Lou Patterson and Allice Smith returned home last Monday from a five weeks tour through the west. They visited quite a number of the western cities where they in the least expected to find good fishing, and Lou informs us they were well repaid for the trip. Their principal diet during their absence, so they say, was fish and fun, which took up so much of their attention that the spontaneous growth of the superfluous filament upon their manly faces was sadly neglected.

The trade in paint in Genoa this summer has been considerably more than common judging from the number of residences that have already and are about to be given a few coats. One of the most appropriately painted houses in the city is that of Thomas G. Sager on Jackson street. The construction of the house is admirably adapted for the work of a painter who is an artist in his line. Among others who have beautified their places we mention; T. L. Kitchen, Wm. Holroyd, Henry Holroyd, Max Still, Mrs. Sell, H. H. Slater, Amber, Durham, Joe Smith, J. Fransson, Ellis Confer, Aug. Fite, Alf. Moore, Chas. Adams, and Frank Grapjak, and in addition to these a number of new residences were necessarily in the hands of painters for a time.

Farmers are getting to raising more rye each year. They are beginning to realize that just now it is a good crop for them to harvest. Reports are coming in from various farms placing the yield per acre from 28 to 36 bushels at 45 cents per bushel to which add from $4 to $6 per acre for the straw figures up a fair profit for the use of the land and seed.

We wish to say to some who have sent to us unsigned notes for publication that we must decline such unless we know from what source we get our knowledge. We do not desire to publish your name but as a matter of fact there are people who will concoct yarns and get them in print which afterward turn out to be pure fabrication, so to show your sincerity we ask that you sign your name. We have no desire to state anything incorrectly.

The recent action of the Paris Exposition authorities in awarding the first prize on apples to Illinois should stimulate us to paying attention to fruit. The old orchards have all gone to decay and have been grubbed out because of inattention and lack of cultivation. Every farm should have at least five or more acres set aside for fruit and with proper care taken in selecting varieties best adapted for this climate we would soon be at the front as regards quantity as well as quality. We would recommend that in putting out a new orchard care should be taken to use ground that has never been occupied by old trees as the disease which caused their death is to some extent lurking in the soil still.

Farmers are getting to raising more rye each year. They are beginning to realize that just now it is a good crop for them to harvest. Reports are coming in from various farms placing the yield per acre from 28 to 36 bushels at 45 cents per bushel to which add from $4 to $6 per acre for the straw figures up a fair profit for the use of the land and seed.

We wish to say to some who have sent to us unsigned notes for publication that we must decline such unless we know from what source we get our knowledge. We do not desire to publish your name but as a matter of fact there are people who will concoct yarns and get them in print which afterward turn out to be pure fabrication, so to show your sincerity we ask that you sign your name. The recent action of the Paris Exposition authorities in awarding the first prize on apples to Illinois should stimulate us to paying attention to fruit. The old orchards have all gone to decay and have been grubbed out because of inattention and lack of cultivation. Every farm should have at least five or more acres set aside for fruit and with proper care taken in selecting varieties best adapted for this climate we would soon be at the front as regards quantity as well as quality. We would recommend that in putting out a new orchard care should be taken to use ground that has never been occupied by old trees as the disease which caused their death is to some extent lurking in the soil still.

GUILTY OR INNOCENT?

By AMY BRAZIER.

Dr. Carter, terribly agitated, lays his hand on Mrs. Bouverie's.

"We may prepare for the very worst. After the judge's charge they will bring him in guilty. My poor friend, it will be more than you can bear. Come with me now."

The mother's head is bowed, her lips form a faint "No." Then with an effort she raises herself and looks steadily at her son, who must know himself that his cause has been lost.

His counsel sits with bent head and moody face. There is a mystery in the Portraven bank robbery that even he cannot fathom, unless, indeed, the prisoner is the hardened criminal so aptly described by the judge as he thundered out to the jury the sin of one law for the rich and another for the poor.

There is not long to wait. The jury come back to their box with their minds made up.

"Guilty!"

Every one expected it, but yet a thrill as of horror shudders over the crowd as the wind sighs and waves over a field of corn—a wave of feeling that makes itself felt. Then, for the first time, despair, dark and terrible, whitens the prisoner's face. He hears his mother's broken utterance of his name, and his eyes turn to her with a passion of regret; then he nerves himself to receive his sentence.

Even Sebastian Saville turns cold as he listens.

The judge is a stern judge, and determined not to let the prisoner's position stand in the way of being made an example of. Five years' penal servitude is the least he can give—five years in which this hardened sinner will have time to repent. Before he pronounces the sentence he delivers a homily on the sin of gambling, the yearly increasing sin of betting on every race. He points out how, in this case, it has brought the prisoner at the bar to temptation and sin, and finally to the awful position in which he now stands. And then the dreadful sentence—five years' penal servitude; and George Bouverie, white as death, like a man going to the scaffold, goes from the dock out of the sight of his fellow men.

His mother's eyes, dry with an agony that is tearless, gaze after him.

"Will they let me see him?" she says a little wildly.

"My son, my darling!"

Ay, were he the sinner the trial has proved him to be, he is hers still, the mother-love is his in spite of all.

"I will try and arrange an interview," Dr. Carter says huskily. "My poor friend, nothing I can say can comfort you. There, there, try and fight off the faintness; let me take you into the air."

Sympathetic voices whisper, "She is his mother," as the doctor pushes his way out through the crowd, half carrying Mrs. Bouverie, who feels as if her heart were breaking.

They had told her not to hope, that the Crown was sure of a conviction, but the hope had not died till the words five years' penal servitude fell on her ears. Up to that moment the mother had believed in some proof of George's innocence being produced.

It is all over now. He has been led away a free man no longer, to live out a hideous nightmare of days and weeks and years, crushed, ruined and disgraced; and he had said he was innocent!

It is the same evening; but the glad, bright morning has turned to rain, and the drops race down the window panes. Sebastian Saville sits opposite his mother at the other end of the long dinner table. His face bears an expression of satisfaction. They are discussing the all-absorbing topic of the bank robbery.

"The judge charged dead against him," Sebastian says, filling his wine glass. "The jury was not ten minutes out of their box."

Mrs. Saville, as usual, regally attired in satin and lace, smiles half disagreeably.

"It is very fortunate it was all over before Barbara's return. She will hardly care for going on with her farce of an engagement now."

"Hardly!" sneers Mr. Saville, leaning back in luxurious contentment. "Even Barbara wouldn't be mad enough to wish to marry a convict!" Then he stands up and strolls over to the window. "What a wet night! I suggest we try and forget the Bouverie episode. What do you say to our taking Barbara to London, or abroad, or somewhere? She'll get over it soon enough."

"A very good suggestion," Mrs. Saville returns. "I am sorry for Mrs. Bouverie, of course, but for her unprincipled son I have no pity. It will rest with yourself, Sebastian, to win Barbara. I think a tour on the continent would be the best plan. Being in mourning, we could not go to any gaieties, and the Court would be depressing just now for Barbara."

While mother and son are amicably arranging over Barbara's future, Barbara herself is sitting on board a homeward bound steamer, her face full of hope as every throb of the screw brings her a moment nearer to seeing George again. Her father's death had been a shock, but hardly in one sense a grief; for she had not seen him since her childhood and retained only a very faint memory of an austere, silent man who seldom spoke to her. She has been told that she is rich, that her father's will has left her everything completely and unconditionally. She may marry whom she chooses. The news of so much wealth had come as a surprise on Barbara; she can hardly realize it yet.

In her deep mourning she sits on a deck, with grave, steady eyes looking over the tossing waves, and thinking of George. What a surprise it will be to him to find he is to have a rich wife!

"I will help him to use this money wisely and well," muses Barbara, little dreaming that behind prison bars the man she loves is living through the first awful days of his sentence—days when despair clutches at the heart, when the terrible realization of the horror of the life breaks down the manhood, when even trust in the mercy of God seems but a mockery.

CHAPTER IX.

"Have you quite made up your mind to resign?"

Mr. Kelly, the bank manager, puts the question to the cashier, who has asked for an interview, and has announced his intention of resigning his post at the bank.

In answer to Mr. Kelly's question, Mr. Grey lifts his eyes from the contemplation of the carpet.

"Yes, sir, I have made up my mind. I have never been the same since that day. Every time the bank door opens my heart beats. It has affected my health, Mr. Kelly—indeed it has!"

"In that case you had better go," says the manager. "What do you think of doing?"

"I have a brother in America; he will get me work," Mr. Grey says, rather evasively. "And, Mr. Kelly, I never told you that I am a married man. My wife was beneath me in position, and I kept it secret. It is chiefly to please her I am going to America."

"Well, I hope you will get on," replies Mr. Kelly, "but you have a good berth here, and would be likely to get a raise."

"I know all that; but my wife is extravagant; I give her all my salary. Oh, you don't know what an anxiety it all is!" explains the cashier, glancing round with his frightened gaze.

"You don't look well, Mr. Grey, and I am sorry your marriage is an unhappy one. Perhaps you are wise to emigrate, after all."

The interview is ended, and Mr. Grey goes back to his work, a crushed, depressed looking figure. He is nervous and starting at every sound. He has never been the same since the attack made on him at the time of the robbery; the shock left him a perfect wreck.

A carriage rolls down the street and passes the bank. Mr. Grey sees it driving by as he looks over the wire blind of the bank window. It is the carriage from the Court, with two men on the box in faded claret livery, and in it are seated Mrs. Saville and her son, en route for London, to meet Barbara on her return from Tasmania.

The Court is to be half shut up, and the few servants remaining in charge are to be left on board wages, for it is not Mrs. Saville's intention to return until the marriage between Barbara and Sebastian has taken place.

Three days later Barbara herself stands before her aunt, with blazing blue eyes looking out from the whiteness of her face. She has landed only this morning, and Sebastian met her, and brought her straight to the hotel where his mother is staying.

Mrs. Saville, with heartless callousness, has told her niece of the bank robbery, and the crime and punishment of George Bouverie.

Anger and pity swell the girl's heart to bursting. George in prison! Words seem to choke her. She cannot speak, but stands with her hands locked together, staring at her aunt.

Sebastian regards her critically. "My dear Barbara, Bouverie was always a bad lot," he says calmly. "To be so good looking, I grant you, but quite unprincipled. He was bound to come to grief."

Barbara turns slowly. "You are not speaking the truth, and you know it!" she cries, with sudden passion. "If I had only known, if I had only known!"—her eyes wide and full of pain.

Mrs. Saville, in her sable draperies, sweeps across the room.

"My dear child, try and be thankful that you have escaped without having your name mentioned with such a man. Not a soul knows of any foolish nonsense between you."

"It was no nonsense!" Barbara says firmly. "I was engaged to George Bouverie when I left home, I am engaged to him still!"

There is pride and determination in the young face.

Mrs. Saville gives a short laugh. "You will have plenty of time, dear, to test your constancy and his. Five years is a good slice out of a life, and they say convict life has a degrading influence. Where are you going, Barbara?"—as, with one wounded, indignant look, Barbara moves towards the door.

"I am going to save George," the girl says, her voice rising with a kind of triumphant ring. "I shall cross over to Dublin tonight. No, Sebastian, do not say one word. I am going to prove George Bouverie's innocence."

"I fear you are attempting an impossible feat," sneers Sebastian, a dull flush spreading over his face.

Barbara, with her hand on the door, lifts her glorious eyes.

"He is innocent. It was I who lent him the money. I forced him to take it, and it was for my sake he kept silence. Oh, I see it all now!" she cries, with a little irrepresible sob. "If I had been there it could never have happened! The hundred pounds was mine, only he was too honorable to make my name public!"—a loving, tender look sweeping over her face. (To be continued.)

HEALTH AND GOOD LOOKS.

Something Useful May Be Learned from an Actress' Experience.

One of the most admired of American actresses, both for her grace and comeliness, has been divulging some of the secrets by which she has preserved her beauty. "Vigilance," she says, "is the first requisite. I am ever on the alert and when I discover traces of fatigue or any other beauty-destroying symptoms in my face or figure I set about remedying it at once. I don't attempt to be anything but a professional woman during the theatrical season. I don't receive and I don't go to other people's houses. I simply haven't time, and I don't make it. My mode of life is very simple. I sleep nine or ten hours as a rule—never less than eight. I eat regularly and heartily, and avoid everything that would be apt to give me indigestion. Indigestion is a powerful foe to beauty, a greater foe than age, as great even as worry. I walk every day, rain or shine, and I wear a corset waist and stout flat-heeled boots. I try not to worry, no matter what happens, and I never tire myself unnecessarily. My method is so very simple few women would care to try it. It has no balms or diets, and I don't even go in for fancy baths. A warm bath at night and a cold bath in the morning are good enough for me. On Sundays I don't have to go to the theater, but I don't devote it to lolling or receiving visitors. I have my usual amount of exercise and then devote most of the day to manicure and hairdresser. When one's hair is five feet long and very thick it is not an easy task to have it shampooed. How do I keep the same weight all the time? Why, by vigilance and determination. If I gain a pound I immediately stop drinking water at meals and give up sugar for a while. If the bones in my neck begin to show I eat bananas and cream and put an extra spoonful of oil in my salad. It's so simple, but, of course, it precludes much pleasure."

INVENTION AND APPETITE.

Great Thinkers Are Sometimes Great Eaters.

Sometimes the ability to meet a prolonged and highly productive mental strain is curiously linked with the ability to digest a hearty meal; which is another way of saying that great thinkers are sometimes great eaters. This may be especially the case where great thinkers have really had very little to eat. This story is told by a Chicago paper, evidently on the authority of Mr. Tesla himself, of a somewhat amusing experience which Nikola Tesla once had when in Mr. Edison's employ. Mr. Edison had a laboratory in Paris, and to this establishment, when a student, Nikola Tesla went to ask for work. The laboratory was in charge of a foreman named Fulton, who told Tesla that he would employ him, but only on the condition that he "would work." Tesla said he would, and he did, to such purpose that for two days and nights he did not close his eyes. At the end of the first fortnight he had not had forty-eight hours of sleep. The foreman here intervened and ordered the young man to rest. "We have both been under a strain," he said. "Let us go and get a good meal." He took Tesla to a restaurant, and ordered one of the biggest and thickest steaks that could be bought anywhere. It was enormous. With it there were various garnishings, which made for the two men a hearty meal. But when they had finished it, something in the young student's look led Mr. Fulton to say: "Is there anything else you would like? You are out with me, you know, and I wish you would order anything you want." Tesla looked around vaguely for a moment, as if making up his mind, and then said: "Mr. Fulton, if you don't mind, I would like another steak!"—Youths' Companion.

As to the Teeth.

Sound teeth not only add to one's comfort, but they prevent disease. Many diseases of the eye, ear, and cavities of the head are traceable to unsound teeth, and there is not a disease to which the body is liable that is not aggravated by an unhealthy condition of the teeth. Eye diseases are especially common as the results of poor teeth. These affections may vary from a simple dimness of sight to total blindness, the symptoms, however, usually disappearing when the teeth are attended to. Poor teeth are, moreover, a common cause of indigestion, for good digestion can take place only when the food is thoroughly masticated, and this demands sound and healthy teeth. Proper care of teeth during childhood often means prevention of much trouble later in life.

ITALY'S KING IS SLAIN.

An Anarchist Assassin Shoots Him Through the Heart.

THREE SHOTS ARE FIRED.

The King Falls Back and Dies in a Few Minutes—His Majesty Had Been Distributing Prizes at a Gymnastic Competition—Was Being Cheered by the Populace When Attacked.

King Humbert of Italy has been assassinated. He was shot at Monza, Italy, Sunday evening by a man named Angelo Bressi and died in a few minutes.

The king had been attending a distribution of prizes in connection with a gymnastic competition. He had just entered his carriage, with his aid-de-camp, amid the cheers of the crowd, new queen, was the Princess Helena, one of the seven daughters of Prince Nicholas, the ruler of the little principality of Montenegro. She was born in the royal palace in Cetinje in 1873.

Humbert's Daily Life.

From early youth Humbert subjected himself to the severest personal regulations, and for whatever he can be blamed he can never be said to have failed in any duty because of his love of luxury or his disinclination for physical fatigue or discomfort. He was always, winter and summer, up and at work at 5 o'clock in the morning. He performed everything, down to the smallest personal duty, for himself with military exactness and was as punctual in all engagements as a business man whose time is precious and who realizes the importance of not keeping other men of affairs waiting. Unless there was some accident or some unavoidable delay over which he had no control, or unless he was accompanied by the queen, who is notoriously behind time, Humbert appeared invariably the moment he was expected. Two seasons ago, when his life was attempted by an anarchist who sprang into his carriage as he was driving to the Russian embassy, the attempt avoided and order restored, the king ordered his attendant to proceed in haste to the destination, and upon his arrival made a formal apology for the delay, not mentioning the cause of the consequently excusable failure to come up to time. No sun was too scorching for Humbert to stand beneath, no wind too piercing for him to brave without a thought.

New King a Student.

The new king of Italy, Victor Emmanuel, prince of Naples, is about 5 feet tall. He has always been afflicted with disease. He walks with a limp and can barely mount a horse without assistance. He was born Nov. 11, 1869, and is not quite 31 years old. He is a great student, especially of electricity. He has the greatest admiration for Edison, and two years ago talked of visiting this country to see the American wizard at work in his own laboratory. The new king is splendidly educated. His first governess was an English woman, from whom he learned to speak English as perfectly as Italian and with whom he used to drive in a royal carriage every day to Villa Barghese, courteously responding with his little hand to the salutes of the military and of the loyal population. From the earliest years of his life his mother ruled the young prince very strictly, wishing his education to be thorough and complete. His father, then Prince Humbert, and his grandfather, Victor Emmanuel, were, however, more indulgent with him. Prince Victor was placed at an early age under the tuition of Colonel Osie, a severe and enlightened officer who, besides being a thorough soldier, is a distinguished Latin and Greek scholar.

Citizens Fight Burglars.

Citizens at midnight engaged in a street fight with a gang of robbers who had attempted to rob the bank of Richmond, Kan. Several shots were exchanged and it is thought one robber was wounded. Bloodhounds have been put on their trail. The robbers had blown the safe door into the street and the noise of the explosion brought a crowd to the scene. No money was secured.

May Be Father's Crime.

While going home from Lampasas, Texas, to his farm in company with his father, Winifred Shipp, a young man, was shot and killed. A coroner's jury today made an investigation, and on the evidence adduced William B. Shipp, the father of the boy, was arrested and jailed on a charge of murder.

peared invariably the moment he was expected. Two seasons ago, when his life was attempted by an anarchist who sprang into his carriage as he was driving to the Russian embassy, the attempt avoided and order restored, the king ordered his attendant to proceed in haste to the destination, and upon his arrival made a formal apology for the delay, not mentioning the cause of the consequently excusable failure to come up to time. No sun was too scorching for Humbert to stand beneath, no wind too piercing for him to brave without a thought.

The assassin was immediately arrested and was with some difficulty saved from the fury of the populace. He gave his name as Angelo Bressi, describing himself as of Prato, in Tuscany.

Assassin Saved from Lynching.

The murderer cynically avoided the crime. The prize distribution took place about 10 o'clock.

The news of the terrible assassination of King Humbert did not arrive at Rome until after midnight. Sig. Saracco, the premier, immediately summoned a meeting of the cabinet, and the ministers will start at the earliest possible moment for Monza.

The prince and princess of Naples were on board the Yela, yachting in the Levant.

Angelo Bressi, the assassin of King Humbert, according to a special dispatch from Rome, is an anarchist.

Life of King Humbert I.

King Humbert I. of Italy is the fourth Humbert, or Umberto, in descent from the dukes of Savoy. He was born at Turin March 14, 1844, the oldest son of Victor Emmanuel, king of Italy, and Marie Adelaide, daughter of the Austrian Archduke Rainer, viceroy of Lombardy. He was married in 1868 to his cousin, Margaret of Savoy, by whom he had one son, Prince Victor Emmanuel, who is married to Princess Helene of Montenegro.

Humbert I succeeded to the throne of Italy on the death of Victor Emmanuel Jan. 6, 1878, and he plunged at once into the tempestuous affairs of the kingdom with a zest that promised individual greatness that has not been fulfilled.

His brother, Amadeo, the ex-king of Spain, lives at the old homestead palace in Turin. His eldest sister is the wife of Prince Napoleon and his youngest sister is the mother of the king of Portugal, who translated Shakespeare into Portuguese.

Italy's New King and Queen.

Vittorio Emanuele Ferdinando Maria Gennaro, who succeeds his father to the throne of Italy, was the only son of King Humbert. He was born Nov. 11, 1869, and has the reputation of being a liberal, scholarly and soldierly man. He is a general in the Italian army and a patron of art and literature. He is a chevalier of the Order of the Golden Fleece and a Knight of the Garter. His wife, Italy's Novel Election Bet Made.

At Coldwater, Michigan, Arthur Williams, proprietor of a livery barn, and George Stebbins have made an up-to-date election bet. If Bryan is elected Williams is to support Stebbins' mother-in-law during the remainder of her natural life. Should McKinley be re-elected, Stebbins is pledged publicly to twist the tail of a vicious mule belonging to Williams once a day for three weeks, or until the twister is disabled permanently. The agreement is backed by a forfeit.

Mine Horror in Mexico.

Fire broke out in one of the chambers of the La Paz mines at Matehuala, state of San Luis Potosi, and it spread so rapidly that many miners were entombed and perished. Eleven bodies have already been brought to the surface and near twenty miners are missing. An effort was made to send down a rescuing party from the surface, but the terrific heat made it impossible. Ramon Gomez, foreman of the day shift, perished in an attempt to go down from the surface and save his comrades.

Pastor Dodges Revenue.

Rev. Joseph E. Mast, a divine at Middlebury, Ind., purchased liquor in barrel lots to avoid paying the retail price for whiskey, then disposed the same to members of his flock in small quantities. The scheme has been successfully practiced for some years, but Revenue Collector Gaunt unmasked the preacher. He will be forced to buy a dealers' license and to pay for all back transactions. The government stamps on the barrels were found unaccounted.

The Countess of Warwick

The Countess of Warwick is the best organizer among women in England and probably in the world, and her "business room" in old Warwick castle is the center of almost as many interests as Pierpont Morgan's offices or J. D. Rockefeller's private den. Only the countess is in business to help other people and not for her own gain.

This beautiful woman, although yet in her 30's, has been more talked about in the last twenty years than any other in England, except the royal family. She used to be one of the chums of the prince of Wales until the bacarat affair at Tranby Croft came out. It was she who got the credit of divulging the fact that one of the guests on that historic occasion had been charged with cheating.

An example of her ladyship's executive ability is her needlework school at her old home in Essex before her husband succeeded to the proud title of Earl of Warwick, and entered into possession of Warwick Castle. She employed an expert to teach some of the native girls the rarest secrets of embroidery. So precious was the work turned out that it commanded great prices, and the countess opened a shop for the sale of it in fashionable Bond street. One can see it there today with "Countess of Warwick" in bold letters on the sign. The shop makes money now and the profits go to a model lodging house club which the countess has established.

As soon as the needlework business was well on its feet the countess founded a hotel, where a large number of well-born English girls are trained, under the supervision of the college at Reading, in horticulture, dairying, poultry keeping, bee keeping, etc. This unique scheme has been in operation long enough to prove that its graduates can support themselves in polite farming quite as well as if they were men. The next scheme was The Woman's Agricultural Times, a monthly journal for women, to which the countess supplied a large portion of the editorial opinion.

Her next step was the establishment of a science and technical school on her Essex estate for farmers' boys and girls. She has also organized an effective system of charities at Warwick, and likewise founded a home for crippled children. But of all her undertakings the most extraordinary was to turn the Warwick acres over to a limited liability company, known as the Warwick Estates, Limited. The Earl, who is now at the front fighting the Boers, has at least the satisfaction of being a director of the company.

These are only a few samples of the countess' varied interests. In addition, she is a brilliant society leader, one of the best horsewomen in England, a linguist who speaks French, German and Spanish as readily as English, a clever artist, a good musician and an uncommonly bright writer.

Effect of Machinery.

Three industries are given by the New York Evening Telegram as typical of the saving effected by the substitution of machine for hand labor. Forty years ago one man took 750 hours to perforate 150,000 bank checks, for which he was paid $150. Now the same work is done by machinery, six men being employed an aggregate of nine hours and fifteen minutes. They get about double the wages per hour, yet the labor cost is only $3, instead of $150.

Codfish for the Aristocracy.

HALF-RATE EXCURSIONS TO UTAH.

While there are tourist rates to Salt Lake City and Ogden and return in effect every day, a special opportunity is afforded to visit the world's greatest sanitarium and health and pleasure resort through a series of cheap excursions to leave Chicago and St. Louis, August 7th and 21st. These excursions leave Omaha, St. Joseph, Kansas City, etc., etc., on August 8th and 22d. These dates are subject to change if found advisable. No place in the universe presents such a complement of attractions as Salt Lake City. It is the place of the great Mormon Temple and Tabernacle, the seat of ecclesiastical authority of the Saints and the home of their prophet. It is quaint, curious, and picturesque in environment. The summer climate is incomparable. There are cool mountain and like resorts near by, the greatest of which is Saltair Beach on Great Salt Lake. Here you can float upon the surface of the water almost a mile above sea level. Within the limits of the city are Warm Sulphur and Hot Springs, parks, drives and beautiful canyons. Furthermore, the trip to Utah by way of Denver and Colorado Springs over the Rio Grande Western Railway in connection with either the Denver & Rio Grande or Colorado Midland railroads is one of unequalled splendor. The scenery is the most magnificent in America. Send two cents postage for copy of "Salt Lake City—the City of the Saints," to Geo. W. O—C

When a preparation has an advertised reputation that is world-wide, it means that preparation is meritorious. If you go into a store to buy an article that has achieved universal popularity like Cascarets Candy Cathartic for example, you feel it has the endorsement of the world. The judgment of the people is infallible because it is impersonal. The retailer who wants to sell you "something else" in place of the article you ask for, has an axe to grind. Don't it stand to reason? He's trying to sell something that is not what he represents it to be. Why? Because he expects to derive an extra profit out of your credulity. Are you easy? Don't you see through his little game? The man who will try and sell you a substitute for CASCARETS is a fraud. Beware of him! He is trying to steal the honestly earned benefits of a reputation which another business man has paid for, and if his conscience will allow him to go so far, he will go farther, if he cheats his customer in one way, he will in another and it is not safe to do business with him. Beware of the CASCARETS substitute. Remember CASCARETS are never sold in bulk but in metal boxes with the long tailed "C" on every box and each tablet stamped C. C. C.

CROPS IN NEBRASKA.

There is a broad smile on the face of nearly every farmer in Nebraska, because of the satisfactory crop conditions in that remarkable state. In the northwest drouth has seriously injured the wheat yield. In the south again there has been more or less damage, but in Nebraska they have had reasonable, heavy rains, and not too much of them.

A full crop of oats and wheat will, from present indications, be followed by a bumper crop of corn. During the past week heavy rains all over the State have put this crop in fine condition, and it may break the record.

The expectation is that great numbers of people will go to Nebraska this fall, when the cheap harvest excursion rates are in effect, to investigate the country and confirm by actual experience the stories of prosperity so often heard. The tendency is on the part of renters, everywhere in the east, to seek homes beyond the Missouri river, where land is cheap and so very productive.

COACHING THROUGH YELLOWSTONE PARK.

To all lovers of outdoor life and to those fagged and worn out dyspeptics who need a bracing tonic in the shape of pure air and healthy exercise, we heartily recommend a trip to the Yellowstone. There you are carried back to the "good old coaching days," so charmingly described by Dickens, with the additional advantage of magnificent scenery, unsurpassed in any other part of the world. There are several so-called coach lines and camping outfits in the park, but the majority of them are a delusion and a snare. If you want to enjoy the trip thoroughly go via the Northern Pacific railway to Cinnabar and thence take the splendidly appointed coaches of the Yellowstone National Park Trans. Company for the drive through the park. These famous Concord coaches seat from five to seven persons, are drawn by four fine, well-broke horses, and are in charge of thoroughly experienced drivers. They are run on schedule time, and a late arrival on this line is a thing unknown. It is the largest stage line ever organized. At the present time they have 700 head of horses, 75 drivers and seating capacity for over 1,100 persons—representing an investment of over $200,000. The business is carried on with military precision. There is no rush, no hurry, or confusion.

To any of our readers contemplating a trip to this "wonderland" we earnestly advise them to assure themselves when purchasing tickets that they read via the Northern Pacific and the Yellowstone National Park Transportation Co.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY.

Notre Dame, Indiana.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of St. Mary's Academy which appears in another column of this paper. The 46th year opens September 4th, 1900. We do not need to expatiate upon the scholastic advantages of St. Mary's for the catalogue of the school shows the scope of work included in its curriculum, which is of the same high standard as that of Vassar and Bryn Mawr, and is carried out faithfully in the class rooms. We simply emphasize the spirit of earnest devotion which makes every teacher at St. Mary's loyally strive to develop each young girl attendant there into the truest, noblest, and most intelligent womanhood. Every advantage of equipment in the class rooms, laboratories and study rooms, every care in the matter of food and clothing, and exceptional excellence of climatic conditions—all of these features are found at St. Mary's, in the perfection of development only to be obtained by the consecration of devoted lives to educational Christian work, in a spot favored by the Lord.—The Fine Arts Journal.

"Graft" Senate Pages.

"Graft" is the proper name for all senate pages, especially if their real name is not known, or does not come to the mind instantly. It came about in this way: One of the first pages ever appointed by the senate was Grafton D. Henson. For a while Grafton was the only page in the senate chamber, and the calls for "Graft," as he was called, were very numerous and at times urgent. As new pages came into the senate from time to time the name Graft was given them and used until their names were so well known that they could be remembered.

COLORADO EXCURSIONS

At Low Rates Via the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad.

Visitors to the Farmers' National Congress, which meets at Colorado Springs August 21 to 31, 1900, will have a good opportunity to view the scenery of Colorado traveling via the Denver & Rio Grande railroad. The Rio Grande road, called the "Scenic Line of the World," will sell tickets from Denver, Colorado Springs or Pueblo to all points in Colorado at one-half the usual fare for the round trip. These tickets will be on sale August 28. Some are good for return within ten days and some are good for 30 days. On some of the trips stop-overs will be allowed.

On August 30 and 31 tickets will be sold to Salt Lake City and return at $20, good ten days in each direction; stop-overs allowed; final limit, thirty days.

A special excursion to the Royal Gorge will leave Colorado Springs on August 26 at 8 a. m. and arrive on the return at about 5 p. m. This trip will afford an opportunity to view Pueblo, "The Pittsburg of the West," and Florence, in the center of the oil and gas fields of Colorado.

The D. & R. G. has some thirty-five or forty tours called "circle" trips among the mountains, one of which is the famous 1,000 mile tour passing La Veta Pass, Poncha Pass, Toltec Gorge, Durango—Dolores Canon, Rico, Lizard Head Pass or Las Animas Canon, Silverton, Ouray—Cimmaron Canon, Black Canon, Marshall Pass and the Royal Gorge. Another noted tour is from Denver to Grand Junction and return, going via the narrow gauge line, climbing Marshall Pass and winding through Black Canon of the Gunnison, returning over the broad gauge through Glenwood Springs and the Grand River Canon, over Tennessee Pass, through Leadville and the Royal Gorge.

The shorter "circle" trips are all full of interest and wonderful scenery. Words cannot adequately describe the Colorado mountain scenery—it must be seen to be realized, and the more one sees it and gazes upon it the more wonderful and beautiful it becomes.

The famous Manitou Springs are only five miles from Colorado Springs. From Manitou starts the "Cog road" to the top of Pike's Peak, 14,147 feet above sea level. In the immediate vicinity of Colorado Springs and Manitou the Cheyenne Canons, Grand Caverns, Cave of the Winds, Rainbow and Minnehaha Falls, The Seven Falls, Ute Pass and the Garden of the Gods.

RECREATION AND HEALTH.

Both Can Be Secured at the Indiana Mineral Springs, Indiana.

Like the young man in springtime, whose fancy "lightly turns to thoughts of love," when summertime comes we all turn our thoughts to the consideration of the important question of where we shall go for rest, recreation and health. There are all kinds of health and pleasure resorts throughout this broad land of ours, some of them, unfortunately, anything but what their names imply, and apparently operated for no other purpose than to relieve the invalid and pleasure seeker, financially. So much so is this the case that it is indeed gratifying to the one seeking rest and recuperation from the cares of the business and social world, as well as the pain racked invalid, who is fortunate enough to discover a place where to use a popular expression, he "gets his money's worth."

One of the most interesting, picturesque and delightful places in this country is unquestionably the resort known as the Magna Mud and Lethal Water Cure, located at Indiana Mineral Springs, Indiana. Here come the overworked business man, the worn out devotee of society and the professional man on the verge of nervous prostration, as well as the sufferer from rheumatism, kidney and skin diseases for which the baths are especially beneficial. The place is also largely patronized by those who only seek pleasure and recreation, its location making it particularly adapted for this purpose. There are many romantic and beautiful spots and places of interest in the vicinity and it would be hard to find a section of country containing so many beautiful drives. The country is very hilly, but the roads are all graveled and kept in good condition. This is one of the things that makes the place especially attractive to those afflicted with rheumatism, as driving is about the only outdoor pleasure one crippled with rheumatism can indulge in. Some of the cures effected are really marvelous and many who have gone to the Magna Mud Cure as a last resort have returned home within a few weeks filled with renewed health and strength.

The accommodations, service, table and attendance is all that can be desired and the rates very reasonable indeed. The Springs is under the able management of Major H. L. Kramer and a postal card inquiry addressed to him will bring complete detailed information as well as a copy of the "Mudlavla Magazine," a unique and interesting publication.

Last week the corner stone was laid for a new $100,000 court house for Lee county at the county's seat, Dixon. How nice it would have been if we could have made that little mention read De Kalb county?

On Thursday DeKalb sent one lone spectator to the ball game.—Sycamore Advertiser. And that is just exactly one more than the Sycamore Woodmen sent to DeKalb's picnic.—DeKalb Advertiser. Here! here, boys. Don't don't.

The DeKalb County Telephone company will have its local exchange at DeKalb, in working order next week. There are about 125 subscribers on the list. The extension to Maple Park will be from Hinckley instead of Sycamore. Other extensions are contemplated for next year.—City Weekly, Sycamore.

A farmer recently drifted into a hardware store and when asked by the manager: "Don't you want to buy a bicycle to ride around your farm? They are cheap now. Can give you one for $45." "I'd sooner put the $35 into a cow," said the farmer. "But think how foolish you would look riding around the farm on a cow." "Oh, I don't know," said the farmer, "no more foolish, perhaps than milking a bicycle."—Ex.

Capt. Rogers, a former resident of Sycamore, but now serving with the 45th U. S. V., in the Philippine Islands, has an interesting letter in the City Weekly of last week. He gives an account of the atrocities committed by the Philippines which the commissioners and commanding officers of the army are reticent in communicating to the public; perhaps for political reasons, pro and con.

Charles Blazer, a fruit grower, near Washington, N. J., has at last succeeded in producing a cross between a raspberry and a strawberry. The product of this mingling of the two fruits he has called, for want of a scientific name a "raspberry-strawberry." The Star, of that city, in commenting on its qualities says, "The berries are of a rich red color. They vary in size from that of a raspberry to that of a large strawberry and have the genuine shape of the former."

A case was taken to the supreme court of Illinois and recently decided that a farmer must procure a license before he can sell hard- cider, as the stuff is an intoxicating liquor. The case was against W. B. Hewitt, of Chenoa, McLain county, who was selling to residents over in Livingston county. The defense argued that the provision of the law, which provides that farmers and fruit growers may sell their produce in any form except as a spirituous, vinous or malt liquor.—Ex.

A young sprig of manhood, who was probably out on the road for his first trip as a wholesale runner, was much disturbed Wednesday at the noon train on the C. M. & St. P. road. The train was reported ten minutes late and the lad was very much determined to have Agent Harvey explain to him what the meaning of ten minutes was; if it was a hour and a half on this "one horse pie." That was too much for "Battle Ax." He informed the lad that it was his belief that the train would come in about two o'clock; however the train came in only 13 minutes late.

Mr. McNealy's Long Island hen has a lively rival for the incubator purse in that Rhode Island biddy that lays a dozen eggs a day. Prosperity has evidently struck the hen coops.

The good people of Newark, Del., turned out the other evening and mobbed an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, bloodhounds and all. When patience ceases to be a virtue it usually employs the dull-thud mode of departure.

Besides water and gas works, two ferries, a street-car line, an abattoir and a factory for making the uniforms of municipal employes, Amsterdam also operates its local telephone system. Municipal operation began in 1896, at the expiration of a sixteen years' franchise granted by the city to the Bell interests, and the long-distance lines were assumed about the same time by the general government.

It seems strange that with all the boasted "scientific achievements of the age" man is still at the mercy of some of nature's most petty creatures. Take so small a thing as a mosquito. The greatest philosopher that has ever lived has not been able to frown down this insect, and no invention of science has deprived it of its sting. Country life is robbed of half its joy by this pest, and suburbanites over winter fires tell hideous tales of devastation and woe that it has caused.

It is a Settled Fact

In the minds of the People that
KELLOGG and ADAMS
Are Certainly taking the Lead in First Class
Buggies and Harnesses.

It has been noted that people with the most brains, and best thinkers go there and select from goods that are right.

It is an everyday occurrence that people drive into their Feed Barn, showing up a new Cheap Manufactured buggy they have purchased from dealer, or sent away by a catalogue and got 'em. They find their mistake, regretting they did not add a little to the price and get something Fully Guaranteed that would be a source of delight, in place of a cause for Irritation from its numerous defects.

Although these cheap goods are fully guaranteed, the guarantee is No Good.

KELLOGG & ADAMS have learned from years of experience there is no buggy on the market for the same money equal to the H. C. STAVER BUGGY of CHICAGO formerly the Staver & Abbott Buggy Co.

They are also having a large HARNESS trade, buying in large lots of 100 sets, enabling them to UNDERSELL any ordinary dealer. And their FLY NETS will beat the band.

There is No Flies on their LIVERY STOCK.

People seem to appreciate their large 10 CENT HITCHING BARN fully as much during the hot fly time as in snowtime.

Reform.

Oh! why should we mortals be stuck up with pride,
When our clothes are sweaty and stuck to the hide;
When our collars are all melted and starch is all gone,
And we long to appear without anything on.

Oh! why don't they change the style in July,
When we scorch with heat and sizzle and fry,
Why can't we shuck off our clothes and go nude,
Without shocking the feelings of some cranky old prude?

If I had my way I'd strip off everything,
And if the prudes kicked, I'd not care a ding;
The customs and fashions and laws I would scorn,
And go about naked just like I was born. (Judge.)

Friday's Horse Sale.

The horse sale last Friday turned out to be rather a quiet affair owing to the exceptional fine weather which prevailed on that particular day. The farmers had been put behind with their work and nothing would induce them to leave their fields at that particular time. The Woodmen Picnic at DeKalb may have been an attraction for a few but we think not to any great extent. Buyers were here in force and managed to purchase a few good animals. One very gratifying feature was that there were none of those disreputable gypsies which usually infest the horse sales at other towns. Everyone admits that it was a bad day for a starter, but extra efforts will be put forward to make the next sale a success in every particular.

Sunday Socialist Meeting.

As announced last week, Mr. Berlyne, a representative of the Socialist party, delivered an address to a small audience in the grove in the rear of the school house last Sunday.

His theme was directed principally against the capitalists and the trusts. In the course of his remarks he stated that six years ago his party polled one vote in DeKalb county, four years ago two votes and two years ago rallied a total of twelve in the county. His hopes are large for this county, and he expects to see a large increase at the next election.

Our townsman, J. Franssen was on hand and handed out Socialist literature to some of the crowd. This was the first campaign speech in Genoa and from now on we will hear of them often. Campaign taffy will be sweet and thick but after election it soon sours.

Peculiar People.

How peculiar some people are about having a mention of themselves made in the papers, although they love to read about the doings of others. We are often accosted by people and told that someone was doing something or had been somewhere and we failed to say "a word about it." Of course we are really sorry for it but some times we fail to catch everything. We try to get all the news but its no use to try, so we will get all we can.

Not long since a man was arrested and arraigned before a magistrate and fined. It happened that this officer was publishing a newspaper and the prisoner realizing the situation exclaimed that of "course this will be in the morning paper."

Quite recently a couple of young ladies who were out riding came to a threshing machine which had broken through a bridge. The young ladies were so frightened of the men with the machine that they went back and got a lady at a farm house to help them past the bridge.

The Miller

Improved

Manure
Pulverizer
and Spreader.

Gullford, Winnebago Co., Ill., July 30, 1900

Dear sir:- I bought a MILLER MANURE SPREADER of Cohoon & Stanley about April 1, and spread about ten acres with it. I had two horses on it that weighed about fourteen (1400) pounds each and they handled it without any trouble. I am well satisfied with the spreader.

It will spread all kinds, from the finest rotted to the coarsest cornstalk or straw manure. I think one man can haul out twice as much manure in one day with a spreader as he can spreading it the old way, and besides just think of the difference in the work.

Yours Respectfully,

EDWARD FITCH.

EXPECT MID-AIR FIGHT.

Two Steeple Climbers Have Quarrel on St. Paul's Spire.
Down-town New York came very near being treated to a battle between two rival steeple climbers while they were on the top of St. Paul's tall spire. The tragic possibilities of a fist fight in mid-air were such as to make the thousands of spectators—on solid sidewalks and pavements 155 feet below the two men—shiver with apprehension. There is intense rivalry in the steeple-jack business. Two men between whom the rivalry is especially keen are G. V. Wing of Zanesville, Ohio, the "Wizard of the Steeple," and Robert Merrill of Arizona, known as "Steeple Bob." They quarreled in mid-air.

Merrill had the contract to repair the steeple and he employed Wing to help him. Wing has a business manager, Charles S. Kendall. Mrs. Merrill says that when she went to the church during the forenoon she found that Kendall had posted himself in the crowd and informed everybody that "Steeple Bob" had made a failure of the job and that the church people had sent for the "Wizard."

White Caps Whip Idle Men.
White caps living in the mountains in the vicinity of White county, East Tennessee, have decreed that all men who live in that neighborhood must work, and with the lash are enforcing the order. A couple of families living on the mountain above Sparta, were some time ago ordered to leave the community, and failing to comply, their respective heads were taken from bed in the night and unmercifully whipped. Both men were stripped of their clothing and the lash applied across their backs. The charge against the victims was unwillingness to work and pilfering. Saturday night, for the second time, the whip was used as an incentive to industry in that section. The white caps took out three men, tied them to trees, and whipped them severely.

Five Passengers Are Hurt.
The Baltimore and Ohio Duquesne limited from Pittsburg collided Tuesday morning with a local freight at Mount Savage Junction, three miles west of Cumberland, Md. Five persons were injured, none seriously. The injured: Frank Whitelaw, Cleveland, O.; cut about the head and shoulders; Mrs. Mary Dolan, Pittsburg, Pa.; spine injured; Dominick Cartney, Italian, cut about face; Henry Douglas, Lonaconing, Md., passenger fireman, bruised in jumping. The passengers were all injured in being thrown by the sudden stop. The accident was the result of the heavy fog.

Runs Through Open Switch.
The eastbound mail on the Indianapolis, Decatur and Western railway near Camargo, Ill., and collided with the west-bound mail, which was waiting for it on the siding. John Shindorf, the engineer, succeeded in getting clear from the engine before it struck, but fell on the track, striking his head with terrific force. He may recover. Artie Giggis, fireman, attempted to follow, but was caught between the tender and cab as the train struck, and died before he could be released. The train, when it went into the siding, was running about twenty-five miles an hour, and the passengers on both trains were badly shaken up, though no one was seriously injured.

Have Yellow Fever.
A dispatch has been received at the War Department from Havana which says General Lee has obtained information that leaves no doubt about the existence of yellow fever in the First Infantry at Pinar del Rio, and that nine deaths there last month reported as pernicious malaria are now believed to have been yellow fever. Dr. Reed and a specialist sent to Pinar del Rio by General Lee have reported that yellow fever exists among the troops. The dispatch also says that there are five suspected cases of yellow fever among the soldiers of the First Infantry stationed at Guanajay.

Negro Tries Train Hold-Up.
Just after the Missouri Pacific train No. 1 left Atchison for the north a masked robber entered the express car, covered John Kreiser, the messenger, with a revolver and demanded the contents of the express safe. Kreiser convinced him that the safe could not be opened until the train reached Omaha, and after taking a silver watch from an express package, the robber ordered the messenger to apply the air brake. When the train slowed up half a mile out of Atchison, the robber got off and escaped. While in the car his mask slipped down and revealed the fact that he was a negro.

MANY RIOTS IN NEW ORLEANS

The riots in New Orleans recall several famous outbreaks of past years, which threw the crescent city of the south into a state of turmoil and disorder. In each instance the racial problem has been the direct or indirect cause of the trouble, and in the days following closely on the civil war the political conditions were such that outbreaks were frequent. It has not always been the negro problem which has precipitated these upheavals, as was witnessed in the riots of 1890, the wrath of the people at that time being directed toward the Italian element of the city, the charge being made at that time that the Mafia society had caused the murder of the chief of police of the city.

The first riot of any importance in New Orleans was soon after the close of the war. It had its inception in the political troubles which then were rampant throughout the state, but the real hostilities were brought about when the colored population of the city sought to take an active part in the deliberations of the two political parties then struggling for supremacy.

It had been suggested by the federal authorities that the constitution of the state be revised in certain particulars so as to conform with the new order of things following the war. The sentiment became so strong in 1866 that the governor left the state for a short time after announcing that he would not call a special convention to take up the matter of revision.

On July 30 R. H. Howell, a judge of the supreme court, was selected to call a convention, which was to be held in the Mechanics' Institute in Drydes street. Shortly after 11 o'clock on the morning of the date mentioned, a large number of negroes, headed by the American flag, marched toward the meeting place amid the hooting and yelling of the whites, who had assembled on the sidewalks.

When the procession had reached Canal street, near Burgundy, a carman pushed one of the negroes from the sidewalk and in another instant a shot was fired. It was found impossible to transact any business in the convention and an adjournment was taken. In the meantime the whites had armed themselves and soon after 12 o'clock a pitched battle was fought in the streets surrounding the institute. The result was that fifty negroes and two white men were killed and fully 300 of both races wounded. The United States army officers interfered and peace was restored after several days of excitement.

During the interim between 1866 and 1873 there were numerous disturbances of a minor character in New Orleans, but it was not until March of the latter year that matters again took on a serious aspect.

It was then that the so-called Pinchbeck legislature passed certain laws which were distasteful to certain of the white element in politics. Pinchbeck, the lieutenant governor, was colored, and for this reason the feeling became all the more intense. The state was governed practically by two governors—Kellogg and McEnery—and after many weeks of skirmishing the political bomb burst in the streets of New Orleans, and several days' rioting followed. Several negroes and whites were killed and the hospitals were filled with the wounded.

In March, 1891, New Orleans again attracted the attention of the world by indulging in a riot, which led to the severing of friendly ties between the United States and Italy and came near resulting in a war between the two nations. The lynching of eleven Sicilians by a mob was the direct cause of the departure of the Italian minister from Washington.

On Oct. 15, 1890, David C. Hennessy, chief of the New Orleans police force, was shot near his own door at night, and died without being able to say anything more than the "dagos" had shot him. Many murders and assaults had been committed in the city by Italians, and in the majority of instances the perpetrators escaped punishment. Chief Hennessy had been instrumental in the extradition of Esposito, a fugitive Italian bandit, and had proved a terror to the lawless element among the Italians.

The murder of the chief caused intense excitement among the working people, and was intensified when it

TARANTULAS GROWING SCARCE

Arizona Man Has Never Gotten Over Horror of Them.

"I've seen the famous 'Gila monster' often," said an Arizona man in the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "It is simply an uncouth, horrible looking lizard, and I'd rather encounter a hundred of them than a single tarantula. I'll never forget the first time I ever saw one of those giant spiders. I was living near Phoenix then, and had gone out to have a look at a mineral deposit recently discovered on my land. The place was some distance away, and I was walking across a stretch of level, sandy country, when I noticed a queer round object, about the size of a man's clinched fist, lying near a little pile of rocks. It looked for all the world like one of those snarls of hair that women take out of their combs, but when I drew nearer I saw that it was alive, and recognized it from descriptions as a desert tarantula. Its legs were all drawn under its body at the time, and it seemed indescribably lumpy and sluggish, but as I stooped down to get a closer view it made a sudden, quick became noised about that the Mafia society had conspired to kill the officer. Six men were charged with the murder of Hennessy and three others were held as accessories.

After a lengthy trial the men were acquitted by order of the court. The verdict proved unsatisfactory to the people of the city, and charges were made that the powerful Mafia society had used money to bribe the witnesses and court officials.

Before the Sicilians had been released from the jail a committee of fifty was organized and after a mob had been formed the frenzied men broke into the jail on March 14 and captured eleven Sicilians who were there confined. They were marched to the public square overlooking the old parish prison and while thousands of people lined the streets and housetops they were hanged to trees and poles and afterward riddled with bullets.

An Informal Review.

Governor Crane of Massachusetts does not place much confidence in formal reviews of the state militia, and, therefore, he surprised the Massachusetts troops the other day by appearing in their camp unannounced, and ordered an impromptu review.

The annual death rate of Geneva, Switzerland, is only 14.7 a thousand.

SON SQUARE, FAMOUS NEW ORLEANS PARK. (In This Square Was Organized the Mob That Killed the Italian Prisoners in the Mafia Trouble in 1891.)

Chinese and Japanese Merchants Compared.

Japan, from her proximity and kinship to China, ought to have the advantage in competing for the trade of China, but Japanese merchants and manufacturers suffer from inexperience and also from a streak of dishonesty and unreliability which greatly impairs their credit, not only in the east, but also in Europe and America. For this reason Japan is doing her exporting and importing with European countries and America through foreign houses resident in Japan.

The Chinese merchant, on the other hand, is famous throughout the east for his commercial honesty. He may cheat you in making a bargain, but once his contract is made he holds to it, whether written or oral. This commercial integrity in a country where the government is so corrupt is due to the fact that in China, unlike Japan, merchants have always been near the top of the social ladder.

STEAMER WATT SINKS.

Collides with the Maruba in Detroit River.

The most disastrous collision of the season occurred between the steamer James Watt of the Rockefeller fleet and the steamer Maruba of the Federal Steel company in the Detroit river at Grassy Island. The Watt was sunk and the Maruba was barely saved from the same fate. The latter ship had a large hole punched in her bow, and was badly wrecked. The Watt was bound down with iron ore. The Maruba was coming up the river without cargo. Neither ship was insured, as it is against the Rockefeller system to carry any insurance. The sunken boat is one of the largest on the lakes, being 425 feet long by 48 feet beam. The job of getting her afloat will tax the ability of the best lake wreckers.

Great Distress at Cape Nome.

The official reports of Capt. Tuttle of the revenue cutter Bear, dated July 6, at Nome City, and of Capt. Roberts of the revenue cutter Manning, dated July 14, at Dutch Harbor, have been received at the treasury department. They contain details of the arduous work of the revenue cutters in relieving distress along the Alaskan coast. Capt. Tuttle says: "It is estimated that there are within a radius (taking the United States postoffice at Nome as a center) of ten miles, 25,000 people. Most of them are living in tents either on the beach or tundra. The sanitary condition of the portion of the city where houses have been erected is simply frightful. Typhoid fever is raging and smallpox steadily gaining. All possible efforts are being made to stamp out the smallpox, but with so many thousands of tents, scattered over miles of territory, it is impossible for the health authorities to keep track of all cases. Gen. Randall is commanding with a firm hand, and having troops at his disposal will maintain order until such time as civil government is organized. I understand the natives all along the Siberian coast are suffering from influenza and pneumonia and not disposed to trade for reindeer at present."

Passing of George Dixon.

"It's no use trying to go on, Tom," this arm feels as if it were dead," George Dixon, the great little colored fighter, told Tom O'Rourke, his faithful manager, at the end of the sixth round of his fight with Tommy Sullivan at the Coney Island boxing arena Tuesday night. O'Rourke picked up the arm that was then hanging lifeless by the side of the fighter, and as he pressed his fingers into the flesh Dixon uttered a cry of pain. Then the bell sounded for the beginning of the seventh round, but Dixon did not even look up. One of the seconds in the corner tossed a big towel into the center of the ring and the passing of George Dixon had been announced. A physician was called hastily and it was found at once that the fighter had suffered a compound fracture of the left arm between the wrist and the elbow, one of the bones being badly splintered.

Increase of 2,010 Pensioners.

The forthcoming annual report of the commissioner of pensions, Mr. Evans, will show a grand total of 992,528 pensioners on the rolls on July 1 last, an increase of 2,010 for the year. The figures on which the report will be based are now complete and ready for incorporation in the report. They show that on July 1, 1899, there were 991,519 pensioners on the rolls. During the year 40,645 original pensions were granted and 4,699 names were restored to the rolls. To offset these 43,344 names were dropped from the rolls during the year, including 35,809 by reason of deaths, 909 by remarriages of pensioners and 6,616 for other causes, leaving the total number on the roll at the first of this month 993,528.

Attack on Negro Laborers.

The importation of a large number of negroes into Donivan, Mo., by the Bagwell Timber company of St. Louis, nearly precipitated a race war. No negroes are allowed to live in the town and on their arrival the citizens undertook to drive them out. Several colored men were handled roughly and a number of white men and negroes were injured. Sheriff Merrill came to the rescue and an armed posse is guarding the colored laborers. The citizens are determined the negroes shall not be allowed to remain and further trouble is expected.

In Honor of Indians.

To commemorate the enduring friendship of the Catawaba Indians for the whites and to honor the men of that tribe who in 1861 entered the Confederate army and fought for the South, a monument was dedicated at Fort Mill, S. C. An Indian brave, chiseled from marble stands upon a granite pedestal, his bow bent and arrow on string. On the base are inscriptions recounting the services of the Indians in the civil war, the names of those who fought and those who fell. Many of the Indians were slave holders.

Causes Millie Mills to Close.

The prevailing trouble in China has made it necessary to bring about a curtailment of production in cotton manufacturing in Biddeford, Me., and it was announced that the mills of the Peppercell Manufacturing company will be shut down from Aug. 15 until Sept. 4. About one-half of the goods manufactured by these mills goes to China. About 3,000 hands are affected by the notice.

Capt. Healy Insane.

Captain Michael Healy, of the United States revenue cutter service, in command of the handsome cutter Hugh McCulloch, was brought to Port Townsend, Wash., the other day in that vessel from the north hopelessly insane and dangerous to himself and those with whom he comes in contact. He is in the marine hospital there now in a straight jacket, having become so violent that this was the only means of restraining him.

Capt. Healy.

He entered the service of the United States government in March, 1865, and has continued on active duty therein ever since, except for an interim of four years, from June, 1896, to May, 1900, during which time he was suspended on half pay.

Progress of Russia.

Official statistics published by the Russian government show the remarkable progress made by the Czar's dominions during recent years. During 1899 the capital of new companies organized amounted to 358,354,812 rubles, or $187,000,000, against 256,237,000 rubles in 1898, 129,363,000 in 1895, and 63,415,000 in 1890. During the last hundred years companies with a capital of 2,383,000,000 rubles have been organized, of which companies representing 1,200,000,000 rubles, or more than half were formed in the last five years. Recent industrial incorporations in the United States have shown that capital stock is not a true test of growth, but it so happens that the Russian companies earned good-sized dividends on their capital, which can not contain much water. Thus, in 1899 the average dividend paid was 11.53 per cent, or 618,000,000 rubles, on 1,023,060,000 rubles of capital.

Col. Dickman.

In Lieut.-Col. Joseph P. Dickman of the 26th U. S. infantry, Maj.-Gen. Chaffee secures for his staff one of the best officers in the U. S. army. Col. Dickman, previous to his appointment as major and later lieutenant colonel in the 26th, was captain in the 8th cavalry. He is a native of Ohio and was appointed to West Point from Dayton. As a student in the military school he displayed marked capacity, was very popular, and was graduated well up in the class of 1881. Having been reared on a farm, and being an expert rider, his bent was toward the cavalry branch of the service, to which he was assigned. Before hostilities broke out between the United States and Spain Dickman served in the west, and down on the Texas border where, in 1893, with 20 men, he succeeded in rounding up two notorious revolutionary leaders on Baluarte creek, in Texas. This he did after a long and hazardous night march, surrounding a house full of desperate characters and taking his men without firing a shot.

Andree's Fate.

News comes from Fort William, Ontario, that some Indians who were hunting on the east coast of Hudson Bay last spring found a large quantity of wreckage, the bodies of two men and a dying man, whose language they could not understand. From their description of the wreckage there can be no doubt it was the remnants of a balloon. The Hudson Bay officials are convinced that the victims are Andree's party and have sent out men, guided by the same Indians, to find and bring back such evidence as will identify them, a task which will be easy, as the Indians assert that there were books and papers strewn about, which, singularly enough, they did not bring back with them. There is some prospect now that the fate of Andree and his companions may be definitely known, and that the papers, if they still remain, may give important details of this tragedy in "the far, far North."

States and was purchased in Paris absent from her apartments in the Champs Elysees, and although the Paris police have been notified, no trace of the missing gems have been found. The missing necklace was considered one of the finest in the United States, containing in the center one large diamond of exceptional purity, while two smaller gems act as guards on each side. Over a score of smaller diamonds compose the remainder of the sparkling string.

City Supplies Milk.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has gone into the dairy business. The city has bought a farm three miles beyond the city limits and has there established the headquarters of the city milk department. The work is under the charge of a trained nurse, Miss Ruth Jones. She gets up every morning at 5 o'clock and superintends the milking of the cows. She sees in the first place that each of the milkmen carefully washes his hands before he begins work. Then each cow is covered with a sheet in order to prevent dust or hair from falling into the pail. Before being used the sheets are sprinkled with disinfectants. The milk is put up in clean glass bottles, and after being sterilized is sent in to the city milk depots, where it is sold at the rate of a cent a bottle.

Would Not Marry a Noble.

Among the many fair ones who resort to Newport this season none will be more sought after than Miss May Goelet, the 20-year-old daughter of the famous merchant of New York, recently deceased. Her debut in society will be made at Ochre Court, the palatial summer home of the Goellets, and those who have had the pleasure of her acquaintance unite in pronouncing her the loveliest of the debutantes of many years past. Upon his return from Cuba he was assigned with the Seventh at Fort Brady, was later transferred to Fort Sheridan, and was then sent to the Philippines, where he joined the Ninth. He is a brave soldier and bears scars of severe wounds. Mrs. Coolidge is at present living at Fort Sheridan.

Woman As Coroner.

Miss Lillian E. Hall, of Winfield, Kan., is probably the only woman in the world to hold the office of coroner. She entered upon the discharge of her duties last week. Miss Hall was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Cowley County's coroner by Governor Stanley. The only experience she ever had in the coroner's office was that of stenographer. She is 26 years old and is one of the most popular young women of Winfield. Her education has been limited to the common schools of Cowley County.

Kites Soar to Save Life.

Dr. F. W. F. Riehl of Alameda, Cal., has designed a kite which, he claims, will save many human beings from perishing at sea and prove invaluable aids to the life-saving crews along our coasts. Dr. Riehl served as an officer in the German army during two wars and is highly recommended both by his government and the officers with whom he was associated. He has been in this country a number of years. He claims to have got his kite-flying idea from reading the great storm scene in Dickens' "David Copperfield." The graphic description of the drowning of Ham and Steerforth, while the multitude stood helplessly by, so impressed the doctor that he wondered if kites could not be used in such a terrible emergency. To wonder with him was to try, as he has done successfully on more than one occasion in both Germany and America. A few days ago he gave an exhibition at the ocean beach at Alameda. After swimming out through the surf about 400 yards he lay motionless on his back and let the kite tow him ashore again.

Bars Railroad Men.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad has notified certain classes of its employees that it does not wish them to be candidates for political offices. One reason given for this order is that a man cannot do satisfactorily the work he is hired to do if he is at the same time running for office. Another reason given is that if men in the employ of a road are in pursuit of offices the public will be led to believe the railroad is promoting their candidacy for its own selfish purposes, and will take a dislike to that road.

THE WAR WITH THE BOXERS

Severe Battles in the Empire of China.

The Empress Dowager Is Said to Have Moved Her Capital to Hsian Fu—Emperor Appeals to President McKinley for Aid in Restoring Order.

Shanghai message that Li Hung Chang asserts some foreign ministers already en route to Tien-Tsin. First serious outbreak in Mukden took place on June 15, when imperial troops and rebels massacred missionaries and converts in cathedral. Placards posted in Canton province blaming converts for all troubles and urging natives to kill them. Active preparations in Yangtze region for war. Massacre of over 600, including Italian bishops and priests, in southern Hunan. Murders in Shan Li. Li Hung Chang may go to Poo Chow. Rear Admiral Kempf's report declared Chinese government in sympathy with boxers.

Friday, July 27.

Admiral Remy telegraphed Washington heavy re-inforcements thrown into Pekin, making it impossible for allies to capture city except with overwhelming force. He said allies have 28,000 men at Tientsin, but impossible to move before middle of August. Secretary Hay, through Consul Goodnow, Shanghai, answered Li Hung Chang this government cannot entertain proposition to have ministers delivered at any point outside Pekin until free communication established between Conger and Washington. Kaiser William's final orders to troops sailing for China were to give no quarter, take no prisoners, and teach Chinese such a lesson they would not even wink at Germany for next thousand years. Kaiser said to have appealed to England, Russia, Austria and Italy for harmony. All foreigners and many native Christians reported killed at Tooting. Massacre at Shansi. Disturbances increasing in all directions. Pillage at Kwantung. Wholesale murder at Pao-Ting-Fu. Czar said to have confession from Chinese ambassador that movement of Chinese soldiers to front was ordered by imperial government. Rumor Prince Tuan killed by own Boxers.

Sunday, July 30.

Chinese legation in Berlin received word from Sheng, director general of telegraphs, that General Tung Fuh Siang at Pekin threatens to kill all legationaries if allies advance on Pekin. Note of powers to China on July 5 said members of government at Pekin would be held personally responsible for injury to foreigners. New imperial edict orders viceroys and governors to negotiate peace with powers whose ministers are held as hostages, to prevent advance of allies and escape of aliens from interior. Imperial decree of July 24 declared to Li Hung Chang the unwisdom of either killing envoys or sending them to Tientsin. Consuls at Shanghai decided to ask their governments for protection. Shanghai report Boxers massacred 2,000 to 3,000 Christians at Pas-Ting-Fu on July 8. Chinese General Li Ho Keh ordered troops to exterminate Christians. Sheng reported admitting murders and announcing massacre of 1,000 at Kwang Ping Fu. Wave of blood spreading and general rising along the Yang-tse-Kiang expected on Aug. 1. Secretary Hay said situation unchanged, waiting for reliable news. Minister Wu getting nervous. Government still urging on powers earliest possible advance of allies on Pekin. Rockhill en route to China. Mrs. M. S. Woodward of Evanston, Ill., wrote her husband from Pekin on June 11 that she had a revolver and intended, if assailed, to use three bullets on Boxers, one to kill her daughter, Ione, and another to kill herself.

Monday, July 30.

Doubt at Washington as to safety of Ministers at Pekin removed by dispatch of Consul Fowler, Chefoo, saying American, German, Russian, British, and half Japanese and French legations safe on July 17 and attack ceased, but might be renewed. German secretary of legation at Pekin conveyed same news to consul at Tientsin. Sir Claude Macdonald sent message to British admiral, dated July 21, stating after legations had fought from June 20 to July 16 armistice was declared, though Chinese cordon was still around legation, where women and children were safe and all survivors well. On July 8, Americans and British trapped Chinese in night attack and killed 1,000. Secretary Hay much pleased and Minister Wu delighted at safety of legations. Secretary Root ordered two more batteries of Seventh Artillery to China. General Chaffee reached Taku. Indications advance of allies to be hastened. Chinese believed frightened at threatened march on Pekin.

Tuesday, July 31.

Minister Conger heard from indirectly through Colonel Daggett, Fourteenth Infantry, at Chefoo, to whom Conger wrote saying truce since July 16, provisions for several weeks, little ammunition, all safe, well. Pekin message, July 21, to Tien Tsin said China declared war June 20 and put total dead in legations at 63; wounded, 35; Chinese killed, 2,000. Letter from Lieutenant Colonel Shiba, Pekin, dated July 23, received at Tien Tsin, said legations attacked continually, night and day, by Chinese soldiers and likely unable to hold out more than week. Sixty Europeans in all killed. March of allies on Pekin to be hastened. Chinese legationaries in London insisted allies' advance on Pekin will provoke general rising and massacre. Chinese authorities notified no arrangements to be made to keep allied troops in Tien Tsin pending delivery there of foreign ministers, without latter's consent. Chinese minister at Berlin transmitted dispatch saying legationaries would be permitted free communication with their government. Li Hung Chang memorialized throne asking safe conduct of ministers and cessation of murders. Chinese again bombarded Amur capital July 26 and 28. Russian consul at Kashgar reported alarming situation. Russians busy in Manchuria.

Bressi Is Silent.

"Tell them I came from America on purpose to kill Humbert. I have only just arrived from America and know no one. I spent a day at Bologna and then came on to Milan."

The above is the only statement the murderer of King Humbert would make to the carabinieri who captured him. While he was being questioned he maintained for a long time a sullen silence, paying more attention to the binding up of the wounds received from the infuriated populace than to his questioners. Finally the shouts of the people who were demanding the assassin's life became so loud that Bressi turned to the captain of the guard and cynically asked him to deliver the above message to the mob. Italy fears a general revolt may follow the murder.

Firemen's Tournament Ends.

Eight thousand people attended the last day of the Illinois firemen's tournament at La Salle. A feature at the driving park was the marriage of an Edwardsville (Ill.) couple—William Rausch and Miss Ida Faust. John J. Cassidy, police magistrate, performed the ceremony amid the plaudits of the crowd. The best average in the track events was made by the Gibson City team, which is thus the champion of Illinois. Young Tars in Practice.

Naval militiamen of Illinois are being instructed in target practice on board the gunboat Michigan by a nephew of Admiral Dewey, Lieutenant Commander William Winder, in command of the war vessel. In June, 1899, Lieutenant Winder was assigned to the Michigan as chief executive officer. He was later advanced to the rank of lieutenant commander and given command of the ship. Winder took part in the battle of Manila Bay as an officer on the Raleigh. Camp Dewey, at South Chicago, was awakened by the bugle at 5 o'clock Thursday morning. At 8 o'clock the first division of the second ship's crew boarded cutters for the Michigan, lying a half mile off. The lake was choppy and a northeast wind was blowing. The waves tossed the cutters about like corks. The young tars manned the oars well enough, and when they reached the gunboat scrambled up its sides. In a few minutes four of the militiamen were observed holding their hands to their stomachs and wearing woe-begone expressions. Every lurch of the vessel seemed to give them pain. Finally they confessed they believed they were sick. Commander Winder instructed the steward to care for them. Floating barrels and spars were used as targets, and many of the boys showed their proficiency in hitting the mark.

Paroled Convict Shot Down.

John Butler, a paroled convict, was shot and instantly killed at Joliet by Policeman John Kelly. With five others Butler was engaged in a drunken carousal along the railroad tracks near Cleveland avenue. Officer Kelly went after the men, who fled at his approach. Four drew revolvers and fired. Officer Kelly then pulled his revolver, and a running chase followed. As they neared Chase avenue Butler was seen to fall, and by the time the officer reached him he was dead. Butler was recently released from the penitentiary on parole. He had a bad record. In his clothes was found a revolver. The weapon was cocked and Butler was apparently in the act of getting ready to fire at the officer.

Tanner Reviews the Militia.

Gov. Tanner and staff arrived at Camp Lincoln, Springfield, and were formally received by the officers and men of the 3d brigade, Illinois national guard. The usual review and parade in honor of the commander-in-chief practically ended the week's tour of duty. Gov. Tanner held an informal reception and shook hands with hundreds of excursionists who had come down from Monmouth to see the review. Adj.-Gen. Reece entertained all of the brigade officers at dinner. Covers were laid for 130 guests.

Museum Wants Peter Smith.

The fame that comes to all heroes of successful adventures has come to Peter Smith. A Chicago museum, realizing that the only man who passed through the maelstrom of the windage basin, in the sanitary canal, at Joliet, would be a great drawing card, has, it is said, offered Mr. Smith $100 a week as an attraction. Mr. Smith is rapidly recovering from the effects of his perilous trip, and was able to get out of doors. The doctors found only a small fracture of the bone in the leg.

The Early Bird gets the Worm.

Composed by John W. Hazlet, Age 14 years.

Out in the dewy flush of morn,
Furling the furrows and hoeing the corn,
And ere the sun rises up in his might,
Sending out his burning darts of light,
Your work is done and you may rest.
Of all the day you have chosen the best.

While the sloughful rise in the sweltering heat,
And vainly strive at their tasks to keep,
With the sun beating down in his fiery zeal,
(Enough to melt a will of steel.)
You may enjoy the grateful shade,
That your thrift and energy has made.

"Plow deep while the sluggards sleep
And you shall have corn to sell and corn to keep!"
For if you'd get the best worm be the earliest bird
And be out and a hustling ere the masses have stirred,
If you'd be the earliest and get the best choice,
Don't wait to be asked to raise up your voice.

If you are timid the world will not wait;
If you want to be asked you'll be rather late.
The world is a clock with an endless spring,
And it can't be stopped for every small thing.
So when you've got a good place stand firm,
And don't be afraid to hold onto your worm.

Go early to bed and early to rise,
And you'll be healthy and wealthy and wise.
Get up when the rooster crows, at four,
Don't wait for the sun to knock at your door,
Never fear the old frost king's lance
And for the worm you'll stand a good chance.

There is considerable interest in the Belgian hare. From Kansas City where, at least as a fad, the breeding of these animals began, it extended to Los Angeles, Cal., where the craze spread over the whole southern part of that state. Gradually the boom spread to San Francisco where Belgian hare clubs were formed and the propagation of the rabbit was given further impetus. As fine breeding supplied good eating, the fad evolved into a business which, as hares brought $2 to $4, became very profitable.

Satisfaction must be expressed at the present activity of the historical societies in the middle west. They realize that the earlier the work of collecting and preserving the early records of the states is begun the better it will be done, and that each year it is postponed valuable material is lost. The German-American Historical Society of Illinois will appreciate this in the work it is about to undertake in the collection of information relative to early settlers of German ancestry. The data which it has decided to gather will throw an interesting light upon these sturdy pioneers who did so much to build up the middle west.

The Miller

Improved

Manure Pulverizer and Spreader.

Gullford, Winnebago Co., Ill., July 30, 1900.

Dear Sir:— I bought a MILLER MANURE SPREADER of Cohoon & Stanley about April 1, and spread about ten acres with it. I had two horses on it that weighed about fourteen (1400) pounds each and they handled it without any trouble. I am well satisfied with the spreader.

It will spread all kinds, from the finest rotted to the coarsest crotstalk or straw manure. I think one man can haul out twice as much manure in one day with a spreader as he can spreading it the old way, and besides just think of the difference in the work.

Yours Respectfully,
EDWARD FITCH.

Fines Women Patrons of Bucket Shops.

Six women and four men, accused of patronizing a bucket-shop in the Riato building, were fined the costs by Justice Martin yesterday. One of the women, who gave her name as Maria Jones, attempted to leave the courtroom without paying the costs. Detective Woodbridge saw her and he pursued and overtook her at the door.
