A pleasant time was had by the forty people present.

The reunion next year will be held at Sterling.

BACK BROKEN IN FALL

Hon. Fred A. Brewer of Tampico Victim of Accident Last Saturday

The friends in Genoa of Fred A. Brewer, three term member of the house of Representatives and president of the Tampico State Bank, and extensively interested person in farming operations, will be shocked to learn of his death Sunday morning from a broken back sustained when he fell from a load of hay on his farm Saturday afternoon.

Fred A. Brewer was a leading Republican of Whiteside county. For seven years he served as a member of the county board of supervisors and in 1914 was elected chairman of the board. He was also president of the Farmers' Co-operative Elevator company.

Mr. Brewer was a member of the 49th, 50th and 51st assemblies of the Illinois State Legislature.

KINGSTON FARMER INJURED

Frank Carlson Broke Neck in Fall From Load of Hay Friday

Word is received that Frank Carlson of Kingston township, who on Friday last fell from a load of hay at the William Peters farm and broke his neck stands a chance of recovering.

After the fall Mr. Carlson remained conscious and conversed with the driver of Slater's ambulance, that took him to the Rockford Swedish-American hospital.

He is well-known here and his many friends wish for a speedy recovery.

LOTUS BLOSSOMS IN BLOOM

The large bed of lotus flowers in Grass Lake, about 4 miles north of McHenry, Illinois, is in full bloom again this year. As there are only two such beds in the world, the other being in Egypt, the sight is sufficient to attract thousands of visitors every week during their period of blossoming.

Instead of driving to the lake itself, the road being exceptionally bad it is convenient to take the Hunter Boat line at McHenry. The boats leave every morning and afternoon of the week, leaving East End river bridge at 9 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. There are also large and small boats for rent. The thirty-five miles of travel through the picturesque Fox River Valley, Pistakee, Nippersink and Fox Lake, make a journey never to be forgotten.

DEPUTY BROWNE RETURNS

Chief Deputy Sheriff Ralph Browne returned to Sycamore Monday afternoon after spending the past few days in assisting federal authorities in the transportation of five prisoners to the big federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Ralph says it was a most interesting trip and Leavenworth is some prison.

KAYSER'S ORCHESTRA A HIT

A large audience and numerous dancers gathered at Slater's Hall last Monday evening to hear the music emanated by Kayser's Orchestra.

It was very good, in fact one of the best orchestras ever heard in Genoa from the standpoint of syncopationists and the crowd was delighted with the music and dance.

S. ABRAHAM FINDS PEARLS

Steve Abraham, the veteran clam hunter of Genoa, was rewarded for his efforts of the summer last week when he picked up a clam in the water near the old distillery that contained two large pearls and one a few degrees smaller. They are a beautiful lavender color and nearly spherical in shape. Mr. Abraham says $100 wouldn't purchase them.

SMALL POX EAST OF TOWN

A man who was hired by E. E. Sandall last week was suddenly taken sick and hurried to a doctor who pronounced the sickness small-pox.

The victim of the disease was placed in a tent on the outskirts of the farm where he is doing as well as nature and medicine will permit.

NO BALL GAME SUNDAY

The rain dampened the Genoa ball team's base ball ardor Sunday and put a stop on all prospects of a game.

Mr. Overley has made arrangements for the Rockford Grays to appear Sunday and we hear that it will be a fast game. The boys need your support. Root for them.

BIG FIRE AT BELVIDERE

Entire Block Razed by Blaze that was Caused by Small Spark

Belvidere was the scene of a huge fire Saturday afternoon when the junk yards of Louis Silver & Co. were burned to the ground. At times the blaze took on the proportions of a conflagration, as many as 15 houses in the neighborhood being on fire from the sparks at one time.

The fire fighters of that city soon realized that they could not cope with the situation so an alarm was sent to Rockford for assistance with one of their engines. The response was a fourteen mile drive in 17 minutes by the powerful truck that soon helped in keeping the burning buildings under control.

Almost the whole service of the Belvidere Telephone company was cut off by the blaze which melted a main feed cable and traffic on the Galena division of the Northwestern Railroad was halted.

The most serious damage, outside of the junk yards themselves was suffered by the Belvidere Lumber Co. which had a stock damage of $3000.

HELD FOR ATTEMPTED MURDER

Colored Citizen of Sycamore Held in $3,000 Bond by Justice Mitchell

"Bill" Day, colored man of Sycamore, was bound over to the county jail by Justice Mitchell last Thursday afternoon and held under $3000 bonds for an attempted murder.

According to the evidence at the hearing Day attempted to kill his enemy, Omar Johnson, also colored, by running a heavy automobile over Johnson. It was testified that Day had been employed in caring for a Hudson car belonging to Mrs. DeMay, and took occasion to drive it down in the north end of town where many of the colored people live to show them. He met his enemy Johnson who was returning from his work in a factory, and they began wrangling, when Day suddenly turned the car and knocked Johnson down and then backed over the victim. The man was painfully crushed, as was revealed by an examination at the hospital a short time later.

March 21, last, Day was sent to jail for 30 days by Judge Pond for a shooting affair on North California street in which five shots were fired.

SOME FISHERMEN

Ed Baldwin and Ed Tischerler motored Pistakee Bay last Friday morning and showed the natives thereabouts a few twists with the reel and line that they hadn't seen before. After the skirmish was over the boys brot in a large 8-lb. pickerel that Tischerler had hooked with a small 1-pound bass line. Numerous other fish was caught such as blue gills and sun fish that made the day worth while.

This is the third time in succession that Ed Tischerler has hooked a pickerel on his trips to the bay.

SANDING OPERA HOUSE FLOOR

Manager Geithman of the Opera House has had a sander at work this week cleaning and polishing the floor in preparation for dancing this summer, the first of which will be staged Friday night of this week when Don Barnes and his Radio Broadcasting Orchestra appear.

Mr. Geithman has proclaimed to the world that there will be no roller skating on the floor. It is ruinous for dancing as well as cleanliness.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP AND R. R.

Roads Are Now Able to Earn About 4 Per Cent on Investment

GOV. CONTROL SHOWED A LOSS

In all Foreign Countries Where it Has Been Tried, Huge Deficits Have Been the Results

Judge Slusser presided at a short session of the circuit on Friday when several minor matters were disposed of.

The matrimonial difficulties of Nellie Greenway and Frederick Greenway of Sycamore were aired on the divorce action brought by Mrs. Greenway against her husband.

After the hearing of all the testimony, the court continued the hearing until Friday, July 20 at 9 a. m. for arguments of counsel.

A decree of foreclosure was entered in the proceedings brought by J. R. Waterman, as trustee, of Sycamore vs. W. M. Hay, F. McCormick and Theodore Logeland et al. The matter of the appointment of a receiver was reserved for future order and matter of hearing.

Perry McCollough of DeKalb was appointed guardian ad litem for Margaret Kennedy, insane, in the chancery proceedings brought by John Strankas and F. O. Crego, trustee, against Earl Kennedy et al, and a rule on all cross defendants was entered to answer the cross-bill filed.

In the matter of Etta Gorman against Joseph H. Clark et al the hearing on the exceptions to the master's report was continued until July 20, at 9 a. m.

A hearing was also had before Judge Slusser in the mechanic's lien proceedings brought by Elmer E. Embree against DeKalb Township High school Dist. No. 401. It appeared on the hearing that on Dec 28, 1921, the DeKalb Township high school made a contract with Ross P. Beckstrom Co. for the construction of an extension to a high school in DeKalb for which it was to pay $111,950. C. A. Anderson, Claus Collin & Co., Concrete Steel Co., Illinois Brick Co., Mosher & Embree and Elmer E. Embree, Rockwell Mfg. Co. and L. J. Walsh furnish to Beckstrom & Co. labor and materials for which they received no payments and consequently filed mechanic's lien claims against the high school. The claims amounted to the following: Anderson, $256.85; Clause Collin & Co., $2,411.25; Concrete Steel Co., $851.66; Illinois Brick Co., $4,526.60; Mosher & Embree and Elmer E. Embree, $2,301.99; Rockwell Mfg. Co., $1,545.00 and L. J. Walsh, $6.00.

The High school district now holds in its possession and due the Beckstrom company, $17,996.48 being an unpaid balance on the contract which amounts due the claimants were ordered to be paid out of the fund. On January 17, 1922, the defendant Beckstrom Co., as principal and the defendant Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Co. as surety, gave bond to the High School District harmless by reason of any default on the part of Beckstrom & Co., the contractor. The amounts due the lien claimants were decreed to be paid by the bonding company and the bonding company is also to pay any deficiency. The bond will no doubt save the High School District harmless in this controversy.

The injunction heretofore against the High School District on April 23, 1923 was ordered dissolved so that the work of construction may continue. The court entered a decree along the lines stated above and concluded the hearing on several of the other claims to a future date.

DISCONTINUE PULMOTOR

Failure of Mechanical Device to Make Good—Reason of Elgin Authorities

Elgin discontinued its pulmotor service last week following a conference which took in the heads of all the various departments. Mechanical appliances for the resuscitation of drowning persons, says a statement issued at that city hall have failed in their purpose on practically every occasion of their use in Elgin and Kane county.

Plans are already under way for a supplementary service to be used in cases of partial asphyxiation from coal and illuminating gases. Manual methods for restoring drowning cases are recommended.

LETTER FROM DEKALB CHRONICLE IN RE RECOMPENSE FOR PUBLISHING BOARD PROCEEDINGS.

The following letter was presented and read by the Clerk from the DeKalb Chronicle Publishing Company regarding re-compense for publishing Board Proceedings, which letter was referred to the Committee on Printing by the Chairman.

Mr. Chas. H. Talbot, Sycamore, Ill. Dear Sir— Return your check for $14.50 covering publication of Supervisors' proceedings, as we did not publish the proceedings of the last meeting.

The rate allowed by the Board for publication does not begin to meet the cost of publication in a paper with a circulation of more than 3,000 copies, which the Chronicle has, and while we thoroughly appreciate the importance of getting this information to the public we cannot afford to do the work at a loss.

If papers throughout the County, with a circulation varying from 500 to 1,200 are paid $2 per column for this service, a rate of $4 for the Chronicle would be only fair.

If this matter is brought before the proper committee we feel sure that the justice of our position will be admitted, and if they feel that the Chronicle's clientele is entitled to the information contained in the proceedings, then we would be very glad indeed to have them allow us such rate as would permit us to publish the proceedings without actual loss.

Thanking you for your interest, and assuring you of our earnest desire to co-operate at all times, with the Board of Supervisors and the County Officials, we are,

Very truly yours, DeKalb Chronicle Publishing Co. By E. J. Raymond.

Dear Sir— This is to advise that the resolution passed by the Board of Supervisors of DeKalb County, December 7, 1922, requesting the improvement of a portion of State Aid Route 3 beginning at the west corporate limits of Sycamore and extending northwesterly for a distance of 12,000 feet by the construction of a concrete pavement 18 feet in width with six foot earth shoulders using refund money due the county of DeKalb amounting to $51,609.00 was approved on May 28, 1923.

Breakfast Foods in the Pie-Belt.

"What kinds of breakfast food have you?" the dyspeptic inquired of the waitress at the Klinkerville inn, who stood before him with her arms akimbo.
"We've got all the reg'lar kinds," said the waitress, who was a Klinkerville girl; 'ham an' eggs, steak, brook trout, doughnuts an' apple pie. You can have 'em all, if you like, an' a cup o' coffee an' griddle-cakes. We calculate to charge enough so folks can eat all they want."—Philadelphia Ledger.

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

The appeal action of the Mel-O-Dee Music Co. against George Lewis and Clarence Palmer was settled and the case dismissed by Judge Fulton.

A decree was entered in the proceedings brought by George Peckman and Edward H. Peckman of Somonauk as Executors and Trustees under the will of Henry E. Peckman, deceased, against Emma J. Peckman and others. Under the terms of the decree George and Edward H. Peckman are appointed trustees and are given the power to borrow $15,000 with which to discharge certain indebtedness and as security to place an encumbrance on a part of the real estate of which Mr. Henry E. Peckman, was owner. Under the terms of the will the trustees are given power to sell but should sale be made at this time it would result in a sacrifice, which can be avoided by the loan. Roy W. Cook of Somonauk represented the complainants at the hearing before Judge Fulton.

Anna M. Fisher of Fairdale, defendant in the divorce proceedings brought by Edward C. Fisher of Kirkland and cross complainant in the same proceedings, filed a petition before Judge Fulton in which she states that her husband is now $360 in arrears in alimony and that she is without any property and has no income whatever. That the amount of alimony awarded her is insufficient to support her and that it is absolutely necessary that an order be entered granting her a larger allowance for her support during the pendency of the cause and also funds with which to pay her solicitor. The former order provide for a payment of $30 per month.

The hearing on the petition was set for hearing on July 13, 1923 at 10 a. m.

A report of distribution was approved in the partition proceedings of Thomas Bennett, etal against Herbert Bennett, etal. According to the report the sum of $3500 was received from the proceeds of the sale of the property involved, which after the payment of the various expenses was distributed among thirteen heirs. Nine received $296.12 and four $74.03. The report was approved by Judge Fulton.

A decree in favor of the defendant, Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, was entered in the action brought against the church by George Scheidecker, etal. From this decree the complainants appealed to the Appellate court. The appeal was allowed on complainants giving bond in the sum of $250 within 20 days to be approved by the clerk.

The complainants in their action claimed that Sarah A. Seidecker, their sister had turned over to the church certain funds of money which belonged to them and which they claimed were trust funds.

NOT LEARNED FROM SARACENS

New Version of the Invention of the Rosary Found in Pages of Ancient Historian.

Catholic authorities have attributed the invention of the rosary to St. Dominic, founder of the famous Dominican order. But evidence of a still earlier origin of the rosary has come to light. It is related of Lady Godiva by William of Malmesbury that she bequeathed to the monastery of Coventry "a circlet of gems, which she had threaded on a string, in order that by fingering them one by one, as she successively recited her prayers, she might not fall short of the exact number."
"This, if authentic," says Cornelius H. Patton, in Asia Magazine, "is interesting as disposing of the theory, often held, that the Roman Catholics of Europe learned the use of the rosary from the Saracens at the time of the Crusades. Lady Godiva must have passed from the scene several years before Godfrey led his conquering host into Asia Minor and Palestine. More recent Catholic authorities call attention to the fact that, although the Roman Catholic rosary in its present standard form of 165 beads, divided into "mysteries" or decades, is Dominican, the followers of St. Dominic did not become interested in the rosary until the closing years of the Fifteenth century.—Detroit News.

Not Personality.

The Antiquarian society of Smithville was holding its anniversary meeting, an occasion of much splendor and importance.

A young woman who acted in the capacity of society reporter for one of the morning papers of the city, in making her rounds for the purpose of securing the names of those in attendance, approached a somewhat elderly but well-preserved spinster, who was moving in her stuttest manner amid the throng.

"I suppose, Miss Dunkum," the reporter said, jotting down the name, "you are an Antiquarian?"

"I am a member of the Antiquarian society," responded Miss Dunkum, with great dignity, evidently having an impression that an "antiquarian," objectively considered, was about the same thing as antiquity.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Thought Misapplied.
Thought is the most powerful force on this earth, yet most of our thought is foolishly wasted in idle gossip or in slandering someone whom we possibly do not know except by hearsay!

GREAT VICTORY FOR SCIENCE

Cure of Insanity One of the Most Supreme Blessings Bestowed on Human Race.

Insanity is no longer considered hopeless in most cases. The hospitals are curing great numbers of patients through scientific treatment. Physical infections have been found to be the cause of many mental cases; and even where the cause is purely mental, specialists are making rapid progress in restoring the diseased minds.

The reclaiming of a lost mind is perhaps the greatest blessing science can bestow. An eye, a lung, a leg or an arm may be taken away, yet there always remains that handful of gray substance which can comprehend and direct the world. But when the mind is gone, everything is gone, as far as the unfortunate individual is concerned.

The attitude toward lunatics of savage or semi-savage peoples is rather odd, when one considers that an imbecile is always more or less of a nuisance and that savages, by natural inclination, make short shrift of all obstacles in the way of their comfort and happiness. Almost invariably savage tribes believe that their demented members are possessed of a supernatural presence, and treat them kindly and well.

The treatment of those mentally deficient by modern civilized people has been sometimes cruel and, until lately nearly always unwise.—Jacksonville Journal.

Passengers Had Plenty to Eat.
Describing old stage coach days between New York and Albany, Sarah Comstock writes in Harper's: "Steak, fish or eggs were served at the best taverns for breakfast, with cakes, tea or coffee. At two or three o'clock every one gathered at a general table for a substantial dinner of many boiled dishes and a great amount of meat."

"At seven o'clock came a sturdy supper. Brandy, hollands and other spirits were furnished at dinner and a vast variety of other beverages might be ordered, from 'kill-devil' of early fame to the small drinks so popular to quench an honest thirst, not to heat the brain."

"New York state was famous for its cider, and the many other drinks made from its potent apple. Kain, in 1789, saw the horse press in use in the Hudson valley."

Of Burne-Jones.

When I do see him, it is one of the best human pleasure that London has for me. But I don't understand his life—that is the manner and tenor of his production—a complete studio existence, with doors and windows closed, and no search for impressions outside—no open air, no real daylight, and no looking out for it. The things he does in these conditions have exceeding beauty—but they seem to me to grow colder and colder—pictured abstractions, less and less observed. Such as he is, however, he is certainly the most distinguished artistic figure among Englishmen today—the only one who has escaped vulgarization and on whom claptrap has no hold.—Henry James.

Schubert Family Quartet.
Schubert enjoyed the privilege of having a string quartet in his own family, in which he played viola, his brother Ferdinand first violin, Ignaz the second violin, the father the 'cello. Schubert's father was none too accurate in his playing in the family quartet. When he made a blunder the son would carefully examine the manuscript and say "Dear father, there must be a mistake in the music somewhere."

A COMMERCIAL ACCOUNT

It is authoritatively claimed that nine-tenths of the financial transactions of the business world are done by checks. But this should not be taken to mean that nine-tenths of adults use checks as a means of adjusting their financial obligations.

The number who have no commercial account is regrettably large. We invite those who do not at present enjoy this facility, to open a checking account.

Since our last report, made to your April meeting, we have completed painting the trucks and they have been taken to South Grove Township where we started hauling gravel from the McKenzie Pit on May 29th.

We are using the South Grove Crushing Plant where we have installed the County Conveyor but owing to the rainy weather we have only been able to haul gravel five days.

The Grading outfit was taken from winter quarters on April 27th and grading was started on April 30th. Since that time we have completed the work of grading Route No. 3 (the C. & I. Trail) to the Ogle County Line and have started on grading Route No. 6 through Section 15 of South Grove Township.

In addition to the above grading of State Aid roads we have graded two miles of South Grove Township.

Your Committee plans to grade the North and South State Aid Road through the west tier of Townships with the C. & I. Trail in South Grove south to the LaSalle County Line providing the fences are moved back to allow sufficient room for grading where the roads are now too narrow.

It is the intention of your Committee to gravel the West end of Route No. 5 from the end of the present gravel to the Ogle County Line after which it is the intention to complete grading the road in Pleasant Township which was started last year.

Since our last report there has been expended from the State Aid Road Fund the following amounts:

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. Includes: Patroling $4,219.50, Grading $27.39, Clearing and staking roads $129.44, Moving grading outfit $27.89, etc.

OWL "STOOPS TO CONQUER"

Only Two Lessons Needed to Teach Dog the Wisdom of Leaving the Bird Unmolested.

Not long ago, writes a contributor, I learned of the tactics of a certain owl in defending itself that were both amusing and interesting. Whether the method is common among owls, I do not know; the bird practiced it on more than one occasion.

The owl was a great big-headed creature captured in the woods and tied with a rope to a stake in the yard. Its enemy was the dog, which seemed to think that it was a common fowl. Of course the thing to do was to bark and to frighten it into flight. But barking had no effect whatever except to make the dreadful eyes glow more brightly and to produce a sort of sharp snapping that seemed to come from the bill, which was almost hidden among the feathers. After some time the dog made a fierce run.

Not a move did the owl make. Not a feather twitched; but the eyes glowed like fire, and snap, snap went the bill. Suddenly just as the dog came close the bird went over on its back in a heap. It was an undignified position, surely, but there was a purpose in it.

The dog, assuming that the strange bird had fallen upon the ground in fright, dashed up and thrust his nose among the feathers. Instantly steel-like claws, sharp as knives, fastened upon him and with a yell of terror and pain he tore loose and ran for his life. Solemn and apparently harmless stood the owl as before.

It was too much for the dog. Another rush brought him again within reaching distance of the strange enemy. Once more the bird fell on its back, and once more the dog thrust his nose into the feathers only to feel the cruel talons sink into his tender nose; with a yelp he fled. From the shelter of the porch he viewed the strange bird—no longer a dignified barn fowl, but a dreadful monster to be let absolutely alone.—Youth's Companion.

BANKING CUSTOMS IN FRANCE

Much Formality Attends the Opening of an Account and the Making Use of it.

In the great towns of France, in Paris itself, where the banks and other institutions close at high noon and there are four tides daily on the subways and busses, there is the same hard and leisurely work. If you want a banking account, you apply in due time for a check book, and are asked to call for it a few days later. No, it will not take you too much time; it is not the custom, either to send it by post; some time, when you are enjoying a pleasant promenade along the boulevards, you will think of your check book and then you will call for it and finally, with due formality, it will be placed in your hands. The getting of money by its means is another matter. Here come in interesting formulae concerning your genealogy, your status, your bank number and anything else that adds to the interest of the transaction. You do not go to the bank, even merely to draw out or pay in money. You go as part of a philosophy, neither after 12, nor before 2. It is almost a rite as you sit on a backless bench and wait until your number is called. And you go away feeling that money is a privilege, a responsibility, almost as though you had been to church.—Muriel Harris in the North American Review.

HAD HIS FILL OF SYMPATHY

Not Hard to Understand Why Sonny Would Prefer a Short Period of Retirement.

Listen to a story about Sonny. He is three years old. He is the kind of child you read about but seldom meet.

When you meet him it is like greeting a sunbeam suddenly turned into the shape of a human being.

But one day Sonny fell down and broke his arm. He didn't cry, but it did hurt. His hand and arm hung limp. So they called the doctor and had the arm set and then put into a sling.

When Sonny went out the next day with his mother he was the object of much attention from his mother's friends—and his.

"Poor little arm!" declared the first lady. "Did you hurt the little arm?"

Sonny smiled. "Poor little arm!" sympathized the next lady they met. "Did 'im fall and hurt his arm?"

Again Sonny smiled. "Poor little arm!" greeted the next lady. "The little arm is broken."

Sonny smiled, but not so warmly this time.

"Poor little arm!" beamed the next friend.

So it went. By the time they got back home Sonny was very quiet.

"Mother," he said, solemnly, "I think the poor little arm will stay in the house till it's well."—Washington P.

Can't Be Made to Work.

A good many so-called perpetual motion machines have been invented, and the patent office records disclose hundreds of these. The chief difficulty with all of them is the same: the fact that they do not work. Scientists have shown that perpetual motion is an impossibility and inventors are wasting their time and energy by attempting to produce such a machine that will work.

The entailing of estates began in England in 1285. In 1534 a law was passed breaking the entail in case of treason. An entailed estate must be sold when the holder becomes bankrupt. Virginia abolished entail in 1776.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising.)

The broadcasting of news, weather reports, music and even plays by the large radiophone stations of this country, has turned many people to radio as a form of entertainment. Young boys and old men have become interested in this great utility. The set here described is an excellent receptor of music, is of simple construction, and is of low cost—$13 in all. Materials needed include:

Fig. 1 shows the circuit employed. A is the aerial and G is the ground. LP is the primary and LS the secondary of the variocoupler employed. L is a secondary loading coil, while

Fig. 1

VC is a 13-plate variable condenser. X is a grid condenser such as is on the market today. C is a fixed condenser of special construction. B is the high-voltage battery and A the filament or so-called storage battery. PH designates the phones.

Construction of the Coupler.

The coupler used in this set is a sort of variocoupler and is of very simple construction. The primary is made from a cardboard or formica tube 4 1/2 inches in diameter by 2 1/2 inches in length. If a cardboard tube is used, it should be shellacked well (before winding on the wire) to prevent it from shrinking; 27 turns of No. 24 double cotton-covered wire are wound tightly on the tube. Wires are taken out every third turn and brought out to the 0-point switch on the panel as seen in Fig. 3. The set functions better without shellacked windings, but if the wire will come loose without it, apply a very thin coating of shellac.

The secondary is wound on a tube 3 1/2 inches in diameter by 1 1/2 inches in length, and is wound with 30 turns of No. 28 double cotton-covered wire; no taps are taken off.

Fig. 2 shows the method of mounting the coupler. As is seen, the primary is fastened to the panel and to the base by screws. A disk of one-fourth-inch wood is fitted inside the secondary tubing of the coupler and to this a copper arm is fastened by means of screws. As the dial controlling the coupler is moved, the arm moves, thus drawing the secondary in and out of the primary.

The loading coil L in Fig. 1 is made on a tube 4 1/2 inches in diameter by 5 inches long. It is wound with 100 turns of No. 28 double cotton-covered wire and taps are taken off every ten turns and brought out to the ten-point switch on the panel. In Fig. 1 is shown a wire connecting the last tap of the loading coil with the switch. This is a device that eliminates the "dead-end" effect.

The Condenser Used.

The variable condenser used in this circuit is of small capacity. It is a 13-plate panel type condenser. The Front and Back Views of the Receiver Showing Location of the Apparatus. writer uses a 13-plate "Illinois" condenser, which can be purchased for $2.15, and is of good construction.

C in Fig. 1 is a fixed condenser. This is made by covering a piece of mica 2 by 3 inches on each side with tinfoil. A wire is soldered to each of the two pieces of tinfoil and serves as terminals. The whole thing is soaked in paraffin.

In Fig. 3 is shown the arrangement of the panel; this may be made of wood or bakelite—bakelite making a neater and better insulated panel. At the left is the dial controlling the variocoupler, while at the right is the dial for the variable condenser. There are two switches between the dials, the upper one is for the coupler and the lower one for the loading coil. Fig. 4 shows the arrangement of the back of the panel, the way in which the set is laid out. Since every builder will use parts different in size, no dimensions are given for the panel or cabinet. This may be worked out easily.

Operation of the Set.

The next and very important point to consider is that of operating the set. A good receiver is worth little to its owner if he knows nothing about operating it. The kind of tubes (or bulbs or audions or detectors) to use with this set are the soft tubes, such as the double filament audiotrons, the radiotrons, and Moorhead electron relay tubes. The last named tube is the best, but it has a very critical adjustment. The radiotron, while not bringing in distant signals as well, is easier to operate. When working a set, always adjust the plate voltage and filament rheostat carefully until the set oscillates; this is indicated when a click is heard in the phones. The oscillating of the set described in this article is controlled by the dials of the coupler and of the variable condenser. Also, the operator will find that the coupler has a great effect on the strength of the received signals.

Success will be attained if the foregoing specifications are followed with some degree of care. On one tube 9EB of Colorado, 6EN of California and hundreds of others have been heard. If a two-step amplifier is added to this set, it will bring in music which can be heard at a great distance from the phones.

Makes an Efficient Lightning Switch

Nowadays when many are thinking of installing radio sets, one of the first questions to be solved is the installation of a ground or lightning switch.

A switch can be easily constructed from parts that are often thrown aside as useless. The one here described is rugged, will stand long service and requires but a small amount of time to make it.

Obtain a double pole, single throw switch similar to those used in residences for power mains. The base is not needed. The blades of the switch are joined together to lengthen the distance between the jaws. Two small pieces of copper can be placed on each side of the blades and drilled through, after which they are securely riveted, or the ends can be welded.

The handle is attached to the single blade by threading the machine screw into the place formerly used to hold the blade to the fiber end. The hinge of the switch is secured to a strip of bakelite three and one-half inches long and three-quarters inch wide. The size varies with the size of the switch used. A hole is drilled at each end of the strip to pass the top threaded screw of a spark plug core. Two pieces of bakelite or other good insulating material are used to hold the jaws out from the spark plug cores, as shown. If greater insulation is required use two cores at each end and mount the jaws in the center. Three-sixteenth holes are drilled in the wood base at the proper points. After drilling these a larger drill is used to countersink the lower end of the cores in the base, which should fit snug up to the shoulder of the core. The cores are held firmly to the base by forcing the top nut over the lower tip and spreading it with a hammer, after which it is passed up through the base, core and bakelite, to be held firmly in place by the top lock nut.

If the switch is to be placed where it is unprotected from the weather a waterproof housing should enclose it, which can be mounted with wood screws. Porcelain cleats should also be placed under the base at each end to keep it free from all dampness.

It is reported that the manufacture, sale, storage and importation of radio telephone and telegraph equipment in Czechoslovakia is only permitted under a license from the state. Licenses for the operation of receiving sets will be granted only to institutions, companies and those regularly taking reports transmitted either by the state telegraph office or by companies authorized to transmit such messages.

Form Wound Coils Used by Amateurs

Method of Procedure Is Outlined for Electrical Workers.

By S. E. WATSON

Every amateur electrical worker has occasion at various times to use form-wound coils of special dimensions. In the construction of plain magnets or open-core apparatus the wire is usually wound in place directly upon the core. With dynamo or motor fields and closed-core apparatus it is usually impracticable and in some cases impossible to wind the wire in this way. Consequently the coils must first be wound upon a form.

For the average job a form should be made of exactly the same length as is desired for the finished coil, making due allowance for the necessary insulation to be added later. Each of the other two dimensions should be about one-eighth inch greater than the corresponding dimensions of the core upon which the coil is to be placed. A block of wood planed to the over-size dimensions indicated above and sawed to the desired length is the most convenient kind of core form. A quarter-inch hole is bored through the longitudinal axis of this block and receives the axle used in rotating the form. The appearance of the finished block is shown in Fig. 1.

Two end pieces of suitable size are made from this board, and a quarter-inch hole is bored in the center of each. One end piece is screwed to each end of the core, its center hole coinciding with that in the core. The spool thus formed is slipped onto a quarter-inch rod which has one end threaded for several inches and the other bent in the form of a crank. A tap is screwed up tightly to each end of the spool, and the whole is mounted as shown in Fig. 2. The bearings are simply wooden uprights with hole for the axle. If all work has been done with reasonable accuracy the spool should show no tendency to wobble when the crank is turned.

The first step before winding the coil is to be sure that it will slip off the core readily when it is finished. Wind on the core a single layer of small hard-twisted cord. This layer must be wound perfectly smooth, and the ends should be brought out through small holes in the end pieces. Wrap upon this layer two or three thicknesses of thin, stiff paper, just wide enough to come flush against both ends. Glue both tabs of the paper slightly, just enough to hold it in place.

On each side of the core and parallel to the axis glue a strip of narrow cloth tape, as shown at A, Fig. 2, allowing each end to come up from the core along the end pieces, and fasten temporarily upon the outside. The tape ends must be of sufficient length to tie over the coil when it is wound, thus providing a method of binding it tightly in the process of removal. If the coil is to be a large one, two or more pieces of tape should be placed on each side of the form. After these binders are in place paint the core with shellac or insulating paint.

Pass one end of the wire to be wound through a small hole drilled through one end-piece. Draw several inches of wire through and fasten securely by wrapping around the shaft. Wind the required number of turns on the spool, laying each turn as closely as possible against the preceding one. Paint each layer, as it is wound, with a liberal coat of insulating paint and allow it to partly dry before putting on the next layer. Wire—especially enameled wire—may be placed much more satisfactorily if it is wound on a bed of paint which has been allowed to dry just to the point of tackiness. When all the winding is in place paint the last layer, release the tab ends and tie each piece of tape firmly across the coil, as shown in Fig. 3. Allow time for the paint to harden before removing the coil. Passing just sufficient current through the coil to warm up the wire will hasten the drying.

Take the form from the axle, remove one of the heads and grasp the end of the layer of string. By pulling in the direction parallel to the axis the string may be removed, thus leaving a free space between the coil and the core. Remove the coil from the core, tape it and it is finished.

In the final taping the binding tabs should be removed, but it is not necessary to remove the paper. Narrow tape is best and makes a much neater job on small coils. Each turn should overlap the preceding one by half its width. Going once around the coil with tape in this way gives two thicknesses at every point, and this is usually sufficient.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

EUGENE'S SEASHORE WATCH

"A little boy named Eugene," said Daddy, "was very proud of his new watch.

"He liked to be asked the time very often. And if no one asked him what time it was he would say aloud: 'I wonder what time it is,' and then he would take out his watch and would say: 'Oh, yes; I thought it was just about that time.'"

"But sometimes it would seem to Eugene that it should be much later than the watch said it was. That was apt to be during school time, especially during the history class, for Eugene found the history class took a long time.

"It really did not take any longer than the spelling class took but Eugene found it was easier to spell than to remember all the dates and important events in history.

"He often wished that there had not been so many important events in history.

"I don't see why so many people had to do so many things of importance," he used to say at times.

"Yes, it was during history class that sometimes Eugene would look at his watch and would find to his great surprise that only five minutes had gone by when he had thought at least fifteen minutes had been spent on the history lesson.

"Then he would put his watch to his ear to make sure that it hadn't stopped and that the time hadn't gone on even though the watch didn't show that it had. But he found the watch was right.

"And often at such times his teacher would surprise him with a question, knowing full well that Eugene had not been paying attention.

"He would be so surprised that he would not have properly heard the question. And as he had been spending his time thinking about the time he had missed what had been said before.

"Then his teacher would say: 'Eugene, it seems to me that the time will go more quickly if you think more of history and less of the time, for time goes slowly when you think about it. It is a way that time has.'

"But after a long, long while vacation came and how Eugene rejoiced.

"He had really worked hard even though at times during history lessons he had not always thought as much about history as he might have thought.

"Still he wasn't perfect. He was good at some lessons and not so good at others and he did try pretty hard for the most part.

"Everyone was very fond of him; even his history teacher liked him for he was so honorable and so fair, and when he hadn't studied his lesson he admitted it—of course it was as well that he did for it was so easy to see when he didn't study it at all!

"But at last, as I have said, vacation time came and Eugene went to the seashore. His family lived that summer at the top of a hill overlooking a bay.

"How will I ever be able to tell when it is lunch time? Eugene asked the first day he went down to the beach to play and to swim, for Eugene was an excellent swimmer.

"Some older boys and girls always went swimming at the same time in the mornings, but no one took along a watch.

"Eugene did not want to take his watch with him for he was afraid that it would get wet or splashed upon in some way even if he put it with his sweater which he used to take down to put over him sometimes when he came out of the water to lie in the sand.

"But do you know Eugene never needed his watch? His tummy told the time for all of them, too!

"Yes, just as it was about fifteen minutes before lunch time Eugene would say to everyone: 'I think it must be time for getting dressed now. I believe I'll go up the hill.'

"And then everyone else seemed to feel hungry and also to feel that it was time to get dressed.

"Eugene would call up the hill that he was on his way up—and he always called just before he would have been called, for Eugene's tummy was a perfect seashore watch!"

“I didn't know about her—her helplessness,” began Mrs. Penfield gently.
“Know about it!” He turned and confronted her in swift indignation. “Nobody knew about it till two days ago. She claims she hasn't been feeling well for a long time, but she's endured in silence. We've been trying to have her consult a doctor, but she won't listen to it—says we've no right to annoy an afflicted woman when she can do her own diagnosing.”
“But you think there's no doubt—”
“Insinuated Mrs. Penfield slowly.
“I think there's no doubt but that she's making the whole thing up,” exploded the young man. “What I thought maybe you'd do, Mrs. Penzie, is to look us over from the standpoint of an outsider and tell us how to act.”

She smiled. “I can't tell you on the minute, but I'll see if I can think out anything. I'll go over tomorrow, and maybe I'll get a line on it. You come around sometime soon, and I'll report.”

He held out his hand. “Thank you. You're my mother, Mrs. Penzie, but I'll bet you didn't know it. I never had one that I could remember—till now.”

Before she could speak, he was gone.
The next day Mrs. Penfield crowded her work as much as possible, that there might be time in the afternoon for a call on Mrs. Percy.

“Lettie,” she called into the back yard, “won't you please pick me 'bout three of them pretty caterpillars off'n the willow tree? Put 'em in this here envelope, and be careful you don't squeeze 'em.”

A little later Mrs. Penfield set forth, jockeying concealing under her worn jacket the envelope which contained the three scraps of furry life. She stopped first at Mrs. Sanders'.

“Don't you want to run in to Mrs. Percy's with me?” she inquired. “I understand she ain't well, and seems as if we'd oughter be a mite neighborly.”

“Oh, I hadn't heard,” cried Mrs. Sanders, with instant solicitude. “Yes, sure I'll go.”

The two ladies and the three caterpillars proceeded on their way. When they had rung, they could hear Mrs. Percy coming along the narrow hall with a jerky, shuffling sound. She opened the door with her left hand.

“Good afternoon,” she greeted them laconically. “Come in.”

She ushered her guests into the tiny living-room and laboriously removed a litter of magazines from one chair, a piece of sewing from another. An awkward toss with her left hand sent a white crocheted shawl from a third chair to a small table. The three ladies were thus enabled to be seated.

“How are you feeling today?” inquired Mrs. Penfield briskly.
Mrs. Percy shook her head. “I've got my warning,” she replied lugubriously.
“Warning!” echoed Mrs. Penfield. “Good land, what do you mean?”
Mrs. Percy's eyelids drooped mournfully. “I mean the forerunner of the—the end.”

“Oh, nonsense, I don't believe it,” cheered Mrs. Penfield. “What's wrong?”
“You couldn't have been using your eyes,” returned her hostess, in an aggrieved tone. “Maybe it doesn't show in my face—yet, but it's strange if you didn't notice the way I walked. My right foot drags. I can't scarcely use my right arm at all.”

“How long have you had it?”
“Three days. It came on sudden—one morning.”
“I s'pose you've seen a doctor,” suggested Mrs. Penfield.

Mrs. Percy sighed heavily. “No need. He couldn't tell me more'n I know. I've just got to wait—and grow steadily more helpless. The hardest part of it is Lorene's leaving. I shall be alone, and I can't do for myself now. Troubles always come together. I've been set against Lorene's marrying from the first. She might wait a while before she plunges; probably she'd marry better if she did.”

Mrs. Penfield appeared to be pondering the situation. “I thought you felt that way, Mrs. Percy, but that's a slight trouble compared with your sickness, ain't it?”
“Yes, of course, but—”
“I'll just bet,” exclaimed Mrs. Penfield with conviction, “that if you could use both your arms and legs all right, you'd feel that was the main thing. What Lorene done would be so small a point you wouldn't scarcely care which way it went, would you?”
Mrs. Percy opened her mouth; closed it again.
Mrs. Penfield's brown eyes grew wide in a stare of innocent surprise. “Why, land, you don't mean to tell me—for goodness sake, Mrs. Percy, if your body was all right 'gain, wouldn't you be so thankful that you'd be more'n willing Lorene should leave you for a life of her own?”
A slight flush colored her hostess' heavy cheeks. “Why, yes, of course,” she acknowledged stily. “I should feel very different in that case.”
Mrs. Penfield nodded contentedly. “Yes, I guess you would. Health's the main thing. Little troubles don't seem no bigger'n specks when a big trouble comes 'long to measure 'em by.”

Mrs. Percy grabbed this statement with vehemence. “I don't know much about little troubles, myself. I've had big ones, one right after another. I haven't never been reconciled to Mr. Percy's going. Doesn't seem right for a man to die because he was brave, way he did. He was a police officer, and he was shot while making an arrest. It was reckless, the chance he took. It wouldn't seem so hard if he'd just been sick and died of it.”

“Oh, you'd have felt it just as much,” began Mrs. Sanders.
“Yes,” echoed Mrs. Penfield; “and as 'tis, you've got something to be proud of. I've always thought I'd rather mourn for a man that was brave than cook for a man that's a coward.”

Mrs. Percy, repudiating this consolation, tossed her head in some offense. “I didn't mean it would have been easy in any event. The thing, after all, that makes me miserable is my broken life. When you've had ten years of married happiness, you don't get reconciled to giving it up.”

Mrs. Penfield gazed at her dreamily. “No, not reconciled! Being resigned to ev'rything is a pretty good sign of moral prostration. But there's one thing you got to remember: if you had ten years of happy married life, you had exactly ten years more than a lot of women have, and you'd oughter be thankful for it, long with your mourning.”

Mrs. Percy's lips came together with a snap. An uncomfortable silence spread over the room, pressing conversation out of existence. Mrs. Penfield, fearing that she had been too outspoken, sprang up briskly, with the thought of breaking the tension.

“You mustn't imagine I'm unsympathetic, 'cause underneath I'm studying on how we could help you. I can see one thing we'd better do—that is, look out that you don't take cold, entertaining us in a room that don't get any sun. Here, let me put this little shawl 'round your shoulders. You mustn't take any chances, you know.”

Without waiting for assent, she snatched the crocheted shawl from the table and proffered it to her hostess. And Mrs. Percy, the spoiled, the waited-on, was instantly mollified. She accepted the service with murmured gratitude.

No sooner had Mrs. Penfield resumed her seat, however, than it was Mrs. Percy who did the springing.

Mrs. Percy's Eyelids Drooped Mournfully.

She came to her feet with a ponderous agility very different from her previous manner.
“Ugh! Ugh! The nasty thing!” she screamed. “Oh! Oh! Take it off! Oh! There's two of it! Take it!”

Mrs. Sanders plunged to the rescue. With a careless gesture, Mrs. Penfield swung in ahead of her. “I'll do it,” she announced in a tone of renunciation with which one takes the initiative in a perilous enterprise.
“Help me!” cried Mrs. Percy. “They stick. Take the shawl!”

With her left hand she was trying to disengage from the fuzzy shawl first one and then the other of two small caterpillars.
“Well, I declare to goodness!” exclaimed Mrs. Penfield safely. Her hands were busy with the shawl, but in some way, not explained, it had become entangled in the buttons of the green sweater, and it was not easily freed. Mrs. Percy's agitation steadily grew.

“They must have come in the window. I can't stand the nasty little things. Oh—oh, take it off. Tear it—anything! Oh—oh, good heavens, look, look!”

Her shaking finger pointed at Mrs. Penfield herself, and two curious things at once became evident. One was that Mrs. Percy was using her right hand; the other, that an active caterpillar was excursionsing up the front of Mrs. Penfield's dress.
“Well, did you ever!” interjected Mrs. Penfield.
But at this point Mrs. Percy decided that caterpillars were after her; and her nerves gave way. With a shriek, she wrenched and tore at the shawl, using both hands indiscriminately. Fairly beside herself, she stormed about the room, forgetful of feet that dragged, of legs that refused to be supple. She shivered and screamed and fought the air with nervous lashing of both arms. Her dark eyes shot mad glances in every direction, searching for more caterpillars.

“I know what 'tis,” she howled. “It's a pest. We're going to be overrun. They'll come in the doors and windows. And I hate the crawling things. Oh, what shall we do? What shall we—”

Suddenly she stopped. Her arms dropped. She had become conscious of the interested, significant gaze of her guests—a gaze that reminded her of many things.

“Ugh!” she cried. “Ain't this awful! I'll suffer for it later.”
Mrs. Sanders clasped her hands fervently. “Oh, I'm so glad it happened. There ain't no more caterpillars here; I've looked. And they—they've brought you out of it.”

Mrs. Percy gasped. “It was—it was only a superhuman—”
“No, Mrs. Percy,” broke in Mrs. Penfield brightly. “I been watching how you did it, and it was just as natural as could be. You'll find it'll be permanent—mark my words. It's plain as can be that the whole trouble was nerves getting wound up, on account of worrying, mebbe; and they've unwound now. Any doctor'd tell you that you've limbered up to stay. Why, don't you believe it? Well, then I'll tell you what: we'll have a doctor in to tell you yourself. We ain't going to have you fretting over something that don't really ail you.”

Mrs. Percy looked at her helplessly, with a smoldering fire in her black eyes. “Much you know about it. I expect it'll come back—”
“No, it won't,” said Mrs. Penfield firmly. “If it does, we'll have the doctor, 'cause the Custard Cup ain't going to see you suffer 'thout helping you out. We're your friends.”

“Oh—oh, yes, I—”
A bright look flashed across Mrs. Penfield's face. “Oh, won't Lorene be happy? I can't wait to tell her. And now there ain't nothing standing in her way. Doesn't it seem like a providence that you said you wouldn't object any more if—”

“I didn't say—” interposed Mrs. Percy hotly.
Mrs. Sanders' eyes were very wide. “Oh, yes, you did, Mrs. Percy. I heard you.”
Mrs. Penfield extended her hand with a genial smile. “I am so truly glad,” she said in a low, deep voice, “so glad that it wasn't anything serious. Folks are likely to think the worst, but you mustn't do it again. Come over and see us both real soon. It'll do you good to get out, and we'll both be awful glad to see you.”

CHAPTER XI

Due to the Neighbors.

“Mis' Penfield, be you there? I've brung back that half a yeast cake I owed you.”
“Come right in, Mrs. Wopple. How are things going with you?”
“Pretty fair,” Mrs. Wopple smoothed her afternoon gown complacently. “I had a heavy day. I been cleaning the best silver. I got so much, it makes my arm ache.”

Mrs. Penfield could not decide whether it was good to have these many riches or bad to suffer for them, so she made no comment.
“I don't clean the kitchen silver regular,” continued her caller. “I just keep the suds soap handy. But the other gets cleaned once a month. I keep house methodical.”

“Ain't it fine you can!” remarked Mrs. Penfield genially.
“It's 'cause I plan,” sniffed Mrs. Wopple. A shrewd gleam came into her eyes. “I understand the Bosleys had a quarrel this mornin'. I was told you was there, Mis' Penfield.”

“Oh, Mrs. Bosley called me in to see 'bout the kitchen chimney. It don't draw. She thought mebbe—”
“Mis' Catterbox says they fit like wild animals. She heard 'em. Wasn't you there when it happened?”
“Mr. Bosley came in while I was there,” admitted Mrs. Penfield.

“Well, I must say they got nerve, to fight 'fore outsiders,” snapped Mrs. Wopple, who had rigid ideas about the privacy of this domestic privilege. “I s'pose you tried to interfere, Mis' Penfield.”
“Me? Land, no. I never interfere. I believe that all family fights are private, even if they're held in public. I don't scarcely think they knew I was there—and I wasn't, very long.”

“I'll bet it was in'trustin',” said Mrs. Wopple enviously. “But you needn't tell anything if you don't want to. Mis' Bosley told Mis' Catterbox a lot; said he struck her and she wouldn't stand it forever. Some say they're talkin' of goin' to Seattle.”
“Oh, are they?”

Mrs. Wopple, highly dissatisfied with the outcome of this excursion into neighborhood news, tried once more. “Mis' Percy run in this mornin'. She's awful low in the dumps. She says she'll break up here if Lorene gets married.”

Electricity and Brains.

A London dispatch announces that Dr. Bernard Holtander in a public address has advanced the claim that brain power and the capacity for mental work may be increased and stimulated by the application of electricity (galvanic treatments) to certain regions of the head. Tests have been made, he stated, on a number of backward or indolent students, who through this method had been successful in passing examinations in which they had previously failed.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

INCOME TAX WORK COSTLY

Collection for Each Fiscal Year Have Cost $1.30 for Each $100 Paid to Government.

To handle efficiently the collection of income taxes among one hundred million people is a problem that cannot be worked out overnight, but now after nine years a comparatively smooth-running, well-organized machine has been developed.

The internal revenue bureau in Washington annually receives one and a quarter million income tax returns. This figure does not include the returns filed by those whose incomes are less than $5,000. To audit and carry on the work of this department of the bureau, 7,275 persons were employed in Washington during the last fiscal year.

The cost of administering the internal revenue laws was $41,377,374.49. Total receipts were $197,451,083. Computing on this basis the cost of collection was $1.30 for each $100 collected, compared with 87 cents for the preceding year. The difference in relative cost of collection is due mainly to the large reduction in revenues, the repeal of some of the war profits taxes, and the increase in individual exemption.—Saturday Evening Post.

Slightly Insulting.
Mrs. Muggs had the reputation among tradesmen of quibbling over the fraction of a cent, and she was living up to it in her argument with the ice man.
“Is that all the ice I get for ten cents?” she demanded peevishly.
“Don't worry, lady,” he replied as patiently as possible. “Some day you might be in a place where you couldn't buy this piece for a million dollars.”—American Legion Weekly.

DIVERSIONS OF THE ROMANS

Sporting Men Used Quail as Well as Cocks for Popular Combats in the Arena.

The Romans used quails as well as cocks for fighting. Quail combats were well known among the ancients, and especially at Athens. The Chinese have been always extremely fond of quail-fighting, as appears from many accounts of those people. The Sumatrans likewise use the birds in the manner of gamecocks.

Cocks and quail, fitted for the purpose of engaging one another to the last gasp for diversion are frequently compared by the Roman writers to gladiators, remarks the Detroit News. A circle was made in which the birds were placed, and he whose quail was driven out of the circle lost the stake, which was sometimes money and occasionally the quails themselves. Another practice was to produce one of the birds, which being first filled with the middle finger, a feather was then plucked from its head. If the quail bore this operation without flinching his master gained the stake, but lost it if the bird ran away.

The Situation.
A reformer who wasn't working at it any more was asked the wherefore. His reply was brief. “Anybody who is not reformed now is hopeless.”

A Road Mope.
“Yes, my auto turned turtle.”
“Well, that wasn't much of a change; it was tortoise before.”

Do They All Do It?

The other day there came to a local hotel a young traveling man of a very effeminate type. The other men in the hotel watched him with amusement until he took from his pocket a powder puff and mirror and before the whole assembly powdered his chin and nose.

Then they laughed openly.
But he was not dismayed. “I just came from Pittsburgh,” he explained, “and the coal dust there is so thick that we either have to wash our faces every hour or so or powder occasionally.”

However, the other men laughed on.—Exchange.

Illuminated Gloves.

A novel illuminated gauntlet glove, for motorists and traffic controllers has been invented. On the back of the glove are two electric lamps one red, the other white. The red light is used by motorists when turning or stopping, and the white light is used for inspection, reading signposts, or maps.

The battery is carried in a small pocket on the outside of the gauntlet. On the inside of the thumb and two fingers are small metal contact points, and to light the lamps one simply closes the finger on the thumb.

Increases Rubber's Buoyancy.

A process has been invented for impregnating either hard or soft rubber with nitrogen, greatly increasing its buoyancy when put in water and the resiliency of the soft form.

Can't Be Made to Work.

A good many so-called perpetual motion machines have been invented, and the patent office records disclose hundreds of these. The chief difficulty with all of them is the same: the fact that they do not work. Scientists have shown that perpetual motion is an impossibility and inventors are wasting their time and energy by attempting to produce such a machine that will work.

Sinister Earrings.

Men as well as women, wore earrings quite long ago in Europe, and there was more than ornament in their intention. The earrings were really little cases or sockets which held poison. Life was cheap; if you got tired of it you simply unscrewed your earrings and drank the poison.

Can Osteopathy Cure
Everything?

We do not pretend to claim that Osteopathy cures all phases of disease or disability, for numerous ailments are but evidences of wanting vitality and the wearing out of the body's working parts. Assuming, however, that you are a normal creature and desire to realize the best there is in life, YOU MUST GIVE YOUR BODY EVERY CHANCE TO OVERCOME OR PREVENT DISEASE. For health lies within the body and not without. To replace parts, to remove obstructions, to equalize circulation, to govern the nervous system, to restore harmony to the active parts, and to effect other similar body-adjustments, appeal to the reason as common-sense disease-antidotes. It will be found that ONLY as a last recourse will the Osteopath recommend surgery.

Osteopathy is a safe and sane science because intimate knowledge of the human body co-operates directly with the laws of Nature. TYPHOID and STOMACH, KIDNEY and LIVER COMPLAINTS, SCARLET FEVER, WOMEN'S DISEASES, affections of the eye, ear and throat, chronic nervous troubles, and numerous other troubles, are being subdued and overcome daily by the able Osteopathic Physician.

IF YOUR HEALTH IS IMPORTANT TO YOU YOU WILL BE INTERESTED IN LEARNING HOW TO GAIN AND RETAIN IT.
