Bond Holders of County Country Club Start Suit To Collect Payment

Hero Furnace Co. of Sycamore Starts Suit Against Sycamore Foundry For Non-Delivery of Goods Paid For

L. C. Shaffer, William F. Sell and George E. Dutton of the city of Sycamore, brought suit in behalf of themselves and such others as may desire to join, in the circuit court of DeKalb county, against the Kishwaukee County Club, a corporation, and Saind Samuel E. Bradt, as trustee.

The bill sets forth that Kishwaukee County Club by its mortgage executed on June 1, 1911, mortgaged to Samuel E. Bradt of DeKalb, all property then owned or to be acquired by and described in the mortgage as containing 63 1/2 acres of land.

The mortgage so executed was to secure the sum of $32,000 payable on June 1, 1921, at the First National Bank of DeKalb, with interest at 4 per cent, as evidenced by 150 bonds, numbered 1 to 150 inclusive; bonds numbered 1 to 15 being for $1,000 each, and the balance for $100 each.

The complainant L. C. Shaffer is the owner of bonds as well as William F. Sell and George E. Dutton. All of the bonds mentioned in the trust deed including the bonds held by complainants became due June 1, '21, and no interest has been paid upon said bonds subsequent to June 1, '21, but default has been made in the payment thereof.

Stanley Tucker, Ray Anderson and Chas. Parsons were arrested on May 14 on the banks of the Kishwaukee river with spears in their hands. As spearing fish is a violation of the Fish & Game Laws, said defendants were brought up before Justice of Peace Sell of Sycamore last Thursday and on a plea of guilty were let off easy with a fine of $25.00 and costs each.

The Hero Furnace Company, a corporation of Sycamore filed a bill for an accounting in the circuit court against the Standard Foundry and Manufacturing Co., also of Sycamore.

It is alleged in the bill filed that on the 5th day of January 1920, the Standard Foundry and Mfg. Co. rendered to the complainant invoices under that date for certain furnaces, heaters, radiators and other goods amounting to $2536.60 which the complainant paid. That afterward on January 24, 1920 the complainant was presented with a duplicate invoice so far as the goods furnished were concerned, the change in the market price of the same being the only variation, and amounting to $2778.60 which the complainant also paid.

The complainant now says that the two invoices were duplicates and that only one lot of goods was delivered to the complainant and therefore it paid the bill twice.

The complainant further states in its bill that the state of accounts between it and defendant are complicated and intricate and in order to do justice to the accounting that it be taken by the court.

TEACHER ENDS LIFE

Miss Mary Elizabeth Long of Elgin Suicide Because of Dismissal

Miss Mary Elizabeth Long, for twenty-seven years a teacher in the Kane county schools, committed suicide in Elgin Tuesday morning at four o'clock.

Pooling against the school board in Elgin, which was fanned to fever heat at the election two months ago, expressed itself again at a torrid protest meeting Tuesday night following the news of Miss Long's death.

Miss Long, who was removed at a meeting of the school board Friday night as principal of the Sheridan school—a post she has held for the last fourteen years—ended her life early Tuesday morning by drinking carbolic acid in her mother's home at 114 North Gifford street, Elgin. A few hours later, Mrs. Jennie Long, widowed mother of the veteran teacher, wept at the inquest as she told Coroner E. H. Norton that the action of the school board and that alone was responsible for her daughter's act.

Last night, while the school board met for the purpose of formally passing a resolution of regret over Miss Long's death, more than thirty teachers who had either been dismissed or placed on probation by the same order, planned to meet in the office of Attorney Frank A. Russell.

But so many flocked to the gathering that it developed into a popular protest meeting and had to adjourn to the Knights of Columbus hall. There speeches bitterly assailing the action of the board as "un-American" and even charging it with "the murder of Miss Long" were delivered. Many prominent business men and women who had been pupils of Miss Long years ago attended and were outspoken in their views.

According to her mother, Miss Long began to brood and worry when she first received word of the contemplated action of the board and when the order actually was entered by a vote of 11 to 1 she became deeply despondent. About 4 o'clock Tuesday morning her mother heard her get up from her bed on the sleeping porch and go into the house. A few moments later she heard groans and reached her daughter's bedside just a few moments before she died. She had swallowed half of the contents of a three ounce bottle of carbolic acid.

Miss Long, who was 46 years old, had been principal of the old Grant elementary school in Elgin for years prior to her appointment fourteen years ago to the principalship of the Sheridan school.

Miss Long was quite well known in Genoa having visited here several times as a guest of her brother-in-law, V. J. Corson.

BIG COMMUNITY BUILDING

To Be Erected at Hinckley By the People of That City

Hinckley will have a big community building. That progressive people have voted a two mill tax with which to build it and work will begin soon.

It will contain a large auditorium with splendid seating capacity, a dance hall, library and a rest room and when completed will cost around 40,000. It will be erected on Main street in the center of town on a lot formerly owned by the late Hiram Wagner, one of Hinckley's progressive hustling business men, who for years was engaged in the banking business there, and had announced his intention of presenting it to the community, but died in the winter of 1921 without having completed the deal. However, this will not make any difference, for his only daughter, Mrs. Edna Theilens of South Bend, Ind., will carry out her father's wishes and present it to the community without cost.

Hinckley has acquired that enviable community spirit which many towns have been seeking for years. How many more decades must Genoa wait before a community building is erected in this city. It is the one thing we need and the one thing we must have. Think it over.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY A SUCCESS

The members of the graduating class of 1922 presented the farce comedy last Friday and Saturday nights in the high school auditorium. Both performances were played in full houses.

Of course we could praise every member individually and proclaim their merits and ability, but what's the use. The acting was good, prompting was unnecessary and the stage settings were adapted admirably to the play. Each and every member of the cast deserves great credit for the exceptionally good work they did and the directors, Mr. Marko and Miss Irwin, whose long hours of coaching made the play possible, should not be overlooked.

The platform will represent an elaborately decorated Japanese garden, in which the scenes of the opera will unfold this clever story. ### SYCAMORE MAN KILLED

Joseph C. Stratton, New Proprietor of Sycamore Laundry Electrocutted

Engaged in emergency work in preparation for the expected visit of the state boiler inspector, death came by electrocution Sunday morning between 9 and 10 o'clock to Joseph C. Stratton of Sycamore.

Mr. Stratton, who purchased the Sycamore Steam Laundry from Mr. Furnace, had been busy installing new machinery and making many improvements and J. Wilcox, engineer at the laundry had an appointment to meet him at the laundry immediately after church that morning. When Wilcox arrived he found the laundry open but did not see Stratton, and ascended to a brick wall which surrounded the boiler, where he believed Stratton to be working, and looking below saw the body lying between the wall and the boiler. He called, but receiving no response, went outside and notified Chief of Police, Post, who was near. Help was secured and the body removed. When the body was found, an electric light bulb was lying against the face, and an examination disclosed a burn in circular form and about two inches in diameter on the cheek. Where the body was found the floor was wet and the man's clothing and shoes were wet. The electric light had been brought to that place by an extension cord of considerable length from the electric light socket. Near the light bulb the cord was defective and the insulation worn off.

The coroner's inquest was held Sunday and after an examination it was the opinion that Mr. Stratton was electrocuted.

The deceased had just purchased a pretty home in Sycamore and his wife, who had been in a sanitarium for some time was expected to arrive in Sycamore the forepart of this week.—Sycamore True Republican.

OIL READY FOR STREETS

Had it not been for the unauthorized rain Wednesday morning, Genoa streets would now be receiving their first coating of oil. The car arrived Monday and the oil wagon was loaded Tuesday preparatory to going out Wednesday. However a few days will not make any difference. Its a great consolation to know that the oil is here and ready.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Dr. William S. Fleming Will Speak Sunday Morning

Dr. Fleming will deliver an address to the Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. on "One Hundred Percent Americanism" and at the morning service he will speak on the "Public Schools and Public Morals." Dr. Fleming was for years vice chairman of the Chicago Wolfen Censorship. He is a born fighter with pep and power, a very forceful speaker with great earnestness and enthusiasm. Every thoughtful citizen ought to hear this man of national reputation. Especially do we urge every member of our school boards and the teachers in our schools to be present.

P. E. O. MOTHERS' PARTY

The P. E. O. Sisterhood was hostess to the mothers or invited guests of each member of the order at a Mothers' Party held May 24 at the home of Mrs. Laura Lindgren.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of two vocal solos by Mrs. Johnson of Sycamore which was a rare musical treat, the reading from the Monitor, "Beautiful Children in Art," illustrated with copies of famous child paintings by Winifred Cotton and two excellent piano solos by Mrs. Lois Brown.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and special committee. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all and the hospitality of the P. E. O. appreciated by all the guests.

MERLE HOLLY INJURED

While climbing up the porch on the rear of Duval's meat market in search of birds' nests Tuesday morning, Merle Holly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Holly, slipped and fell a distance of some sixteen feet, landing on his back. He was taken to his home and remained unconscious for about two hours. It was a narrow escape for the lad and he was lucky that his life was spared for in the fall he just missed hitting a rock and barrel, falling between them.

A GREAT MUSICAL PROGRAM

Chautauqua Musical Program Offers Marked Variety

SAXOPHNE BAND ONE FEATURE

Well Known Opera Company Will Appear on Platform The Fifth Day

Music lovers are promised five days of thorough enjoyment during chautauqua week, when on the various days of our assembly we are to have musical organizations of established reputation and proven merit, with real artists of first calibre.

On the first day of the Allpress All-Star Co., headed by Thomas Allpress, violinist and composer, formerly of the faculty of Nebraska State University will be assisted by Amy Hanna Allpress, accompanist and reader, and Miss Marcella Coyle, cellist.

For the second day's program Sue Ernest Hewling brings her Ladies Rainbow Saxophone Band of Chicago. Every member of this organization is a competent soloist, and in addition to her solo instrument, plays ably one or more other instruments, thereby making it possible to form not only a band, but a complete orchestra as well. By means of specially arranged descriptive numbers, elaborate stage settings, satin costumes and special lighting effects, this able combination of artists will present two of the finest concerts we have ever had. Whistling solos, drum solo, brass quartets, vocal quartets, vocal ensembles with harmonica, will be used along with the big instrumental ensembles of this organization.

The third day of the Chautauqua will be truly artists' day in that three distinctive artists will furnish the music. Ambrose Wyrick, nationally known tenor, who like John McCormack, can sing his way into your heart regardless of whether he is singing an aria from grand opera or some simple ballad, is supported by Ethel Murray, the English cellist, whose concerts in this country have won her the same admiration as was given to her by the music loving people of her own Old England; and the accompanist for this group is Earl James Judie, whose splendid work on the piano makes him worthy association with these two artists.

With a primary instrumentation of violin, flute, harp and piano the LeClere Concert Co. will provide the fourth day's music for the Chautauqua. Their ensembles with these instruments, humorous readings, flute solos, vocal solos, violin solos with flute obligato and other combinations make up the two splendid programs of this group.

A feature attraction of the five days' chautauqua is the Davies Light Opera Co. More enthusiastic reports than are given on this company by towns in which they have appeared could not be desired. One chautauqua on which this capable opera company had appeared repeatedly says: "The Davies Opera Co. was, as in former years, one of the gleaming stars in the chautauqua diadem and it is hoped they can come again and again. A warm welcome always awaits them." Along with this splendid musical program, a group of celebrated lecturers including Frank Dilnot, former editor of the London Globe, biographer of Lloyd George; A. C. Everingham, the practical farmer whose messages to farmers have aroused the enthusiasm of agricultural organizations of the middle west, and Dr. Alexander Cairns, witty Irishman and thought provoking orator, will be heard.

A very few seats will be reserved this year for professional and business people who can not or do not care to go to the tent early. This is done simply as an accommodation and but a very nominal charge is made. Equally good seats unreserved may be had by persons so situated that they can spare the time to go early to the chautauqua grounds.

GENOA NATIONALS DEFEATED

The Sycamore colored team came over to Genoa Sunday and handed the local team a defeat. The score being 8 to 5.

The game was a real battle all the way through and but for a few momentary pauses and slips on the part of the felders the score would have been reversed.

RAIL WORKERS' PAY IS SLASHED

Wages of 400,000 Maintenance of Way Employees Cut by Board.

BASED UPON ADJUSTMENTS

Decreases Decried by the Railroad Labor Board Are From One to Five Cents an Hour, Effective July 1.

Chicago, May 30.—Wages of 400,000 maintenance of way railway employees are cut from 1 to 5 cents an hour, beginning July 1, according to a decision announced by the railroad labor board.

The decision means a return to practically the same scale as that prevailing February 29, 1920, when the roads were turned back to their owners, and is considered indicative of the size of cuts that will be made in the scale of workers in other departments.

A dissenting opinion is filed by three labor members of the board. It is believed to be the first time a dissent has been registered under the signature of all members of a group.

The labor group contends that the wage scale provided in the decision is insufficient to sustain life on anything like the basis of American standards. They cite tables and opinions of social workers and arbitration specialists to sustain the dissent.

The pay scale of maintenance of way employees after July 1 will be from 23 to 35 cents an hour as compared with the present rate of 28 to 40 cents.

In announcing a separate decision for this class of rail workers, the board states that it is complying with a request made by the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railroad Shop Laborers.

The board calls attention to the fact that this adjustment is based on previous wage adjustments both by the director of railroads under federal control and by the railroad labor board since that time.

All matters were based upon horizontal increases or decreases of the scales prevailing before federal control, all of which were different in various parts of the country and on different divisions of the railroads.

The minimum rates authorized in the present decision will apply only on a few divisions in a small group of states, principally in the South and Southwest.

The decision says in part: "The board is of the opinion that after the reduction under this decision, common labor on the railroads will still be receiving, as a rule, a wage in excess of that paid to similar labor in other industries, and that the same will be true of all other classes of labor covered by this decision."

"The board is of the opinion, however, that the hazards of the employment, the training and skill required, the degree of responsibility to the public, and other elements contained in that statute (transportation act of 1920) combine to justify the payment of a better wage to these employees than is paid to similar labor in outside employment."

"On a very considerable number of roads the foreman and section men are furnished by the carrier, living quarters and fuel.

The labor group contends that the wage scale provided in the decision is insufficient to sustain life on anything like the basis of American standards.

The pay scale of maintenance of way employees after July 1 will be from 23 to 35 cents an hour as compared with the present rate of 28 to 40 cents.

In announcing a separate decision for this class of rail workers, the board states that it is complying with a request made by the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railroad Shop Laborers.

The board calls attention to the fact that this adjustment is based on previous wage adjustments both by the director of railroads under federal control and by the railroad labor board since that time.

All matters were based upon horizontal increases or decreases of the scales prevailing before federal control, all of which were different in various parts of the country and on different divisions of the railroads.

The minimum rates authorized in the present decision will apply only on a few divisions in a small group of states, principally in the South and Southwest.

The decision says in part: "The board is of the opinion that after the reduction under this decision, common labor on the railroads will still be receiving, as a rule, a wage in excess of that paid to similar labor in other industries, and that the same will be true of all other classes of labor covered by this decision."

"The board is of the opinion, however, that the hazards of the employment, the training and skill required, the degree of responsibility to the public, and other elements contained in that statute (transportation act of 1920) combine to justify the payment of a better wage to these employees than is paid to similar labor in outside employment."

"On a very considerable number of roads the foreman and section men are furnished by the carrier, living quarters and fuel.

"Moreover, the board is not in sympathy with the idea that a government tribunal, empowered to fix a just and reasonable wage for men engaged in serving the public in the transportation industry, should be controlled by the one consideration of the low wages that may be paid to other labor in a period of temporary depression and unemployment.

It is but just to say that railroad managements have indicated no desire for such a result."

In dissenting the three labor members, A. O. Wharton, Albert Phillips and W. L. McMenimen, assert that under the new scale "the earnings of this large group of railroad employees will not provide the father of a family with as much food as is allowed convicts in the Cook county jail."

LIBRARIAN MADE GOOD GUESS

Mythified at First, He Finally Realized Just What Volume the Lady Was Looking For.

The recent death of John Kendrick Bangs has recalled an incident that happened recently in one of the branch libraries. A woman entered one evening just before closing time and after wandering aimlessly about without finding anything that seemed to please her, finally came to the desk to consult the librarian concerning her need. She said that a friend of hers had recommended a book as being especially good, and would the librarian please tell her where it was kept. The name of the book, she said, was "The House Built on the Sticks."

The librarian looked puzzled. Visions of certain Biblical references to houses built on the sands came to mind, but this one was unfamiliar to her, so she set about questioning the woman to find out more about it. No, the woman didn't know what it was about, but she did remember the author's name, Bangs. Immediately there came an illuminating idea, and the librarian went to the shelf and took down Bangs' "Houseboat on the Styx," and sent a satisfied patron home to enjoy her newly found treasure.—Indianapolis News.

ODD PLEAS MADE TO JUDGE

Defendants in Berlin Court Evidently Were Not of the Ordinary Type of Malefactors.

A strange request has been made in a Berlin court by a blacksmith, Paul Walter, who has been passing himself off in Berlin as Prince Pless. He and four friends were on trial for burglary and the blacksmith demanded:

"I request that I be condemned to death; if not, then send me to prison for life, so that I shall be rendered harmless to society."

When the surprised judge said he could not grant such a request Walter said:

"Well then, put me under police supervision for 20 years and I think you will see I won't do anything wrong again, but will reform myself. If I don't, then sentence me to death next time."

The judge sentenced him to prison for 18 months and passed sentences varying from three months to two and a half years on the others. All the prisoners then thanked the judge, and the blacksmith added that he and his friends gladly accepted the sentence.—New York Tribune.

Best Way to Warm His Hands.
During a severe winter, a science lecturer was delivering an address to a very small audience.

Presently a shabbily dressed man entered the hall. It was apparent that the man appreciated the lecturer's remarks, for he had not been listening many minutes before he began to applaud vigorously.

His enthusiasm stimulated the rest of the audience, and from that moment the applause grew frequent and unanimous, and the remainder of the lecture passed off splendidly.

The lecturer, feeling grateful to his apparently enthusiastic listener, accosted him as he was leaving, and exclaimed, heartily: "I was delighted to notice that you appreciated my remarks."

"Appreciated nothin'!" said the man. "I didn't even know what you was talkin' about. I seed the lecture was free, an', as it was cold outside, I came in. I was clappin' to warm myself!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Setting" Colors.
All colors cannot be set by the same method. Salt, for instance, is extremely effective in setting blues, pinks and some reds. A large tablespoonful is required to a gallon of lukewarm water. Black cottons or black-and-white checks need stronger salt water to be effective, and sometimes a little turpentine may be added to the water. Soak the materials in lukewarm water. Soak browns, deep yellows and tans in a solution of one cupful of vinegar to a gallon of lukewarm water to set the color. When the lighter shades of yellows and tans become faded, the color can be restored by adding strong coffee to warm rinsing water.—From the Designer.

Car Needed It Most.
The little librarian sat at her desk surveying the row of solemn-eyed Italians before her. Tony had brought all his little brothers and sisters to see the "teacher." "My goodness," she said, "how many of you are these altogether?" "Eleven," said Tony, and the entire row grinned broadly, exhibiting beautiful pearly teeth. "What beautiful teeth! I suppose you all brush them well every night?" A nervous shuffling, Tony cleared his throat. "Well," he said earnestly, "we did have a brush once, but father needed it to clean something in the car and after that it wasn't much good."—Chicago Journal.

Pipeclay for Mats.
Pipeclay acts as a preservative of rubber and makes one of the best mediums for treating the rubber mats used in automobiles. Oil and grease are rubber solvents and ruin the floor mats if they are allowed to remain on them. The mats should be wiped quite dry and then be pipeclayed. The pipeclay dries and sucks the oil out of the rubber.

WITTY IRISHMAN AT CHAUTAUQUA

DR. ALEXANDER CAIRNS
A 100% American of Irish extraction, with all of the wit and pug-naciousness of his forefathers, is Dr. Alexander Cairns who will deliver his celebrated lecture, "The Goose That Lays the Golden Eggs," on the fourth night of our Chautauqua. The ingredients that go to make up this famous address are said to be equal parts of the Irish love of fun, American enthusiasm and English matter-of-factness flavored with the tabasco sauce of Spanish impetuosity. To hear this forceful orator is to get a fresh grip on life and to more clearly understand and profit by the opportunities that come to every man and woman every day. Dr. Cairns is a preacher, unlike any other preacher you ever heard. He is the type of preacher who calls the press reporters of the great metropolitan dailies from New York to Newark, N. J., to get material for full-page write-ups and illustrations for their publications.

Weight Changes Every Hour.
We are lightest when we rise in the morning. Breakfast puts on a pound or so, but we lose some of this by lunch time, when we again add to our weight. After lunch back we go once more, though, as between breakfast and lunch, we retain part of the increase. Then comes dinner, which brings us up to our maximum. We have then gained, on the average, seven pounds during the day. Generally, therefore, the greatest variation during the 24 hours is seven pounds, the weight lost between dinner and breakfast.

Illinois Central System Calls Attention to the Careful Crossing Campaign

The safety section of the American Railway Association has announced its "Careful Crossing Campaign" to be in progress from June 1 to September 30. In the past, these four months have been the worst third of the year for motor vehicle grade-crossing accidents. In preparation for the campaign, the country has been covered with posters and stickers bearing a picture of a grade-crossing scene, showing a locomotive in the act of striking an automobile occupied by men, women and children. Above the picture are these words in large letters: "Cross Crossings Cautiously."

The public will understand the seriousness of this problem when it is explained that the number of motor vehicles registered in the United States increased from 1,033,096 in 1912 to 10,449,785 in 1921. There is now one motor vehicle for every ten persons in the United States.

Some believe that it is the duty of the railroads to protect motor vehicle users from their own carelessness by separating the grades at crossings. There are 252,000 railway grade crossings in the United States. It has been estimated that it would cost $12,600,000,000 to eliminate them, or two-thirds of the total value of the railroads as established by the Interstate Commerce Commission for rate-making purposes. It will be seen, therefore, that grade-crossing elimination is out of the question, at least for a long time to come. If the drivers of motor vehicles can be educated to "Stop, Look and Listen" at crossings, this will give the same result as the expenditure of $12,600,000,000, so far as safety is concerned.

The railroads have made splendid progress in reducing the number of accidents resulting in injury to their passengers and employees. However, motor vehicle grade-crossing accidents have been steadily increasing for years. The accidents are caused almost entirely by the negligence of motor vehicle drivers, and for that reason the efforts of the railroads to reduce them have been unavailing.

During 1920 there were 3,012 automobiles struck on grade crossings. In these accidents there were 1,273 persons killed and 3,977 persons injured. If the drivers of the motor vehicles involved in these accidents had "Stopped, Looked and Listened" at the crossings, not one of the accidents would have occurred.

A motor vehicle in the hands of a careful driver is an agency for safety. It can be driven up close to the railway track and stopped in perfect safety—differing from horse-drawn vehicles in that respect.

The Illinois Central System heartily approves the "Careful Crossing Campaign" of the safety section of the American Railway Association. We appeal to our patrons and friends and our employees to co-operate in every way possible to make the campaign successful.

We want the public to know us and what we stand for. Our motto is "Service." By co-operation with our patrons we have found many ways in which we can render them exceptional service, and our patrons, in turn, have served us well.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

If You Need a Medicine
You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement.

And, jumping down from the window seat, he began to dance round his much perturbed comrade, bellowing, Ramsey bore with him for a moment, then sprang upon him; they wrestled vigorously, broke a chair and went to the floor with a crash that gave the chandelier in Mrs. Meigs' parlor, below, an attack of jingles.

"You let me up!" Fred gasped.
"You take your solemn oath to shut up?" You goin' to swear it?"
"All right. I give my solemn oath," said Fred; and they rose, arranging their tousled attire.
"Well," said Fred, "when you goin' to call on her?"
"You look here!" Ramsey approached him dangerously. "You just gave me your soul—"

"I beg!" Fred cried, retreating. "I mean, aside from all that, why, I just thought maybe after such an evening you'd feel as a gentleman you ought to go and ask after her health."
"Now, see here—"
"No, I mean it; you ought to," Fred insisted, earnestly, and as his roommate glared at him with complete suspicion, he added, in explanation, "You ought to go next Callers' Night, and send in your card, and say you felt you ought to ask if she'd suffered any from the night air. Even if you couldn't manage to say that, you ought to start to say it, anyhow, because you—Keep off o' me! I'm only tryin' to do you a good turn, ain't I?"

"You save your good turns for yourself," Ramsey growled, still advancing upon him.
But the insidious Mitchell, evading him, fled to the other end of the room, picked up his cap and changed his manner. "Come on, ole bag o' beans, let's be on our way to the 'frat house'; it's time. We'll call this all off."
"You better!" Ramsey warned him; and they trotted out together.

But as they went along, Fred took Ramsey's arm confidentially, and said: "Now, honestly, Ram, ole man, when are you goin' to—"
Ramsey was still red. "You look here! Just say one more word—"
"Oh, no," Fred expostulated. "I mean seriously, Ramsey. Honestly, I mean seriously, aren't you seriously goin' to call on her some Callers' Night?"
"No, I'm not!"
"But why not?"
"Because I don't want to."
"Well, seriously, Ramsey, there's only one Callers' Night before vacation, and so I suppose it hardly will be worth while; but I expect you'll see quite a little of her at home this summer—"

"No, I won't. I won't see her at all. She isn't goin' to be home this summer, and I wouldn't see anything of her if she was."
"Where's she goin' to be?"
"In Chicago."
"She is?" said Fred, slyly. "When'd she tell you?"
Ramsey turned on him. "You look out! She didn't tell me. I just happened to see in the Bulletin she's signed up with some other girls to go and do settlement work in Chicago. Anybody could see it. It was printed out plain. You could have seen it just as well as I could, if you'd read the Bulletin."

"Oh, said Fred.
"Now look here—"
"Good heavens! Can't I even say 'oh'?"
"It depends on the way you say it."
"I'll be careful," Fred assured him, earnestly. "I really and honestly don't mean to get you excited about all this, Ramsey. I can see myself you haven't changed from your old opinion of Dora Yocum a bit. I was only tryin' to get a little rise out of you for a minute, because of course, seriously, why, I can see you hate her just the same as you always did."
"Yes," said Ramsey, disarmed and guileless in the face of diplomacy. "I only told you about all this, Fred, because it seemed—well, it seemed so kind o' funny to me."
Fred affected not to hear. "What did you say, Ramsey?"
Ramsey looked vaguely disturbed. "I said—why, I said it all seemed kind o'—"
He paused, then repeated plaintively: "Well, to me, it all seemed kind o'—kind o' funny."
"What did?" Fred inquired, but as he glanced in seeming naivete at his companion, something he saw in the latter's eye warned him, and suddenly Fred thought it would be better to run. Ramsey chased him all the way to the "frat house."

CHAPTER XI.

Ramsey was not quite athlete enough for any of the varsity teams; neither was he an antagonist safely encountered, whether in play or in earnest, and during the next few days he taught Fred Mitchell to be cautious. The chapter learned that his own agility could not save him from Ramsey, and so found it wiser to contain an effervescence which sometimes threatened to burst him. Ramsey as a victim was a continuous temptation, he was so good-natured and yet so furious.

"You let me up!" Fred commanded thickly, his voice muffled by the pile of flannels, sweaters, underwear and raincoats, wherein his head was being forced to burrow. "You let me up, damn you! I didn't say anything." And upon his release he complained that the attack was unprovoked. "I didn't say anything on earth to even hint you might want to go out and see if anybody in particular had got back to college yet. I didn't even mention the name of Dora Yocum—Keep off o' me! My goodness, but you are sensitive!"

As a matter of fact, neither of them saw Dora until the first meeting of the Lumen, whether they went as sophomores to take their pleasure in the agony of freshmen debaters. Ramsey was now able to attend the Lumen, not with complacency but at least without shuddering over the recollection of his own spectacular first appearance there. He had made subsequent appearances, far from brilliant, yet not disgraceful, and as a spectator, at least, he usually felt rather at his ease in the place. It cannot be asserted, however, that he appeared entirely at his ease this evening after he had read the "Programme" chalked upon the large easel blackboard beside the chairman's desk. Three "Freshman Debates" were announced and a "Sophomore Oration," this last being followed by the name, "D. Yocum, '18." Ramsey made immediate and conspicuous efforts to avoid sitting next to his roommate, but was not so adroit as to be successful. However, Fred was merciful; the fluctuations of his friend's complexion were an inspiration more to pity than to badinage.

The three debates all concerned the "Causes of the War in Europe," and honors appeared to rest with a small and stout, stolidly "pro-German" girl

"Here's a right pretty place, isn't it, Ramsey, don't you think?" Fred remarked innocently, as they were passing a lawn of short-clipped, bright green grass before a genial-looking house, fresh in white paint and cool in green-and-white awnings. A broad veranda, well populated just now, crossed the front of the house; fine trees helped the awnings to give comfort against the sun; and Fred's remark was warranted. Nevertheless, he fell under the suspicion of his companion, who had begun to evince some nervousness before Fred spoke.

"What place you mean?"
"The Yocum place," said Mr. Mitchell. "I hear the old gentleman's mighty prosperous these days. They keep things up to the mark, don't they, Ramsey?"
"I don't know whether they do or whether they don't," Ramsey returned shortly.

Fred appeared to muse regretfully. "It looks kind of empty now, though," he said, "with only Mr. and Mrs. Yocum and their married daughters, and eight or nine children on the front porch!"
"You wait till I get you where they can't see us!" Ramsey warned him fiercely.

"You can't do it!" said Fred, manifesting triumph. "We'll both stop right here in plain sight of the whole Yocum family connection till you promise not to touch me."
And he halted, leaning back implacably against the Yocum's iron fence. Ramsey was scandalized.

"Come on!" he said hoarsely. "Don't stop here!"
"I will, and if you go on alone I'll yell at you. You got to stand right here with all of 'em lookin' at you until—"
"I promise! My heavens, come on!" Fred consented to end the moment of agony; and for the rest of the summer found it impossible to persuade Ramsey to pass that house in his company. "I won't do it!" Ramsey told him. "Your word of honor means nothing to me; you're liable to do anything that comes into your head, and I'm gettin' old enough to not get a reputation for being a snitch."

Dora was charmingly dressed, and she was pale; but those notable eye-lashes of hers were all the more notable against her pallor. And as she spoke with fire, it was natural that her color should come back quite flamingly and that her eyes should flash in shelter of the lashes. "The Christian Spirit and Internationalism" was her subject, yet she showed no meek sample of a Christian Spirit herself when she came to attacking war-makers generally, as well as all those "half-developed tribesmen" and "victims of herd instinct" who believed that war might ever be justified under any circumstances of atrocity. She was eloquent truly, and a picture of grace and girlish dignity, even when she was most vigorous. Nothing could have been more militant than her denunciation of militancy.

"She's an actual wonder," Fred said, when the two had got back to Mrs. Meigs' afterward. "Don't you look at me like that; I'm talkin' about her as a public character, and there's nothin' personal about it. You let me alone."
Ramsey was not clear as to his duty. "Well—"
"If any person makes a public speech," Fred protested, "I got a perfect right to discuss 'em, no matter what you think of 'em"—and he added hastily—"or don't think of 'em!"
"Look here—"
"Good heavens!" Fred exclaimed. "You aren't expecting to interfere with me if I say anything about that little fat Werder girl that argued for Germany, are you? Or any of the other speakers? I got a right to talk about 'em just as public speakers, haven't I? Well, what I say is: Dora Yocum as an orator is just an actual perfect wonder. Got any objections?"
"N-no."

The less you know about people the longer you will retain their friendship.

KNICKER SUITS FLOURISH; SILK KNITTED SCARFS

IT HAS come to the place where sports clothes are broadly divided into two classes—those worn by sportsmen for actual wear in sports, and those worn by "onlookers"—or merely to create an atmosphere or to fit in with environment. And now we are hearing of "spectator" hats and "onlooker" sweaters. These have the casual character of sports clothes, but need not be so sturdy and they may therefore indulge in unusual decorations and press into their service silk and en fabrics. But for real sports wear there are regulation types and among them knickerbockers, in place of skirts, have made such progress that their name has been abbreviated to "knickers." Life is too short to say "knickerbocker" as often as one needs to among women given to outdoor life, so we have knicker suits, like that one illustrated, made of tweed and other dependable fabrics. It is above criticism for golfing, hiking and pastimes where skirts are inconvenient. As pictured, it is a boyish affair with belted coat and well-fitted knickers, and it calls for blouse, footwear and headwear of like character. Ribbed hose, broad toe, low heel, sport shoes, plain blouse, scarf tie, and sailor hat (fastened on with a chin strap), proclaim the discriminating taste of the sportsman. Altogether it has a style and flavor all its own—as smart and charming as a riding habit. For midsummer some of the knicker suits are made with sleeveless coats and worn with middie blouses.

For wear on the links and other sports wear, there are attractive new suits with figured skirts and solid color jackets. French manufacturers have contributed bright-hued jackets of brushed wool, knitted with a wide rib, for wear with sports skirts. The majority of them have flaring sleeves and shawl collars, but there are some of the smart stand-up collars.
The most interesting developments in the realm of sports clothes, come from the knitting mills. Worsted yarns and fiber silk, when knitted, give a flavor of sportswear to any garment, and this season presents them in dresses, coat suits, hat and scarf sets having the scarfs with solid colored sweaters, either the tuxedo coats or the V neck slip-on.
Perhaps the zenith of beauty is attained in the sheer sea-breeze scarfs for summer, which are thin, almost to transparency, and stretch over the shoulders like a silken cobweb. In conclusion, if you would be up-to-date, become the happy possessor of a silk knitted scarf, for knitted outer wear is the keynote of present moment fashion.

Controlling Garden Pests

Insects and plant diseases cause great losses in vegetable gardens each year. Much of this loss can be prevented by proper control measures. In order to intelligently combat the garden pests their methods of attacks must be understood.

The insect pests can be divided into two groups; first, chewing insects, or those which bite off a piece of leaf or other part of the plant and chew it up and swallow it; and second, sucking insects or those which insert their beaks into the tissues of the plant and suck the juices of the plant.

Examples of the first group of chewing insects which commonly cause considerable damage are the cabbage worm, striped cucumber beetle, the Colorado potato beetle, and blister beetles.

These chewing insects may be controlled by spraying or dusting poison over the parts of the plant that these insects feed on. One of the best poisons for chewing insects is powdered arsenate of lead. This may be either dusted or sprayed on the plants. Dusting is simpler as it requires no special equipment. Use one part powdered arsenate of lead to ten parts of air-slaked lime. It is best applied with a cheese cloth bag by merely shaking the bag over each plant. It will stick better if applied while the dew is on. On a large scale, arsenate of lead may be sprayed on, using two pounds of powdered arsenate of lead and two pounds of lime to 50 gallons of water.

Examples of troublesome sucking insects are plant lice or aphids of all kinds, and the common squash bug.

Since the sucking insects live on the juices which they suck from the plants a poison applied on the surface of the plant does not affect these insects. Consequently, they must be controlled by a contact insecticide; that is, one which will kill them when it comes in contact with their bodies. The best contact insecticide to use against plant lice is nicotine sulphate. This may be applied as a spray, using one part nicotine sulphate to one thousand parts of water. This must come in contact with the insect to be effective. Therefore, since plant lice are most abundant on the under side of the foliage it is necessary to use an upturned nozzle and spray the under side of the foliage to actually hit the insect. Thoroughness in this spraying is of the utmost importance.

Fungous diseases, such as early blight and late blight of potatoes, melon rust, downy mildew on cucumbers, and leaf spot of tomatoes may be controlled by spraying the plants with Bordeaux mixture. Bordeaux mixture prevents disease spores from germinating, therefore its effectiveness depends upon its application before the disease appears.

Bordeaux mixture consists of lime, copper sulphate and water; a common formula being 4 pounds stone lime, 3 pounds copper sulphate and 50 gallons of water. The lime should be slaked and then diluted in 25 gallons of water, while the copper sulphate should be dissolved in the other 25 gallons of water. The diluted solutions should then be poured together simultaneously to make the Bordeaux mixture.

Bordeaux mixture will successfully control the plant diseases mentioned above providing the Bordeaux mixture is applied in advance of the disease and the spraying repeated at intervals of about two weeks. In addition, Bordeaux mixture is of added value to cucumber and melon growers because it acts as a repellent to the striped cucumber beetle, which will avoid plants thus sprayed.

In case of a simultaneous attack, for example, on melons by a chewing insect (striped beetle), a sucking insect (melon aphid), and a fungus disease (melon rust), the control measures may be combined and a spray may be used consisting of 4 pounds lime, 3 pounds copper sulphate, 2 pounds arsenate of lead and one pint of nicotine sulphate to 50 gallons of water, and the combined spray applied in one application.

Cabbage root maggots may be controlled by dissolving one ounce of corrosive sublimate in ten gallons of water and pouring one-half cup of this solution on the center of the plant so it will run down the stem. This should be applied at the time the cabbage plants are transplanted to the field.

Why We Cultivate

Frequently too little thought is given to the principles underlying many of our farm practices. This has been especially true of cultivation, a practice where the "why" is of considerable importance in determining the "how" and "when."

It has been generally agreed that the objects of cultivation are to kill weeds, to form a mulch as a means of saving water, and to open up the soil allowing water to enter more readily, and air to circulate more freely. Considerable difference of opinion exists as to which of these objects is the most important, but ordinarily the emphasis is placed on the conservation of soil moisture. Recent experiments on the cultivation of corn, however, show that the destruction of weeds is of far greater importance, and the primary object of cultivation under Illinois conditions.

It is impossible to over-emphasize the fact that weeds must be controlled, and that cultivation is the only practical means of their eradication during the growing season. This cultivation however, should be just as shallow as possible to avoid root injury. Too, since roots cannot develop in the dry loose layer, which constitutes the soil mulch, shallow cultivation gives the growing crop a chance to use more of the plowed soil as a feeding zone.

In humid climates cultivation for the purpose of conserving moisture is seldom necessary, except in case of "heavy" soils that check badly, causing them to dry out to great depths. Because of the tendency of these soils to become hard and compact, and to crust over, the need of cultivation is much greater than for soils which do not "run together" and puddle. Thus, it is advisable, even though no weeds are present, to cultivate clays and clay loams as a means of breaking up the surface crust to provide better aeration and to put the soil in condition that water can be more readily absorbed.

But after all, the principal object of cultivation in most instances is the destruction of weeds. Where the land has been thoroughly prepared, and the soil is in good shape and reasonably free from weeds, cultivation is of doubtful value.

Home Bureau Work

Because home bureau work is growing so rapidly those in charge of such work at the University of Illinois have outlined briefly the activities of a functioning bureau. Such work consists of:

1. Group meetings or conferences for the exchange of experiences. The frequency of these meetings is determined by the group itself.
2. Home demonstrations, or the working out by the individual in her home, under the supervision of the adviser, of some problem in home making.
3. Educational exhibits held throughout the country.
4. Short courses, schools and lectures conducted by the adviser or a university specialist, or in some cases by a well-qualified member of the bureau.
5. Tours among homes in the county to inspect labor-saving equipment or some well-worked-out scheme of arrangement.
6. The publishing of a monthly Home Bureau Bulletin from the office of the home bureau. This bulletin keeps the members in touch with the work of the bureau and informed on the news in the home economics world.
7. The publishing of newspaper articles dealing with subjects of interest to homemakers.

Just what the program of work for a county shall be is determined by the women themselves in conference with the adviser. In the organized counties of the state last year the studies included the selection of food to suit the needs of the family, the selection of appropriate and attractive clothing and home furnishings, the keeping of household accounts, the planning of labor-saving devices, the establishing of the hot school lunch, the training of the family in healthful personal habits, home nursing, and various other home-making problems.

Dairy Cattle Breeding

The University of Illinois purchased in 1919 a herd of dairy cattle with the express purpose of studying the inheritance of various dairy characteristics. The herd is particularly adapted to this purpose from certain standpoints. Purebred Holstein-Friesian and purebred Guernseys were used as foundation stock. The heifers resulting from this cross have been and are being mated to one or the other of two bulls, likewise a cross of the two breeds mentioned. So far as possible, all the females of the resulting second generation are being developed to determine their dairy characteristics. Facilities available are not adequate to test out the male offspring.

The origin of this experiment was due entirely to Mr. T. J. Bowler, a stockman then residing at Boston. The purebred stock used was of excellent breeding and the large number of cows used made it an expensive proposition. He made his first matings in 1911. After Mr. Bowler's death the experimental breeding which he started was carried forward by Mrs. Bowler in co-operation with Dr. Castle, noted geneticist of Harvard university. In 1919, however, Mrs. Bowler deemed it advisable to transfer the project to other hands and the University of Illinois was fortunate in securing the herd in competition with several experimental stations and the federal Department of Agriculture.

Similar experiments are in progress at the Maine and Wisconsin experimental stations. All together these experiments should serve to throw some light on the problems of the breeder of dairy cattle.

MILK IS INDISPENSABLE IN DIET OF CHILDREN AND REQUIRES CARE

Especial Precautions as to Cleanliness on the Part of Those Who Handle Milk Are Strongly Urged.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The consumer, rather than the producer, the distributor of milk, or the manufacturer of dairy products is the person for whose use a new Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1207, Milk and Its Uses in the Home, has recently been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Milk is indispensable in the diet of children, because its solids are in such form that they can be easily utilized by the body, and because it is one of the best sources of the lime needed to build bone and teeth, and of vitamin A, a substance essential to health and normal growth. For adults also milk is an important supplementary food. It should be given scrupulous care in the home.

Milk and Its Uses.

Milk is an important food, because it contains proteins for tissue forming, fat and sugar for body fuel, and minerals, particularly phosphorus and lime, for building and repairing bones and other tissues. Milk is much richer in lime than most other common foods. A cupful of milk, says the bulletin, contains at least seven times as much lime as two medium sized potatoes, and nearly twenty times as much lime as two slices of white bread or four ounces of average beef. This is one of the reasons why it is such an excellent food for children for bone and tooth building.

Vitamins are recently discovered constituents of food. Relatively little is known about the nature of vitamins save that they are indispensable for normal health and growth, and that if they are left out of the diet for a long period so called "deficiency diseases" may develop. Absence of vitamin A is believed to induce rickets. Vitamin B is thought to prevent polyneuritis and beri-beri. Milk is exceptionally valuable for providing vitamin A, and supplies vitamin B in abundance. Perfectly fresh, raw milk often supplies vitamin C, but its scurvy-preventing power may be lost when it is heated or aged.

Each child should have a full quart of milk a day, if possible.

Reasons for Pasteurization. While certified raw milk is usually the cleanest milk obtainable, it usually costs a little more than ordinary milk. Good pasteurized milk is satisfactory for children, if the juice of oranges, canned or raw tomatoes, or certain other vegetables and fruits is given to provide vitamin C. Directions for home pasteurization are given in the bulletin, together with an explanation of how bacteria get into milk, the harm they cause, and the effect of careless handling upon them.

A great many kinds of bacteria have been found in milk. Some of them cause the formation of lactic acid, which gives sour milk its characteristic flavor, while others cause milk to putrefy if allowed to stand long enough. The bacteria that causes serious diseases may also get into milk, and are sometimes spread in this way, resulting in epidemics. Especial precautions as to cleanliness on the part of those who produce and handle milk are strongly urged.

OLD BROOM IS MADE USEFUL

When Straws Are Cut as Shown in Illustration It Will Clean Mud Off Soles of Shoes.

There's a lot of dirt that need never be swept out of the house if provision is made for leaving it outside in the first place. For this purpose an old broom may be used; and thus it will continue its work of keeping the house clean long after its straws have been worn down too short for sweeping.

Just take an old broom and cut the straws off as shown in the sketch, shorten and sharpen the handle and drive it into the ground beside the walk just outside the house. It will clean not only the soles of the shoes but the sides as well, thereby making a certain amount of sweeping unnecessary. At any rate it's worth trying.

Household Questions

Every home should possess a portable fire extinguisher.

Remove mud from black clothing by rubbing with raw potato.

A pretty way to finish the top of a flounce on a petticoat is with entwined pink and blue ribbons.

When frying entrees bread crumbs are preferable to cracker dust, because they are less soggy.

New rope may be made pliable by boiling it in water for a couple of hours. Hang in a warm room.

Wring sheets from the side rather than from the end, and the objectionable wrinkles along the selvage will be avoided.

A little benzine added to the cleansing powder when you are cleaning a copper kettle will brighten it and keep it bright longer than if omitted.

Lamp chimneys can be quickly cleaned by holding the hand over one end and putting the other end over the spout of a simmering tea kettle. Rub at once with tissue paper.

Salt Fish.

Soak salt fish in milk to freshen it for immediate use.

LEGION 'QUEEN' IS DIPLOMAT

Miss Ruth Metcalf, Burlington (Ia.) Girl, Names Her Brother Carnival "King."

Women began practicing the art of diplomacy when Eve was about three days old, and the present generation of fair ones are not so bad at it, the world knows. Even the distinguished foreign diplomats who wear red stripes across their bodied shirts at formal dinners will give the palm to a sweet Iowa girl, however, and if they hesitate, a number of Iowa men might have a word to say that would prompt them.

It happened that the American Legion of Burlington, Ia., having a high carnival and desiring a queen, chose one. The girl selected for her outstanding beauty, wit, and spirit was Miss Ruth Metcalf, who later displayed tact. Miss Metcalf being duly and fittingly crowned queen, now would choose one of the ex-soldiers as king, it was announced, whereas some hundreds of assorted male beauties struck attitudes of attention. After looking closely over the assembled Legionnaires, Miss Metcalf calmly picked out her own brother and crowned him king. Whereupon the issue was settled with nice diplomacy and the big carnival parade got under way.

ENDED SITTING BULL'S REIGN

Chief Red Tomahawk, Sioux Warrior, and Commander MacNider Smoke Pipe of Peace.

Since the passing of the dime novel, the 40 redskins who used to bite the dust so frequently have become lost to the world. But the exploits of old Sitting Bull may well be remembered, even today, when the marble-shooting generation is reading deep volumes that puzzle exasperated parents.

Sitting Bull also bit the dust in approved fashion and, while touring through Bismarck, N. D., recently, Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, had the pleasure of meeting the gentleman who caused the Bull's downfall. It was none other than old Chief Red Tomahawk, Sioux warrior, who some years ago captured Sitting Bull's pet, and who came from the reservation to greet the big chief of the white tribe. With Red Tomahawk came a number of the younger Sioux braves who fought in France with the A. E. F. and gave the Germans the surprise of their lives.

While in North Dakota Mr. MacNider smoked a peace pipe with the Sioux chief and received congratulations of the chief of the first Americans for the organization which is endeavoring to keep America for the present Americans.

Physical Deterioration. "Physical examinations of regular army officers show the most clear-cut evidence of physical deterioration which is due to strain incident to the World war," the army medical department reports. That investigation may bring to light a scientific explanation of some part of the restlessness among former soldiers which can be laid to their having undergone a severe nervous strain.

Alaska Has the Wealth. Alaska could not only pay for adjusted compensation, if it were rightly developed, but the whole war debt besides, according to Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior. What is believed to be the greatest oil field in the world is in the Arctic near the Aleutian islands. A tremendous coal belt in Alaska is undeveloped, and the greatest copper mine in the world as well.

Legion Asks for New Law. "Oh-o-o say can you see—?" The band-organ man ground out the national anthem and the monkey danced and squinted his sharp eyes. Then the hand-organ man passed the hat. But in New York state he will have to change his tune, if the American Legion gets its bill through the legislature prohibiting the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" for the purpose of collecting money.

Carrying On With the American Legion

The official American Legion grave markers may be had from national headquarters for $1.90 each, now.

The Legion post of Decatur, Ark., has bought the city's telephone system and, after an overhauling, will operate it.

Pershing stadium, built by the A. E. F., has been designated as the place for the holding of the 1924 Olympic games.

The famous French general, Gouraud, has been invited to attend the reunion this year of the Rainbow division, in Minneapolis, Minn.

THE 30 x 3 1/2 tire situation today is just this—
The man who buys an USCO at $10.90 is justified in believing that his money is going farther in tire value than it ever has gone or could go before.
Naturally he appreciates the quality of USCO. That was established long ago.
It is still fresh in his mind that USCO led the national market into the $10.90 price range.

The makers of U. S. Tires always intended the 30 x 3 1/2 USCO to be the highest value in its field.
At $10.90 it creates a new classification of money's worth.
