Handsome invitations have been printed by this office for a grand Thanksgiving dance to be held in Crawford's hall, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 28th, under the direction of the Opera House orchestra.

Genoa is to have a Boy's Brass Band. There's no question about the boy's wind holding out, and if there is any music in them it will come to light under the able instruction of their teacher, Prof. Walter Taylor. We wish the boys a better success than their predecessors enjoyed.

When you are ready to buy felt boots and overs don't listen to calamity howlers but go and see John Lembke. Get a square deal. Quality always the first consideration. The prices you will find all right when you compare his stock with the so-called cheap stuff.

—A carload of Empire State potatoes just received by James Kiernan. They are the finest car of potatoes ever brought to Genoa. They are good keepers and it will pay you to lay in your winter supply now. The price now is 75 cents, but you'll have to pay nearly double before spring.

The Odd Fellows and their friends will assist Curtis Harris and his good wife in celebrating the 26th anniversary of their marriage on this week Saturday evening. An oyster supper will be served at Bro. Harris' residence in the country by the ladies of the Rebekah, the proceeds to go to the carpet fund of the new hall. Supper 25c. Everybody invited.

The North-Western Line is now selling excursion tickets, at greatly reduced rates, to the health and pleasure resorts of California, Florida, Texas, Mexico, New Mexico, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee and Alabama. For tickets and full information apply to Agents, Chicago and North-Western Railway.

The quaint little women of Kane Greenaway are to be seen in a magazine for the first time since their creation. Miss Greenaway has heretofore always drawn them in color and for book publication. Now, however, she is at work upon a special series of her curious tots for The Ladies' Home Journal, and in that periodical they will alternate with a new series of Palmer Cox's funny "Brownies."

For the Christmas and New Years holidays the Illinois Central will sell excursion tickets to points on their line within a distance of 200 miles at a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip, tickets sold December 21, 25 and 31 and January 1, good to return until and including January 2, 1895. E. Sisson, Agent.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Weishton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhea of long standing in six hours, with one bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with the remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is very pleasant to take. For sale by F. Robinson.

"Hugging to Music."

Mr. Editor:—I am not fond of controversy nor of writing for publication and have waited for some one else to take up the cudgel in defense of dancing as condemned by Rev. Howard a few Sundays ago. He brought but little real argument to bear, his remarks consisting chiefly of sweeping assertions. Now, while not a member of the Methodist denomination I still consider myself a Christian, living as I believe a Christian life. If there are those who conscientiously feel that it is not well for them to dance let them abstain. There is another and a large class, whom Rev. Howard failed to mention, who are equally sure it is right. That the wisest and best men of certain denominations oppose it may be true, but there are equally as many of the wisest and best men of other denominations that believe it is a proper amusement. The reverend gentleman brings as an argument a South Carolina incident, wherein murder was committed. Can he not recall that not many years ago, in that same state, murder was committed at a religious revival meeting; two young members of a church drawing revolvers in the midst of an exhortation by the pastor, shooting each other dead. Often have I heard it said that "It drives out love of Christ". This is mere presumption and I hold that no human being is in a position to make such a statement. It would require the wisdom of the all-seeing Father to verify them. We have no right to say that anything is bad unless we can prove it. This Mr. Howard does not and cannot do. If dancing is wrong then ice and roller skating must be wrong, but I have never heard anything about it from the pulpits.

If there is evil in the clasp of the hands then the hostess in receiving her guests had better adopt the Chinese method and shake her own and women should scramble in and out of cars and carriages, etc. as best they can, unaided by man. Dancing does not require both sexes; if it is customary, it is simply because men and women have found pleasure in each other's society, and God meant they should. If we blush it is because of Mr. Howard's insinuations. I uphold dancing and believe it to be a harmless amusement, far more so than many of the so-called games played by many of the people who condemn it. I bear Mr. Howard not the least ill-will and am only sorry he should preach such error. Some things are matters of opinion not principles. A LADY DANCER.

To Public School Scholars.

We have perfected arrangements with the publishers of Historia, an illustrated monthly magazine of historical stories for the young people, whereby we will present twenty-five copies each month beginning with Oct. number, continuing the school term, to be equally divided between the high school, grammar and intermediate rooms, to be given to those scholars standing highest in deportment and attendance. Historia is a very interesting little magazine and is devoted exclusively to matters historical and properly illustrated. Books will be furnished the teachers, which when properly filled out will entitle the holder to one copy of Historia when presented at this office.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

The Brooklyn Preacher Presents a Cure for the Leprosy of Sin.

The Lesson of the Proud King Naaman, a Leper, and the Captive Hebrew Child—Christianity Among Children.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage made selection of the following sermon for dissemination through the press this week. Its subject is: "The Sick General," based upon the text:

He was a leper.—II Kings, v., 1.

Here we have a warrior sick; not with pleurisy or rheumatism or consumptions, but a disease worse than all these put together. A red mark has come out on the forehead, precursor of complete disfigurement. I have something awful to tell you, Gen. Naaman, commander-in-chief of all the Syrian forces, has the leprosy! It is on his hands, on his face, on his feet, on his entire person. The leprosy! Get out of the way of the pestilence! If his breath strike you, you are a dead man. The commander-in-chief of all the forces of Syria! And yet he would be glad to exchange conditions with the boy at his stirrup, or the hostler that blankets his charger. The news goes like wildfire all through the realm, and the people are sympathetic, and they cry out: "It is impossible that our great hero, who slew Ahab, and around whom we came with such vociferation when he returned from victorious battle—can it be possible that our grand and glorious Naaman has the leprosy?" Yes. Everybody has something he wishes he has not. David, an Absalom to disgrace him; Paul, a thorn to sting him; Job, carbuncles to plague him; Samson, a Delilah to shear him; Ahab, a Naboth to deny him; Haman, a Mordecai to irritate him; George Washington, childlessness to afflict him; John Wesley, a termagant wife to pester him; Leah, weak eyes; Pope, a crooked back; Byron, a club foot; John Milton, blind eyes; Charles Lamb, an insane sister; and you, and you, and you, and you, something which you never bargained for, and would like to get rid of. The reason of this is that God does not want this world to be too bright; otherwise, we would always want to stay and eat these fruits, and lie on these lounges, and shake hands in this pleasant society. We are only in the vestibule of a grand temple. God does not want us to stay on the doorstep, and therefore He sends aches, and annoyances, and sorrows, and bereavements of all sorts to push us on, and push us up toward riper fruits, and brighter society, and more radiant prosperities. God is only whipping us ahead. The reason that Edward Payson and Robert Hall had more rapturous views of Heaven than other people had was because, through their aches and pains, God pushed them nearer up to it. If God dashes out one of your pictures, it is only to show you a brighter one. If He sting your foot with gout, your brain with neuralgia, your tongue with an inextinguishable thirst, it is only because He is preparing to substitute a better body than you ever dreamed of, when the mortal shall put on immortality. It is to push you on, and to push you up toward something grander and better, that God sends upon you, as He did upon Gen. Naaman, something you do not want. Seated in his Syrian mansion—all the walls glittering with the shields which he had captured in battle; the corridors, crowded with admiring visitors, who just wanted to see him once; music and mirth, and banqueting filling all the mansion, from tessellated floor to pictured ceiling—Naaman would have forgotten that there was anything better, and would have been glad to stay there ten thousand years. But O, how the shields dim, and how the visitors fly the hall, and how the music drops dead from the string, and how the gates of the mansion slam shut with sepulchral bang, as you read the closing words of the epilogue: He was a leper! He was a leper!

There was one person more sympathetic with Gen. Naaman than any other person. Naaman's wife walks the floor, wringing her hands, and trying to think what she can do to alleviate her husband's suffering. All remedies have failed. The surgeon-general and the doctors of the royal staff have met, and they have shaken their heads, as much as to say: "No cure; no cure." I think that the office-seekers have all folded up their recommendations and gone home. Probably most of the employes of the establishment had doped their work and were thinking of looking for some other situation. What shall now become of poor Naaman's wife? She must have sympathy somewhere. In her despair she goes to a little Hebrew captive, a servant-girl in her house, to whom she tells the whole story; as sometimes, when overcome by the sorrows of the world, and finding no sympathy anywhere else, you have gone out and found in the sympathy of some humble domestic—Rose, or Dinah, or Bridget—a help which the world could not give you.

What a scene it was: one of the grandest women in all Syria in cabinet council with a waiting-maid over the declining health of the mighty general! "I know something," says the little captive maid; "I know something," as she bounds to her bare feet. "In the land from which I was stolen there is a certain prophet known by the name of Elisha, who can cure almost anything, and I shouldn't wonder if he could cure my master. Send for him right away." "O hush!" you say. "If the highest medical talent of all the land can not cure that leper, there is no need of your listening to any talk of a servant girl." But do not scoff, do not sneer. The finger of that little captive maid is pointing in the right direction. She might have said: "This is a judgement upon you for stealing me from my native land. Didn't they snatch me off in the night, breaking my father's and mother's heart? and many a time I have lain and cried all night because I was so homesick." Then, flushing up into childish indignation, she might have said: "Good for them. I'm glad Naaman's got the leprosy." No. Forgetting her personal sorrows, she sympathizes with the suffering of her master, and commends him to the famous Hebrew prophet.

And how often is it that the finger of childhood has pointed grown persons in the right direction. Oh, Christian soul, how long is it since you got rid of the leprosy of sin? You say: "Let me see. It must be five years now." Five years. Who was it that pointed you to the Divine Physician? "Oh," you say, "it was my little Amie, or Fred, or Charley, that clambered up on my knees, and looked into my face, and asked me why I didn't become a Christian, and all the while stroking my cheek so I couldn't get angry, insisted upon knowing why I didn't have family prayers." There are grandparents who have been brought to Christ by their little grandchildren. There are hundreds of Christian mothers who had their attention first called to Jesus by their little children. How did you get rid of the leprosy of sin? How did you find your way to the Divine Physician? "Oh," you say, "my child—my dying child, with wan and wasted fingers, pointed that way. Oh, I shall never forget," you say, "that scene at the cradle and the crib that awful night. It was hard, hard, very hard; but if that little one on its dying bed had not pointed me to Christ, I don't think I ever would have got rid of my leprosy." Go into the Sabbath-school any Sunday and you will find hundreds of little fingers pointing in the same direction, toward Jesus Christ and toward Heaven.

How the countrymen gaped at the procession passed! They had seen Naaman go pass like a whirlwind in days gone by, and had stood agape at the clank of his war equipments; but now they commiserate him. They say: "Poor man, he will never get home alive; poor man!"

Gen. Naaman wakes up from a restless sleep in the chariot, and says to the charioteer: "How long before we shall reach the Prophet Elisha?" The charioteer says to a waysider: "How far is it to Elisha's house?" He says: "Two miles. Two miles?" Then they whip up the lathered and fagged-out horses. The whole procession brightens up at the prospect of speedy arrival. They drive up to the door of the prophet. The charioteers shout "Whoa!" to the horses, and tramping hoofs and grinding wheels cease shaking the earth. Come out, Elisha, come out; you have company; the grandest company that ever came to your house has come to it now. No stir inside Elisha's house. The fact was, the Lord has informed Elisha that the sick captain was coming, and just how to treat him. Indeed, when you are sick, and the Lord wants you to get well, He always tells the doctor how to treat you; and the reason we have so many bungling doctors is because they depend upon their own strength and instructions, and not on the Lord God, and that always makes malpractice. Come out, Elisha, and tend to your business. Gen. Naaman and his retinue waited, and waited, and waited. The fact was, Naaman had two diseases—pride and leprosy; the one was as hard to get rid of as the other. Elisha sits quietly in his house, and does not go out. After a while, when he thinks he has humbled this proud man, he says to a servant: "Go out and tell Gen. Naaman to bathe seven times in the River Jordan, out yonder five miles, and he will get entirely well." The message comes out. "What?" says the commander-in-chief of the Syrian forces, his eye kindling with animation which it had not shown for weeks, and his swollen foot stamping on the bottom of the chariot, regardless of pain. "What! Isn't he coming out to see me? Why I thought certainly he would come and utter some cabalistic words over me, or make some enigmatical passes over my wounds. Why, I don't think he knows who I am. Isn't he coming out? Why, when the Shunamite woman came to him, he rushed out and cried: 'Is it well with thee? is it well with thy husband? is it well with thy child?' and will he treat a poor unknown woman like that, and let me, a titled personage, sit here in my chariot and wait, and wait? I won't endure it any longer. Charioteer, drive on! Wash in the Jordan! Ha! Ha! The slimy Jordan—the muddy Jordan—the monotonous Jordan. I wouldn't be seen washing in such a river as that. Why, we watered our horses in a better river than that on our way here—the beautiful river, the jasper-paved River of Parpar. Besides that, we have in our country another Damascus river, Abana, with foliaged bank, the torrent ever swift and ever clear, under the flickering shadows of sycamore and oleander. Are not Abana and Parpar, rivers of Damascus better than all the waters of Israel?"

So, after all, it seems that this health excursion of Gen. Naaman is to be a dead failure. That little Hebrew captive might as well not have been taken. Poor, sick, dying Naaman! Are you going away in high dudgeon, and worse than when you came? As his chariot halts a moment, his servants clamber up in it and coax him to do as Elisha said. They say: "It's easy. If the prophet had told you to walk for a mile on sharp spikes in order to get rid of this awful disease, you would have done it. It is easy. Come, my lord, just get down and wash in the Jordan. You take a bath every day anyhow, and in this climate it is so hot that it will do you good. Do it on our account, and for the sake of the army you command, and for the sake of the nation that admires you. Come, my lord, just try a Jordanic bath."

"Well," he says, "to please you I will do as you say." The retinue drive to the brink of the Jordan. The horses paw and neigh to get into the stream themselves and cool their hot flanks. Gen. Naaman, assisted by his attendants, gets down out of the chariot and painfully comes to the brink of the river and steps in until the water comes to the ankle, and goes on deeper until the water comes to the girdle, and now standing so far down in the stream, just a little inclination of the head will thoroughly immerse him. He bows once into the flood, and comes up and shakes the water out of nostril and eye; and his attendants look at him and say: "Why, general, how much better you do look." And he bows a second time into the flood and comes up, and the wild stare is gone out of his eye. He bows the third time into the flood and comes up, and the shriveled flesh has got smooth again. He bows the fourth time in the flood and comes up, and the hair that had fallen out is restored in thick locks again all over his brow. He bows the fifth time into the flood and comes up, and the hoarseness has gone out of his throat. He bows the sixth time and comes up, and all the soreness and anguish have gone out of his limbs. "Why," he says, "I am almost well, but I will make a complete cure," and he bows the seventh time into the flood and he comes up, and not so much as a fester, or a scale, or an eruption as big as the head of a pin is to be seen on him. He steps out on the bank and says: "Is it possible?" And the attendants look and say: "Is it possible?" And as, with the health of an athlete, he bounds back into the chariot and drives on, there goes up from all his attendants a wild "huzza! huzza!" Of course, they go back to pay and thank the man of God for his counsel so fraught with wisdom. When they left the prophet's house they went off mad; they have come back glad. People always think better of a minister after they are converted than they do before conversion. Now, we are to them an intolerable nuisance, because we tell them to do things that go against the grain; but some of us have a great many letters from those who tell us that once they were angry at what we preached, but afterward gladly received the Gospel at our hands. They once called us fanatics, or terrorists, or enemies; now they call us friends. Yonder is a man who said he would never come into the church again. He said that two years ago. He said: "My family shall never come here again if such doctrines as that are preached." But he came again, and his family came again. He is a Christian, his wife a Christian, all his children Christians, the whole household Christians, and you shall dwell with them in the house of the Lord forever. Our undying coadjutors are those who once heard the Gospel, and "went away in a rage."

I suppose that was a great time at Damascus when Gen. Naaman got back. The charioteers did not have to drive slowly any longer, lest they jolt the invalid; but as the horses dashed through the streets of Damascus I think the people rushed out to hail back their chieftain. Naaman's wife hardly recognized her husband; he was so wonderfully changed she had to look at him two or three times before she made out that it was her restored husband. And the little captive maid, she rushed out, clapping her hands and shouting: "Did he cure you? Did he cure you?" Then music woke up the palace, and the tapestry of the windows was drawn away, that the multitude outside might mingle with the princely mirth inside, and the feet went up and down in the dance, and all the streets of Damascus that night echoed an' rejoiced with the news: "Naaman's cured! Naaman's cured!" But a gladder time than that it would be if your soul should get cured of its leprosy. The swiftest white horses hitched to the King's chariot would rush the news into the eternal city. Our loved ones before the throne would welcome the glad tidings. Your children on earth, with more emotion than the little Hebrew captive, would notice the change in your look and the change in your manner, and would put their arms around your neck and say: "Mother, I guess you must have become a Christian. Father, I think you have got rid of the leprosy." O, Lord, God of Elisha, have mercy on us!

LABOR CONGRESS.

It Discusses the Relations of Employer and Employed.

Arbitration and Conciliation the Main Topics of Consideration—Congressman Springer Speaks of His Bill—Commissioner Wright Speaks.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—The opening session of the congress of industrial conciliation and arbitration was called to order by Lyman J. Gage. Prof. E. R. L. Gould, of Johns Hopkins university, read a paper on the "History of Industrial Arbitration in England and the Continent."

Judge William A. Vincent presided at the afternoon session. James Peabody, editor of the Railway Review, speaking on the subject of "Arbitration in Railway Affairs," said that the law was now powerless to prevent the crippling of railroads by the striking of employes. Some law was needed, he thought, to prevent men from getting in a body without warning. The public was more to be considered than either railroad managers or employes.

L. S. Coffin, of Iowa, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, thought that railroad employes, as in every sense public servants, should not cripple the public service, but the railroad should also pay them fair wages. He believed that labor should have the right to combine and make a strong plea for Sunday rest for railroad employes. He was opposed to giving state and national commissions more power in regard to the settlement of strikes. Let their work be merely advisory.

Springer and His Bill.

Representative William M. Springer spoke on his bill for arbitration of labor troubles between railroad employes and employers. This bill is now on the congressional calendar. It asks for a national commission of arbitration of three members to be appointed by the president at a salary of $5,000 each, to hold office for three years. Mr. Springer believed that the deference to public opinion of both parties to labor controversies would make them abide by any decision rendered by a national labor commission.

Rev. Dr. John H. Barrows, of this city, presided at the evening session. "The Distinction Between Arbitration and Conciliation" was discussed by Josephine Shaw Lowell, of New York. Voluntary arbitration only came in this country, she said, after a long siege between capital and labor, and the public had entirely lost their patience. The result was generally satisfactory. The best plan, instead of trying to arbitrate troubles and strikes, was to prevent them. The character of employes and employers needed to be changed; a Christian feeling should prevail and conciliation was the word that applied.

Wednesday's Sessions.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Miss Jane Adams, of Hullhouse, presided over the Wednesday morning session. John D. Weeks, editor of the American Manufacturer and Iron World, spoke on the relation of manufacturers and employes. Strikes he looks upon as the greatest of evils. The trouble cannot be met by competition or the doctrine of laissez faire—leave alone. Legislation or compulsory arbitration are out of the question. Public opinion, he thought, in addition to some method of getting the contending parties together for a peaceable settlement, is the most potent factor.

M. M. Garland, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, treated of the sliding scale system and its workings. He said: "The amalgamated iron and steel workers have solved these labor difficulties, and their solution has been in operation for twenty-eight years. The sliding-scale system and fairness in the counsel-room have brought about a peaceable settlement. To be sure, we have sometimes disagreed, but eventually the ironworkers and their employers have come together."

Carroll D. Wright, United States labor commissioner, discussed the "Distinction Between Compulsory and Voluntary Arbitration," "Distinction Between Compulsory Arbitration and Public Investigation of Labor Disputes" and "Distinction Between Adjudication of Past Contracts and Settlement of Future Ones." He said that the labor question broadly stated simply means a struggle for a higher standard of living. A strike in itself is simply a protest against changing conditions adversely. It is only through conflict that good ever comes in this world. So the labor conflict means the uplifting of the laboring man and the bettering of his condition. There should always precede arbitration, he said, an attempt at conciliation. Compulsory arbitration is not to be thought of. A law compelling workmen or employers to accede to a decree of the court under penalty could not be enforced. Mr. Wright believed in public investigation. Publicity is always salutary. Let the responsibility for the troubles be fixed, he said, and public opinion will do the rest. It is more potent than a mandate of the courts.

Prof. Adams, secretary of the interstate commerce commission, read a paper on "Economics of Arbitration." There could be no industrial liberty without industrial ownership of property, according to his views. He recognized, but two classes of persons—the property holders and those who have no property. Without proprietorship the labor question could never be solved. There existed no interest common to all laborers. Each trade had its own interests and no combination of all trades was possible. No more was a great labor party a possibility.

William H. Sayward, of Boston, secretary of the National Association of Builders, spoke on "The Relation Between Employer and Employee in the Building Trades." The workmen, he declared, have never applied to employers for sympathy; it is sole justice that workmen want. The interests of employer and workman are not identical. Their relations are of the buyer and seller.

As a final remedy the speaker advocated organization of both employers and workmen which would lead to conferences and agreements between the two classes.

As a substitute for conciliation and arbitration, as generally accepted, the speaker would substitute primary agreements and thus do away with any causes for trouble. Cure the causes for all strife instead of stopping individual cases.

"Necessity for Mutual Organization" was the subject assigned Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. He declared that the man who assisted, in any way, the organization of labor was a public benefactor, inasmuch as organization assisted in conciliation and arbitration. He continued:

"The strike is but one of the eruptions of the labor movement and one of the infrequent occurrences considered beside the great work that the organization of labor performs, and even these strikes men and women who are honest desire zealously to see entirely eliminated or reduced in number."

"As one who has been intimately and closely connected with the labor movement for more than thirty years—from boyhood—I say to you that I have yet to receive a copy of the constitution of any general organization or local organization of labor which has not the provision in it contained that before any strike shall be undertaken, conciliation or arbitration shall be tried."

"To urge arbitration previous to the organization of labor simply means the destruction of the interests of labor. Compulsory arbitration—compulsory arbitration. Not if the workmen of America know it. I would say to you as one who is a law-abiding citizen, as one who reveres the institutions under which we live, as one who wants to help in handing down the republic of our country to our children and to posterity unimpaired, but improved, if we can, I would say that I would advise my fellow workmen and women to rise and resist by every means within their power any attempt to force compulsory arbitration upon them."

A Commission Favored. At the meeting of the speakers and the conference committee of the federation after the adjournment of the congress the following resolution was passed:

"Having been requested by the subcommittee of the Civic Federation of Chicago having in charge the conference of arbitration and conciliation to offer suggestions as to the trend and value of the congress, as what might best perpetuate its influence, the parties who have been asked to present papers at the conference do suggest and recommend to the said subcommittee to report back to the Civic Federation that a larger national commission be established through the Civic Federation of Chicago for the purpose of procuring the application of principles discussed at this congress."

GUARDING THE MEXICAN LINE. Belligerent Feeling Toward Guatemala—War Preparations.

COMITANT, Mexico, Nov. 20.—New troops have arrived and taken station covering the line. There is the strongest possible feeling here in favor of war with Guatemala. The Chapana are all willing to shoulder muskets, and many of them have made offers to the government of arms for war purposes.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Nov. 20.—The Nineteenth infantry has embarked on gunboats to go to Tobasco. Two hundred and fifty thousand cartridges have been shipped south within the last few days. The Fourth infantry is expected here in a few days to go to Tobasco also.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 20.—The national arms factory here is turning out cartridges as fast as possible. The greatest bustle is noticeable in the war department.

SAN CRISTOBAL DE LAS CARAS, Mexico, Nov. 20.—The greatest enthusiasm exists in this state in favor of war. The government has been asked to accept volunteers. Societies have been organized who will tender their services to the state and to the federal government, expecting to be sent to the front.

MAZATLAN, Mexico, Nov. 20.—The steamship Jandro is now ready to take on her new armament, and it is reported that she will immediately get ready to take 1,000 soldiers to the Guatemalan frontier from Acapulco.

Knights of Labor.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 17.—In his annual address before the Knights of Labor General Master Workman Sovereign severely criticised Maj. Gen. John M. Schofield and his recommendation for an increase of the army, together with the action of the Chicago millionaire aristocracy who were permitted to present a stand of colors to the Fifteenth infantry, as an indication of an "uneasy desire to subjugate labor through the military powers of the nation." He urged that the assembly take strong grounds against an increase of the military force of the nation, and that they "advocate a decrease in the regular army and the abolition of the state militia, for from them are coming to the surface a sense of military despotism."

Steinitz Wins the First Prize. NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The chess masters' tournament was finished. Steinitz took first prize, Albin was placed second, and Showalter and Hymes divided third and fourth prizes.

THE NAPOLEON REVIVAL.

Why the Emperor is the Most Popular Character in History.

Within the past year there has been a revival of interest in the career of Napoleon Bonaparte that is almost phenomenal. In literature he has figured in the pages of memoirs and reminiscences by those who came into more and less intimate contact with him. In art not only has he been a potent inspiration to modern painters and sculptors, but he has made priceless all pictorial records of his time. In the drama he poses as the most picturesque figure that has been brought upon the stage within the century. Personal relics of the man are held as sacred and beyond all price. As Paul Bourget aptly says, "Napoleon has hypnotized the French people again." In France the sting of defeat after the Franco-Prussian war turned the thoughts of all to their period of greatest glory, and so it needed but time to see Napoleon enshrined as an idol. An equally logical explanation is found for the most notable feature of the Napoleon revival in this country.

The Century's life of the emperor was projected five or six years ago, before anyone could have foreseen the present attitude of the public mind. It was undertaken solely with the idea that Napoleon was one of the greatest, most forceful and picturesque characters in the entire range of history, and that hitherto he had been inadequately represented. For that reason Prof. William M. Sloane, the greatest American student of French history, was commissioned to write the life, and his years of study among unpublished archives have brought out his completed labor at the most opportune moment. And Prof. Sloane shows us a new Napoleon, a devourer of books, an unsuccessful literary aspirant, an ineffectual Corsican political agitator, but the new Napoleon certainly makes the old Napoleon more easily comprehended.

A LONE STAR WEDDING.

The Bride's Father Furnished Music by Shooting at the groom.

All the old residents of Montague county, Tex., remember Uncle Henry Harris, the preacher ferryman, of Red river, during the latter part of the eighties. There have been many greater men in this part of the state, and many more intellectual ones, but there have been few who were so universally loved or who were so widely mourned for after their death. Uncle Henry was a one-legged man, and the wooden stump which supplied the place of his missing member was a primitive affair. It was joined to the stump of his leg by a strap, which could be removed in a few moments.

Calvin Dubbs, a half-breed Choctaw Indian, courted his daughter, May Harris. Uncle Henry was opposed to the suit of Dubbs, because of his ungodliness and bad character.

One afternoon Calvin Dubbs rode up to the ferry, and, as the river was high, asked to be ferried over. The old man and Tobe started to take him across, but no sooner did they reach the middle of the river when their passenger whipped out a bowie knife and in a few passes severed the longer of the two ropes that bound them to the trolley. The boat immediately swung around in the current and remained stationary in midriver.

"What's that?" cried Uncle Henry, in alarm. "Don't you know we can't get across now?"

"Don't know about you. I kin make it all right myself."

Calvin sprang to the saddle, urged his pony over the side of the boat into the water, and struck out for shore. The two captives on the boat watched him helplessly until he gained the shore they had just left. As he did so May came out of the cabin, arrayed in her Sunday best, and two men on horseback rode out from their concealment back of the bluff. The object of the stratagem gradually dawned on the old man's mind.

"There's goin' to be a weddin'," yelled Calvin from the bank. "We'll let you attend as a witness."

"Whar's yore license," shrieked the father, "and whar's yore preacher?"

"Her's the license," yelled Dubbs, waving a legal-looking document; "can you read it from there? And this man here's the preacher."

The couple took their places, and the alleged preacher began the ceremony. Uncle Henry began pleading and expostulating, but all in vain. Suddenly he grabbed the Winchester he carried in the bottom of his boat and drew a bead on his prospective son-in-law.

"Stop that tom-foolery, or I'll shoot."

"Shoot, and be hanged!" yelled Calvin. "Go on, parson!" This latter remark was addressed to the preacher on shore. Whatever might be said against Calvin's morals, nobody ever doubted his nerve.

"Crack!" sounded the Winchester from the boat, and with a thud a bullet buried itself in the horn of the bridegroom's saddle. Calvin made a quick motion toward his own gun, but May caught his arm.

"Don't!" she cried. "Pa won't hurt you. If he'd wanted to he'd bored you the first crack."

The ceremony was a brief one, but every few moments Uncle Henry would blaze away, just close enough to the bridegroom to be unpleasant. When it was all over the party rode away, with many tantalizing adieus to the captives on the boat.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

You Can't Eat Wrought Iron Nails.
Of course, and expect to digest them, but you can eat ordinary food that is wholesome and digest it, too, after your stomach, if enfeebled, has been strengthened by a course of Hosieter's Stomach Bitters. Your kidneys, liver and bowels will be rendered active and vigorous by the great tonic, and your system fortified against malaria and rheumatism. Use it, also, if you are nervous and sleepless.

"When did I give you that promise?"
"On one of the last two days of February."
"That shows what a fraud you are. February hasn't got the last two days."—Fleugoude Blaettier.

In Olden Times
People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

of all cases of consumption can, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease, be cured. This may seem like a bold assertion to those familiar only with the means generally in use for its treatment; as, nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy emulsions, extract of malt, whiskey, different preparations of hypophosphites and such like palliatives.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent, are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation, and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience.

in washing and cleaning is Pearl-ine. By doing away with the rubbing, it opens the way to easy work; with Pearl-ine, a weekly wash can be done by a weakly woman. It shuts out possible harm and danger; all things washed with Pearl-ine last longer than if washed with soap. Everything is done better with it. These form but a small part of the packages of Pearl-ine every year. Let Pearl-ine do its best and there is no fear of "dirt doing its worst."

Nor the future, but the present is what confronts tariff reform.

ONE would think that it was for Chicago that the United States senator was to be elected, instead of the state at large.

GROVER CLEVELAND has been asked to act as a peacemaker between China and Japan. That would seem an easier task than patching up the disruption of Democracy.

If the present administration had expended a little of that $60,000 said to have been saved the government, and put a little more stickum on those sickly looking new two-cent stamps, it would have saved a pile of unnecessary cussing.

WHETHER the coming session of Congress will accomplish any important legislation will depend largely on circumstances, but whatever it may or may not accomplish it is certainly going to be one of the liveliest short sessions ever seen.

STATE SENATOR H. H. EVANS, of Aurora, is being mentioned for the United States senatorship. He has represented Kane and DuPage counties in the state senate for nearly a quarter of a century, and during that time has had opposition but once. He is popular with the masses and one of the most prominent figures in the senate. With Senator Evans to attempt a thing is to accomplish it. Illinois could have no more faithful worker at Washington than he.

The story of Illinois in the early 40's. "Bandits of the Prairie," now nearly 40 years out of print, is about to be issued by the Rockford Semi-Weekly Register-Gazette as a serial, beginning Nov. 27. It contains the plot against the Dixon land office, the Miller and Lacey murders and that of Col. Geo. Davenport, the robbery of the Frink & Walker stage near Rockford, the Mulford robbery in Ogle county and other startling events of which the present generation should not be ignorant.

The Register-Gazette will be sent for the time of the story, nearly three months, for ten cents. Don't wait; send in your dime and name immediately.

Cure For Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitters have proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headaches yield to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only 50c at F. T. Robinson's.

Specimen Cases

S. H. Clifford, New Castle, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his Stomach was disordered, Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill. had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by F. Robinson, Drug store.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with la grippe and tried all the physicians for miles around, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We don't keep store or house without it. Get a free trial bottle at Robinson's drugstore."

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by F. T. Robinson.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale by F. T. Robinson.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spinal Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorests' Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorests' Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beautiful art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-pictures of roses, 10 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated living flower-painter, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorests' Magazine for 1905. The cost of this superb work of art was $50,000 and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the art class are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorests' Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fact of the day. Demorests' is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages and its articles on family and domestic matters, will find a sympathetic interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft fall, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the gentler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorests' Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMB'S has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one Magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of the whole family.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

We Pay $10 Each for Ideas

We need TWENTY or MORE original and striking designs for Newspaper Advertisements of SANTA CLAUS SOAP. The manufacturers, The N. K. Fairbank Company, authorize us to pay TEN DOLLARS EACH for approved drawings with appropriate reading; or $5.00 each for designs or reading matter only. This offer is open to all. The competition will close December 1. As soon as possible after that date we will pay for accepted designs and return the others. Remember, for complete, acceptable advertisements we pay.

Directions.—Make drawings with black ink on heavy white paper, or card board. Do the work in outline. Elaborate shading will not print well. Space in papers will be four inches square. Draw to large scale if you prefer, but have design square. The idea is most important. If that is good we can have it redrawn and still give you credit. Avoid poetry. Get up an ad. that would make you buy the article.

Points.—Santa Claus is a pure, high-grade Soap—made for laundry and general household use—a favorite wherever known. Merits generous praise. Sold by all grocers, wholesale and retail.

MY SWEETHEART.

Her height? Perhaps you'd deem her tall—
To be exact, just five feet seven;
Her arching feet are not too small;
Her gleaming eyes are bits of Heaven.
Slim are her hands, yet not too wee—
I could not fancy useless fingers;
Her hands are all that hands should be,
And own a touch whose memory lingers.

The hue that lights her oval cheeks
Recalls the pink that tints a cherry;
Upon her chin a dimple speaks
A disposition blithe and merry.
Her laughter ripples like a brook;
Its sound a heart of stone would soften;
Though sweetness shines in every look,
Her laugh is never loud nor often.

Though golden locks have won renown
With bards, I never heed their raving;
The girl I love hath locks of brown,
Not tightly curled, but gently waving.
Her mouth? Perhaps you'd term it large—
Is firmly molded, full and curving;
Her quiet lips are Cupid's charge,
But in the cause of truth unswerving.

Though little of her neck is seen,
That little is both smooth and slighty;
And fair as marble in its sheen,
Above her bodice gleaming whitely.
Her nose is just the proper size,
Without a trace of upward turning,
Her shell-like ears are wee and wise,
The tongue of scandal ever spurning.

In mirth and woe her voice is low,
Her calm demeanor never flustered;
Her every accent seems to go
Straight to one's heart as soon as uttered.
She ne'er coquetts as others do;
Her tender heart would never let her
Where does she dwell? I would I knew!
As yet, alas! I've never met her.

"Then we have no time to lose," said the woman, calmly. "These people are all friends. You are to change your garments immediately. My servant will help you. Explanations and further directions must wait."

She called the negro servant and said to him: "Now, then, Fan, be as quick as you can. We are fifteen minutes late."

"This way, professah," said the servant, with a grin, as he pointed to the old mill.

Laport, without further words, made a bow and followed the negro into the dilapidated structure. Here, in one of the recesses where there remained a clear space and a flooring, there was a hamper such as is used at picnics. There were one or two plates and a napkin conspicuous on its strapped lid. The negro brushed them away and hurriedly tore open the basket. It was packed tightly and carefully with a complete outfit of clothes, which the man lifted out and spread in a pile upon a clean newspaper. Laport was watching him with curious interest.

"Excuse me, sah," said the servant, "you ain't got no time. You got to git dem duds off lively. I 'se goin' to dress you. Take 'em off—take 'em off—I 'se got to put 'em in dis yere wicker works."

Thus recalled to the urgency of the moment Laport began at once to divest himself of the disguise he wore. As fast as he relieved himself of his clothing, the negro placed it in the hamper, and when it was full he excused himself and carried it away.

He was not gone more than five minutes, and when he came back he was empty handed. What he did with it Laport never knew. But even then he had an instinctive feeling that its complete destruction or effectual hiding had been provided for.

Fan then proceeded to dress him in the most expeditious, but the same time the most scrupulous, manner. In spite of the nervous anxiety of Laport, he could not help wondering at the systematic provision that had been made for a thorough and complete change of appearance. The linen, cuffs, collar, studs, sleeve buttons, finger ring, watch chain, had not been forgotten. He was quickly dressed in a handsome suit of gray tweed, an immaculate vest and a fine soft black hat with a broad brim. He was shaved with marvelous dexterity, fitted with a flowing gray wig and gold glasses, a pair of silk stockings and riding boots with spurs, a field glass thrown over his shoulder and rouge given to his face; and when Fan held up a little mirror before his eyes, Laport saw himself transformed into a comfortable well-to-do governor with a florid face that indicated good living.

"Excuse me, sah," said Fan, as he admired his work. "You'll hav' to sojer up; jess frow out your bress and put yer shoulders back. Yer got a bad sag in yer backbone. Der duds ain't made for it. Jess one more pint—good nuff, if yer can hold him dar."

Fan ran his eye over the details and looked at a little watch that he carried in his vest pocket. Laport saw that it was exactly like the one Kent had given him and that the woman had exhibited while he was on the millstone. Indeed, it reminded the servant to replace in Laport's vest pocket the time-piece that Kent had given him. He did this with the remark: "Dat's de general's time. T'other one's for to make a gallus show."

A moment later he had gathered up all the evidences of his work and summoned the lady who appeared to be his mistress. She came in flushed, as if she had been riding, looked at Laport critically and said:

"You are Dr. Samuel Franklin, of Cincinnati, and I am your daughter. You are to assume, to the best of your ability, the manner of a rather peremptory but kind-hearted parent. You can scold me for my extravagance a little if you like. You are to carry this roll of bills and when called upon pay our expenses. You are also to take this little checkbook and draw your check as I direct. Further directions I can give you as we journey. The horses are at the door."

Five minutes later Laport was on the back of a handsome horse, riding by the side of a jaunty and spirited companion. Immediately behind them rode three others, who made up the group. The way for some distance was across fields, but presently they came into one of those grass-grown lanes that divide farms, and a little later struck a common country highway running southwest. Not a word was spoken by Laport's companion for a mile or two except an occasional direction as to speed. But after an hour's ride they came to a group of houses, when she said: "It is necessary that we show ourselves here. You are to preserve the air of the father of the family—that is all."

At the largest of the houses the party drew up and asked for a drink of water of a man at the door. While it was being served Laport remained in the road—the rest drew up chatteringly at the door and managed adroitly to tell the man how they had been disappointed in their ride and were hurrying back to Shirleyville. Some questions were also asked about better roads; and then, with flippant jests, some coin was flung to the man and they started off again. It was now half-past three o'clock and a ride of half an hour brought them to an intersecting and evidently not much traveled road. "We turn south," said Laport's companion. "The rest go on to Shirleyville. Do you understand? There is no telegraph on our route."

The moment they were in the new road she said: "I shall have to ask you pend on the discrepancy between the description and the appearance. The probability is that the pursuit will be thrown off at Shirleyville. There is no means of knowing that we left the party until the pursuers reach the party. They will then have to retrace their steps. The landlord at Charlotte will tell them that he has been receiving your checks before the date of the escape, and saw you sign one with his own eyes. It will take some time afterward to ascertain that we are not in Pankanky yet. If, however, the telegraph is used without waiting to ascertain that fact the detective will board the train when we pull into Wheeling."

"Are you prepared for that?"

"Yes. You change your disguise before taking that train."

"Ah," said Laport, with relief. "And you go on alone," added the woman.

"Yes?" said Laport, inquiringly. "You reach Cincinnati and go to the Columbia hotel, an obscure place. You will look on the register for Bernard Biddle. He's your old friend. He will get you over into Kentucky that night. On Friday morning at ten o'clock you will be at the rendezvous appointed by Mr. Kent. I will myself join you three days later. Once at that point you are absolutely safe from pursuit."

Laport looked at her. "I do not quite see how that can be," he said.

"You will see clearly enough when you arrive there," replied his companion.

CHAPTER V.

On Friday morning a tired and dusty traveler in a miserable Tennessee wagon was driven up to the rugged acclivity in Henderson county now known as Fort Surges. It was then a wild, overgrown region and all the traveler and the negro who drove him could see sticking out of the brush half a mile up the rocks was the unpainted roof of a small frame house. The traveler got out, stamped his feet as if he was cramped by long riding, gave the negro a two-dollar bill and began climbing the rocky bank.

It was Laport. He sat down on the doorstep of the house somewhat winded by the climb and looked about him. The prospect to your approbation you can depart. I will not betray you. If it does you can work for me a year, save a handsome competence and spend the remainder of your days in some safe place comfortably. You are not eating."

"Pardon me," said Laport. "I will drink this coffee and listen to you. I have no appetite."

"Perhaps a drop of stimulant?"

"No," said Laport. "My curiosity to hear what you have to say is too great to permit me to eat. Proceed."

"There are two orders of men, Mr. Laport," said Kent. "One order deals with ideas, the other with events. They are incompatible, but supplementary. The greatest achievements are brought about by the association of the two orders of talent. One order is reflective and creative; the other is executive and administrative. We represent the two orders. I am not satisfied with events as they occur. I am going to manufacture them on a large scale."

"I PROPOSE TO RECTIFY SOME OF THE EVILS OF SOCIETY."

He paused a moment and took a few mouthfuls of food. Laport was regarding him curiously.

"This sounds a little abstract, but it is a necessary postulate. I'm not a crank. Like yourself, society has wronged me. I propose to rectify some of the evils of society. If that sounds chimerical, let me remind you that the details of your rescue ought to convince you that I am a man of method, accustomed to deal with facts and adjust myself to circumstances. You are under some obligations to me. I propose to avail myself of those obligations in only one way—it is by making a confidant of you and depending upon your sense of loyalty, no matter what arrangement we effect. The pledge is implied. I have to put myself in your hands to a certain extent. You are a free man. You are not directly or indirectly to betray my confidence, even if you do not stay with me. That, I merely say, is understood."

Laport bowed his head in acquiescence.

Kent smiled. "It is hardly necessary for me to say to you that I would not have this confidence in your sense of loyalty if I had not acquainted myself with your character and I hardly would have taken the extraordinary means to secure your services if I had not believed I could depend upon you. Verbal pledges are unnecessary, my dear sir."

"In carrying out the vast projects which I have in my mind for the rectification of some of the evils of society, I shall necessarily come in collision with society and it was necessary first of all to find a secure place safe from interruption, impregnable and unknown to the world, where I could carry on the extensive organizing scheme. That place is under your feet."

"I do not understand you," said Laport, looking curiously about him.

"Under this floor," continued Kent, "is the entrance to the largest cave that has probably ever been explored by man. I discovered it by accident seven years ago. I bought this piece of land and erected this house over the entrance. I purpose to buy the whole two thousand acres of wild land that covers a great portion of it, and erect here a large building ostensibly a sanitarium. It is for the fitting up of this underground domain that I have taken such pains to secure your aid. I need in it an electrical plant; a water system; electric railway; and heating apparatus, besides means of defense and other modern appliances. I have estimated the cost of my internal—or, perhaps, I should say, intestinal—improvement at something like a million dollars. It is for you to say, when I have taken you over the ground, if you will sell me your mechanical skill for a year and what it will be worth."

Kent waited for a reply.

After a moment's hesitation Laport said: "It seems to me, sir, that at this time I am not in a position to make terms. If you succeed in demonstrating to me the practicability of your plans, the best I can do is to offer you my services and advice in so far as the scheme meets with my approbation."

"Well, I can only say that such an arrangement will not do at all. I do not intend to implicate you in any of my schemes. I wish to employ your constructive ability at a reasonable price. If the work that I want done is practicable to the engineering and mechanical mind, and you give me your services for a year, will fifty thousand dollars compensate you?"

A TERRIBLE ORDEAL.

The Horrible Sight Witnessed by a Missouri Girl.

She Escapes the Fury of Her Maniac Brother and Watches Him Cut His Throat After Having Killed Three Other Relatives.

WELLSVILLE, Mo., Nov. 20.—This little village was the scene of a horrible quadruple murder early Monday morning which wiped out nearly an entire family. Thomas Portercheck, with his mother, two sisters and a brother, occupied a small house half a mile east of the business portion of the village. The family were Bohemians and were in humble circumstances.

Sunday afternoon Thomas Portercheck was discovered acting strangely and gave indications that his mind was deranged. He labored under the hallucination that his neck was broken and insisted that a physician be summoned. His relatives endeavored to convince him of his error and tried to persuade him to go to bed. He refused to lie down and insisted on remaining sitting up all night. Late Sunday night the family retired, leaving Thomas sitting in a rocking chair.

A 3 o'clock Monday morning his sister Mary was awakened by an agonizing scream from her mother. When she emerged from her bedroom she found her mother lying on the floor, while Thomas stood above her brandishing an axe. The floor was covered with blood, and from an adjoining room another brother could be heard moaning in the agony of death. The girl ran through the house and finding all the doors locked, opened a window and jumped to the ground. She remained at the window, and as her brother Thomas made no attempt to follow her, she stood and watched him at his murderous work.

The maniac brother seized a can of coal oil and after pouring it over the floor and furniture, set it on fire. He then drew a butcher-knife across his throat and fell by the side of his mother. The poor girl attempted to extinguish the flames, but they spread so quickly that in less than ten minutes the house was a mass of fire. The screams of the girl awakened the neighbors and they rushed to the scene, but the flames had already finished the work which the maniac had commenced. When the blazing timbers had cooled sufficiently to allow a search of the ruined home, four bodies were found blackened and charred in the ruins. They were those of Mrs. Portercheck, her youngest daughter and her sons James and Thomas.

Investigation showed that the mother, daughter and son James had been horribly mutilated by an ax. It is believed that Thomas had first killed his brother, then his sister and mother. It was probably his intention to kill his sister Mary also, but her life was saved by the screams of her mother. No theory is advanced for the sudden fit of insanity which overcame the young man.

KOLB READY FOR TROUBLE.

Declares That He Will Be Inaugurated Governor of Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 20.—Reuben F. Kolb, who was the candidate of the populist party for governor of Alabama, publishes an address to the people of Alabama in the People's Daily Tribune, the state organ of the Kolbites and populists, in which he declares his intention to be inaugurated governor of the state December 1 and calls upon his followers everywhere to gather at Montgomery on that day and aid him in taking his seat. He affirms that he was legally elected and that by fraud at the polls and intimidation in the legislature an effort has been made to keep him out of his seat. The arrest of Kolb for treason is not improbable, and if his followers undertake to seat him, which, judging from the sentiments expressed at their meeting in Montgomery last week, they will undoubtedly do, it is believed there will be serious trouble.

IN MERCY'S NAME.

The National W. C. T. U. Utters a Protest Against Vivisection.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 20.—At the session of the W. C. T. U. Monday among the reports read was one by Mrs. Mary F. Lovell, of Massachusetts, for the department of mercy, who spoke against the use of birds for the adornment of ladies' hats, against killing of seals for use in cloaks and urged her hearers to look into what she termed the horrors of the slaughter house. She offered a resolution which was unanimously adopted urging the creating of a sentiment among the young people of the country against the practice of vivisection which she denounced as cruel and unnecessary for the promotion of science.

Diamond-Workers Coming.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—A report from the commissioner of immigration at New York says that twenty-six diamond-polishers had arrived there from Amsterdam. After examination they were permitted to land. The statement is also made that of the 10,000 diamond-cutters in Holland fully 5,000 are out of employment and that many of them are coming to the United States, the inference being that the diamond-cutting industry is largely being transferred from Amsterdam to New York and Chicago.

"COME," SAID KENT. "I WILL SHOW YOU MY POSSESSIONS."

to make the best time you can for the next five miles, until we come to another highway. Your horse has a good gait—let him have his head."

She then struck her animal and Laport followed her. The pace was a painful one, for he no longer had the suppleness of youth. But determination supplanted him with endurance, and they rode at a rapid pace through an uninhabited tract, and he was much relieved when they turned once more into a well-traveled road that ran in a westerly direction, and his companion said:

"You can take it easy now. We'll walk our horses here and let them dry. We are safe. If you are pursued the scent will lead to Shirleyville."

She drew up by his side as she spoke. "I can now tell you," she said, "what your route will be. We shall stop for the night at a hotel in Charlotte. It is ten miles farther on. You will pay our bill in the morning with a check which the landlord will cash because I have already cashed the two which Mr. Kent got you to sign, and the landlord knows they are good. There is a branch railroad running from Charlotte to Pankanky—thirty miles west. We shall succeed in the morning in getting off with our horses on a trip to the Pankanky glen. The horses will go on to Brankenford, where they will be taken care of, they having been obtained there. At the Pankanky house we give out that we are going to stop with a friend in town and leave the hotel in the evening. You will then have to walk three miles to reach a trunk line railroad. If we catch an express train we shall most likely be in Wheeling just six hours ahead of a dispatch."

"But if we do not?" asked Laport with considerably more curiosity than apprehension.

"In that case we shall have to dethe east and north was open revealing what appeared to be a desolate wilderness of rocks and forests, with here and there the blue peaks of the distant mountains showing between. While he sat there, the door opened; a man whom he did not recognize appeared and spoke to him familiarly.

"Come inside, professor—you can rest yourself much better indoors."

He looked at the speaker. It was Kent, but save for something in the tone of his voice, Laport did not know him. He appeared broader and heavier and older.

He considerably assisted Laport to rise, saying: "I've been waiting breakfast for you. You may dismiss further anxiety. Your troubles are ended. You must be hungry after your long ride."

Once inside the house, a well-spread table presented itself and the men sat down.

"Let us," said Kent, "avoid the usual formalities. Explanations will prepare the way to rest. You are naturally amazed at what has taken place and anxious to know the motives of my action. I will proceed at once to relieve your mind and replenish your system. Let me advise you to drink coffee—it is a necessary prophylactic in this place."

He called to a servant who came in from the one other apartment and brought the meal. Laport looked on with expectancy and was silent, while Kent both ate and talked.

"You have been most cruelly wronged," he said. "You are not guilty of murder, for that was not your intention. Society took from the world a genius and locked him up. You are at present, and so long as you stay here, beyond the reach of society. I do not intend to interfere with your liberty. I shall make you a business proposition. If it does not meet with

Mr. and Mrs. Ola Swanson, were gladdened last week by the appearance of a bouncing twelve pound boy, which arrived on Tuesday.

Jay Miller narrowly escaped the loss of a finger last week. His finger was caught between a cellar wall and a barrel he was putting in the cellar. The member was badly injured however.

Hog cholera has made its appearance on some of the farms south of town and some of the "porkers," with whom their owners were building air castles are being rapidly disposed of.

Mrs. Beaver Artley, nee Davidson, of Bristol, Ind., returned to her home last week after a short visit with friends in this vicinity.

A new double harness which was raffled off by O. W. Leeden & Son, Saturday night, was won by O. W. Vickell's father, who resides at DeKalb.

Chas. Uplinger has commenced buying turkeys for the holiday trade for shipment to Boston. All the expert pluckers in this vicinity are at work in consequence.

The whole section gang at this place received the unwelcome tidings last week that they were to be among the several sections laid off by the C. M. & St. P. Ry. between Chicago and Kirkland, in order to reduce expenses.

The last well has been completed and the water supply of the town is unlimited. This is probably all that will be done this year, but next spring some of the back streets will be treated to wells.

Chas. Anderson had the misfortune last week to cut his foot with an axe.

Mrs. Geo. Saum, nee Burenfield, died at her home at Onarga, Iroquois county, Thursday, Nov. 25th. The remains were brought to Genoa, on the Illinois Central Ry, and to Kingston in the hearse. The services were held at the M. E. church and were conducted by Rev. Hester. She was quite well known here and a large number of friends mourn her demise.

Rev. and Mrs. E. K. D. Hester were most pleasantly surprised on last Friday evening, by a number of their friends who flacked upon them with packages of edibles and other presents. We went rather to the custom in last week's issue of reporting it to be a reported to be a what Schiller Theatre.

The engagement of that talented and favorite actor of the romantic drama, Robert Mantell, concludes with the present week. He has made a very successful, though brief season at the Shiller, where the attendance has been large from his first appearance in "The Corsican Brothers." Friday and at the Saturday matinee Mantell will be seen in the celebrated drama "The Marble Heart" and for the concluding performance he gives his popular play "Monbars."

"FRIENDS".
Edwin Milton Royle's splendid New York company in his new and very successful comedy-drama Friends, is the succeeding attraction at the Shiller, for one week only, commencing Sunday evening November 25th. This talented author-actor, Edwin Milton Royle, has in this brilliant comedy achieved a phenomenal success. Wherever it has been produced it has aroused the keenest interest and its drawing powers as a popular attraction have proved to be something marvelous.

In "Friends" Royle has proved that he is not only a signally clever author but as the interpreter of its principal character, he has won universal praise and within an extraordinary short time has gained a wide and lasting prestige as a forcible and accomplished actor. "Friends" will be very welcome in Chicago, where it will undoubtedly score another gratifying success to add to its long list of popular triumphs. It will be put upon the Shiller stage most completely with exceptionally good scenic illustration and stage accessory. The strong cast which made the play so delightful last year is retained, and Royle, the accomplished Selena Fetter Royle, Lucius Henderson, the actor and brilliant concert pianist, Harry Allen and E. D. Lyons, who have made the leading characters of "Friends" renowned will be again seen here in this charming and interesting comedy.

Mr. Lucius Henderson, the gifted actor pianist, whose recitals created a furor last season amongst music lovers, will this season introduce some new and very brilliant selections.

The favorite actress, Marie Wainwright, with her admirable company will succeed "Friends" at the Schiller, producing for the first time in Chicago the new society drama "Daughters of Eve" written for her by A. F. Lancaster and Julian Magnus. The play has been well received in other cities, Miss Wainwright appearing in the dual role of Rose Wycherly and Rhoda Baintry. "Daughters of Eve" will be handsomely staged. The supporting company includes Mr. Hartwig, Cecil Magnus, Estelle Dale, and Jeannette Norton.

Our First Annual Anniversary Sale.

Has passed into history as the most successful sale of its kind ever attempted in our city, the values obtained from every department will be talked about when we are great-great grandparents.

Now For Our November Clearing Sale!

We don't bar even one department, every line will be represented. Our immense stock of Holiday Goods is on the way and we must have room.

Great Department Store, ELGIN.

Have your dental work done by a competent dentist. Dr. Billig is now permanently located here and makes a specialty of crown and bridge work. Call and see him.
