FOR CLEAN-UP WEEK

Supt. Taylor Suggests Some Plans for a Cleaner, Healthier Genoa

THE AUDIENCE SHOWS INTEREST

Many Hear C. D. Schoonmaker Tell the Secret of Health Happiness and Care of Body

In view of the fact that the meeting at the Auditorium was for the benefit of the community and "free", the place should have been packed, but in spite of other attractions on the same evening, there was a goodly attendance. The musical part of the program was furnished by the High School Girls' Glee Club and the High School Orchestra, and the selections received hearty applause from the audience. Misses Meredith Taylor and Marjorie Hemenway pleased the audience with a piano duet and an encore. Miss Laura Crawford, who has a wonderfully sweet voice, of unusual volume and wide range, elicited applause with a solo. With proper and timely training Miss Crawford will be heard from in musical circles in the future.

Superintendent Taylor of the public school, speaks with conviction regarding the needs of the city in the matter of sanitation and proposed plans in connection with the work of cleaning up that should meet with the approval and support of every citizen. When any movement is started and a clean-up day or week is inaugurated, every citizen should consider himself or herself a committee of one to assist in the good work. As Mr. Taylor stated, a clean city means a healthy city. If there are no breeding places for flies and other insects, the greatest danger of contagious disease is eliminated.

C. D. Schoonmaker devoted a half hour or more of telling the audience the secret of health pleasure and health happiness. He told his story of "coming back" physically and mentally and pointed out that man or woman, unless in a helpless condition, can regain strength and health thru systematic exercise. In spite of twelve years of dyspepsia and other years of great nervous strain the speaker makes the statement that he is in better physical and mental condition today than at any time in his life, and proves every statement made. This was all accomplished thru systematic exercising without apparatus or weights of any kind. Before starting to "come back," the speaker said (and proves his statement) that his chest measurement was 37 inches and waist 36, while the chest expansion was a little more than two inches. Today he shows a chest measurement of 42 inches and places a tape around his waist at 28 inches. The chest expansion is six or seven inches. Every muscle in his body can be flexed in a flash and become like a band of steel while the nervous system and every organ in the body is in perfect condition.

Mr. Schoonmaker intends to engage in the physical culture business and will start his first class in Genoa. Those desiring to get the benefit of this wonderful system should enroll at once. Either call at the office or make your desire known at any time or place, either by phone or letter. If you want to get all that life has to offer in real health pleasure, get into the band wagon with the others. The terms will be reasonable and the guarantee as to results, absolute. Classes for either sex will be formed and there is no age limit. It is good for the young boy and girl as well as the man or woman along in years.

Several have already enrolled and the best time for anyone to take up this work (which is really a pleasure) is with the rest of the class. First instructions will be given on Tuesday of next week. Students will be notified by phone or card of the hour and place of meeting. Remember, results are absolutely guaranteed. If a student finds after three lessons that he or she is receiving no benefit, the money advanced will be refunded.

DR. WRIGHT HONORED

Popular DeKalb Doctor a Delegate to National Convention

DeKalb Chronicle: H. G. Wright's efforts in the interest of good roads for the state of Illinois have been recognized by Governor F. O. Lowden, when the local man today received notification from the governor that he was appointed as a delegate to the national convention.

Dr. Wright received a letter from Governor Lowden this morning informing him that he had been named as one of the state delegates from Illinois to the convention of the United States Good Roads association. The national convention in the interest of good roads, is probably the biggest meeting of its kind to be held in the United States and the local man feels highly honored at the appointment at the hands of the governor.

The convention is to be held at Birmingham, Alabama from April 17 to 21, and will be attended by delegates from every state in the union.

A Word to the Wise

There are always some people who are trying to make trouble with their neighbors and thus cause trouble with others.

Such a person is the party who took such great interest in canvassing the township from house to house prior to the election on Tuesday, April 3rd, 1917, in Kingston township.

The man above referred to is judging others by himself when he tries to prove that the Park Commissioners have cheated the township out of $1100.00. One of the commissioners has taken the books, containing a record of all the money received and paid out, to this party and asked him to examine them carefully, to prove to him that he was misinformed. But he refused to accept the statements as they stand on the book, plainly showing every dollar received and just for what expended.

That the people of the township may know for themselves, as they have a right to know, the facts regarding this matter we submit the statement of the cashier of the Kingston State Bank who has received from the county treasurer all the money paid to the township for park purposes and has paid by check all bills for park purposes. The said cashier makes the following statement over a notary public's seal.

Wm. Aves.
J. H. Uplinger, Sec.
John Vosberg.

This is to certify that I have examined the treasurer's book of the Kingston Township Park Commissioners and I find said book to be a correct account of all money received by them from sale of bonds and from taxes, and of the expenditure of the same, together with the balance which should be on hand.

L. H. Branch.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 9th day of April, 1917.

Domestic Science Club

The New Domestic Science Club met at the home of Mrs. Martin Anderson Wednesday, April 4. The meeting was opened by roll call. "Household Suggestions and Conventions," Mrs. Lizzie Echtenbach gave a very interesting paper on "Eggs as Food." Mrs. Jessie Rowen read a paper on "Intemperance in Eating." After a discussion on dress, the club was invited to the dining room where a lovely luncheon was served by the hostesses, Mesdames Colton, Furr and Anderson. The table was decorated with easter rabbits and flowers and the house was tastily decorated with green and white, the club colors. Several visitors were present and all counted it a very interesting and helpful meeting.

N. H. Stanley Elected

Nabum Brozman, supervisor from Riley for many years, was defeated for re-election by the narrow margin of seven votes. Newton Stanley was the victorious candidate for supervisor, his total vote being 109 to 102 for Mr. Brozman. For highway commissioner John Stockwell defeated Floyd Rowen by a vote of 118 to 80. Other officials elected in Riley township are H. H. Barber and Olaf Carlson, justices of the peace; Clyde Corson and Chas. Ratfield, constables, and Geo. Dalby, school trustee.

SWAT THOSE FLIES

Carriers of Typhoid Germs Should Be Eliminated in the Spring

SIMPLE METHODS OF PREVENTION

There are Certain Cleanly Habits that the Fly Will not Tolerate—He Wants Filth

Kill at once every fly you can and burn his body. Observers say that there are many reasons to believe there will be more flies this season than for a number of years.

The killing of just one fly now means there will be billions and trillions less next summer.

Clean up your own premises; see and insist that your neighbors do likewise.

Especially clean "out-of-the-way places," and every nook and cranny. Flies will not go where there is nothing to eat, and their principal diet is too filthy to mention.

The fly is the tie that binds the unhealthy to the healthy!

The fly has no equal as a germ "carrier"; as many as five hundred million germs have been found in and on the body of a single fly.

It is definitely known that the fly is the "carrier" of the germs of typhoid fever; it is widely believed that it is also the "carrier" of other diseases, including possibly infantile paralysis.

The very presence of a fly is a signal and notification that a housekeeper is uncleanly and inefficient.

Do not wait until the insects begin to pester; anticipate the annoyance. April, May and June are the best months to conduct an antidy campaign.

The farming and suburban districts provide ideal breeding places, and the new born flies do not remain at their birth place but migrate, using railroads and other means of transportation, to towns and cities.

Kill flies and save lives. Simple Preventives. Any odor pleasing to man is offensive to the fly and vice versa, and will drive them away.

Take five cents' worth of oil of lavender, mix with the same quantity of water, put it in a common glass atomizer and spray it around the rooms where flies are. In the dining room spray it lavishly even on the table linen. The odor is very disagreeable to flies but refreshing to most people.

Geranium, nignonette, heliotrope and white clover are offensive to flies. They especially dislike the odor of honey suckle and hop blossoms. According to a French scientist flies have intense hatred for the color blue. Rooms decorated in blue will help to keep out the flies.

Mix together one tablespoonful of cream, one of ground black pepper and one of brown sugar. This mixture is poisonous to flies. Put in a saucer, darken the room except one window and in that sit the saucer. To clear the house of flies, burn pyrethrum powder. This stupefies the flies, but they must be swept up and burned.

Borax is especially valuable around farms and out of doors. One pound of borax to twelve bushels of manure will be found desirable as a poison without injuring its manurial qualities or farm stock. Scatter the borax over the manure and sprinkle with water. Lye, chloride of lime, or copperas (sulfate of iron) dissolved in water, crude carbolic acid, or any kind of disinfectant may be used in vaults.

New Butter Record

Butter reached a record price for the month of April on the Elgin board of trade Saturday when twenty-five tubs were sold at 44 cents a pound. Shortage of milk and the declaration of war are given as the causes for the increase. President Charles Potter also said that the quantity in storage was also rapidly increasing. "The mark reached is the highest for the month of April in the history of the board," declared Potter. "I look for another boost in the price next week."

The Transgressor

In the county court Monday p. m. Judge Reckhow of Rockford presiding, sentence was passed on Neely Clark, convicted of 39 counts of violating the local option law, the sentence totalling 240 days in jail and a fine of $2,950. Motion for a new trial had been overruled and notice of appeal was filed.

The Western Electric Company's sales for 1916 were $106,987,000, an increase of $43,135,000, or 67.6 per cent over those for 1915, and of $40,579,000, or 62.5 per cent, over those for 1914.

The industrial employment of married women has increased about 100 per cent in the last twenty years. Of women over twenty years of age employed in twenty-three miscellaneous industries in New York City, 22.6 per cent are married. The total number of women employed in these industries is 61,565.

Approximately $100,000,000 will be issued in farm loan bonds during the next twelve months, according to estimates made by the Farm Loan board on the number of applications received. Applications are pouring in from every section of the country and the first bonds may be issued within the next ten days.

Although the Fifty Car Limit bill has not been introduced in the Illinois General Assembly this session, Representative Mulcahy has offered a bill which has the same general purpose. The Mulcahy bill provides that railroads shall not operate freight trains of a length greater than a half mile.

The value of the candy made in the United States last year was $200,000,000. There are more than 2,500 candy-making establishments in the country, representing an investment of $110,000,000 and turning out a product valued at $185,000,000. This represents an annual expenditure of $1.80 every year for each man, woman and child in the country.

Pastor is all "Cut Up"

Sycamore was all agog Friday evening shortly after six o'clock when Rev. Young, pastor of the colored people's Baptist church there was seriously injured in a cutting affray, says the DeKalb Chronicle.

It seems that Rev. Young and a colored lad whom he had raised got into an argument over some minor question, and the lad started after the preacher with a pair of shears.

The preacher was struck several times about the head and face with the shears, and is said to be in a precarious condition. The lad wielding the shears rushed up town and gave himself up to the police and is now under arrest awaiting trial.

FOUND IN CISTERN

Lifeless Body of Mrs. Geo. Buck Taken From Water Tuesday Morning

ILL HEALTH LEADS TO SUICIDE

News of Death of Estimable Woman is Shock to Her Host of Genoa Friends

The lifeless body of Mrs. George Buck was taken from the cistern at the family home on Genoa street early Tuesday morning. It is believed that Mrs. Buck took her own life while in a melancholy state, she having been in poor health for several weeks. No one knows just how long the body had been in the water before discovery, but it is estimated that two or three hours had elapsed.

Mr. Buck awoke at about seven o'clock and being unable to find his wife in the house went out of doors to look about. He discovered that the cover of the cistern had been removed and looking down into the water was horrified to see the body floating on the surface. He gave the alarm at once and neighbors and friends with rakes and other tackle soon had the lifeless form on the ground. Owing to the length of time that the body had been in the water, efforts at resuscitation were futile.

Temporary depression of spirits is the only solution of this deplorable tragedy. Mrs. Buck was naturally possessed of a bright, sunny disposition, and would be one of the last people on earth to take her own life unless mentally unbalanced. The melancholy state was due to poor health with which she had been afflicted for some weeks.

The bereaved husband and other relatives have the sincerest sympathy of everyone.

Degree Work

There was great doings in Odd Fellow circles Monday night when the Sycamore team came over and exemplified the first degree work. Owing to the anticipated large crowd and to give the team more room in which to work, the meeting was held in the Auditorium. After closing, the men went over to the Odd Fellow's hall where lunch was served. The Sycamore team is recognized as one of the best in this part of the state and the work was greatly appreciated by the local members.

Shipping Machinery Here

E. Edward Dean, secretary and treasurer of the Genoa Rubber Manufacturing Co., is in Salisbury, Conn., this week, superintending the loading of machinery recently purchased in that city. Part of the machinery will arrive in Genoa in a few days and set up at once. This company is now operating the plant at Salisbury and will continue the manufacture of rubber products there until the machinery is in operation in the Genoa factory. By this method no break will be made in rolling contracts now on hand.

"The Captain of Plymouth"

The comic opera "The Captain of Plymouth" will be presented at the Auditorium April 26 and 27 under the auspices of the Genoa High

"CASCARETS" FOR SLUGGISH BOWELS

No sick headache, sour stomach, biliousness or constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box now. Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never give or sicken. Adv.

No diffidence how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Adv.

Nan of Music Mountain

DE SPAIN LEARNS HOW MUCH NAN REALLY LOVES HIM AND DISCOVERS THAT HIS PLANS FOR PACIFYING OLD DUKE MORGAN WON'T WORK OUT AT ALL

Henry de Spain, general manager of the stagecoach line running from Thief River to Sleepy Cat, a railroad division town in the Rocky mountains, is fighting a band of cattle thieves and gunmen living in Morgan gap, a fertile valley 20 miles from Sleepy Cat and near Calabasas, where the coach horses are changed. De Spain has killed two of the gang and has been seriously wounded. Pretty Nan Morgan, niece of the gang leader, and De Spain are in love secretly—but her uncle finds it out and raves and rants.

She whirled. "I won't put it down. This hulking bully! I know him better than you do." She pointed a quivering finger at her cousin. "He insulted me as vilely as he could only a few months ago on Music Mountain. And if this very same Henry de Spain hadn't happened to be there to protect me, you would have found me dead next morning by my own hand. Do you understand?" she cried, panting and furious. "That's what he is!"

Her uncle tried to break in. "Stop!" she exclaimed pointing at Gale. "He never told you that, did he?"

"No, nor you neither," snapped Duke hoarsely.

"I didn't tell you," retorted Nan, "because I've been trying to live with you here in peace among these thieves and cutthroats, and not keep you stirred up all the time. And Henry de Spain faced this big coward and protected me from him with an empty revolver! What business of yours is it whom I meet, or where I go?" she demanded, raising her words with flaming eyes on her belligerent cousin.

"I will never marry you to save you from the hangman. Now leave this house." She stamped her foot. "Leave this house, and never come into it again!"

Gale, beside himself with rage, stood his ground. He poured all that he safely could of abuse on Nan's own head. She had appeased her wrath and made no attempt to retort, only looking at him with white face and burning eyes as she breathed defiance. Duke interferred. "Get out!" he said to Gale harshly. "I'll talk to her. Go home!"

Not ceasing to mutter oaths, Gale picked up his hat and stamped out of the house, slamming the doors. Duke, exhausted by the quarrel, sat down, eying his niece. "Now what does this mean?" he demanded hoarsely.

She tried to tell him honestly and frankly all that her acquaintance with De Spain did mean—dwelling no more than was necessary on its beginning, but concealing nothing of its development and consequences, nothing of her love for De Spain, nor of his for her. But no part of what she could say on any point she urged softened her uncle's face. His square, hard jaw from beginning to end looked like stone.

"So he's your lover?" he said harshly when she had done.

"He wants to be your friend," returned Nan, determined not to give up.

Duke looked at her uncompromisingly. "That man can't ever be any friend of mine—understand that! He can't ever marry you. If he ever tries to, so help me God, I'll kill him if I hang for it. I know his game. I know what he wants. He doesn't care a pinch of snuff for you. He thinks he can hit me a blow by getting you away from me."

"Nothing could be further from the truth," exclaimed Nan hopelessly.

Duke struck the table a smashing blow with his fist. "I'll show Mr. de Spain and his friends where they get off."

"Uncle Duke, if you won't listen to reason, you must listen to sense. Think of what a position you put me in. I love you for all your care of me. I love him for his affection for me and consideration of me—because he knows how to treat a woman. I know he wouldn't harm a hair on your head, for my sake, yet you talk now of bloodshed between you two. I know what your words mean—that one of you, or both of you, are to be killed for a senseless feud. He will not stand up and let any man shoot him down without resistance. If you lay your blood on his head, you know it would put a stain between him and me that never could be washed out as long as we lived. If you kill him I could never stay here with you. His blood would cry out every day and night against you."

Duke's violent finger shot out at her. "And you're the gal I took from your mammy and promised I'd bring up a decent woman. You've got none o' her blood in you—not a drop. You're the brat of that mining brother of mine, that was always riding horseback and showing off in town while I was weeding the tobacco beds."

Nan clasped her hands. "Don't blame me because I'm your brother's child. Blame me because I'm a woman, because I have a heart, because I want to live and see you live, and to see suspicion, distrust, feuds, alarms, and worse. I'm not ungrateful, as you plainly say I am. I want you to get out of what you are in here—I want to be out of it. I'd rather be dead now than to live and die in it. And what is this anger all for? Nothing. He offers you his friendship—" She could speak no further. Her uncle, with a curse, left her alone. When she arose in the early morning he had already gone away.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Try-Out.

Sleepy Cat is not so large a place that one would ordinarily have much trouble in finding a man in it if he searched well. But Duke Morgan drove into town next morning and had to stay for three days waiting for a chance to meet De Spain. Duke was not a man to talk much when he had anything of moment to put through, and he had left home determined, before he came back, to finish for good with his enemy.

De Spain himself had been putting off for weeks every business that would bear putting off, and had been forced at length to run down to Medicine Bend to buy horses. Nan, after her uncle left home—justly apprehensive of his intentions—made frantic efforts to get word to De Spain of what was impending. She could not telegraph—a publicity that she dreaded would have followed at once. De Spain had expected to be back in two days. Such a letter as she could have sent would not reach him at Medicine Bend.

As it was, a distressing amount of talk did attend Duke's efforts to get track of De Spain. Sleepy Cat had but one interpretation for his inquiries—and a fight, if one occurred between these men, it was conceded, would be historic in the annals of the town.

Its anticipation was food for all of the rumors of three days of suspense. For the town they were three days of thrilling expectation; for Nan, isolated, without a confidant, not knowing what to do or which way to turn, they were the three bitterest days of anxiety she had ever known.

Desperate with suspense at the close of the second day—wild for a scrap of news, yet dreading one—she saddled her pony and rode alone into Sleepy Cat after nightfall to meet the train on which De Spain had told her he would return from the east. She rode straight to the hospital, instead of going to the livery barn, and leaving her horse, got supper and walked by way of unfrequented streets downtown to the station to wait for the train.

When the big train drew slowly, almost noiselessly, in, Nan took her place where no incoming passenger could escape her gaze and waited for De Spain. But when all the arrivals had been accounted for, he had not come.

She turned, heavy-hearted, to walk back uptown, trying to think of whom she might seek some information concerning De Spain's whereabouts, when her eye fell on a man standing not ten feet away at the door of the baggage room. He was alone and seemed to be watching the changing of the engines, but Nan thought she knew him by sight. The rather long, straight, black hair under the broad-brimmed hat marked the man known and hated in the gap as "the Indian." Here, she said to herself, was a chance. De Spain, she recalled, spoke of no one oftener than this man. He seemed wholly disengaged.

Repressing her nervous timidity, Nan walked over to him. "Aren't you Mr. Scott?" she asked abruptly.

Scott, turning to her, touched his hat as if quite unaware until that moment of her existence. "Did Mr. de Spain get off this train?" she asked, as Scott acknowledged his identity.

"I guess he didn't come tonight," Nan noticed the impassive manner of his speaking and the low, even tones. "I was kind of looking for him myself."

"Is there another train tonight he could come on?"

"I don't think he will be back now before tomorrow night."

Nan, much disappointed, looked up the line and down. "I rode in this afternoon from Music Mountain especially to see him."

Scott, without commenting, smiled with understanding and encouragement, and Nan was so filled with anxiety that she welcomed a chance to talk to somebody. "I've often heard him speak of you," she ventured, searching the dark eyes, and watching the open, kindly smile characteristic of the man. Scott put his right hand out at his side. "I've ridden with that boy since he was so high."

"I know he thinks everything of you."

"I think a lot of him."

"You don't know me?" she said tentatively.

His answer concealed all that was necessary. "Not to speak to, no."

"I am Nan Morgan."

"I know your name pretty well," he explained; nothing seemed to disturb his smile.

"And I came in—because I was worried over something and wanted to see Mr. de Spain."

"He is buying horses north of Medicine Bend. The rainstorm yesterday likely kept him back some. I don't think you need worry much over anything though."

"I don't mean I am worrying about Mr. de Spain at Medicine Bend," disclaimed Nan with a trace of embarrassment.

"I know what you mean," smiled Bob Scott. She regarded him questioningly. He returned her gaze reassuringly as if he was confident of his ground. "Did your pony come along all right after you left the foothills this afternoon?"

Nan opened her eyes. "How did you know I came through the foothills?"

"I was over that way today." Something in the continuous smile enlightened her more than the word. "I noticed your pony went lame. You stopped to look at his foot."

"You were behind me," exclaimed Nan.

"I didn't see you," he countered prudently.

She seemed to fathom something from the expression of his face. "You couldn't have known I was coming in," she said quickly.

"No." He paused. Her eyes seemed to invite a further confidence. "But after you started it would be a pity if any harm came to you on the road."

"You knew Uncle Duke was in town?" Scott nodded. "Do you know why I came?"

"I made a guess at it. I don't think you need worry over anything."

"Did you follow me down from the hospital tonight?"

"I was coming from my house after supper. I only kept close enough to you to be handy."

"Oh, I understand. And you are very kind. I don't know what to do now."

"Go back to the hospital for the night. I will send Henry de Spain up there just as soon as he comes to town."

"Suppose Uncle Duke sees him first. I am deathly afraid of his meeting."

"I'll see that he doesn't see him first."

Even De Spain himself, when he came back the next night, seemed hardly able to reassure her. When she had told all her story, De Spain laughed at her fears. "I'll bring that man around, Nan, don't worry. Don't believe we shall ever fight. I may not be able to bring him around tomorrow, or next week, but I'll do it. It takes two to quarrel, you know."

"But you don't know how unreasonable Uncle Duke is when he is angry," said Nan mournfully. "He won't listen to anybody. He always would listen to me until now. Now, he says, I have gone back on him, and he doesn't care what happens. Think, Henry, where it would put me if either of you should kill the other. Henry, I've been thinking it all over for three days now. I see what must come. It will break both our hearts. I know, but they will be broken anyway. There is no way out, Henry—none."

"Nan, what do you mean?"

"You must give me up."

They were sitting in the hospital garden, he at her side on the bench that he called their bench. It was here he had made his unrebuked avowal—here, he had afterward told her, that he began to live. "Give you up," he echoed with gentleness. "How could I do that? You're like the morning for me, Nan. Without you there's no day; you're the kiss of the mountain wind and the light of the stars to me. Without the thought of you I'd sicken and faint in the saddle, I'd lose my way in the hills; without you there would be no tomorrow. No matter where I am, no matter how I feel, if I think of you strength wells into my heart like a spring. I never could give you up."

He told her all would be well because it must be well; that she must trust him; that he would bring her safe through every danger and every storm, if she would only stick to him. And Nan, sobbing her fears one by one out on his breast, put her arms around his neck and whispered that for life or death, she would stick.

It was not hard for De Spain next morning to find Duke Morgan. The difficulty was to meet him without the mob of hangers-on whose appetite had been whetted with the prospect of a death, and perhaps more than one, in the meeting of men whose supremacy with the gun had never been successfully disputed. It required all the diplomacy of Lefever to "pull off" a conference between the two which should not from the start be hopeless, because of a crowd of Duke's partisans whose presence would egg him on, in spite of everything, to a combat.

But toward eleven o'clock in the morning, De Spain having been concealed like a circus performer during every minute earlier, Duke Morgan was found, alone, in a barber's hands in the Mountain house. At the moment Duke left the revolving chair and walked to the cigar stand to pay his check, De Spain entered the shop through the rear door opening from the hotel office.

Passing with an easy step the row of barbers lined up in waiting beside their chairs, De Spain walked straight down the open aisle, behind Morgan's back. While Duke bent over the case to select a cigar, De Spain, passing, placed himself at the mountain-man's side and between him and the street sunshine. It was taking an advantage, De Spain was well aware, but under the circumstances he thought himself entitled to a good light on Duke's eye.

De Spain wore an ordinary sack street suit, with no sign of a weapon about him; but none of those who considered themselves favored spectators of a long-awaited encounter felt any doubt as to his ability to put his hand on one at incomparably short notice. There was, however, no trace of hostility or suspicion in De Spain's greeting.

"Hello, Duke Morgan," he said frankly. Morgan looked around. His face hardened when he saw De Spain, and he involuntarily took a short step backward. De Spain, with his left hand lying carelessly on the cigar case, faced him. "I heard you wanted to see me," continued De Spain. "I want to see you. How's your back since you went home?"

Morgan eyed him with a mixture of suspicion and animosity. He took what was to him the most significant part of De Spain's greeting first and threw his response into words as short as words could be chopped: "What do you want to see me about?"

"Nothing unpleasant, I hope," returned De Spain. "Let's sit down a minute."

"Say what you got to say."

"Well, don't take my head off, Duke. I was sorry to hear you were hurt. And I've been trying to figure out how to make it easier for you to get to and from town while you are getting strong. Jeffries and I both feel there's been a lot of unnecessary hard feeling between the Morgans and the company, and we want to ask you to accept this to show some of it's ended." De Spain put his left hand into his side pocket and held out an unsealed envelope to Morgan. Duke, taking the envelope, eyed it distrustfully. "What's this?" he demanded, opening it and drawing out a card.

"Something for easier riding. An annual pass for you and one over the stage line between Calabasas and Sleepy Cat—with Mr. Jeffries' compliments."

Like a flash, Morgan tore the card pass in two and threw it angrily to the floor. "Tell Mr. Jeffries," he exclaimed violently, "to—"

The man that chanced at that moment to be lying in the nearest chair slid quietly but imperiously out from under the razor and started with the barber for the rear door, wiping the lather from one unshaven side of his face with a neck towel as he took his hasty way. At the back of the shop a fat man, sitting in a chair on a high, shoe-shining platform, while a negro boy polished him, rose at Morgan's impetuous and tried to step over the bootblack's head to the floor below. The boy, trying to get out of the way, jumped back, and the fat man fell, or pretended to fall, over him—for it might be seen that the man, despite his size, had lighted like a cat on his feet and was instantly half-way up to the front of the shop, exclaiming profanely but collectively at the lad's awkwardness, before De Spain had had time to reply to the insult.

The noise and confusion of the incident were considerable. Morgan was too old a fighter to look behind him at a critical moment. No man could say he had meant to draw when he stamped the card underfoot, but De Spain read it in his eye and knew that Lefever's sudden diversion at the rear had made him hesitate; the crisis passed like a flash. "Sorry you feel that way, Duke," returned De Spain, undisturbed. "It is a courtesy we were glad to extend. And I want to speak to you about Nan, too."

Morgan's face was livid. "What about her?"

"She has given me permission to ask your consent to our marriage," said De Spain, "some time in the reasonable future."

It was difficult for Duke to speak at all, he was so infuriated. "You can get my consent in just one way," he managed to say, "that's by getting me." "Then I'm afraid I'll never get it, for I'll never get you, Duke."

A torrent of oaths fell from Morgan's cracked lips. He tried to tell De Spain in his fury that he knew all about his underhand work, he called him more than one hard name, made no secret of his deadly enmity, and challenged him to end their differences then and there.

De Spain did not move. His left hand again lay on the cigar case. "Duke," he said, when his antagonist had exhausted his vituperation, "I wouldn't fight you, anyway. You're crazy angry at me for no reason on earth. If you'll give me just one good reason for feeling the way you do toward me, and the way you've always acted toward me since I came up to this country, I'll fight you."

"Pull your gun," cried Morgan with an imprecation.

"I won't do it. You call me a coward. Ask these boys here in the shop whether they agree with you on that. You might as well call me an isosceles triangle. You're just crazy sore at me when I want to be friends with you. Instead of pulling my gun, Duke, I'll lay it out on the case, here, to show you that all I ask of you is to talk reason." De Spain, reaching with his left hand under the lapel of his coat, took a Colt's revolver from its breast harness and laid it, the muzzle toward himself, on the plate-glass top of the cigar stand. It replaced him to the necessity of a spring into Morgan for the smallest chance for his life if Morgan should draw; but De Spain was a desperate gambler in such matters even at twenty-eight, and he laid his wagers on what he could read in another's eye.

"There's more reasons than one why I shouldn't fight you," he said evenly. "Duke, you're old enough to be my father—do you realize that? What's the good of our shooting each other up?" he asked, ignoring Morgan's furious interruptions. "Who's to look after Nan when you go—as you must, before very many years? Have you ever asked yourself that? Do you want to leave her to that pack of wolves in the gap? You know, just as well as I do, the gap is no place for a high-bred, fine-grained girl like Nan Morgan. But the gap is your home, and you've done right to keep her under your roof and under your eye. Do you think I'd like to pull a trigger on a man that's been a father to Nan? Damnation, Duke, could you expect me to do it, willingly? Nan is a queen. The best in the world isn't good enough for her—I'm not good enough, I know that. She's dear to you, she is dear to me. If you really want to see me try to use a gun, send me a man that will insult or abuse her. If you want to use your own gun, use it on me if I ever insult or abuse her—is that fair?"

"Damn your fine words," exclaimed Morgan slowly and implacably. "They don't pull any wool over my eyes. I know you, De Spain—I know your breed—"

"What's that?"

Morgan checked himself at that tone. "You can't sneak into my affairs any deeper," he cried. "Keep away from my blood! I know how to take care of my own. I'll do it. So help me God, if you ever take anyone of my kin away from me—it'll be over my dead body!" He ended with a bitter oath and a final taunt: "Is that fair?"

De Spain finds he will have to use different tactics if he can hope ever to make Nan his wife. What he sets out to do to solve this big personal problem is described in the next installment.

CROOKED LAND AGENTS HALTED BY BIG BUREAU

Clover-Land Men Combine to Protect Settlers From Unfair Land Sharks.

Marquette, Mich., March 28.—In order to guard the host of new settlers who are coming into Clover-Land, which is the fifteen counties of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, and settling on the fertile lands there, the large landholders have combined under the name of The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau of Michigan.

This new organization is made up of the most prominent business men in Clover-Land, who have outwitted the land sharks in their attempts to get large tracts of lands in Clover-Land and sell them to unsuspecting settlers at immense prices.

Harmon Is President.

Leo C. Harmon of Manistique, the most prominent industrial man in Clover-Land, is president of the Bureau, while Senator Alton T. Roberts of Marquette and August Wallen of Ewen are vice presidents, H. W. Reade of Escanaba is treasurer and George W. Rowell, Jr., of Marquette is secretary and manager.

Mr. Rowell is the only paid officer of the bureau. He has his main offices at Marquette, Michigan, 100 Bacon Block, to whom all inquiries for lands in Clover-Land should be sent. Mr. Rowell assists the prospective settler in selecting a locality where he feels the settler can best go into the kind of farming he wishes. Then the name is turned over to the land firms which belong to the bureau and which must uphold the honest business rules laid down by the Bureau. Thus the buyer and seller are brought into contact.

Many Settlers Arrive.

"We are finding the plan an efficient one and large numbers of settlers are coming into Clover-Land as a result, because they feel that by dealing through our organization they will get a square deal," said Mr. Rowell. "We are prepared to furnish new and up-to-date maps of Clover-Land to all desiring them. We have information about our soils and crops as well as our pleasing climate, railroads, highways, fine water shipping possibilities, churches, schools and other things which the settler wants to know about. We send this matter out free of charge to any person writing us, and we believe that we are accomplishing much for the newcomers.

Conditions Are Good.

"Any person who intends to seek a new home should look over Clover-Land first because it has fine soils, good markets near by, plenty of rain, pleasing climate, good roads, and lots of land which can be purchased at good prices.

"We also have a big inducement over other states in that new settlers coming into Clover-Land need not pay taxes for five years. That alone is a great help to the man just getting a start.

"In addition to these natural and state benefits, Clover-Land, through the Development Bureau, gives its settlers an honest deal," concluded Mr. Rowell, "and that is why we are getting so many new settlers here."—Advertisement.

YES! MAGICALLY! CORNS LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS

You say to the drug store man, "Give me a small bottle of freezezone." This will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, dries up and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that freezezone dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without irritating the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezezone tell him to order a small bottle from his wholesale drug house for you.—adv.

Binder Twine
We will have a carload of Doering twine on tracks Saturday, April 14, and will sell this twine out of the car as long as it lasts at 17½ cents per pound, cash. Twine is going to be scarce and this is all the twine that we will have this season. Not over 400 pounds sold to any one man. This price is good only out of the car.
J. R. Kiernan & Son.

Odd Habit Among Rooks.
Among the odd habits of rooks is the way that members of the same rookery have of intermarrying generation after generation. The males always choose their wives from among their near neighbors, and if one should be so bold as to bring home to his rookery a bride from a distance the other rooks will invariably refuse to receive her and will force the pair to build some way off. In the neighborhood of big rookeries outlying nests of this kind may always be found.
On Parade.
Don't get it wrong. A governor's staff isn't something to lean on. Its sole function is to glisten.—Indianapolis News.

Lieutenant General.
Many of us are puzzled to know why a lieutenant general ranks higher than a major general. Perhaps the explanation is that the titles date back to the commonwealth, when the country was divided into military districts, the less important under the control of a sergeant major general, the rank beyond that of colonel, and the more important being governed by a lieutenant general, the captain general being Cromwell himself. The lapse of time has deleted the sergeant from the sergeant major general.—London Chronicle.
Ocean Currents.
There are twenty-seven permanent currents in the oceans of the world, and there are nearly as many more of the semi-permanent variety existing at one time. Several causes tend to originate and maintain these drifts. Uniformly directed winds have the greatest influence, and differences of temperatures, storms, polar ice and eddies have each some effect, creating usually the currents of semi-permanent variety.
What Life Is.
Life is not made out of money, and friendship, and talents, and patronage, and family influences, and good chances, and good positions, and good health, and good nature. It is made out of faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, and brotherly kindness and love.—Inniger.
The Real Reason.
Congressmen and legislators have not been lowered in grade during the last twenty years, but public understanding has moved up so much that it just seems that way.—Sioux City Tribune.

STRUCTURE OF THE EYE.

Why We See Better in a Moderate Than in a Glaring Light.

An observant chauffeur, passing an automobile with glaring headlights, noted that objects at the side of the road which had been distinctly visible dropped out of sight when the bright lights were thrown upon them. Since one can see better in a little light than in no light, he wondered, why can one not see better in bright light than in moderate light?

The answer is, paradoxically, that the less light there is the better one sees, for the brighter the object the less efficient is the eyesight. If, after we have been in darkness, we suddenly turn on a bright light and look at our eyes in a mirror we can see the pupil of the eye rapidly growing smaller. If we reduce the light the pupil dilates again. What happens is the same as in the camera when we adjust the shutter to the intensity of the light.

The colored iris of the eye corresponds to the shutter. It consists chiefly of a muscle which, as the light increases, is stimulated to contract, thus drawing the curtain and shutting out some of the superfluous light. It usually takes a few seconds for this adjustment to take place. Thus when we emerge from darkness into light we are blinded until the iris can shut out some of the light from the eye.

How It Works.
The man who imagines himself indispensable is, of course, the one who imagines his loss would be irreplaceable and he usually turns out strong in nothing but imagination.—Buffalo Times.

"Our country!" In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong.—Stephen Decatur.

WHAT ILLINOIS EDITORS SAY

Harvard Herald: That high class publication. The Outlook, well says that in the United States the farmer is a humble person; in Mexico he is a king of millionaires. You look out across a level plain and you see a magnificent house of stone, cement and great timbers, covering sometimes as much as half an acre.

The typical farm in Mexico is not of 160 acres, but of a million. In the state of Morelos 28 haciendados own all the agricultural lands; 12 own nine-tenths of it. The territory of Quintana Roo, double the size of Massachusetts, is divided among eight companies. The greater portion of the state of Yucatan is held by 30 men, kings of sisal hemp.

The 1,000,000-acre farms are mostly fallow. While naturally a rich, agricultural country, Mexico does not produce even enough corn and beans to feed her own peon population. Modern machinery is needed, but modern machinery will never be used extensively so long as the peon is so cheap that primitive methods are cheaper than machine methods.

Hinckley Review: With each succeeding year on which a vote is taken for the township support of the library the friends gain a few votes. This year the proposition was lost by only 44 votes; last time it was lost by over 70. All this township needs is a few well selected funders, and the library tax will carry.

Elgin News: The passage of the war act places in the hands of President Wilson probably the greatest power and responsibility ever given one man. Automatically he becomes commander-in-chief of the army and navy. Practically he becomes also commander-in-chief of all the nation's industrial and financial resources. In other words, the lives and fortunes of the American people are back of the president and subject to his bidding.

Hinckley Review: Commencement season is nearly here; in fact, graduation plans are already being made, and young people who finish the high schools this year are getting busy on their class commencement work. The sweet girl graduates of 1917, are showing more good substantial common sense than any of their predecessors. In hundreds of high schools, the girl graduates have voted to wear simple gowns of uniform material and construction, and very modest in cost.

Had Eleven Names

What is now DeKalb township was in St. Claire county from 1790 to 1812. Madison county from 1812 to 1815. Edwards county from 1815 to 1816. Crawford county from 1816 to 1819. Clark county from 1819 to 1821. Pike county from 1821 to 1823. Fulton county from 1823 to 1825. Putnam county from 1825 to 1831. LaSalle county from 1831 to 1836. Kane county from 1836 to 1837.

DeKalb county, Illinois, was formed with its present boundaries by act of March 4, 1837. Election held July 3, 1837.

Asks $10,000 Damages Mrs. Eliza C. Ives, an elderly lady residing in Kirkland, has instituted suit against Henry Hadberg of Rockford for $10,000, Attorney E. D. Reynolds filing the first papers for the April term of court at Rockford. The action grew out of an accident in Genoa last July, when Mrs. Ives was knocked over by the defendant's automobile, as he was on his way from Chicago. The surety company which protected Hadberg and his machine is said to be reluctant in settling and it is possible that they may be made defendant in a similar action.

Influence on Character. In the molding of character nothing matters so much as influence. It is the heart of all education, the inner secret of home and of school. More than any wit or genius is the value there of simple goodness, "moral thoughtfulness." Surround a life with its rays and dormant goodness will not fail to come to birth.

There was a fish dinner, and Henrietta, aged five, was doing considerable rumbling about a couple of bones but, despite her mother's caution, vere in her portion. Altho not in the best of condition, the soil is being turned through this part of the country. Spring wheat has been sown and some are now getting oats into the ground. In the city, gardens are being plowed and seed of the earlier varieties of vegetables have been planted. A good warm rain is needed to get the ground into the best condition for working.

The power of the little Republican Journal "want ad" was again demonstrated last week. Henry Nulle, conductor on the Woodstock & Syca more car, lost his Hamilton watch, advertised in the Republican Journal and inside of one half hour after the paper was in the post office, the watch was returned to the owner, Charles Maderer being the finder.

Some contemptible cur slashed the top of D. C. Morehouse's automobile last Sunday evening, practically ruining it. The mischief was done while the owner of the machine was attending services at the M. E. church. There is no explainable reason why Mr. Morehouse should be the victim of such treatment. It was either the work of a degenerate or a cowardly enemy, and no one can imagine this congenial and cordial man having an enemy of any kind.

Every vacant lot in Genoa should be worked this summer. In view of the fact that prices for food stuffs are now nearly out of reach and with no prospects of a reduction until the war troubles are over, every available foot of land in the United States should be utilized. Many vacant lots in Genoa have been given over to weeds in the past. Such a condition this year should not exist. One may not be able to carry a gun nor buy bonds to help the nation financially, but he can assist in raising food to feed the other fellow. Raising food stuffs this year is a form of patriotism that will count.

Sugar From Wood.
Now they're making sugar out of wood. Chemists have found that they can take a ton of sawdust and get a quarter of a ton of sugar out of it. The process consists of putting the sawdust into a closed retort and subjecting it to digestion with a weak solution of sulphurous acid under a pressure of from ninety to one hundred pounds to the square inch. Eighty per cent of the sugar thus obtained is fermentable. The product is called "sacchulose."

Perfectly Comprehensible.
The following speech was made by a lawyer on behalf of his client whose cow had been killed by a train: "If the train had been run as it should have been ran, or if the bell had been rung as it should have been rung, or if the whistle had been blown as it should have been blown, both of which they did neither, the cow would not have been injured when she was killed."

Talleyrand.

Talleyrand's conservatism was summed up by a witty compatriot, Paul de Courrier, who on one occasion declared that if Talleyrand had been present at the creation he would have exclaimed: "Good gracious! Chaos will be destroyed!"

"There's no sentiment in business," he said coldly.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Use of Mineral Oil.
Dr. Le Tanneur contributes to the Paris Medical some practical points in the use of mineral oil in constipation. The oil, he says, is in no way digested or even modified by the juices of the stomach and intestines. It acts as a lubricant and nothing else, though it tends to heal abrasions of the intestinal wall caused by rough particles of food. The New York Medical Journal says mineral oil should be taken either before breakfast or after dinner, two tablespoonfuls being a dose. Its use should be continued every day for at least a fortnight, when the bowels will continue to work naturally without it, for the mineral oil is in no sense a cathartic, but it will cure constipation.

Display a flag at your home.

Servants as Hosts.

A curious custom exists in the town of Port of Spain, in the island of Trinidad. Every year the servants, who are all black, give a grand ball for their masters and mistresses. The Princes building, a huge place where all public entertainments are held, is engaged, and everything is done in the best style. There are two halls for dancing, one for the servants and the other for their guests.

The best band in the island is engaged, and the guests are given a banquet. Etiquette is very strict and precedence rigidly observed by the servants, the governor's butler and his lady going in before the chief justice's groom, and so on.

An Innocent Offender.

A rather amusing story of the art of making beds was related recently by a speaker at a women's meeting. She was visiting a friend, and, being naturally neat and helpful, or thinking she was, she went up to her bedroom and made up the bed. Later on, when it came time for her to depart, her hostess came into her room and upon viewing the bed exclaimed: "Mercy! That maid I have is awful! Just look at that bed!"

Laying Hens.

In selecting laying hens look for a full, well developed breast and crop, showing a large pocket in which to carry the food supply. This indicates strength and vigor and ability to consume sufficient food to produce eggs.

Healthy Skin Depends On Kidneys

The skin and the intestines, which work together with the kidneys to throw out the poisons of the body, do a part of the work, but a clean body and a healthy one depends on the kidneys. If the kidneys are clogged with toxic poisons you suffer from stiffness in the knees in the morning on arising, your joints seem "rusty," you may have rheumatic pains, pain in the back, stiff neck, headaches, sometimes swollen feet, or neuralgic pains—all due to the uric acid or toxic poisons in the blood. This is the time to go to the nearest drug store and simply obtain a 50c. package of Anuric (double or triple strength), the discovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. Then drink a cup of hot water before meals, with an Anuric Tablet, and notice the gratifying results. You will find Anuric more active than lithia.

It's the Same Everywhere

Corunna, Mich.—"I had been sick a long time with kidney and bladder trouble. Bad headache all the time. I did everything, but could not find any relief. One day I saw an advertisement of Anuric in the paper. I sent 10 cents to Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package. The sample did me so much good that I got more from the druggist. I can't begin to tell what Anuric has done for me. I will speak a good word for it, for I can't be too grateful."—MRS. JULIA MONTFORT, Corunna, Mich.
If not obtainable at your dealer's send 50 cents to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and he will mail you a package of tablets.
Dr. Pierce's reputation is back of this new medicine and you know that his Pleasant Pellets for the liver and his Favorite Prescription for the ills of women have had a splendid reputation for the past 50 years.

HEIRESS MARRIES SLUM DERELICT

When She First Met Outcast He Filled Her With Horror and Disgust.

IS NOW A "MAN MAKER"

Together the Two Now Devote Their Days to the Salvation of the Drunkard and the Drug Fiend.

New York.—One of the most noted slum workers in the East, Mrs. George Caulkins Long, firmly believes that it is possible to reform a man by marrying him, but she does not advise young girls to undertake such a perilous task. Edna Caulkins, daughter of a wealthy Brooklyn shipowner, married George Long, an outcast and drug-ridden derelict, because of the fight that he had made for his own soul and because she feared a refusal would send him back into the abyss from which he had so painfully climbed. Watching his reformation she was conscious of the fact that he cared for her, the two having met in a slum mission. She feared and despised him, according to her own words, but his zeal and energy fascinated her and she aided in every way his efforts to rise from the gutter. She was not surprised when, one day, he proposed marriage.

Must Reform First. She put him off by telling him that she was in no position to marry. She urged him to leave the city and secure work elsewhere. She told him, when he persisted in his determination to win her he might ask for her hand in another year. But it was not until she faced the altar and heard the words spoken that made her the wife of the man, who, when she first saw him, had filled her with horror and loathing, that she realized fate was not to be denied and that their life work was to be continued together.

Not only had George Long risen from the depths of degradation and despair, but he had become a man among men, with his reformation achieved before he led the daughter of wealth and breeding to the altar. He is known from coast to coast as the "man maker," because in five years' time he has led more than 5,000 men back over the sodden trails of blighted hopes and ambitions, back to the cross-roads of love and into the right paths.

Long has established a $1,000,000 mission in Philadelphia, the like of which cannot be found anywhere in the world. Millions of philanthropic tendencies, churchmen of national prominence and leaders in the nation's field of big business are interested in the plan of the "man maker" to establish a string of similar man-reclaiming plants in all the larger cities from New York to San Francisco.

Now Works by His Side. The woman who lately married him works daily and nightly by his

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well child again. Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

GREAT DEMAND FOR CANADIAN LAND

Americans Are Buyers and Becoming Settlers—Anxious to Get Cheap and Productive Land.

Reports are to hand that there will be a large influx of settlers from the United States into the Canadian West during the coming Spring. For a time there has been a falling off, on account of the fear of conscription, which of course was not possible, and which the Canadian Government gave every assurance would not be put into operation. In any case it would not affect the American settler, and more than that the man who was working on the farm, helping to produce the grain that goes to feed those who are at war, would not be affected.

The excellent yields of the Western Canada crops, and the high prices secured is having its influence on those looking for homes. The authenticated reports that have been sent out from time to time that this farmer and that farmer had paid for their entire farm holdings out of one crop has reached the ears of the man looking for a farm.

When he hears that G. H. Beatty of Nanton, Alberta, had 679 bushels of wheat from 12 acres or an average of 56 1/2 bushels to the acre, he becomes interested. When he learns that Sidney E. Phillips of Bedford, Alberta, threshed ten hundred and fifty-three bushels of wheat, the average being 52 1/2 bushels per acre, his interest is further aroused. Thos. Long of Lethbridge had 120 bushels of oats to the acre from a field of 25 acres, W. Quinn of Milk River had 6,094 bushels of wheat from 100 acres, an average of 60 bushels per acre, and Robert Tackberry of Nobleford makes affidavit that he had an average of seventy-six bushels of wheat per acre from a field of 10,633 acres. Thos. Boulton of the same place makes affidavit that from fifty acres he had a yield of fifty-three bushels of wheat per acre. Newell J. Noble's affidavit of getting 54 bushels per acre from 1,000 acres stands out most strongly as evidence of what the wheat grower can do. This affidavit is strengthened by a paragraph stating that he had 122 bushels and 30 lbs. per acre from 394.69 acres. Mrs. Nancy Coe makes affidavit that on her farm at Nobleford she threshed six thousand one hundred and ten bushels of wheat from one hundred and fifteen acres, or fifty-three bushels and eight lbs. per acre, and from a flax field (stubble field) she got 20 bushels and 88 pounds per acre.

It cannot be said that these were freak yields because so many had such great success. When these reports are read, the man looking for a farm becomes convinced.

These are only a few of the reasons that will cause a large influx of American farmers into the Canadian West during the coming Spring.

The farmers now resident in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are purchasing additional lands. Prices are low and free homestead land can be had in many districts and the homesteader is welcome.—Advertisement.

HAS 190,000 FINGER PRINTS

New York Police Department Has Huge Collection Gathered From All Parts of World.

The finger print department at New York police headquarters now has a collection of more than 190,000 finger impressions of different individuals, says the New York Times. The prints came from all over the United States, Canada and from many European cities. Notices were sent some time ago to the police headquarters of every city in the country suggesting that copies of their finger prints be sent to New York, and in turn free use of its finger prints service was promised. In this way the bureau has become a kind of clearing house for other police departments of the country. The impressions are classified according to "whorls," "loops," "arches," or "deltas." The prints are carefully filed and indexed according to their characteristics.

As is well known, the system is based on the fact that every human being has a distinct and individual impression which differs from that of any other person. The New York police assert that there is not even a similarity between the prints of members of a family. Twins who were arrested and who were alike, physically, as the proverbial two peas, had widely different finger impressions. There is no racial similarity in finger prints. Those of a negro have the same general characteristics as those of any other race. The prints of a manual laborer are not different in whorls or loops from those of a finger or artist, except that the prints of a man whose fingers are not calloused from hard work are often as clear as a steel engraving. In the opinion of the men in the New York finger-print service, it would be impossible to read the character of a person from their finger impressions.

Contrariwise. "The man they threw out of the meeting was very unlike a conflagration."

"In what way?" "He was all on fire after they put him out."

A Specimen. "I wonder why that fellow stares at me so?" "He's a noted entomologist."

A Medicine for Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Relieved the Sufferings of Women.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

Mrs. Kieso Cured After Seven Month's Illness.

Aurora, Ill.—"For seven long months I suffered from a female trouble, with severe pains in my back and sides until I became so weak I could hardly walk from chair to chair, and got so nervous I would jump at the slightest noise. I was entirely unfit to do my house work, I was giving up hope of ever being well, when my sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and today I am a healthy woman able to do my own housework. I wish every suffering woman would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find out for herself how good it is."—MRS. KARL A. KIESO, 596 North Ave., Aurora, Ill.

Could Hardly Get Off Her Bed.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I want you to know the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was in such bad health from female troubles that I could hardly get off my bed. I had been doctoring for a long time and my mother said, 'I want you to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.' So I did, and it has certainly made me a well woman. I am able to do my house work and am so happy as I never expected to go around the way I do again, and I want others to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—MRS. JOSIE COPNER, 1668 Harrison Ave., Fairmount, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Pet Polly Among Ducks. Members of the Social Travel club, maintained by Kansas City sportsmen at Mud lake, were excited some time ago when a big flock of ducks settled on the lake and floated about, waiting to be shot.

"Hello," came a wailing voice across the water, apparently from the flock. "Gosh!" muttered John Caskey, deputy county recorder at the courthouse, "somebody's out in the lake."

"Hello, hello, hello," came the answer. "It's a talking duck," gasped one of the hunters.

"Duck nothing, it's a parrot; there he is on that meekstruck house," said another.

And, sure enough, a "poll" parrot was sitting out in the middle of the lake and around him floated the ducks, all unmindful of his chatter.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Slight Error. "What is the price of this embroidered skirt?" "Madam will find the skirts on the next table—that which she has is the new coupe collar!"

Why She Changed Doctors. "What seems to be the trouble?" asked the doctor as he sat down beside Mrs. Nugg. "I have a tired feeling," replied Mrs. Nugg. "Tired feeling, eh?" said the doctor. "Let me see your tongue."

Canada Offers 160 Acres Free to Farm Hands

Bonus of Western Canada Land to Men Assisting in Maintaining Needed Grain Production

The demand for farm labor in Canada is great. As an inducement to secure the necessary help at once, Canada will give and allow the time of the farm laborer, who has filed on the land, to apply as residence duties, the same as if he actually had lived on it. Another special concession is the reduction of one year in the time to complete duties. Two years instead of three as heretofore, but only to men working on the farms for at least six months in 1917. This appeal for farm help is in no way connected with enlistment for military service but solely to increase agricultural output. A wonderful opportunity to secure a farm and draw good wages at the same time. Canadian Government will pay all fare over one cent per mile from St. Paul or Duluth to Canadian destination.
