Argument of Those Who Say, "United States Are," Instead of "Is"

By J. M. DICKINSON, Former Secretary of War

President Wilson has been criticized for referring to the United States as "they," the idea being that in this country there is an irreconcilable conflict between people who think of the United States as "is" and people who think of it as "are." This criticism of the president puts him in the company of very distinguished Federalists.

Section III of Article III of the Constitution of the United States is as follows:

"Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court."

In Article XXVIII of the treaty with Great Britain of November 19, 1794, signed by John Jay, chief justice of the United States, and approved by Washington, after a reference to the United States, is the fol-

"With the advice and consent of their senate." (Treaties and Conventions, 1776-1887, p. 393.)

Article IX of the treaty of 1814 Quincy Adams, Henry Clay and ...

"The United States of America enan end, numeriately after the ratification of the present treaty. ties with all the tribes or nations of Indians with whom they may be at war, etc." (Same volume, p. 404.)

In the treaty with Great Britain of 1862, signed by William H Seward and approved by Abraham Lincoln, is the following:

"On the part of the United States and in that court which shall sit within their territories." (Same volume, p. 465.)

Such instances could be multiplied without number, but these are sufficient to show that President Wilson is following a well-established precedent. The nature of our government is to be determined by the Constitution as amended and expounded and not by the use of "it" or "they."

How Much Indemnity Can Germany Pay? About Three Billions a Year?

By PAUL CLAY, Statistician

How much indemnity can Germany pay? This is one important question before the conference that will fix the terms of indemnity, because the amount which she owes is so large as to be practically unlimited.

The mere property damage is one of the small items, for as a matter of equity she should reimburse the world not only for the property destroyed but also for the suspension of industry, the loss of life, the the stone-cold lunch? sufferings of the survivors and the war costs. Probably these items would add up to not less than $150,000,000,000, which is 50 per cent in excess bling, and yet that is what generations of the entire wealth of the German people, personal and real, tangible of school children have been supposed fair chance to develop into the strong, and intangible. As it is impossible for her within any reasonable time to do and to be able to recite brilto pay what she owes, the demands of our allies will doubtless be limited achs with that kind of fuel. merely by her physical ability to pay.

What we wish to learn is the breaking point of her finances.

To impose upon her any less than the last dollar she can pay is an injustice to the peaceful civilized peoples whom she has destroyed as far son. as she could; and on the other hand to require of her too large an annual payment would defeat our own purposes in that it would break down her industries and render her a bankrupt nation from whom we could not ate the average school lunch. The hot ment of agriculture, much depends on

In the nature of things we cannot have both reparation and pundull child. ishment, if by the latter is meant any form of boycott. We must choose the one and forego the other. Therefore, as a means of collecting the damages from Germany, our allies will find it necessary to again admit her to the world's commerce.

Detailed figuring, which need not be set forth here, warrants the conclusion that an indemnity of about $2,700,000,000 per annum can be collected from the German nation without breaking down its indus- Tommy, after eating this, are expected tries; and this amount can be gradually increased within, say, a five-year period to about $3,500,000,000 per annum. To attempt to collect more would probably defeat our own purpose, and to collect any less would be an injustice to ourselves and our allies.

Great War Has Taught Us How to Save More Lives Than It Has Cost

By MAJOR G. A. STEWART, Rockefeller Institute

The war has taught us how to save more lives than the war has cost. The countless improvements of practice, both in medicine and surgery, made in this war have advanced our science half a century in four years.

In surgery the value and technique of "chlorination"-or the use of some combination of chlorine for the destruction of malignant germs which give rise to pus-have been learned as never before. There is no longer any good excuse for persistence of pus.

The development of the "Carrel-Dakin" method of treating all manner of infected wounds by periodic irrigation with Dakin fluid (a noncaustic hypochlorite) marked an extraordinary advance. And in this the method is as important as the fluid. It is being taught to surgeons

Out of 45 patients in the War Demonstration hospital suffering from empyema we returned 35 to the front. Empyema is pus in the chest cavity. It often follows pneumonia, and hitherto has been highly fatal. There has been an unusual amount of empyema in New York this year of a very serious type. But the death rate has been lessened by the the influenza epidemic and the shortage of nurses.

Other wonderful advances have been made; for example, in X-ray work, in knowledge of the gas bacillus which causes a form of gangrene. in the serum treatment for prevention or cure of such diseases as typhoid improvement of standards set for laborers in war industries. fever, lockjaw, pneumonia, meningitis, etc. These lessons will save far more lives in the long run than the war has cost.

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON. More than two million American soldiers crossed the Atlantic that they might help fight the battle of civilization and defeat the selfish ambitions of the people of the German nation. I crossed the ocean in a convoy which carried some thirty thousand of these men, and for nearly fourteen days it was my privilege to share with them gers of the German submarines. I saw these men crowded into the hold of quickly go to the rescue of that civilization for which we were fighting; I saw them as they were tossed about by the terrific seas driven by gales that reached a maximum of 100 miles an the depredations of Germany. hour; I saw them dle of exposure as the seas beat in upon them; I saw their bodies consigned to the waters of the broad Atlantic; in the convoy with which I crossed one of the ships went down in the storm, carrying with it nearly five hundred of these Amerian soldiers.

An Attack of Influenza Often Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of induenza which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of this disease are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition. Almost every victim complains of lame back and roubles which should not be neglect d, as these danger signals often lead to angerous kidney troubles. Swamp-Root which so many people soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. You can plant a poppy seed and get opium (a dangerous, habit-forming drug), or you can plant a rhubarb seed and get something that helps get something that helps constipation. No scientist, living or dead, can explain these mysteries of Nature. Behind the invisible life germ in each seed is hidden the deep secret that nobody understands. Everything growing out of the ground seems intended for some use in establishing natural conditions. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., long since found out what is naturally best women's diseases. He learned it all through treating thousands of cases. The result of his studies was a medicine called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is made of vegetable growths that nature surely intended for backache, headache, weakening drains, bearing-down pains, periodical irregularities, pelvic inflammations, and for the many disorders common to women in all ages of life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's ard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's safe woman's tonic so good that druggists everywhere sell it. Favorite Prescription should have the full confidence of every woman in America because it contains no alcohol and no narcotic. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whisky and morphine are injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. The Light in the Clearing A TALE of the NORTH COUNTRY in the TIME of SILAS WRIGHT

By IRVING BACHELLER Author of Eben Holden, D'rl and I, Darrel of the Blessed Isles, Keeping Up With Lizzie, Etc., Etc.

Copyright by Irving Bacheller

PREFACE

The Light in the Clearing shone upon many things and mostly upon those which, above all others, have impassioned and perpetuated the Spirit of America and which, just now, seem to me to be worthy of attention. I believe that spirit to be the very candle of the Lord which, the believe that a spirit to be the very candle of the Lord which, to be the very candle of the Lord which, in this dark and windy night of time, has flickered so that the souls of the faithful have been afraid. But let us be of good cheer. It is shining brighter as I write and, under God, I believe it shall, by and by, be seen and loved of all men.

One self-contained, Homeric figure, of the remote country-side in which I was born, had the true Spirit of Democracy and shed its light abroad in the senate of the United States and the capitol at Albany. He carried the Candle of the Lord. It led him to a height of self-forgetfulness achieved by only two others—Washington and Lincoln. Yet I have been surprised by the profound and general ignorance of this generation regarding the career of Silas Wright.

career of Silas Wright.

The distinguished senator who served at his side for many years, Thomas H. Benton of Missouri, has this to say of Silas Wright in his Thirty Years' View: "He refused cabinet appointments under his fast friend Van Buren and to have der his fast friend Van Buren and under Polk, whom he may be said to have elected. He refused a seat on the bench of the Supreme court of the United States; he rejected instantly the nomina-tion in 1844 for vice president; he refused to be put in nomination for the presi-dency. He spent that time in declining office which others did in winning it. The great and above office and unwillingly de-scended to it."

There were those who accused Mr. Wright of being a spoilsman, the only warrant for which claim would seem to be his remark in a letter: "When our enemies accuse us of feeding our friends instead of them never let them lie in tellwhile he looked at me and exclaimed: "The appears to me there's an awrul draft blowin' down your throat," said the bed with tremendous vigor. American Review, the United States Magazine and Democratic Review, the New York Mirror, the Knickerbocker, the St. Lawrence Republican, Benton's Thirty Years' View, Bancroft's Life of Martin Van Buren, histories of Wright and his time by Hammond and Jenkins, and to many manuscript letters of the distinguished commoner in the New York public library and in the possession of Mr. Samuel Wright of Weybridge, Vermont.

To any who may think that they discover portraits in these pages I desire to say that all the characters—save only Silas Wright and President Van Buren and Barton Baynes—are purely imagin-

Silas Wright and President Van Buren and Barton Baynes—are purely imaginary. However, there were Grimshaws and Purvises and Binkses and Aunt Deels and Uncle Peabodys in almost every rustic neighborhood those days, and I regret to add that Roving Kate was on many roads. The case of Amos Grimshaw bears a striking resemblance to that of young Bickford, executed long ago in Malone, for the particulars of which case I am indebted to my friend, Mr. H. L. CHAPTER I.

The Melon Harvest.

Once upon a time I owned a watermelon. I say once because I never did it again. When I got through owning that melon I never wanted another. The time was 1831; I was a boy of seven and the melon was the first of all my harvests.

I didn't know much about myself those days except the fact that my name was Bart Baynes and, further, that I was an orphan who owned a watermelon and a little spotted hen and lived on Rattleroad in a neighborhood called Lickitysplit. I lived with my Aunt Deel and my Uncle Peabody Baynes on a farm. They were brother and sister-he about thirty-eight and she a little beyond the far-distant goal

> It was hard work, I thought, to go down into the garden, night and morning, with my little pail full of water, but uncle said that I should get my pay when the melon was ripe. I had also to keep the wood-box full and feed the chickens. They were odlous tasks. When I asked Aunt Deel what I should get for doing them she answered quickly:

"Nospanks and bread and butter-

When I asked what were "nospanks" she told me that they were part of the wages of a good child. I was better paid for my care of the water melon vine, for its growth was measured with a string every day and kept me interested. One morning I found five blossoms on it. I picked one and carried it to Aunt Deel. Another I destroyed in the tragedy of catching a bumblebee which had crawled into its cup. In due time three small melons appeared. When they were as big as a baseball I picked two of them. One I tasted and threw away as I ran to the pump for relief. The other I hurled at a dog on my way to

So that last melon on the vine had my undivided affection. It grew in size and reputation, and soon I learned that a reputation is about the worst thing that a watermelon can acquire while it is on the vine. I invited everybody that came to the house to go and see my watermelon. They looked it over and said pleasant things about it. The war having been brought to a favorable conclusion more attention can now be given to the agricultural and industrial development of Western Canada, which were checked by the troublous times of the past four years. Now that these are over, the proper development of the country will be continued.

True, much agricultural progress has been made during this time. Crop production has been greatly increased, the number of live stock has steadily grown, and with each succeeding year the dairying and wool industries have become more important. But despite this forward march, many phases of development have been held in check. The activities of farmers, too, have whispered. "And. When Your Soldier Boy comes back the farm will look different to him. He has traveled about, seen labor-saving machinery do the back-breaking work and cleanliness is second nature to him. Army sanitation is equalled on few farms.

The best way to satisfy the boy when he returns is to make improvements that you would want if the farm were one you thought of buying. A new stable, a hog house, a silo, all of these will help and those are improvements needed to make crops bigger and to prevent waste.

PUT YOURSELF IN HIS PLACE. Look over your improvements and then let's talk about plans and the cost of rebuilding.
