Water in Fox and Pistakee lakes is the lowest it has been in many years. A movement is now on foot to dam the Fox river about five miles below Pistakee.

The new Aurora-DeKalb interurban railway is now in operation between Aurora and Cortland, cars departing every two hours from each end of the road.

Emma B. Markley of DeKalb will get the insurance carried by E. W. Hurl, formerly of Belvidere, who was killed in the railroad yards at DeKalb a couple of weeks ago. She was his affianced wife and they were to have been married this fall.

F. W. Morgan of Beloit, of the firm of Morgan & Wright, tire manufacturers, recently paid $3,000 for a thoroughbred hog "Lord Bacon," a Berkshire, and it is said to be a new world's record price, and is $500 more than was recently received by A. J. Lovejoy of Rbscoe for his famous "Masterpiece."

Elgin, Beloit, Belvidere and Janesville are expected to send delegations and the daily meetings are expected to be full of live interest.

Christian Kaeckele, a laborer employed in Hampshire, was arrested Friday night on warrants sworn out by his wife charging him with assault and battery and with threatening to take her life. Mrs. Kaeckele appeared before Justice Becker at Elgin and contended that her husband beat her about the head with his fists, inflicting severe bruises. Kaeckele pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and was placed under $300 bonds to keep the peace for a year.

Genoa White Sox Win

In a five inning game of base ball Saturday the Genoa White Sox defeated Sycamore by the score of four to two. In the first half of the sixth inning Sycamore had two runs with two men out when the game was called on account of the rain. In cases of this kind the game reverts back to even innings, thus giving Genoa the decision.

It was a good exhibition and Claude Senska was pitching a good variety of twisters until the ball became too wet to handle. The work in the field was excellent.

Don't forget the sale at F. W. Olmsted's.

MR. CASTLE'S POSITION

A Synopsis of the Bills in the Interest of Labor

Mr. Castle's position in regard to labor is shown by his support of the following bills which are purely in the interest of the laboring people.

Senate Bill No. 465, known as "Inspection of Safety Appliances on Railroads," was passed by the House May 5th, and Senate Bill No. 466, known as "Safety Appliances on Railroads," requiring all railroads to equip their engines and cars with automatic couplers, grab irons and hand holds, and power train brakes controlled and operated by the engineers on the locomotives, passed the House May 5th. Mr. Castle voted for both these bills and they are now laws on the statute books.

House Bill No. 626, a bill providing that railroad trainmen should not work to exceed sixteen hours at one time, and requiring the railroads to give their men at least eight hours rest, passed the House May 2nd, 1905, and such a law if properly enforced, would have averted a disaster like the one that happened in Colorado only a few weeks ago when the poor operator had been worked thirty-six hours without rest and failed to deliver his train order.

House Bill No. 635, known as "The Full Crew Bill," compelling railroads to place a full crew on every train, passed the House May 1st. Mr. Castle voted for both these bills in the railroad committee, of which he was a member, and also on the floor of the House.

The four bills last mentioned were the only bills applying strictly and only to railroad and transportation companies that were voted upon by the House.

House Bill No. 90 prevents boys under sixteen years of age and prevents all women and girls from working at manual labor in or about coal mines, passed. (See House Journal, page 1050.) Mr. Castle voted for this bill.

House Bill No. 143. A mine examiner shall be required at all mines. His duty shall be to visit the mine before the men are permitted in it, also see that the air current is traveling in its proper course, and shall see that the mine is safe to work in in all particulars. Passed. (See House Journal, page 1055.) Mr. Castle voted for it.

House Bill No. 144 makes it unlawful to employ other than certified mine examiners. Passed. (See House Journal, page 1055.) Mr. Castle voted for it.

House Bill No. 110 changes the number of state mine inspection districts from seven to ten and changes the number of state inspectors from seven to ten, Passed. (See House Journal, page 658.) Mr. Castle voted against it because it made three more state jobs for the tax payer to pay for, and we had already passed a bill compelling every mine to have a state mine examiner.

And I might say right here that I have endeavored in the past to be for all measures that were constitutional and had for their aim the benefitting and uplifting of the working man and woman, and I have tried to honestly represent you and your interests, as well as the farming and manufacturing interests.

JOHN B. CASTLE,

Republican candidate for representative.

PRIMARY POINTERS

SOME THINGS THAT EVERY VOTER SHOULD KNOW

MUST DECLARE AFFILIATION

And tell the Judge of Election Whether You are Republican, Democrat, Prohibitionist or Socialist

There are many voters, perhaps the great majority, who are as yet unfamiliar with the provisions of the new primary law, and to save them and the judges of election much embarrassment next Saturday we publish below a few important sections.

MUST BE REGISTERED

Section 33. No person shall vote at any primary election unless he shall be a legally qualified voter, and unless he has resided in the election precinct or election district at least thirty (30) days prior to the date of the primary election, and unless he declares his party affiliation, as required by this act, and in all cases where registration is required, as a condition precedent to voting at regular elections, only registered voters shall be permitted to vote at such primary election.

PARTY AFFILIATION

Section 34. Any person desiring to vote at a primary election shall state his name, residence and party affiliation to the primary judges, one of whom shall thereupon announce the same in a distinct tone of voice, sufficiently loud to be heard by those present in the polling place. If the person desiring to vote is not challenged, one of the primary judges shall give to him one, and only one, official primary ballot of the political party with which he declares himself affiliated, on the back of which such primary judge shall endorse his initials in such manner as they may be seen when the official primary ballot is properly folded. If the person desiring to vote is challenged, he shall not receive an official primary ballot from the primary judges until he shall have established his right to vote, as herein provided. No person who refuses to state his party affiliations shall be allowed to vote at a primary election.

Section 35. Whenever a person offering to vote at a primary election is challenged, the person so challenged shall make and subscribe an affidavit in the following form, which shall be presented to and retained by the primary judges and clerks, and returned by them with the registry poll books:

State of Illinois, } ss.
County of _____

I, _____, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a citizen of the United States, of the age of twenty-one years or over, and am qualified to vote under and by virtue of the constitution and laws of the state of Illinois, and am a legally qualified voter of this precinct and delegate district; that I now reside at _____ (insert street and number if any) in this precinct and delegate district, and am a member of and affiliated with the _____ party, and have not voted at a primary election of another political party within a period of one year prior to this date,

In addition to such affidavit the person so challenged shall produce the affidavit of one householder of the election precinct or election district who shall be a qualified voter at such primary election, and who shall be personally known and proved to the judges to be a householder in the election precinct or election district, which affidavit shall be in the following form:

State of Illinois, } ss.
County of _____

I, _____, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a householder of this election precinct or election district and entitled to vote at this primary election, that I am acquainted with _____ (name of the party challenged) whose right to vote at this primary election has been challenged; that I know him to be an actual bona fide resident of this election precinct or election district, and that he has resided herein thirty days and I verily believe he has resided in this county ninety days; and in this State one year next preceding this primary election; that I verily believe he is a member and affiliated with the _____ party.

HOW TO MARK BALLOT

Section 36. On receiving from the judges an official primary ballot of his party, and having a delegate ballot of his party, the voter shall forthwith and without leaving the polling place, retire alone to one of the voting booths and prepare such official primary ballot by making a cross (X) in the square in front of and opposite the name of each candidate of his choice for each office to be filled.

Section 37. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his official primary ballot in such manner as to conceal the marks thereon. He shall also, before leaving the booth, fold the delegate ballot to be voted by him in such manner that none of the printed or written matter on the inside thereof shall be visible. Said voter shall then vote forthwith by handing the official primary ballot received by such voter and by delivering to the primary judge one, and only one, delegate ballot of the party with which he declares himself affiliated.

OFFENSES AND PENALTIES

In a practical way the general election laws apply as to offenses, and under its provisions saloons are required to close during the hours when the primaries are being held. Penalties are prescribed for false swearing, for voting more than once, for aiding an illegal voter, for deceiving a voter as to ballot, for preventing voter from voting, for bribing judges and clerks, for asking or accepting a bribe, for voting by one who is disfranchised, for disorderly conduct, for betting on result of election, etc.

DUVAL LANDS ONE

Romeo Eschbaugh Gets Too Much Tangle-foot on Board

Landlord Duval had a boarder for a few hours Tuesday, and only succeeded in landing him after considerable persuasion and a hot chase.

Romeo Eschbaugh came to town too early Tuesday morning and as time hung heavily on his hands, for diversion he tucked several fingers of tanglefoot under his vest. When Romeo had taken enough to give him courage he jumped into his carriage and did some reckless driving about the city. This the police objected to and to prevent accidents advised the man and his intoxicated horse to hike for the sweet clover patches. Romeo failed to catch the accent in Duval's voice and as a consequence he was later tucked away in one of the village bunks.

DAN HOHM, CANDIDATE FOR SHERIFF

We present herewith to the readers of the Republican-Journal Daniel Hohm, candidate for sheriff at the Republican primary on Saturday of this week, August 4.

Mr. Hohm comes from the town of Squaw Grove and has the solid backing of southern DeKalb county.

He is peculiarly fitted to perform the duties of the important office he seeks by reason of his temperament, sturdy honesty and unquestionable integrity.

He has been loyal to every trust imposed in him and asks the support of the Republican voters of Genoa township.

Mark a cross in the square opposite the name of Daniel Hohm.

SHAFFER FEELS CONFIDENT

Has Made a Thoro Canvas of the County During Last Week

L. C. Shaffer, the Kingston candidate for county treasurer feels confident that the people will support him at the primaries next Saturday. He has canvassed the county from end to end and has met with encouragement in business houses, factories and on the farms. Mr. Shaffer has conducted a clean campaign and if wins out will do so with a clean conscience.

As to Mr. Shaffer's ability to fill the office there is not the shadow of a doubt and no person can say a word against his character as a man and citizen. And last, but not least, Kingston is entitled to recognition from the county. Its been thirty years or more since that town has had a representative in county offices.

HAMMOND SECURES CONTRACT

Basement for new School Building Excavated this Week

The contract for the erection of the new primary school building was awarded to Jas. Hammond last week, the price stipulated in the agreement being $3131.00. Wm. Heed did the excavating this week. The cement blocks are being manufactured on the grounds by Crawford & Ide.

The building is located directly west of the old structure, facing First street.

Owing to the fact that the specifications call for well seasoned cement blocks, the building can not be finished until some time after school opens.

Butter Goes Up

The price of butter soared to 21.5 cents on the board of trade. Drought and the consequent lack of good grazing land has resulted in a decrease in the supply of milk, which has affected the output and price of milk products.

DEKALB WALLOPED

Defeated at Electric Park Wednesday—Score 15 to 8

The DeKalb base ball team was walloped shamefully at Electric Park Wednesday by a bunch of cripples from Genoa. The carnage was awful and when the smoke, caused by bats swatting the ball, had cleared away the score board loomed up like this: Genoa 15, DeKalb 8.

Genoa gathered in a total of eighteen hits, many of them being two-baggers, while every one on the team, cripples included, played the game from start to finish. Vernie Crawford put up an excellent game behind the bat, despite his broken finger, while Korabaugh did not seem to mind his split thumb as he pulled them down in center field. Batting averages were improved all the way down the list while only two little errors were made. Miller secured four hits in six times at bat. He also demonstrated his ability as a pitcher in the last six innings, during which time only three hits were made off his delivery.

DeKalb papers please copy.

Morris for Sheriff

Jos. D. Morris of Kirkland has many friends about the county who are booming him for sheriff. He has been coroner for years and has an extensive acquaintance. He is popular, efficient and energetic, and does his official work himself and well. His friends say that is the kind of an official DeKalb county wants. Remember him on caucus day.

Birthday Party

Mrs. Judith Sowers entertained at her home last Thursday in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Emma Lefevre of Zearing, Iowa, whose birthday anniversary occurred on that day. The guests left as a memorial of the event a beautiful souvenir spoon.

HALF DAY OF REST

BUSINESS MEN SIGN AGREEMENT TO CLOSE DOORS

WILL GO TO WOODS AND PLAY

If the Trial Days Prove Successful the Custom will be Continued all Summer

The following agreement has been signed by nearly all the business men of Genoa and speaks for itself:

We, the undersigned business men of Genoa, Ill., agree to close our business places on August 9 and 23, 1906, from 12 o'clock noon to 6 o'clock p. m.

This is for the purpose of the business men and their families getting acquainted and having a picnic or other amusement as they may determine.

E. H. Browne, F. W. Olmsted, F. O. Swan, Brown & Brown, F. W. Duval, F. E. Wells, John Lemke, T. M. Frazier, F. W. Olmsted & Co., Perkins & Rosenfeld, A. E. Pickett, F. O. Holtgren, Hunt's Pharmacy, Thos. G. Sager, Farmers State Bank, Witt & Shork, Aug. Teyler, Mrs. E. W. Bagley, Slater & Douglass, E. A. Sowers & Co., Johnson & Marquart, S. S. Slater, Anette Oberg, C. F. Deardurff, E. F. Dusenberre, Jos. Kessel, Thorworth & Co., M. F. O'Brien, J. H. McGough.

This scheme is meeting with great favor in many small cities and villages thruout the country. A half day twice in one month is not much, but it means much to the business man and his clerks who are continually tied down for long hours every day in the week. People should assist in making this half holiday a success by making their purchases in the morning.

It is proposed to have a basket picnic in some grove where the business men and their families may become better acquainted and at the same time throw dull care to the winds. Everyone will be welcome to take part in these half-day outings whether in business or not.

The events will take the form of a good old-fashioned basket picnic. Pack your basket next Thursday morning and hike to the woods.

HUNTERS, BE CAREFUL!

It is Unlawful to hunt on the Enclosed Grounds of Others

There are many farmers in this vicinity who for good reasons object to having hunters shoot squirrels on their property and for the benefit of those who like to use the rifle we give below a synopsis of the law governing this case.

It is unlawful for any person to hunt with gun, dog or net within the enclosed grounds of others without first obtaining consent of the owner, occupant or agent. Any person convicted of violating the act shall be fined in a sum of not less than $3.00 and not exceeding $100.00. In all such prosecutions the fact being established that the defendant was within the enclosed grounds with gun, dog or net, without permission from the owner, occupant or agent, shall be taken as prima facie evidence of guilt.

ZION PROPERTIES GIVEN TO RECEIVER

JUDGE LANDIS NAMES REPRESENTATIVE TO OVERSEE INDUSTRIAL AFFAIRS.

Declares Voliva Had No Right to Transfer Property Under Power of Attorney, Since Dowie Simply Held It in Trust for the People.

Chicago, July 28.—John C. Hatley, not John Alexander Dowie or Wilbur Glenn Voliva, is to control the Zion City properties, Judge Landis Friday named Mr. Hatley receiver of the Zion industries. He is to oversee the business end of Zion for an indefinite period. The court ordered an election the third Tuesday in September to select a general overseer to control the religious activities of Zion.

Given in Trust to Dowie. Thus ended the great controversy over Zion. Moneys and lands given to John Alexander Dowie were given in trust. That was the essence of the decision. The judge declared the conveyance of property by Wilbur Glenn Voliva under power of attorney to be void. He quoted from writings of Dowie to show that the latter had always regarded the property as a trust and in ending declared that adequate compensation would be provided for Dowie by the court at some later time.

The court held that the transfer of Zion City by Voliva and his power of attorney from Dowie to Granger was not worth the paper it was written upon. Millions involved in decision. Judge Landis' sweeping decision sets at rest the controversy growing out of the action of Overseer Voliva in transferring the properties of Zion from John Alexander Dowie to Granger. Millions are involved, and all Zion, throughout the world, has breathlessly awaited the decision.

Judge Landis has had the decision under consideration for upward of a fortnight, after hearing evidence extending over a period of many weeks, during which testimony of remarkable character was heard.

The decision was received with mingled groans and evidences of joy. REGULATIONS FOR INSPECTION Meat Examination in Germany to Be More Rigid in Future.

CAN HE PREVENT THE EXPLOSION?

RIGID INSPECTION OF MEAT PLANTS

REGULATIONS ISSUED BY SECRETARY WILSON ARE MOST STRINGENT.

Packing Houses Must Be Clean in Every Particular and Animals to Be Slaughtered Perfectly Healthy in Order to Be Entitled to Labels.

Washington, July 28.—Secretary Wilson Friday made public the regulations under the new law governing the inspection of meat products for interstate and foreign trade. They do not, however, cover the subject of interstate transportation of meat or the microscopic inspection of pork for export. Regulations on these subjects, it was stated, will be issued later.

The general regulations provide that the scope of the inspection shall cover all slaughtering, packing, meat-canning, salting, rendering or similar establishments whose meats or meat food products, in whole or in part, enter into interstate or foreign commerce, unless exempted from inspection by the secretary of agriculture. Under the law the only establishments which may be exempted by the secretary are retail butchers and retail dealers supplying their customers in interstate or foreign trade, but even these exempted classes are required to submit to the secretary an application for exemption. All animals, carcasses and meat food products will be subjected to a rigid inspection. Reinspection will be had wherever necessary.

Lighting and Ventilation. Sanitation regulations require the establishments in which animals are slaughtered or meat and meat food products are prepared, packed, stored or handled to be suitably lighted and ventilated, and to be maintained in a sanitary condition.

All portions of the buildings must be whitewashed or painted, or where this is impracticable, they must be washed, scraped or otherwise rendered sanitary.

All trucks, trays, chutes, platforms, racks, tables, knives, saws, cleavers and all utensils and machinery used in handling meats must be cleaned daily.

Clothing of Employees. Employees must wear outer clothing of a material that is easily cleaned and made sanitary. All toilet rooms, urinals and dressing rooms are required to be entirely separate from apartments in which carcasses are dressed or meats and meat food products are prepared. Managers of establishments will not be permitted to employ any person affected with tuberculosis in any of the departments where carcasses are dressed, meats handled or meat food products prepared.

Butchers who dress diseased carcasses are required to cleanse and disinfect their hands and implements before touching healthy carcasses.

Reports on Sanitation. Weekly reports on sanitation are to be made by the employees in charge of various departments to the inspector in charge of the station, who in turn must report weekly to the chief of the bureau of animal industry at Washington. But if any unsanitary conditions are detected by any department employee, such conditions must be reported immediately to the inspector in charge, who will report to Washington.

The provision relating to dyes, chemicals and preservatives is stringent.

Death of Ohio Newspaper Man. Dayton, O., July 31.—H. H. Weakley, publisher of the Evening Herald and one of the well known newspaper men of the state, died Monday at his home here. He was 69 years old.

COREYS SEPARATED BY NEVADA COURTS

WIFE IS GRANTED DECREE OF DIVORCE FROM WEALTHY STEEL KING.

Sets up Claim of Desertion and Says Husband Declared He Had Decided to Live Apart as They Could Not Be Happy Together.

Reno, Nev., July 31.—Mrs. William Ellis Corey, wife of the president of the United States Steel corporation, was awarded a divorce in the Second district court of Nevada, sitting at Reno Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Corey was in tears when told that she had been given a decree and the custody of her 16-year-old son, Allan Corey. She drove at once to her home on Riverside avenue, where she says she will continue to reside. No evidence was submitted by the defense and there was no argument.

The question of alimony was not introduced. Mrs. Corey made an interesting admission, however, touching upon this phase of the case, stating that in May, 1906, several weeks before her petition for divorce was filed, she negotiated through her attorneys a financial settlement with her husband.

Tells of Separation. "I am a resident of Reno, Nevada," said Mrs. Corey, when placed on the stand, "and the wife of William Ellis Corey, the defendant in this action. We were married on December 1, 1883, at Pittsburg, Pa., and lived together until May 1, 1905. At that time my husband deserted me and went to New York. I followed him and held a conversation with him in the Hotel Lorraine. It was there that he told me that he had decided to live apart. He said that it was impossible for us to live happily together and that I would never see him again.

"He stated that he intended going to Europe for several months. There was no scene. I talked with him about the matter and urged him to again resume his place in our home, but he refused. I have never seen him since."

Sister Opposed Brother. Miss Addie Corey, sister of the respondent, was an interesting witness. She corroborated Mrs. Corey's statement that Corey had deserted his wife and told how she and her aged mother had made several ineffectual attempts to effect a reconciliation.

Her brother, she said, had lost sight of his home, being absorbed in business and infatuated with the fast life of New York.

"Do you consider Mr. Corey a proper custodian for his son?" she was asked.

"I do not for the reason that he is not a proper person for his son to associate with. He has no home and his associates are not fit companions for a young man of Allan's age. I do not think any wealthy New York man is fit to have charge of a boy of his age."

ROOSEVELT IS OUT OF THE RACE President Will Not Accept Republican Nomination for Third Term.

Peoria, Ill., July 31.—A positive announcement from President Roosevelt that he will not be a candidate for the third term was made Monday in a letter addressed to Mrs. L. A. Kinney, of Peoria, by Secretary William Loeb for President Roosevelt. The text of the letter follows:

"Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 26.—Dear Madam: Your letter of recent date has been received and I thank you in the president's behalf for calling attention to the enclosed clipping. I would say, however, that the president has nothing to add to the statement issued on the night of the election in 1904. His decision as announced at that time is irrevocable."

This expression from President Roosevelt was called forth by an editorial in the Peoria Herald-Transcript which was called to the attention of the president through Mrs. Kinney, wife of a prominent Peoria politician. The editorial was in the form of an appeal to the president to accept the third term.

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 31.—John D. Rockefeller and his party left for Cleveland Monday night. Mr. Rockefeller came down to the depot from Pocantico Hills alone and waited about the depot for some time. Then John D. Archbold came up from New York on a way train, and he and Mr. Rockefeller chatted until the latter's train was due.

A little before train time Mrs. Rockefeller, accompanied by her maid, arrived. Then Mr. Rockefeller's valet and two servants drove up with the baggage, and all went on board.

Mr. Archbold said that Mr. Rockefeller would not be arrested or bothered when he reached Cleveland.

FOUR YEARS OF AGONY.

Whole Foot Nothing But Proud Flesh—Had to Use Crutches—"Cuticura Remedies the Best on Earth."

"In the year 1899 the side of my right foot was cut off from the little toe down to the heel, and the physician who had charge of me was trying to sew up the side of my foot, but with no success. At last my whole foot and way up above my calf was nothing but proud flesh. I suffered untold agonies for four years, and tried different physicians and all kinds of ointments. I could walk only with crutches. In two weeks afterwards I saw a change in my limb. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment often during the day, and kept it up for seven months, when my limb was healed up just the same as if I never had trouble. It is eight months now since I stopped using Cuticura Remedies, the best on God's earth. I am working at the present day after five years of suffering. The cost of Cuticura Ointment and Soap was only $6, but the doctors' bills were more like $600. John M. Lloyd, 718 S. Arch Ave., Alliance, Ohio, June 27, 1905."

ABOUT WOMEN. Freshness is not to be despised in women, vegetables or flowers. A woman of gushing proclivities is apt to consider herself irresistible. The woman who nags her husband deservedly sits down to a lonely meal. Wise is the woman who does not expect a man's devotion at election time.

The woman who constantly quotes her husband seldom realizes what an intolerable bore she is to others.

A woman with a musical voice may babble of coal dust and sauer kraut, and still compel you to think of lute strings.—Exchange.

Harriman Lines to Become Floral Routes. Executive officers of the Union Pacific road in Chicago are planning to build several large greenhouses along the main lines of this company in Nebraska, Wyoming, Utah and other districts, with the object of having at every table in every dining car over the entire system a bouquet of freshly cut flowers at every meal. In addition to table and other decorations it is planned to grow flowers on a scale sufficiently large to allow a free distribution of roses to women and carnations, or other seasonable flower, not only in dining cars but to passengers in every car of every train, and in winter as well as in summer, the idea being to make patrons feel that the flowers are a part of the trip over this road and not precious little souvenirs. The greenhouses will probably be located at Grand Island, Neb., Cheyenne, Wyo., Denver, Col., and Ogden, Utah. In California and in the territory of the Sunset route in the south of the company has no trouble in getting outdoor flowers all year. But even in these districts the scheme of flowers for passengers and car decorations is to be enlarged upon. Dining rooms along all lines are to be supplied freely with plants and blooms. The California and southern resources with the greenhouses to be built along the central route will put the Union, Southern Pacific and Oregon Short Lines in a position where they may become known as the floral lines, an appellation officers of the Harriman lines hope to merit.

Destroys Odor of Gases. M. Deletrain, of Geneva, has combined certain materials, put together in the form of a small solid cone, which, when dissolved in petrol of benzine, destroy the odors of burned gases, and leave an agreeable perfume behind.

The Erie Railroad has just placed orders for 1,600 new freight cars. From the Standard Steel Car Company, to be built at the Butler, Pa., shops, have been ordered 500 drop end steel-underframe gondola cars of 100,000-pound capacity, weighing 42,600 pounds each, and 45 feet in length. These are for delivery in January, 1907. For delivery in December next, the Erie has also ordered 500 flat cars, to be built by the same company. These will be 40 feet in length, with steel underframes and a capacity of 100,000 pounds.

At the American Car & Foundry Company's works at Chicago there are building 500 produce cars for delivery in November and December next. These are also steel underframe cars, 36 feet in length, and of 80,000 pounds capacity. At the same company's Detroit works are building for the Erie 100 Hart convertible cars for delivery next January. These are to be of 100,000 pounds capacity, and will weigh 43,000 pounds each. They will be 41 feet 6 inches in length, with wood bodies and steel underframes.

Five new electric cars for the Rochester division have been ordered from the St. Louis Car company for the line to Mt. Morris now being electrically equipped. Four of these are passenger cars and the fifth a combination passenger and baggage car. Each will be equipped with four 75-horsepower Westinghouse motors.

Boys will be boys, especially the gay old ones who have passed 60.

"I don't believe it," I said bluntly—but I felt the check, and fell to earth. "The man cannot speak."

"No, but he has managed to tell us that he will guide us to the place we want," the captain answered dryly. "The whip, if it cannot find a man a tongue, can find him wits. What is more, I think, he will keep his word," he continued, with a hideous smile. "For I warn him that if he does not, all your heroics shall not save him! He is a rebel dog, and known to us of old, and I will flay his back to the bones—ay, until we can see his heart beating through his ribs—but I will have what I want—in your teeth, too, you d—d meddler."

"Steady, steady!" I said, somewhat sobered. I saw that he was telling me the truth. "He is going to take you to M. de Cochefort's hiding place, is he?"

"Yes, he is!" the captain retorted offensively. "Have you any objection to make to that, Master Spy?" "None," I replied. "But I shall go with you. And if you live three months, I shall kill you for that name—behind the barracks at Auch, M. le Capitaine."

He changed color, but he answered me boldly enough. "I don't know that you will go with us. That is as we please," he continued, with a snarl. "I have the cardinal's orders," I said sternly.

"The cardinal?" he exclaimed, stung to fury by this repetition of the name. "The cardinal be—"

But the lieutenant lay his hands on his lips and stopped him. "Hush!" he said. Then more quietly, "Your pardon, M. le Capitaine. Shall I give orders to the men to fall in?"

The captain nodded sullenly. "Take him down!" the lieutenant ordered in his harsh monotonous voice. "Throw his blouses over him and tie his hands. And do you two, Paul and Lebrun, guard him. Michel, bring the whip, or he may forget how it tastes. Sergeant, choose four good men and dismiss the rest to their quarters."

"Shall we need the horses?" the sergeant asked. "I don't know," the captain answered peevishly. "What does the rogue say?"

The lieutenant stepped up to him. "Listen!" he said grimly. "Nod if you mean yes and shake your head if you mean no. And have a care you answer truly. Is it more than a mile to this place? The place you know of?"

They had loosened the poor wretch's fastenings and covered his back. He stood leaning against the wall, his mouth still panting, the sweat running down his hollow cheeks; his sunken eyes were closed; a quiver now and again ran through his frame. The lieutenant repeated his question, and, getting no answer, looked round for orders. The captain met the look, and crying savagely, "Answer, will you, you mute!" struck the half swooning miserer across the back with his switch. The effect was magical. Covered, as his shoulders were, the man sprang erect with a shriek of pain, raising his chin and hollowing his back; and, in that attitude stood an instant with staring eyes, gasping for breath. Then he sank back against the wall, moving his mouth spasmodically. His face was the color of lead.

"Diab! I think we have gone too far with him!" the captain muttered. "Bring some wine!" the lieutenant replied. "Quick with it!"

I looked on, burning with indignation, and wondering besides what would come of this. If the man took them to the place, and they succeeded in seizing Cochefort, there was an end of the matter as far as I was concerned. It was off my shoulders, and I might leave the village when I pleased; nor was it likely—since he would have his man, though not through me—that the cardinal would refuse me an amnesty. On the whole, I thought that things should take that course; and, assuming the issue, I began to wonder whether in that event it would be necessary that madam should know the truth. I had a kind of a vision of a reformed Berauld, dead to play and purging himself at a distance from Zaton's, winning, perhaps, a name in the Italian war, and finally—but, pshaw! I was a fool.

However, be that as it might, it was essential that I should see the arrest made; and I waited patiently while they revived the tortured man, and made their dispositions. These took some time; so that the sun was down, and it was growing dusk, when we marched out, Clon going first, supported by his two guards, the captain and I following—abreast, and eyeing one another suspiciously—the lieutenant, with the sergeant and five troopers, bringing up the rear. Clon moved slowly, moaning from time to time, and but for the aid given him by the two men with him, must have sunk down again and again.

He went out between two houses close to the inn, and struck a narrow track, scarcely discernible, which ran behind other houses, and then plunged into the thickest part of the wood. A simple person, traversing the covert, might have made such a track; or pigs, or children. But it was the first idea that occurred to us, and it put us all on the alert. The captain carried a cocked pistol, I held my sword drawn, and kept a watchful eye on him; and the deeper the dusk fell in the wood, the more cautiously we went, until at last we came out with a sort of a jump into a wider and lighter path.

I looked up and down it, and saw before me a wooden bridge, and an open meadow, lying cold and gray in the twilight; and I stood in astonishment. It was the old path to the chateau! I shivered at the thought that he was going to take us there, to the house—to mademoiselle!

The captain also recognized the place, and swore aloud. But the dumb man went on unheeding, until he reached the wooden bridge. There he paused as if in doubt, and looked towards the dark outline of the building, which was just visible, one faint light twinkling slyly in the west wing. As the captain and I pressed up behind him he raised his hands and seemed to wring them towards the house.

"Have a care!" the captain growled. "Play me no tricks, or— But he did not finish the sentence; for Clon turned back from the bridge, and, entering the wood on the left hand, began to ascend the bank of the stream. We had not gone a hundred yards before the ground grew rough and the undergrowth thick; and yet through all ran a kind of path which enabled us to advance, dark as it was growing. Very soon the bank on which we moved began to rise above the water, and grew steep and rugged.

We turned a shoulder, where the stream swept round a curve, and saw we were in the mouth of a small ravine, dark and steep-walled. The water brawled along the bottom, over boulders and through chasms. In front, the slope on which we stood shaped itself into a low cliff; but half-way between its summit and the water, a ledge, or narrow terrace, running along the face, was dimly visible.

"Ten to one, a cave!" the captain muttered. "It is a likely place." "And an ugly one!" I sneered. "Which one to ten might safely hold for hours!"

"If the ten had no pistols—yes!" he answered viciously. "But you see we have. Is he going that way?" He was. "Lieutenant," Larolle said, turning and speaking in a low voice, though the speaking of the stream below us covered ordinary sounds, "shall we light the lanterns, or press on while there is still a glimmering of day?"

"On, I should say, M. le Capitaine," the lieutenant answered. "Prick him in the back if he falters. I will warrant he has a tender place or two!" the brute added, with a chuckle.

The captain gave the word and we moved forward; it being very evident now that the cliff-path was our destination. It was possible for the eye to follow the track all the way to it through rough stones and brushwood; and though Clon climbed feebly and with many groans, two minutes saw us step on to it. It did not turn out to be the perilous place it looked at a distance. The ledge, grassy and terrace-like, sloped slightly downward and outward, and in parts was slippery; but it was as wide as a highway and 30 feet. Even in such a dim light as now displayed it to us and by increasing the depth and unseen dangers of the gorge, gave a kind of impressiveness to our movements, a nervous woman need not have feared to breast it. I wondered how often mademoiselle had passed along it with her milk-pitcher.

"I think we have him now!" Captain Larolle muttered, twisting his mustaches and looking round to make his last dispositions. "Paul and Lebrun, see that your man makes no noise. Sergeant, come forward with your carbine, but do not fire without orders. Now, silence, all, and close up, Lieutenant. Forward!"

We advanced about a hundred paces, keeping the cliff on our left, then turned a shoulder and saw a few paces in front of us a black blotch standing out from the grey duskiness of the cliffside. The prisoner stopped and raising his bound hand pointed to it.

"There!" the captain whispered, pressing forward. "Is that the place?" Clon nodded. The captain's voice shook with excitement. "You two remain here with him!" he muttered, in a low tone. "Sergeant, come forward with me. Now are you ready? Forward!"

He and the sergeant passed quickly, one on either side of Clon and his guards. The path was narrow here and the captain passed outside. The eyes of all but one were on the black blotch, the hollow in the cliff-side and no one saw exactly what happened. But somehow, as the captain passed abreast of him, the prisoner thrust back his guards and springing sideways, flung his unbound arm round Larolle's body, and in an instant swept him, shouting, to the verge of the precipice.

It was done in a moment. By the time the lieutenant's startled wits and eyes were back, the two were already tottering on the edge, looking in the gloom like one dark form. The sergeant, who was the first to find his head, levelled his carbine; but as the wretches twirled and twisted, the captain shrieking out oaths and threats, the mute silent as death, it was impossible to see which was which; and the sergeant lowered his gun again, while the men held back nervously. The ledge sloped steeply there, the edge was vague; already, the two seemed to be wrestling in mid-air—and the mute was a man beyond hope or fear.

That moment of hesitation was fatal. Clon's long arms were round the other's arms, crushing them into his ribs; Clon's skull-like face grinned hate into the other's eyes; his long limbs curled round him like the folds of a snake. Suddenly Larolle's strength gave way. "D—n you all! Why don't you—Merch! mercy!" came in a last scream from his lips; and then, as the lieutenant, taken aback before, sprang forward to his aid, the two toppled over the edge and in a second hurled out of sight.

"Mon Dieu!" the lieutenant cried, in horror. The answer was a dull splash in the depths below. "He flung up his arms. 'Water!' he said. 'Quick, men, get down! We may save him yet! They have fallen into water!'"

But there was no path and night was come and the men's nerves were shaken. The lanterns had to be lit and the way to be retraced; and by the time we reached the dark pool which lay below, the last bubbles were gone from the surface, the last ripples had beaten themselves out against the banks. True, the pool still rocked sullenly and the yellow light showed a man's hat floating and near it a glove three parts submerged. But that was all. The mute's dying grip had known no loosening, nor his hate any fear. Later, I heard that when they dragged the two out next day, his fingers were in the other's eyesockets, his teeth in his throat. If ever a man found death sweet, it was he.

As we turned slowly from the black water, some shuddering, some crossing themselves, the lieutenant looked vengefully at me. "Curse you!" he said, in sudden fury. "I believe you are glad!"

"He deserved his fate," I answered coldly. "Why should I pretend to be sorry? It was now or in three months. I am glad for the other poor devil's sake I am glad."

He glared at me a moment, idly speechless anger. At last, "I should like to have you tied up!" he said, between his teeth.

"I should have thought that you had had enough of tying up for one day!" I retorted. "But there; it comes of making officers out of the cannals. Dogs love blood. The teamster must still lash something if he can no longer lash his horses."

We were back, a sombre little procession, at the wooden bridge, when I said this. He stopped suddenly. "Very well," he replied, nodding viciously. "That decides me. Sergeant, light me this way with a lantern. The rest of you to the village. Now Master Spy," he continued, glancing at me with gloomy spite, "your road is my road. I think I know how to cook your goose."

I shrugged my shoulders in disdain, and together, the sergeant leading the way with the light, we crossed the meadow and passed through the gate where mademoiselle had kissed my hand and up the ghostly walk between the rosebushes. I wondered uneasily what the lieutenant would be at and what he intended; but the lantern light which now fell on the ground at our feet and now showed one of us to the other, high-lit in a frame of blackness, discovered nothing in his grizzled face but settled hostility. He wheeled at the end of the walk to go to the main door; but as he did so, I saw the flutter of a white skirt by the stone seat against the house and I stepped that way.

"Mademoiselle," I said softly, "is it you?" "Clon?" she muttered, her voice quivering. "What of him?" "He is past pain," I answered gently. "He is dead, but in his own way. Take comfort, mademoiselle." And then before I could say more, the lieutenant with his sergeant and light were by my elbow. He saluted mademoiselle roughly. She looked at him with shuddering abhorrence.

"Are you come to flog me, sir?" she said feebly. "Is it not enough that you have murdered my servant?" "On the contrary, it was he killed my captain," the lieutenant answered, in another tone than I had expected. "If your servant is dead, so is my comrade."

She looked with startled eyes, not at him, but at me. "What! Captain Larolle?" she muttered. "I nodded. "How?" she asked. "Clon flung the captain and himself into the river-pond," I explained in a low voice. "The pool above the bridge."

She uttered an exclamation of awe and stood silent. But her lips moved; I think she was praying for Clon though she was a Huguenot. Meanwhile I had a fright. The lantern, swinging in the sergeant's hand and now throwing its smoky light on the stone seat, not on the rough wall above it, showed me something else. On the seat, doubtless where mademoiselle's hand had lain, as she sat in the dark, listening and watching, stood a pitcher of food. Beside her, in that place, it was damning evidence. I trembled lest the lieutenant's eye should fall upon it, lest the sergeant should see it; I thought what I could do to hide it; and then in a moment I forgot all about it. The lieutenant was speaking and his voice was like doom. My throat grew dry as I listened. My tongue stuck to my mouth; I tried to look at mademoiselle, but I could not.

"It is true, the captain is gone," he said stiffly. "But others are alive and about one of them a word with you,—by your leave, mademoiselle. I have listened to a good deal of talk from this fine gentleman friend of yours. He has spent the last 24 hours saying, 'You shall!' and 'You shall not!' He came from you and took a very high tone because we laid a little whip-lash about that dumb devil of yours. He called us brutes and beasts and but for him I am not sure that my friend would not be alive. But when he said a few minutes ago that he was glad—glad of it, d—n him!—then I fixed it in my mind that I would be even with him. And I am going to be!"

"What do you mean, mademoiselle, asked, wearily interrupting him. "If you think you can prejudice me against that gentleman—"

"That is precisely what I do think! And I am going to do it. And a little more than that!"

"You will be only wasting your breath!" she answered proudly. "Wait! wait, Mademoiselle, until you have heard!" he said. "If ever a black-hearted scoundrel, a dastardly, sneaking spy, trod the earth, it is this fellow! This friend of yours! And I am going to expose him. Your own eyes and your own ears shall persuade you. Why, I would not eat, I would not drink, I would not sit down with him! I would not! I would rather be beholden to the meanest trooper in my squadron than to him! Ay, I would, so help me Heaven!" And the lieutenant, turning squarely on his heels, spat on the ground.

WOMEN AT THE BARRICADES.

Building Ramparts in Streets an Ancient Method of Fighting Authority.

The men and women who erected the barricades around which so much blood flowed during the recent riot in Lodz, Russia, were following time-tried precedents. For the street barricade is the first thing which an otherwise defenseless population puts up when it means to fight authority. History has been made at the barricades. Nearly 600 years ago Paris, the home, apparently, of this sort of fighting, barricaded its streets against the future Charles V, and two a quarter centuries later resorted to similar defense when 4,000 mercenaries were marched in by Henry III to overawe the "council of sixteen." The barricades were terribly successful then, for the soldiers would have been annihilated had not the court consented to negotiation in time to save the remnants of the 4,000.

During the three days revolution in Paris seventy-five years ago the populace showed that it had not forgotten. Men, women and children worked to build ramparts in the streets, tearing up the roads and pulling down buildings and trees for their materials. Louis Philippe fled when the first barricade of the revolutionaries was run up. There was a terrible fight to follow, in comparison with which that at Lodz was insignificant. Sixteen thousand people were killed and wounded and half as many taken prisoners. The damage done amounted to $6,000,000.

When Louis Napoleon seated himself he remembered barricades and their power and determined that he would have none of them. He made wide boulevards, which cannon could sweep with rapeshot, macadamized the roads and did all he could think of to make the barricading of the streets impossible. But the days of the commons showed that the old art was by no means gone nor the possibilities exhausted.

London also has its barricades. On the occasion of the funeral of Queen Caroline, in 1821, the crowd barricaded the route by which the body was to have been smuggled out of the capital.

The Duchess Mother's Discipline.

The Duchess of Albany never permitted her children to be spoiled, as the following story shows. The present Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha went to Sandroyd House School, Cobham, kept by the Rev. L. H. Wellesley-Wesley, a descendant of both the Iron Duke and the great preacher. It was a rule of the school that a boy who split link on the boards scrubbed it out. One day the little Duke of Albany was the culprit, and was told to go to the household and bring a pail and scrubbing brush. With an indignant look he reminded his tutor that he was "the queen's grandson." The protest brought a quiet repetition of the order, and the angry youngster was compelled to perform his task. The duchess expressed great appreciation on hearing the story.—London Tit-Bits.

His Modest Epitaph.

There are those who take the precaution to buy their own monuments and tombstones, and write their appropriate epitaphs. What special comfort they can get out of this is not clear; but that is their business. We recall for instance, a true story of a fellow who had been found guilty of a very cruel murder in one of the Connecticut towns, and was sentenced to die on the gallows. A few days before his execution his lawyer called at the cell and asked if there was anything the condemned would like him to have done in post-mortem arrangements. This man said that he would leave with a lawyer a sum sufficient for the purpose of a plain stone, to be erected at the head of his grave, and bearing the simple inscription: "Sacred to the memory of ——. Died ——— (name and date we omit). Of such is the kingdom of heaven."—Buffalo Commercial.

An Ordered.

An author who was his own publisher advertised one of his works as follows: "Send five shillings for my new book with autograph." Shortly afterwards he received this order from a country reader: "I enclose five shillings. If the autograph is one of those talking machines, send it on by train. I don't want the book."—Birmingham (Eng.) Post.

Alleged False Imprisonment.

Chicago.—A suit for $25,000 for alleged false imprisonment was filed in the superior court at Chicago against Peter F. Collier and Robert J. Collier, publishers of Collier's Weekly; H. A. Keppel, and J. A. Power, Chicago manager for the Colliers, by George H. Elton. Elton avers that he was wrongfully imprisoned on a warrant charging him with embezzlement. It is said that Elton worked for the company in Sumpter, S. C., and had also been in the company's employ here. Given Damages of $100.

Kilbourne.—Mrs. Sophia Munsch was given $100 damages against W. H. Hawks and his daughter, Mrs. Minnie Hall, in Justice Yardley's court, that sum being assessed as the amount of damage done by the cutting of a hedge on property which Mrs. Munsch had leased. Cracksmen Taken at Rockford.

Rockford.—After a running battle through the streets, two cracksmen who had looted the offices of the mayor, city clerk and water superintendent, were captured on the campus of Rockford college. Two others of the gang sprang into an automobile when detected and made their escape in a hall of bullets.

It is believed these are the burglars who have terrorized many of the smaller cities in the state for weeks, blowing open post office safes, and their possession of an automobile is thought to explain their almost miraculous disappearance in every case.

The two men captured were well dressed, and had nearly $1,000 in cash in their pockets when captured, besides many checks and drafts. They gave their names as Edward Williams and George Everett of Chicago.

Gifts to McKendree College.

Lebanon.—Dr. M. H. Chamberlin, president of McKendree college, announces that E. S. Clarke & Co., Philadelphia bankers, have pledged $25,000 endowment to McKendree college, providing the college raises $75,000. There is no time limit to the Philadelphia gift. Dr. D. K. Pearsons, the well-known Chicago college benefactor, has pledged $10,000 of this, and Dr. Chamberlin says he will begin a vigorous campaign to raise the remaining $65,000.

PECULIAR BERRY GROWN BY FARMER.

Brighton.—George Ebler, who lives three miles south of this place, has a curiosity on his farm in the way of a berry. From the best information that Mr. Ebler can obtain, he is inclined to believe that the berry is a cross between the strawberry and raspberry.

In appearance the berry is red and larger than a raspberry or blackberry, and also larger than the ordinary strawberry. The berry resembles the strawberry in shape and color, and also in the manner in which it parts from the stem. In the other characteristics, however, it resembles the raspberry. The taste is also more of the raspberry than of the strawberry.

The berry grows on a bush about 12 to 18 inches high. The stem has the briars of the raspberry, but the leaves more nearly resemble the strawberry. The bush first produces a blossom of lavender color. The bush resembles a small raspberry bush or other similar shrubs. In the matter of growth, however, the bush spreads not unlike a sweet potato.

shooting affray at Edwards station.

Peoria.—The dead man is Edward Church of St. David's, and James Donegan of Elmwood is dying at a hospital in this city. Lige Wages, a coal miner, fired the fatal shots in a fit of jealous rage and then fled to the timber. Church and Donegan were boarders at the Wages home. The village is terrorized from a series of crimes within a few weeks.

Maddened Bull on Rampage.

Worden.—A maddened bull seriously injured Christopher Soltorman, a butcher, terrorized farmers, kept a man in a tree for hours, and held an entire family prisoners before its life was ended by a rifle bullet. The bull was a three-year-old Durham, partially deborned. It belonged to Louis Blume, a farmer, who named it "Mike." Recently the animal has frequently attacked persons passing through the field where it has been kept.

Eloper Brought Back from Dubuque.

Sterling.—William Philneane, of Hanover, who eloped with his aunt, Mrs. Mary Conley, last February, was arrested in Dubuque, Ia., and brought home. He is now in the Jo Daviess county jail awaiting a hearing. Mrs. Conley, who deserted her five children and husband, has been forgiven and is reinstated in her husband's affections.

Takes Charge of Masonic Home.

Neylon Gets Fourteen Years.

Lincoln.—In the circuit court Thomas Neylon was convicted of the killing of Thomas Brown last March and was sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary. Neylon's trial lasted seven days and was presided over by Judge Harris. The jury was out 12 hours before reaching a verdict. Neylon and Brown quarreled at a supper table one night in March, 1906, and later Neylon went to town, procured a revolver and returned and shot Brown dead. In a former fight Brown had dealt Neylon a blow that broke his jaw bone.

He had been falling in health for several years, and although his last severe illness was not of long duration, his death was not wholly unexpected. He suffered from a complication of diseases and at the time of death was aged 67 years.

Lincoln.—Mary S. Keagle, aged 53 years, died at St. Clare's hospital, following an operation. She lived at Latham.

Hillsboro.—Uncle Jones, familiarly known as "Uncle Johnny," died at his home in Wildwood, south of this city, aged 75 years. Mr. Jones was one of the old settlers of Montgomery county.

Hurt by Chicago Thugs.

Bloomington.—William Goodman, aged 73, is at the home of his son Charles in Moultrie county, suffering from possibly fatal injuries received at the hands of a gang of thugs in Chicago. He resides in Elwood, Neb., and was on route to the home of his son when he became lost from his granddaughter in Chicago. After a week's search he was found in a hospital, his jaw broken and his body a mass of bruises. He says that he was attacked by a crowd of men and boys and everything of value stolen.

SUNDAY FISHERS DROWNED

EIGHT PERSONS MEET DEATH IN STORM OFF NEW JERSEY.

Heavy Squall Strikes Yacht as it Reaches Treacherous Sand Bar and Boat Turns Turtle.

Anglesea, N. J., July 30.—Two yachts coming in from the fishing banks capsized on Hereford Inlet bar off here Sunday and so far as can be ascertained eight persons lost their lives. There were 32 persons on one yacht, of whom seven were lost, and 12 on the other, all of whom but one were saved. That not more fell victims to the rough sea was due to the heroism of Capt. Henry S. Ludlow, of the Hereford Inlet life saving station, and a crew of five men. It was at first thought that from 14 to 25 persons had been lost.

The weather in the morning was ideal and all the fishing boats took out large crowds to the fishing banks. After noon, however, a brisk breeze sprung up and the captains of the small craft hoisted sail and started for home. Most of the fleet got in without mishap, although some of them had considerable difficulty in clearing the Hereford bar.

The two that got into trouble were the sloop yacht Nora, which had on board Capt. Herbert Shivers, his mate and 30 passengers, and the sloop Alvin B. with a party of 12.

The Nora had gone to the fishing banks at Five Fathom bank about ten miles out to sea early in the day. When the wind began to freshen Capt. Shivers decided it was time to make port and with the assistance of a small gasoline engine and a good spread of canvas he made good time toward Anglesea. As the sloop bowed along the wind was getting stiffer and the sea rougher.

Capt. Shivers, from long experience, knew how treacherous is the Hereford bar and approached it with his usual caution. The sand obstruction is about a mile from shore. Just as he was about to go over it a heavy squall struck the Nora.

Despite the efforts of the captain the craft heeled over and was hit by a huge wave. The wind and the wave coming together was more than the yacht could stand and it turned completely over throwing the 32 occupants into the sea.

WHOLE BATTALION IN MUTINY

Loyal Troops Fire on Those Who Resist Arrest of Comrades.

Poltava, Russia, July 30.—A grave outbreak occurred Saturday in the Sevsk regiment, following the arrest of a private of the First battalion, who was discovered with some other soldiers in a shed where the revolutionists are in the habit of holding meetings.

After the arrest the entire First battalion, accompanied by a large crowd, paraded the streets in defiance of the military authorities. The soldiers proceeded to the artillery barracks, where they seized several guns and marched with them to the prison where the political prisoners are confined.

At this stage all the remainder of the Poltava garrison was called out. The loyal troops fired on the mutineers with machine guns as they were engaged in breaking down the gate of the prison. Several men were killed or wounded. The outbreak was not suppressed until two o'clock Sunday morning.

ROCKEFELLER GLAD TO BE HOME

Oil King Pleased to Return to America After Visit to Europe.

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 30.—John D. Rockefeller, accompanied by his wife and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., attended church here Sunday morning, as is the custom when staying at the Pocantico hills estate. Mr. Rockefeller was warmly greeted by the members of the congregation, and told several of them he was glad to be home again, although he had a splendid time while in Europe.

Fatally Wounded in Gun Fight.

Urbana, O., July 31.—In a desperate running fight with the police officers early Monday, "Bill" Williams, a colored character, was mortally wounded, after keeping the officers at bay all day Sunday. He had a shotgun and declared he would shoot any man that approached his house. When he came from the house one of the watchers put a bullet through his bowels, but he slightly wounded an officer before he was shot.

Burns Congressman Cole's Barn.

Findlay, O., July 30.—Some unknown rascal, who was seen running from the barn by the neighbors, set fire early Saturday to the barn of Congressman Ralph D. Cole. The barn was practically destroyed, although the neighbors made every effort to save it. It is believed that the incendiary had a spite at the congressman.

Former Diplomat Dead.

Portland, Me., July 31.—The death of John Holmes Goodenow, who for many years represented this country as secretary of legation and charge d'affaires at Constantinople, was reported in a telegram Monday as having occurred at Atlantic City. Mr. Goodenow was born at Alfred, Me., about 15 years ago.

By the way, Attorney Burke hasn't sent any literature to this office this week.

There are many who hate to hear a liar. Honestly, now, aren't there several who hate to hear the truth?

Another oldest woman in the United States died at La Porte, Ind., Monday, aged 112 years. She also saw Napoleon, like the others.

An exchange says that New York reports a shortage in chorus girls. More likely a "shortage" in chorus girls' costumes, a "shortage" which does not worry the bald-headed row.

For one of his trips to New York to attend the late Marshall Field, Dr. Frank Billings, charged $25,000 and the claim was allowed by the court. It is evident that Field was not looking for basement bargains.

It was thought that Billy Mason had been put upon the political shelf for good, but he has again flopped into the arena and is after Senator Hopkins' scalp. Just at present he is playing checkers on Billy Lorimer's coat tail.

There are many people in Zion City just now who would give most anything for a nice juicy slice of ham or a well browned roast of pork. There are not a few who would rather devour the late overseer, John Alexander Dowie.

The largest and most perfect pearl ever found in America was sold by the finder for $17,500 and the sum of $40,000 was later refused for it. This pearl was found in the Mississippi; so there is no use of local hunters tearing up the bed of the Kishwaukee.

A young woman in Pekin was married the other day and a Peoria paper describes her as "young, modest, unassuming, of beautiful character, kind, unostentatious manners, sweet, winning disposition and a graduate of the Pekin high school." Are there any more like her at home?

The worst blow that ever struck Standard Oil was the bill removing the revenue from denatured alcohol. As a fuel it can be used in lamps, stoves and engines, giving more light, better light, more heat and better power than gasoline, without the danger in handling. A gallon of the denatured alcohol will cost about twice as much to produce as gasoline, but will last twice as long. It can be made from corn stalks and almost any old thing that grows, and it will be practically impossible to monopolize its manufacture.

The Local Option Bill
The following is copied from the Chicago Record-Herald of April 8, 1905:
"Springfield, Ill., April 7, 1905: Advocates of the Local Option Bill have drawn a compromise measure eliminating the county, precinct and ward subdivision features. The measure was framed by Attorney J. F. Burke of the Anti-Saloon League and is to be submitted as a substitute bill either on the floor of the House, in the Senate or in the House Judiciary committee.

The amended measure was shown this morning to Chairman Castle of the House Judiciary Committee, Representative Gray, Chairman of the Democratic Steering Committee and other members of the House. No intimation of the course that is to be pursued, however, was given, the House leaders and the Anti-Saloon League first desire some expression from the Senate before they had anything to say for publication. It is believed however that the Senate will agree to accept the substitute."

How Trade Is Obtained
The trade territory of a town is not all dependent upon the distance to neighboring trading posts. The trade territory depends upon the enterprise of the merchants and the residents of the town. If a town does not reach after the trade it will come only as fast as it has to. But if the merchants go after business in the surrounding country, advertising in every possible way and making good every word of their advertising, trade will come from an ever-increasing radius, the town will gain a reputation for being awake and it will forge to the front. It is the men in the town and not altogether the men living within a certain number of miles from it that make the town.

Will Enter Ring
Thomas Nicholson of this place has developed into a full-fledged prize fighter and all that he now lacks to live up to the name is a meeting where an actual prize is hung up. He has been in training with Wm. Watkins of Belvidere of late and met that celebrity in a friendly bout on the banks of the Kishwaukee near Belvidere the first of the week. Nicholson had the best of the argument in nearly every round and in the tenth sent Watkins to dreamland. Nicholson says he intends to go thru a thoro training and will prepare to meet all comers. He and Watkins will start their reputation making by giving a few exhibitions in the near future.

Couldn't Smell in the Dark.
An old gentleman too impatient for his hot water and a light to be brought rushed into the kitchen, seized hold of the first pan on the stove and dashed away with it to his dark room. On plunging his hands into the wash hand basin he was amazed to find that it contained something thicker and stickier than water—that he had, in fact, spoiled the first course of his dinner by trying to wash in the soup.
Boiling over with passion, he began to upbraid his wife, and on her suggesting that he might have smelted it was soup he thundered, "How in the name of fortune could I smell in the dark?"—London Answers.

Owing to the low water in the Fox river many persons between Elgin and Dundee are engaged in gathering and shipping clam shells for which they receive from ten to fifteen dollars per ton. Occasionally a pearl is found which helps swell the income. One pearl valued at $200 was found at Dundee.

H. A. Kellogg has purchased fifteen acres of land of Geo. Wells at Ney. The property lays east of the five corners and adjoins the forty acres owned by Mr. Kellogg. The price paid was $1,500 or $100 an acre. A small cottage and barn goes with the deal. These buildings will be improved and the entire sixty-five acres leased.

The first good rain for many weeks visited this vicinity last Saturday, and also it was of great benefit to corn and pastures, it did not help the oat crop which was too far advanced. As a whole the oats will be lighter than the average yield and in many cases quite rusty. Before the rain many pastures were scorched to a tinder, causing the price of butter to go up.

It is Her Business

A lady received the following reply from a neighbor in answer to the question why she allowed her children and husband to litter up every room in the house, and the sentiment will find lodgment in the heart of every home loving person in the land: "The mark of the little muddy feet upon the floor can be easier removed than the stain when those little feet go down into the highways of evil. The prints of the little fingers on the window pane cannot shut out the sunshine half so much as the shadow that darkens the mother's heart over the one who is but a name through the coming years. And if my John finds his home a refuge from care and trouble, and his greatest happiness within its four walls, he can put his boots in the rocking chair and hang his coat up on the floor every day in the week. And if I can stand it and he enjoys it, I cannot see that it is anybody else's business."

Traded Watch for Confetti

Belvidere Republican: During a visit to the carnival recently in Doty's Park here, Miss Anna Kiernan, of Genoa, who was visiting friends here, lost a valuable watch. Search for the time piece failed to reveal it.

The matter was reported to the police and Chief Krieger took the matter up. He learned that a small boy had picked up a watch on the grounds, and that in the exuberance of his youthful spirit he had traded the watch to the confetti man for a supply of the little fragments of paper to hurl into people's faces.

The trail of the carnival people was then taken up, and the chief has finally landed the confetti man and the watch, which was sent back to him from Spring Valley.

CUPID EVER BUSY

Merry and Impractical Little God of Love Seems Never to Take a Vacation From His Pleasing Duties.

FIVE OF HIS MOST RECENT PRANKS

Victims Selected From All Walks of Life and in Many Climes—American Mining Engineer and Grecian Countess Among Others Shot By His Unerring Arrows—John Bull Shown How Love Laughs at Law.

New York.—Within the space of a brief few days, Cupid has played more pranks than the most romantic school-girl could ever conjure up in her wildest dreams!

He has brought together an American mining engineer and a Grecian countess at the mouth of a Mexican mine. He has married off a rich young fellow to the nurse who pulled him through appendicitis. He has presided at a midnight wedding at which a dashing young naval officer and a pretty chorus girl were the principals. He has hired a special train so that a New York millionaire's son could marry a divorcee in another state.

And last of all, but not least, he has arranged a wedding on the high seas, outside the international three-mile limit, so that an impatient young couple wouldn't have to wait two weeks for the banns to be published, thus single-handedly setting aside the stern and implacable majesty of the British common law.

It has been left for Miss Alice Whyte and M. Hall Cowan to show John Bull how love laughs at law. They just couldn't wait two weeks longer, so they were married according to the rites of the Church of England far out at sea. That saved the two weeks banns and made happy two young persons very much in love, says the World.

The two young people come from Windsor, Ont. The young man popped the question four years ago and got his whispered "yes," sweetest word in the world. But they couldn't be married then, for the fact that the young man hadn't been graduated from the University of Michigan and hadn't established himself in business.

Sent for Promised Wife.
He was graduated in 1904. Soon after he got a position with Hiram Walker & Sons' oil interests in Port of Spain, Trinidad. He went away and did well. He sent for Miss Whyte. She was too ill to take the journey. So the impatient bridegroom-to-be had to wait.

But let Miss Whyte tell her own story just as she told it reclining in a steamer chair on the deck of the good ship just before she sailed from the Brooklyn dock recently. Her mother and father were there to bid her Godspeed on her strange wedding journey, and so were several friends. "You see," she explained, "Mr. Cowan couldn't get away and it came down to a point of my going to Trinidad. We had been engaged for four years and we didn't want to wait any longer. But at first everything seemed to go wrong.

"When Mr. Cowan sent for me first I was too ill to go. The second time I couldn't make the Maraval. Then he sent for me to come on the 6th of August, but that made it too long. So at last we arranged for this trip of the Maraval and Capt. Hunter is going to give me away.

"Well, all our plans were made for this voyage," continued Miss Whyte, "when suddenly Mr. Cowan discovered that we would have to wait for two weeks until the banns could be published. Here I was, all ready to sail, without any chaperon except the stewardess, and I must wait two weeks before I could be married.

"We expect to reach Granada on Monday and we plan to be married while the ship is far out at sea at eight o'clock that evening. Now, you know, the sea belongs to everybody and marriage laws—stupid things!—don't concern Father Neptune. So when we land at Trinidad on the next morning—it is 180 miles from Granada—we shall be legally married and the horrid old banns can't bother us."

It all came out as they planned. Three cheers and a tiger for Cupid this time!

Blindly Led by Cupid.
What's a trip to Mexico where love is concerned? How could the Countess de Rilly, a charming young widow, or George A. Schroeder, a handsome young mining engineer, guess that it was Cupid who was leading them to the mouth of the Ventura mine in Mexico? Mr. Schroeder is engineer for the tip, was hitting it up a mile a minute, and they were in Sidney in two hours and a half. The party drove at once to the Lutheran church, where they waited until a marriage license was secured. Then the Rev. J. S. Leamer tied the knot. Five minutes later bride, bridegroom and wedding guests were speeding back to Colorado Springs. The wedding breakfast was served on the train, and there was plenty of champagne to drink the health of the couple who had circumvented the law that they might become husband and wife.

Not so bad for Cupid this time, eh? Cupid Behind the Scenes.
Up the bay several weeks ago came Admiral Evans' fleet and the big Indiana, one of Uncle Sam's crack battleships. They cast anchor in the North river, where Admiral Evans directed, and soon officers and men were ashore stretching their legs.

Now, some of those gay young fellows of the fleet hadn't seen a pretty girl for so long that they just ached to go to some show. So what could be better than "The Social Whirl" at the Casino? No sooner said than done.

All hands took a box and the one closest to the stage chanced to be Ensign Freeman Hall, paymaster. All of a sudden Cupid took a hand. Ensign Hall spied dashing Miss Eleanor Lund on the stage and promptly lost his heart. He secured an introduction and paid ardent court.

The rest of the story was told before Rev. Dr. Henry Marsh Warren, the "hotel chaplain," when a cab drove up before his home, No. 43 West Ninety-fourth street, a few nights ago—or rather morning, because it was well after midnight. In the cab were the young naval officer and Miss Lund.

Now in common with most clergymen, Rev. Dr. Warren retires at an early hour. This particular night was no exception. But the furious jangling of the bell awoke him and Mrs. Warren.

ago to inspect them and there she met the American. The rest was easy, because Cupid had his mind made up. Mr. Schroeder pleaded his case and the Greek countess agreed to become the plain American "Mrs." So they came back to Brooklyn to be married. But this didn't end the ceremonial part of the wedding. The countess wanted also a wedding in the faith of her fathers, so all the party jumped into automobiles and were whisked over to Manhattan and up to the little Greek church, Seventy-second street, near Lexington avenue, where there was another wedding, according to the full ritual of the orthodox Greek church.

There was a crowd of the couple's friends to see the beautiful ceremony, which included hymns and chants by a full vested choir. The ceremonies ended with the crowning of the couple with flowers.

And Cupid had come out victor again. Love God at Work in Hospital.
The doctors shook their heads. The lad that lay on the operating table before them was pretty far gone. He had gangrenous appendicitis, and the poison had already set in.

"One chance in a hundred," said the operating surgeon as he prepared the instruments and motioned to his assistants to administer the anaesthetic.

"And now, Miss Vanhorn, if you please," he said, turning to a pretty trained nurse who stood ready to help. Soon the ether had done its work and the knives began. An hour later

Cook Daniels. The laws said them nay. But they did. "It is forbidden," read the laws of the state of Colorado, "that either party to a divorce, either guilty or innocent, marry within a year."

Here was pretty Mrs. Daniels, just freed from the bonds and head over heels in love with young Mr. Schley, unable to marry the man of her second choice. And here was the young man, a resident of Colorado Springs, and quite ill, eager to marry before it might be too late.

What were they to do? Cupid solved the problem as usual. What are laws where love is concerned? He just suggested to young Mr. Schley, to whom money is no object, that he hire a special train, cross the state line into Nebraska at 60 miles an hour, there pledge their troth and return married in spite of Colorado laws.

It was no elopement. The two young people had been devoted to each other openly ever since the divorce was granted.

Sidney was the nearest point, 152 miles away. It was only the work of a moment to order the train and the railway officials had it ready in record time. There were two luxurious drawing-room cars and an engine. One compartment was crammed with wedding gifts; every compartment was fragrant with American Beauties. With all the guests aboard the train started off to the fluttering of many handkerchiefs.

Soon the engineer, assured of a fat

MARK TWAIN'S EARLY HUMOR

Advertisement for Lost Umbrella, and "Hartford" Toast Proclaimed. His Coming Greatness.

In his early Hartford days Mark Twain took an active interest in baseball in common with most of his fellow citizens, says Harper's Weekly. While attending an exciting match he lost a gold-headed umbrella, which he advertised in the local papers somewhat after this fashion:

"Lost—$10 reward. A gold-headed umbrella was lost by the undersigned on the grandstand at the baseball ground on Saturday. It was probably stolen from him while he was engaged in cheering the Hartfords for their victory over the Providence nine—presumably stolen by a red-headed, freckled face boy about 12 years old. For the body of the boy and the umbrella delivered at my house on Farmington avenue $10 will be paid. For the body of the boy or the umbrella separately, $5 for either. For the boy alive, nothing under any circumstances." This advertisement was signed with his full name and address.

At a dinner given by some local mercantile or business organization Mr. Clemens responded to the toast of "Hartford." In his speech he glorified the city as the one place in the world which provided for every possible human need. He said that Hartford wrote life insurance policies to protect men's lives, accident policies to protect their persons, and fire insurance policies to protect their future. It made guns and pistols with which to kill men, but printed books to tell them how to live and Bibles to tell them how to die. In short, it supplied all their needs, not only here but even hereafter.

WOMEN GAINING IN POWER

Have Recently Been Granted Many Privileges in Norway—Advance Claimed in Canada.

Students of female emancipation may be interested to learn from the report of the National Council of Women in Norway that that country has recognized the right of women to sit on a jury; that the storting recently nominated a woman as the winner of the Nobel prize, and that a school has been started to instruct young girls in the responsibilities of citizenship as well as in the care of children. It is also learned that the number of women who voted for the separation of Norway from Sweden was greater than that of the men.

These and other facts of similar character were brought out at a recent meeting of the Women's institute in London, where one of the speakers, a Mrs. Fitzgibbon, who claimed to belong to the race "of vikings of British North America," asserted that Canadian women were in a position to rule Canada owing to their advanced views and perfect organization the moment an entering wedge could be made by which they might gain the power of suffrage.

Health in Hot Weather.

Not much meat should be eaten in hot weather; less food of any sort is needed than in winter. Food has two functions; as fuel to sustain heat; as energy to move the muscles. The one need is almost wholly and the other largely suspended in July. Alcoholic drinks are doubly dangerous in hot weather. Iced weak tea is an excellent drink if one dips out the ice and throws it away, allowing the liquid to lose its chill. Iced water in families should be prepared by setting sealed jars of water in the refrigerator at a distance from the ice, never by putting cracked ice in the goblets. A temperature of 42 degrees is low enough for drinking water. Extreme fatigue should be avoided, but it is not true that "it doesn't pay to get heated up going out of town." Young children who both become ill and recover more quickly than adults, are often literally saved from death by a single day in cool air.

Preaches Simple Life.

Solomon Neva, the prophet of the simple life in its extreme sense, has arrived in Paris in the hope of interesting prominent persons in his scheme of founding a sanitarium in the mountains where he would have only children as his patients and would bring them up to live a purely natural life. Neva lives on raw fruit and vegetables, never touching eggs, milk or butter or meat of any kind. He does not even drink water and bathes only about once a year, and he believes that a daily rubbing down with a towel is sufficient to keep the body clean. He has a curious history, having once been in the Dutch consular service. He lost a fortune of 300,000 francs in an unsuccessful coffee plantation in Java and since then has gone about the world in strange garb, preaching his new doctrine.

Confined.

Homagan—Now that Lushman is married I don't suppose he gets out with the boys as much as he used to. Holmes—Oh, he doesn't get out at all now.

Homagan—Indeed? That, of course, is due to his wife's influence. Holmes—Well, yes, I believe it was she who swore out the warrant.

The Resemblance.
"Really, Mr. Chatters," said Miss Patience Gonne, "your talk reminds me of my favorite champagne."
"Ah!" exclaimed Chatters, delightedly, "because it's so sparkling? Really, I—"

"No," interrupted Miss Gonne, "it's extra dry."

A Swing for Baby.

Directions for Building a Device Which Will Entertain the Little One.

Most children are fond of swinging, and in the accompanying sketch we illustrate a nursery swing that can be made at small cost; but in the making and in the using of it, there are two or three things that must not be forgotten, and that are necessary to guard against a possible mishap.

Firstly, every portion of it must be strongly put together; and secondly, from time to time the ropes, etc., must be examined to see that they are not wearing through, and the hooks should be tested to see that they are still firm in the ceiling; and after that, with ordinary care no accident should be possible.

Iron hooks suitable for the purpose can be bought at almost any ironmongers; but for the buying of them and the fixing of them it would be quite well to employ the local carpenter, as they must be firmly screwed into the Ventura corporation, of London, and also for the rich Stratton Independence mine in Colorado. His corporation sent him to the mine in Mexico just as the handsome young countess went there on a business trip. They met in that far-off land under sunny skies, and the romance of the place—perhaps Cupid had a hand—drew them to one another.

Cupid even presides when the surgeons use their knives.

"We want to get married," announced Ensign Hall.

"Not so fast," cautioned Dr. Warren. "I'll have to ask a few questions."

But he was soon satisfied. He found that the officer was 35 years old and his bride 22. Then Mrs. Warren was summoned as a witness and the knot was tied.

THE CAMERA FIEND.

Man Not Satisfied with Ordinary Amusement Like Taking Pictures.

A well-known criminal lawyer one day sauntered into a police court just as a case was called. It appeared that the defendant had no attorney, and the judge glanced about the room to see whom he might assign to the case. "I'll take it, judge," the late comer said, wishing to pass away the time. "By the way, what is the man charged with?" the attorney presently asked.

"He's a camera fiend of the worst sort, Mr. Brown," the judge said with a slight smile. "I expect to send him to the workhouse for about three months."

"What!" the lawyer shouted, indignantly. "Your honor must be joking. Send a man to the rock pile for three months for a little harmless amusement like taking pictures?"

"Well," the judge said, mildly, "he don't take pictures much—it's the cameras he takes."

Prominent Minnesota Merchant Cured to Stay Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

O. C. Hayden, of O. C. Hayden & Co., dry goods merchants, of Albert Lea, Minn., says: "I was so lame that I could hardly walk. There was an unaccountable weakness of the back, and constant pain and aching. I could find no rest and was very uncomfortable at night. As my health was good in every other way, I could not understand this trouble. It was just as if all the strength had gone from my back. After suffering for some time I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The remedy acted at once upon the kidneys, and when normal action was restored, the trouble with my back disappeared. I have not had any return of it."

Rev. John Aldis, once the most prominent minister of the Baptist denomination in England, has reached the age of 98. He began life in a shoemaker's shop. Afterward he was sent to Horton college, near Bradford, now known as Rawdon college. Later he became pastor of Maze Pond chapel, London, and in 1866 he was elected chairman of the Baptist Union.

DIDN'T BELIEVE

That Coffee Was the Real Trouble.

Some people frownder around and take everything that's recommended but finally find that coffee is the real cause of their troubles. An Oregon man says:

"For 25 years I was troubled with my stomach. I was a steady coffee drinker, but didn't suspect that as the cause. I took almost anything which someone else had been cured with but to no good. I was very bad last summer and could not work at times.

"On Dec. 2, 1902, I was taken so bad the doctor said I could not live over 24 hours at the most, and I made all preparations to die. I could hardly eat anything, everything distressed me, and I was weak and sick all over. When in that condition coffee was abandoned and I was put on Postum, the change in my feelings came quickly after the drink that was poisoning me was removed.

"The pain and sickness fell away from me and I began to get well by day, so I stuck to it until now I am well and strong again, can eat heartily, with no headache, heart trouble or the awful sickness of the old coffee days. I drink all I wish of Postum without any harm and enjoy it immensely.

"This seems like a strong story, but I would refer you to the First Nat'l Bank, the Trust Banking Company, or any merchant of Grant's Pass, Ore., in regard to my standing, and I will send a sworn statement of this if you wish. You can also use my name." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Still there are many who persistently fool themselves by saying "Coffee don't hurt me." A ten days' trial of Postum in its place will tell the truth and many times save life. "There's a reason!"

POULTRY AND BEES

COMB-HONEY SHIPPING CASE

Arrangement by Which the Glass Fronts to the Sections Are Eliminated.

The shipping case here shown was exhibited at the Michigan State Beekeepers' association convention at Jackson, and was quite favorably commented on by the members present, says Gleanings in Bee Culture. The freight classification puts honey "in glass" as first class, and that "in wood" as second class. When this tariff was first printed, some of the roads were inclined to consider that all comb honey in shipping cases with glass front was in glass, and, consequently, the freight rate was pushed up one notch; but after considerable explanation we showed that, evidently, such classification referred to honey in bottles; that comb honey in a shipping case with glass front ought to go as second class because the percentage of glass was very small to the amount of wood. All the railroads, I think, now accept shipping cases with glass front as second class. But the beekeeper must not make the mistake of having such honey billed "in glass" or else it will go at first class rates.

The Aspinwall case is a very unique one; and if the discrimination against glass front had continued the all-wood case with the lettering would have been the solution.

The all-wood case can be made considerably cheaper, and I do not know why it would not be just as good. If the freight handler cannot read the ought to be bounced from the pay-roll. Shipping cases with glass front have been broken into, and the fine cakes of honey spoiled by some big fingers, time and time again. The Aspinwall case would prevent anything of this kind.

The arrangement of the no-drip cleats in mortises or slots in the ends of the case is very unique. It could not, however, be very well applied to a glass-front case showing four sections six deep. But where the cases are two-row, like the sample here shown, there will be no trouble about mortising for the cleats.

GATE FOR CHICKEN YARD.

How It Can Be Built So That It Will Not Sag—Are Simple in Construction.

I have in use several gates like that shown in the cut, which do not sag or get out of shape and prove very satisfactory, says a correspondent of the Farm and Home. They are six feet high and three feet wide, made of spruce 1 1/4 x 3 inches. The ends were sawed square and the pieces b b butted against the side pieces a a. I use four-inch No. 1 screws which were countersunk 1/4 inch. This was a much quicker way than cutting a mortise and tenon. The gate was well braced with 1 1/2 x 2-inch stays which were halved together at the middle. After the frame was made and painted it was covered with poultry netting.

THE POULTRY.

More attention should be given to water fowls.

The poultry yard, as well as the poultry house, needs to be kept clean. When fowls need a tonic, there are some who put a few drops of tincture of iron into their drinking troughs.

Tobacco stems covered with straw are an excellent preventative of insect breeding, especially when the hens are setting.

Feed the fowls about to be shipped nothing but hard grain the day previous. They will carry better and arrive in a better condition.

So long as good prices can be obtained for broilers it will nearly always be found best to sell at this age, or either to feed to maturity and sell in the fall or winter.

Poultry keeping can be made an auxiliary to other pursuits without intruding upon the time of the keeper and will bring in a handsome return for the food and care given them.

IMPROVED POULTRY HOUSE.

One with a Scratching Shed Necessary, for Plenty of Room for Fowls Is Essential.

In order to have hens do well, they want commodious quarters. Especially is this true during the winter and, if they are prohibited running at large throughout the year. Owing to their love for that freedom which allows them to move about at will and work as they please, they soon get tired if confined in a small closed pen, and stand around and mope, and as they were, until they became fat and lazy and lose their appetite, whereupon they are a detriment rather than a good, to the owner.

What they need is an open scratching shed, where they can exercise in the open air, going in and out as they wish. They will then be always ready to eat or work, and this, in turn, giving them health and strength, will enable them to lay a large number of good, fertile eggs.

Fortunately, it is not necessary to build an elaborate, costly structure to bring about these results. A simple scratching-shed house, like that shown in the accompanying illustration, will suffice just as well and, oftentimes, much better.

This affords the great advantage of having a "living room" adjoining the sleeping apartment, so that on sunny days a complete change of air and scene can be enjoyed by the fowls without exposing them to piercing or driving storms. It also permits of the ventilation being adapted to the weather and temperature conditions at the discretion of the owner.

When the imprisonment of the birds in a single apartment is taken into consideration, the importance of this is at once apparent, says Prairie Farmer, for if limited to one atmosphere and one temperature night and day, throughout the cold, stormy months of winter, they cannot help but become listless, debilitated and "out of condition," and what few eggs they do lay be incapable of hatching strong, robust chicks that will live and grow.

Best of all, however, by using a house with a scratching-shed, as many again birds can be kept as compared with the closed pen. Hence, the cost of the scratching-shed does not add anything in the way of expense, as far as having buildings to accommodate a certain number of fowls is concerned.

On the other hand, there is everything to commend it—the better health of the birds, the greater production and higher fertility of their eggs, and, owing to the natural warmth from the bodies of so many of them, the elimination of supplying artificial heat in the roosting room at night. Moreover, by adopting the arrangement illustrated, it is possible to duplicate the construction and have a succession of closed rooms and open sheds, extending, if the ground is sufficiently level to allow it, almost any length desired.

The shed part should be 10x10 feet, the roosting room 10x8 feet. The sills, which should be laid at least a foot above the surface of the ground, may rest on stone or brick foundations, or posts set into the ground below the usual frost line; these "piers" should be located at a distance of about five feet from one another. For the sills, as well as plates, rafters and corner studs, 2x4 scantling will do; the intermediate studs may consist of 2x3 stuff.

The studs, of course, want to be toenailed firmly to the sills, the plates to the studs and the rafters to the plates. The front studs should be 7/2 feet long, and the rear ones 5 feet long. This will give a fairly good pitch to the roof, on which any first rate roofing may be used. The house, of course, should face toward the south.

After provisions have been made for the window and doors, as is suggested in the cut, the sides should be boarded up with good matched lumber. To prevent the fowls from wandering away and mixing with those of other pens, and also protecting them from birds and animals of prey, the front of the scratching-shed must be inclosed with wire netting; it is convenient to have one section of it made into a gate to open and let the birds out into the yard in front of the house.

In addition to the netting there should be a cloth curtain to close at night in winter, or on stormy or windy days, thus protecting the fowls from snow-storms and piercing winds. On clear days it should be lifted soon after sunrise and kept up until the sun gets low in the west, but if the weather is very cold it is better to raise it only for an hour or two during the middle of the day, and in case a storm or cold wind prevails, not at all. Such a curtain may be fastened at the top by nailing it in place with a strip of lath, and the lower edge held where wanted by means of hooks having screw eyes.

With the curtain fastened down at night, it is not necessary to close the door between the roosting room and scratching-shed unless the weather is severely cold, and unless it is way below zero, the small opening at the right of this door should never be closed. It will otherwise be warm enough—that is, if the walls are celled on the inside and the space between packed with straw or swale hay, as it should be. By opening the window in warm weather, and particularly on very warm winter days, excellent ventilation at all seasons of the year can be obtained.

Keeping Down the Mites. Poultry droppings seem to be the favorite conditions for breeding mites. Coops and houses that are cleaned often are not much troubled with them. But it is a good plan not to depend too much upon anything. Careful examination needs to be made frequently, so as to be sure that they are not getting a start.

FAR INTO THE FROZEN NORTH

History of the Polar Explorations of the Past.

Lieut. R. E. Peary is now in the north in an eighth attempt to reach the pole, if, as seems probable, he has not already perished in the arctic regions as have so many others before him. Walter Wellman, newspaper correspondent and explorer of world-wide reputation, is at Spitzbergen, from which point he will make his third attempt to reach the pole, this time by means of an airship. Solomon Augustus Andree sacrificed his life and the lives of two companions in an effort to reach the cap of the earth in a balloon.

Practically the whole of arctic exploration history has been made within less than the last 100 years, though the first arctic voyage was made as early as 1500 by a Portuguese navigator in an effort to discover the northwest passage to India. While many later voyages were made for the same purpose the first expedition made with the idea of reaching the pole was not made until early in the last century. Since that time many lives have been sacrificed in an effort to conquer the elements of the frozen north and wring from them the secrets supposed to lie at the top of the world.

One of the largest expeditions organized for arctic exploration, and one of the most disastrous, was that of Sir John Franklin, which sailed from England in 1845, and entered the arctic regions by the Baffin bay route in July of that year. No member of this party ever returned. Both England and the United States made heroic efforts to send succor to these intrepid explorers. Urged by the tears of Lady Franklin expedition after expedition went into the frozen north in an effort to rescue, or if "too late for that" to learn the fate of Franklin and his companions, but it was not until 1858 that any definite traces of the party was found. Franklin's wife had resolutely refused to give up hope and had fitted out several expeditions at her own expense to search for her missing husband. One of these under

TRUE COURAGE.

"Towards have no luck!" Tunes are Elizabeth Kulmann's brave words. J. Brisbane Walker believes that "No man can be truly a gentleman if a coward."

"Fortune never helps the man whose courage fails." This is a bit of the wisdom of Sophocles.

Says George Horace Lorimer: "No man is a failure until he's dead or loses courage—and that's the same thing."

Sydney Smith long ago remarked that "A great deal of talent is lost to the world for the want of a little courage."

"When moral courage feels that it is in the right there is no personal daring of which it is incapable," says Leigh Hunt's conviction.

Said Rochefoucauld: "True bravery is shown by performing without witness what one might be capable of doing before all the world."

"Fear, which only is another name for ignorance, is all that ails us. Understanding alone conquers fear." This is the successful creed of Helen Williams Post.

WHO SHE WAS

Sketch of the Life of Lydia E. Pinkham.

And a True Story of How the Vegetable Compound Had Its Birth and How the "Panic of '73" Caused it to be Offered for Public Sale in Drug Stores.

This remarkable woman, whose maiden name was Estes, was born in Lynn, Mass., February 9th, 1810, coming from a good old Quaker family. For some years she taught school, and became known as a woman of an alert restored the family fortune. They argued that the medicine which was so good for their woman friends and neighbors was equally good for the women of the whole world.

The Pinkhams had no money, and little credit. Their first laboratory was the kitchen, where roots and herbs were steeped on the stove, gradually filling a gross of bottles. Then came the question of selling it, for always before they had given it away freely. They hired a job printer to run off some pamphlets setting forth the merits of the medicine, now called Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and these were distributed by the Pinkham sons in Boston, New York, and Brooklyn.

The wonderful curative properties of the medicine were, to a great extent, self-advertising, for wherever used it recommended it to others, and the demand gradually increased.

In 1877, by combined efforts the family had saved enough money to commence newspaper advertising and from that time the growth and success of the enterprise were assured, until today Lydia E. Pinkham and her Vegetable Compound have become household words everywhere, and many tons of roots and herbs are used annually in its manufacture.

Lydia E. Pinkham herself did not live to see the great success of this work. She passed her reward years ago, but not till she had provided means for continuing her work as effectively as she could have done it herself.

During her long and eventful experience she was ever methodical in her work and she was always careful to preserve a record of every case that came to her attention. The case of every sick woman who applied to her for advice—and there were thousands—received careful study, and the details, including symptoms, treatment and results were recorded for future reference, and to-day these records, together with hundreds of thousands made since, are available to sick women the world over, and represent a vast collaboration of information regarding the treatment of woman's ills, which for authenticity and accuracy can hardly be equaled in any library in the world.

With Lydia E. Pinkham worked her daughter-in-law, the present Mrs. Pinkham. She was carefully instructed in all her hard-won knowledge, and for years she assisted her in her vast correspondence.

To her hands naturally fell the direction of the work when its original passed away. For nearly twenty-five years she has continued it, and nothing in the work shows when the first Lydia E. Pinkham dropped her pen, and the present Mrs. Pinkham, now the mother of a large family, took it up. With women assistants, some as capable as herself, the present Mrs. Pinkham continues this great work, and probably from the office of no other person have so many women been advised how to regain health. Sick women, this advice is "Yours for Health" freely given if you only write to ask for it.

Such is the history of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; made from simple roots and herbs; the one great medicine for woman's ailments, and the fitting monument to the noble woman whose name it bears.

The three sons and the daughter, with their mother, combined forces to and investigating mind, an earnest seeker after knowledge, and above all, possessed of a wonderfully sympathetic nature.

In 1843 she married Isaac Pinkham, a builder and real estate operator, and their early married life was marked by prosperity and happiness. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

In those good old fashioned days it was common for mothers to make their own home medicines from roots and herbs, nature's own remedies—calling in a physician only in specially urgent cases. By tradition and experience many of them gained a wonderful knowledge of the curative properties of the various roots and herbs.

Mrs. Pinkham took a great interest in the study of roots and herbs, their characteristics and power over disease. She maintained that just as nature so bountifully provides in the harvest fields and orchards vegetable foods of all kinds; so, if we but take the pains to find them, in the roots and herbs of the field there are remedies expressly designed to cure the various ills and weaknesses of the body, and it was her pleasure to search these out, and prepare simple and effective medicines for her own family and friends.

Chief of these was a rare combination of the choicest medicinal roots and herbs found best adapted for the cure of the ills and weaknesses peculiar to the female sex, and Lydia E. Pinkham's friends and neighbors learned that her compound relieved and cured and it became quite popular among them.

All this so far was done freely, without money and without price, as a labor of love.

But in 1873 the financial crisis struck Lynn. Its length and severity were too much for the large real estate interests of the Pinkham family, as this class of business suffered most from fearful depression, so when the Centennial year dawned it found their property swept away. Some other source of income had to be found.

At this point Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made known to the world.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

The Views of a School Man on the County Superintendency

As a teacher and principal in DeKalb county for many years I wish to present the views of the school people of DeKalb county, so far as a long acquaintance and intimate knowledge of school affairs and association with the county superintendent is concerned. I have served under more than one superintendent in DeKalb county and speak with knowledge of the school situation in this and adjoining counties.

Our county superintendent of schools has more than met the expectations of his constituents, as is evidenced by the comments of the press opposed to him. He has been highly commended by three state superintendents, who place him in the front rank of county superintendents. For five years he has held the best and most responsible position in the gift of the county superintendents of Illinois: Manager of the Illinois State Teachers' Reading Circle; was chairman of the Committee on Legislation and was instrumental in defeating the scheme proposed by members of the legislature to break up the present school districts and put the schools under township control; he originated, with the co-operation of all the school directors, and put into operation County Uniformity of Text Books, thereby lifting the burden of frequent purchases of text books from tenants who move from district to district. That system has been maintained at less net cost to the people than when first installed.

It took some years for Mr. Gross to be an efficient officer, one that is recognized as such by the educational people of Illinois. His acquaintance with the leading educators has brought to our institutes and teachers' meetings the best talent the state affords at little cost, and State Supt. Bayliss, when attending one of these meetings pronounced the program good enough for a State Teachers' meeting.

The corps of teachers in our county has steadily improved and as a proof of this three-fourths of our graded school teachers formerly taught in the district schools of our county.

On the proposition of teachers' examinations Mr. Gross has been square and has proof in the shape of manuscripts written by applicants for teachers' certificates.

He has given careful attention to the improvement of school buildings and grounds, and has often offended negligent directors when insisting on wholesome conditions from the standpoint of health and morals.

Every teacher, irrespective of locality, rank and creed, has been given a square deal. To criticize a teacher or a school official, even rightfully, often causes trouble, but the good superintendents of our schools must possess the moral courage to do so.

For the next term, at least, the present incumbent can do better than a new man without experience. In any other avocation of life experience counts for effectiveness. Why not in the county superintendency? The school people, so far as I can ascertain, from the least to the greatest in our county, are practically unanimous in their preferment of the present official. He was born and raised in this county; has spent the years of his manhood in school work. After all it is not a question of men, but of what most concerns the welfare of our schools.

As a business proposition I believe that no change should be made, unless we are assured that the aspiring candidate, by reason of training, experience and adaptation, can do better. * * *

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that the bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. ## THE "OLD WOMAN"

A Habit that Should Cause Any Boy to Blush

Young man, the other day I heard you refer to your mother as "the old woman." Perhaps you did not mean it that way, but it sounds coarse, brutal. No true son refers to his mother as "the old woman." Quite likely she is old and gray and wrinkled, but it is also quite likely that some of those hairs and a few of those wrinkles were caused by the vigils she put in at your bedside when youthful ills were trying to claim you. Mother doesn't like to be referred to as "the old woman." It makes her feel as though she had run her race and was now only in the way. The world has no use for the boy who doesn't reverence his mother. The man who loves and respects his mother has to be pretty mean before the community will go back on him altogether. The boy who sees to it that his mother doesn't have to bring in a bucket of coal or sweep the snow off the porch is doing more towards attracting the attention of the Lord than the man who gives $1,000 toward building a new church. When she is gone, my boy, it will be a whole lot of satisfaction to know that you always spoke of her tenderly as "mother."—Ex.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. O. Stockland, Pastor of the first M. E. church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by G. H. Hunt.

W. C. T. U. Notes

The county convention of the W. C. T. U. will be held in Genoa September 26 and 27. A gold medal oratorical and silver medal musical contest will be held among other interesting things, and we have been very fortunate in securing Mrs. Leanova Lake, president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society and one of the very best speakers the W. C. T. U. have on their national platform to be with us and speak one evening.

Wednesday afternoon, July 25, the W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. G. C. Rowen where Mrs. Palmer of Sycamore, county superintendent of Mothers' Meetings and Cradle Roll works, after explaining the work and the need of such an organization all over the county, proceeded to organize such a society for our town with Mrs. Floyd Rowen as superintendent and Mrs. Hoover as assistant. A goodly number joined and it is hoped that other mothers will unite and make it both interesting and profitable, for surely mothers are most deeply interested in their children's welfare with education and example.

An oratorical silver medal contest will be held at the M. E. church next Wednesday, Aug. 8, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. the contestants being Velma Crawford, Ruth Crawford, Jessie Griggs, Lizzie Fite, Irma Perkins, Ruth Slater, and Irene Awe. Good music will be furnished. Admission 10c.

The W. C. T. U. have decided not to hold any meetings through the month of August on account of so many of the members being away at Camp meeting, Chautauquas, etc. The next meeting will be held September 6. Place of meeting to be announced later.
