AVE MAY MEETS INSTANT DEATH

Struck By Engine of Train No. 4 Wed. Evening While Attempting Flag Stop

BODY WAS THROWN 60 FEET
Deceased Failed to Realize Nearness of Engine as Headlight Undoubtedly Blinded Him

Ave May, proprietor of the May Hotel, this city, met with instant death Wednesday evening of this week at about nine-thirty o'clock when he was struck by passenger engine on No. 4 train on an attempted flag stop. His body was hurled a distance of some sixty feet, the impact being so great that it crushed the skull and feet of the victim.

It seems that one Mr. Lindquist, an employee of the United Shoe Machine Co. who had been working at the local factory for two days, wanted to go to Chicago and Mr. May, in his usual genial and ever-ready manner to help others volunteered to flag the train for him, a task which he had accomplished hundreds of times.

He stood on the west platform of the east-bound track with a lantern and as the engine of the train came in sight of the flag light on rounding the curve some two or three hundred yards west of the station it whistled its acknowledgement of the signal. The proper course at this time was for Mr. May to walk off the track, but he was apparently in a daze not being able to see because of the reflection of the light in his glasses or else the light held a sort of hypnotic influence over him, which prevented his moving. Mr. Lindquist, who was with him did not notice the inability of the man to get off the track until too late and at that narrowly missed being hit himself in an attempt to get him out of the way.

The body was caught on the front of the engine and hurled to the east platform of the same track, a distance of some 60 feet, crushing the head and feet. The lantern was hurled several feet, smashing it to small fragments.

Mrs. May, brave woman that she is, collapsed upon learning the nature of the tragedy and it was only through the kind assistance of friends and her brother, W. H. Bell of Kingston, that she was finally made to rest easily.

The body was taken to the undertaking rooms of Slater & Son and an inquest was held this (Thursday) afternoon at 1:30, the verdict of which was in substance as follows: we, the jury find—that Ave May came to his death Wednesday evening, June 20 at 9:20 o'clock by being struck by train No. 4. (This is an open verdict)

Mr. May (Ave as he was familiarly known) was about 70 years old and had been proprietor of the hotel which bears his name for a good many years and during all that time no one could say that he ever made an enemy. He was cheerful toward everyone and his goodwill and open hospitality toward his neighbors had won for him a place in the heart of those with whom he came in contact. That his life should be taken away now is cause for great pity and the sympathy of the city goes out to the members of his family. He leaves to mourn his departure his wife, daughter Belle Carlson of Wheaton, two grandchildren and one brother, Grant, residing near Kirkland.

Funeral services will be held at the house at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon the M. W. A. being in charge. Interment in North Kingston cemetery.

BROWN-WILSON

Word was received Thursday of the marriage of Mr. Harold Wilson and Miss Helen Brown of Rockford which took place in Chicago on Wednesday evening, June 20, at 8 p. m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brown of Rockford but of late has made her home in Chicago where she is employed by the Standard Oil Co.

The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson of this city and one of Genoa's finest representatives, of late years having been employed out of town. At present he is with the Bell Telephone Co. of Evanston.

The happy couple have the best of wishes from their many friends for many years of prosperity and happiness. They will make their home at 5670 Ridge Avenue, Chicago. It pays to read the want Ad Column.

GOATS AT STEVEN'S AUCTION

A number of pure-stock fanciers from this district are preparing to motor to Delavan Lake, Wisconsin, to attend the annual sale of registered milk goats from the internationally famous herd of Charles A. Stevens, pioneer in goat breeding and prominent Chicago department store owner.

Mr. Stevens will place on sale more than 100 pure bred bucks, does and kids at the auction, June 30, to be held at his summer place on the north shore of Lake Delavan. Many of the animals are of the rare Toggenburg breed; a few are ultra choice Nubians. Those not sold at the private sale in the morning will be auctioned off in the afternoon.

At the Stevens' sale last year, more than $25,000 worth of milkgoats were sold in 75 minutes. Millionaires like Wrigley and Armour were among the 4,000 motorists who attended the sale. At the sale last year, a number of people who were anxious to secure foundation stock were disappointed. This year, Mr. Stevens announces the sale will be open to all, and all will be satisfied.

Secretary of Labor, James J. Davis, founder of Mosehart, has promised to attend the Stevens' goat sale. It is believed a number of dignitaries from the Mosehart organization will accompany him and appeal to the public to found a goat herd for the benefit of the boys and girls living at Mosehart.

The time is coming, goat fanciers believe, when every suburban home and every home in the smaller cities will be incomplete without a milk goat. Especially will homes with young children keep goats, for the milk is celebrated for its health qualities, possessing valuable vitamins, phosphoric, potassium citrate and high butter fat.

"I believe," said Mr. Stevens, "that within ten years the milk goat will be to the nation what the Ford car is to the motor industry today. The goat is the flivver of milk producers, when it comes to economy, small storage space and all-round efficiency. Out in California, tourists carry a goat on the running board of their automobiles."

Many homes are so situated that they can conveniently keep a goat, but could not keep a cow. Mothers know the desirability of having fresh goat milk for their children. Goats are great pets, too, and show their attachment frequently by refusing to give up their milk to unfriendly strangers. As the "poor man's dairy," the goat is destined to become a national fad. It won't conflict with the cow or the dairy industry, but it will be a boon to America's children.

The goat is an adventurer and Samaritan, too. Mr. Stevens made it known that a small flock of his best milk goats have just been sent to Dr. Grenfell's Mission in Labrador, a bleak, frozen waste in the North Atlantic, to provide food for the mission babies. Several other wealthy Chicagoans, including Mrs. James A. Patten, wife of the former "wheat king," are donating goats from their herds to the Grenfell mission. The goats, it is said, are excellent sailors.

At the sale on June 30, all purchasers will be furnished with official registration certificates and pedigree data by Mr. Stevens. It is said he postponed the auction until this date, because he refused to sell the kids away from the kids, until the kids were old enough to be separated.

MRS. GLEN DAVIS GONE

Dearly Beloved Lady Passed Away at Rochelle Hospital Last Friday

Funeral services of Mrs. Glen Davis were held at the home of her mother, Mrs. Anna Wilson, on the Five Points road west of Sycamore on Monday, June 18, at 2 o'clock, Rev. Bishop, pastor of the Sycamore Congregational church, officiating.

Pearl Matula Wilson, daughter of Nels G. and Ann Wilson, was born March 10, 1890 and grew up to womanhood on the old homestead. In 1914 she was united in marriage to Glen Davis at Charted Grove where they since had resided.

On Friday, June 8th, she was taken to the Rochelle hospital and a few days later submitted to an operation. She failed to recover from her serious illness and died Friday, June 15th at that place.

Like many other birds, ostriches lose or cease to use their voice in captivity, and very few visitors to the zoo know that they have voices at all. In their natural surroundings, however, they are far from dumb, for they have a "song like the roar of a lion."

NAT'L. LOSE HARD FOUGHT BATTLE

Sycamore Retained Lead After Genoa Scored 4 In The Ninth Inning

FINAL SCORE WAS SIX TO FIVE

Mgr. Overley has Secured the Rockford Wolverines For Next Sunday's Entertainment—Star Attraction

Genoa's laboring Nationals emerged from the smoke and din of battle Sunday much the worse for wear, but with all honors of a team fighting to the last ditch and even at that had all the mortal fears of the Sycamore fans aroused lest they would "cop" the bunting in the last inning when four runs were rushed across the pan before old man Marr could retire the side. This avalanche of runs brot the total for the game up to five and six with Sycamore hanging onto the six.

The game started off like one of those combats that generally wind up one or two to nothing, Gustafson and Marr both pitching shut-out ball. However in the second inning some things began to happen and hits by Byers and Ox Overley produced one run. This seemed to put some pep in to the Sycamore gang and they retailed with one run in the third, two in the fourth and two in the fifth. Some sparkling fielding on the part of Genoa's defense cutting down more runs. Eberley, (Sycamore's Ball Team) uncorked one of his long drives in the eighth inning and legged it home when the ball was lost in the outfield, otherwise he would have had quite a time making third base.

Not to be squelched by the one-sided score of six to one Genoa's fighting instinct awakened in the ninth and drove over four runs before Sycamore could retire them.

Sell started the attack when he was safe on first by an error. Byers hit safely as did Patterson who was safe at first on a fielder's choice. Sell being retired at the plate. Ox Overley scored Byers when he doubled and Gustafson tripled to deep center scoring Patterson and Overley. Gustafson, who was perched on third came home when Geithman was thrown out at first. Crawford struck out ending the rally and game.

The Rockford Wolverines will engage in battle here Sunday and a lively scrap is looked for. They are considered a shade better than the Marquette, but Overley is certain that Genoa will maintain the long end of the score.

OFFICER HEED AFTER SPEEDER

Walter Olson of Chicago Apprehended After Thrilling Chase of Two Miles

One Walter Olson of the City Hall crowd in Chicago breezed thru this city Sunday afternoon at a rate of between 35 and 40 miles an hour, kicking up clouds of dust and disturbing things in general. Officer Heed, seeing the speedy motorist tear through that way decided that it was time to make a halt and commanded L. M. Duval's car and set off in pursuit, catching Mr. Olson near the Nate Montgomery home east of town.

After much parleying on the part of the victim of the chase he was allowed to continue on his way to Chicago and to report Monday morning for trial. A long distance telephone call did the trick and he was assessed $10.00 and costs, amounting to $14.60 by Justice of the Peace Stott. Read the Want Ad Column.

NEAR EAST RELIEF DRIVE

Genoa and Community Will Be Given Opportunity to Help Sufferers

A drive for funds for relief of the starving orphans and people in the Near East will be staged in Genoa and surrounding community next Monday, or some time the fore part of the week, says Rev. Robeson, one of the pastors in charge of the drive.

The following outline states what the Near East Relief body is and the charter under which it does business. Why Near East Relief

AUTHORITY
Incorporated by act of Congress to work in the Near East. Annual reports of its activities and finances are made to Congress.

FIELD OF OPERATION
Constantinople and the adjoining territory in European Turkey, Thrace, Anatolia, Armenia, Cilicia, Kurdistan, Palestine, Mesopotamia, Persia and Trans-Caucasia, including Russian Armenia and Georgia. Administrative Centres, Constantinople, Beirut, Tiflis and Bagdad.

ENDORSEMENTS
Endorsed by President Harding and by Congress; by the National Information Bureau; by the churches, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish Religions; by civic, commercial, industrial fraternal, educational and social organizations; by American and foreign officials in Europe, Turkey and other countries of the Near East.

MOREHEAD GETS $100 AND COSTS

Fifty Gallons of Wine Found on Premises; Confiscated by Sheriff Crawford

Charles Morehead of DeKalb who was pinched the other day for being intoxicated and for having liquor in his possession was brought before Judge Pond Monday by Sheriff Crawford and Chief Scott was fined $100 and costs and given sixty days in jail. This man has a family of six children; he is an alderman of DeKalb, we are told and at the last election he polled a considerable vote for the office of mayor. Sheriff Crawford confiscated fifty gallons of booze found on the Morehead premises.

Joe Kirwin the man who beatup his family awhile back and got $100 and thirty days in jail was discharged by Sheriff Crawford, having paid his fine amounting to $122.20 and served his thirty days in jail.

The Ward-McMenimin trouble increases in interest as well as in litigation as the docket discloses. The last suit filed was a replevin suit by William P. Ward vs. John McMenimin to recover possession of ten Holstein cows, four and five years old together with all calves, the increase of the same since November, 1921. Also one register bull. Just what angle this fight will take on is not disclosed by the affidavit filed with the cities ownership unlawfully withheld. The county authorities are in receipt of a warning to be on the look out for complaints regarding a plan or scheme promoted and carried on in various parts of the state called "Suit Club." Under this scheme suits or clothing is distributed to members through chance drawings. The scheme General's office as one of the worst forms of lotteries, and is a flagrant violation of the law. As a rule the plan or scheme ends in a part of the contributing members losing all the money they have contributed.

SAD DEATH WEDNESDAY

John, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Larson of Sycamore, passed away early Wednesday morning of lockjaw caused from a sliver of wood in the knee which later became infected. The deceased was a nephew of Mrs. G. L. Couch and Miss Madeline Larson of this city.

SANDWICH SUNDAY SHOWS

The future of moving picture shows in Sandwich was put on probation for a month by the city council at its meeting last Monday evening, when by common consent they were allowed to run Sunday evenings until the regular meeting of the city council, which will be held July 9.

"HOUSES WITHOUT FRONTS"

DR. L. H. BEELER

THIS noted educator, who fits his message to the need of the hour and of the audience he is addressing, will speak on the evening of the fourth day of the Chautauqua on the subject, "Houses Without Fronts." While he is devoting his life to education, he has made a thorough and exhaustive study of community problems and has not only the ability but the earnest desire to serve every community he visits and to leave with the leaders of the community some thought that, after he has left, will bear fruit. Dr. Beeler is a rapid speaker whose manner and method of delivery carry conviction. If our community can use him in addressing luncheon or dinner gatherings of the Chamber of Commerce, luncheon clubs, Parent-Teacher Associations or other civic and community organizations, he is at our service. If this community fails to benefit by Dr. Beeler's visit it will be because our leaders have not been awake to their opportunities.

SWIMMING AND DROWNINGS

With the first warm days of spring young people, and for that matter older ones too, seek swimming hole or bathing pool. This spring, being no exception to the general rule, brings news of many accidental drownings. Child life is besieged by many enemies in the form of communicable diseases. Preventive medicine has made much progress in recent years, and will make more rapid strides as the public conscience is awakened to the necessity therefor.

Not only should the health of children be guarded while they are in school, but their summer sports should receive the same careful attention. Bathing beaches, summer resorts, and public playgrounds where swimming pools are maintained not only educate their patrons in the matter of life saving, but have life saving crews ready for any emergency.

Rural communities, however, dependent on nearby streams, natural or artificial lakes, and have given little thought to the manifold dangers of "The Old Swimmer's Hole." Within the past few days a small boy at Jerseyville dived into shallow water and was drowned before aid could arrive. Two days later two school girls were drowned in Shoal Creek near Panama, Montgomery county. The following advice to bathers, if broadcast in every community, and observed, will save many lives:

Don'ts for Bathers

Don't swim on a full stomach. Wait at least two hours after eating. Don't swim if overheated. Don't swim until exhausted. Don't swim if you have heart trouble.

Don't dive without accurate knowledge of the depth of the water.

Don't struggle if caught in a swift current or undertow; the force of the current will bring you to the surface. Don't wade into the water with arms over your head; you will not be ready to stroke if you step into a hole.

Don't lean backward when wading into the water; always be ready to fall forward.

Don't cry for help in fun; you may some time need help and not get it. Don't fail to learn the Red Cross life saving resuscitation methods. Be capable of saving yourself and your companions.

Don't go in swimming alone unless you are an expert.

Plain to Be Seen.

A college professor says a man can get anything if he asks for it often enough. He evidently was never a bill collector.

Motion Made to Hire Special Deputy to Watch Game Laws

CONCRETE ROAD FOR MAPLE PARK

Several Reports Were Read And Approved—Canada Thistles Must Be Eradicated

The June session of the Board of Supervisors of DeKalb County came to a close on Wednesday afternoon June 13th., 1923, at which time the board adjourned and will not meet again until next September.

The board adjourned at eleven o'clock Tuesday in order to permit the members to attend the luncheon given at the Kishwaukee Country Club by the Bankers of DeKalb County group three. On Wednesday morning the meeting was called to order by Chairman Alvin Warren and after roll call the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Atty. B. H. Burst appeared before Board and made a request that sleeping quarters for visiting Judges be provided in the courthouse. Mr. Jarboe moved that the matter be referred to the Judiciary and Building and Grounds Committee, which motion was carried.

Mr. Ira Wetzel of Sycamore, President of the Sycamore Chapter of the Isaac Walton League, appeared before the board and spoke on the matter of the enforcement of the Fish and Game Laws of this State in this county. Mr. Wetzel requested that the board appropriate a sufficient sum to enable the Sheriff to hire a special deputy to enforce this law. Mr. Safford moved that the matter be referred to the judiciary committee which was done. In the afternoon Mr. Cassius Conrad, Sr. of Sycamore presented a resolution appropriating $100 per month for the services of a special deputy, which resolution was defeated by a vote of 6 to 14.

Mr. Klein of Kane County appeared before the board and explained the proposed concrete road at Maple Park. Mr. Still moved the matter be referred to a special highway committee which met and Mr. Jarboe as member of the committee presented a resolution designating as a State Aid Road, Route No. 4, with the Kane-DeKalb County Line, thence north along Kane-DeKalb County Line to the Chicago and Northwestern railroad crossing approximately 3/4 of a mile, giving the village of Maple Park a connection with the Lincoln Highway. The resolution was adopted.

After adjourning for committee work the board reconvened and Supervisor Townsend of Sycamore, presented a report of the special road committee which provided that as soon as the sum of $60,841.26 refund from the State is received the money be used for the purpose of constructing State Aid Road No. 10 and 11, commonly known as the North Road between Sandwich and Somonauk.

Supervisor Robertson then moved that the Clerk be instructed to communicate with the State regarding the refund of money from time to time. Supervisor Wright presented a resolution that the committee appointed Sept. 1922, to secure the right of way required by the State for the State for the construction of hard surfaced roads be also empowered and instructed to secure such right of way as may be required for the construction of hard surface state aid roads and the County Clerk be instructed to issue vouchers on the written instruction of said committee for the payment of the said right of way. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Robertson then moved that the report of the DeKalb Soil Improvement association be adopted. Supervisor Jarboe of DeKalb moved that the chairman appoint the County Clerk and a committee of three to attend the convention at Decatur. The board then adjourned until 1:30 o'clock on Wednesday, June 13th. '23. On motion of Supervisor White of Somonauk the report of the committee on the matter of employing a motorcycle officer to patrol the highways that no action be taken at the present time, was carried.

Supervisor Story then read a report of the committee on education in which report it was stated that the committee had examined the account of Warren Hubbard, County Superintendent of Schools and found them agreeing (Continued on Page 4)

Bulgarian Revolution Alarms All the Other Nations in the Balkans.

M. STAMBOULISKY IS KILLED

Chancellor Cuno Working on Comprehensive Proposal to France—President of China Is Ousted—Ford's Alleged Plan to Throw Election into the House.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HOW would you like to see the presidential election next year thrown into the house of representatives? This may result if Henry Ford carries out his reported plan of running, not as head of a third party, but as an independent with a ticket of electors in each state.

ONCE more the Balkans, the hot-bed of European wars, are ablaze. Bulgaria is in the throes of a civil war; Yugoslavia, Greece and Rumania have rushed troops to the Bulgarian borders, and Hungary has called three classes to the colors so as to seize whatever advantage may be offered. The conflict may be confined within the limits of Bulgaria, or it may spread over much of central Europe and ultimately involve some of the great powers. Reserve officers of the Bulgarian army, with the assistance of the active army, carried out a coup d'etat by which Premier Stamboulsky and his agrarian government were ousted and a new ministry installed headed by Prof. Alexander Zankoff. Some of the ex-ministers were arrested, but Stamboulsky fled and at once began arming and organizing the peasants for the purpose of recapturing Sofia and overthrowing the "usurping" government. Thursday evening he surrendered at Elesdick on condition that his life be spared, but a few hours later he was shot to death. The official report was that armed peasants attacked the automobile in which he was being taken to Slavovizza and that he was killed by a guard while trying to escape. Probably it was the application of the "ley de fuego" so familiar in Mexico.

Stamboulsky had angered the old war party—mostly pro-German—by his persecution of Macedonian autonomists, his attitude at the Lausanne conference, his concessions to Yugoslavia and his failure to obtain a corridor to the sea. The new administration says the actual crisis was brought on by his recent demand on King Boris that he be appointed dictator. After his flight, it is said, huge sums of money were found in his villa. The king is believed to have been privy to the plot by which the government was overthrown.

Though Premier Zankoff's first act was to visit the Yugoslav embassy and give assurance that he would respect the old government's treaties, the Serbs are suspicious that he will encourage and aid the Macedonians in their demands on Yugoslavia, and this probably would bring on hostilities. The Serbian foreign minister is reported to have said that Serbia was willing to force the new Bulgarian government to observe the treaty of Neuilly and the stipulation of the Nish conference, which obligated Stamboulsky to oppose the Macedonian movement. Part of Macedonia is held by Greece, and both Greece and Rumania, as members of the little entente, would be bound to stand with Yugoslavia.

IT WOULD take more than a Philadelphia lawyer to figure out the situation in China and make clear its complexities. After his cabinet quit him, President Li Yuan-hung fled to Tientsin, where soldiers held him prisoner in his train until he formally resigned. The functions of the government at Peking were undertaken after a fashion by representatives of five ministries who requested Premier Chang to return and resume his office. Li was virtually driven from Peking by Feng Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian general."

All the foreign captives of the Chinese bandits have been released and are again with their friends. By the compromise agreement with the outlaws 2,000 of them are to be enrolled in the army and they were paid $85,000.

FOREIGN ships coming to America now enter our ports with only enough liquor for medicinal purposes, in accordance with the decision of the Supreme court and the regulations of the Treasury department. But there is so much dissatisfaction that the government at Washington is trying to find a way out. Already it has been informally suggested that treaties be made with each foreign nation by which the United States would be given the right of search within twelve miles of its coast in return for modification of the dry ship rule. What would be the attitude of other governments toward such a proposition is not known, but the comment of the British press is decidedly unfavorable. Anyway, it is admitted in Washington that this plan does not offer an early solution of the problem, for senate ratification of the treaties would be necessary and the senate does not convene until December.

Mr. LASKER, retiring chairman of the shipping board, received the O. K. of President Harding for the trial trip of the Leviathan with its 600 invited guests, and the Republicans who derided the affair as a useless and expensive junket have fallen silent. Not so the Democrats, however. Their national committee already has fulminated against the trip, and probably it will be kept alive as campaign material. There, if anywhere, lies its inadvisability.

IN HIS final report to the President, Mr. Lasker recommends the creation of eighteen subsidiary corporations, each to control one of the consolidated ship routes, as the basis of government operation of the federal merchant marine in case the efforts to transfer the ships to private operation finally fail. The government must assume complete control, Mr. Lasker declares, the system of operation agents having proved in his opinion a "vicious one" resulting in the placing of its "terminal facilities and the good will of its lines" in outside hands. He expresses the opinion, however, that government operation should always be with a view to ultimate sale to private owners.

The chairman numbered among the material results of his administration: Settlement of claims aggregating $200,000,000 for "12 cents on the dollar" and reduction of current deficit from $16,000,000 to $4,000,000 a month. At the end of the fiscal year, he says, the board will have $125,000,000 on deposit in the treasury against $4,000,000 when he took office. This sum is believed to be sufficient for the board construction financing, the report says.

HENRY FORD, it is now reported, is going to make the race for the presidency all by himself instead of as the head of a third party ticket. He is quoted as saying: "There will be four tickets in the 1924 election: The Republican ticket, the Democratic ticket, a third party ticket and the Henry Ford Independent ticket. No candidate is likely to get a majority of the electoral vote and the election probably will be thrown into the house of representatives."

There are 531 votes in the electoral college, and if the two old parties are fairly evenly matched in the 1924 election and the third or the Ford ticket won one large state or two or three smaller ones no candidate would have a majority and the election would be thrown into the house of representatives of the Sixty-eighth congress. In this case the Constitution provides that the house shall choose the President from the candidates, not exceeding three, receiving the highest number of electoral votes. In making this choice, however, the house is required to vote by states, each state delegation having one vote, determined by a majority of the members of the delegation. A quorum shall be one or more members from each of two-thirds of the states, and "a majority of all states shall be necessary to a choice." Thus at least 25 votes would be required to elect.

It happens that in the next house there are only 23 state delegations whose majority is Republican and 20 state delegations whose majority is Democratic, while five delegations evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats would not be able to cast a vote. To effect an election it would be necessary for members in pivotal state delegations to repudiate party affiliations or absent themselves from the balloting. If there were a deadlock, and Ford were one of the three highest in the electoral college vote, he might conceivably be chosen by the house as a compromise.

Government Budget Shows a Billion Dollars Saved in a Year.

AIMS AT NEW ECONOMIES

Expected Deficit of $823,000,000 for Current Fiscal Year is Turned to a Big Surplus, It is Announced.

Washington, June 19.—A billion-dollar saving of government revenues during the current fiscal year ending June 30 was announced by President Harding and Director of the Budget Lord at a meeting of the business organization of the government.

An anticipated deficit of $823,000,000, faced a year ago, in ordinary government expenditures, has been turned into a $200,000,000 surplus of receipts over expenditures.

Appropriations for the fiscal year 1924 are $3,700,000,000, which is $234,000,000 less than appropriated for 1923 and $7,825,000 less than asked for in the budget submitted to congress last December.

A revised estimate of ordinary receipts for 1924 is $3,638,000,000. Expenditures, including $507,000,000 for public debt reduction, are estimated at $3,683,000,000, indicating a deficit of $30,000,000. President Harding declared that this deficit not only must be wiped out, but the coming year must close with a substantial balance on the other side of the ledger.

For the fiscal year 1925, on which budget estimates soon will be compiled, the President called for a reduction of estimates of $128,000,000 under the 1924 appropriations. He set $1,700,000,000 as the maximum of expenditures, exclusive of reduction of interest on the public debt and the requirements of the Post Office department.

Mount Etna in Eruption; 30,000 Homeless in Flight

Catania, Sicily, June 19.—Thirty thousand persons are homeless and four villages wiped out following the eruption of Mount Etna Sunday, which hurled monster sheets of molten lava skyward. The volcano's red crest was still roaring Monday night. American tourists at the famous resort of Taormina, on the eastern slopes of the mountain, were terrified witnesses of the catastrophe. Five volcanic mouths have opened on the sides of the main cone, vomiting torrents of lava.

French Troops Take Over All Trains in the Ruhr

Essen, June 19.—France took her last step to starve the Ruhr into submission. Raiding the branch lines between Essen and Dortmund, the French troops seized 2,000 freight cars and 170 locomotives. France thus is placed in entire control of the transportation lines in the Ruhr. The railway workers have refused to run trains for France, but have been transporting food in trains which have operated over lines not yet seized by the French.

160,500 German Marks for $1; 100,000,000 Russ Rubles

Berlin, June 19.—Berlin is buzzing with talk of impending outlaw strikes after the mark had suffered a collapse which once during the day saw it selling at 100,500 to the dollar among unofficial dealers. In pre-war days 160,500 marks represented nearly $400,000. In Russia the dollar brings 100,000,000 soviet rubles.

Thousands of Immigrants Hammer at America's Gates

New York, June 19.—With 1,500 immigrants already waiting at Ellis Island to gain admittance under new quotas available July 1, word was brought here on the Anchor liner Cameronia that Glasgow is crowded with passengers, disappointed in June, and waiting almost at the limit of their funds to take the July ships.

U. S. Refunds to Taxpayers $116,000,000 in 11 Months

Washington, June 19.—Progress by the internal revenue bureau in auditing and settling back taxes has run the item of refunds to taxpayers to $116,000,000 for the first eleven months of the present fiscal year. As against this item, however, the government has collected in delinquent taxes and on false returns nearly $400,000,000.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

SMALL BROTHER GOT BUSY

His Afternoon of Play Certainly Proved Embarrassing for Unfortunate Older Sister.

I was soon to be married, writes a correspondent of the Detroit Free Press, and spent a busy day among my collection of old letters, which I wanted to reread before destroying. When I took the large basket down to the basement to consign to the furnace, brother entered vigorous protest. He had just made a fresh fire, and he argued that my papers would ruin it. He agreed to burn the letters that afternoon.

But lack and alas. Small brother and some of his playmates discovered the basket a short time later, and one of them had a brilliant idea. They would play post office. So each took an armful and proceeded to distribute my love letters in the neighbors' post boxes.

We live in a suburb, where every one knows every one else, so I'll leave it to you to picture my embarrassment when the recipients began to return my property.

THRILLED BY RACING TRAINS

Lying in Berth, Traveler Enjoyed Sight of Locomotives in Keen Contest.

A looker-in at the window confesses to a guilty admiration for a train race. He says that in his travels by night he has a habit of looking out of the window. Sometimes he enjoys views of the starlit heavens which he does not obtain in any other way. Once he was astonished by the sight of a brilliant constellation which he had never observed before. He drew a diagram of it and was told that he had discovered Orion. Early one morning on the Grand Trunk he observed a Canadian Pacific train gaining on his own, with the fireman shovelling in coal with unusual energy.

Evidently the Grand Trunk engineer and fireman saw it, too, for the speed of his own train perceptibly increased, and eventually the national locomotive won out. While the Canadian Pacific train was gaining he regarded the race as a foolish and dangerous performance; but as the contest became more even his point of view changed. It seemed like a healthy competition.

There could be no finer race to watch—it beat horse racing and yacht racing all hollow. He could see all the time which was gaining. Then to lie in bed and witness such a contest suggested that combination of luxury and excitement which was one of the marks of the decadence of Rome. That comparison sobered him again—he did not like to contemplate the decline and fall of our civilization through this kind of indulgence. He admits that it is dangerous, but he would like to see another race.

CAN OUTFLY ANY AIRPLANE

Blowing Teal Duck Has Been Known to Travel at Rate of 300 Miles an Hour.

It is a mistake to suppose that an airplane going at the rate of 248.5 miles per hour could overtake the fastest bird. The blowing teal duck flies in excess of that speed, and has been known to go as fast as 300 miles per hour with an inconsiderable wind in its favor. The hawk is perhaps even faster, though capable of only short bursts of speed. Duck hawks have been known to overtake and catch greenwing teal in the air, and possibly they also catch an occasional bluewing. The rush of the duck hawk, if the observer is fortunate enough to see it close up, as concealed duck hunters sometimes are, is perhaps as incredible a phenomenon as there is in nature. It was with hawk that falconry was developed, and it is likely that all birds of prey are capable of high speed.

Whether there is any winged creature as fast as the blowing teal is something bird observers would like to know. The bluewing, long of wing and slender of body, a veritable greyhound of the skies, is built for speed. It no doubt can fly at top speed for hours at a time, and it is probable that many bluewing pass in a single day or night from the breeding grounds of the North to those of southern waters on which to winter.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Words With Many Meanings.

In some languages the same sound is used for ever so many different things. Even in English there are words and sounds with more than one meaning. The word "box," for instance, has at least six meanings. "Glass" does duty not only for a very useful vitreous substance, but also for a mirror, a drinking vessel, a barometer, a telescope, and several other things. Or think of the various senses in which the word "case" is used. You can easily recall many English words which have a double or a triple meaning—to say nothing of words which are spelled differently and mean quite different things, yet have the same sound.

In Japanese, such pitfalls for foreigners are far more numerous and bewildering. The sound ki, for example, has no less than 72 different meanings! In writing, each of these 72 words has a distinct Japanese character all to itself, yet all are pronounced ki.

Lace Announces Visit of Stork.

So fond are Hollanders of their children that when a new baby arrives the parents want to tell the whole world about it. So they hang out a dainty bit of lace on the front door, so neighbors and friends may know the good news. If the baby is a girl, the lace has a background of bright tinsel. If it is a boy, a pink background is used with the lace.

The lace is not only an announcement. It is also an invitation for the neighbors to call. All bring presents. These visits continue for several days after the baby is born.

Father treats the "boys" of the crowd to beer in large steins, while the women drink coffee in honor of the new heir.

Predatory Wasp.

A convict, who wanted more than the regular prison fare, once made a complaint in rather ingenious terms. An inspector entered this man's cell and found it very hot and stuffy.

"Why have you your ventilator closed?" he asked.

The prisoner answered plaintively: "Well, Inspector, the last time I had the ventilator open a wasp flew in, you see, and carried off my dinner while my back was turned."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

Wavelength and Kilocycles

The average radio listener is left in the dark when he is told that a certain station is sending on so many kilocycles per second. The Class "B" stations have been assigned their wavelength on the basis of kilocycles. You may have wondered why the wavelengths are so uneven instead of running along smoothly with a zero on the end. The kilocycles have a zero on the end and in most cases as will be seen later the wavelength is quite uneven.

Probably the easiest way to understand wavelength and kilocycles is to give an illustration which you do understand. Suppose you take a number of chips of wood while walking along a stream. You now throw them into the stream, which is running at the speed of ten feet a minute, all at the same place. They are thrown in at one minute intervals. At the end of the first minute the second chip strikes the water while the first is ten feet away from the first. As you keep throwing these chips into the stream each is ten feet from the preceding one.

Let us call the ten feet distance between the chips the wavelength; the minute intervals the frequency. If you now throw the chips in at half minute intervals, the distance between each chip will be five feet. The wavelength is now five feet and the frequency two per minute.

Now let us take a church bell which is swinging back and forth, let us say at second intervals. We shall call the swinging rate the frequency. If you could hear this bell from some distance, say a mile, you would hear the toll which had occurred about five seconds before with the last four still traveling toward you at about 1125 feet per second. If we should be able to see these tolls traveling toward us they would be at 1125 feet intervals. This interval is called the wavelength. If the bell tolls faster the interval will be less and therefore the wavelength will be less.

If we wish to show this swinging back and forth graphically we should call the point at which the bell stands when not ringing, zero. When the bell swings to one side we draw a curved line upward. When the bell goes toward its resting place we complete the curved line to zero. When the bell swings to the other side we draw from the zero line downward a curved line. To show the swinging to its original position we curve our line upward to the zero line. Our line is now in the form of an "S" lying down with the zero line thru its center. For each back and forth or alternation we draw such an "S". We shall then have a wave line.

This same method is used in wireless to show current which vibrates or rather alternates, that is one moment it travels one way and the next moment the opposite direction, in the antenna-ground circuit. The number of alternations per second of the frequency is expressed in kilocycles (kc.) per second. Kilo means thousand; cycle, alternation. Therefore, kilocycle means a thousand cycles. To find the wavelength of a certain station divide the number of kilocycles into 300,000, exactly 299,820, the speed of electricity in kilometers which is 300,000,000 meters (a meter is about forty inches in length). It may be seen the higher the frequency the lower the wavelength and vice versa. To find the number of kilocycles when the wavelength is given divide the number of meters wave-length into 300,000.

A station sending on 130 meters operates at 2300 kilocycles per second; on 200 meters, 1500 kilocycles; on 600 meters, 500 kilocycles; 232 meters, 1350; on 213 meters, 1300 kilocycles. It is seen that in the last two that the kilocycles end in zero and the wavelengths are uneven. It is in many cases that when the number of kilocycles ends in zero that the wavelength will also. As the division into 300,000 does not always give an even answer.

In music we call the frequency the pitch. The higher the pitch the higher the note. The high pitched note vibrates faster than the low pitched. Each note has its wavelength (depending on its pitch, found by dividing the distance sound travels in air by the pitch expressed in number of vibrations per second.

The same fact applies to radio. We find the wavelength by dividing the distance the signal travels in one second, which is always constant, by the number of alternations per second.

Suppose you have a variocoupler which will tune as high as 600 meters. How far can you receive with that variocoupler? To receive from California what longer wavelength must you have. These questions seem to be quite popular but they are utterly erroneous, as wavelength does not mean, in any case, how far your set can receive. Which note on a piano is the loudest, the low pitched or the high pitched? The one you play the loudest. You may play one hard and the other softly in which case the former's sound travels the farthest. The same in radio, a low wavelength station may have more power to radiate the wave than the high wavelength station and will consequently send farther. If two violins play together they must be in tune otherwise they produce discord and in some cases the tone will counteract each other and produce silence. In radio you must tune in harmony that is to the same wavelength as the transmitting station. Wavelength is the distance between each cycle or alternation as it travels thru the ether no matter how far they travel. If you wish to send your list of stations you have heard or have any comment address to F. O. G., The Republican.

The Crude Rubber Monopoly weakened when it came into contact with aroused public sentiment. The press of the country today reflects the determination of the American motorist that tire prices shall stay at a reasonable level—and that America must produce its own rubber.

Firestone

CUTS TIRE PRICES
10 PER CENT
EFFECTIVE JUNE 11

We announce a 10 per cent reduction in tires and tubes effective June 11. The lowered cost of crude rubber and the special Firestone manufacturing and distribution advantages make this possible.

Firestone factories are organized on a basis of large volume and effective production. Costs are down but quality is at its peak. Stockholder workmen are daily building many thousands of Gum-Dipped Cords—the best tire Firestone ever produced and, we believe, the leader on the market today.

Firestone Cords took the first four places and eight of the ten money positions in the Indianapolis sweepstakes, May 30th, without a single tire failure.

Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords have set new standards in mileage, traction, comfort and safety. Car owners have expressed their approval of the extra value in Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords by increasing their purchases 194 per cent in the past six months.

We have replaced many expensive branches with warehouses. We have today 108 distributing points which are delivering Firestone tires to the consumer at the lowest cost in our history.

Follow the tide of economical tire buying—equip with Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords—and learn what Most Miles per Dollar means to you today.

MET LAST WEEK

In every respect with his report submitted to the committee on education the report was approved.

Supervisor Townsend moved that the special committee appointed to build the Pat Smith Bridge in Franklin Township, be discharged as the bridge is now located on a State Aid Road. The motion carried.

Mr. Neyward presented report on pauper claims and Mr. Horan on claim other than pauper which were approved.

Supervisor Heyward presented a resolution calling attention to the serious threatened danger from the spread of Canada Thistles and requested the board to notify each Commissioner of Canada Thistles to proceed with diligence to the end that Canada Thistles may be eradicated and to prevent their spread and make complaint against any person who refuses to co-operate with the commissioner and render such assistance as may be necessary. The resolution was adopted.

Supervisor Wright then presented a list of Judges of Election which list was adopted.

A resolution was presented by Supervisor Hayward authorizing the regular highway committee to proceed with the construction of the Pat Smith bridge at Franklin Township this county. The committee is authorized to secure bids, enter into contracts, approve bills for labor and material and the clerk is directed to pay such bills out of the sum of $20,000 heretofore appropriated and for any excess above the $20,000, the clerk is authorized to draw on the general funds of DeKalb County. The resolution was adopted.

The Board on motion of Mr. Jarboe adjourned until September.

Two Carloads of Hogs Bring Within 5 cents of Top Market

The Genoa Shipper's Association shipped two carloads of hogs this week to the Chicago market which brought within 5 cents of the top price, which is very good says Mr.

Patterson, manager of the association. He also states that contrary to some reports, expenses per hundred pounds for shipping is from 29c to 50c and this includes all expenses. In fact there hasn't been a time yet since the association was organized that expenses have run over 45 cents per hundred weight.

MAN, MOONSHINE—WILD MAN
Sheriff Crawford was called to Genoa Tuesday to take into custody one Dan Countryman who lives north of town about two miles. It seems that Dan had imbibed too freely in the forbidden beverage and thereupon threatened the lives of neighbors. At this juncture it was thought best to call the sheriff and have him locked in the county bastille.

The word booze has found its way into the dictionaries, although some of them mark it "colloquial." Its derivation is probably from the German word bausen, which means to drink, therefore booze might be regarded as a word adapted from a foreign language rather than as a slang word.

WHEN THE WORLD WAS YOUNG

Remarkable Animals Roamed Plains of What is Now the Dominion of Canada.

The high-browed paleontologists have been rigging up the skeletons of a mass of duck-billed dinosaurs in the Calgary region in British Columbia. The animals were planted before the Rockies had even begun to sprout. The country was a lushy plain, with the animals and balmy climate of the tropics. It was not until the Rockies had grown into good-sized hills that the country became known for its blizzards. In the good old days the duck-billed dinosaur was a hippopotamus with the head of a pelican and the hind legs of an ostrich. If he didn't look so much like a crocodile he might have been mistaken for an elephant. He had three toes, but could swim like a swan. A husky dinosaur was likely to be some 30 or 40 feet over all and would tilt the scales for 8,000 to 10,000 pounds. He might use a Kodlak bear for a plaything. In those days the fight fans would have loved to see a mix-up between a duck-billed dinosaur and one of the sub-toothed tigers from the La Brea pits. That would make bull-fighting seem like a handkerchief flirtation. We ought to put in a requisition for a goose-faced Iguanodon to add to our collection at Exposition park. Maybe we can fix up a trade with the Calgary folk and give them a slightly damaged methatherium for the venerable bones of a dinosaur.—Los Angeles Times.

EARLY DAYS OF RAILROADING

Vallandigham Writes of Some of the Primitive Methods of New Means of Transportation.

Edward Noble Vallandigham, in his book, "Delaware and the Eastern Shore," gives an interesting sidelight on railroading in 1833. In a chapter dealing with transportation between the Delaware river and the Chesapeake bay, he says, according to the Indianapolis News: "Steamboats soon replaced the sailing packets, but it was not until 1833, after years of legislation in both states, that the New Castle & Frenchtown railroad, traces of which still show in green bits of embankment, improved the land route. A primitive locomotive engine, imported from England, was with difficulty tinkered into going order to draw tiny coaches on the rails of strap iron, pegged to wooden sleepers, which in turn were pegged to stones set deep in the ground. The speed of ten miles an hour was held to be perilous. Baskets hoisted on tall poles notified the line ahead that the train was coming. From time to time train hands, detecting a rail with end turned up where a spike had loosened, got down and secured the threatening 'snake head.' According to the original charter the rate for passengers was 3 cents a mile, a tariff later raised to 10 cents because the cost of building and maintaining the line had been underestimated. Each passenger could carry 100 pounds of baggage free of charge."

Scourge Known as "Black Death." The name "Black Death" was given to the epidemic that devastated Asia and Europe in the Fourteenth century. It was so called from the black spots that appeared upon the skin at the time of death, and was probably a highly malignant form of typhus fever. The scourge ravaged China in 1333-1347 and carried off 13,000,000 of its inhabitants, and 24,000,000 in other parts of Asia.

The Black Death first appeared in Europe in 1342, but it was not until August, 1348, that it reached England. In London 100,000 persons died of it, and in Norwich over 60,000. It is estimated that the victims of this one visitation numbered from one-third to one-half of the entire population of England, which, at that time was about 5,000,000. The Black Death reappeared in Europe in 1380, 1373 and 1382. It is said to have carried off in all its visitations more than 90,000,000 Europeans.

Till We Meet Again.

In her "Glimpses of Authors" Miss Caroline Ticknor of the same Ticknor family that has so long been associated with publishing, tells of many delightful passages between authors and the ancient firm of Messrs. Ticknor & Fields. A business correspondence with Mark Twain must have been most enjoyable for his publisher. One letter sent to him closed with hope that: "God be with you, for I cannot. Yours, B. H. Ticknor." Twain returned the sheet, at the foot of which he had inscribed the words: "Dear Ticknor: He didn't come. It has been a great disappointment to the whole family. Hereafter, appoint a party we can depend on. Yours, Mark."

Tattooers "Go on Strike."

In spite of missionary teachings, the men of Samoa still tattoo their bodies from the hips down to the knees. A tattooer's profession is very lucrative. His instruments resemble combs, and are made of human bones of different sizes. The operation takes from two to three months, during which time the patient remains in some retired place. All this time the relatives of the young person bring mats, money and food, but if the quantity does not suit the tattooer, he "goes on strike," refusing to proceed until sufficient liberality is displayed. The requisite gifts are sure to be brought, for no Samoan could endure going half tattooed.

CONTRACT WENT TO GERMANS

Americans Passed Up Opportunity Offered Them of Building the Bagdad Railway.

In his "Under Four Administrations" Oscar S. Straus tells us how near the famous Bagdad railway came to being built by Americans instead of Germans. It seems that in the year 1888 considerable pressure was brought by the Germans on the Turkish government for a railway concession to the Persian gulf. The grand vizier called upon the American ambassador, asking him to interest some Americans in this railroad project. The most favorable terms would be given to a group of Americans because then the project would be free from the political complications which would (and did) ensue if a road through the heart of the empire was controlled by Germany. William K. Vanderbilt arrived at this opportune moment in his yacht. At the sultan's request Mr. Straus tried to interest Vanderbilt in the railroad and introduced him to the grand vizier. But he was on pleasure bent and not inclined to take up more cares and burdens. Carl Schurz and Henry Villard were the next two Americans to whom Mr. Straus appealed, but soon afterward the porte gave the matter over to a group of German and French bankers, and the famous Bagdad railway was not built by Americans.

Old Roadway Restored.

The old Coudersport pike, one of the historic highways of the eastern part of the country, running from Williamsport to Coudersport, Pa., was a very popular highway when it was opened in 1820 and proved to be a very important outlet to the Northwest, but after years it was permitted to go into decay and was little used except by persons living along its length. It has been recently rebuilt and placed in first-class condition, and as it passes through beautiful country, will undoubtedly prove attractive to automobile parties. At one point there is a water tower on an eminence, and from this it is possible to view a region which is drained by three great watersheds. There is the Genesee river, which flows into the Gulf of St. Lawrence; the Susquehanna, which flows into the Chesapeake bay, and innumerable small streams which ultimately find their way into the Allegheny river and thence into the Gulf of Mexico.

Avoid Growth of Suspicion.

It was St. Augustine who defined suspicion—that grim mistrust which first tortures and then kills all that is finest in our nature—as "the poison of true friendship." For whether this be stricken down suddenly, or dies by inches after months of agony, suspicion will destroy it in the end as surely as a biting December frost kills the last lingering blossom in a garden. And whether it creeps into the minds of statesmen intent upon the saving of a war-racked world, or chills the heart of the humblest among us, it brings confusion and desolation, spoiling, destroying, cursing. No words we could find would be too strong to point it out as a common danger; yet so prevalent is it that, vice though it be, it often passes unrecognized.—Exchange.

CHAUTAUQUA ORATOR

HON. W. C. McCULLOUGH
"THE Challenge to Democracy," in which both political and industrial problems which America is facing are discussed in an able manner, is a lecture which will win the commendation of every thinking man and woman of our community. The logic of the discourse, the earnestness of its presentation and the sincerity of the man delivering it, will make this lecture one of the best of the entire Chautauqua program. Mr. McCullough, a prominent attorney at Cleveland, Ohio, has always been interested in and made a study of the relationship of employer and employee and of the fundamentals underlying popular government. Great employers of labor have enthusiastically endorsed Mr. McCullough's address when he has delivered it to large industrial gatherings. Hear him on the third afternoon of the Chautauqua.

The Custard Cup

By
FLORENCE BINGHAM LIVINGSTON

Copyright by George H. Doran Company

"CARED!"

SYNOPSIS—Living in a barn, converted into a dwelling, Mrs. Penfield is manager of an apartment building known as "The Custard Cup," originally "Cluster Court." Her income is derived from laundry work, her chief patron being a Mrs. Horatius Weatherstone, whom she has never seen. Living with her are "Crink" and "Thad," homeless small boys whom she has adopted. They call her "Penzie." Thad tells Penzie a strange man was inquiring for her under her maiden name. A tenant, Mrs. Gusnie Bosley, induces Penzie to take charge of a package, which she does with some misgivings. Searching a refuse dump for things which might be of value, Crink, veteran at the game, encounters a small girl, Lettie, who proves a foeman worthy of his steel. He takes her to Penzie, and Lettie gets adopted into the family. The stranger proves to be Mrs. Penfield's uncle Jerry. He announces he is going to remain in the vicinity of The Custard Cup. Uncle Jerry arranges to occupy the loft above Mrs. Penfield's abode. Uncle Jerry meets Prudence Hapgood, no longer young, but attractive, and the two appear to "hit it off" well. Lorene Perry, young friend of Penzie's, tells her of her engagement to Dick Chase, also a mutual friend. Friendship developing between Uncle Jerry and Frank Bosley, husband of Gusnie, worries Penzie.

"Yes, they keep me going." "So you see what I mean. I'm all alone—all alone."

"Yes." "All alone!" repeated Mrs. Sanders, her voice rising to a shriek. "Oh, it's awful. I never been alone before. I hadn't told you how 'twas, but—two years ago—I lost my husband—my mother—then my brother. It left me alone—absolutely alone. I don't get over it. Sometimes—" Her words sank. "Sometimes I think I shall go crazy—that I may end it—"

Mrs. Penfield regarded her calmly. "Guess most of us feel that way, first or last. But it's only selfishness talking to us. Easiest thing we can do is to go."

Mrs. Sanders stopped in her pacing. The keenness of her astonishment drove the tension out of her bearing; she was suddenly limp from the shifting of emotion.

"You!" she exclaimed. Mrs. Penfield gave her a smile that had nothing in it of amusement. "I," she confirmed. "My dear, you didn't s'pose, did you, that the Lord had singled you out to see if He could break a string in your heart?" "But you! I'd never thought as you—"

Mrs. Penfield's face settled into lines that Mrs. Sanders had not seen before—into the rigidity of forced control. "I don't speak of it," she said jerkily. "I can't. It hurts more. Ain't nobody here knows. . . . I had a pretty home once. My—my husband was a contractor; he had a fine income. We had three children." The words trailed into silence. Her brown eyes, with lengthened focus, were fixed on the wall beyond her hostess, as if she were seeing pictures out of a past that had receded but not grown dim.

Presently she went on, her voice lower, her breathing uneven, speaking more to herself than to another, so far was she withdrawn from the present. "We were happy—happy—until— There was an epidemic. The worst of it had passed. We had escaped; we thought we were safe. The relief from anxiety made us more thankful, happier, than ever. One night we—we had a jolly supper—the five of us, at the round table. There was green peas and custard pie. Little David loved to see it tremble. . . . He was three. . . . His curls were like twists of sunshine, and his eyes were the deepest blue. . . . And Katherine and Bobby— They were all so well, rosy, full of laughter! But—that very night—first one and then another. . . . In the morning they were—gone. Think of it! Before day broke, they were—all my babies—gone!" Her eyes lifted; the lines of her face were twisted in agony. She had forgotten her surroundings, re-living those hideous hours.

"Oh, my dear," said Mrs. Sanders softly, "how did you ever stand it?" "Stand it?" Mrs. Penfield took up the words with momentary vehemence. "I didn't stand it. I went mad—raving mad. Ev'rything I'd ever believed in, went down." Her sad eyes came back to her neighbor's face. Mrs. Sanders' gaze had lifted to Mrs. Penfield's heavy hair, nearly white, strangely out of keeping with the look of youth that lingered in her features and expression.

Mrs. Penfield caught the glance. "It turned that night," she said indifferently. "It didn't matter."

"And you—your—"

Mrs. Penfield's lips worked. "It killed my husband," she replied slowly. "Not at once, but—he never got over it. He was devoted to his family. He hadn't been well. . . . He ran down fast. We sold—traveled—ev'rything. . . . It didn't help. In six months—"

"Oh, my dear!" repeated Mrs. Sanders pityingly. "That was when—"

Mrs. Penfield nodded. "It would have been easy—so easy—to go, too. The hard thing was to stay—in an empty world. Nothing—"

"I—I know how you felt. You—you cared."

"Cared!" Mrs. Penfield's tone shook the word to shreds and cast it aside. "Part of me died—when he died. I hadn't never been the same. I try—but I can't—"

Her voice broke. She wheeled swiftly and went over to the window. Standing with her back to the room, she stared into the meshes of the muslin curtain, beating the casing with her closed hand. Those blows, the outlet of long-suppressed torture, pounded into the silence of the room with uncanny contrast, as of physical violence upon some sacred stillness.

Mrs. Sanders scarcely breathed, awed into motionlessness by the depth of the anguish which she had unwittingly stirred. Her own grief was swallowed up in the grief of another.

At last Mrs. Penfield turned and came back. She walked firmly. Her eyes were brimming with tears, but there was a smile on her lips.

"I'm sorry I went to pieces so," she apologized. "I aim to keep my will power pressed down on my feelings; but if I take it off the least bit, they boil up as furious as ever. You mustn't think I'm complaining. I did for a spell, but I learned better."

"Sit down," begged Mrs. Sanders. "I want to tell you how I hate myself for being so selfish. I wouldn't have hurt you for the world. But I never dreamed—you're always so cheerful!"

"I'm cheerful, yes," acknowledged Mrs. Penfield sadly, "but once I was happy. I tell you what, Mrs. Sanders, you can be suspicious of the feeder that's cheerful. He's been through something. Happiness is a thing that bubbles up naturally before you've had much experience, but cheerfulness is a thing you've reasoned out and stand by 'cause you believe it's right. There's a kind of happiness that never comes back, once it's gone."

They sat in silence for a moment, in closer communion than words had ever brought them.

"I know now," said Mrs. Sanders gently, "why you took those children."

An irradiated expression came into Mrs. Penfield's face. "Yes, you know now, I didn't do it at first. I got a position as housekeeper in a wealthy family. But I couldn't be satisfied, just supporting myself. I had to make a home again—and for somebody that didn't have one. Way it is, when you lose them that's dear to you, it kind o' opens your heart wider, and you got more love for more folks—stead of less. When I had children of my own, I thought 'bout them; but when I—lost 'em, I began to think 'bout all the children, ev'rywhere—specially those that was handicapped and forlorn and didn't have a chance to grow up true to the souls that the Lord gave 'em. I came to see that I'd got to make a home for some of 'em, so I gave up my position and hunted up Crink, and then Thad. I can't earn so much money this way and it costs more to live, but I feel easier."

The hysterical frenzy had died out of Mrs. Sanders' expression. She looked as if she had laid hold of peace and poise. She took Mrs. Penfield's hand in both her own.

"You will always be my friend," she said simply. "You've made me see how wrong I been going—letting my feelings collect inside of me till they fermented. Only way to keep

'em sweet is to let 'em out—work 'em off for somebody else. I'm going to try—and whenever I feel—that way again, I'll think 'bout how much more unhappy you are—"

"No," interposed Mrs. Penfield quickly, "you're not to think I'm unhappy. I'm not—now. Mebbe I seemed to say I was, but 'twasn't what I meant. I'm happy—but it's a different kind of happiness. That's all."

"Yes," breathed Mrs. Sanders, "that's—that's all."

CHAPTER IX

Where Fli Caesar Led.

Several weeks had passed, and the pink sweater had not been worn. It was sometimes looked at, reposing in a paper wrapper in the cleanest apple box—Monday morning with high hope, Saturday night with black despair.

Once Lettie had picked her way gingerly through five days of behavior that might have been recorded with a gold pen on a pearly page—and then, presto! Humanity! Imps! Cataclysm! Once her impetuous feet had trod the narrow way up and including Saturday noon. The goal was in sight. Miss Lettie staged a war-dance in premature celebration, caught her ragged sleeve in the handle of a saucepan on the stove, dragged it over the edge, deluged the kitchen with precious soup stock, soaking indelibly into the rough board floor.

Lettie's contrition was always immediate and sincere, but it lacked that element of projection which might have fastened into the future and insured better things. Nevertheless, it was a difficult problem to discipline her. She had an unfailing perception of right and wrong, and knew at any moment which side of the fence she was on. She never denied; she never ran away; she never excused. On the contrary, she stood by in the thickest of the disaster, often very thick indeed, and rent the atmosphere with shrill confession: "I done it, I done it."

It was the purest futility to call her attention to the fact that she had sinned; Lettie forestalled such action by her lightning metamorphosis into the sinner who repenteth and is therefore entitled to the rejoicing of the beholder. But to sit down and rejoice over a little girl who has just wrecked half of your kitchen, obviously carries with it implications which cannot be sponsored; and in consequence Mrs. Penfield was often merely a silent and puzzled spectator, standing by while Lettie put herself through the stages of revulsion, anathema, and self-inflicted penance. Never did Mrs. Penfield devise punishments half so drastic as those which were suggested by Lettie, who delighted in methods of self-flagellation that should translate the frenzy of wrong-doing into a frenzy of torture.

Opposed to all rules was Mrs. Penfield's attitude of neutrality, as of a detached onlooker. "You're too easy," said Mrs. Wopple. "You'll be sorry when it's too late," declared Mrs. Caterbox. But Mrs. Penfield only smiled at them gently, with a far-away look in her eyes which they resented, because it showed that their carefully pointed criticism had failed of its aim.

"I'd punish her if she'd give me a chance," she admitted, "but when she does it herself, I can't—'bout heaping it up double. Besides, if a feller's conscience has stirred up a fight in his own soul, anybody that takes a hand from the outside is only putting himself on record as a meddling."

So the fight was Lettie's, and thus far the victory had hovered in suspension, occasionally glimpsed, but elusive and inclined to fly high.

Ironically enough, the greatest obstacle in her path of virtue was Mrs. Wopple. He acted as a reagent, drawing out and precipitating all the worst in her nature.

By a curious instinct, they were both conscious of a fundamental antagonism, complicated on Mr. Wopple's side by the irresistible desire to start something. Turned loose in a menagerie, he would have entertained himself by thrusting sticks between the bars of cages, that he might gloat over the torture of animals deprived of the power to give him the retaliation he deserved. He was naturally a balter of beasts; and in Lettie he found a most satisfactory subject for his ingenuity.

"I hate him," declared Lettie, stamping her foot. "I hate him." She eased her armful of driftwood down on the accumulation in the corner and straightened up with a jerk, her black eyes flashing.

Mrs. Penfield, salting the stew for lunch, smiled at her composedly. "That's one thing you got to get over, Lettie."

"I ain't goin' to have my yard all littered up."

PLAITS IN SHEER FABRICS; CLEVER COSTUME JEWELRY

GIFTED designers have the knack of seizing upon some outstanding item in prevailing styles and using it with originality and superb effect. The exercise of this happy faculty appears in the simple and pretty frock for summer afternoons shown here, in which plaits have been made the most of. Fashion just now is enchanted with plaittings.

The simple, youthful and altogether delightful frock pictured is made of blue and white printed voile, and any combs, bracelets, brooches and girdles play a part in the ensemble.

Costume jewelry, not being made of precious metals and stones, is inexpensive and must be worn with discretion, one or two pieces at a time. Many materials are used for making it and the artistry shown in design, cleverness in workmanship with enchanting color and sparkle, give it real value.

Earrings were neglected for many years but since their revival, the

Auction Sale of Pure Bred and High-Grade Registered MILK GOATS

On Saturday, June 30, 1923, at Delevan Lake, Wis.
CHARLES A. STEVENS' Summer home—North Shore of Lake

Chas. A. Stevens will place on sale over 100 pure bred and high-grade registered milk goats, including a fine selection of pure bred bucks and does in mature animals and kids of the famous Toggenburg breed. Also a few ultra choice Nubians. Every animal will have a price (a placard or tag) placed upon it about 10 a.m. About 2:30 p. m. all not sold at private sale will be withdrawn and sold at auction to the highest bidder without reserve.

Many of you who read this have sought recently to buy these kids or goats and have been told that none would be sold until the day of the sale. The reason was that we did not want to sell the kids away from their mothers, nor the does away from the kids, until the kids were old enough to be separated. Even at this late date of June 30 we will be obliged to sell a few does with their kids.

If interested in starting a herd of Milk Goats don't fail to attend this sale and secure the right kind of Foundation Stock. Official registration certificate and pedigree furnished with every animal. Come prepared to pay for the animals you buy and take them away with you. You can very conveniently carry several of them in a small car—they like automobile riding.

Have pure and better milk for your children! Many homes are so situated that they can conveniently keep a goat; but not a cow. In ten years the milk goat will be to the milk industry what the Ford is to the automobile industry. A milk goat is health insurance for your youngsters.

A complete list, giving the registered names and numbers of all these animals, showing also the sire and dam, with their register numbers, the date born from which you can calculate the age, with the price at which each animal will be placed on private sale for three hours before the auction.
