THE CANNING FACTORY

WILL UNDOUBTEDLY LOCATE IN GENOA NEXT SPRING

It is up to the City to Procure Suitable Location—Committee Visits the Plant at Janesville

That the P. Hohenadel Jr. packing company of Janesville will locate in Genoa is now an assured fact, provided that citizens of the city and the farmers can meet the requirements. Considering the fast efforts of Genoa in this line there should be no trouble in complying with the terms.

As stated in the Republican-Journal two weeks ago, the Company desires a location with suitable railway facilities and must have a guarantee of a certain acreage of sweet corn, about 1,500 acres. About five acres for a site is desired. This will be selected after advantages of location and price have been considered. With regard to the acreage there seems to be no doubt. Those farmers who have expressed their views are favorably impressed with the proposition. They know what the canning factory is doing for the farmers about Hampshire, some of whom are taking $500 from 20 acre tracts.

Frank Moan, J. J. Hammond, E. H. Browne, H. S. Burroughs and C. D. Schoonmaker went to Janesville Monday to confer with the manager, G. F. Belknap, and look over the plant at that place. Mr. Belknap is a pleasant and courteous gentleman and showed the visitors thru the entire plant. There was a small army of people at work husking corn, shelling, cooking, canning, etc. The factory is receiving more corn than it can handle and is putting up a great amount of saur kraut and pickles. Some idea of the magnitude of the business done there can be realized when it is stated that over 400 cars have been loaded and unloaded on the sidings at the factory this year. Thus far over 2,000,000 cans of corn have been put up and there is still corn coming in.

A factory of the same capacity will be located in Genoa to start with and it may be that the plant would be enlarged later when the management found how resourceful is the country hereabouts. Farmers about Janesville, where the soil does not compare with DeKalb county's black loam, are more than pleased with their lot. Some of them are taking as high as six and one-half tons per acre from their land and the general average is over five tons. What then would be the result on the fertile farms in this vicinity?

Mr. Belknap is very anxious that Genoa people should act at once for if possible his company will build their foundation here this fall. This will be necessary in order to have the plant in running order next fall.

Farmers can do more than any others in securing this factory. They should talk it over with their neighbors and confer with the people of the city who are taking an active interest in the matter. If city and country pull and work together there will be something doing soon. It is a proposition that will benefit farmers, business men and all property owners. No one can afford to shirk in the work. We have proven our ability to get things in the past and can do it again.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Buss will move into the Libbie Randall house, recently vacated by G. W. Savery.

COMPLETE SURPRISE

Miss Florence Clefford Victim of Conspiracy at Her Home

Miss Florence Clefford was the victim of a conspiracy, for which the plans were well laid, at her home Thursday evening of this week. It was all in honor of her birthday anniversary.

Miss Florence had invited a few of her friends to take supper with her, but she was somewhat surprised to see a large number at the door instead of a few, and probably wondered how such a large company could be served. Mr. and Mrs. Clefford came to the rescue and led the mystified hostess and friends to the attic. Here the most pleasant surprise awaited the young people. The large room had been decorated with branches and flags and the floor strewn with leaves, resembling a forest nook. A bounteous supper was served right there in the woods and that it was enjoyed no one can deny. The following were present:

Prof. and Mrs. H. F. Stout, Miss Mohr, Misses Colton, Foote, Zada Corson, Eva Sager, Sabie Leonard, Hazel Robinson, Marjorie Rowen, Margaret Hutchinson, Louise Stuart; Messrs. Humphrey, King, Vay Kellogg, Fred Browne, George Harvey, George Evans, Byron Crawford, Emmett Burr, Charles Holtgren and Roy Slater.

FREEPORT IS SELECTED

Rock River Conference Will Meet There Next Year—Choice Made Monday

The next annual meeting of the Rock River conference will be held at Freeport in October 1905. The matter of the next place of meeting came up for consideration yesterday and the decision was unanimous in favor of the town in Stephenson county.

The matter of young people flirting in church was discussed at length Monday and Sunday observance was another matter up for consideration. In both instances a spirit of liberality seemed to permeate the discussions.

First in Genoa

In speaking of E. P. Kepple, a former Kingston boy, the Belvidere Republican says:

"Ernest P. Kepple, who began his newspaper career as a reporter on the Republican some years ago, is here from New York where he holds a prominent position with the New York Sun. Mr. Kepple has advanced rapidly in his chosen profession and is now on a vacation of a month which he will spend in this vicinity, at Beloit and at Sioux City."

Kepple first smeared his fingers with printer's ink in the office of the old Genoa Issue and first acted as reporter and writer for the Kingston News which was published at the Issue plant. He was connected with the Issue nearly two years before going to Belvidere.

Poor Corn Crops

Genoa farmers are in clover as far as the corn crop is concerned, compared with those west and north. The writer with others made a trip to Janesville this week and scarcely one field of good corn was seen between Irene and Rockford or between Rockford and Janesville. There are sections in this district where the corn crop is far from being what it should be, but as a whole it is good in comparison. Corn between Elgin and Chicago is also far below the standard crop.

WEDDED IN LOS ANGELES

Miss Myrtle Wylde an October Bride in Coast City

Word has been received at Belvidere of the marriage of Miss Myrtle Wylde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wylde of that city.

On October 5 she became the bride of C. H. Hodson of Los Angeles, California, where they will make their home. The bride and her sister went to California with their parents some time ago and when their parents returned to Belvidere they remained in California taking positions with a telephone company. The bride was popular with a large circle of friends and she will be wished every happiness in her married life. Congratulations will be extended to the groom, who is a conductor on the Los Angeles street car line. They go to house-keeping at once.

Herbert Lady Dead

Mrs. Mary Paulson, wife of Peter Paulson of Herbert, died at Rockford hospital about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon of last week. The deceased had been in ill health for a long time and for the past seven weeks had been a patient at the hospital.

Mr. Paulson is a prominent farmer residing near Herbert and with his son, who resides in Rockford, were at the bedside of wife and mother when the end came. The remains were taken to Herbert for burial.

It is not necessary to state here what he has done for the good of the parish, as it is a story that has been told before. We welcome him back to Genoa with the greatest pleasure.

A BUSINESS CHANGE

C. F. Bright Will Open Clothing Store at Walworth Wis.

On Monday, October 24, Charles F. Bright will open a clothing and furnishing store at Walworth, Wis., having disposed of his interest in the establishment known as the B. & O. The clothing store here will be conducted by Messrs. F. W. and Logan Olmsted who will keep the business up to its present prosperous condition.

Mr. Bright has the best wishes of all his friends in Genoa for success in his new venture. As stated last week Walworth is a growing town and with such an energetic and pushing business man as Mr. Bright for one of its citizens there will be a new impetus to its prosperity.

Mr. Bright goes into every venture with a vim and determination that wins. He is a liberal user of printers ink and in his advertising speaks the truth, a fact that has won him a good name in Genoa. Messrs. Bright, Savery and Alden loaded their household goods into cars this week and shipped them to Walworth.

ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST TO GENOA AND VICINITY

Alfred Patrick of Marengo Dead—Chicago Telephone Co. Made Defendant in Suit by City of Elgin

The city council of DeKalb has voted to donate $25 a month to the city band for its support.

Rockford has been ousted from the Three-I league. A resolution to drop Rockford was adopted at the meeting in Springfield Tuesday by a vote of 5 to 1.

The contractor who has charge of the construction work on the new electric line from Aurora to DeKalb has advertised for laborers and teamsters. He wants one hundred men to commence work.

Hix & Sons, for many years publishers of the Sycamore City Weekly and later of the Tribune, sold their plant last week to Geo. S. Anderson of Lindsborg, Kansas, the latter taking possession at once.

It may be of interest to farmers to know that the postoffice department does not require rural carriers to deliver mail where vicious dogs are kept. In such cases the animal must be removed or delivery must be discontinued.

Sycamore Tribune: Work of tearing down the old stand pipe was commenced Tuesday morning by the Chicago Bridge & Iron works, the same company that erected the new tank. The contract price for the work is about $400.

Two brothers named Rayder, living at Harvard, went insane Tuesday morning, and ran yelling through the streets in the middle of the forenoon, wearing nothing but their shirts. One is a baker and the other a clerk, and they are aged about 30 and 45.

The city of Elgin has started suit against the Chicago Telephone Co. to collect a yearly tax of $1.00 for each instrument in the city. Should Elgin win this suit (which is doubtful) a precedent will be established that will go hard with telephone companies generally.

The overflow of crooks from Chicago is spreading out into the country and tales of robbery and even murder are appearing frequently in the papers. The city authorities should be wide awake to nail any hard citizens who cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves and thus forestall any deviltry they may be up to. A little clear-headed sensible prevention beats all the cures. Hobos get short and concise orders when they strike Genoa.

A Carroll county publication devotes considerable space to the fact that "the famous Elgin creamery butter won a notable honor at the world's fair, St. Louis. This butter came from the Argo creamery, Carroll county, of which John Newman of Elgin is proprietor and K. Carpenter manager. The butter under test scored the highest quality of any from Illinois." The John Newman company also won first prize at the state fair at Springfield.

Marengo News: This community has again been called upon to part with one of its most highly respected citizens, in the person of Alfred Patrick, one of the widest known men in this section of the country. His death occurred Friday, September 30, 1904, a few moments before noon, after an illness of exactly two weeks with heart trouble. He had suffered more or less for several years with the disease, and as age came on, it found him less able to resist the attacks, the last of which resulted fatally.

Backed by Trusts

The trusts long ago recognized President Roosevelt as a dangerous foe to illegal monopolies. If the money power of the United States could have defeated Roosevelt's nomination at the Chicago convention it would have hastened to do so. It saw, in time, that the people had set their hearts upon Roosevelt's candidacy, and, leaving the Republicans out of the case, they turned to be Democrats. In Judge Parker they found, apparently, a man of that cast of mind which tolerates questionable behavior, procrastinates decisive action, and leans to precedent so strongly as to balk advance—the very man for the giant trusts to play with.

When Judge Parker's speech of acceptance was read, his remarks upon the trusts were anxiously scanned by the people. Disappointment came to those who were not already awake to the actual nature of David Bennett Hill's manipulations in connection with the nomination of Parker.

"Wait till we see where the trusts put their money," said one wavering Independent, not yet willing to give up the hope of a Democratic fight upon illegal trusts.

There was not long to wait. It is a matter of public knowledge that the great trusts are pouring money into the Democratic campaign treasury. The tobacco trust, the sugar trust, the oil trust, the New York transportation trust, all are known to have contributed liberally to Belmont's treasure chest. These combinations of capital well know how and when to be liberal. They see in the election of Parker their only protection against a straightforward, courageous chief executive who will enforce the United States laws for the control of combinations of capital and illegal monopolies.

The trusts do not want Roosevelt for President. The great combinations of capital have delicate susceptibilities when it comes to their immediate or remote prospects for gain. But money cannot carry the presidential election. The certainty that the trusts are working for Parker will only send hundreds of thousands of voters to the polls to cast their ballots for Roosevelt. Their own employes will vote against the candidate of the trusts. Judge Parker's shuffling sentences about a non-existent "common law" and its possible dealings with the trusts gave the American people their first "jar" as to the position of the Democratic nominee on this question. The heavy contributions of the trusts to the Parker campaign fund have completed the awakening as to the attitude of the great combinations and monopolies in this presidential election. Parker may well say, in this connection, as well as in the contemplation of most of his close associates, "save me from my friends!"

PROTECTION has done more for the American workingman and farmer than any other policy carried out by the Republicans. If "protection is robbery," as the Democratic platform asserts, the only persons "robbed" are the manufacturers and toilers of Europe. American workingmen certainly do not suffer from protection. They are the chief beneficiaries of the greatest of Republican policies. Without a protective tariff wages would soon drop to the European level, which is from 60 to 100 per cent. below the rate now paid in the United States.

DEMOCRACY's effort to show that times have not been good under Roosevelt's administration is a ludicrous performance. The compilation of all the strikes which have taken place in the last three years, instead of showing lack of prosperity, indicates the country has been unusually prosperous. Strikes are a rarity in bad times. Workingmen demand higher wages only when business is good. They are astute enough to know that they stand a better chance of getting what they want when factories are flooded with orders than when they are running on short time.

JUDGE Parker's attempt to pose as a bulwark against Democratic attacks on the "personal honor and integrity of President Roosevelt" is one of the humorous incidents of the campaign. No Democrat has yet had the timidity to assail the "president's personal honor and integrity," and none is likely to attempt while the president is awake. Parker evidently has gone into the circus business.

THERE seems to be one tie that binds New York's judicial candidate for the presidency and the Democratic candidate for governor of New York—they both voted for free silver in 1896 and 1900. Neither of them apparently would have conscientious scruples about voting for a yellow dog, provided he had the regular emblem of his party branded on both ears and wagged his tail without the consent of any other nation.

JUDGE Parker, judging from his conduct and the company he has kept, stands for Hillism in politics, which means that any unscrupulous act is justifiable if the end be gained. He is the very opposite of President Roosevelt, for his evasiveness shows that he lacks courage and decisiveness—two requisites that should not be found wanting in aspirants for the presidency.

HAVING "monkeyed" with "Rooseveltism" until they found the buzz saw, the Democrats are now tempting the fool-killer by reviving the cry that "protection is robbery." Eight years ago the workingmen of this country decided that protection is a blessing, and they have not changed their minds.

WHERE now would be our finances, our revenues, our domestic industries and our foreign trade if the Democratic party had succeeded in 1896 or in 1900? Where will they all be in four years hence if a Democratic president and congress should be elected next November?

PRESIDENT Roosevelt personally stands for courage, honesty, decency, strength and common sense. As a Republican he stands for wise administration of the laws, serving all classes alike. He realizes he is the servant of all the people, sworn to act without discrimination.

It is denied that Judge Parker was seen trying to set fire to the Hudson river at Esopus with a sulphur match without taking the preliminary precaution to smear its surface with a pint of kerosene.

THREE words in the Democratic platform are sufficient to defeat that party. "Protection is robbery" is a phrase that is helping the Republicans more than a hundred speeches by campaign orators.

Cause of Lockjaw

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin, as the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by G. H. Hunt.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

How Sea Birds Quench Their Thirst Far From Land.

"When I was a cabin boy," said an elderly sailor, "I often used to wonder, seen' birds thousands of miles out at sea, what they done for fresh water when they got thirsty."

"One day a squall answered that question for me. It was a hot and glitterin' day in the tropics, and in the clear blue sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared all of a sudden. Then out of empty space over 100 sea birds came dartin' from every direction. They got under the rain cloud, and they waited there for about ten minutes, circlein' round, and when the rain began to fall they throwed their heads back, and they drank their fill.

"In the tropics, where the great sea birds sail thousands of miles away from shore, they get their drinkin' water in that way. They smell out a storm a long way off. They travel 100 miles maybe to get under it, and they swallow enough raindrops to keep them goin'."

How Whales Get Food.

To obtain food the whale swims through the water with its mouth open. The water pours in the aperture and carries with it hundreds of small fish and marine animals.

The water escapes through the sides of the mouth, but the fish are caught and held by a row of stiff bonelike objects along the sides of the jaws. These are whalebones, so useful in commerce. These and the oil found in the glands of the throat make the whale very valuable.

There are several varieties of whales, but the sperm whale, though the smallest, is the most valuable.

CONDENSED STORIES.

A Government Inspector Who Didn't Know Teak Wood.

Matt V. D. Doughty, superintendent of hull construction at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company, is an intensely practical man. He has launched more than a hundred ships, including some of the largest ever built on the American continent, and his calculations and preparations always have been perfect.

Like most practical men, Mr. Doughty has supreme contempt for some of the red tape which daily is unwound in the shipyard by the representatives of the navy department, which has a corps of inspectors, draftsmen and officers always on hand to look after the interests of the government. Recently an inspector went to Mr. Doughty and said:

"I have come to inspect the teak to be used in the battleship Louisiana," meanwhile lazily leaning against a big pile of timber.

"We have no teak," said Mr. Doughty.

The inspector reported to his superior officer, who went down to the office of the superintendent of hull construction.

"You must have some teak here," insisted the officer.

"Yes," admitted Mr. Doughty.

"Then why did you tell my inspector that you didn't have any?" was the next question.

"Your inspector!" snorted Mr. Doughty in disgust. "Why, the fool was leaning against $40,000 worth of teak when he asked me where it was. Do you suppose I've got any time to waste on such men?"

A Laughing Game.

A game that used to be popular with eastern boys and girls was to leave a staff in the corner, while a player was seated in the center of the ring.

Another child now entered the room, took up the staff, approached and addressed the one sitting, and a rhymed dialogue followed:

"My father sent me here with a staff to speak to you and not to laugh."

"Methinks you smile." "Methinks I don't. I smooth my face with ease and grace."

"And set my staff in its proper place."

If the staff bearer laughed, he or she must take the chair. Otherwise another player came in and continued the game as before.

Give Your Horse Exercise.

Is it cruel to keep a horse locked up in a stable without exercise?

Answer: Just as cruel as it would be to keep a boy or girl or man or woman in the same condition.

If to this is added solitary confinement, without the company of other animals, then the cruelty is still greater.—George T. Angell in Our Dumb Animals.

Beesie's Composition on Sawmills.

Sawmills is very useful. If it was not for sawmills, we wouldn't have no sawdust for to stuff our dolls. If I was a doll, I would rather die than to be stuffed with straw. Straw is very ticklesome when you hain't got anything else on your inside. I know a good deal more about sawmills, but my paper is all gone.

Told by Depew.

Senator Depew occasionally delves into the capacious and well filled subway of his memory and brings to light something new in the way of an anecdote, says the New York Times. While returning from abroad on his latest trip—which, he says, he hopes will not by any means be his last—he overheard a heated dispute as to the respective merits of America and England. The disputants were a prominent New Yorker and a well known British statesman whose reputation for laconic repartee is international.

"My country," shouted the Yankee, "knows no east, no west, no north, no south!"

"Aw, indeed? What a blawstedly ignorant country!" drawled the Englishman.

Nitrogen Necessary For Life.

The atmosphere is composed of a mixture of oxygen and nitrogen, the former substance being essential to life. It has been a matter of scientific speculation, however, what part is played by the nitrogen, and whether it could be supplanted by hydrogen. Professor Marcacci of Palermo, Italy, has recently shown that in an atmosphere artificially constructed with an equal amount of hydrogen substituted for the nitrogen life cannot be supported for any length of time. Professor Marcacci tried to keep animals in such an atmosphere, but he found that they soon died, the same effects being noticed as would result from cold. This is explained by the fact that hydrogen possesses greater conductivity for heat than nitrogen.—Harper's Weekly.

The Ubiquitous Missourian.

Very few states have done more than Missouri has to people the rest of the country. Uncle Sam's census enumerators in 1900 found Missourians distributed all over the United States. A little over 100,000 of them were residing in Kansas in that year, 69,000 in Illinois, 51,000 in Texas, 47,000 in Oklahoma, 45,000 in Arkansas, 35,000 in California, 34,000 in Iowa, 33,000 in Indian Territory, 31,000 in Colorado, 26,000 in Nebraska, 17,000 in Oregon, 16,000 in Washington, 10,000 in Indiana and smaller numbers in other localities. In all 615,000 natives of Missouri in that year were residing in other parts of the United States. The number of course is much larger in 1904.—Kansas City Journal.

When Royalty Travels In Japan.

There has existed in Japan for many centuries a curious law to the effect that whenever the emperor or empress appeared in public no other person should seem to occupy a higher place than this member of the royal family. Therefore on such occasions the shutters of all upper stories were drawn, and the upper parts of the houses past which the royal party moved were seemingly deserted. This law is still in effect.

Music Box In a Ring.

A Wesleyan minister in the north of London possesses the most wonderful ring in the world. In appearance it is an ordinary gold signet ring, but it is in addition a perfect little music box. By touching a tiny spring and holding the ring close to the ear one can hear a sweet hymn tune. By placing the ring in a box the charming tones of this unique ring can be heard all over a large room.

Candle Trick.

How would you arrange with a roomful of people to place a candle in such a position that all but one would see it and that person must not be blindfolded?

Place the candle upon the head of the person who is not to see it. Should there be a mirror in the room and this one person should make use of it he does not see the candle, but only its reflection.

A Large Firefly.

The Chinese have a lightning bug which they call a candle fly, and it is of great brilliancy. But the largest of all the luminous flies is the lantern fly of Brail, which grows to be three inches long and six inches in expanse of wings.

The committee of the county board, consisting of Edwin Hait, of Franklin, H. C. Whittemore, of Sycamore, and Joshua Siglin, of Genoa, met with the highway commissioners at the Deer Creek bridge which was constructed by the Continental Bridge Co. After a thorough examination of the bridge, it was decided that it had been built strictly according to specifications and was accepted by a unanimous vote. The bridge is a fine structure, a fifty foot span being built on concrete abutments, and looks to be good for fifty years to come.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

A Few Simple Rules For Action In Case of Poisons.

For narcotic poison, or poisons which cause immediate drowsiness and torpor, such as eating poisonous mushrooms, toadstools, turpentine, opium, morphine or chlorals of any sort, administer an emetic such as warm mustard water, then a powerful purgative, and wind up with a stimulant, coffee or whisky, to stimulate the heart action.

For carbolic acid give sweet oil or milk. Let the patient rest, keep the body warm and finally administer a stimulant.

For arsenic or paris green mix half an ounce of dialyzed iron with half an ounce of magnesia and administer this quantity every ten minutes.

For corrosive sublimate (kept in solution in many homes to destroy vermin and insects) give immediately white of egg, unbeaten, or plain flour gruel.

For poisonous fish, particularly in case of poison from canned goods, give warm mustard water to cause vomiting, a quick purgative, such as citrate of magnesia or a seidlitz powder, and then a stimulant.

Potato Croquettes.

When you have any cold potatoes left over heat and mash them finely till quite free from lumps, or, better still, pass all through a sieve. Reheat in a pan with one ounce of butter, season with pepper, salt and two teaspoonfuls of chopped parsley. Stir in the beaten yolk of an egg and make very hot. Turn the mixture on a plate to cool, then take a tablespoonful at a time and make into round balls. Beat up an egg on a plate and get ready some dried bread crumbs on a piece of paper. Brush each ball over with egg, then roll in bread crumbs. Fry in deep, boiling fat to a golden color.

Candied Orange Peel.

Cut the rind into long strips. Put in a pan, cover over with cold water, bring to a boil and drain. To six oranges or lemons allow one and a half sups of granulated sugar and a cup of water; put these into a granite saucepan and as soon as they have reached a hard boil add the peel. Boil hard, taking care that the contents of the pan do not scorch. When the liquid is almost cooked away, take the pan from the stove and add a cup of sugar. Stir until almost cold, pick apart with the fingers and spread on a plate to dry.

Handy Set of Irons.

Most women fail in ironing shirt waists because they use clumsy irons. To remedy this manufacturers have put on the market specially designed irons. These are pointed at both ends and also gently curved to avoid sudden creasing of the goods. They are heavily nickelled and as highly polished as table silverware. Inclosing each iron and fastened securely to it by twin bolts operated by means of a spring is an asbestos lined hood, which serves to conserve the heat and keep out the cold, thus effecting an economy in gas.

Household Lore.

Add a few drops of rosewater to almonds when pounding or chopping them to prevent their oiling.

All articles dyed with aniline colors which have faded from exposure to the light will look as bright as new after sponging with chloroform.

Never keep vinegar or yeast in stone crocks or jugs. The acid attacks the glazing, which is said to be poisonous. Glass for either is better.

Mock Duck.

Take a piece of beefsteak about ten or twelve inches in extent and spread it with a layer of sage and onion stuffing, roll up the steak, tie it in shape, put it in a deep dish with half a pint of good stock or gravy and bake for about an hour, turning and basting it frequently. Remove the string, put the meat on a hot dish, thicken the gravy, pour it round the meat and serve.

Household Hints.

A mixture of table salt and vinegar will clean tarnished brass or copper.

Ink stains on wood are removed by scrubbing with sand moistened with ammonia.

Do not drop dirty, greasy dish towels into hot soapuds. It will only set the grease. Wash them first in lukewarm water.

Wire Fences and Lightning.

Since the use of wire fences has become so extensive the number of cattle killed each year by lightning has greatly increased. Farmers' insurance companies have investigated the matter and none come forward with a warning to policy holders. Nearly all of the cattle killed by lightning have met their death in open fields, where, in many instances, there was not even a tree to attract the electric fluid. As many dead cattle were found near wire fences, this led to the discovery that the lightning was carried along the wires composing the fences. During a severe storm cattle are liable to run until stopped by a fence. Here they stand huddled together, ready for the bolt. A remedy is suggested in running a ground wire every ten rods several feet into the earth.

"The face of my dreams!" he cried as he watched a beautiful young woman standing in front of a department store window. "I must speak to her."
"You have dreamed of me?" she asked in surprise.
"Yes, miss. Your face has haunted me for, lo, these many nights. May I call?"
"You want my name and address?"

"Then dream again, and perhaps they will come to you," she said sweetly as she walked away.—New York Telegram.

The Mariner's Explanation.

A sailor was once asked by a messmate not quite so well up in matters social as himself to explain to him the third figure in a quadrille.

"You first of all heave ahead," said he, "and pass your adversary's yardarm. Then in a jiffy regain your berth on the other tack in the same kind of order. Slip along sharp, and take your station with your partner in line. Back and fill, and then fall on your heel, and bring up with your craft. She then maneuvers ahead off alongside you. Then make sail in company with her until nearly astern of the other line, make a stern board, cast her off to shift for herself, regain your place out of the squadron as best you can, and let go your anchor."

A LITTLE HOT AIR

McHenry and Kane County Editors Express Themselves

We blushing acknowledge the many compliments extended by the press of McHenry and Kane counties, and publish some of the clippings, not that we are vain, but to show our readers that there is a brotherly bunch of pencil pushers in the vicinity of our former location.

Woodstock Sentinel: Editor Charles D. Schoonmaker of the McHenry Plaindealer announced last week that with that issue of the paper he would sever his connection as its editor and manager. Editor Schoonmaker has had editorial charge of the Plaindealer for five and a half years and during that time has made the paper one of the best printed and best edited country weeklies in the state, and has, through conservative and yet energetic business management, made it a valuable piece of property for its owners. Mr. Schoonmaker has purchased the Republican at Genoa, Ill., and takes possession this week. May he be equally as successful at Genoa as he was at McHenry.

Marengo News: C. D. Schoonmaker severed his business relations with the McHenry Plaindealer last week. Since he has been the guiding hand of the Plaindealer it has become one of the best local papers in the country. Mr. Schoonmaker will hereafter direct the fortunes of the Genoa Republican. He has also purchased the subscription list and good-will of the Genoa Journal and will consolidate the two newspapers. Having been a resident of Genoa he is familiar with the needs of the locality and will undoubtedly improve that excellent journal. Success.

McHenry Plaindealer: Since moving to Genoa, C. D. Schoonmaker, former editor of The Plaindealer, has purchased the Genoa Journal of that place, making him possessor of both papers of that city. He will consolidate both papers into one and it will be known as the Genoa Republican-Journal. That he will succeed in his new field is without doubt, as it was he who brought The Plaindealer to its present high standard. We feel safe in stating that the people of the industrious little city of Genoa will hereafter have the pleasure of reading the best paper ever published in their city.

Harvard Herald: Chas. Schoonmaker has severed his connection as editor and manager of the McHenry Plaindealer to take a similar place with the Genoa Republican. For over five years he has been associated with the Plaindealer, which, through his efforts, has been made one of the best local papers in the country and his leaving there is generally regretted. He is a bright, alert newspaper man and we wish him well in his new field of labor.

Elgin Courier: Chas. D. Schoonmaker, editor of the McHenry Plaindealer, was here today. Mr. Schoonmaker has purchased the Genoa Republican and will take possession September 12th. He learned the business at Genoa with his brother-in-law George Sisley, and will undoubtedly do a successful business there. Mr. Schoonmaker is one of the brightest young newspaper men in this congressional district.

Nunda Herald: Charles D. Schoonmaker, the clever young man who has been managing editor of the McHenry Plaindealer for a number of years, makes his bow and retires, having purchased the Genoa Republican. He goes to Genoa to take charge of the paper. Mr. Schoonmaker is a clean, concise writer and a good manager, and will undoubtedly deserve and win success in his new field.

Marengo Republican: Mr. Schoonmaker is well known in Marengo and for several years has been the able editor of the Mc-

Henry Plaindealer, giving evidence of much ability. He is enterprising and we hope his new venture will be unusually successful.

Harvard Independent: C. D. Schoonmaker, who has been editor of the McHenry Plaindealer for a number of years past, has purchased the Genoa Republican and will take charge of the paper early next month. Mr. Schoonmaker is a man of much ability and enterprise and we believe that under his management the Republican will prosper as never before.

PREACHERS FOR TEDDY

Rock River Ministers Stand by the President Almost as a Unit

The Methodist ministers of Rock River district refused to be stampeded away from Teddy. They saw an ambushed paragraph in the resolutions which seemed to bind the members of the conference to vote the prohibition ticket. Rev. W. E. Tilroe led the attack upon the paragraph with the statement that he has been in the habit of voting the Republican ticket and that he would vote for Roosevelt, believing that that would be the very best political action that he could take under existing circumstances.

Then the Methodist preachers began rallying around the Roosevelt standard, and it developed that the most of them would be found in that political camp. One reason given for rallying about the president is that he is the champion of universal peace through arbitration, and a committee was appointed to draft resolutions which are to be forwarded to the president.

Chamberlin's Cough Remedy

No one else who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlin's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidentially to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all these facts are taken in consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. For sale by G. H. Hunt.

Butter Market

The official market was declared firm at 20 cents. The weather conditions remain favorable for a large production. Plenty of rain and summer temperature. Frost has not affected the pastures to any large extent. Only the normal decrease of the summer dairies, with the winter cows coming into milk. Factorymen reported demand good with regular orders sufficient to absorb the current make.

CONDENSED STORIES.

What Congressman Bourke Cockran's Would Be Client Needed.

Congressman Bourke Cockran was seated in his law office one day recently when one of the clerks announced a visitor, says the New York Herald. The orator was very busy, but the man refused to tell his business to a clerk, insisting that it was a personal matter and he must see Mr. Cockran himself.

"Well, show him in," said the lawyer finally in disgust.

"I want to get some legal advice, Mr. Cockran," said the visitor, "and

"YOU WANT TO SEE A NERVE SPECIALIST." I came to you because I am a poor man and cannot afford to pay a real lawyer."

"What do you mean?" thundered the representative indignantly.

"Well, I mean that as a politician you will not be hard on one of your constituents. Besides, I have another claim on you. My aunt does washing for one of your cousins."

"My dear sir," said the lawyer in his most withering tone as he ushered the visitor out, "you don't want to see a lawyer. You want to see a nerve specialist."

A Friend to a Woman.

The late Nellie Farren, when she visited America with the London Gaiety company, danced before a well known New York club.

At the end of the dance, during an informal supper, some one began to talk about the new woman, a burning topic at that time.

"Do the English believe in woman's emancipation?" a lawyer said to Miss Farren. "Do they believe in opening the same fields to women as to men and in paying them at the same rate?"

"Oh, yes," said the little actress. "Even the English tramps believe all that. A tramp asked a country-woman of mine one day for assistance, and she said to the man sternly:

"Why don't you go to work?" "Madam," said the tramp, "twenty years ago I made a vow not to do another stroke of work till women were paid the same wages as men." —New York Tribune.

Offered King Edward Her Pipe.

It is said that King Edward tells with great glee that when in the west of Ireland last year he one day went into a cabin whose occupant was an old woman who sat by the turf fire smoking an old clay pipe. The old lady welcomed the king and, asking him to sit down, wiped a three legged stool with her apron. The king did so and said:

"Do you know who I am, ma'am?" "Bogorra, I don't," was the reply. "Well, I am the king of England."

"D'ye tell me so!" said the old lady in a tone of surprise, and then, remembering the rights of hospitality, she took the pipe out of her mouth, wiped the shank with her hand and, passing it to the king, said, "Will yer honor smoke?" —Philadelphia Record.

The Only Remedy.

Captain Volger of the Koenigen Luise said the other day:

"An architect was complaining because an architects' club had been organized in his town on total abstinence principles.

"Think of it," he said, "a club where you can't get anything to drink!"

"The person addressed looked thoughtful.

"With such a club," he said, "I suppose the remedy would be to go there drunk." —New York Tribune.

Christian Principles.

Quin, the old time English actor, complained to Beau Nash of the exorbitant charges made at Bath. Nash said they were acting on truly Christian principles. "How so?" asked Quin. "Why," answered Nash, "you were a stranger, and they took you in." "Aye," replied Quin, "but they fleeced me instead of clothing me."

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Game of Fascination Affords Lots of Fun.

Games of identification are those in which part of the players try to guess the names of the others from the appearance of their eyes, ears, noses or fingers. The players are divided into two parties and stand in adjoining rooms, in the doorway, between the posts of which is stretched a piece of cloth or paper with a hole in the middle. Each of one party now puts a finger through the hole, and each of the other party guesses who its owner is. As the guesses are made they are recorded, and when all have guessed he who has made the most correct guesses is the winner. The parties then change places. Instead of fingers noses, ears or hands may be put through the hole, or each may apply one eye to it. There may be only one guesser, and as soon as he makes a correct guess the person guessed may take his place.

In another game those whose names are to be guessed kneel down in a row, and their heads and faces are covered with long paper funnels, each having two holes for the eyes. To the bottoms of the funnels is pinned a sheet, which hangs to the ground, concealing their bodies. Each of the guessers now takes a lighted candle and, looking at the eyes through the holes in the paper funnels, guesses who each one is. When all have guessed the paper funnels are removed. Another method of identification is by the voice.

A Lesson in Bird Nesting.

Most young men when they travel in the woods of South America have their wits about them—most, but not all. It is related of one that, seeing a parakeet enter a hole in a tree, he climbed up to capture the bird in its nest, as he thought. He put in his hand and felt something soft and flabby. These, he imagined, must be the young ones. He had still sense enough, however, to try to look into the nest. So he prodded the hole wider with a stick and then saw a huge boa, its jaws fringed with the feathers of the unfortunate bird. He descended the tree in the twinkling of an eye and did not forget this lesson in bird's nesting.

The Wonderful Baobab Tree.

The baobab tree is considered one of the most wonderful of the vegetable kingdom. It appears that nothing can kill this tree; hence it reaches an astonishing age as well as enormous size. The natives make a strong cord from the fibers of the bark; hence the trees are continually barked, but without damage, as they soon put forth new bark. It appears impervious to fire, and even the ax is resisted, as it continues to grow in length after it is lying on the ground.

Riddles.

Why is a wedding ring like eternity? Because it is endless.

What fish is an engaged young lady always fond of? Her-ring.

What is the difference between a match and a cat? A match always lights on its head and a cat on its feet.

Why is the letter A like honey-suckle? Because a B follows it.

Why are wealthy ladies at a theater like their jewels when they get home? Because they are put in a box.

Odd Partnership.

A strange discovery was made by a Scotch forester recently, that of a nest thirty feet up in a larch tree occupied jointly by a wild duck and a common brown owl. Two eggs were in the nest, one of the duck and one of the owl. The forester had previously noticed both birds flying from the tree.

A Sewing Party.

Little Miss Muffet
Sat on a tuffet,
Making some lace that looked rich.
There came a fat spider
Who sat down beside her
And taught her a fetching new stitch.

Big Things in Alaska.

Alaska is a big country and has big possibilities. It has the biggest bear, the biggest moose, the biggest mountain sheep and the biggest salmon and grayling in the world. The biggest mountain on the North American continent is in Alaska and is named Mount McKinley.

PROBLEM QUICKLY SETTLED.

When Camillo di Righini, the charming child of Mme. Ella Russell, was born, his parents were in great doubt as to his nationality, for he was born two days out from New York on the Koenigin Luise, under the German flag. His mother is an American; his father, the Count di Righini, a pure Italian. On her father's side Mme. Ella Russell's grandfather was Irish and her grandmother Scotch, whereas her maternal grandfather was Welsh and her maternal grandmother Austrian. To add to these complications Camillo's birth was registered, according to law, at the first port of call, which happened to be Cherbourg, France. What was the nationality of this little Italian-American-Irish-Scotch-Welsh-German-French-English-Austrian infant? This profound problem for a long time perplexed all Mme. Russell's friends and acquaintances, until the singer at last had the good fortune to consult Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who, without a moment's hesitation, pronounced the verdict:

"Why, av coorse, he's a son of ould Oireland."—London Letter.

Living Models For Jewelry Designs.

At Weimar, where since the days of Goethe artistic tastes have been cultivated under the patronage of the grand dukes, some artistically inclined ladies recently had the clever and original idea of representing a number of objects of the industrial arts by living tableaux. This idea was carried into effect with much taste, and the ladies taking part in the representation were greatly applauded.

To represent, for instance, a seal in gilt bronze two ladies clad in dresses of the color of bronze were posed, bent over a Chinese bowl, in imitation of modern industrial art which largely makes use of the graceful female figure. Brooches, combs, tie pins, pendants, belt buckles, etc., were shown in the same way. Reduced by photography into working size, these living pictures form pretty designs for jewelry. —Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

Two Kaisers.

In many ways the two Kaisers—Francis Joseph and Wilhelm II.—present many points of contrast. In nothing, perhaps, is this more marked than in the feverish activity of the younger man and the quiet calm of the elder. The German emperor comes near to realizing the idea of perpetual motion; he is essentially the traveling kaiser and has visited every city of importance in Europe—Paris, perhaps, excepted. Even Paris he is said to visit incognito. The Austrian emperor, on the other hand, rarely leaves his own dominions, and now, having reached the age of seventy, he announces that he is no longer equal to the fatigue of paying return visits.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Measure of Popularity.

Though Robert W. Chambers is a popular author, he will rarely talk about his books.

"Literary conceit is distasteful to me," said he the other day, "and I like to see it taken down. It was well taken down in the case of a New York man last month. He has written a novel, and the public libraries have put this book on their shelves. The man called at one of the libraries to find out how his work was going with the public. He hoped to have his vanity tickled a little.

"Is — in?" he said to the librarian, naming his book.

"It never was out," was the reply."—New York Tribune.

Depew's Salt Mackerel.

Even to this day Chauncey Depew is touchy at the mention of a harmless joke which was perpetrated at his expense many years ago. At that time he was a lad checking freight on the wharf for Commodore Vanderbilt and in his spare moments was fond of fishing in the river. One day, having set his line, he went into the office near by to resume his duties. The boys pulled it in, attached a salt mackerel and yelled to him that there was something on his hook. He hurried out, of course, only to find that he had been fooled. The joke is a sore point with the senator even nowadays, though no one seems to know just why.—Exchange.

Odd Figure of Speech.

At the convention in St. Louis of the Catholic Total Abstinence society a Philadelphia delegate, Joseph A. Osborn, had occasion to refer to the difference and the contrast in the lots of men. "Some," said Mr. Osborn, "become honored citizens, fruitful in good works; others become worthless vagrants, despised by all." Then the speaker used an odd and striking figure. "So," he said, "one slab of marble turns out a useful doorstep, while another only becomes a lying tombstone."
