Landlord McDowell was a passenger to Kirkland Saturday, returning Sunday.
FOR SALE:—About 25 bushels of timothy seed. Call on or address Geo. W. Buck, Genoa, Ill.

Every scholar should make an effort to get the "Life of Columbus" in the JOURNAL contest.
Ed. Nash was up from Burlington Tuesday and was a pleasant caller at the JOURNAL office.
Professor John Clark of the Kingston High School was in our city last Saturday.

Postmaster Sisley took up a collection at the caucus Saturday for the benefit of the caucus clerks.
Floyd Rowen, Kingston's most popular grocer was having work done at the JOURNAL office Monday.
Found: A pair of spectacles. Owner can have by proving and paying for this notice. Journal.

TO RENT:—A large choice pasture, of easy access and with plenty of water. A. R. Cohoon.
Harry Reed and family moved into the Stephens property formerly occupied by A. L. Abbott last Saturday.
Mrs. John Wylde came over from Belvidere last Saturday and remained over Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Confer.

Last Saturday, caucus day, was a very nasty day under foot but pleasant over head, however no one from here went that way.
Thos. Hutchison is still unable to resume his work at Swan's grocery. R. H. Lord is assisting in the morning delivery this week.

Furnished rooms to rent:—We will rent a few rooms furnished for house keeping to small family. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.
FARM FOR SALE:—A highly improved farm in the town of Franklin. Every foot a desirable piece of soil. Call at the JOURNAL office for full description.
Frank Stubenrauch, who has been assisting Cohoon & Stanley the past three weeks with their sewing machine business, left for Galesburg last Monday.

NEW BUGGY FOR SALE:—Owing to the owner moving west will sell at a sacrifice a nearly new, high grade Henny top buggy. Address the JOURNAL.
Messrs Wells & Olmstead are testing one of those gasoline lamps in their store. It does the work of three argand lamps and to a much better degree.

A week or so ago we stated that Mrs. Geo. Corson was suffering from her old affliction, but we learn now that several doctors have pronounced it a permanent cure. She is still confined to her bed but from a liver complaint.
At the last meeting of the Woodmen by a vote of the comp, it was decided to donate the use of the Woodman hall to the Royal Neighbors on the evening of Friday March 29, at which time the latter order will give an entertainment and celebrate their anniversary.
We are sorry to chronicle the fact that last Friday Mrs. Ed Kuzler received word from her home in Switzerland stating that her father was dead. He was stricken with paralysis and died some three weeks ago. Mrs. Kuzler has the sympathy of many friends as well as that of the JOURNAL in her sorrow.

Wm. Flint was here Friday and Saturday.
Fred White was over from Sycamore Sunday.
Bert Perry and wife were Sunday visitors in Genoa.
Ain't it warm. So are those fried cakes at Browne's.

If your horses, cattle, hogs, or chickens are not doing well, go to K. Jackman & Son and get a package of stock food.
John Burne, probably the oldest man in Kane county, died last Sunday at his home near Hampshire. He was about ninety-five.

Those candidates that are running for office ought to use an abundant supply of Browne's bakery goods as they would be physically able to stand defeat.
FOR RENT:—On account of Mr. Davan deciding to move away from Genoa I offer my new residence property on South Genoa street for rent, either the whole to a single family or will rent to two desirable families. Furnace heat, bath, barn, etc. Inquire of owner. J. B. Smith.

The C.B. & Q., the Great Northern, and the Northern Pacific railroad companies have all been merged into one great system of railway comprising 18,745 miles of track. The deal was brought about by the two latter companies leasing the Burlington system but what the new system will be called has not been given out.

The Illinois Central have celebrated their fiftieth birthday by presenting medals to all employees who have been with the company one year or more prior to February 10 last. The medal given to the section laborer is exactly the same as that given the president of the company. In size they are about the same as a silver half dollar, on one side of which is the trade mark of the company and on the reverse side the name of the employee and the number of years of service.

Our village board are contemplating making a contract with C. J. McDowell for putting in twenty gasoline arc lamps at an agreed price per month or year. Some of the people are somewhat skeptical as to whether the lamps will hold out as well as the sample lamp has shown and for this reason it is thought advisable to give a lighting contract instead of buying the lamps. The lamp that has been on exhibition at Sycamore and Main streets on several occasions has attracted a good deal of attention and shown up well, although it has not been out on any stormy night.

Now that the township election is practically settled the next in order for the voters to bestir themselves over is the selection of candidates for village offices. Up to the present time we have heard of no slate being formed and perhaps it is better that none should be prepared thus giving the voters a free rein to express their wishes. But again this would be a drawback as some of the best people whom the voters would prefer, absolutely refuse to have their names presented in any capacity. The officers to be chosen are President of the Board, three Trustees and a Clerk. The terms of President Stott, Trustees Patterson, Olmstead, and Abraham and Cleak Perkins expiring.

Aunt Rhoda Slater is improving.
S. S. Slater for rugs and carpets.
Lester Olmstead is reported some better.
Mrs. Mary Flint is feeling considerably better.
I will go to S. S. Slater to-day for wall paper.

Wm. Cohoon of Belvidere was here last Thursday attending to business.
Cohoon & Stanley received a large car load of Rock Island machinery last Monday.
Harry Low has been on the sick list but we are informed that he is one now on the mend.

Miss Mamie Daven was a passenger for St. Louis Saturday where she goes to make a short visit.
H. E. Prouty was a passenger to Hebron Saturday where he visited with his family over Sunday.
Chas Maynard of the McCormick Harvester Co. was here Friday looking after his company's affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kuzler entertained a few friends at a birthday dinner last Tuesday in honor of Mr. Kuzler.
Mrs. Jennie Gordon left here for Chicago yesterday where she is to receive medical and surgical treatment.
Geo. Bute and family moved to Belvidere last Friday where he and his son will work in the National factory.

F. O. Swan, John Lembke and Wel's & Olmstead have added the improvement of new oil pumps to their stores.
A couple of Italian fiddlers were on our streets Tuesday sawing away their strains of chords and discords of foreign music.
The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Miss Mary Patterson, Saturday March 23, at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Wm. Whipple and daughter Jennie took the early train for Evanston Saturday morning where the latter visited over Sunday.
Mrs. Mary Farr returned from Sycamore several days ago and is now at the home of A. R. Cohoon and wife where she is somewhat on the sick roll.

In 1899 the Modern Woodmen society paid 1,819 death claims, amounting to $3,453,550. Last year the society paid 2,236 death claims, amounting to $4,177,346.30.
Mrs. Mary Franssen and son Harry and Miss Mary Bender of Genoa arrived here today the latter to remain indefinitely at the home of Mrs. S. A. Corkings.—Chronicle (DeKalb).

Aunt Rhoda Slater had the misfortune to fall and hurt herself quite badly last Friday. No bones were broken but considerable pain was borne by her from the fall. Her daughter, Mrs. C. D. Flint arrived from Lake Bluff Saturday night and is with her now.
At its February session the board of directors of the Modern Woodmen society allowed death claims amounting to $486,600. Of the claims allowed, 21 were due to accident; 4 to appendicitis; 46 to pneumonia; 10 to Bright's disease; 22 to heart trouble; 21 to typhoid fever; 36 to consumption; and 9 to cancer.

The total benefit membership of the six leading fraternal benefit societies on January 1, 1901, was as follows: Modern Woodmen of America, 537,858; Ancient Order of United Workmen, 414,591; Royal Arcanum, 210,074; Knights of Maccabees of the World, 203,832; Independent Order of Foresters, 177,644; Woodmen of the World, 129,837.

Last Monday Pullman Buffet car Parnassus passed through Genoa over the C. M. & St. P. Road bound for Rock Island. It had on board the legislative committee together with several invited guests among them being Geo. E. Sisley who is a hanger on for a state job. They are on a tour of inspection of all state institutions. In the forenoon they went to Geneva from Elgin over the electric road and visited the industrial school for girls, returning to Elgin they were banqueted at the asylum and left at three o'clock for Rock Island.

An Odd Fish from New Zealand.
There is a curious fish existing in New Zealand known by the Maoris as the kakawai. It is discovered at a depth of one or two feet under the ground, and is encountered on digging in the soil. It is from two to three inches in length, and is long and slender, silvery and shaded like a minnow, though more tapering. It appears to be dead when dug up, especially in the summer, when it will die at once if placed in water; but if found in May or early June, when the ground is commencing to be thoroughly moist, it will live if put in a vessel of water. Furthermore, it will shed its skin, which then sinks to the bottom of the tank. When the fish is dug up in the summer, a growth of skin or a dry, gummy exudation is found, which seals up the head and gills, and enables it to live through dry weather. In the winter the fish swims and propagates in marshy pools or damp places. After shedding the skin small red spots appear on the body of the fish, which have suggested a resemblance to a small trout, but the kakawai, according to the natives, existed in New Zealand long before trout were introduced from England.—New York Post.

MADAME BAVEAS TESTIFIES.
A Distinguished Lady After Travelling for Six Years in Search of Health, at Last Finds It in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 18.—(Special.)—This popular resort numbers among its patrons many of the world's most distinguished men and women, but none more so than Madam Isabelle Ellen Baveas, Life Governor of the Free Masons Grand Lodge of England.

Madam Baveas, like most of the other visitors, came here in search of health. She was not disappointed, but her cure was not found in the virtue of the baths, but in a few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which she found on sale here, and which is being used and with wonderful success by a number of the visitors to Hot Springs. She says:

"I traveled almost constantly for the past six years in the interests of my Society, and my health gradually became broken down, through the change of food, water, climate, etc. The doctors told me I had diabetes and advised me to go to the Springs, as they could do nothing for me. While there my attention was called to Dodd's Kidney Pills by a fellow sufferer, who had been greatly benefited by using them. I profited by her experience and bought a box, and then another, and so on until I had used seven boxes. It is with gratitude that I state that they cured me completely, and I am now able to take up the duties of life once more. I am very thankful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for me, and as a grateful woman shall never hesitate to recommend them to anyone suffering with Diabetes."

The very satisfactory experience of this distinguished woman should be an encouragement to all similar sufferers.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are 50c. a box, six boxes for $2.50. Buy them from your local druggist if you can. If he cannot supply you, send to the Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Simple Country Living.

A man may enjoy bounding health, and know very little about the cause of his happiness; and alas! a man may suffer all the woes of dyspepsia, and have no certain knowledge as to the cause of his misery. "I'm a confirmed dyspeptic; that's the reason I look so old," said Mr. Collander, gazing almost enviously at the red-bronze face of his former chum at college, who had dropped down from the country into Mr. Collander's city office. "What you need is simple country food, man," said his old friend, clapping him heartily on the shoulder. "Come and visit my wife and me on the farm for a while, and we'll set you up. It's rich city living that's too much for you. Now, take breakfast, for instance. All I have is two good cups of coffee, a couple of fresh doughnuts, a bit of steak with a baked potato, some fresh biscuit or muffins, and either griddle cakes or a piece of pie to top off with. What do you have?" The city man looked at his red-cheeked friend, who stood waiting for the confirmation of his idea. "A cup of hot water and two slices of dry toast," he responded, soberly. "But if you think a simple diet like yours would help me, I will make one more attempt to be a healthy man."—Youth's Companion.

Coughing Leads to Consumption.

Kemp's Balsam will stop the cough at once. Go to your druggist today and get a sample bottle free. Sold in 25 and 50 cent bottles. Go at once; delays are dangerous.

Seattle purposes to build a canal eight miles long from Puget sound to Lake Washington, which is twenty miles long and 200 feet deep, and will make an ideal harbor.

Should Be in Every Household.

A jar of RUBEFACIENT should be kept in every house. It is the most wonderful specific in all cases of internal inflammation and will speedily nip in the bud any case of Pneumonia, Diphtheria, La Grippe, etc. Write to the Rubefacient Co., Newton Upper Falls, Mass., for free booklet.

FUNERAL OF GEN. HARRISON

Final Marks of Respect to Dead Statesman.

IS PRONOUNCED A PATRIOT.

President McKinley at the Funeral Sunday Afternoon—The Entire Nation Mourns with the State of Indiana the Loss of Her Foremost Citizen.

In the presence of 15,000 friends, neighbors and admirers the body of General Benjamin Harrison, former president of the United States, was Sunday afternoon lowered to its last resting place in the beautiful Crown Hill cemetery.

The scene was deeply impressive. Indiana was paying her final honor to her foremost citizen. The nation was bidding farewell to a clean honest, patriotic and fearless leader—a man tried on the field of battle, and the no less exacting arena of statesmanship and found wanting in neither. He had won abundant honor during life; in death the public to whom he had endeared himself withheld no honor or respect which could be shown. Beside the coffin stood the chief executive of the United States, men distinguished in all walks of life, of all shades of political color; mourners from every state in the union; back of them, massed as far as the eye could reach, were the thousands who knew General Harrison as a great man and leader; all gathered to pay reverential tribute to his memory, the silent yet eloquent mark of respect that Americans show to a thorough American.

Sorrow Is General.

It is doubtful if any public man, at least in this generation, was borne to his last resting place among so many manifestations of respect. Of passionate grief there was little beyond the members of his family, but the tribute of respect was universal. It came from all alike, from those of his own political faith, and from those who differed with him; from men who have been his lifelong friends and from those who knew him merely by sight and to whom he never spoke. It came from women and children, from white and black, from all conditions and kinds of people. There was no exception anywhere to the expression that the nation had lost one of its ablest men and the greatest man of his generation in his own state; there was but the one feeling—that a man had died who was honest at all times with himself and with others and whose ability and character were such as the nation could ill afford to lose.

Granted a Perfect Day.

The weather was unsurpassable, bright sunlight—the warm breath of spring in every breeze, and yet in the air a touch of winter that brought the blood to the cheek and the sparkle to the eye. The services at the church and grave were simple in the extreme.

all in most excellent taste, and, like the proceedings yesterday, there was an utter absence of friction in everything that was done. All was well ordered and well performed. At the Harrison home before the remains were taken to the First Presbyterian church, were the full service was held, there were brief exercises for the members of the family and more immediate friends of General Harrison. Possibly 150 people

Passed Spurious Check.

Marvin Barringer of St. Paul was arrested at Milwaukee charged with having passed a check signed with a fictitious name on the Hanan-De Muth Shoe company. It is said that other stores and business men are also victims. Barringer has been in Milwaukee for about six months. During this time he has been employed to solicit subscriptions for a blue book for the Calumet club, and is said to have been successful in his canvass.

were present. Mrs. Harrison did not appear, but remained in her room until it was time to leave for the church. President McKinley, accompanied by Governor Durbin, called at the house about 1 o'clock. At about the same time came the members of President Harrison's cabinet and others continually arrived until the short services were over.

House Was Crowded.

The people sat in the parlors, filled the halls and a number of them sat upon the stairs while Dr. Haines read a short passage from the scriptures and made a few remarks touching the life and character of General Harrison, as did Dr. Nicolls of St. Louis, and after a brief prayer by Dr. Haines the services were over. The florist's wagon backed up to the front of the house and a number of the larger pieces were loaded into the vehicle preparatory to being taken to the church. Word was then sent to Mrs. Harrison that the time had come for the body to be removed to the church, and she at once came down from her room into the parlor. There were a few minutes of bustle, whispered directions by the undertaker and his assistant and a marshaling of the honorary pall bearers into column of twos. The doors were thrown wide open and the honorary pallbearers, who were General Benjamin F. Tracy of New York; John Wanamaker of Philadelphia; W. H. H. Miller of Indianapolis; John W. Noble of St. Louis; Charles Foster of Fostoria, Ohio; General Lew Wallace of Indianapolis; Judson Harmon of Cincinnati and William A. Woods of Indianapolis, came slowly down the walk leading to the street.

Carried by Noted Men.

After them came the active pallbearers bearing the casket. They were A. L. Mason, James Whitcomb Riley, Evans Woolen, Harry J. Milligan, Clifford Arriek, William C. Bobbs, Harry S. New, Howard Cole, John T. Griffiths, Newton B. Tarkington, Hilton U. Brown and Samuel Reid. Behind the casket came Mrs. Harrison with her brother, Lieutenant Commander Parker of the navy, and little Elizabeth Harrison.

At the Cemetery.

It was nearly 5 o'clock when the line of relatives and friends came up the graveled path to the tomb. The stillness of evening had come. There was hardly a sound in the air. On the arm of Lieutenant Commander Parker Mrs. Harrison took her place at the head of the coffin, which had been borne to the side of the grave by the pallbearers. Through the heavy mourning veil which she wore there were visible marked signs of the grief through which she had passed. Her lips trembled continually, and it was evident that she kept her emotion under control by the greatest effort.

Near her on the left stood the general's son, Russell B. Harrison, with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. McKee. Col. Harrison kept his eyes fixed on the casket, never turning them away from it during the service. Mrs. Russell Harrison and Mrs. McKee were composed, but now and then a little storm of emotion would shake them and their faces would be buried in their handkerchiefs. The brothers of Gen. Harrison—John Scott Harrison and Carter B. Harrison—stood close together, old men with faces that revealed how deeply they felt their loss. Mrs. Newcomer and Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Morris were together at the side of the grave. The other relatives stood to the left and slightly below them in the circle which was formed for the service of burial.

President McKinley came to the grave with Mrs. Durbin and stood with her during the brief service. When the prayer was offered the president was seemingly in deep thought and remained so with bowed head after the final word had been said.

Gen. Harrison a Patriot.

The Rev. Mr. Haines in his brief sermon at the house said: "What a noble example he furnished of intelligent and courageous and continuing patriotism. He felt himself to the last to be a vital part of the nation. He did not lose his interest in its welfare after he came out of office. On the contrary, that interest deepened and increased until its strength upon his mind and heart was heavy."

Dewet's Army Is Broken.

Advices have reached Cape Town from Orange River Colony to the effect that Dewet's command at Senekal has been completely broken up and scattered beyond the power of the Boers to collect it again. The prospects of peace are still considered hopeful. The Boer losses last month were 160 killed, 400 wounded and 1,000 captured and surrendered. Owing to the heavy rains Gen. French's transport difficulties are still enormous.

FARMING IN WESTERN CANADA.

The Great Natural Fertility of the Soil in Manitoba, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

What Has Been Done by Premier Greenway, Himself a Leading Farmer.

Hon. Thomas Greenway, Premier of the Province of Manitoba, one of the foremost farmers of Western Canada, writes an excellent article to the press, from which the following extracts are made:

The writer came to Manitoba from Ontario in the autumn of 1873, and has ever since been engaged in agricultural pursuits. From the day, nearly twenty-two years ago, when he selected his homestead, he has had unbounded faith in the country as a place where farming can be successfully carried on, if pursued upon proper lines. There is a large number in this province who should rather be called "wheat-growers" than farmers. On account of the facilities, natural advantages, and therefore cheapness with which wheat can be grown, no doubt many have done exceedingly well by raising wheat only; still, it is far from ideal farming. Not only will such a course, if persisted in, have the effect of causing the land to run out, as has been the experience of those who pursued the same plan in the wheat-producing prairie States to the south of us, but it is far from being the most profitable course to adopt.

This fact is already being demonstrated in Manitoba. Let the farms in this Western country be managed upon the lines which were successful in the Eastern Provinces, and much more can be done here in a given time than was ever done in the East. The probabilities of failure are practically nil. Upon the farm there should be found horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, with respect to his means and the extent of his holding. The wanton waste which has hitherto been practiced by many farmers, that of burning vast quantities of excellent fodder after threshing is done, should cease; it should all be used upon the farm and converted into the old, sensible kind of fertilizer manure, and afterwards be returned to the soil, so that what has been taken from it by the crop may be restored. Although admitting that the great natural fertility of the soil in Manitoba and the success that has attended the growing of wheat after wheat for years upon the same land have a tendency to make such a course as the one mentioned tempting, yet, if continued, wheat growing upon the same land year after year is undoubtedly a mistake.

The writer knows of no country that offers advantages so great to the agriculturist as does Manitoba. The various branches of farming can be carried on successfully, as twenty-two years of practical operations and observations of what others are doing have proven. To those desiring to make new homes for themselves, the low price of some of the best lands in the world (although rapidly advancing in price this year) offers still great opportunities. To all such the invitation is cordially given to "Come and see." There need be no poor people here. There is land for all who choose to come, land upon which happy homes can be established, and from which ample resources can be gathered against old age. All that a man needs to achieve competence in this domain is common sense and industry. With these qualifications he is bound to succeed.

For information regarding free homestead lands, apply to any agent of the government whose advertisement appears elsewhere in these columns.

ALARMING MORTALITY

Noticeable Among the Weak and Ailing.

SPRING THE TIME DEATH REARS ITS LARGEST HARVEST.

There is a Way of Eluding the Grim Destroyer.

Every Spring it is noticeable how many people are taken away that we have been accustomed to see in our daily life.

Statistics show that at no other season of the year does so many deaths occur.

Especially large is the mortality among weak and sickly people.

The reason for this is apparent. The body that is weakened by age or disease has much to contend with during the Winter months. Insufficient exercise frequently has been taken. Too much starchy and fatty foods have been eaten. The system has been allowed to become run down, and when Spring comes with its bright, sunshiny days, older people will begin to realize that their vitality has become very low. The same thing is true of people who are naturally sickly and weak.

This is the season of the year when even a strong person feels at his worst. That tired, restless feeling is experienced by too many.

There need not be as many deaths this year as usually take place. A little care will ward off many Spring funerals. If one is weak or ailing they should take time by the forelock and take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. This great medicine has been in many cases, and will continue to be, the means by which the black angel of Death has been driven from the threshold. It dispels the grim destroyer in a scientific way, for it purifies the blood and gives strength and vitality to the nerves. It tones up and restores to a healthy condition all of the great life-giving organs of the body.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will enable those who take it to throw off little ills that prove dangerous only when they attack a system already wasted and weakened.

From many people, who have experienced benefit from this greatest of all life-lengtheners, comes the following from the famous General Longstreet of 1217 New Hampshire Ave., Washington, D. C. He says:

"It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony with many others for Dr. Greene's Remedy, which I have used with highly beneficial results, and I am able to recommend its virtues from experience. I have used it for catarrh and have derived help."

Mr. Wellington Hynes, Elizabethtown, N. Y., writes:

"I feel it my duty to tell how much good Dr. Greene's Nervura has done me. I was so run down that I could not sleep at night and everything worried me. I had no appetite and could not work, my head ached all the time and there was an all-gone feeling in my stomach, and I was always looking on the dark side of everything. I began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and in less than three weeks I felt like a new man. I can now do as much work as is expected of a man my age. I advise anyone who is troubled to take Dr. Greene's Nervura. Do not go to a doctor but get a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura. It is cheaper than a doctor's bill."

The latter part of Mr. Hynes' advice might be profitably disregarded, however, if you should feel you would like the advice of a physician. You can have such advice and have it free if you will write or call on the greatest known blood and nerve specialist, Dr. Greene, 35 W. 14th St., New York City.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

PRINTER'S INK THE SUBJECT LAST SUNDAY.

Good Influence of Newspapers and Books — The Public Conscience is Easily Awakened — Letter-Writing a Good Habit for the Young.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)
Washington, March 17.—In a new way and from a peculiar text Dr. Talmage discourses of good influences brought to bear for the world's improvement. The text is Ezekiel ix., 2, "And one man among them was clothed with linen, with a writer's inkhorn by his side."

The poem from which my text is taken is epic, lyric, dramatic, weird and overpowering. It is more than Homeric or Dantesque. No one ever had such divine dreams as Ezekiel. In a vision this prophet had seen wrathful angels, destroying angels, each with a sword, but in my text he sees a merciful angel with an inkhorn. The receptacle for the ink in olden time was made out of the horn of a cow or a ram or a roebuck, as now it is made out of metal or glass, and therefore was called the inkhorn, as now we say inkstand. We have all spoken of the power of the sword, of the power of wealth, of the power of office, of the power of social influence, but today I speak of the power for good or evil in the inkstand. It is upon your tables, holding a black or blue or red liquid. It is a fortress, an armory, a gateway, a ransom or a demolition. "You mistake," says some one; "it is the pen that has the power." No, my friend. What is the influence of a dry pen? Pass it up and down a sheet of paper, and it leaves no mark. It expresses no opinion. It gives no warning. It spreads no intelligence. It is the liquid which the pen dips out of the inkstand that does the work. Here and there a celebrated pen, with which a Declaration of Independence or a Magna Charta or a treaty was signed has been kept in literary museum or national archives, but for the most part the pens, whether, as of old, made out of reed or later of wing of bird or still later of metallic substance, have disappeared, while the liquid which the pens took from the inkstand remains in scrolls which, if put together, would be large enough to enwrap the round world. For practical, for moral, for religious, for eternal purposes, I speak of the mission of "the writer's inkhorn."

Newspaper Impressions.
A wrong theory is abroad that the newspaper impression is ephemeral. Because we read and cast it aside in an hour and never see it again we are not to judge that we are parted from its influence. No volume of 500 pages makes such impression upon the people as the daily newspaper. It is not what we put away carefully upon the shelf and once in a while refer to that has as close relation to our welfare as the story of what the world is now doing or has recently done. Yesterday has more to do with today than something occurring a century previous. The engineers who now guide the rail trains, the captains who now command the ships, the architects who now design the buildings, the batons that now control the orchestras, the legislators who now make the laws, the generals who now march the hosts, the rulers who now govern the nations, the inkhorns that now flood the world with intelligence—these are what we have most to do with.

You have all seen what is called indelible ink, which is a weak solution of silver nitrate, and that ink you can not rub out or wash out. Put it there, and it stays. Well, the liquid of the editorial and reportorial inkstands is an indelible ink. It puts upon the souls of the passing generations characters of light or darkness that time cannot wash out and eternity cannot efface. Forever indelible. Be careful how you use it. The impression made with it will be resplendent or repulsive on the day for which all other days were made.

But how shall I speak of the inkhorn of the world's evangelization? Oh, how many loving and brilliant and glorious pens have been dipped into it! Thomas a Kempis dipped into it and brought up his "Imitation of Christ." Horace Bushnell dipped into it and brought up "Every Man's Life a Plan of God." Thomas Binney dipped into it and brought up his "Weigh House Chapel Discourses." Conybeare dipped into it and brought up the "Life and Epistles of Paul." Archbishop Trench dipped into it and brought up the "Epistles to the Seven Churches." Stuart Robinson dipped into it and brought up "Discourses of Redemption." Austin Phelps dipped into it and brought up "The Still Hour." Mark Hopkins dipped into it and brought up "Evidence of Christianity." Thomas Guthrie dipped into it and brought up "The Gospel in Ezekiel." John Cumming dipped into it and brought up "The Apocalypse." Oh, the opulence of Christian literature! Oh, the mighty streams of evangelistic power that have poured from the writer's inkhorns that appeared in Ezekiel's vision!

The Mothers' Letters.
While you recognize the distinguished ones who have dipped into the inkstand of the world's evangelization do not forget that there are hundreds of thousands of unknown men and women who are engaged in inconspicuous ways doing the same thing! How many anxious mothers writing to the boys in town! How many sisters writing encouragement to brothers far away! How many invalids bolstered up in bed, the inkhorn on the stand at their side, writing letters of condolence to those worse off than themselves! They are flying all the time kind words, gospel words, helpful words, saving words. Call the evangelistic inkhorn into service in the early morning, when you feel well and you are grateful for the protection during your sleeping hours, and write before you retire at close of day to those who all night long will be saying, "Would to God it were morning!" How many bruised and disappointed and wronged souls of earth would be glad to get a

The Author's Responsibilities.
Furthermore, the inkstand of the business man has its mission. Between now and the hour of your demise, O commercial man, O professional man, there will not be a day when you can not dip from the inkhorn a message that will influence temporal and eternal destiny. There is a rash young man running into wild speculation, and with as much ink as you can put on the pen at one time you may save him from the Niagara rapids of a ruined life. On the next street there is a young man started in business who, through lack of patronage or mistake in purchase of goods or want of adaptation, is on the brink of collapse. One line of ink from your pen will save him from being an underling all his life and start him on a career that will win him a fortune which will enable him to become an endower of libraries, an opener of art galleries and builder of churches.

Furthermore, great are the responsibilities of the author's inkhorn. All the people, or nearly all the people, read, and that which they read decides their morals or immorals, their prosperity or failure, their faith or their unbelief, their purity or corruption, their heaven or hell. Show me any man's library, great or small, and after examining the books, finding those with leaves uncut, but displayed for sake of the binding, and those worn with frequent perusal, and without ever seeing the man or knowing his name, I will tell you his likes and his dislikes; his morals, good or bad or indifferent; his qualifications for business or artistic or professional or mechanical life. The best index to any man's character is the book he prefers above all others. Oh, the power of a book for good or evil!

The Influence of Books.
Through books we sit down and talk with the mightiest spirits of all the ages. We accompany Tennyson on his spring-time walk as he falls upon his knees in the meadows, crying to his companion: "Violets, man, violets! Smell them." Or we ride with Trajan in his triumphal march, or stand with Godfrey at the taking of Jerusalem, or with arctic explorer hear the crash of the icebergs, or are received with Hernando Cortes in the halls of Montezuma, or watch in the observatory as Herschel with his telescope captures another star, or the ink in the inkhorn turns red as blood, and we are at Marengo and Arbelia, and Eylau and Borodino and Leipsic; or we sail with Hamilcar from Carthage to Palermo, or we see Galilei fighting for the solar system, and around us gather for conversation Aristotle and Plato and Robert South and Sydney Smith and Locke and Samuel Rogers and Chaucer and Paul Richter and Swift and Hazlitt and Leigh Hunt and Talleyrand and Burke and Edward Irving, while, to make music for us, Handel and Mozart and Mendelssohn come in, and we watch Columbus landing, and see John Harvard's legacy of £900 paid over for the founding of Harvard university, and Joshua Reynolds and David Wilkie and Rembrandt tell us of their pictures. Oh, the books! Thank God for the books, and thanks be to all the authors! May the inkhorn ever be under divine inspiration!

When a bad book is printed you do well to blame the publisher, but most of all blame the author. The malaria rose from his inkstand. The poison that caused the moral or spiritual death dropped in the fluid from the tip of his pen. The manufacturer of that ink could tell you that it is made of tannin and salt of iron and nutgalls and green vitriol, but many an author has dipped from his inkstand hypercriticism and malevolence and slander and salaciousness as from a fountain of death. But blessed be God for the author's inkstand, in 10,000 studies which are dedicated to pure intelligence, highest inspiration and grandest purpose. They are the inkstands out of which will be dipped the redemption of the world. The destroying angels with their swords seen in Ezekiel's vision will be finally overcome by the merciful angel with the writer's inkhorn.

Stocum's Spray.
England, it seems, has something to learn from America, even in the matter of boat building. Capt. Joshua Stocum, author of "Sailing Alone Around the World," has just received a letter from a stranger, bearing an East Indian stamp, and postmarked Berbera (Africa), London, and New York, in which his correspondent expresses a desire to possess a boat built on the lines of the famous Sloop Spray. "I have an island in the Indian ocean," the Englishman writes, "separated by some 40 miles from the main group at which steamers call. Its produce has to be ferried twice a month to the steamer station. Often, in the monsoons, the seas run high, and a stout boat is necessary, as well as one that can sail well to windward, and do something in light airs. A boat like the Spray would just do, and would also be a great pleasure, for there are numbers of neighboring islands one would like to visit, and sometimes a run to Bombay, or Ceylon, or Mombasa, or Maritius, would be possible." Needless to say, the gallant captain lost no time in forwarding the Spray's specifications, in answer to this flattering request.

New Kind of Phonograph.
At the last meeting of the Berlin Polytechnic society an engineer named Leisner explained a new kind of phonograph for service at sea, writes a Berlin correspondent. By coupling together membranes, between each of which a microphone is fixed, he has succeeded in so strengthening the tone emitted by all sound that any noise can be heard for a distance of three sea miles. It is suggested that by means of this invention a commander at sea will be able to issue his orders to all the ships in his fleet, and that in the same manner ships will be able to communicate with each other in the densest fog. Of course, it would be equally useful on land, and railway accidents, it is thought, may be also greatly diminished, as warnings could be given at long distances apart.

Tenniel's Successor.
Of Linley Sambourne, Sir John Tenniel's successor on Punch, it is said that he is short and stout and would easily be taken for a prosperous gentleman farmer, whose only thought was crops and horses. He lives in a charming and artistic house in Kensington, one of whose features is a vast collection of photographs to be used in his works as a cartoonist. They are assorted, we are told, into scores of departments. Kings, queens, soldiers, sailors, judges, members of parliament, actors, actresses, celebrities, notabilities, animals—there are thousands of them in these drawers. There are also photographs of the uniforms of the armies and courts of all European countries.

From Judge to Constable.
Daniel R. Magruder, former judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals, is a constable at Annapolis. To the protest of the citizens that constables had not been appointed the board in charge of the matter replied that men could not be found to accept the office. When Judge Magruder stated that plenty of good men could be found it was suggested in banter that the judge should accept, and he did.

Burn Negro at Stake.
Revolting savagery characterized the burning at the stake at Corsicana, Texas, of John Henderson, a negro who murdered Mrs. Conway Younger a few days ago. It could hardly be called the work of a mob. It was a county event in which every resident who could do so took part. It was not the result of a passing fit of fury, done by men whose passions were aroused before they had an opportunity to form a better judgment. A day was given over to the torture.

Three Lives Lost in a Fire.
Three hostlers and seventy-three horses were burned in a fire at the Morton livery stable in San Francisco. The fire broke out at 3 o'clock and spread so rapidly that the horses were smothered before they could be taken out. Three men, who were sleeping over the hay loft, had no chance to escape before the dense smoke choked them. They were Charles White, who went there from Chicago last May, and James Richard White and Charles Young, both Californians.

Lincoln Park Hyena Eats Its Infant.
A hyena was born in Lincoln Park, Chicago, and was eaten by its mother a short time afterward. The hyena was the first of its species to be born in the park.

GEN. HARRISON IS DEAD

Ex-President Passed Away at 4:45 on Wednesday.

KEEN SORROW OF THE PEOPLE

Doctors Unable to Prolong His Life Until the Arrival of His Son and Daughter — McKinley Issues Proclamation — History of His Career.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 14.—Without passing out of the unconscious state in which he had lain for hours, Gen. Benjamin Harrison breathed his last at 4:45 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, in his Indianapolis home. The death scene was an affecting one, but signs of the deep grief felt by all at the passing of the distinguished statesman were restrained.

GEN. BENJAMIN HARRISON. (Born Aug. 20, 1833. Died March 13, 1901.)

and it was not until Dr. Jameson had silently given the signal that the end had come that there was a full giving away to tears. Mrs. Harrison bore up bravely, and it was only after the final dissolution that the strain of the week's illness told. She then sank exhausted into the arms of a friend. The little daughter, Elizabeth, stood silently holding to her mother's hand and looking from the face of her mother to the pallid countenance of her dying father. Russell B. Harrison, the general's son, who was called from Washington, did not get home in time to see his father before death came. Mrs. McKee, the general's daughter, also failed to reach him in time.

Friends Called to Bedside.
Many neighbors and close friends of the general had gathered in the downstairs rooms of the Harrison home in North Delaware street during the afternoon, knowing that the end could not be far removed. Toward 4 o'clock Dr. Jameson saw that the event that had been expected for more than twenty-four hours was soon to come, so Mrs. Harrison and those nearest to the general were notified of the true condition of affairs. The little party moved to the chamber where the general was laboring for breath. He gave no sign of recognition, but reclined in the same unconscious state that had marked his late hours of illness. The doctor bent over and spoke to him, but there was no response or sign of recognition. His respiration, which had been rapid all day, had materially increased and shortly before his death it was at the rate of sixty to the minute.

Gen. Harrison's Illness Lasted Only Six Days and a Half. The first three days he was ill his condition was not thought to be dangerous. One week before his death he walked downtown, a distance of many blocks, and called at the office of Miller & Elam, two of his old friends, one of whom, Mr. Miller, he made attorney-general during his administration. He walked home late that afternoon and in the evening made a social call at the home of Augustus L. Mason. He was apparently in the best of health and remarked while at Mrs. Mason's home that of late he had been feeling better than for a long time.

Seized with a Severe Chill. The next morning he arose feeling as well as usual. After breakfast, however, he was seized with a severe chill. Later in the day, the effects of the chill not passing away as readily as the general thought they should, Dr. Henry Jameson was called and diagnosed the case as an attack of the grip. He thought it was due to the fact that the general in his apparent health had probably exposed himself more than he should have done. The attack was not regarded seriously. It was not until Friday that the general made any complaint that indicated an illness more serious than the grip. On Friday he complained of a pain in his left lung and it was then that his physician foresaw that there might be danger of pneumonia.

Gen. Harrison's Wealth. Gen. Harrison's wealth is variously estimated, public opinion rating it as high as $500,000. Those who are best informed about the ex-president's affairs, however, say he was worth about $250,000 or $300,000. At the time

Those Who Were at the Bedside. The group at the bedside included Mrs. Harrison, W. H. H. Miller, Samuel Miller (his son), the Rev. M. L. Haines (pastor of the First Presbyterian church, which Gen. Harrison had attended for so many years), Secretary Thibbitt, Drs. Jameson and Dorsey, Col. Dan Ransdell (sergeant-at-arms of the United States senate, and a close personal friend of the dead ex-president), Clifford Arlick and the two nurses who have been in constant attendance at the bedside. Gen. Harrison's two sisters and an aunt were also present. Mrs. Harrison knelt at the right-hand side of the bed, her husband's right hand grasped in hers, while Dr. Jameson held the left hand of the dying man, counting the feeble pulse beats. In a few moments after the friends had been summoned to the room the end came, Dr. Jameson announcing the sad fact. The great silence that fell on the sorrowing watchers by the bedside was broken by the voice of Dr. Haines raised in prayer, supplicating consolation for the bereaved wife and family, mingled with the sobs of the mourners.

Democracy Name a Ticket. The democratic city convention of Springfield nominated William O. Converse for mayor by acclamation, no other name being presented. A full city and township ticket was nominated. The republicans have nominated John L. Phillips and a warm contest is promised. The main question at issue is the enforcement of the law in regard to saloons and gambling houses. Both candidates stand pledged to a measure of reform. Springfield has been known for some time past as a "wide open" town and the moral element is demanding a change. There is much speculation as to where the "saloon vote" will be in the election.

A WEEK IN ILLINOIS

RECORD OF HAPPENINGS FOR SEVEN DAYS.

Divorced Wife Sues for Half of the Late Millionaire William Waddingham's Estate—Convict at Joliet Held by Grand Jury for Murder.
Divorced Wife Sues for Half. Mrs. Purlina Waddingham, divorced wife of the late millionaire William Waddingham of St. Clair county, has sued Mrs. Lizzie A. Waddingham, widow of the millionaire, in an effort to have the court determine and enforce her rights in the settlement of the estate. She alleges she was granted a divorce from Waddingham after living with him thirty-five years for his fault, the court adjudging he was the guilty and she the innocent party. Waddingham left all his estate to his widow, but the plaintiff claims that by force of the statutes she is the owner of an undivided half of the property.

Chicago Man is Missing. The mystery that surrounds the disappearance at Springfield of W. L. Manning, said to be a traveling salesman for Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago, threatens to develop into a sensation. Foul play is suspected, and the police are engaged in an effort to unravel the mystery. Manning arrived at Springfield over a week ago and registered at the St. Nicholas hotel. Monday he suddenly disappeared and nothing has since been seen or heard of him. His baggage remains in his room at the hotel, and he carried away with him the key to the room. Messages have been received from his firm, inquiring about him, but up to this time nothing has been learned.

Illinois Militia Elections. In accordance with the recommendation of Col. J. S. Culver, regimental commander, and Gen. Horace S. Clark, brigadier commander, Adjt.-Gen. Reese has refused to confirm the election of William E. Culbertson to be captain of company K, 5th infantry, at Delavan. The recommendation is based upon the alleged unfitness of the officers-elect for the duties of the office. An election to fill the vacancy is called at Delavan for Thursday, March 28. An election for first lieutenant is called in company D, 1st infantry, at Chicago, Wednesday, March 27. The election of Alexander B. McCorker, as second lieutenant of troop D, 1st cavalry, at Springfield, is confirmed.

Democracy Name a Ticket. The democratic city convention of Springfield nominated William O. Converse for mayor by acclamation, no other name being presented. A full city and township ticket was nominated. The republicans have nominated John L. Phillips and a warm contest is promised. The main question at issue is the enforcement of the law in regard to saloons and gambling houses. Both candidates stand pledged to a measure of reform. Springfield has been known for some time past as a "wide open" town and the moral element is demanding a change. There is much speculation as to where the "saloon vote" will be in the election.

Injunction Suit to Be Tried. Attorney-General Hamlin left Springfield for Belleville, Ill., to appear in an injunction suit against the Madison Turf company, Madison, Ill. It has been operating a gambling place, it is alleged, just across from St. Louis, in Illinois. An injunction was secured some time ago to enjoin the company from operating its institution in its entirety. A motion was entered recently to dissolve the injunction.

Aid for Victims of Boiler. At a special meeting of the Chicago Laundrymen's association in the Briggs house in that city, it was decided to donate from the treasury fund $500 for the immediate relief of the employees who are suffering as the result of the boiler explosion in the Doremus laundry Monday. A committee of four was appointed to investigate the needs of the injured persons.

Convict Held for Murder. Adam Geyer of Chicago, serving a term in the penitentiary for murder, was indicted at Joliet for the murder of William Wood, a fellow prisoner, whom he stabbed February 13, the wounds causing death a few days later. The grand jury had the Richton pool cases under consideration and, it is said, will report several true bills.

Alma Prohibition Ticket. A telegram from Salem says the Alma township prohibitionists have nominated the following ticket: Supervisor, Harry S. Shrigley; assessor, T. E. Wilson; collector, Samuel McNeil; constables, George Saunders; justices of the peace, J. F. Brown and Frank Purcell; school trustee, S. McCullough.

Rodenburg May Be Federal Attorney. Congressman William A. Rodenburg of the 21st district, it is said at Lebanon, has been offered the position of federal attorney for the Spanish claims commission at Washington by President McKinley.

Lincoln Park Hyena Eats Its Infant. A hyena was born in Lincoln Park, Chicago, and was eaten by its mother a short time afterward. The hyena was the first of its species to be born in the park.

GEN. HARRISON IS DEAD

Ex-President Passed Away at 4:45 on Wednesday.

KEEN SORROW OF THE PEOPLE

Doctors Unable to Prolong His Life Until the Arrival of His Son and Daughter — McKinley Issues Proclamation — History of His Career.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 14.—Without passing out of the unconscious state in which he had lain for hours, Gen. Benjamin Harrison breathed his last at 4:45 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, in his Indianapolis home. The death scene was an affecting one, but signs of the deep grief felt by all at the passing of the distinguished statesman were restrained.

Friends Called to Bedside. Many neighbors and close friends of the general had gathered in the downstairs rooms of the Harrison home in North Delaware street during the afternoon, knowing that the end could not be far removed. Toward 4 o'clock Dr. Jameson saw that the event that had been expected for more than twenty-four hours was soon to come, so Mrs. Harrison and those nearest to the general were notified of the true condition of affairs. The little party moved to the chamber where the general was laboring for breath. He gave no sign of recognition, but reclined in the same unconscious state that had marked his late hours of illness. The doctor bent over and spoke to him, but there was no response or sign of recognition. His respiration, which had been rapid all day, had materially increased and shortly before his death it was at the rate of sixty to the minute.

Gen. Harrison's Illness Lasted Only Six Days and a Half. The first three days he was ill his condition was not thought to be dangerous. One week before his death he walked downtown, a distance of many blocks, and called at the office of Miller & Elam, two of his old friends, one of whom, Mr. Miller, he made attorney-general during his administration. He walked home late that afternoon and in the evening made a social call at the home of Augustus L. Mason. He was apparently in the best of health and remarked while at Mrs. Mason's home that of late he had been feeling better than for a long time.

Seized with a Severe Chill. The next morning he arose feeling as well as usual. After breakfast, however, he was seized with a severe chill. Later in the day, the effects of the chill not passing away as readily as the general thought they should, Dr. Henry Jameson was called and diagnosed the case as an attack of the grip. FROM CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

Rev Howard Writes an Interesting Letter From the far West.

From the Richmond Gazette:
Editors Gazette:—
I notice some letters in the Gazette from "Pilgrim" in southern California.
They are good, and although before we came to this country they would have sounded strange for mid-winter letters yet from this view-point they seem natural as can be for we see those conditions duplicated day by day, up here in the foot hills, only the variety of fruit here is larger, and the water supply for irrigation very much greater than in the south. The oranges, lemons, pomellos, etc., are also a few weeks earlier here than there, and are some two days nearer the eastern markets.

Of course that part of the state was "boomed" for eastern capital several years ago, and a vast amount of money has been put in there, until "the parched ground has become a pool," and the "desert has blossomed as the rose. It is not likely that any statement of the present beauty of sothern California will be over drawn, but that luxuriance is the result of money, labor and art spent in irigation, fertilization, plating, planting, pruning and building;
while as yet the wealth of the Sacramento valley consists largely in the natural strength and circumstances of the soil. There seems no doubt but that the fertility of the ground is greater than further south, while the visible water supply in rain and mountain snow is far beyond that of the southern counties.

It is fortunate, however, that the parts of the state around Los Angeles were settled first, in the latte-day railway "booming," else the greater esse of northern California's cultivation would have made the reclaiming of those southern desert areas—for so they were by nature—well nigh impossible. In the early days the excitement in these parts was over gold, lumber and cattle, and people thus engaged had very little inclination to cultivate the soil for vegetables and fruits.
Times are changing however, and soon there will be abundance of fruit, vegetables and chickens, along with the products of the mines, which are not nearly exhausted. One train passing here last week was said to have had 18,000
Nebraska chickens on board for San Francisco.

The great problem now is to so arrange as to get the fruits of California into the markets with a just profit to the grower, shipper, and carrier, and fair price to the consumer. Heretofore there have been in the main but two ways of disposing of the fruit—ship fresh, or can it. There is a story told to illustrate the readiness of the Englishman to "see a point." One of them asked, "what do you do with all your fruit?" "We sell all we can, and what we can't sell we can," was the reply. "Ah!" and he scratched his head.
The next day he had a wonderful fit of laughter, as the meaning of the reply dawned upon him. It seems that in England they do not can fruit, but tin
it. So after getting home Mr. Englishman said to some friends one day, "Oh I struck a good thing in California, that shows how exceedingly clever indeed some of those natives are in the use of words. I said to a man one day, as I beheld the vast amounts of fruit under which the trees of those extensive orchards were bending, don't ye know,
—what do you do with so much fruit?
And what do you suppose he said?
His answer was very clever indeed, why, he said we sell all we can, and what we can't sell we tin. His friends looked blank. Ah never mind, said he "it took me a day to see that,
but it's rich, and it will come to you after a while.

But growers are finding that they must dry, jell, and "concentrate" their fruits, as well as ship and can.
By the way "concentration" of fruits was discovered by men near Penryn.
Ask your grocer or druggist for "Sherman Bros. Fig Perfection," and you will see the first production out of their invention. Since then they have applied it to most every kind of fruit, by which they find they can concentrate nearly every fruit from six pounds to one pound, and have it keep for years in any climate; be equally as good as fresh fruit wherever used, and always ready for sauce, pies, etc.
While their ranches are here, the business headquarters are in Chicago.
Thousands of people are expected through here this spring and summer, via Ramond excursions; the special colonists train, and Epworth League convention trains in July, for the great International Convention in San Francisco the 19; to 22d of that month it will be the greatest gathering thus far known to the Pacific Coast.

Several orange groves are being put out near town this spring, as this year has been favorable for citrus fruits.
Some ten thousand boxes of oranges went out from J. Parker Whitney grove near here, Loomis and Rocklin;
while seven carloads from other sources were sent by Penryn Fruit Co. besides lots which were sent via express. In other fruits Penryn sent some six hundred cars during last year.
Yours Truly,
W. C. HOWARD,
Penryn, Placer Co., Cal., Feb. 5, 1901.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Corkins, Mrs. A. D. Blagden and Mr. Fred White were Sunday guests at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. K. Jackman.

Bert Crawford of McComb City is spending a few days with Clarence Lord.—Louisiana Sun (Hammond, La.) Well Bert, there must be a whole lot of us fellows Cupid is again at work on candidates in this vicinity and we understand that an agreement has been reached whereby a matrimonial deal will be put on record.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherm Smith left here Tuesday afternoon for Kansas City, Mo. where Mr. Smith goes to take charge of a tailoring establishment. May all success attend him is the wish of the JOURNAL.

Our brethren of the Sycamore Advertiser makes the assertion that the JOURNAL is a representative of the "advance agent of prosperity." They evidently have failed to comprehend the meaning of the "Independent" in our motto and consequently we feel compelled to say "your'e another."

Prof. Byron Burbank, at one time principal of the Schools at Genoa, it defendant in a suit for divorce brought by his wife at Omaha, Nebraska. She charges repeated and extreme cruelty.—Republican, (Belvidere.) We think that this statement is considerably mixed as Mr. Burbank never was in charge of the Genoa schools.

Grass is growing rapidly and trees are beginning to put forth new leaves, along our thoroughfares, reminding us that spring is at hand.—Sun (Hammond, La.) Well sister, that is really nice for us poor mortals up here to read about, but then when we look upon the now disappearing snow a sort of reaction comes over us and we wonder if ever we too may bloom out again.

Your attention is called to the ad. on last page of F. R. Rowen of Kingston, making a special sale on grocery goods for next Saturday. This is the outcome of competition, a new store being put in there which will be thrown open tomorrow or the day after. It will be a means by which everyone can lay in a supply of groceries at low prices if the war continues.

Mrs. Steigler looked out of the window of the wire factory last Thursday and saw a Shuey girl of about 10 years fighting her own girl of younger age. The mother hurried outdoors, chased the Shuey girl home and there chastised the girl and her mother, Mrs. Joshua Shuey who interfered. Mrs. Shuey with a black eye and her daughter with a bruised face were present as complainants with Mrs. Steigler as defendant in Justice Mitchell's court the same day. They were given a "talking to" and dismissed.—True Republican (Sycamore).

A Missouri editor who went on a vacation left a minister in charge of his paper. A day or two later a letter from "a wayback" subscriber came, which read: "You know—well I paid my subscription the last time I was in your town. If I get any more such letters I will come down and maul hell out of you." The minister answered: "I have been trying to maul that thing out of the editor for ten years, and if you really come down and maul it out of him, then, my dear sir, I have twenty members of my church you can operate on."

Reuben and David Lewis are in this vicinity a few days. They have been in Chicago with stock and are returning west.

The government is erecting at Constable Hook, N. J., a chimney which will be the tallest in America when completed. An excavation of 20 feet deep and 45 feet square was made to hard gravel. This area was filled with piles closely driven and upon the platform a base of fireproof brick 30 feet square by 40 feet in height was built. On the base a round chimney of brick is to be built up to a total height of 360 feet. The stack is to be 10 feet in diameter at the top and will weigh 20,000 tons. The cost of erection is in the neighborhood of $50,000.

Scholar's Columbus Contest.

The GENOA JOURNAL offers to give to the most popular scholar a full set of books of "The Life of Christopher Columbus" handsomely bound in three large octavo volumes. This set is a rare work of art in the binding and is, historically, of great value. These volumes can be seen at our office any time.

The conditions of the gift is that it will be given to a scholar who receives the greatest number of votes and is attending school in DeKalb county.

One vote will be allowed for each cent paid on subscription; either for new or delinquents

Each week a coupon which will entitle the holder to ten votes will appear in the JOURNAL.

For a club of five subscribers paid up a year in advance 250 votes extra will be allowed.

The one receiving the most votes before June 1, next must present a letter from their teacher stating that they are attending school in district, or in town as the case may be.

Only two contestants have entered the Columbus Contest as yet, although a large number of votes are out standing both as paper coupons and as cash checks:

Thresa Taylor.....150.
Mary Tischler.....100.

A PRETTY COMPANION

By Louise Bedford.

CHAPTER VIII.—(Continued.)

"Tell me everything she said," Janetta answered, with a sickening dread at her heart that Mrs. Mortimer had guessed at or listened to what had passed between her and Captain Merivale.

"She says that you are deceiving me all the way round—that you are the meanest awful flirt, and she can prove it."

"Her first charge may be dismissed on that score, at any rate," Janetta said, a little bitterly. "The man I sent away just now—who, it is true, had had more than enough to drink—was my only brother."

Janetta's head drooped with shame as she made the confession.

"Oh, you poor darling!" cried Clarice, trying to possess herself of one of Janetta's hands; but the girl held them folded in front of her.

"Not yet," she said sadly—"not until you know everything. Go on."

"She said that you are deliberately setting your cap at Doctor Drake; that you made an appointment to meet him the day Harry left."

"It's a lie!" said Janetta desperately. "I met Doctor Drake that day by pure chance and I stopped to ask him if he could advise any method of treatment that would hasten your recovery. Anything else?"

"You carry conviction, as you always do," Clarice said, leaning back on her pillow. "I don't think I will even hint at her last charge; it is altogether too impossible."

"I must hear it," said Janetta hoarsely.

"She said you tried to make Harry false to me. Oh, dear, it's too shameful and wicked even to mention such an accusation to one so true as you are."

There was a long pause; then Janetta lifted her head and looked full into Clarice's eyes.

"In all my intercourse with Captain Merivale I never said one word to him that I would have been ashamed for you to hear."

Clarice gave a little sigh of relief. "I knew it, dear; but just to satisfy me, tell me straight out that you did not care for him except as a friend. Only to please me, not because I doubt you?"

A shiver shook Janetta from head to foot. She tried to speak, but though her lips moved no sound passed them; then she threw herself sobbing at Clarice's feet.

"You are so good, so dear, I'll tell you all the truth, come what will. I do love Captain Merivale. I didn't know it, I didn't even guess it until the day before he went away; then I knew—but he doesn't. Nobody knows but God and you, to whom I now confess it in bitter repentance. I didn't mean to do it, and I have vowed on my knees that I will never see him again—never again! That is why I went away the morning he left." The words came fitfully between her sobs. She could hear Clarice's breath coming and going in broken gasps.

"And he?" she asked at last. "Has he given you any hint as to his feelings for you? Am I to believe that you have given your heart away unasked? Did he tell you he cared for you?"

"He said he might have cared—" "If I had only been dead or out of the way," said Clarice, in a cold, hard voice. "There is no help for it, Janetta; I'm afraid we must part. Our lives have unfortunately clashed."

Janetta rose and left the room in silence.

CHAPTER IX.

Sleep was far from Janetta's eyelids that night. She did not even attempt to court it. She sat on hour after hour, still wearing her evening dress, with her chin resting in her hands, and gazed, with eyeballs that ached and throbbled, into the fire, trying to read the future in the dying embers.

"Mrs. Mortimer may feel satisfied with her work," she said, half aloud. "She and Mason between them have hunted me down."

She rose to her feet as she spoke, for she heard a sound as of some one moving gently about, and she went swiftly to Clarice's room to see if she were awake. A fresh wave of repentance swept over her, for Clarice's fair face, with the traces of recent tears upon it, was pressed against the pillows; but, to Janet's unutterable thankfulness, her regular breathing and fast-shut eyes showed her to be asleep.

She crept from the room, shutting the door behind her, and returned to her own; and then her heart stood still, for from behind her door stepped a man with a mask on his face, who rapidly shut the door and set his back against it, and Janetta caught the sound of a pistol lightly clicked.

"Now, my dear," said the burglar, quite softly, "don't scream. One scream may cost you your life. I only want a few minutes' talk with you, so that you and I can come to a good understanding. Sit down and take it easy. There can be no manner of good in making a fuss."

Janetta stood, trying to steady the trembling of her limbs by resting her hand on the table. She very well knew that her own life and that of her friend might depend upon her keeping self-control.

"What do you want?" she said presently.

"Much, my dear, or I shouldn't be ly," replied the burglar, in the same even tones. "First, all the money you have; next, all the money she has." He nodded in the direction of Clarice's room. "And then her jewels. She's got 'em quite handy, I believe—not even locked up in a safe."

Janetta had moved across the room, conscious that her every movement was watched by the burglar's eye. She went to a drawer and threw him her purse contemptuously.

"You're a plucky one," said the man, catching at the purse she threw; "but it's best with a feller like me to keep civil. Three pounds ten," he continued, counting out the contents of the purse, and throwing it back empty, in exact imitation of Janetta's own gesture. "That's very little, my dear; what have you got besides?"

"Not a farthing," said Janetta; "you are at liberty to look."

The man, still keeping a wary eye on Janetta, came and tossed over her drawers, pocketing a bracelet or two, and taking her little watch from its stand, with many exclamations of disgust that his booty was so small.

"I'm wasting my time here; now we'll go to the other one," he said roughly.

Then Janetta's enforced self-control broke down.

"Not you—not you!" she pleaded passionately. "She's very delicate; a sudden shock might kill her, and it would be bad for you if it did. I'll creep into the room and bring you out everything of value in it."

The man stood with his back against the door. "I don't trust a woman, much less a pretty one; you've some dodge in your head."

"I swear my only object is to save Miss Seymour's life, and, in so doing, probably your neck as well," retorted Janetta. "She's asleep. I could get her money and jewels without waking her."

"You shall do it on one condition," said the man, with a brutal laugh. "I'll stand at the open door and cover you with my pistol. If I see you playing me false in the slightest degree, going near the window, or trying to rouse the house, I'll shoot both you and her, remember."

"I've given my word; I'll not play you false," said Janetta.

He opened the door and let her pass before him, with a meek bow, following close upon her heels. Janetta wondered if the thumping of her heart would wake Clarice; it sounded like a cannon in her own ears.

She took the precaution of slipping off her shoes at Clarice's door and set it wide, so that the burglar in the doorway had command of her every movement. At the opening of the wardrobe where her jewel case was kept, Clarice turned and moaned in her sleep, and Janetta paused, her finger uplifted for a moment; but the next instant she was satisfied that Clarice had dropped off again. So quick and deft was she that to collect every article of value in the room did not take her more than five minutes.

"We'll go back together, my dear, and just look 'em over," said the burglar, with his hand on her arm, pushing her before him. "I'll leave the cases and such for a keepsake. I always do the thing handsome when I get hold of an obliging female like yourself. Thirty pounds in gold! Yes, I understood as she'd had a little cheque cashed tonight; and these jewels haven't been overrated! They are first-class. Now, my dear, you'll swear to me, honor bright, that the old one hasn't anything worth my waking her up for! The less people awake over this business the fewer to tell tales, eh?"

He was retreating rapidly down the staircase with his spoils carefully packed away in a black bag; and he saw Janetta's eye travel towards the gong that hung half-way down the stairs.

"No, you don't," he said, reading her meaning. "If you make any effort to wake the house I'll silence you for good and all! You'll give me ten minutes' start, and then you can set the town crier at work if you like."

"Now, a word before we part. Tell your parlor maid to look better after her windows. That big one in your drawing room was not even latched. I didn't have to break a pane of glass. Ten minutes, mind! On second thoughts, you'd better make it a quarter of an hour, as far as you can guess it without your watch."

Janetta stood breathless at the top of the stairs, watching the burglar pass out of sight into the drawing room. Much must still depend upon her silence. She turned at last to go back to her room, when, to her horror, she saw Clarice, in dressing gown and slippers, hurrying towards her with a lighted candle in her hand.

Janetta caught her in her strong arms, almost lifted her back into her bedroom, and locked the door behind them.

"For heaven's sake, keep quiet, dear! Our lives may depend upon it!" she whispered. And then, as she placed Clarice in a chair, the light grew blurred and dim, and Clarice's white, frightened face seemed receding into the far distance; there was a singing in her ears, a cold hand clutching at her heart, and Janetta felt fainting to the floor.

CHAPTER X.

About 12 o'clock that same night Doctor Drake's night bell pealed noisily, to be answered almost immediately by the Doctor's head thrust out of an upper window.

"What's up?" he inquired with characteristic brevity.

"Mrs. Eddy's baby, sir—fits; don't think you'll find it alive when you get there," replied the messenger with a curtness that rivaled the Doctor's.

"Mrs. Eddy of Westbourne?" "Yes, sir. She caught me as I was passing, and begged me very particularly to tell you."

"All right, I'll be off in ten minutes," said the Doctor, closing the window, not in the very best of temper. He had been up for three nights running, with the result that his room had a violent chill, and his mood, in common humanity, be disturbed.

"I must put my own horse into the dog-cart and drive myself, unless," thought the Doctor, with a grim smile, "I wake up that worthless dog who is asleep on my surgery sofa. It would do him no end of good to drive five miles out in the night air. He shall help me to harness the horse, and can hold him for me at the other end; and on the road I'll talk to him and let him hear a piece of my mind."

Needless to say, the "worthless dog" referred to was Neville, whom Doctor Drake had taken in according to Janetta's request; but, determined not to pamper the youth, had offered him a resting place upon the couch in his surgery, which Neville had accepted rather shamefacedly.

"Wake up, will you?" said the Doctor, putting his hand on the lad's shoulder. "You can help me if you like. My groom is ill, and I'm sent for into the country; I want a hand with the horse."

"All right," said Neville, looking round him with rather dazed eyes. His sleep had sobered him, but he could not remember clearly where he was.

"You'll do now—you are fairly sober," continued the Doctor, with blunt frankness. "I'll lend you a great coat; the nights are cold."

In a few minutes more they were ready for the start, and presently the dogcart passed at a rapid rate up the hill on the side of which lay the Grange, standing out white and clear in the moonlight.

The Doctor pointed at it with his whip.

"That is where your slater lives." "I know—I was there last night," said Neville.

"I thought it more than probable that you did not remember anything about it," replied Drake, not unkindly. "You may think me a queer fellow to bring you out with me like this in the dead of night. I did it partly for my own convenience, but more that I may give you a word or two of warning. I know little enough of you—only that you came half-seas-over to my house last night, and that you are giving that sister of yours a bad time of it. I'm older than you are—ever so much, some fifteen years I should think; and it seems a pity to me that a young fellow like you should be going straight to the bad."

The Doctor said much more in the same strain during the drive, and Neville had time for reflection as he walked the horse up and down the road whilst the Doctor watched by the cradle of the baby, whose life he was so anxious to save. Perhaps for the first time in his life he was thoroughly ashamed of himself.

No man had hitherto troubled himself to put the boy's conduct before him with such unvarnished simplicity as the Doctor had done tonight, and Neville was considerably taken aback by the picture.

"I've been a perfect beast," he said; "but there shall be an end of it from tonight!"

He repeated the assertion to the Doctor when at last they were upon their homeward way.

(To be continued.)

LOVE OF JEWELS.

In All Ages Women Have Been Dazzled by Rich Gems.

In all countries and in all ages women seem to have inherited a love for precious stones, and it is no wonder that these gems are popularly supposed to exercise some subtle magnetism that influences their natures.

This inherent passion may account in a measure for the recent craze for some masochic jewel, a survival of medieval superstition. Upon impressionable people certain gems appear to wield a potent influence. Who has not listened to weird tales of some heirloom talisman, which, when lost or stolen, pre- saged the ruin of a noble house? A person with a vivid imagination might even believe in the theory of the Pythagoreans, who formulated the doctrine that inanimate things are endowed with souls. Certain evolutionists of today trace the origin of man back to stones, asserting that in their adamant- like bosoms they contain the all-pervading essence of spirit, and that the spark emitted from their crystalline hearts is the revelation of the imprisoned soul within. From time immemorial jewels have served as propitiatory offerings at holy shrines, as tokens of amity from one crowned head to another, as mystic messengers of affection between distant friends, as pledges of constancy exchanged between plighted lovers. Men have bled and died, kingdoms have crumbled, families have been rent asunder, husband and wife parted over the disputed possession of some coveted jewel. Perhaps poor Marie Antoinette, of ill-starred memory, might have kept her pretty head upon her shoulders had it not been for the unfortunate affair of the diamond necklace. Women in all ages have succumbed to the temptation of gems. Faust bartered his soul for the love of a woman; Marguerite sold hers for a gem-starred bauble.—Chicago Chronicle.

FIRES LAY VILLAGES LOW

Memphis, Ind., and Bismarck, Mo., Ruined.

DAMAGE IN OTHER PLACES.

Monday Was a Day of Big Fires in Many Parts of the United States—St. Louis, Mo., Suffers Heaviest Financial Loss.

Fires Monday practically wiped out the town of Memphis, Ind., destroyed the business section of Bismarck, Mo., and a number of residences; swept clear two blocks of ice houses and sheds in St. Louis, Mo.; laid low a large iron plant in that city, and wrecked a big planing mill at Nashville, Tenn., entailing in those four cities a property loss estimated at more than $590,000. Other cities to suffer from fires were Kansas City, Kas., where one square of buildings was burned, with a loss of $50,000, and Spring Lake, Mich., where several buildings were destroyed, the damage being over $18,000.

The entire village of Memphis, a place of 500 residents, located thirty-five miles south of Seymour, Ind., was destroyed, and many of the people are without shelter or food. The property loss is over $150,000. Several hundred persons were sheltered in farmhouses and barns, but scores were compelled to remain up all night for lack of shelter. Women and children suffered, and few secured anything to eat. A train from Jeffersonville took out several hundred sightseers and a number of these carried baskets of provisions, which relieved the hunger of some of the crying children.

Bismarck, Mo., a city of 1,000 inhabitants, was almost destroyed by fire. There were no means of fighting the fire, and the inhabitants were helpless to stay the flames, which swept on until forced to stop by lack of material. The Iron Mountain railroad divides the town, and the west side escaped.

An appeal to Joliet, Ill., for fire engines from Minooka, a town of 600 inhabitants eleven miles west of Joliet, caused the report of the entire destruction of that village. The fire was confined to a vacant hotel, formerly known as the Shepley house.

The extensive lumber yards and saw and planing mill plant of John R. Ransom & Co., in West Nashville, Tenn., were destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $140,000, with insurance of $115,000.

Fire losses Monday:
Memphis, Ind., $150,000
Bismarck, Mo., 100,000
St. Louis, Mo., 200,000
Nashville, Tenn., 140,000
Kansas City, Kas., 50,000
Spring Lake, Mich., 18,000

Many Persons Hurt in a Wreck.

More than a score of persons were injured, several severely, Monday in a wreck on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, two miles north of Grand Junction, Ia. A train bound for Fort Dodge, going at full speed, was thrown from the track by the kinking of the rails. The two passenger coaches, mail, express and baggage cars and tender were thrown into a pool of water. The engine remained on the track. The injured: Celia Webber, Patonia, seriously hurt; arm broken. Mrs. Hall, Stuart, Ia., badly hurt. A. M. Mickan, Perry, Ia., foot hurt. C. A. Ladfield, Des Moines, slightly hurt. W. L. McNeal, Fort Dodge, hurt about head. David McKean, Pomeroy, hurt internally. Lee York, Des Moines, back hurt. W. D. Phillips, Des Moines, nose broken. E. L. McCool, Des Moines, cut over eye. I. W. Youcum, Des Moines, leg hurt. Joseph Staffer, Fiskilwa, Ill., head hurt. Fred Bullen, Des Moines, back hurt. William Ballantire, Des Moines, arm cut; back hurt. F. F. Luther, Grand Junction, hurt internally. Richard Wiltse, face cut. The engineer, fireman and brakeman escaped with slight injuries.

School Boys Strike.

Two hundred boys of the Central high school of Buffalo went on a strike, in which they have the sympathy of an equal number of girl pupils in the school. The strike was caused by the enforcement of a rule which long has been a dead letter. This rule forbids the boys and girls from having any communication together in the halls, class rooms or study rooms. The pupils claim the enforcement of the rule robs school life of its pleasures.

Polygamy Bill Is Killed.

The senate of Utah, by a vote of 9 to 9, stood by Governor Wells in his veto of the Evans polygamy bill. The original vote of the passage of the measure was 11 to 7. When the question came up again on the veto of the bill two Mormons who voted for the bill before stood by the governor in his action and the sponsor for the bill himself, President Evans, was obliged to read the death warrant in the announcement of the vote.

Big Brewery Deal Closed.

Ninety-day options have been secured through New York financial agents on every share of the $198,000 stock of the Home Brewing company of Indianapolis, and nearly all of these options are at 200, making the cost of the property close to $400,000. This marks the closing of a deal which will divide the brewery interests of Indianapolis into two camps, for it is understood the new deal involves joining the Home Brewing company and the American Brewing company.

Nervous Prostration.

A Noted Boston Woman Describes its Symptoms and Terrors.—Two Severe Cases Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ADELE WILLIAMSON.

"I am so nervous! no one ever suffered as I do! There isn't a well inch in my body. I honestly believe my lungs are diseased, my chest pains me so, but I have no cough. I am so weak at my stomach, and have indigestion terribly, and palpitation of the heart; am losing flesh; and this headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I had hysterics."

"There is a weight in the lower part of my bowels, bearing down all the time, with pains in my groins and thighs—I can't sleep, walk, or sit, and blue—oh goodness! I am simply the most miserable of women."

This is a most vivid description of a woman suffering with nervous prostration, caused by inflammation or some other diseased condition of the womb.

No woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is no need of it. Read about Miss Williamson's case and how she was cured.

Two Bad Cases of Nervous Prostration Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all, and was too weak to walk across the floor. My heart was affected so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."

MISS ADELE WILLIAMSON, 196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

"I had nervous prostration terribly, caused by female weakness. I suffered everything; was unable to eat, sleep, or work. After a while I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I really began to improve on taking the first bottle. I continued to take the medicine, and am now better in every way, and feel like a different person. I am simply a well woman."

AFTER-EFFECTS OF LA GRIPPE.

THE after-effects of the grip are often disastrous. It is commonly known to the medical fraternity that the numerous ailments and complications which follow the grip are apt to be more serious than the acute stage of the disease.

Some people have the grip very lightly. They may be confined to the house only a day or two and yet a long train of disagreeable, disabling symptoms follow. All sorts of tonics and stimulating remedies have been devised to meet this condition. None of them can compare in results with Peruna.

Every one who has had the grip ought to take a short course of Peruna. Read what the following people have to say about it.

Washington, Feb. 4, 1899.

Congressman Howard.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.: Gentlemen—"I have taken Peruna now for two weeks, and find I am very much relieved. I feel that my cure will be permanent. I have also taken it for la grippe, and take pleasure in recommending Peruna as an excellent remedy to all fellow sufferers."

M. W. Howard, Congressman Howard's home address is Fort Payne, Ala.

Grip Produces Catarrh.

Henry Distin, the inventor and maker of all the band instruments for the Henry Distin Mfg. Co., at Williamsport, Pa., writes:

1441 South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., May 6, 1899.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Dear Sir:—"I write to inform you that I had a bad attack of la grippe last December which lasted more than three months and which left me with catarrh, when several of my friends advised me to try your wonderful medicine, Peruna. I began with a bottle the first week in March and it certainly did me a great deal of good. I was so well satisfied that I purchased another bottle and followed your directions, which you furnish with every bottle, and I am glad to say that it has cured me. I shall certainly recommend the Peruna to all my friends."

Grip Poisoned Her Blood.

Mrs. T. W. Collins, Treasurer of the Independent Order of Good Templars of Everett, Wash., writes:

"After having a severe attack of la grippe I continued in a feeble condition even after the doctor called me cured. My blood seemed poisoned.

"I also suffered with dyspepsia, and had either to starve or suffer from what I was eating. A neighbor who was using Peruna praised it so highly that she induced me to try it, and I soon found this was what I really needed.

"I could soon eat my regular meals with relish, my system was built up, my health returned, and I have remained in excellent strength and vigor now for over two years."—Mrs. T. W. Collins.

Miss Alice Dressler of 1313 N. Bryant ave., Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows concerning Peruna:

"Last spring I suffered from la grippe and was partially cured, but the bad after-effects remained through the summer and somehow I did not get as strong as I was before.

"In the fall I caught cold after getting my feet wet and attending a lecture in a cold hall, and suffered a relapse. Catarrh of the throat and head followed, and as I was in a weak condition physically previous to this, it took but little to break me down completely. One of my college friends, who was visiting me, asked me to try Peruna and I did so and found it all and more than I had expected. It not only cured me of the catarrh, but restored me to perfect health."—Alice Dressler.

GRIP CAUSED NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

D. D. Wallace, a charter member of the International Barber's Union writes from 15 Western ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

"Following a severe attack of la grippe I seemed to be affected badly all over. I suffered with a severe backache, indigestion and numerous ills, so I could neither eat nor sleep, and I thought I would give up my work, which I could not afford to do.

"One of my customers who was greatly helped by Peruna advised me to try it, and I procured a bottle the same day. I used it faithfully and felt a marked improvement. During the next two months I took five bottles, and then felt splendid. Now my head is clear, my nerves are steady, I enjoy food, and rest well. Peruna has been worth a dollar a dose to me."—D. L. Wallace.

GRIP LEFT HER BROKEN DOWN.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Washington, April 24, 1900.

Frances M. Anderson.

Gentlemen—"About two months ago I was taken very ill with la grippe and was obliged to go to bed. I took three bottles of Peruna with very beneficial results and was able to leave my bed in a week, and regained my usual strength very soon. I have nothing but the highest praise for Peruna and recommend it to those similarly afflicted wherever I can."—Frances M. Anderson.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS.

Summary of Legislation in National Body.

MEASURES IN BOTH HOUSES.

Senator Frye of Maine Re-Elected, Unanimously, President Pro Tempore of the Senate—Senator Morgan Asks for Abrogation of Clayton-Bulwer Treaty.

Wednesday, March 13.

Increasing demand for postage stamps making overtime work in Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Senator Cullom ready to pay off old scores in the way of presidential post-office appointments in Illinois.

Ex-Representative Rodenberg of Illinois not likely to be appointed commissioner to St. Louis fair.

Friday, March 15.

C. H. Duell of New York, sent his resignation as commissioner of patents to the president. Senators Platt and Depew will probably name his successor.

John G. Johnston, Philadelphia, said to have been offered United States attorney generalship.

Rear Admiral Sampson received a check for $3,335 prize money for defeat of Cervera's fleet.

One man killed and four injured in fire in Merchants' hotel in Pennsylvania avenue.

Postoffice department to remove as few fourth class postmasters as possible.

American troops, except legation guard of 150, ordered from China to Manila.

Only 10,000 recruits accepted up to date for additional regiments.

Minister Wu started on his trip to Buffalo and Chicago.

Saturday, March 16.

As a result of the controversy which has arisen between Capt. C. H. Davis and Prof. S. J. Brown, superintendent of the naval observatory and director of the nautical almanac respectively, both officers will, it is understood, shortly be detached from their present duties.

The German meat inspection law, absolutely prohibiting the importation of American corned beef, sausages, etc., which went into effect some time ago, has made no friends, according to a report received at the state department from the United States consul at Bremen.

The law has been the object of very severe criticism in Germany, according to the consul.

Monsday, March 18.

State department made vigorous protest through Minister Loomis to Venezuela against further interference with Consular Agent Baiz at Barcelona. Situation complicated by conflicting American interests.

War Department received Philippine commission's act establishing department of public instruction.

Recruiting of enlarged army going on slowly. Four home battalions to be sent to Philippines.

United States Supreme court will adjourn on March 25 for two weeks to consider opinions.

All intoxicating liquors to be barred from transmission through the mails.

Ambushed by 700 Filipinos.

Correspondents in the Philippines failed to tell of one exploit of the soldiers of the 30th regiment which reads like stories of fights against the Indians in the old days on the plains. In January of last year, when Schwan's flying column was swinging through Luzon, volunteers were called for to bring up a pack train that was several miles behind. Forty-four men of Cos. A, B, C and D of the 30th responded. They found the pack train and at once started on the return trip. This column had gone but a few miles when it was ambushed near Alaminos by 700 Filipinos. Joseph E. Hyrnes of Chicago and two others of Co. C were killed in the fight, and Charles Worthington of Chicago, Edward Boswell of Flora, Ill., and Fred Mason of Charlotte, Mich., were never heard of afterward. Many more were wounded, among them being Frank Junker of Lawrenceburg, Ind., who was shot four times and later sent home.

Primary Day in Kentucky.

Democratic election primaries held in various portions of Kentucky resulted in an unusual number of free fights, in which, so far as has been learned, one man has been killed and thirteen or fourteen wounded. In a small store at Breckinridge, Harrison county, during the primary, William Hayes and Wash Slade engaged in a desperate fight with revolvers. Slade was mortally wounded and Hayes was hit twice in the head and arm. Slade died in three hours. The Democratic primary to select officers for Morgan county was held at Caney. In a general fight ten men were wounded. Three of them were badly shot, and two of them are reported dying. Caney has no telegraph communication, and further particulars are unobtainable tonight.

Servant Girls Combine.

The servant girls of Pittston, Pa., have effected an organization, known as the Domestic and Housekeepers' Protective association. Hundreds are joining the union, and already a list of demands have been formulated to be shortly made public. They ask for a wage scale of $3 a week, object to carrying out ashes, and taking care of a furnace. No meals are to be served after 6 p. m., and they want three nights a week off and permission to receive their men friends in the parlor.

Gown for the Ladies.

Valenciennes and fine white cambric sewed together row after row go to make an entire gown that would prove most elaborate but for the care in the design. The strips run vertically on the bodice and plain gored skirt, and horizontally on the yoke and elbow sleeves. At the hem there are three narrow ruffles, the middle one of embroidery, the upper and lower of lace. A series of small full rosettes of black velvet ribbon set along the top of the ruffle are connected by loops of the velvet left to hang in festoons.

A Revolver.

Sandy Pikes—Detroit Dick fell in de lake. Dey rolled him on a barrel an' he come in five minutes.

Billy Coalgate—Yes, 'twas a whisky barrel.

A Month's Test Free.

If you have Dyspepsia, write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis., Box 143, for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Restor. Free, express paid. Send no money. Pay $5.00 if cured.

A man thinks himself superior to a hen, yet a hen can sit on an egg without getting mad.

Owed for Milk.

James P. Younger of Freeport has attached butter owned by Frank Gosser of Monroe on a claim of $400. Gosser ran creameries at Monroe and Juda and recently disappeared and with him a cream separator valued at $350. He had just sold a lot at Monroe and while his friends profess to think he will return it is evident Mr. Younger plus little faith to their belief. His claim is for money advanced at several times Gosser had been in business a year or so Younger thinks Gosser has been paying more for milk than he could get out of it He owned farms for nearly six weeks, milk. -Advocate, Elgin.

Mr Younger was at one time a farmer in this vicinity and worked for E. B. Millard when the latter lived on the place now owned by C. A. Brown He is now doing a great business in creamery goods at Freeport and has been mayor of that city.

A New Trial for Lund.

J. H. Lund who recently was given a verdict for $2,000 in the United States district court, Chicago, against the United States Express Co., and the C. M. & StP., has been granted a new trial. It will be remembered that Judge Kohlsaat thought the verdict a little too high, and therefore scaled it down. Mr. Lund thinks he has a good enough case to warrant a new trial.

Asked whether, in event of a new trial resulting in as large a verdict, or a larger one than before, the court would again reduce it, Judge Kohlsaat said there would probably be a new judge on the bench ere that time.

The attorneys were given ten days in which to file an amended declaration. The case probably will be tried in May or June. -Advocate, Elgin.

Milk Prices.

The condensing factories and creameries at Elgin have established the following prices for milk during the six months commencing with April, next, April and August $1.05, May $1.35, June $1.80, July $1.90 and September $1.15 per hundred pound, making an average of 96 1/2 cents per hundred or 65.73 cents per eight gallon can. The corresponding six months last year averaged 98 1/2 cents.

SERVICE MEDALS

Being Distributed to Employees of the Illinois Central.

In commemoration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the incorporation of the Illinois Central Railroad Company through the act of the state of Illinois, approved February 10, 1851, upon recommendation of Mr. Stuyvesant Fish, President of the Board of Directors decided in January, last, that the company would give a souvenir to every person in the employ of the company during the month of February, 1901, who shall have served continuously for one year or more, a bronze medal, bearing the trade mark of the Company and on the reverse side the name of the employe and the number of full years in which he shall have served the Company.

The medals have been prepared by Messrs Tiffany & Company of New York, and are of simple but chaste design, worked out in sharp lines of relief. One side is an adaption of the company's trade mark, bearing the familiar legend "Central Mississippi Valley Route" in a diamond, with "Illinois Central R.R. Co., Chartered February 10, 1851" in the encompassing circle, underlying the two being radical bars. On the reverse, following the rim in relief letters is "Service Souvenir, Fiftieth Anniversary, 1851-1901" surrounding an inner inscription which reads "I.C.R.R. Co. to—after—years continuous service"; the individual name and years of service being inscribed on the medal of each person receiving one. A marked feature of this distribution is the fact that precisely the same bronze medal is given to everyone who has been continuously in the employ of the company. No distinction is made whatever between the highest and lowest; the service of those who labored with their hands, and those of the chief executive officers and board of directors being recognized in precisely the same way. The medals are being delivered in installments, and have already been circulated on some sections of the road.
