Charles Norman Suicides.

Yesterday afternoon Charles Norman who lives a few miles north of town, took a fatal dose of strychnine and was found dead in his yard about five o'clock That the deed was premeditated at least a few hours is evidenced by the notes written and left on his person and the manner that he took to get his family away for a short time while he administered the fatal dose and suffered the consequences alone,

No reason can be ascertained for his act other than that stated in one of the notes found that he was tired of living. Apparently he was prospering, and had little to discourage and cause desperation. In the afternoon he encouraged his wife and family to go to the woods for flowers and he would remain at home. It was this opportunity that he chose to end his ife and upon their return was found by them where he fell from the effects of the poison.—Enterprise Kirkland.

Just Before the Explosion. It was the British surgeon, Sir Noel. At sight of this man Paul felt a of the plotters.

It seemed as though he were fated never to get those words of command beyond the portals of his lips.

And he knew Sir Noel, too, knew that the foreign surgeon was in high favor with the commandant, even as he had been with Marshal MacMahon before the latter's state of health compelled him to relinquish the command to a successor.

What business had this Englishman here anyhow-no one had invited him, and it was none of his affair that the military authorities of the French stronghold on the Moselle chose to make an arrest.

Was Sir Noel alone? Paul could not hear the expected swish of garments such as might betray the coming of those who represented the gentler sex; but this was not to be wondered at in the least, since the German guns kept up a pretthe forts, and the explosion of shells grew more and more frequent in the streets, occasioning considerable excitement among the crowds.

"Of course, they will have a hearing?"

The major cast a furtive glance at quick signal which the countess made gave him his clue.

"Certainly, monsieur. In the morning, if they are able, they shall appear before the military drum head court, convened for just such purposes as this by our commander, and the truth will either liberate or send them to the Court of Execution."

Paul noted that there was a clause in his declaration, which somehow he could not avoid emphasizing, a clause of considerable importance, since he this party has done this unpardonable believed the major's design was that thing of conspiring with certain spies, they should never live to reach the the enemies of our country, to betray a movement at the doorway drew the attention of the countess, and she became aware for the first time of Hildegarde's presence.

Hildegarde now knew all.

She had recognized the disguised countess with contempt and scorn in her eyes, and the presence of the stalwart soldiers told the rest.

But when she saw Beatrix, looking so lovely, with the startled look upon her face, the tears of distress in her beautiful eyes, Hildegarde almost wished she had been more discreet and remained at her duties in the hospital, for it was absurd to realize that the mention of Paul's name had acted so upon her heart as to bring her in great haste to this apartment to find that he had doubtless been enjoying a delightful tete-a-tete with this rival little beauty at the time the soldiers came.

This bold American had won her love-in her maidenly eyes he was everything that could be deemed manly, and in dreams at least he had told her the charming things which his eyes betrayed whenever they met-as she bound up his wounds after the duel with Conrad she had been thrilled when their hands chanced to come in contact, and ever since then a delicious ty constant growling away off beyond | hope had found lodgment in her heart | that they might be nearer and dearer than friends.

A word of command and the giant guards closed in around the prisoners. Sir Noel still stood by Paul, and even saw this significant move without showing the white feather.

He put his hand to his pocket and drew out a folded paper.

The countess, seeing the action, felt that there was danger of defeat even though she could not guess the nature of the bolt that threatened.

How deliberately Sir Noel unfolded his paper.

"Ah! monsieur le major," he said. The stout soldier, not daring to look toward the countess, turned his head. At sight of the paper his eyebrows went up in token of surprise.

Then he met the doctor's magnetic eye, and was obliged to pay attentionthe influence of mind over matter is always paramount.

"I have here a little document," pursued Sir Noel, waving the paper.

"So I perceive, monsieur." "Which is signed by the commandant, with whose signature you are doubtless familiar. "Oh, very, monsieur." "Will you kindly give me one min-woman might attempt when brought And somehow he had a presentiment that, while it looked as though this might be Aimee's game, there was a setback in store for her that would end in her overwhelming defeat. As the major read the document she

"It is surprising-I have here a pass written in the commandant's own hand allowing the bearer, Sir Noel Travers surgeon, with his companion, the liberty of the city of Metz, and commanding that under no conditions shall he be restrained or prevented from going, very.

PASS OMNIBUS CLAIMS BILL

Senators Enact the Measure After Omitting the Selfridge Board Demands-Surgeon General Sternberg Retired with Rank of Major General.

Wednesday, May 14. During the greater part of the Senate session the fortifications appropropriation bill was under consideration. Mr. Froctor offered an amendment providing that no part of the appropriation made should be used for procuring disappearing gun carriages. This precipitated a debate which continued for two hours, and had not been concluded when the measure was laid aside for the day. Mr. Proc r led the fight against the disappearing carriages, declaring they never would be effective and in actual war would be shown they were a lamentable failure. Mr. Perkins warmly defended the War Department in adopting the disappearing carriage, maintaining the bulk of conference the house adjourned. the evidence upon the subject was in support of the carriage. A further conference on the omnibus claims bill was agreed to, with Messrs, Warren, Teller and Mason as the conferees.

The naval appropriation bill occupied the attention of the house throughout the day. Mr. Dayton (W. Va.) spoke on the need of strengthening the naval battle line, while Messrs. W. W. Kitchin (N. C.), Fitzgerald (N. Y.), Metcalf (Cal.) and Maynard (Va.) strongly advocated the building of war ships in government navy yards. The debate took a wide range at times, Mr. Rhea (Va.) speaking in criticism of the administration's Philippine policy and Mr. Elliott (S. C.) presenting the advantages of the proposed Appalachian forest reserve. Rising to a question of personal privilege, Mr. Mahon (Pa.) indignantly denied statements contained in a circular sent to members alleging that certain contributions had been made to his campaign expenses. The conference report on the Cuban diplomatic and consular bill was agreed to.

Thursday, May 15.

The day in the senate was chiefly occupied with debate on the Philippine bill. The bill providing for the erection of a union railway station in Washington and the fortifications appropriations bill were passed, the latter after the adoption of amendment by Mr. Proctor, making the acceptance of disappearing gun carriages conditional upon tests. A conference on the agricultural appropriation bill was agreed to, with | Messrs. Proctor, Hansbrough and Bate as conferees. The conference report on the omnibus claims bill was presented by Mr. Warren, the conferees

Philippine question; when adjournment for amendment. The senate amendments to the agricultural appropriation bill were disagreed to, and the bill was sent to conference, with Messrs. Wadsworth, Henry (Conn.) and Williams (Miss.) as the house conferees. A bill was passed opening to homestead entry the extensive tract in Colorado, embracing about 9,000,-000 acres. As a result of several cases of emergency illness which have occurred in the house, a resolution was adopted to provide an emergency ments. Mr. Mudd (Md.) gave notice that he would move an amendment to the bill prohibiting the use of any money carried in the naval bill for the purchase of Maclay's history, the animadversions in it against Admiral Schley being responsible, in his opinion, for the court of inquiry.

Friday, May 16.

In the senate an effort was made by Mr. Lodge to induce the minority to fix a time when a vote might be taken on the Philippine government bill, but Mr. Dubois, speaking for the Democratic side, did not desire to specify a date for the vote. Mr. Mo-Laurin concluded his speech in opposition to the present Philippine policy of the government, which, he main tained, was responsible for all the ills that had come to the United States in those islands. Mr. Deboe supported the measure in a carefully prepared speech, maintaining that the policy outlined by McKinley ought to be followed to the end. He asserted that peace would come quickly when the sympathizers of Aguinaldo ceased their attacks on the American army and the American flag. Bills were passed increasing the efficiency and changing the name of the United States Marine hospital service; providing for an additional circuit judge | hold for one year.

private pension bills. The naval appropriation bill again had the right of way in the house, but the debate chiefly hinged on the Philippines and the Schley controversy. The bill turning over to Porto Rico all of the public lands of the island ceded to the United States by Spain, except sites designated by the president within one year for coaling stations, military posts and other United States purposes, was passed. In this connection Mr. Lacey (Iowa) stated that the Porto Rico commissioner ought to have the privilege of the floor of the house so as to explain such matters as this, instead of being compelled to stand around the corridors of congress. The bill reported by Mr. McCall from the ways and means committee, refunding the tax on legacies paid under the war revenue act by religious, charitable, art and educational institutions, was passed. The conference report on the omnibus claims bill caused another lengthy discussion. The motion to instruct the conferees against the Selfridge claims finally prevailed. After sending the fortification bills to

Saturday, May 17. The senate adjourned until Mon-

Consideration of the naval appropriation bill was resumed in the house. An amendment was agreed to appropriating $75,000 for the continuance of the erection of a storehouse for naval supplies at League Island navy yard. An amendment was also agreed to appropriating $20,000 for making tests of liquid fuel from the California and Texas oil fields under the direction of the bureau or steam engineering. An amendment appropriating $60,000 for a key wall at the naval station, Puget sound, Washing ton, was agreed to.

Monday, May 19.
The Senate passed the omnibus claims bill. The Selfridge board claims being omitted, the bill carries $1.618, 498. Other bills were passed: Author izing the use and improvement of Governor's Island, Boston harbor; authorizing the secretary of war to loan to the Morgan Memorial Association of Winchester, Va., certain revolutionary trophies at Allegheny arsenal, Pitts burg, Pa.; providing for the retirement of Surgeon General Sternberg as a major general; providing that that part of the Indian appropriation bill which relates to subjecting to entry certain mining lands in the Spokane Indian reservation shall take effect when the allotments to the Indians are completed. Three conferees were appointed on the fortifications appropriation bill. Adjourned at 3:25 p. m., after a brief executive session.

The house passed the naval appropriation bill with several amendments. The bill limiting the number of hours of daily service on government work being unable to agree on the Selfridge to eight hours was passed under suspension of rules, as was a house joint The debate on the naval appropria- resolution fixing Dec. 31, 1902, as the tion bill in the house veered into the date when entries under the mining laws of the United States of certain was taken the measure was being read | lands in the Spokane (Wash.) OLD FUX WITH ITS TEETH DRAWN

Unique Name Given to an English Temperance Resort. "The Old Fox With Its Teeth

Drawn" is a remarkable title for a public house, but that is the name of a small inn which is to be seen at Bricket Wood, Hertfordshire. At one time it was simply known as "The Old Fox," and the story of how its name came to be changed is an interesting one.

Bricket Wood is not far from the residence of the Hon. A. Holland-Hibbert, who is a son-in-law of Sir Wilfrid Lawson, the well-known temperance reformer.

Mr. Holland-Hibbert is also a temperance worker, and when some time ago an opportunity arose for the purchase of the Old Fox Mr. Holland-Hibbert availed himself of it, and turned it into a temperance public house. Only tea, coffee and non-intoxicating beverages are sold, and as alcoholic liquors are absent, The Old Fox obtained its new name, "The Old Fox with Its Teeth Drawn." Other people besides teetotallers laugh at the amusing alteration of the signboard. -London Illustrated Mail.

The "Country Kid" presented by the Sycamore Dramatic Company last Tuesday evening was a continual laugh and was well delivered by most every member of the company, In fact the fun was so great that the old lady in the cast was chuck full of smiles, and became so nerveous, that her remarks were nearly inaudible at times. The 'Kid" was well taken and although he was in much danger of losing his life at times, he was always protected by that sweet faced "Chick." The fire sceine was such as to make some of the audience think the real thing was about to take place.

or thereabout the manufacture of ready-made Clothing began. Before that time, when a man wanted a new suit, the wool was spun and the cloth for it was woven at home, and the making was "home-made" in the crudest sense. If he happened to be well to do, he bought the cloth and took it to a tailor to have his suit made. The idea of selling Clothing ready-made was not considered practical, and the business was looked upon with general distrust. That was a little over fifty years ago, but ## earned the firmest hold on public confidence.

Since then Ready-Made CLOTHING has

You can find the suit you want now all ready to wear. This store has collected the most desirable lot of Clothing that can be found in this community. You can see improvements in our Clothing over the best you have been able to find before. We sell the most careful made Clothing to be had. There is more style, more ease of fit about our suits this season than in the best we have been able to buy before. Let us show you what we have to offer before you buy. No need of paying a fancy price for a tailor made suit when you can get fitted just as good at our store for about half the price. Call and be convinced.

The Genoa Journal. MINE EXPLOSION KILLS HUNDREDS

Noxious Gas at Fraterville, Tennessee.

William Morgan, a Road Man, is Blown from the Shaft, but Cannot Survive-Fall of Slate impedes the Work of Rescuing Party.

Two hundred and twenty-five miners, men and boys, met instant death by an explosion of gas in the Fraterville coal mine, two miles west of Coal Creek, Tenn. With one exception, all those in the mine at the time of the explosion, which occurred at 7:30 in the morning, are supposed to be dead. The single exception is William Morgan, a road man in the mine, who was blown from the shaft by the force of the exploding gas. He is so badly injured that he cannot live.

One hundred and seventy-five miners were checked in for work by the mine boss. In addition to these there were boys who acted as helpers and drivers and road men, and others to the number of perhaps fifty.

Fraterville mine is the oldest mine in the Coal Creek district, having been opened in 1870. It is fully three miles from the mine's opening to the point where the men were at work. They had not been long at work before the terrible explosion occurred. There was a terrible roar and then flames shot from the entrance and the air shafts. News of the disaster spread like wildfire, and as soon as order could be brought out of chaos, two rescuing parties were started in, one at the mine entrance and the other through Thistle mine, which adjoins, and in which no men were at work. The Thistle party was unable to make any headway, as the gas stifled the

The Fraterville party went fully two miles under the earth until a heavy fall of slate was encountered. At this barrier men worked like demons, hoping against hope that those beyond might be safe.

The scenes at the mouth of the mine while the workers were within are beyond description. Business had been suspended in Coal Creek and all its mines as soon as the news of the disaster became circulated, and men, women and children gathered around the Fraterville entrance. Women whose husbands and sons were within were wild with grief.

All day the rescuers toiled at the slate obstruction, and not until 5 o'clock did they force an entrance through it. Up to that hour only five dead bodies had been recovered and hope was still high that many within were safe. The hopes of the living were doomed, however, for, when the rescuers finally could enter, they walked along a continuous gallery of Every man had perished, they believed, although all the rooms had not been entered.

Eight dead bodies were first recovered, and these were sent to Coal Creek. Twenty-six others were soon found. Thy were not disfigured beyond identification, and each corpse, as it was borne from the mouth of the gigantic tomb, was surrounded by eager crowds of relatives of the men who were entombed.

The smoke and gas are stifling, and the heat is excessive. The latter fact indicates that the mine is burning.

TEXAS TORNADO LEAVES 200 DEAD

Men and Boys Stifled by Hundreds Are Wounded in Goliad by a Violent Windstorm.

ONE ESCAPES INSTANT DEATH WIND BLOWS AT FIERCE RATE

Churches, Houses and Stone Residences Swept Away by the Elements-Several Are Injured at Austin and Other Lone Star Points.

Two hundred people were killed by a tornado at Goliad, Texas, hundreds wounded, great property damage done and half the town destroyed.

The tornado struck the town traveling in a northeasterly direction. Beyond a marked fall in the temperature and the lowering clouds tinged with green, no warning of the calamity was given. The storm struck Goliad almost in the heart of the city, and wrecked buildings as if they were of eardhoard.

Between Church and Patrick streets, which run north and south, a distance of a mile in length, only one house was left standing and scarcely a vestige of one could be seen. The tornado was precided a few moments before by a heavy hail storm and a deep rumbling sound.

The section which has most suffered was the residence portion, the lower part being the negro settlements, while the upper part contained many residences.

The Methodist and Baptist Churches and the Baptist parsonage, both just completed, and the negro Methodist church was destroyed. The Episcopal church was badly damaged and fully 100 houses were totally destroyed.

The stone residence of D. T. Davis of the Goliad Guard was the only building in the pathway of the storm not demolished.

The wind reached a velocity of seventy-two miles an hour and continued at that rate for nearly twenty minutes. At Fort Sam Houston government property was damaged to the extent of $20,000, the doors being torn off the officers' headquarters and barracks. Heavy rains fell throughout the western portion of the state and will help crops materially. The Panhandle especially was drenched. Goliad is now under military rule. The courthouse and residences are being used to shelter dead and care for the injured.

Gov. Sayers issued an appeal to the mayors of all cities of 3,000 population and over in the state of Texas asking them to send food to Goliad and raise funds for the sufferers.

Plantations and small villages have been devastated by the ceaseless rain of ashes and fire which has poured from Mont Pelee.

These survivors have taken refuge in the hills, away from the danger of the lava flow in the valleys, but still menaced by the showers of fire. The work of exploring the ruins of St. Pierre, of bringing away the refugees in the hills in the northern part of the island and of burning the bodies of the victims is progressing as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

Fort de France is crowded with refugees and food is already so scarce that alarm is felt that it will be exhausted before supplies can reach here.

As a result of the relief work the people who had fled to the hills behind the village of Le Precheur, nearly 4,000 in number, have been brought side. Of the twenty-eight, sixteen died composed of poisonous gases, which in- here.

Large quantities of disinfectants and stocks of clothing for the refugees were also shipped to St.

The refugees had, as a rule, assembled at Le Carbet and Case Pilote, not far from St. Pierre, and, it is reported, over a thousand of them have died since the fearful stream of lava poured down Mont Pelee.

The sea for miles round was covered with the wreckage of the vessels sunk off St. Pierre at the time of the disaster, and ashore only a few trees, all bent seaward by the force of the volcanic shower, were left standing.

When nearing St. Pierre the Rubis met a number of tugs towing lighters filled with refugees.

The heat from the smoking, lavacovered ruins at St. Pierre was suffocating and the stench from the corpse-strewn streets was awful. Only a few walls were standing. The report that the hospital clock was found intact with its hands stopped at 7:30 was confirmed, as was the statement that the offices of the cable company had entirely disappeared.

On all sides were found portions of corpses, which were gathered up by the soldiers and gendarmes and burned on one of the public squares.

Prudent says there was first an awful noise of explosion, and then right away a cyclone of smoke and fire, but such was the poisonous, choking nature of the smoke that it burned worse than the fire. The cyclone of gas tore the masts out of ships, blew others up, and sunk some of them. Soon afterwards came a wave of fire bigger than the smoke cloud.

"That cloud," continued Prudent, 'was bigger, it seemed, than the mountain.

Falling Runway Precipitates 2,000 Persons on the Crowd Below.

While fire was destroying half of the $1,000,000 lard refinery belonging to Armour & Co. in the Union Stock Yards at Chicago, a runaway crowded with two tiers of spectators broke under the strain.

From the mass of crushed timbers and struggling men and boys more than thirty injured persons were taken out. A boy, two women and one man were dangerously hurt. In addition to these a fireman sustained injuries while making the run to the fire which are expected to result in his death. Several other firemen were hurt, the list approximating forty.

There was a second's warning as the roof of the runway sank under the weight of the crowd. Then the sound of splintering wood was mixed with the cries of the injured as the roof fell in on the floor of the "run," which, in turn, collapsed on the heads of the people standing on the ground, throwing 2,000 persons in a confused

This happened while the fire was at its height. The fire itself was the most alarming and disastrous one the Stock Yards has had for many days, and only for the prompt work of employes and firemen in draining oil from the tanks in the burning plant, and but for a firewall which prevented the plaze from spreading, it is believed the principal buildings at the yards would have been doomed.

The lard refinery was in the center of the yards. Two thousand men and women were employed in it, and 700 -a night shift-were at work when the fire drove them out.

J. Ogden Armour placed the value of the building, which was constructed last year, at $1,000,000 and the damage at $500,000.

While the burning oil was presenting a brilliant spectacle and before the police lines had become strong enough to handle the crowd, the spectators took possession of the "hog run" of the Boyd-Lunham Company. The "run" stood just to the east and south of the building and furnished the best opportunity for viewing the fiery spectacle.

As many men and boys as could crowd on the "run" had climbed either to the root or to the run itself.

Two thousand persons were standng on the "run" when the crash came. The roof gave way first. Then, with cracking timbers and shouting people the load came down on the floor of the runway-itself crowded. The whole mass was precipitated to the ground, a fall of thirty feet in all, and on the heads of the persons below.

When the runway came down it caught the patrol wagon of the Stock Yards Station and cut it in two. This helped to save the persons on the on, as it held the timbers for a second. The timbers broke both legs of Israel Morris, the driver. In spite of the pain, Morris stuck to his seat and held his plunging horses.
