WORDS OF TRUTH FROM

WASHINGTON TEMPLE

SONS OF GOD, DAUGHTERS OF MEN.

LONG before the creation of man, angels were created, yet sin was unknown until Adam's day. The beginning of sin, according to the Bible, was in the Garden of Eden. Lucifer, an angel of very high rank and glory, had long cherished in his heart ambitious designs. If opportunity even offered he would show God and the angels his grand schemes. His thought is expressed by the Prophet: "I would ascend above the stars (angels), I would be as the most high"—a separate emperor. When Lucifer beheld the first human pair, he was tempted to try his experiment. They were a new order of beings in God's moral image. They had precreative powers, which no angel ever possessed. This quality insured an entire race if he could capture this pair. All the holy angels were bewildered at his success. His was the first rebellion against the Almighty's laws. Centuries rolled on; the human family was wasting; God's penalty, "Dying, thou shalt die," was gradually being enforced. Satan realized that his kingdom of dying subjects would make but a poor showing ever. He conceived a plan to outwit God and develop a new order of beings—hybridized humans, infused with superior vitality. The angels possessed a God-given power of materialization. They could appear in human bodies resembling those of men. The Bible attests this (Genesis 18). The angels were permitted contact with the fallen race to prove whether or not they could uplift them and bring them back to God.—Hebrews 2:5.

The record of Genesis 6:2-5 is that the "sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair, and they took unto themselves wives of all which they preferred." Thus the angels became the fathers of a new race, separate and distinct from the Adamite stock. The record is that these were giants, physically and intellectually—"men of renown."

TO WIDEN WALKS

Needed Improvement on Main Street will be put in by City Council

The city council will soon begin work on the widening of the side walks on Main street, an improvement which the Republican-Journal has advocated for some time. The eight foot walks which are now in place are entirely inadequate for the service which is demanded of them during the summer evenings especially, it often happening that one must take to the road to get by the crowd. It is the plans of the council to widen the walks four feet, making them twelve instead of eight between Monroe and Sycamore streets.

This will leave the driveway plenty wide for traffic; in fact the street is now practically twice the width it was before the street railway rails were laid, there being two driveways instead of the one down the center of the road.

The walk on the north side of Main street between Emmett and Sycamore street will be raised about a foot to conform to the grade, doing away with numerous steps which are disfiguring the front entrance to business places.

The Illinois Northern Utilities Co. and the DeKalb County Telephone Co. have again been notified to remove their poles from Main street, being given until the middle of June to perform the work. Both these companies were ordered to do this last fall but the order was ignored.

The board of local improvements and the city attorney are now working on the sewer proposition and it will shortly be brought before the people in mass meeting again, it being necessary to repeat the doings of last summer.

There are no bidders for the water works extension in the Citizens addition so it is up to the city to go ahead with the work. L. C. Duval, the superintendent of water works, has had considerable experience in laying mains and no doubt the city will save money by doing the work itself.

OF A HIGH ORDER

Concert at the Opera House Friday Evening under the Auspices of St. Catherine's

A concert of a high order will take place at the opera house this (Friday) evening under auspices of St. Catherine's church of this city. The address is a feature which should attract a large crowd alone, while the musical numbers have been carefully selected. Those who love the human voice should not fail to hear Father Reedy of Rockford, one of the best tenors in the middle west.

The following program will be rendered:

Selection, Genoa Orchestra.
Duet, violin and piano, Mr. G. Cusper and Miss Harshman.
Irish and Scotch step dancing, Chicago boy.

Vocal solo, selected, Miss N. Bollinger of Sycamore, accompanied by Mae Ryan.
Piano duet, Mr. G. Cusper and Mrs. B. F. Kepner.
Duet, violin and piano, Hazel and George Goding.

Vocal solo, "I Hear You Calling Me," Rev. W. H. Reedy of Rockford.
Address, Rev. W. J. Bergan of Kankakee.

A program folder has been issued by the management on which appears the ad of practically every merchant in Genoa.

You find the news at all times in The Republican-Journal.

YOUTH KILLS EMPLOYER

Is Captured by Posse and Now Awaits Action of Grand Jury

An automobile posse, manned by heavily armed McHenry county officers captured John Burke, 18 years old, wanted for attempted murder, after an exciting four mile chase near Marengo late yesterday afternoon.

Charles O'Leary, 30 years old, a farmer living near Marengo, lies at the point of death in the Harvard hospital with forty or more gunshot wounds inflicted according to McHenry county authorities, by Burke, who was employed as hired man on O'Leary's farm.

According to Marshall M. L. St. John of Marengo, Burke admitted firing the shotgun at O'Leary, claiming he did so in self-defense. Burke declared he shot O'Leary because he claimed O'Leary made a threat against his life, according to Marshall St. John.

According to the version given by young Burke to Sheriff Henderson and Marshall St. John after his capture, the shooting followed a quarrel yesterday afternoon at O'Leary's farm four miles north-east of Marengo.

O'Leary, Burke declares came home from town. The prisoner said his employer had been drinking and started a quarrel, during which, according to Burke, the other hit him and made a threat against him. Then, he said, he went to the house and secured the shotgun to protect himself.

Burke was held to the grand jury without bail Monday on a charge of murder, following O'Leary's death Sunday morning from pneumonia, the result of the gun shot wounds inflicted by Burke.

When the youthful slayer was arraigned in justice court at Woodstock this morning and told of O'Leary's death, attaches declare he showed no remorse. When held to the grand jury and informed he would have to remain in jail for several months, he said that was "tough luck."

Butter 28 Cents

Monday's sales totaled 145 tubs at 28 cents firm, last week's market being 26, 27 and 28 cents.

A comparison of prices for the last few years follows:

May 5, 1913, 28 cents.
May 13, 1912, 30 cents.
May 15, 1911, 21 cents.
May 16, 1910, 27 cents.
May 17, 1909, 25 cents.

second reading. On roll call all voted yes. Motion carried.

Ordinance Chapter 64 read second time. Moved by Malana, seconded by Whipple that Ordinance Chapter 64 be passed to third reading. On roll call all voted yes. Motion carried.

Ordinance Chapter No. 64 read third time. Moved by Altenberg, seconded by Whipple that Ordinance Chapter No. 64 be passed, approved and published as read. On roll call all voted yes. Motion carried.

Moved by Whipple, seconded by Pickett that city of Genoa furnish 104 feet of 6-inch tile on north side of Church street from Emmett street to a point 104 feet east thereof. On roll call all voted yes. Motion carried.

Moved by Whipple, seconded by Pickett that J. E. Lowman be engaged to establish side walk grades on Main street from Sycamore to State street. On roll call all voted yes. Motion carried.

Moved by Whipple, seconded by Altenberg that council adjourn. Motion carried.

GEO. F. DONOHUE DEAD

Passed Away at His Home in this City Saturday morning

Geo. F. Donohue passed away at his home in this city Saturday morning, May 10, at six o'clock, after a long illness with kidney trouble. His health was failing him, however, several months before he would give up and keep to the house. He suffered little, but was unconscious a considerable part of the time during the last week of his life.

The funeral services were held at the M. E. church Monday, May 12, Rev. J. E. DeLong of Kirkland officiating.

George F. Donohue was born in Belvidere, January 11, 1864.

Mr. Donohue was married to Miss Anna Baldwin October 9, 1888. He leaves a nephew, Frank Donohue, and one niece, Mrs. Marie Herman both of Chicago. His wife also survives him. A sister of Mr. Donohue's sister passed away about two months ago, the remainder of his family having preceded him to that home from which no traveler returns. He has resided in Genoa about twenty years, where he made many friends.

Mr. Donohue was highly respected in the community in which he lived. He was upright and honorable in all his dealings, respected the Sabbath day and had a deep reverence for sacred things.

Let us believe that God's plan is above what we can see, and better than we know, and that he rewards in ways that we do not understand.

Card of Thanks

To all the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted me during the sickness and death of my beloved husband, I extend my heartfelt thanks. Also for the beautiful flowers.

Mrs. George F. Donohue.

HE IS ELECTROCUTED

Illinois Northern Utilities Co. Employee Meets Sudden Death

ROBERT IRVIN IS THE VICTIM

Twenty-two Hundred Volts Pass thru His body Monday Morning When Working East of Genoa, Transferring High Tension Wires

Robert Irvin, 27 years of age, an employe of the Illinois Northern Utilities Co., was almost instantly killed Monday morning at ten o'clock when he came in contact with live high tension wires, 2200 volts of the deadly juice passing thru his body. At the time he was on a pole but his safety belt prevented his dropping to the ground. The body was taken to Teyler's undertaking rooms where every effort was made at resuscitation, without avail. For two or three hours an attempt was made to bring him back to life by means of oxygen and artificial respiration. Later a pulmotor was brought over from DeKalb, but no better effect was obtained. It was quite evident that the man was dead when taken down from the pole, the electricity having passed from one hand to the other, thru the vitals. Doctors Ovitiz, Mordoff and Hill with the assistance of Dr. Danforth and other willing hands did all that mortal hands could do to save the man.

Under the direction of the district superintendent, Mr. Caird of Belvidere, the gang of men had started the work of transferring the high tension wires which are strung from Genoa to Hampshire, from beneath the Woodstock & Sycamore Traction Co. trestle to the steel poles or staffs which would carry the wires over the trestle. Word had been sent to the plants to shut off the juice and the workman warned to keep away from the wires until given assurance that the power had been shut off. Irvin, however, either thru a misunderstanding of orders or thru carelessness, went to the top of the pole. There he came in contact with both wires, his nippers being on one and the other hand touching the second wire. Immediately after the shock Irvin said "I guess it's alive alright" and fell back into his safety straps. He was taken down by the other men and handled as above noted.

Irvin came to Genoa several months ago and entered the employ of the Illinois Northern, being an expert lineman and foreman of the Genoa gang. His home is in Mansfield, Ohio, where both his parents are living, and from whom he had received a letter on the morning of his death. The inquest was held in the afternoon, the testimony of Mr. Caird and the other lineman being to the effect that they, with Mr. Irvin, had been warned and knew that the wires were "hot." Not more than five minutes after Irvin had come in contact with the wires they were dead.

Aged Lady Breaks Hip

Mrs. Wm. Hollembeak of Sycamore who is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hollembeak in Belvidere, fell and broke her hip last Tuesday evening. As she is 84 years old there is but little hope for recovery from the injury. Mrs. Hollembeak is Geo. Hollembeak's mother.

Cormacks Again

Information from California is to the effect that the divorce suit of Mrs. Maude M. Cormack of Long Beach, Calif., against Rev. Joseph M. Cormack, now a resident of Florida, will come up for a hearing in Los Angeles on this Saturday.

GENOA IS ADVERTISED

Recent Dram Shop Ordinance Create Comment of Press thruout Country

The dram shop ordinance recently passed by the Genoa city council has given this city no end of advertising, that part which pertains to the locking of back doors by the police being the item which is going the rounds of the press. Newspapers all over the United States are taking it up, some taking it seriously but more seeing the funny side of the proposition.

The following sample article was clipped from the Lansing State Journal of Lansing, Mich.:

Genoa, Ill., keeps the keys to her four saloons in the city hall and the grog shops are locked and unlocked by the police. Now those not qualified physically for the police force are trying to be elected aldermen.

Burlington Creamery Burns

The Ira J. Mix Dairy Co. creamery, together with ice house and stables, were totally destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon, very little being saved from the buildings, other than the two horses that were in the stable at the time. No one has ascertained the origin of the flames, the fire not being discovered until three hours after the workmen had left the buildings for the day. At that time the flames had gained such headway there was nothing to do but stand and watch the structure go, the fire fighting apparatus being confined to buckets only. The property was partly covered by insurance.

Nix on Exposure

Mosquito bar stockings are the latest to be placed on the list of undesirables at Voliva-town. The Zion City overseer has barred the filmy hosiery from "God's house." In his pronouncement putting the thin hosiery in the same category with the noxious tobacco Voliva cited the righteous indignation of a New York magistrate on the same point recently. He said if they—meaning ones thru which peas could be fired—were too much for a judge, Zion City couldn't stand 'em. Should Voliva see them, he says he is going to take "the naked women" out of church.

Child Scalded

A deplorable accident is reported from Lee as a result of which the baby son of Mr. and Mrs. N. G. Munson of that town died. The accident happened a few days ago. The babe was playing about the dinner table when the contents of the teapot was tipped over upon him.

The Champion Cow

It was announced Tuesday that Spring Farm Pontiac Lass, a cow owned by K. M. Jones in Utica, N. Y., has broken the world's present sixty days butter production record. The previous record was a fraction over 288 pounds and the world beating cow has exceeded this by twenty pounds, having 308 pounds and 877 one thousandths of a pound to her credit.

WILSON ASKS DELAY

REQUESTS GOV. JOHNSON TO DEFER ACTION ON ANTI-ALIEN LAW.

PROTEST FILED BY JAPAN

President Declares Through Bryan That He is Ready to Co-operate With California in Systematic Effort to Correct Any Existing Evils.

Washington, May 12.—William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state, has sent to Governor Johnson of California a telegram expressing the wishes of President Wilson that action on the land alien law passed by the California legislature be deferred.

Secretary Bryan ends the telegram with an offer of co-operation on the part of the president to "discover any evils that may exist" in this proposed law.

Test of Statement. The statement in full is as follows: "Hiram W. Johnson, Governor: "The president directs me to express his appreciation of your courtesy in delaying action on the land bill now before you until its provisions could be communicated to the Japanese government and considered by it.

Wilson Appeals for Delay. "He passes over questions affecting treaty rights for two reasons. First, because the bill passed by the legislature is avowedly intended to conform to treaty obligations, and second, because any conflict complained of would be a matter for the courts, but the president feels justified in expressing again his desire that action on the subject be deferred for this session, and he expresses the desire the more freely because the legislature can be reconvened at any time if the welfare of the state requires it.

Cambridge, England, May 12.—The Cambridge varsity football pavilion narrowly escaped destruction at the hands of suffragettes. The militants placed a bomb among inflammables in the building. The bomb exploded, but the inflammable material was scattered by the explosion and did not ignite.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, May 12.—"Punholme," a large unoccupied house, was set on fire by an "arson squad" of suffragettes, but the incendiaries were alarmed by the approach of passers-by and decamped before their work was complete.

London, May 12.—Two more bombs with which the suffragettes are attempting to scare the British parliament into giving the franchise to women were discovered in the passengers' waiting room at the busy Lime street railroad station at Liverpool, and the other in the sorting room of the post-office at Reading.

YOUNG WILL RESIGN SEAT

Michigan Representative Holds 458 Defective Ballots Morally Belong to His Progressive Opponent.

Washington, May 12.—Representative H. Olin Young of Ishpeming, Mich., announced in the house his intention of resigning his seat.

He discussed the contest instituted by William McDonald, a Progressive, saying 458 votes intended for McDonald had not been counted for him and he did not feel justified in holding his seat.

BARBERS' STRIKE IS SERIOUS

New York, May 13.—The barbers' strike in New York and Brooklyn became a serious matter when it was found that 14,000 tonsorial artists had quit work, practically crippling the "trade."

Already strenuous methods are being used to gain the aid of the barbers who have thus far stuck to their chairs.

PRINCETON WINS BOAT RACE

Defeats Harvard and Pennsylvania in Varsity Rowing Event at Cambridge by Quarter of Length.

Cambridge, Mass., May 13.—Princeton won the varsity boat race here by a quarter of a length, Harvard was second and Pennsylvania third. The race was rowed as a postponement from last Saturday, when the high wind prevented the contest.

The official time of the winner was :10:18, Harvard's :10:22 and Penn's :10:32.

MOTHER KIDNAPS HER SON

Mrs. Brokaw Flees With Boy While Husband is Locked in Cell Charged With Assault.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 14.—Exercising a cunning that is seldom shown by women, Mrs. Tillie Seaman Brokaw "kidnaped" her small son, "Buster," and fled with him on a Santa Fe train while her husband—the father of the child—Clarence Pierce Brokaw, a former millionaire and member of the very wealthy Brokaw family of New York, was locked up in a cell in the county jail on the charge of assaulting her with a frying pan at their home on Sunday.

Mrs. Brokaw is believed to be headed for New York, whence she and her husband came less than two years ago, after their matrimonial troubles had been aired at length.

EXPRESS TRAIN IS ROBBED

One Alleged Thief is Caught at Rock Island, Ill., While His Companion Escapes.

Rock Island, Ill., May 14.—Climbing out upon the rods of a Rock Island express and baggage car from Chicago, robbers managed to maintain a foothold while the train was moving seventy miles an hour, smashed the glass door and stole baggage and other valuables amounting to $100.

As they alighted in the local yards, one, who gave his name as Harry Fulton, claiming to be a railroad switchman, was captured by Harry Flanagan, baggage man, and turned over to the police; the other escaped.

NAVY PLANS STOLEN

SENSATION CAUSED BY THEFT OF DOCUMENTS AS TO DREADNOUGHT.

DETECTIVES ARE AT WORK

No Clue Is Yet Discovered of Thieves Who Took Papers Relative to Giant Battleship Pennsylvania Two Months Ago.

Washington, May 14.—Disclosure of the theft of important documents in the navy department, some of which relate to the plans for the new dreadnought Pennsylvania, caused a sensation in that department.

It can be said on reliable authority that the thefts began two months ago and that, despite the activity of secret service men, the Burns' detective agency and the police, no clue to the thief has been discovered. The heads of the department are disturbed, not knowing what document may go next.

Thefts Began in February. According to the information available at this time the loss of the documents began to be noticed in February. Most of the thefts have been comparatively insignificant, relating to the manual of the department and similar documents. When, however, plans for some of the work on the new giant battleship disappeared the situation became so serious that steps had to be taken by the department to search for the perpetrator.

Outside aid was called in and for weeks under the pretense of a change of administration detectives have been slipped into clerical positions in most of the bureaus of the department and persons known to have handled the missing documents have been under the closest surveillance.

Knowledge of the situation came out through an inadvertent disclosure by one of the detectives. The department itself refused to say anything on the subject, but it is understood it may lift the lid later.

Might Compel Change in Plans. It is asserted that the missing documents are not of considerable value to those who abstracted them, but if combined with other plans in the department would practically force the naval constructors to change plans of battleships now authorized. It is to protect the secrets of the department and prevent the loss of the complete plans of new battleships that the department is exercising every known precaution to prevent further leaks and thefts.

An attempt is expected to make capital out of the situation in the department by the war propagandists representing manufacturers of war materials, but the theory of those acquainted with the conditions is that no connection can be established between the theft of the papers and any government having diplomatic controversies with the United States.

Pennsylvania to Be Monster. Building of the dreadnought Pennsylvania, part of the details and minor plans of which have been taken, was authorized by the last congress. It has been designed to displace 31,000 tons and will carry an armament of 34 heavy guns, exceeding in gun power the battleship of any other nation.

It is understood here that special surveillance has been established over the bureau of construction and repair, headed by Naval Constructor Watt, and the bureau of ordnance, of which Rear Admiral N. C. Twining is the head. The missing plans are said to have been traced to both of these bureaus, but which one had them last has not been ascertained.

GENERAL SLAIN BY MANIC

Military Attache to Bavaria and Police Officer Are Shot on Streets of Munich.

Munich, Bavaria, May 14.—Major General Von Lewinski, the Prussian military attache to Bavaria, was killed here by a supposed lunatic, who fired three revolver shots at him.

The man, whose name is Straffer, attacked the general on a crowded street, first firing several shots at him and then turning his weapon on Police Sergeant Pöllender, who dashed to the officer's assistance. The policeman was killed by a shot through the heart.

The assailant was seized by a crowd and an attempt was made to lynch him. He was injured seriously before he was rescued by the police.

General Von Lewinski occupied an important position in the scheme of co-operation of the Prussian and Bavarian armies.

AUTO KILLS KANSAS PASTOR

Also Pinions His Brother and Sister Under Car Thirty Minutes—Machine Skids and Overturns.

Attica, Kas., May 14.—The Rev. Robert Carlisle, pastor of the First Methodist church at Attica, Kas., was killed and his brother and sister, J. A. Carlisle and Ethel Carlisle, both of Winfield, Kas., were injured severely when their automobile skidded on a sandy road and was overturned near here. The pastor was crushed to death. The other two were pinned under the car thirty minutes before rescued.

25 HUERTA MEN SHOT TO DEATH BY STATE TROOPS

Federal Officers Captured in Battle Are Executed by Order of Rebel Commander.

Nogales, Ariz., May 12.—Twenty-five federal officers, including an infantry and an artillery colonel, taken prisoners during last week's fighting above Guaymas, were shot at a public execution by order of the constitutionalist commanders. The execution is officially admitted by state authorities at Hermosillo.

The official statement also admits the loss in killed of 200 state troops during the three days' fighting which resulted in the driving of the retiring federalists into the first station north of the gulf port town. Fighting at this last stand continues.

The reported deaths of Chief Bule, commander of the insurgent Yaqui Indians, and of Colonel Gutierrez of the state troops was announced as confirmed in the report.

El Paso, Tex., May 12.—Riding everything, from burros to bicycles, 300 residents of Parral are moving overland with the federal garrison of the Chihuahua mining town, peacefully occupied by constitutionalist forces. From Parral to Chihuahua city is a march of 200 miles. The trip will require a week.

Most of the refugees are residents who had declared themselves against the revolution, thus endangering their safety when the 1,200 federal troops were withdrawn.

PLAN JAIL FOR EMPLOYERS

Bill Prohibits Threatening of Employees With Loss Through Legislation by Congress.

Washington, May 13.—Jail terms of one year, fines of $1,000 or both confront employers of labor who threaten their employees with reduction of wages or loss of employment through legislation by congress in a bill presented by Representative Pepper of Iowa.

This bill prohibits the distribution of literature or the postings of notices in workshops by employers which shall contain matter threatening the employes or tending to influence their votes during presidential elections.

VINCENT ASTOR IS STRICKEN

Suffers From Severe Cold and Throat Trouble—Reception to Senators Abandoned.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 12.—Vincent Astor returned to Fernaldville, his country home at Rhinebeck, in a state of collapse and was so ill that the reception which he planned for the members of the senate committee on military affairs at Fernaldville was abandoned. Mr. Astor is suffering from a severe cold and his throat has caused him much distress.

SUPREME COURT IN RECESS

Fails to Pass on Important State Rate Cases—Will Meet Again May 26.

Washington, May 13.—The Supreme court recessed until May 26, without announcing decisions in the state rate or other important cases before it. It is understood an attempt will be made to decide all before final adjournment for the summer on June 9.

Indicts in New York Scandal.

New York, May 13.—State Senator Stephen J. Stillwell, recently acquitted by the senate of bribery charges preferred by George A. Kendall, president of the New York Bank Note company, was indicted for bribery by the grand jury before which he appeared last Friday.

Milwaukee Milk Curb Valid.

Washington, May 13.—The validity of the Milwaukee (Wis.) ordinance requiring milk brought into the city to be produced from cows subjected to tuberculin test was upheld by the supreme court.

TO REFORM PARTY

REPUBLICAN SENATORS IN SESSION ISSUE PROCLAMATION ASKING FOR CONVENTION.

WOULD CHANGE THE RULES

Cutting Down Basis of Representation From Southern States, and Direct Election of Delegates to National Body Are Demanded.

Chicago, May 13.—Demand for a Republican national convention this fall was made by several senators of the United States upon the Republican national committee. A proclamation to this effect was the net result of the three days' conference held in the congress hotel. The plan of the senators, headed by Albert J. Cummins of Iowa, is to change the rules of the Republican organization machinery in such manner as to answer the charges of a "stolen convention"—the cry that went up in the Chicago national Republican meeting a few years ago.

What Changes Are Desired. The changes desired by the senators are these:

Cutting down the basis of representation from the southern states to representation of the Republican vote and not on general population.

Delegate contests to be settled by the state and not arbitrarily by the national committee.

Direct elections of delegates to national conventions giving indorsement to primary elections in a national sense.

Text of Proclamation.

The proclamation given out after the conference adjourned follows:

"At an informal conference of Republicans from eleven states, held in Chicago May 12, 1913, it was voted that it would be submitted to the national Republican committee as the opinion of those present that a national convention of the party should be held this year as early a date as may be practicable. The purpose is to consider the expediency of changing the basis of representation in future conventions so that delegates shall proportionately represent Republican voters and not general population.

"This is to the end that the will of the members of the party may be more accurately determined. Also for the purpose of changing the rules relating to delegates and members of the national committee so that the primary election laws of the various states shall be recognized and have full force.

"Also for the purpose of making such other changes in the methods of conducting national conventions and campaigns as shall conduce to giving the utmost possible effect to the principles and policies of the party.

"It was further the opinion that such a convention might properly and usefully take any other action desirable to reunite the party and to give assurance that it stands for constructive and progressive activities in the affairs of government to the end that the common welfare may be advanced.

"It was the unanimous belief of those present that the changes suggested should be made forthwith and that the national committee be strongly urged to take steps to such an end."

Sherman to Name Committee.

Lawrence Y. Sherman, senator from Illinois, who presided over the conference, was authorized to name a committee of three to present the proclamation to the executive committee of the party national organization in Washington on May 21. The official statement issued was prepared by a committee composed of Robert Luce, former lieutenant governor of Massachusetts; Senator William F. Borah of Idaho, Senator W. S. Kenyon of Iowa, W. F. James, state senator of Michigan; J. A. Troutman, state senator of Kansas.

JURY REFORM BILL BEATEN

New Jersey Senate Defeats Measure Which President Wilson Sought to Have Enacted.

Trenton, N. J., May 14.—The senate defeated the jury reform bill passed Monday by the house. Attached to it was an amendment providing referendum and the statement was made that the bill as amended had been approved by Joseph P. Tumulty, President Wilson's private secretary. The Republican senators voted solidly against it. The Democrats could muster only ten votes in its favor, eleven being necessary to pass the measure.

Previously the jury reform bill favored by the Republicans was defeated, the Democrats all voting against it.

CULLOM IS WRITING BOOK

Aged Ex-Senator is Preparing a History of U. S. Senate—Recovers From Recent Illness.

Washington, May 14.—Former Senator Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois, now in his eighty-fourth year, is engaged in the preparation of another book a history of the United States senate from its beginning to the present time. About a year ago Mr. Cullom published his first book of history, "Fifty Years of Public Life." The former senator has practically recovered from the illness which has confined him to the house for the last few days.

Nursery Maids

The Michael Reese Hospital offers a course of training to girls which prepares them to care for babies and children as nursery maids. The course includes care of children and babies in the wards and nurseries of the hospital; also classes in preparation of babies' food, in cooking, in sewing and in laundry work. Apply personally or by mail to the superintendent of the training school, MICHAEL REESE HOSPITAL, 29th and Groveland Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Very Plain Criticism.

Children are not always grateful beings, and they are notably hard to entertain. At a birthday party a kindly natured adult had tolled hard in the effort to amuse the children by means of parlor magic, ventriloquism, burlesque dancing and the like. The other adults present were highly amused, and some of the children deluged to chuckle mildly. The mother of the hostess, however, felt that full justice had not been rendered, so before announcing refreshments she took pains to thank the entertainer, and to call the attention of the youngsters to his gifts.

"Mr. Blank is very funny, isn't he, children?" she concluded.

From the rear of the room came a small, shrill voice:

"Yessum, but not so funny as he he thinks he is!"

THE RIGHT SOAP FOR BABY'S SKIN

In the care of baby's skin and hair, Cuticura Soap is the mother's favorite. Not only is it unrivaled in purity and refreshing fragrance, but its gentle emollient properties are usually sufficient to allay minor irritations, remove redness, roughness and chafing, soothe sensitive conditions, and promote skin and hair health generally. Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it is most valuable in the treatment of eczemas, rashes and other itching, burning infantile eruptions. Cuticura Soap wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of ordinary soap and making its use most economical.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

Tact; Son Gets Down to Tacks.

Henry, age five, had two younger brothers. Henry's father had just moved, and was busy laying the kitchen linoleum. In order to facilitate the work he gave Henry the task of furnishing his with tacks. The little fellow worked faithfully for half an hour. Suddenly, however, he turned to his father and said:

"Papa, you like me best, don't you?"

"Oh, I like all my boys," said the father.

"But don't you like me a little bit better than the others?" queried Henry.

"I like all my boys equally well," answered the father.

"Well, papa," said the lad, after a moment of reflection, "what's the use of my handing you these tacks then?"

Militant Spirit.

We were lined up at the booking office window, taking our places. In front of me was a burly man. All went well until a woman broke the line and planked her twopenny in front of the burly man. The man swept it aside. "I've always taught my wife," he said, "to be polite to gentlemen." "I'm very glad I am not your wife," said the woman. The man in front of me took his ticket and said, as he moved on, "I took that precaution some years ago."—London Chronicle.

Easy.

"I see you have a new cook," said Mrs. Keen, as she smiled at the hostess across the table.

"Yes," replied the hostess. "How did you know?"

"I've been studying the thumb prints on the plates," replied Mrs. Keen.

CLEARED AWAY

Proper Food Put the Troubles Away.

Our own troubles always seem more severe than any others. But when a man is unable to eat even a light breakfast, for years, without severe distress, he has trouble enough.

It is small wonder he likes to tell of food which cleared away the troubles.

"I am glad of the opportunity to tell of the good Grape-Nuts has done for me," writes a N. H. man. "For many years I was unable to eat even a light breakfast without great suffering.

"After eating I would suddenly be seized with an attack of colic and vomiting. This would be followed by headache and misery that would sometimes last a week or more, leaving me so weak I could hardly sit up or walk.

"Since I began to eat Grape-Nuts I have been free from the old troubles. I usually eat Grape-Nuts one or more times a day, taking it at the beginning of the meal. Now I can eat almost anything I want without trouble.

"When I began to use Grape-Nuts I was way under my usual weight, now I weigh 30 pounds more than I ever weighed in my life, and I am glad to speak of the food that has worked the change." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

GREAT ANTI-FLY CRUSADE BEGINS

THE greatest anti-fly crusade that the world has known is now getting under way in a multitude of American cities and smaller communities, reaching from Seattle and San Francisco to Boston.

During recent years physicians, bacteriologists, sanitary engineers, and others concerned with questions of public health, have made ceaseless effort to arouse the American people concerning disease and death traveling in the tracks of the common housefly, or "typhoid fly," as the United States government does not hesitate to call it in its official printed documents.

Little by little the country has become acquainted with the danger, and now entire communities—hamlets, villages, cities alike—are undertaking systematic and complete extermination of the insect. The fly has been recognized as a carrier of disease for many generations, and some authorities, like Jean Dawson, the Cleveland biologist, feel satisfied that it was so recognized even in Bible times. But never before has practically an entire nation awakened to the absolute necessity of fighting the fly to the death; of driving it out of existence.

Moreover, it was left for a New York pathologist, Dr. Ferdinand M. Jeffreys of the Polytechnic Medical school and hospital, to formulate a reply to the old question, "Of what use is the fly?" According to Dr. Jeffreys it has a very important use in acting as a danger signal which cannot be disregarded with impunity.

"Wherever you find the fly," he says, "you also find filth. And where you find filth, you find disease."

Not merely typhoid, but other highly dangerous intestinal diseases are now known to be spread by flies, and germs of tuberculosis, cholera infantum, spinal meningitis, infantile paralysis, are likewise carried far and wide by the same little pests. State boards of health, county commissions, municipal health departments, private organizations of men and women in all stations of life are printing and distributing pamphlets on the subject, having lectures delivered before audiences of children as well as of adults, explaining various methods of poisoning, trapping, and "swatting" flies. In many cities prizes of money have been offered for the largest number of flies killed in a given period. In other cities and towns prizes are offered for the best essays written by school children as to the dangers of flies and how to get rid of them.

North Dakota has issued two important health department bulletins, spread broadcast throughout the state, one entitled "Fly Habits" and the other "A Fly Catechism," in which are answered in simple language questions concerning flies which the youngest child may understand.

The United States government, through its Farmer's Bulletin No. 412, makes out a complete case against what it terms "the typhoid or house fly."

Virginia's state board of health has issued at least three bulletins and circulars devoted wholly or in part to the subject.

In addition to quarterly publications, one well illustrated, Iowa issues shorter folders telling just how to deal with the fly nuisance.

The Chicago board of health, through its school of sanitary instruction, publishes and distributes articles and cartoons on the subject, as well as a concise list of "Hints to Householders."

The Ohio state board of health has also been busy in the matter and has reprinted large numbers of Dr. C. O. Probst's practical paper, "The Fly as a Disease Carrier."

Michigan's state board has come out with an important quarterly document on "The Anti-Fly Crusade."

Pennsylvania devotes an entire issue of its large Health Bulletin to an essay easily understood, which is called "The Common Fly: How It Develops, Why It Must Be Destroyed, and How to Destroy It."

South Carolina, Texas, and almost all the other states in the Union have been doing their utmost to educate the public concerning the dangers of permitting flies to exist. But with the exception of a single four-page circular the state of New York has done nothing in the matter that has been pressed so vigorously by the country generally. This circular is a brief document entitled "The Filthy Fly," and is issued by the Publicity and Education Department of the State Board of Health.

It is said that by means of a red powder scattered over piles of garbage and other filth files have been traced in many cases directly into sick rooms, as well as to markets and fruit stalls where foodstuffs were displayed, without being screened. By such means as this flies were traced during an outbreak of typhoid fever in Plattsburgh, N. Y. The local authorities thought that drinking water, or milk, or some like supply was infected, but an investigator from New York went to the Saranac river, into which the sewage of Plattsburgh was carried, and from there he traced flies as they went into a moving-picture show attended by a large audience, and he traced the flies as they went from the "movies" back to the river.

Countless instances of the spread of various diseases have been recorded all over the country, and as a result, instead of being regarded merely as a harmless, though annoying little pest, the house fly is today considered one of the deadliest enemies man has to contend with. Far more dangerous than war, for the fly is everywhere every summer, excepting in enlightened communities, like Cleveland, Ohio, which is rapidly becoming pretty nearly a flyless city.

Last year experiments were undertaken in a number of places to exterminate flies. Newspapers of Worcester, Mass., offered money prizes for the largest quantity of flies caught, and the results were astonishing. One enterprising lad of twelve years won the first prize of $100 when he delivered ninety-five quarts of flies. But it was found out later that in order to succeed he had actually gone into the business of breeding flies in heaps of fish offal. Altogether the city of Worcester caught and killed forty bushels of flies in a few weeks. For obvious reasons those interested in fly extermination are not offering prizes in the same way this year for dead flies. In a good many communities prizes are offered for flyless blocks of houses or for farms or barns that have no flies on or in them.

Organizations like the Woman's Municipal League of Boston are paying for stereopticon lectures delivered before all sorts of audiences, and are getting Boy Scouts, District Nursing associations, school children, and others at work in the effort. One of the scientists most actively interested is C. F. Hodge, professor of biology at Clark university, who has accomplished remarkable results by screening houses to keep flies on the outside, by killing winter flies when they awake in early spring and crawl out of cracks, picture moldings, and other dark places where they spend the cold weather, and by catching in traps of his own design millions of young flies before they can get to kitchen, dining-room or restaurant.

One of the most effective steps taken in the campaign of education is due to Mr. Hatch, who sent a man to London, at his own expense, and there had made microscopic photographs of flies and their dangerous activities from which a moving picture film was constructed. The film, shown all over the country, is believed to have done more than any other one thing to bring millions of people to realize how great is the danger from flies, and how necessary to remove it.

One of the most ingenious methods for teaching children facts regarding flies is seen in a small pamphlet prepared by Jean Dawson of the Cleveland Normal school, who has adopted the question and answer plan of instruction. After explaining, in this way, why flies are dangerous, how they spread disease, where they spend the winter and what they do in spring, the little book tells about their breeding, their food, and how they carry dirt as well as disease.

The closing questions and answers are as follows:

20. Can a family escape the dangers from flies by screening them out of the house?
No, not if they use food over which flies have swarmed or fallen into.

21. Do flies carry sickness and death to many people in the United States?
There are nearly five hundred thousand cases of typhoid fever yearly in the United States, and nearly 50,000 deaths. Much of this distributed by flies. Forty-nine thousand infants die annually of enteritis or summer complaint, the germs of which are probably all carried to the milk by flies. Flies are now known to be the most deadly enemy of man. They kill more people than all the lions, tigers, snakes, and even wars.

22. Have flies always been such an enemy to mankind?
Yes, but a great many have died. About four out of five children in Cleveland live to be five years old. Many of these deaths are due to flies carrying disease germs to their food.

23. How is it possible to protect ourselves more from flies than we already have?
When we thought flies were merely annoying, we could afford to hide ourselves behind screens; now that they have been proved to be our deadly enemy, we must come out and fight them in the open.

24. How can this be done?
In three ways:

(a) By killing all the winter flies that have been hiding in buildings as fast as they come out.

(b) By cleaning up all manure and filth in which flies may breed.

(c) By keeping traps set in covers of garbage cans and on porches where the flies are thickest to catch them before they can enter our homes.

25. What particular good would come from killing winter flies?
Killing the flies that live over winter means killing the mother flies before they can lay eggs in the spring.

26. If we did clean up all the manure and filth from the neighborhood would not flies swarm in from other parts?
A fly seldom travels over 500 yards from its breeding place.

27. With what are the traps baited?
If used in the cover of a garbage can the garbage is the bait. If used otherwise, bread and milk is an attractive bait.

28. Will all the flies go into the trap?
Yes, if there is no other food about.

29. Has any one ever succeeded in keeping his house free from flies without screens?
Yes, a number of people have used the method above indicated, and have done away with screen windows and doors.

30. Will the city of Cleveland ever be free from flies?
Yes, just as soon as every one does his part in his own house and yard Cleveland will be a city of flyless stores, markets and homes.

One of the most interesting experiments made last summer was a highly successful effort to teach children the truth about the necessity of exterminating the typhoid fly.

Among those furthering this specific plan of education was Mr. Hatch, who offered two sets of prizes in each of a number of cities, including New York, Milwaukee, Kalamazoo, Salem, Mass.; Wichita, Kansas City, Kan.; Memphis and St. Louis. To children in the seventh and eighth grades of public schools he offered a prize of $10 and to pupils in the fifth and sixth grades he offered a first prize of $5 and a second prize of $3. In the aggregate he spent in this way some $700, many thousands competing. One result is that an army of children have acquainted themselves with the fly and what it does to man. This, of course, was the main object sought. Secondly, the fact that a New Yorker was offering his own money in this campaign, and succeeded in arousing the spirit manifested among children all over the country, caused local newspapers, health bodies, educational institutions, and other individuals in many places to go into the matter on their own responsibility. This year it is not necessary for Mr. Hatch or any one else to offer prizes to the country in general. The leaders of public opinion and public spirit in one city after another are offering prizes themselves.

As a result of all the agitation, this year sees a fly crusade throughout the land such as was probably never seen before in the history of the world.

ILLINOIS NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Wire Reports of Happenings From All Parts of the State.

LOSES LIFE BY DROWNING

Harvey J. Schucharan, Employee of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company, Drowns in River When Canoe Capsizes.

Dixon.—Lack of experience in the handling of a canoe caused the death of Harvey J. Schuchard, assistant auditor of the Illinois Northern Utilities company, by drowning in the Rock river. Schuchard, with R. W. Freed and Sidney Jacobson, were canoeing on the river. The canoe tipped over and Schuchard sank. Schuchard's father lives at 3334 Humboldt avenue, Chicago.

Decatur.—The general conference of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ decided to telegraph President Wilson commending him and his cabinet on their stand on questions concerning liquor. The conference is still engaged with voluminous reports. Next week it will consider the questions of state-wide conference and of uniting the board of home missions and the Church erection society.

Mount Vernon.—There is a strike among the punch and shear men of the steel department of the car works on account of a cut in wages. If the strike is not brought to speedy termination the entire plant, employing about 1,500 hands, may be closed, as much depends upon the output of the department where the men are idle.

Peoria.—State's Attorney W. W. Reardon of Tazewell county said that he will not turn Clyde Stratton, who is a prisoner in the Tazewell county jail, over to the federal authorities or to the authorities at Columbus, O., where he is wanted. He says he will try him on the charge of burglary and larceny, the maximum sentence for which is 14 years in the penitentiary. Stratton said he had shot two men, but did not kill them. He refused to reveal his identity, or tell where the shooting occurred. He says he was in Chicago during the automobile bandits' raid and purchased an automobile, for which he paid $1,300. When asked where he got the money he said he had stolen it. Asked what he was doing in this part of the country, he declared he was prospecting for a number of bank robberies, the first to be committed at Davenport, Ill. Stratton is a graduate of Purdue university, Ind.

Quincy.—Electrical workers for Illinois, Indiana and Iowa ended their annual meeting here by selecting Peoria for next year's meeting and electing the following officers: Thomas Lake, Hammond, Ind., president; Charles W. Hughes, Joliet, Ill., vice-president; F. H. Strapp, Indianapolis, secretary-treasurer.

Harrisburg.—After five hours' deliberation the jury in the case of William Sora and Mrs. Annie Ostrowska, charged with murder, returned a verdict of guilty. The woman was given fourteen years and Sora sentenced for life. Sora, a few weeks ago, shot and killed three Russians and wounded another at the command of Mrs. Ostrowska who claimed the men had insulted her.

Duquoin.—Mrs. Ella S. Stewart of Chicago, state organizer of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, addressed a meeting in the First Methodist Episcopal church, at which plans for a local organization were begun.

Springfield.—Governor Dunne accepted an invitation to speak at the State Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Alton May 21.

Shelbyville.—Drs. Lewis Wine Bremerman of Chicago, Edward W. Flegenbaum of Edwardsville, and L. H. A. Nickerson of Quincy, president of the State Medical society, were guests of the Shelby County Medical association at the monthly meeting and banquet here. More than thirty physicians attended the meeting. The next meeting will be held in Cowden, June 3.

Pontiac.—Jim Robertson, a negro, said to live in St. Louis, attacked Deputy Sheriff Ives of this city, when the latter was unlocking the jail door. He knocked Ives down a flight of steps, breaking his leg, then with the deputy's own revolver beat him over the head. The negro was overpowered by bystanders.

Bloomington.—Abel Larson, aged ninety-one, died at Atlanta. He came to central Illinois in 1830, and had lived here longer than any other resident. He was famous as a Nimrod, and for 50 years made annual trips to the west after big game.

Sterling.—Ired L. Tittle, chief inspector of the Illinois fire inspection bureau, has commenced the work of rerating the city of Sterling as a result of the increased efficiency of the fire department.

ILLINOIS NEWS TERSELY TOLD

Decatur.—Dr. George Emory Fellows of New Orleans, former president of the University of Maine, is to be chosen president of the James Milliken university of Decatur, according to word given out by several members of the college board. They further announced that Dr. C. H. Jenney of St. Louis, for two years a ball player on the Boston Americans, is to be chosen president of the First Presbyterian church here, according to Dr. W. H. Penhallagon.

Bloomington.—Owners of live stock in central Illinois are alarmed over a possible epidemic of a disease which swept Kansas and Missouri last year. T. A. Campbell, a farmer near here, lost six head of valuable horses, and three more are dying, and other cases are reported from Delevan and other sections. The disease is diagnosed as spinal meningitis.

Mount Sterling.—Friends of Harold Lorton of Quincy and Miss Emma Hodgson of this city were surprised when they learned that they had been married at Carthage, Mo., August 25, 1912. They will reside in Quincy. Mrs. Lorton has been teaching in the Mendon school for two years.

Galesburg.—The safe of the Farmers' Bank at North Henderson, Ill., twenty miles from here, was blown to pieces and while the bank officials will not give out information as to the loss, it is reported the larger part of the funds were secured by the robbers who made their escape. Captain Charles Craig of Governor Dunne's staff, one of the largest stockholders in the bank, left for North Henderson by automobile to investigate.

Joliet.—A fly entered Fred Vassar's barber shop here. It buzzed outrageously and continued to buzz despite the barber's frantic wordy remonstrances. Finally Mr. Fly alighted on the barber's bald head. Vassar shook his head, the fly flew off and Vassar made a vicious lunge at it with a razor which he was honing. In some way there was a slip and the razor buried itself in Vassar's left wrist. He nearly bled to death before a physician arrived. The fly escaped.

Marengo.—Grand Master Delmar D. Darrah of Bloomington dedicated the new Masonic temple in this city. The ceremony was attended by Masons from all over northern Illinois.

Decatur.—It is probable that no more quadrennial conferences will be handed out by the Church of the United Brethren in Christ just for the mere asking. Recommendations will be presented in the present conference to place the locating of the conferences in businesslike manner with clean competition.

Peoria.—Clyde Stanton, the notorious convict who made a sensational escape from the government prison at Leavenworth March 23, by crawling through a half mile of sewer and who is under arrest at Pekin on a charge of burglary, confessed that he is the man wanted at Leavenworth prison.

Marion.—A jury returned a verdict of guilty in the trial of W. D. Abney, charged with manslaughter. Owing to Abney's official career in Marion, the case was of more interest than an ordinary criminal trial. While chief of police he shot two men to death, but the coroner and grand jury failed to hold him guilty. Later he was elected constable and while acting as special police for Cline Cunningham in a whisky house near the city limits, run under government license, got mixed up in a "free-for-all fight" and shot to death Smothers, his third man. In March last he was tried, but the jury failed to agree upon a verdict.

Duquoin.—The Illinois State Baptist association has awarded the contract for the construction of a colportage wagon, which will be used in distributing literature of the association throughout this portion of the state. Rev. H. H. Wallace, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, raised the funds. It will be the first of the kind used by any denomination in southern Illinois.

Mount Vernon.—Frank Sullens, charged with detaining Dorothy Holt in Salem, and who has been confined in the jail in Mount Vernon, was taken to Salem for trial. Sheriff Vurselle, fearing that he would be taken from the Marion county jail and mobbed, spirited him here, and his presence was known to but few persons. He was thought to be in the Bellevue jail. Charles Holt, father of the girl, is assistant prosecuting attorney and will prosecute Sullens.

De Kalb.—The fourteenth annual session of the northern Illinois state Normal summer school will open on June 23 and will continue for six weeks.

Galesburg.—Automobile bandits dynamited the safe of the Farmers' Savings bank at North Henderson and escaped with about $6,000 in currency and gold. The burglars left several hundred dollars in silver scattered about the floor. There were four in the party. Charles C. Craig of Galesburg owns the bank.

IT'S HARD TO WORK

It's torture to work with a lame, aching back. Get rid of it. Attack the cause. Probably it's weak kidneys. Heavy or confining work is hard on the kidneys, anyway, and once the kidneys become inflamed and congested, the trouble keeps getting worse. The danger of running into gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease is serious. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for backache or bad kidneys.

An Illinois Case

James E. Poyner, Rossville, Ill., says: "I was laid up with kidney trouble. My back pained so I couldn't move. The kidney secretions were in terrible condition. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in short order and for four years the trouble has never returned."

HAVE LONG DURATION OF LIFE

Salt Water Denizens Attain Immense Age, if Scientific Investigations Are Correct.

Water, particularly salt water, seems to conduce to longevity. There are gigantic mussels and oysters whose age is assumed to be comparable only with that of the Cape Verde baobab tree and the big tree of California, which live for 5,000 years. Indeed, there appears no particular reason why mussels should ever die, though it is also true that, considering the sort of life a mussel leads, there seems no particular reason why it should ever have lived.

Sea anemones, again, delicate and sensitive though they look when we see them in the rock pools, may attain great age. Sir John Dalyell, a Scottish naturalist, captured in 1828 a sea anemone of the liver-colored sort so common around our shores. Its age was then estimated at seven years. It flourished in Edinburg until 1887, and was just attaining a vigorous and sober maturity when, from some unknown cause, it died.—London Mail.

Unnamed Heroine.

The anniversary is responsible for the publication of many reminiscences concerning the sinking of the Titanic. What the survivors and the chroniclers most like to dwell upon is the heroism displayed by passengers and crew aboard the vanished liner. There are tales of Major Butt, the Strausses, First Officer Murdoch and many others, who showed fine metal in the hour of disaster. But there goes quite unmentioned a year ago, the little English woman who said to the officer who would have thrust her into a lifeboat: "Oh, no, sir, I'm only a stewardess."

He May Be a Great Doctor Some Day.

William, aged five, had watched with much curiosity the family physician each day count his grandmother's pulse. When the doctor's visits ceased, William felt the responsibility of counting his grandmother's pulse daily. One morning William's father came into the room and found his young son looking thoughtfully at his tiny watch, his fingers on grandmother's wrist.

"Well, son, what is it today?" inquired the father. William looked grave, but without hesitation replied: "Ten dollars, sir."

IS HIGH AND SO IS THE PRICE OF CATTLE.

For years the Province of Alberta (Western Canada) has been the leading ranching country. Many of these ranches today are immense grain fields and the cattle have given place to the cultivation of wheat, oats, barley and flax; the change has made many thousands of Americans, settled on these plains, wealthy, but it has increased the price of live stock.

There is splendid opportunity now to get a of 160 acres (and another as a pre-emption) in the newer districts and produce either cattle or grain. The crops are always good, the climate is excellent, schools and churches are convenient, markets splendid, in either Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta.

Prize Holstein

Robert E. Haeger of Algonquin, McHenry county's original Holstein-Friesian man, in conjunction with Theo. Getzelman of Hampshire, have purchased and added to the Getzelman farm at the latter place $10,000 worth of blooded stock, from Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Getzelman has added to his herd Johanna DeKol VanBeers, mother of Johanna McKinley Segis, the prize bull for which he has refused $18,000. The cow cost $7,000. She has a record of forty pounds of butter per week. In addition to Johanna DeKol VanBeers, the local men bought three other Holstein cows for which they paid more than $1,000 each. Mr. Getzelman and Mr. Haeger were in the East for two weeks.—Crystal Lake Herald.

Train Flipper Loses Foot

Herbert Nelson of Sycamore, aged 19 years, fell or leaped from a freight train, and lay beside the track near the Turner Brass works on the south outskirts of Sycamore with one foot crushed off and unconscious, from 1 until between 5 and 6 o'clock on Thursday morning, when he was found by a brakeman. The ambulance was called and he was taken to the Municipal hospital in a critical condition. His skull was fractured and he was otherwise injured. He had apparently been unconscious for some hours from loss of blood and from the cold.

New Time Card

The Woodstock & Sycamore Traction Co. added several cars to its schedule on the 11th, the last car now leaving Sycamore at 12:10 a. m. and the last one leaving Marengo at 11:05 p. m. The schedule up to 7:20 p. m. is the same as it has been during the winter. Following is the new time card:

It's time for tonics, especially for that watch. It is money in your pocket to be on time in the spring of the year. Do not let that watch fool you again; take it to Martin for repairs.

A good program has been prepared for the next meeting of Genoa Camp No. 163, M. W. A., May 22, 1913. Woodmen, their families and Royal Neighbors are invited. Good music has been secured and a fine time is assured. Refreshments will be served.

A young man named Allen, who was in the employ of Fred Johnson on the Ellwood farm, was arrested in Chicago last week, charged with forgery. He confessed when arrested. Some time ago, while in the employ of Johnson he procured some of the latter's private blank checks and used a few of them to his immediate advantage, but later sorrow C. A. Goding and F. O. Holtgren were among the victims while one check was passed in Chicago. It is stated that the loss was made good by a brother of the forger. Allen was apparently a fine young man and his friends in Genoa do not believe he is a criminal at heart. He is now decidedly remorseful.

Don't leave carcasses of animals lying around or carelessly bury them, for this invites dogs and crows, and they spread disease. Call J. Kunzler at the rendering plant or at his residence and he will properly remove them. Notice, however, must be given immediately on death of the animal and hide must be left on Residence phone H. Wiedeman, No. 351. We pay telephone charges. 13-tf

The ladies of Genoa have found that Duval & Lembke are leading in the millinery art. Their line of trimmed hats (trimmed by one who knows) and the untrimmed hats are about the right thing.

Right at house cleaning time it would be unwise to waste time and energy in making house dresses and aprons. See the new lines at Lembke's and you will understand why this is true.

The opera "H. M. S. Pinafore" will be presented at the Genoa opera house on Friday evening, May 23, by Sycamore talent under auspices of the Genoa Base Ball Association. Tickets will be on sale at E. H. Browne's store and R. B. Field's billiard parlor. Reserved seats at Browne's Wednesday morning at nine o'clock. The ladies will sell tickets in advance, so have your money ready. Everyone knows that Pinafore is one of the best operas ever written, having stood the test of time better than any other. The Sycamore cast put it on in that city last week to a crowded house and pleased absolutely. Watch for program next week.

Drowned at Dixon

Lack of experience in the handling of a canoe caused the death of Harvey J. Schuchardt, assistant auditor of the Illinois Northern Utilities Co., by drowning at Dixon Sunday. Schuchardt with R. W. Freed and Sidney Jacobson were canoeing on the river. The canoe tipped over and Schuchardt sank. The latter's father lives in Chicago.

GENOA MAN MARRIED

Alfred Stott and Miss Jean Gillespie Wed at Aberdeen, South Dakota

Announcement has been received in Genoa of the marriage of Alfred Stott and Miss Jean Gillespie of Gofton, N. D., the ceremony being performed by Rev. John, pastor of the Presbyterian church, at Aberdeen, S. D., Saturday, May 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Stott will make their home for the present at Firesteel, S. D., where the former took up a claim some time ago. During the past several years he has been in the electrical business, having been more than ordinarily successful in installing new telephone lines in the north-west.

Mr. Stott is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stott of this city, grew to manhood here and has always been known as an industrious youngster. In fact Alfred was usually improving his time while other boys were playing. That such a man will make a success of life is among the assured things.

in fact as long as any first class brick building. It can never shrink, swell nor crack, nor will it need repair or paint. It preserves silage sweet and succulent, no matter how long it remains in the silo. The silo is frost and fire proof. It is fitted with continuous air tight doors.

The bands are corrugated and three inches wide. They are laid about two feet apart and between the coursing of brick and imbedded in the masonry. The bands can't expand, which is the scientific part of it, and no wall can crack if this band is used in its construction.

Write or call and we will give you all the information necessary to convince you that this is the best silo for you to have built.

SYNOPSIS.

Bill Cannon, the bonanza king, and his daughter, Rosa, who had passed up Mrs. Cornelius Ryan's ball at San Francisco to accompany her father, arrive at Antelope. Dominick Ryan calls on his mother to beg a ball invitation for his wife, and is refused. The determined old lady refuses to recognize her daughter-in-law.

CHAPTER III.

The Daughter of Meth.

He walked for nearly an hour, along quiet, lamp-lit streets where large houses fronted on gardens that exhaled moist earth scents and the breaths of sweet, unseen blossoms, up hills so steep that it seemed as if an earthquake might have heaved up the city's crust and bent it crisply like a piece of cardboard.

He looked down unseeing, thinking of the last three years.

When he had first met Bernice Iversen, she had been a typewriter and stenographer in the office of the Merchants and Mechanics Trust Company. He was twenty-four at the time, the only son of Cornelius Ryan, one of the financial magnates of the far west.

She was seven years older than he, but told him they were the same age. It was not a wasted lie, as she undoubtedly looked much younger than she was, being a slight, trimly-made woman who had retained a girl's elasticity of figure and sprightliness of manner. The entrapping of young Ryan was a simple matter. He had never loved and knew little of women. He did not love her, but she made him think he did, threw herself at him, led him quickly to the point she wished to reach, and secretly, without a suspicion on the part of her family, became his mistress. Six months later, having driven him to the step by her upbraidings and her apparent sufferings of conscience under the sense of wrong-doing, she persuaded him to marry her.

The marriage was a bombshell to the world in which young Ryan was a planet of magnitude. His previous connection with her—though afterward discovered by his mother—was at the time unknown. Bernice had induced him to keep the marriage secret till its hour of accomplishment, for she knew Mrs. Ryan would try to break it off and feared that she might succeed. Once Dominick's wife she thought that the objections and resentment of the older woman could be overcome. But she underrated the force and obstinacy of her adversary and the depth of the wound that had been given her. Old Mrs. Ryan had been stricken in her tenderest spot. Her son was her idol, born in her middle-age, the last of four boys, three of whom had died in childhood. In his babyhood she had hoarded money and worked late and early that he might be rich. Now she held the great estate of her husband in trust for him, and dreamed of the time when he should marry some sweet and virtuous girl and she would have grandchildren to love and spoil and plan for. When the news of his marriage reached her and she saw the woman he had made his wife, she understood everything. She knew her boy through and through and she knew just how he had been duped and entangled.

The marriage of her son was the bitterest blow of her life. It came when she was old, stiffened into habits of dominance and dictatorship, when her ambitions for her boy were gaining daily in scope and splendor. A blind rage and determination to crush the woman were her first feelings, and remained with her but slightly mitigated by the softening passage of time. She was a partisan, a fighter, and she instituted a war against her daughter-in-law which she conducted with all the malignant bitterness that marks the quarrels of women.

He Looked Down Unseeing, Thinking of the Last Three Years.

Dominick had not been married a month when she discovered the previous connection between him and his wife, and published it to the winds. A social power, feared and obeyed, she let it be known that to any one who received Mrs. Dominick Ryan her doors would be forever closed. Without withdrawing her friendship from her son she refused ever to meet or to receive his wife. In this attitude she was absolutely implacable. She imposed her will upon the less strong spirits about her, and young Mrs. Ryan was as completely shut off from her husband's world as though her skirts carried contamination. With masculine largeness of view in other matters, in this one the elder woman exhibited a singular, unworthy smallness. The carelessly large checks she had previously given Dominick on his birthday and anniversaries ceased to appear, and masculine gifts, such as pipes, walking-sticks, and cigar-cases, in which his wife could have no participating enjoyment, took their place. She had established a policy of exclusion, and maintained it rigidly.

Young Mrs. Ryan had at first believed that this rancor would melt away with the flight of time. But she did not know the elder woman. She was as unmeltable as a granite rock. Bernice, who had expected to gain all from her connection with the all-powerful Ryans, at the end of two years found that she was an ostracized outsider from the world she had hoped to enter, and that the riches she had expected to enjoy were represented by the three thousand a year her husband earned in the bank. Her attempts to force her way into the life and surroundings where she had hoped her marriage would place her had invariably failed. If her feelings were not of the same nature as those of the elder Mrs. Ryan, they were fully as poignant and bitter.

The effort to get an invitation to the ball had been the most daring the young woman had yet made. Neither she nor Dominick had thought it possible that Mrs. Ryan would leave her out. So confident was she that her would be asked that she had ordered a dress for the occasion. But when Dominick's invitation came without her name on the envelope, then fear that she was to be excluded rose clamorous in her. For days she talked and complained to her husband as to the injustice of this course and his power to secure the invitation for her if he would. By the evening of the ball she had brought him to the point where he had agreed to go forth and demand it.

It was a hateful mission. He had never in his life done anything so humiliating. In his shame and distress he had hoped that his mother would give it to him without urging, and Bernice, placated, would be restored to good humor and leave him at peace. She could not have gained such power over him, or so bent him to her bidding, had she not had in him a fulcrum of guilty obligation to work on. She continually reminded him of "the wrong" he had done her, and how, through him, she had lost the respect of her fellows and her place among them. All these slights, snubs and insults were his fault, and he felt that this was true. To-night he had gone forth in dogged desperation. Now in fear, frank fear of her, he went home, slowly, with reluctant feet, his heart getting heavier, his dread colder as he neared the house.

It was one of those wooden structures on Sacramento Street not far from Van Ness Avenue where the well-to-do and socially-aspiring crowd themselves into a floor of seven rooms, and derive satisfaction from the proximity of their distinguished neighbors who refuse to know them. It contained four flats, each with a parlor bay-window and a front door, all four doors in neighborly juxtaposition at the top of a flight to six marble steps.

Dominick's was the top flat; he had to ascend a long, carpeted stairway with a turn half-way up to get to it. Now, looking at the bay-window, he saw lights gleaming from below the drawn blinds. Bernice was still up. A lingering hope that she might have gone to bed died, and his sense of reluctance gained in force and made him feel slightly sick. He was there, however, and he had to go up. Fitting his key into the lock he opened the hall door.

It was very quiet as he mounted the long stairs, but, as he drew near the top, he became aware of a windy, whistling noise and looking into the room near the stair-head saw that all the gas-jets were lit and turned on full cock, and that the gas, rushing out from the burner in a ragged banner of flame, made the sound. He was about to enter and lower it when he heard his wife's voice coming from the open door of her room.

"That you, Dominick?" she called. Her voice was steady and high. Though it was hard, with a sort of precise clearness of utterance, it was not conspicuously wrathful.

"Yes," he answered, "it's I," and he forgot the gas-jets and walked up the hall. He did not notice that in the other rooms he passed the gas was turned on in the same manner. The whistling rush of its escape made a noise like an excited unresting wind in the confined limits of the little flat.

The door of Bernice's room was open, and under a blaze of light from the chandelier and the side lights of the bureau she was sitting in a rocking-chair facing the foot of the bed. She held in her hand a walking-stick of Dominick's and with this she had been making long scratches across the footboard, which was of walnut and was seamed back and forth, like a rock scraped by the passage of a glacier. As Dominick entered, she desisted, ceased rocking, and turned to look at him. She had an air of taut, sprightly impudence, and was smiling a little.

"Well, Dominick," she said jauntily, "you're late."

"Yes, I believe I am," he answered. "I did not come straight back."

"Took a walk," she said, turning to the bed and beginning to rock. "It's a queer sort of hour to choose for walking," and lifting the cane she recommenced her occupation of scratching the foot-board with it, tracing long, parabolic curves across the entire expanse, watching the cane's tip with her head tilted to one side. Dominick, who was not looking at her, did not notice the noise.

"I thought," she said, tracing a great arc from one side to the other, "that you were with your loving family—opening the ball, probably."

He did not move, but said quietly: "It was impossible to get the invitation, Bernice. I tried to do it and was refused. I want you to understand that as long as I live I'll never do a thing like that again."

"Oh, yes, you will," she said laughing and shaking her head like an amused child. "Oh, yes, you will." She threw her head back and, looking at the ceiling, laughed still louder with a note of fierceness in the sound. "You'll do it and lots more things like it. You'll do it if I want you to, Dominick Ryan."

He did not answer. She hitched her chair closer to the bed as if to return to an engrossing pastime, and, leaning back luxuriously, resumed her play with the cane. This time Dominick noticed the noise and turned. She was conscious that he was looking at her, and began to scratch with an appearance of charmed absorption, such as an artist might display in his work. He watched her for a moment in silent astonishment and then broke out sharply:

"What are you doing?"

"Scratching the bed," responded calmly.

"You must be mad," he said, striding angrily toward her and stretching a hand for the cane. "You're ruining it."

She whipped the cane to the other side, out of his reach. "Am I?" she said, turning an eye of fiery menace on him. "Maybe I am, and what's that matter?" Then, turning back to the bed, "Too bad, isn't it, and the set not paid for?"

"Not paid for!" he exclaimed, so amazed by the statement that he forgot everything else. "Why, I've given you the money for it twice!"

"Three times," she amended coolly, "and I spent it on things I liked better. I bought clothes, and jewelry with it, and little fixings I wanted. Yes, the bedroom set isn't all paid for yet and we've had it nearly two years. Who would have thought that the son of Con Ryan couldn't pay his bills!"

She rose, threw the cane into the corner, and, turning toward him, leaned back, half-sitting on the footboard, her hands, palm downward, pressed on its rounded top.

Dominick and she had had many quarrels, ignominious and repulsive, but he had never before seen her in so savage a mood. Even yet he had not lost the feeling of responsibility and remorse he felt toward her. As he moved from the mantelpiece his eye had fallen on the ball-dress that lay, a sweep of lace and silver, across the bed, and on the bureau he had seen jewels and hair ornaments laid out among the powder boxes and scent bottles. The pathos of these futile preparations appealed to him and he made an effort to be patient and just.

"It's been a disappointment," he said, "and I'm sorry about it. But I've done all I could and there's no use doing any more. You've got to give it up. There's no use trying to make my mother give it. She won't."

"Won't she?" she cried, her voice suddenly loud and shaken with rage. "We'll see! We'll see! We'll see if I've married into the Ryan family for nothing."

Her wrath at last loosened, her control was instantly swept away. In a moment she was that appalling sight, a violent and vulgar woman in a raging passion. She ran around the bed and, seizing the dress, threw it on the floor and stamped on it, grinding the delicate fabric into the carpet with her heels.

"There!" she cried. "That's what I feel about it. That's the way I'll treat the things and the people I don't like! That dress—it isn't paid for, but I don't want it. I'll get another when I do. Have I married Con Ryan's son to need money and bother about bills? Not on your life! Did you notice the gas? Every burner turned on. Well, I did it just to have a nice bright house for you when you came home without the invitation. We haven't paid the bill for two months—but what does that matter? We're related to the Ryans. We don't have to trouble about bills."

He entered the dining-room and sat down by the table, his head on his hands. He sat thus for some hours, trying to think what he should do. He found it impossible to come to any definite conclusion for the future; all he could decide upon now was the necessity of leaving his wife, getting a respite from her, withdrawing himself from the sight of her. He had never loved her, but to-night the pity and responsibility he had felt seemed to be torn from his life as a morning wind tears a cobweb from the grass.

The dawn was whitening the window-panes when he finally got pen and paper and wrote a few lines. These, without prefix or signature, stated that he would leave the city for a short time and not to make any effort to find where he had gone or to communicate with him. He wrote her name on the folded paper and placed it in front of the clock. Then he stole into his bedroom—they had occupied separate rooms for over six months—and packed a valise with his oldest and roughest clothes. After this he waited in the dining-room till the light was bright and the traffic of the day loud on the pavement, before he crept down the long stairway and went out into the crystal freshness of the morning.

CHAPTER IV.

Out of Night and Storm.

When Rose Cannon woke on the morning after her arrival at Antelope, a memory of the snowflakes of the evening before made her jump out of bed and pater barefooted to the window. It seemed to her it would be "lots of fun" to be snowed up at Antelope, and when she saw only a thin covering of white on the hotel garden and the dimming perspective of roofs, she drew her mouth into a grimace of disappointment.

With hunched-up shoulders, her hands tucked under her arms, she stood looking out, her breath blurring the pane in a dissolving film of smoke. It was a cold little world. Below her the garden—the summer pride of Perley's Hotel—a sere, withered waste, its shrubs stiff in the grip of the cold. The powdering of snow on its frost-bitten leaves and Rose laughed. Her father did not understand that the roughness and novelty of it all was what she enjoyed. He was already a man of means when she was born, and she had known nothing of the hardships and privations through which he and her mother had struggled up to fortune. Rocky Bar the night before and Antelope this morning were her first glimpses of the mining region over which the pioneers had swarmed in '49, Bill Cannon, only a lad in his teens among them.

Perley's warnings of bad weather were soon verified. Early in the afternoon the idle, occasional snowflakes had begun to fall thickly, with a soft, persistent steadiness of purpose. At four o'clock, Willoughby, the Englishman who had charge of the shut-down Bella K. mine, came, butting head down against the wind, a group of dogs at his heels, to claim the hospitality of the hotel. His watchman, an old timer, had advised him to seek a shelter better stored with provisions than the office building of the Bella K. Willoughby, whose accent and manner had proclaimed him as one of high distinction before it was known in Antelope that he was "some relation to a lord," was made welcome in the bar. His four red setter dogs, shut out from that hospitable retreat by the snow, grouped around it and stared expectantly, each shout from within being answered by them with plaintive and ingratiating whines.

The afternoon was still young when the day began to darken. Rose Cannon, who had been sitting in the parlor, dreaming over a fire of logs, went to the window, wondering at the growing gloom. The wind had risen to a wild, sweeping speed, that tore the snow fine as mist. There were no lazy, woolly flakes now. They had turned into an opaque, slanting veil which here and there curled into snowy mounds and in other places left the ground bare.

Rose looked out on it with an interest that was a little soberer than the debonair blitheness of her morning mood. If it kept up they might be snowed in for days, Perley had said. That being the case, this room, the hotel's one parlor, would be her retreat, her abiding place—for her bedroom was as cold as an ice-chest—until they were liberated. With the light, half-whimsical smile that came so readily to her lips, she turned from the window and surveyed it judicially.

She was leaving the window to return to her seat by the fire when the complete silence that seemed to hold the outside world in a spell was broken by sudden sounds. Voices, the crack of a whip, then a grinding thump against the hotel porch, caught her ear and whirled her back to the pane. A large covered vehicle, with hope in these days of its decline, and the curiosity felt by Rose was shared by the whole hotel. The swing door to the bar opened and men pressed into the aperture. Mrs. Perley came up from the kitchen, wiping a dish. Cora appeared in the dining-room doorway, and in answer to Miss Cannon's inquiringly-lifted eyebrows, called across the hall:

"It's the Murphysville stage on the down-trip to Rocky Bar. I guess they thought they couldn't make it. The driver don't like to run no risks and so he's brought 'em round this way and dumped 'em here. There ain't but two passengers. That's them."

She indicated the two men who, standing by the hall stove, were divesting themselves of their wraps. One of them was a tall upright old man with a sweep of grizzled beard covering his chest, and gray hair falling from the dome of a bald head. The other was much younger, tall also, and spare to leanness. He wore a gray fedora hat, and against his chin, unbecomingly tint, his face, its prominent, bony surface nipped by the cold to a raw redness, looked sick and unhealthy. With an air of solitude he laid his overcoat across a chair, brushing off the snow with a careful hand. Buttoned tight in a black cutaway with the collar turned up about his neck, he had an appearance of being uncomfortably compressed into garments too small for him. His shiny-knuckled, purplish hands, pitching up the shoulders of his coat over the chair back, were in keeping with his general suggestion of a large-boned meagerly covered lankness. The fact that he was smooth-shaven, combined with the unusual length of dark hair that appeared below his hat-brim, lent him a suggestion of something interestingly unconventional, almost artistic in the region where he now found himself he would have been variously set down as a gambler, a traveling clergyman, an actor, or perhaps only a vender of patent medicines who had some odd attractive way of advertising himself, such as drawing teeth with an electrical appliance, or playing the guitar from the tail-board of his showman's cart.

Now, having arranged his coat to its best advantage, he turned to Perley and said with a curiously deep and resonant voice:

"And, mine host, a stove in my bedroom, a stove in my bedroom or I perish."

Cora giggled and threw across the hall to Miss Cannon a delighted murmur of:

"Oh, say, ain't he just the richest thing you ever saw?"

"You've got us trapped and caged here for a spell, I guess," said the older man. "Any one else in the same box?"

"Oh, you'll not want for company," said Perley, pride at the importance of the announcement vibrating in his tone. "We've got Willoughby here from the Bella K. with his four setter dogs, and Bill Cannon and his daughter up from the coast."

"Bill Cannon!"—the two men stared and the younger one said: "Bill Cannon, the Bonanza King from San Francisco?"

"That's him all right," nodded Perley. "Up here to see the diggings at Greenhide and snowed in same as you."

Here Rose, fearing the conversation might turn upon herself, slipped from the doorway into the passage and up the stairs to her own room.

An hour later as she stood before the glass making her toilet for supper, a knock at the door ushered in Cora, already curled, powdered and ribboned for that occasion, a small kerosene lamp in her hand. In the bare room, its gloom only partly dispelled by the light from a similar lamp on the bureau and the red gleam from the stove, Miss Cannon was revealed in the becoming half-dusk made by these imperfectly-blending illuminations, a pink silk dressing-gown loosely enfolding her, a lightly brushed-in suggestion of fair hair behind her ears and on her shoulders. Her comb was in her hand and Cora realized with an uplifting thrill that she had timed her visit correctly and was about to learn the mysteries of Miss Cannon's coiffure.

"I bring you another lamp," she said affably, setting her offering down on the bureau. "One ain't enough light to dress decently by. I have three," and she sank down on the side of the bed with the air of having established an intimacy, woman to woman, by this act of generous consideration.

"Them gentlemen," she continued, "are along on this hall with you and your pa. The old one's Judge Washburne, of Colusa, a pioneer that used to know Mr. Perley's mother way back in Sacramento in the fifties, and knew your pa real well when he was poor. It's sort of encouraging to think your pa was ever poor."

Rose laughed and turned sidewise, looking at the speaker under the arch of her uplifted arm. There were hairpins in her mouth and an up-whirled end of blond hair protruded in a gleaming scattering of yellow over her forehead. She mumbled a comment on her father's early poverty, her lips showing red against the hair-pins nipped between her teeth.

makes for rich, pure blood and thus invigorates the system. For a torpid liver and its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, nervous distress, foul breath, nasty coated tongue with bitter taste, loss of appetite with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good.

WORMS

cause much annoyance to children and great anxiety to parents. The presence of worms is recognized by these common symptoms: itching nose, unsatisfied appetite, offensive breath and colic pains.

grizzled grass added to its air of bleakness. Beyond rose the shingled roofs of Antelope's main street. Rose, standing gazing up, wondered if her father would go on to Greenhide, the new camp twenty miles from Antelope, where an important strike had recently been made.

Half an hour later when they met at breakfast he told her he would not leave for Greenhide that morning. Perley had warned him not to attempt it, and he for his part knew the country well enough to realize that it would be foolhardy to start under such a threatening sky. It would be all right to stop over at Antelope till the weather made up its mind what it meant to do. It might not be fun for her, but then he had warned her before they left San Francisco that she would have to put up with rough accommodations and unaccustomed the whitened shapes of a smoking team drooping before it, had just drawn up at the steps. Two masculine figures, carrying bags, emerged from the interior, and from the driver's seat a muffled shape—a cylinder of wrappings which appeared to have a lively human core—gave forth much loud and profane language. The isolation and remoteness of her surroundings had already begun to affect the town-bred young lady. She ran to the door of the parlor, as ingeniously curious to see the new arrivals and find out who they were as though she had lived in Antelope for a year.

Looking down the hall she saw the front door open violently inward and two men hastily enter. The wind seemed to blow in and before Perley's boy could press the door shut the snow had whitened the damp matting. No stage passed through Antelope.

ELGIN ROAD RACES

First International Motorcycle Races will be held on July Fourth at Elgin

Contracts signed assure Elgin of two great speedway events during the coming summer—the fourth annual Elgin National Road Races to be held August 29 and 30, and the first annual International Motorcycle races to be held July 4.

Officers of the Elgin Road Race association and the Chicago Automobile club signed a contract which assures the road races. Spectators of the first day, August 29, will be entertained by competition for the Chicago Automobile Club trophy, formerly the Cobe cup and $2,500. The race will be 305 miles in length and will be for cars under 300 cubic inches piston displacement.

On the second and final day of the meeting, cars under 450 cubic inches piston displacement will compete for a purse of $2,500 and for the Elgin National trophy. Never has there been less trouble in drawing a contract between two organizations for promoting the road classic in the middle west.

Officers of the Chicago Motorcycle club signed contracts to hold the first motorcycle road race in the United States, on the Elgin road race course on July 4.

There will be two races, held simultaneously. One will be 250 miles in length for professionals. The winner will receive the V-Ray trophy and $500; the second man will receive $250, and the third $100.

The amateur race will be 175 miles in length. The trophy has not yet been decided upon. The winner will be awarded $250 in merchandise, the second $125 in merchandise, and the third, $75 in merchandise.

The motorcycle races will attract 40,000 according to the estimates of the promoters. Press stands, judges stands and grand stands, of size equal to those used in the automobile races, will be erected. The same number of soldiers and deputy sheriffs will guard the course—Elgin Courier.

Judge DeWolf Hits Hard
Clyde Bishop was arraigned in the county hospital Thursday before Judge DeWolf on the charge of contempt of court and sentenced to the county jail for six months and to pay a fine of $250, says the Belvidere Republican. A few weeks ago he was brought before the court and ordered to pay for the support of his child. He promised to work and today he had made no effort to obtain a job and the sentence followed.

THE YEARLY PROPOSITION

Board of Education up Against the Proposition of Engaging Teachers

The teachers' committee of the board of education is having its inning during the present month and the members of that committee have about the most difficult job in Genoa at the present time. It is no simple matter to make a selection which will always turn out to suit everyone, even tho the board itself may be satisfied.

It will be necessary to engage a superintendent and principal of the high school, both Mr. Kepner and Miss White having decided not to apply for a position during the coming year. Mrs. Schneider has been engaged to again teach the grammar room, a fact which is at once gratifying to the board of education and to the patrons of the school. Miss Barr who has taught the second primary department with success has signed a contract for next year. The teachers' committee feels that it has been decidedly fortunate in securing the services of Miss Birdie Drake in the first primary department. Miss Drake has been out of the Genoa schools for two years, teaching in the West and at St. Charles. Up to the present time the other positions have not been filled, altho several applications are in.
