The New York World.

Thrice-a-Week Edition.

The Most Widely Read Newspaper in America.

Time has demonstrated that the Thrice-a-Week World stands alone in its class. Other papers have imitated its form but not its success. This is because it tells all the news all the time and tells it impartially, whether that news be political or otherwise. It is in fact almost a daily at the price of a weekly and you cannot afford to be without it. Republican and Democrat alike can read the Thrice-a-Week World with absolute confidence in its truth. In addition to news, it publishes first class serial stories and other features suited to the home and fire-side. The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this New York paper and the Genoa Journal together one year for $1.90. The regular price of the two papers is $2.25.

It is much easier to untie an engagement than a marriage tie because the former is only a beau knot.

Geo. Cupp of Colvin Park, has been engaged to work for Kellogg & Adams and expects to move here this week.

An exchange says that a man "died without the aid of a physician" and then adds that "such cases are very rare."

"I have very little respect for the ties of this world" said the condemned man as the rope was being put around his neck.

Rev. C. A. Briggs wishes to have a full rehearsal of the M. E. church choir at the church on next Saturday evening at 7:30.

There should be a large attendance at next Sunday's services at the M. E. church as it may be Rev. Hester's last sermon here.

A. V. Pierce and wife and daughter, Mildred, went to Elgin today where they will visit with friends and relatives a week or two.

Someone has said that bleeding a partially blind horse at the nose will restore his sight; but to open a man's eyes you must bleed him in the pocket.

Mrs. Henry Grabby, of Nunda, is visiting this week with her daughter, Mrs. F. Hannah. Mrs. G. was formerly a Genoa resident some twenty five years ago.

As next Sunday is the last Sunday before the annual conference, Rev. Briggs will comply with a request of several and on Sunday evening sing the "Holy City."

A new street is to be opened from Sycamore street to Genoa streets just north of the M. E. church. It is to be twenty five feet and a sidewalk will be laid on north side.

Mrs. E. C. Crawford visited at Wheaton Sunday and Monday with her sister, Mrs. Cummings, whose son George has been very low with typhoid fever, but is slightly better now.

A Sunday school scholar gave the following definition in answer to the question, "What is a lie?" "A lie is — is an abomination to the Lord, and a very present help in the time of trouble." Evidently this child possesses the elements of a most successful insurance agent.

Our neighbor, Mr. Stiles, tells us that he recently received a letter from a friend of his in Chicago stating that last week on Thursday they saw a man by the name of George White in the city, who was from near Genoa and was then making his first visit to the great metropolis. Does anyone know of such a person?

Board of Alderman Grant a Fifteen Years Franchise to H. F. Alden to Erect an Electric Light Plant within Ninety Days.

Last Saturday there was an election held at the city hall by order of the Board to get an expression of tax-payers whether they were, or were not in favor of electric lights. There were one hundred and seventeen votes cast eighty seven of them being in favor of the improvement to our village. The petition which was presented to the board by 106 tax payers last week asking them to "reconsider" the proposition of H. F. Alden was not enough to convince the members of our municipal legislature that the present system of "fire bugs" was inadequate to our needs and means.

The board met the same evening and canvassed the vote finding eighty-seven for and thirty against it. They then took up the franchise and passed it without a dissenting vote.

The franchise gives Mr. Alden a right to erect an electric light, heat and power plant and to operate the same for a period of fifteen years, the same to be completed and in operation within ninety days from the date of the passage of the bill (September 28). The city is to take twenty, or more, lights at fifty dollars each per year to be placed over the center of the streets as directed by the street commissioner.

Mr. Alden was present at the meeting and explained to the council and others all the points asked for. He intends to put in a new plant through-out and at the earliest possible date, beginning work on Monday. The ninety days will take it to about the first of the year and there is no doubt but by holiday week we will see the lights burning.

Will Moore and wife attended the street fair last Saturday.

Ira Douglas has moved into the house on Genoa street vacated by Frank Brown, who moved to Belvidere a few weeks ago.

DeKalb County to Have a New Court House to Replace the Old One

There never was a body of men who were elected to represent the people and exercise a brief authority that was placed in their hands, ever did an act that was so heartily approved as was resolutions of the DeKalb county supervisors in appropriating $100,000.00 for erection of a new court house to replace the one which has seen services for over fifty years. The county with all its wealth and the vast amount of business which is necessarily huddled and jammed together within the present building, should have brought them to realize long ere this that it was a losing game to delay the building because of someone who wanted to pose as a political economist.

The resolutions were presented and adopted last week at the last session and the board can be assured that they have the thanks of nearly every citizen of the county. We would also suggest that the original resolutions be suitably framed and hung up in the Supervisor's room as a reminder that once we had a board who saw the needs of the county.

SHARP OLD SAWS.

Spending your money with many a guest.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

DEFEATS OF OBLIVION LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

"He Shall Be No More Remembered"—Job xxiv. 20—"The Righteous Shall Be In Everlasting Remembrance"—Psalms cxli. 6.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

Washington, Sept. 29.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows how any one can be widely and forever recollected and cheers despondent Christian workers; texts, Job xxiv. 20, "He shall be no more remembered," and Psalms cxli. 6, "The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance."

Of oblivion and its defeats I speak today. There is an old monster that swallows down everything. It crunches individuals, families, communities, states, nations, continents, hemispheres, worlds. Its diet is made up of years, of centuries, of ages, of cycles, of millenniums, of eons. That monster is called by Noah Webster and all other dictionaries "Oblivion." It is a steep down which everything rolls. It is a conflagration in which everything is consumed. It is a dirge which all orchestras play and a period at which everything stops. It is the cemetery of the human race. It is the domain of forgetfulness. Oblivion! At times it throws a shadow over all of us, and I would not pronounce it today if I did not come armed in the strength of the eternal God on your behalf to attack it, to route it, to demolish it.

Why, just look at the way the families of the earth disappear. For while they are together, inseparable, and to each other indispensable, and then they part, some by marriage going to establish other homes, and some leave this life, and a century is long enough to plant a family, develop it, prosper it and obliterate it. So the generations vanish. Walk up Pennsylvania avenue, Washington; Broadway, New York; State street, Boston; Chestnut street, Philadelphia; the Strand, London; Princess street, Edinburgh; Champs Elysees, Paris; Unter den Linden, Berlin, and you will meet in this year, 1901 not one person who walked there in the year 1801. What engulfment! All the ordinary efforts at perpetuation art dead failures. Walter Scott's Old Mortality may go round with his chisel to recut the faded epitaphs on tombstones, but Old Oblivion has a quicker chisel with which he can cut out a thousand epitaphs while Old Mortality is cutting one epitaph. Whole libraries of biographies devoured of bookworms or unread of the rising generations. All the signs of the stores and warehouses of great firms have changed, unless the grandsons think that it is an advantage to keep the old sign up because the name of the ancestor was more commendatory than the name of the descendant. The city of Rome stands today, but dig down deep enough, and you come to another Rome, buried, and go down still farther, and you will find a third Rome. Jerusalem stands today, but dig down deep enough and you will find a Jerusalem underneath and go on and deeper down a third Jerusalem. Alexandria, Egypt, on top of an Alexandria, and the second on top of the third. Many of the ancient cities are buried thirty feet deep or fifty feet deep or 100 feet deep. What was the matter? Any special calamity? No. The wind and waves and sands and flying dust are all undertakers and gravediggers, and if the world stands long enough the present Washington and New York and London will have on top of them other Washingtons and New Yorks and Londons, and only after digging and boring and blasting will the archaeologists of far distant centuries come down as far as the highest spires and domes and turrets of our present American and European cities.

The Roll of Armies.

Call the roll of the armies of Baldwin I. or of Charles Martel or of Marlborough or of Mithridates or of Prince Frederick or of Cortes, and not one answer will you hear. Stand them in line and call the roll of the 1,000,000 men in the army of Thebes. Not one answer. Stand them in line, the 1,700,000 infantry and the 200,000 cavalry of the Assyrian army under Ninus, and call the roll. Not one answer. Stand in line the 1,000,000 men of Sesostris, the 1,200,000 men of Artaxerxes at Cunaxa, the 2,641,000 men under Xerxes at Thermopylae and call the long roll. Not one answer. At the opening of our civil war the men of the northern and southern armies were told that if they fell in battle their names would never be forgotten by their country. Out of the million men who fell in battle or died in military hospitals you cannot call the names of a thousand, nor the names of 500 nor the names of 100 nor the names of fifty. Oblivion! Are the feet of the dancers who at the ball of the Duchess of Richmond at Brussels the night before Waterloo still? All still. Are the ears that heard the guns of Bunker Hill all deaf? All deaf. Are the eyes that saw the coronation of George II. all closed? All closed. Oblivion! A hundred years from now there will not be a being on this earth that knew we ever lived.

In some old family record a descendant studying up the ancestral line may spell out our name and from the faded ink with great effort find that some person by our name was born somewhere in the nineteenth century, but they will know no more about us than we know about the color of a child's eyes born last night in a village in Patagonia. Tell me something about your great-grandfather. What were his features? What did he do? What year was he born? What year did he die? And your great-grandmother? Will you describe the style of the hat she wore, and how did she and your great-grandfather get on in each other's companionship? Was it March weather or June? Oblivion! That mountain surge rolls over everything. Even the pyramids are dying. Not a day passes but there is chiseled off a chip of that granite. The sea is triumphing over the land, and what is going on at our Atlantic coast is going on all around the world, and the continents are crumbling into the waves, and while this is transpiring on the outside of the world, the hot chisel of the internal fire is digging under the foundations of the earth and cutting its way out toward the surface. It surprises me to hear the people say they do not think the world will finally be burned up when all the scientists will tell you that it has for ages been on fire.

Why, there is only a crust between us and the furnaces inside raging to get out. Oblivion! The world itself will roll into it as easily as a school-boy's india rubber ball rolls down a hill, and when our world goes it is so interlocked by the law of gravitation with other worlds that they will go too, and so far from having our memory perpetuated by a monument of Aberdeen granite in this world there is no world in sight of our strongest telescope that will be a sure pediment for any slab of commemoration of the fact that we ever lived or died at all. Our earth is struck with death. The axletree of the constellations will break and let down the populations of other worlds. Stellar, lunar, solar, mortality. Oblivion! It can swallow and will swallow whole galaxies of worlds as easily as a crocodile takes down a frog.

Yet oblivion does not remove or swallow everything that had better not be removed or swallowed. The old monster is welcome to his meal. This world would long ago have been overcrowded if not for the merciful removal of nations and generations. What if all the books had lived that were ever written and printed and published? The libraries would by their immensity have obstructed intelligence and made all research impossible. The fatal epidemic of books was a merciful epidemic. Many of the state and national libraries today are only morgues, in which dead books are waiting for some one to come and recognize them. What if all the people that had been born were still alive? We would have been elbowing by our ancestors of ten centuries ago, and people who ought to have said their last word 3,000 years ago would snarl at us, saying, "What are you doing here?" There would have been no room to turn around. Some of the past generations of mankind were not worth remembering. The first useful thing that many people did was to die, their cradle a misfortune and their grave a boon. This world was hardly a comfortable place to live in before the middle of the eighteenth century. So many things have come into the world that were not fit to stay in we ought to be glad they were put out. The waters of Lethe, the fountain of forgetfulness, are a healthful draft. The history we have of the world in ages past is always one sided and cannot be depended on. History is fiction illustrated by a few straggling facts. *

Why We Should Be Remembered.
Now, I have told you that this oblivion of which I have spoken has its defeats and that there is no more reason why we should not be distinctly and vividly and gloriously remembered five hundred million billion trillion quadrillion quintillion years from now than that we should be remembered six weeks. I am going to tell you how the thing can be done and will be done.

We may build this "everlasting remembrance," as my text styles it, into the supernatural existence of those to whom we do kindness in this world. You must remember that this infirm and treacherous faculty which we now call memory is in the future state to be complete and perfect. "Everlasting remembrance!" Nothing will slip the stout grip of that celestial faculty. Did you help a widow pay her rent? Did you find for that man released from prison a place to get honest work? Did you pick up a child fallen on the curbstone and by a stick of candy put in his hand stop the hurt on his scratched knee? Did you assure a business man swamped by the stringency of the money market that times would after while be better? Did you lead a Magdalen of the street into a midnight mission, where the Lord said to her, "Neither do I condemn thee. Go and sin no more?" Did you tell a man clear discouraged in his waywardness and hopeless and plotting suicide that for him was near by a laver in which he might wash and a coronet of eternal blessedness he might wear? What are epitaphs in graveyards, what are eulogiums in presence of those whose breath is in their nostrils, what are unread biographies in the alcoves of a city library, compared with the imperishable records you have made in the illumined memories of those to whom you did such kindnesses? Forget them? They cannot forget them. Notwithstanding all their might and splendor there are some things the glorified of heaven cannot do, and this is one of them. They cannot forget an earthly kindness done. They have no outlass to part that cable. They have no strength to hurl into oblivion that benefactor. Has Paul forgotten the inhabitants of Malta, who extended the island hospitality when he and others with him had felt, added to a shipwreck, the drenching rain and the sharp cold? Has the victim of the highwayman on the road to Jericho forgotten the good Samaritan with a medicament of oil and wine and a free ride to the hostelry? Have the English soldiers who went up to God from the Crimea battlefield forgotten Florence Nightingale? Through all eternity will the northern and southern soldiers forget the northern and southern women who administered to the dying boys in blue and gray after the awful fights in Tennessee and Pennsylvania and Virginia and Georgia, which turned every house and barn and shed into a hospital and incardinated the Susquehanna and the James and the Chattahoochee and the Savannah with brave blood? The kindnesses you do to others will stand as long in the appreciation of others as the gates of heaven will stand, as the "house of many mansions" will stand, as long as the throne of God will stand.

Defeat of Oblivion.

Another defeat of oblivion will be found in the character of those whom we rescue, uplift or save. Character is eternal. Suppose by a right influence we aid in transforming a bad man into a good man, a dolorous man into a happy man, a disheartened man into a courageous man, every stroke of that work done will be immortalized. There may never be so much as one line in a newspaper regarding it or no mortal tongue may ever whisper it into human ear, but wherever that soul shall go your work upon it shall go, wherever that soul rises your work on it will rise, and so long as that soul will last your work on it will last. Do you suppose there will ever come such an idiotic lapse in the history of that soul in heaven that it shall forget that you invited him to Christ; that you, by prayer or gospel word, turned him round from the wrong way to the right way? No such insanity will ever smite a heavenly citizen. It is not half as well on earth known that Christopher Wren planned and built St. Paul's as it will be known in all heaven that you were the instrumentality of building a temple for the sky. We teach a Sabbath class or put a Christian tract in the hand of a passerby or testify for Christ in a prayer meeting or preach a sermon and go home discouraged, as though nothing had been accomplished, when we had been character building with a material that no frost or earthquake or rolling of the centuries can damage or bring down.

There is no sublimer art on earth than architecture. With pencil and rule and compass the architect sits down alone and in silence and evolves from his own brain a cathedral or a national capitol or a massive home before he leaves that table, and then he goes out and unrolls his plans and calls carpenters and mason and artisans of all sorts to execute his design, and when it is finished he walks around the vast structure and sees the completion of the work with high satisfaction, and on a stone at some corner of the building the architect's name may be chiseled. But the storms do their work, and time, that takes down everything, will yet take down that structure until there shall not be one stone left upon another. But there is a soul in heaven.

Graven on God's Hand.

There is another and a more complete defeat for oblivion, and that is in the heart of God himself. You have seen a sailor roll up his sleeve and show you his arm tattooed with the figure of a favorite ship, perhaps the first one in which he ever sailed. You have seen a soldier roll up his sleeve and show you his arm tattooed with the figure of a fortress where he was garrisoned or the face of a dead general under whom he fought. You have seen many a hand tattooed with the face of a loved one before or after marriage. This custom of tattooing is almost as old as the world. It is some colored liquid punctured into the flesh so indelibly that nothing can wash it out. It may have been there fifty years, but when the man goes into his coffin that picture will go with him on hand or arm. Now, God says that he has tattooed us upon his hands. There can be no other meaning in the forty-ninth chapter of Isaiah, where God says, "Behold, I have graven thee on the palms of my hands!" It was as much as to say: "I cannot open my hand to help, but I think of you. I cannot spread across my hands to bless but I think of you. Wherever I go up and down the heavens I take these two pictures of you with me. They are so inwrought into my being that I cannot lose them. As long as my hands last the memory of you will last. Not on the back of my hands, as though to announce you to others, but on the palms of my hands, for myself to look at and study and love. Though I hold the winds in my fist, no cyclone shall unroot the inscription of your name and your face, and though I hold the ocean in the hollow of my hand, its billowing shall not wash out the record of my remembrance. 'Behold, I have graven thee on the palms of my hands!'"

Australian Apples.

Parts of Australia are becoming lively rivals to Canada and the United States in the European apple trade. Tasmania, especially, has been found a first-class apple-raising country. There are 8,373 acres in apple orchards there and the product in 1890 was 363,915 bushels.

ILLINOIS ITEMS

The annual convention of the German Evangelical Sunday schools of the Centralia district, comprising the towns of Centralia, Central City, Hoyleton, Irvington, Cordes and Nashville, was held in the Evangelical church in Nashville. The reports of the various committees were received showing that attendance throughout the circuit was good the past year. A special Sunday-school lesson was given the local Sunday-school class attending. A paper entitled "An Ideal Sunday School," by Miss Toune of Centralia, was exceedingly instructive. Among the visiting pastors who took active part in the programme were: Rev. Mr. Meier of Irvington; Rev. Mr. Schroedel of Hoyleton; Rev. Mr. Kriekhaus of Plum Hill; Rev. Mr. Lieberherr of Hoyleton; and Rev. Mr. Tessiman of Nashville. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. Mr. Meier of Irvington; vice president, Rev. Mr. Lieberherr of Hoyleton; secretary, Miss Alvina Hohman of Nashville; treasurer, Miss Emma Buhrman of Nashville. An address was delivered by Rev. Mr. Schroedel of Hoyleton, and select songs were rendered by the Nashville Evangelical choir of twenty voices. Irvington was chosen as the place at which to hold next year's convention.

The annual meeting of the old settlers of Fayette county was held in Vandalia. The attendance was large and the exercises interesting. The mortuary list shows that thirty-nine old settlers died during the year. Frank Binlon of Vernor, who is over 100 years old, was present and made a short talk. Short addresses were made by William Buchanan, Elder Jacob Miller, Henry Buck, E. W. Henry and Rev. M. L. Wagner. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: E. W. Henry, president; B. F. Lee, first vice president; D. B. Owen, second vice president; J. D. Collins, secretary, and William Buchanan, treasurer.

The annual reunion of the Marion County Old Settlers' Association was held at the fair grounds in Salem and was largely attended. Senator William E. Mason was the principal orator and his speech was highly entertaining. In his remarks Senator Mason paid a glowing tribute to the late President McKinley, and at the close of his address the large crowd joined in singing the late President's favorite song, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Officers were elected for next year as follows: President, J. W. Fyke, Iuka; vice president, Seymour Andrews, Centralia; secretary, W. J. Tweed, Salem; treasurer, John W. Larimer, Salem.

Prof. George H. French of the Normal faculty at Carbondale has announced to the medical world the discovery of two more new intestinal parasites. At the present time his line of investigations will not permit of a full detailed description of their effects on the human body. During the last few days he has been visited by Dr. W. S. Pickard, the Chicago specialist, who has been closely studying the epileptic parasite and the cures that have resulted from it. An effort is on foot to establish an epileptic sanitarium in Carbondale to treat a number of cases in which the advice of Prof. French has been solicited.

The Nine Mile Baptist association held its session at Marissa. This is the fifty-seventh annual convention of the association. Elder Marion Teagel of Duquoin was chosen moderator, and Elder G. W. Danberry, Duquoin, secretary. Elder S. C. Fulmer of Indianapolis, secretary of the Baptist home missionary society of North America, presented the work of home missions, followed by a presentation of foreign mission work by Secretary S. E. Martin of Chicago. Elder Throgmorton of Duquoin preached.

A jury in the circuit court at Joliet has just decided a novel case. Mrs. Annie Gray was awarded $3,000 damages against her father, G. F. Gallikson, a well-to-do farmer in Peotone. The suit was based on a promise which Gallikson made seventeen years ago, on the night his daughter was married. He told the guests he would give the bride $2,000 or forty acres of land. He did neither. Gallikson was a widower at the time, but later married, and it is alleged that the second wife exerted an influence preventing the father from carrying out his promise.

A corn carnival, to be held four days, opened at Mount Pulaski with a good attendance. Premiums are offered for the best corn exhibited. Lectures are given to show the various uses to which the corn may be placed. Samples of the best and purest seed are distributed among the farmers, who are urged to devote their soil to none but the purest grain.

The jury at Taylorville in the case of Seth Mason against the Court of Honor Insurance company disagreed, after twenty-four hours' consideration. The suit was for $1,000, which was the amount of a policy held by Dr. J. Frank Mason, a son of the plaintiff. The insurance company contests payment because Dr. Mason committed suicide.

The fifth annual reunion of the G. A. R. association of Bureau county began at Sheffield for a two days' session, with 200 veterans from this part of Illinois attending. Congressman J. V. Graff of Pekin addressed 3,000 people. The president of the association, T. P. Streeter of Princeton, denounced anarchy and said: "As soldiers who fought for Old Glory, we protest against flaunting the red flag of anarchy. We oppose this monster in America and Bureau county." He urged the association to take action against the Spring Valley anarchists.

A writ of injunction was served on the board of managers of the Illinois State Reformatory at Pontiac. Superintendent Mallary and Judge C. M. Barickman by Sheriff Talbot today restraining them from removing or in any way interfering with James A. Marshall in the discharge of his duties as physician to the institution. The injunction was granted by Judge Moffet at Lincoln. The bill alleges that Samuel Fallows, John J. Lane and Garret De Forrest Kinney, members of the board, and M. M. Mallary, superintendent, have fraudulently and illegally conspired with Robert B. Fort of Lacon and Homer F. Aspinwall of Freeport to depose Marshall as physician in order to distribute political spoils contrary to the state laws. Marshall's successor was to have been A. B. Middleton, a young physician of this city. The writs are made returnable at the January term of the Circuit court.

A writ of injunction issued in the circuit court of the Pontiac district was served upon the board of managers of the Illinois State reformatory, restraining the board from removing or disturbing Dr. James A. Marshall in any manner from the practice of his duties as a physician. It is stated that the board of managers has attempted to remove Dr. Marshall from his post as physician for political reasons. The post of physician is one appointed by the board managers and the appointee holds his office until removed for cause. At a recent meeting of the board it was thought that Dr. Marshall would resign when he was asked, and resolutions were passed respecting the official conduct of the doctor. The doctor promptly decided to fight.

Warren Wayne, who made a desperate attempt to secure $600 from one of Grundy county's wealthiest citizens last April, was sentenced to four months in the county jail. He wrote a letter to the farmer threatening to blow up his home and other buildings with bombs unless the money was deposited at a certain place. A package was left and Wayne was captured. He is believed to be an old offender and is wanted in Chicago for forgery. He is over 60 years old and hails from Ray.

The reunion of the One Hundred and Seventh Illinois regiment was held in Monticello. Ninety-one members of the regiment were enrolled. A rousing camp fire was held at the opera house, the principal address being made by Judge Shonkwiler. At the business meeting a resolution was passed calling for legislation to stamp out anarchy and commending the promptness with which the assassin of the President has been tried and convicted.

The Effingham county fair association began a four days' meeting at Watson. The exhibits are unusually good, notwithstanding the drought. An excursion will be run from Watson on the Illinois Central during each day.

Sam Casey, Albert Watson and B. A. Marshall, owners of the hotel at Mt. Vernon, known as the Jefferson House, have traded the property to W. C. Ingram for a farm of 134 acres in Moore's Prairie township, known as the Flint farm. The Jefferson House is now under the management of T. J. Brown.

The California association of Forty-niners of Cooper county, held its annual meeting at the courthouse in Booneville Monday. After the business of the meeting was disposed of a banquet was enjoyed at the Powell hotel. The following members of the association were present: Colonel Robert McCulloch, president, Clark's Fork; W. G. Rissner, Pleasant Green; W. C. P. Taylor, Prairie Home; William Miller, Lamine; Colonel H. A. Hutchinson, Booneville.

William Kennedy, a patrolman at Bloomington, and Miss Kate Holland, sister of Alderman Edward Holland, were married at Holy Trinity.

Henry J. Knouth of Colfax and Hattie Kitchens of Tonalco, Bond county, were married at Bloomington.

Pittsfield defeated Winchester at football in a one-sided game. Score: Pittsfield, 24; Winchester, 0.

Major General Arthur MacArthur will be stationed at Chicago, probably in March next, in command of the Department of the Lakes. He will succeed Major General Otis, who had been in general command in the Philippines before going to Chicago. Since General MacArthur's return to this country from the Philippines there has been considerable speculation as to where he would be located in the military service. General MacArthur would not discuss the expected change.

Dr. W. C. Gray was buried Wednesday. Private services for the family and close friends were held at the home in Oak Park, in the morning, while at 10 o'clock public services were held at the Third Presbyterian church, Chicago. At this service Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of Brooklyn officiated. Interment was at Forest Home cemetery. Members of the Congregational and Presbyterian ministers' associations met in joint session Monday and adopted resolutions of regret.

The annual reunion of the Ninety-seventh Illinois volunteer infantry was held at Jewett. William Burderfield of Neoga was elected president; J. N. Ness of Greenup, vice president; J. D. Wheland of Greenup, secretary; T. R. Hancock of Neoga, treasurer.

The Modern Woodmen held an all-day picnic at Jacksonsville, with a large crowd attending. Free entertainments had been provided and lasted all day, concluding with a band concert and vaudeville show in Central park. Addresses were delivered by Judge C. A. Barnes and Hon. J. J. Reeve.

YACHT RACE A FIZZLE.

Tuesday's Trial Results in a "No Contest" Decision.

Owing to light winds Tuesday's yacht race between the Columbia and Shamrock resulted in a fizzle and the race was declared off when the yachts had covered about fifteen miles of the thirty miles of the triangular course. In the smooth sea the Shamrock proved the better drifter and gained three minutes and twenty seconds on the Columbia in the ten-mile beat to windward.

The Race in Figures.

Course—Equilateral triangle, 10 miles to leg.

Wind—Southeasterly, 4 knots. Result of race—No contest. Distance covered—14 miles.

Time of Start—Columbia, 11:00:10; Shamrock, 11:00:22.

Time of rounding first buoy—Shamrock, 2:41:36; Columbia, 2:44:44.

Time of "No Contest" Gun—3:45. Shamrock's lead at close—900 yds. Next race—Thursday.

Before the Race.

At 9 o'clock the observer at Sandy Hook reported the wind as fourteen miles from the northeast and the sea smooth. The Columbia was the first to start for the lightship. She was in tow, and was followed a few moments later by the Shamrock. At 9 o'clock the lower bay presented a prettier and more animated sight than it had on either of the previous race days.

There was a large fleet of pleasure craft hovering about and a noticeable increase in the number of sailing yachts. Lewis Noxon's houseboat, the Loudin, was anchored near Sir Thomas Lipton's big yacht, the Trin, while near by was the old schooner yacht America, which fifty years ago brought to these shores the silver trophy for which the Columbia and Shamrock are struggling.

As the yachts drew down toward the starting line the wind was decreasing perceptibly. When they were about three miles from the lightship the vanguard of the patrol boats and committee boat hove in sight and away up the narrows a growing cloud of black smoke heralded the coming of the great excursion fleet.

A few minutes after 10 o'clock the Shamrock had set her club topsail, staysail and jib in addition to her mainsail, and a minute or two after the Columbia followed suit. The sails filled fairly well as they came about to the wind, but the breeze appeared to be rather fitful. Then both the racers dropped their towlines and stood off, while the judges' boat took a position somewhat to the north of the lightship.

EDITOR OF INTERIOR DIES.

Dr. Gray, Publisher of Presbyterian Organ, Passes Away.

Chicago telegram: Dr. William C. Gray, the well-known editor of the Interior, the organ of the Presbyterian church, died at 1:07 o'clock p. m. at his home, No. 217 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. William C. Gray was born in Butler county, Ohio, Oct. 1, 1830. He married when he was 26 years of age. Dr. Gray's life was one of toil, and he was seldom known to take a vacation. With brief interruptions he worked upon newspapers for more than fifty years. He became editor of the Miami Democrat while he was still studying law in 1851. The next year he established the Tiffin but, continuing his newspaper work, took the editorship of the Scott Battery in the campaign of that year. The next year he established the Tiffin (Ohio) Tribune. In 1862 he joined the editorial staff of the Cleveland Herald. The next year he again became an editor this time of the Newark American. He remained in that position until he took charge of the Interior, in 1871. In addition to his editorial work, he published several volumes of sketches. The best known of these are "Camp-Fire Musings" and "Clear Creek."

Big Steel Trust Earns $54,934,871.

The billion-dollar steel trust launched last spring by J. Pierpont Morgan, completed its first six months Tuesday, and, judging by the meager statement vouchsafed the public, it has been a great success from the viewpoint of the $200,000,000 syndicate which floated it. In Wall street, the statement, as far as it goes, was considered very satisfactory. The brief half-yearly statement issued by the United States Steel Corporation for the period ending Sept. 30 shows net earnings of $54,934,871, and a payment in dividends of $27,968,424.

Pronunciation of Roosevelt.

The proper pronunciation of the President's family name is not as though it were Rusevelt, but Rose-zvelt. The family is sensitive about such matters. The Roosevelt family is of Dutch origin, and therefore desirous that the family name should be properly enunciated.

President Gives a Dinner.

Washington telegram: President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained a few friends at dinner at night, the number including Senator Mitchell of Oregon, Wayne MacVeigh, Mr. and Mrs. Bryce of London and Captain Wainwright of the navy.

Militia Officer Is Accused.

Major F. B. Dodge, Special Policeman William F. Hogan and C. C. Sawyer, and Roy R. Hardy were all arrested at Cleveland, O., on the charge of intoxication and carrying concealed weapons. The four men arrived from Cambridge on Saturday night. It is alleged that they began shooting through the windows of the car, causing a panic among the passengers. Major Dodge is a well known officer of the National guard, having held various offices in the Fifth Regiment for several years.

FIGHTING BOB TESTIFIES

Rear Admiral Evans' Testimony Unfavorable to Chief.

TELLS OF THE FAMOUS LOOP.

Declares Brooklyn Nearly Sunk the Iowa as Well as the Texas—There Was Nothing to Prevent Colliding at Sea, He Says.

Washington telegram: Developments at the court of inquiry were somewhat unfavorable to Rear Admiral Schley, Monday. Rear Admiral Evans of the Iowa, the strongest witness for the department; Commander Jewell of the scout Minneapolis, and Captain Miller of the collier, were on the stand. In substance Rear Admiral Evans testified that the Texas and Iowa were both endangered by the loop of the Brooklyn; that there was nothing to prevent colliding at sea; that he knew of no reason for the retrograde movement; that no effort was made by Rear Admiral Schley to ascertain the presence of the Spanish fleet in Santiago harbor after the flying on this occasion?"

"I mean during the battle?"
"I mean the beginning of the battle."
"I saw the Brooklyn when the fight began. When I reached the bridge of the Iowa the Brooklyn was still off to the westward, headed, I should say, northwest. That was just as the fight began. I saw it again, possibly five minutes afterward, when it was steaming westward fast, firing its port battery, headed northwest, toward the head of the Spanish column. I did not see the Brooklyn again until my attention was directed to it by the navigator calling to me: 'Look out, Captain, for the Texas.'"
"I went on the port bridge where the navigator was standing, and I said: 'Where the devil is the Texas?' The navigator said: 'Here it is, sir, in the smoke.' I said to myself: 'Captain Philip will look after the Texas,' and went below. In a few minutes the navigator called out again: 'Look out, Captain, you will run into the Texas.' I walked over to the port side of the bridge and saw the Brooklyn's smoke stack and military masts. It was lying directly across the bows of the Texas. The Texas was apparently backing and dangerously close to the Iowa. The Brooklyn seemed to be 100 yards directly in front of the Texas. I eased the helm of the Iowa a little, ported its helm a little, and just at that moment the Oregon came through my lee and passed between me and the Texas, and the three boats were bunched together.

"At the time the Brooklyn was shut out in the smoke, and I saw no more of it until the Colon had passed well to the westward of me, when one on the bridge said: 'The Brooklyn is knocked out.'"
"I went on the bridge to see what had happened, and it was then about a mile and a half forward of the port beam of the Iowa, with the Colon seven or eight miles ahead and on its starboard bow. From that time on the firing was light, and I could see the Brooklyn occasionally. The Brooklyn was on its starboard bow on the port quarter of the Colon. Well astern of it was the Colon, with the Vixen off shore of the Brooklyn. The Iowa at the time was directly in the wake of the Colon, with the Vixen a little on its starboard bow.

"How was the Iowa headed by the compass?"
"To the westward, heading for the enemy's ships. I do not know whether we were headed west by south or west by north."

In the cross-examination of Admiral Evans in the Schley inquiry he made material changes in his testimony concerning speed and distances. Captain Sigsbee's evidence helped Schley.

"When the court convened for the afternoon session Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, who as captain commanded the battleship Iowa during the battle of Santiago, was called to the witness stand. He stated that he had first joined the flying squadron off Cienfuegos on May 22 at 1 p. m., when he took the dispatches from Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley. These dispatches he had sent to Commodore Schley by his executive officer, Commander Rogers, he not seeing the commodore himself. As the dispatches were sealed he did not know their contents.

Judge Advocate—Please state what, if anything, was done while this squadron was off Cienfuegos toward developing the fact as to whether the Spanish squadron under Admiral Cervera was or was not in the harbor of Cienfuegos?"

"There was nothing done so far as I know."
"What, if anything, within your knowledge was done toward destroying or preventing the further completion of the enemy's batteries in the vicinity of Cienfuegos?"

"On Sunday afternoon, I am quite sure it was, Commodore Schley formed his squadron in columns and stood in a range of about a mile and a half from shore, made a turn, and stood out again. That is the only thing I know."
"Was any attack made upon the enemy or by the enemy at that time?"
"No. They all got up and stood on the breastworks and looked at us. We steamed out again. There was no firing on either side."

"Were you then within range of the batteries in the vicinity of Cienfuegos with the heavier guns of your ship?"
"I did not see any batteries. There was a work they were completing there."
"Were you within range of this?"
"Quite easy range, yes."
"Did the Iowa coal ship while in Cienfuegos, and if so how much did it take?"
"We took in 250 tons of coal on the 23d. We began about 7 in the morning and stopped at 6 in the afternoon. We took coal from a collier alongside—the Merrimae, I think."

Describes Battle of Santiago.
Admiral Evans said:
"When Cervera's fleet came out of Santiago harbor the Iowa was at the center, with the Brooklyn to the left, and the Texas between."

Captain Lemly—"Do you remember what vessels were between them?"
"The only vessel between the Iowa and the Brooklyn was the Texas."
"Did you have an opportunity of observing the movements of the Brook-

The Influence of Kindness.
There are few people so fortunate that at some period of their lives they do not droop under the clouds of trouble or misfortune. At some time grief is almost certain to come, an unwelcome guest. Sorrows and troubles gather round us, causing our hearts almost to break beneath their weight. It is in those dark hours that the heart needs the comfort and kindness of a sympathizing friend. We are so constituted that, to a great degree, our happiness is dependent upon others. The heart is formed for friendships, and we need the smile and light glowing from the faces of others as much as the little flower needs the warmth of the sun or the cooling shower. Words of kindness fall upon the heart like the gentle dew. We know not, and may not know the good we might do in this world by simple deeds of kindness. They are worth more than silver or gold. How like angels of mercy we might become if we would be guided more by the law of kindness—kindness to all, especially to the poor and to those who have strayed from the paths of rectitude! It is kindness alone that will soften their hearts and win them back eventually to the right way.—New York Weekly.

A FEARLESS PHYSICIAN.
Benton, Ill., Sept. 30th.—Much comment has been caused by the action of Dr. R. H. Dunaway, a physician here, who for over a year past he been recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to those of his patients who suffered from Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Diabetes or other Kidney Troubles.
Dr. Dunaway also published an open letter last May stating positively that he himself had been cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and that, after he had concluded he was going to die.

Eye Indicates Character.
Physiognomists rely greatly upon the expression and color of the eye in reading character. It is said that deep blue eyes indicate a mind disposed to coquetry, but still bespeak a heart capable of pure, unswerving, ardent love. Gray eyes signify dignity, intelligence, and large reasoning powers. Greenish eyes belong to a nature in which will be found, in the majority of cases, jealousy, falsehood, scandal and malice. Where the white is tinged with yellow and streaked with reddish veins, the eyes are the reflectors of passion and hasty temper. Restless eyes, that cannot look one steadily in the face, denote a scheming and a treacherous disposition. Quiet eyes signify self-command, compacency, and a modicum of conceit. Black eyes tell you of slumbering passions and an active disposition, sometimes marred with a tinge of deceit. The brown eye is a dear, sweet eye, loving and tender, and as trusty as it is honest and faithful, indicating a nature full of generosity, kindness and happiness.—New York Weekly.

The Population of London.
The population of London, according to the authoritative and careful calculations of Mr. Welton, published in the December (1900) issue of the Royal Statistical Society's Journal, amounted to only 1,060,000 in 1801. This figure had doubled itself by 1841; in 1891 the total reached 5,442,000, and by 1901 was probably 6,250,000. The area included, it should be said, is not precisely that of the census returns, so that the figures, though based upon the census returns, differ considerably from them. But practically we may say that in the lapse of a century the inhabitants of London multiplied sixfold. This enormous population, greater than that of many European states of the second class, is compressed within a space of about 130,000 acres, or say, 200 square miles.

A DAIRY COUNTRY.
What Prof. Henry Thinks of the New Lands in North Wisconsin.

Prof. W. E. Henry, dean of the college of agriculture, in an article on the dairy industry of northern Wisconsin, says: "After careful study of all the conditions prevailing in northern Wisconsin, the writer is firmly impressed with the belief that this will become one of the great dairy regions of America. First of all, there is that prime requisite for fine butter and cheese, namely, an ample supply of pure cold water everywhere accessible. Second, an abundance of wholesome stock foods. In summer time the cattle of northern Wisconsin will find in its pastures the finest of grasses and clovers (red and white clover flourishes), and timothy and blue grass pastures are as prevalent and productive as anywhere further south."

If you are interested, and want to learn more about this country, we suggest that you write to D. W. Casseday, land agent of the "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, and ask him to send printed matter. He will be glad to do so.

A WOMAN TO A MAN.
When you grieve and let it show,
And may tell me nothing more,
You have told me o'er and o'er
All a woman needs to know.
When I show you that I care, (Meet your eyes and touch your hand
I have made you understand
All a woman may, or dare.
So, the ears of friendship's eyes!
So 'twas seen of friendship's eyes!
You are sad, I sympathize,
All without a single word.

Her Johnnie Morgan.

BY WILLIAM WENDHAM.
(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)
His name was not Johnnie Morgan; it was Antonio Pansado. But from that day almost a year ago when she first heard and saw him, a very dirty and very picturesque Italian violinist, fiddling his way through the tightened purse strings and into the hearts of all who heard him, she had christened him and to herself had called him "Johnnie Morgan." Almost a year it was and to her the shortest year she had ever lived, for it seemed as if this Antonio had brought with him into her life the blue sky and the sunshine of his own Italy.

Miss Anna Gilbert was the teacher of drawing and painting in the Girls' College at Madisonville, and was more beloved than any teacher of the college had ever been before. The title which the girls had given her, "Saint Anna," was truly deserved, for so thickly did she sow the seeds of goodness about her that had her harvest of thanks from poor struggling students been wheat at the right time of the market it would have given her a princess' income.

During her youth, for it must be confessed her youth was mostly behind her, she had worked and sacrificed for her parents until their death, and then she struggled for the education of her younger brother and sister.

One gray October morning on her way to work she had been struck by the evident genius of the young Italian, who was playing his violin on the street. Always attracted by music she stopped to listen and was struck by the combination of poverty and genius in the handsome young fellow.

He certainly was unusually handsome and he looked even younger than he was for his face possessed a great sincerity and ingenuously of expression. The soft dark eyes and olive skin were enhanced by the exceeding thinness of the face and by the hungry look in the eyes—a hunger for spiritual and mental as well as physical food, which, shining from those dark eyes appealed directly and powerfully to this warm-hearted woman. Knowing of an opening in the college she quietly put the man and the opportunity together, with the result that the Italian, within a month, was giving lessons to a class. And the class grew immediately from three to thirteen.

To his patroness he owed all, and never did he cease to pour out to her his gratitude. He treated her with the greatest reverence and when walking home with her or meeting her coming to her duties he would hold open the gate or raise his hat as if she were a princess. Then she got into the habit of asking him to come in when he walked home with her and of making a cup of tea in her little bachelor room, which always seemed cosy and pleasant to them both, and had made his thanks overflow to "Mees Anna." She discovered that he was saving almost all his earnings toward a sum which would enable him to bring over his old father and mother.

He poured out his music to Miss Gilbert, as he did his troubles, with those "foolish girls who will not work at ze lesson." And to all his plans and troubles she listened with sympathy, as she always had done to any of the students in whom she was taking a special interest. But sympathy and friendliness in a woman's heart toward a man, when the man is young, handsome and manly, is going to grow into love as surely as the acorn which Dame Nature also planted is going to grow into an oak.

One June day after he had walked

A picturesque Italian violinist, home with her she sat in her room and with many blushes faced it—faced this fact that she loved the violinist. The song was all true: She loved her "Johnnie Morgan." And why not? she asked herself. Had she not worked hard for others all her life and been faithful in all things? Was it not right that the sunshine of love and happiness should come into her life. She dreamed that night of a cottage filled with the music of a violin; and never had she looked so radiant and so young as she did the next day.
"I had a letter this morning from my little sister," she said to Antonio the next evening as he walked home with her. "She is coming next week to spend her vacation with me."

"Ah, the little sister. I shall love the little child for the sake of Saint Anna," exclaimed Antonio.
Saint Anna laughed.
"Oh, she's not so small as all that," she replied. Saldie is eighteen and a great tall girl, but I call her my little sister because she always has been my baby. She has been at Normal school and next season she will begin to teach."
Saldie came, and a rosebud of rare perfection she was—a perfect type of blonde beauty, with a warm heart and a vivacity which charmed all who met her. To her physical charms she added a character built on strongest foundations, for to this baby sister had Miss Anna given all the loving care and earnestness of thought, all the building up of ideals that she had missed in her own girlhood and acquired in her hard battles with the world.

The next time Antonio walked home with his "St. Anna" she insisted that he come in and see the "little sister." He came and they had a cup of tea, and Antonio, who was prepared to make himself agreeable for the sake of his patroness and friend, soon forgot all about her in the presence of the sparkling youth and beauty of Saldie. He came more often than ever after that and sat in undisguised rapture and adoration at the feet of the younger girl. Nor was she less attracted by the dark faced foreigner with the soft black eyes.

"He is her Johnnie Morgan."

As Miss Anna watched them it all came to her and she saw, not as through a glass darkly, but as in the glare of the morning light, how it all was and would be. She had built up these two, had given them sustenance from her own nature, had fed their souls and warmed their hearts, for this very thing. And what could be better, she thought, than that these two young things, full of life and love and the sunshine of the present and promise of the future, should love each other. Nothing, she told herself, nothing could be better. It was natural. It was right.

As she stood in front of her glass she looked closely at herself, scanning her features critically.
"You thought you could be young again?" she said, "but you had more than ten years against you."
She looked closely at her heavy brown hair and noting the few gray hairs about the temples she smiled a little sadly to herself. She looked lovingly at Saldie, asleep on the bed, and said softly:

"He is her Johnnie Morgan," and then with a weary sigh, "Oh, how glad I am that Wellesley needs another drawing teacher next year."
If Saldie had been awake instead of asleep she might have seen above the head of St. Anna, the ring of white light which crowned the head of this saint in this her supreme hour of sacrifice.

MARRIED IN HASTE.

Strange Story of Miss Creydt's Wedding and the Consequences.

In October last Miss Helene Creydt, who was living at Cologne, inserted an advertisement in the Frankfurter Zeitung, to the effect that she was an orphan possessing some means, and desired to correspond with an honorable gentleman with a view to matrimony. Franz von Berger, alias Dr. Emmanuel Egon Borges, who is an Austrian by birth and an American citizen, replied to this in a letter written from an address in Cockspar street, London. He described himself as a professor of Harvard university, with a salary of 60,000 francs. Correspondence ensued, and on December 23 the lady came to England and was met at Southampton by Berger, who brought her to London, and after telling her that she came up to all his expectations, and that he would marry her, placed a ring on her finger and asked her to accompany him to a registry office. They then went to a private house, where they went through a form of marriage in the presence of three men; but there was no trace of the marriage in the records of Somerset House. Miss Creydt, believing that she had been legally married, handed to him some banknotes and shares to the value of £150, and he also induced her to pawn some of her jewelry. He then persuaded her to write and ask her brother for £50 on account of her interest under her father's will, and when the check came he took it away and cashed it. On April 1 she received a draft for £543, and placed it in her desk. This draft Berger is alleged to have stolen, as he cashed it the following day at the Dutch Bank. He then disappeared, but was traced to New York, and at Bow street, where the above facts were recounted, was remanded on a charge of stealing the £543 check.

Better Than Hay

Is what farmers say of corn fodder after it has been husked and shredded by a McCormick. The average crop of corn fodder, when properly cured and shredded, is worth as much in feeding value as the average crop of hay. The farmer who uses the McCormick Corn Binder, and the McCormick Husker and Shredder, can therefore double the earning power of his land. He can raise a crop of ear corn, the same as heretofore, and he can harvest from the same land the equivalent of a crop of hay.

The best way known to prepare fodder for feeding is to shred it. When the right kind of a shredder head is used the fodder is cut and torn, and torn to pieces and all of the stalk is eaten. The McCormick shredder head is a combination of shredder and cutter. The radial portion, or blade, splits and shreds the stalks while the smaller triangular knife on the end of each blade cuts the slivers into short lengths. The angle at which these knives cut is an acute one, so that they have a shearing action and run a long time without sharpening. The radial blades are serated and seldom need sharpening.

This is only one of the many advantages which the McCormick has and will be pleased to point them out to you. We will make you a right price and terms.

Lastly he cried for help, but what could six persons do against six hundred? One man stood forward, tall and calm. A few of the men knew him for the general manager of the company, and seldom seen at the mines. "What's up, my men?" Danny told him in a few terse sentences. They sounded humorous. The general manager listened and actually grinned. The grin grew into a laugh and was actually infectious. The strikers laughed with him.

"A mule and a mutiny," observed the general manager, "and where is the rebel?"

As if a stage cue had been given, Crazy Bill walked out of the mine mouth. His rusty chains dragged behind him, but his head was proudly erect. On his back, clinging to his collar, sat Elsie, her braids unfastened by her rough ride, her face sooty and streaked.

She saw no one but Danny, and to him, her young eyes all alight, she called:

"I bring out Crazy Bill, Danny! He knows you allers lemme ride 'im. Now

"I bring out Crazy Bill, Danny!" there's no need for any strike. I fetched 'im out 'thout a lick, Danny!" How the men shouted!

ASKS POWER TO HANG BOERS

Summary Measures Advocated by the English General. London telegram: The Daily Express publishes a report that Lord Kitchener has asked for 25,000 more seasoned mounted men and for power to hang rebels, traitors, and murderers without reference to the home government. Immediately on his return from the continent, says the Daily News, "the King summoned a meeting of the council to consider Lord Kitchener's position. It is understood that his majesty assumed a very strong attitude, and closely questioned Ministers upon their proposals." The Daily Express says it understands that when the war in South Africa is over King Edward and Queen Alexandra intend to visit the colonies and India, and that while in India his majesty will be crowned Emperor of India. Kitchener Blames the Boers. Pretoria telegram: According to a pamphlet published here under authority of Lord Kitchener, responsibility for the war rests with the burghers. "Whose invasion of unprotected British territory opened the saddest page in South African history." He quotes a letter from a member of the Volksraad to a member of the Cape Colony Assembly declaring that "the time is ripe to drive the English from South Africa." A proclamation has been issued providing for the sale of properties of burghers still in the field, in accordance with the terms of Lord Kitchener's previous proclamation. The pamphlet also contains a notice of the permanent banishment of several Boer leaders captured since Sept. 15, and also a long letter from Lord Kitchener replying to a communication from Acting President Schalk-Burger, received Sept. 5. Lord Kitchener promises to send the Schalk-Burger letter to the imperial government, which, he says, reciprocates the Boer statesman's desire for peace.

Seymour Wins His Fight.

Mayor James M. Seymour of Newark was nominated on the second ballot at Trenton as the Democratic candidate for governor of New Jersey in a convention that was at times turbulent in the extreme. State Chairman William Gurley was permanent chairman of the first convention. The first voting showed that the Seymour and anti-Seymour forces were almost evenly divided, and had the anti-Seymour leaders been able to concentrate their vote on a single candidate they might have won. The nomination of Mayor Seymour was a defeat for former United States Senator Smith and his forces, and a victory for E. F. C. Young and Robert Davis of Hudson county and Colonel E. L. Price of Essex county.

Manila Hemp Inquiry On.

Washington telegram: The senate subcommittee of the committee on military affairs, consisting of Senators Hawley, chairman; Proctor, Burrows, Cockerell and Harris, has begun the investigation of charges against Lieutenant Col. H. O. Heistand of the army, in connection with the alleged Manila hemp combination. The charges were preferred by Maj. E. L. Hawkes, formerly a volunteer officer, and were deemed of sufficient seriousness to warrant an investigation by the senate. Col. Heistand was present at the opening of the inquiry in company with his attorney, Charles W. Needham. The committee decided that the proceedings should be public, that course being regarded as best for all concerned. Miss Blanche Bates Is Ill. Miss Blanche Bates, who is playing the leading feminine role in Frohman's "Under Two Flags" at the Detroit Opera House, was taken to Grace hospital at Detroit. She is suffering from a severe attack of malarial fever. Her physician announced that it would be several days before she would be able to resume her work. In the meantime Miss Helen Ware will fill her place in the company. Prisoners Want More Food. At Xenia, O., the prisoners in the county jail went on strike. They sent word a few minutes before their supper was served that they would refuse to eat unless more food was given them. Upon receiving their supper from the turnkey, they began to beat on their iron bells and to yell and curse. Upon the arrival of the sheriff the noise immediately ceased, and he ordered the supper removed and informed the prisoners that their next meal would be breakfast.

THE ASSASSIN HEARS DOOM

Leon Czolgosz Is Sentenced to Die in Electric Chair.

SAYS HE HAD NO ACCOMPLICES.

Murderer of McKinley Tells Judge No One Else Was in Plot—Dramatic Scene in Court—Falters While Making His Statements to Judge.

History of the Trial.

Monday, Sept. 16.—Czolgosz arraigned in court before Judge White, charged with the murder of President McKinley on Sept. 7. He refused to answer the indictment. Monday, Sept. 23.—Czolgosz placed on trial. Pleaded guilty to charge. Plea not accepted and trial proceeds. Tuesday, Sept. 24.—Czolgosz is found guilty as charged. Thursday, Sept. 26.—Judge White, who presided at trial, sentences prisoner to be put to death in the electric chair at Auburn prison, sometime during the week beginning October 28. Czolgosz Receives Sentence. Czolgosz was sentenced to death by Justice Truman C. White in the Supreme court at Buffalo Thursday afternoon. The assassin took advantage of the opportunity to speak, but he confined himself to taking upon his own shoulders the blame for the great crime of having murdered the president of the United States. He advanced no reason in justification of his monstrous deed. Not a word did he utter of anarchy, of his enmity to government or of the motives which prompted him to the commission of his crime. Hall Cleared by Police. Greater crowds gathered for the sentencing of the assassin than came for any one session of the trial itself. Before 12:30 p. m. a crowd had gathered in the corridor in front of Justice White's court room. By 1 p. m. the corridor was jammed. Capt. Regan then appeared on the stairs with a squad of 100 uniformed officers and cleared the hall. It was a case of first come first served after a line was formed, and the tickets of admission issued for the trial were worthless. It took less than ten minutes for the single file to fill the court room and then the doors were closed to be opened only upon the arrival of officials, counsel and others connected with the day's proceedings. Dramatic Scene in Court. In a hush that was like the silence of death Justice White pronounced the prisoner's doom. Physically tottering under the ordeal, but sustaining himself by sheer force of nerve, the murderer heard the words of death pronounced, was shackled and quietly submitted to be led away. In no brazen fashion did the prisoner face the court. Swaying from side to side, boyish looking, trembling with nervousness, but held up by nerve, he stood leaning on the chair in front of him. Falters in His Words. Falteringly, hesitatingly, he spoke, after having been asked each question several times. He acted almost as if the words were being wrung out of him, it took him so long to find utterance, and he spoke so rapidly when the first word left his lips in response to a question. His voice was hardly heard ten feet away, although every ear in the great court room was strained to catch the slightest sound from his lips. His face paled at no time during the proceedings. It was flushed with the emotion it was costing him so much strength to master. As the preliminary to the pronouncing of sentence many questions were asked by the district attorney. Czolgosz evinced the utmost willingness to answer all these questions, but his utterance seemed to smother in his throat. Lawyer Offers Aid. It was only after an effort that each reply was blurted out. As he stood his breast heaved, his eyes blinked rapidly and once he almost reeled, so that ex-Judge Titus, his counsel, held up a hand to support him. He did not need the proffered aid, but straightened himself up of his own effort. It was with a feeling of relief that the assassin heard the words, "Remove the prisoner," pronounced by Judge White. He heaved a great sigh as he was manacled and was led away. Tells of His Life. "Stand up, Czolgosz, please," said Mr. Penny, turning to the prisoner. Nudged by bailiffs, the prisoner stood up, the center of all attention in the crowded room. In answer to questions put by Mr. Penny, Czolgosz said under oath that he was born in Detroit, that he was educated in the common and church schools, that he had been a Catholic, that he was a laborer, and that he had lived in Cleveland and in Buffalo. The court clerk then asked the question for which all had been awaiting. Judge Titus asked that the prisoner be permitted to make a statement in exculpation of his act. Czolgosz leaned heavily on a chair. He then spoke, saying he alone committed the crime. No one had anything to do with his crime but himself, he said. Judge White—"Before the passing of sentence you may speak on two subjects. First, you can claim that you are insane; second, that you have good cause to offer that judgment should not be pronounced against you; third,

"Remove the prisoner." Considerable surprise was expressed that Justice White did not pronounce the customary appeal to the Almighty in concluding his sentence, "and may God have mercy on your soul." The court quit at the middle of the

DISTRICT ATTORNEY PENNEY. (From a sketch made at Buffalo.)

Manacled and Led Away. The hush as the solemn words were pronounced was like the silence of the tomb. For several moments the silence was unbroken. The click of handcuffs put a startling termination on the strain. Like a great sob the emotion of the court room welled up and were lost in the shuffling of feet. The final scene of the historic trial was concluded. Manacled to detectives who had brought him into the court, the assassin was conducted away. Between the wall of bailiffs, policemen and spectators the murderer passed. He looked not into a single eye. Justified by himself or not, his deed lay heavy on his head. A groan of execration followed him down the broad court house stairs to the jail tunnel below.

POWERS OF HERDITY.

Some Remarkable Stories Told of Its Mysterious Influences. Doctors disagree as to the influence of heredity. Some hold that a great deal hinges upon it; others believe the contrary. Some of the authentic stories told to exemplify this mysterious bond between ancestors and descendants are very curious. There was a loan collection of old portraits exhibited in London lately and a young girl was among the visitors. She was an orphan and wealthy, but without near relatives, and was often heard to complain of the loneliness of her position. As she passed through the gallery one particular portrait attracted her attention and she went back to it more than once. Her companion saw in it nothing but the commonplace painting of a middle-aged man in the costume of the latter part of the last century. "It is such a nice, kind face," said the girl, rather wistfully. "I imagine my father might have looked like that had he lived." As most of the pictures were ticketed the visitors had purchased no catalogue, but before going away, Miss B. bought one at the entrance and made a last visit to the portrait for which she had felt so strong an attraction. To her astonishment she found her own name opposite to its number and learned on inquiry that the original was one of her direct ancestors. Another occult coincidence or psychological phenomenon happened a few years ago to a southern statesman and financier whose family has always been of rank in his native state. This gentleman was overhauling old documents and letters which had been stored in a dusty chest for years and intended to publish whatever might be of historic value and interest. To his surprise he unfolded a letter yellow and time-stained which was written in his own

FILIPINOS HAVE BIG LOSS

One Hundred and Forty Insurgents Are Slain.

NEW REPORT OF THE BATTLE.

Sergeant Markley and a Private Escape Across the Bay to Tanuan, Leyte, and Tell of the Action—Cruelty of Native Leader.

Manila telegram: Sergeant Markley and a private of company C of the Ninth infantry, which was surprised and many of the men killed in Balangiga, Samar, by a band of insurgents, escaped across the bay to Tanuan, Leyte, and have made a report on the action. The sergeant and private evidently did not know of the escape of twenty-four of their comrades to Basay, Island of Samar. They report that 400 bolomen attacked the garrison of Balangiga, who were at breakfast and were without their arms. A majority of the men in the barracks were killed. One hundred and forty natives were killed in the fight. General Hughes is going to the scene of the disaster, and will personally command the troops. The American officers at Manila do not attempt to explain the massacre, except on the ground of overconfidence on the part of the troops at Balangiga, and lack of watchfulness. This was due, probably, to the extreme friendliness of the presidente and townspeople, who recently welcomed the Ninth with music and feasts. How Americans Were Surprised. Presumably the insurgents waited until the men were at breakfast, and therefore unarmed. The officers would undoubtedly mess together in the convent, and this would make necessary attacks at different points. Unless the natives were able to secure unopposed access to the convent it is thought the officers would be able to make a good resistance, but the enlisted men, being without their officers at the time and in unprotected quarters, would have been at the mercy of their assailants. Lucban Noted for Cruelty. To those officers familiar with the conditions in Samar the occurrence is not altogether surprising. General Lucban, who has been at the head of the insurrection in Samar, is one of the cruelest of the insurgent leaders. When Adjutant General Corbin was in the Philippines it was thought in Manila that Lucban had left Samar and was in Southern Luzon endeavoring to arouse the inhabitants of Cebu and stir up an outbreak there. If Lucban was in Cebu he would be well informed as to the movements of the Americans, and would have known definitely of the strength of the garrison. There is no doubt among the officers here that having learned of the assassination of President McKinley, he concluded it would be an excellent opportunity again to stir his followers to action.

PLOT TO MURDER WHITES.

New Branch of the Katipunan Discovered at Tarlac. Manila telegram: A branch of the Katipunan has been discovered at Tarlac, capital of the province of that name. The object of the society is the slaughter of the whites. Marcelino Mariville, president of Banaoang, is the chief of the new branch, which includes numbers of the native constabulary, who were recently armed. One policeman admits that he was taxed $1 and was ordered to make bolos. A regular collection has been made by the organization from the natives, either by persuasion or threats and an uprising had been planned for an early date. The conditions in Tayabas and Batangas are not reassuring. The worst form of guerrilla warfare prevails there. The insurgent forces are distributed, under cover, along every road and trail, and wait for travelers in ambush. The insurgent leader Caballos, who formerly belonged to Gen. Calles' command, but who refused to surrender with Calles, is retreating to the mountains. The main forces of the insurgents are scattered in bands over the province, where they dig up rifles when there is an opportunity to use them.

SEX IS REVEALED BY DEATH

Wealthy Boston Woman Passes for Two Years as a Man. New York telegram: The strange story of a woman who preferred to pass for a man was revealed by the death today of Miss Caroline Hall of Boston, a cabin passenger on the steamship Citta di Terino, which arrived from Naples and other Mediterranean ports on Sunday. On the passenger list Miss Hall appeared as "Mr. Charles Windlow Hall," and with "him" on the ship was Mrs. Hall. It was not until the former was stricken with a mortal illness that the ship's surgeons made the discovery that the supposed man was a woman. Before that no one suspected that "Mr. Hall" was not a man and "he" and "his" wife were revealed as such. The woman addressed her companion as "Mrs. Hall" and spoke of her as "my wife."

Dream of Death Verified.

Evansville, Ind., telegram: William Vickery, a wealthy capitalist of Gibson county, was found dead in his flour mill at Fort Branch. Twice during the month Vickery dreamt he would die during the latter part of the month in the mill. Napoleon's 64th Niece Dies. Rome telegram: The Countess Charlotte Primoli, daughter of Prince Charles Lucien Bonaparte and great niece of Napoleon I, died last night at her chateau at Arcola, near Rome.

Fewer Strikes in France.

The statistics of the strikes in France for June have just been published. In all the month gave birth to 57, while the total for the first six months of the year was 306. The same period in 1900 yielded 475, which shows an agreeable falling off in the discontent of the working classes.

BRINGING CZOLGOSZ INTO COURT FOR SENTENCE. FROM A SKETCH MADE IN COURT.

that you wish a new trial. Given Liberty to Speak. "These are the grounds specified by statute. You are now at liberty to speak." Czolgosz—"I have nothing to say on those things." Judge Titus then consulted the prisoner. Judge Titus—"I think he ought to be permitted to make a statement in exculpation of his family, your honor." Judge White—"The defendant may speak in exculpation of his father and brothers and sisters, if that is what he means to do it is proper." Says He Did It Alone. Czolgosz—"No other person had anything to do with it. No other person knew of this but myself; my father or mother or no one else knew nothing about it. I never thought of the crime until two days before I committed it and never told nobody about it." Judge Lewis—"He says he did not make up his mind to do it until a few days before its commission. Justice White—"Czolgosz, in taking the life of our beloved president you committed a crime that shocked and outraged all the civilized world. After learning all the facts and circumstances in the case, twelve good men have pronounced you guilty of murder in the first degree. You say that no other person abetted you in the commission of this terrible act. The penalty is fixed by statute, and it becomes my duty to impose sentence upon you. The sentence of this court is that on October 28, at the place designated and in the manner prescribed by law, you suffer the punishment of death. Peculiar handwriting, or seemed to have been written by him, although the date was two generations before his birth. The signature of the surname, which was the same as his own, was so markedly characteristic that he could scarcely believe his own hand did not pen the letters.—Montreal Herald and Star.

SONGS I USED TO KNOW

KINDER like the old songs,
The songs I used to know
In the dear old country village.
Of the dear old long ago.
I kinder like the music of Ben Bolt, and other tunes
They sang among the cedars
In the scented, amorous
Junes
When the corn began to
tassel;
When the lazy summer
breezes
Shook the perfume from
the flowers
As it filtered through the trees,
With the sunlight of the season
Glinting where the grasses spread,
Where the roses fell in clusters,
Blushing sweetly, deeply red—
Ah, yes, I like the old songs,
The kind they used to sing
When life was like a primrose
Just bursting in the spring.

Somehow I like the old songs—
Yes, the Maple on the Hill,
Some Twenty Years Ago, Tom,
And dear old Whippoorwill;
And Starry Night for Ramble,
And Coming Through the Rye,
And other dear old melodies
They sang to you and I—
Ah, yes, I like the old songs,
The kind they used to sing
When life was like a primrose
Just bursting in the spring.

Oh, how I love the old songs
I heard at mother's knee,
The sweet, entrancing melodies
She used to sing to me!
The dear old funny Frog song—
Miss Mousie by his side—
And the song of Old Aunt Nancy,
The old gray goose that died,
And the songs about the foxes,
And the things the foxes stole—
Oh, the mellow cadences!
How they sing a fellow's soul—
Ah, yes, I like the old songs,
The kind they used to sing
When life was like a primrose
Just bursting in the spring.

Her Johnnie Morgan.

(Copyright, 1901, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)
His name was not Johnnie Morgan;
It was Antonio Pansado. But from that day almost a year ago when she first heard and saw him, a very dirty and very picturesque Italian violinist, fiddling his way through the tightened purple strings and into the hearts of all who heard him, she had christened him and to herself had called him "Johnnie Morgan." Almost a year it was and to her the shortest year she had ever lived, for it seemed as if this Antonio had brought with him into her life the blue sky and the sunshine of his own Italy.

Miss Anna Gilbert was the teacher of drawing and painting in the Girls' College at Madisonville, and was more beloved than any teacher of the college had ever been before. The title which the girls had given her, "Saint Anna," was truly deserved, for so thickly did she sow the seeds of goodness about her that had her harvest of thanks from poor struggling students been wheat at the right time of the market it would have given her a princess' income.

During her youth, for it must be confessed her youth was mostly behind her, she had worked and sacrificed for her parents until their death, and then she struggled for the education of her younger brother and sister.

One gray October morning on her way to work she had been struck by

grew immediately from three to thirteen.

To his patroness he owed all, and never did he cease to pour out to her his gratitude. He treated her with the greatest reverence and when walking home with her or meeting her coming to her duties he would hold open the gate or raise his hat as if she were a princess. Then she got into the habit of asking him to come in when he walked home with her and of making a cup of tea in her little bachelor room, which always seemed cosy and pleasant to them both, and had made his thanks overflow to "Mees Anna." She discovered that he was saving almost all his earnings toward a sum which would enable him to bring over his old father and mother.

He poured out his music to Miss Gilbert, as he did his troubles, with those "foolish girls who will not work at ze lesson." And to all his plans and troubles she listened with sympathy, as she always had done to any of the students in whom she was taking a special interest. But sympathy and friendliness in a woman's heart toward a man, when the man is young, handsome and manly, is going to grow into love as surely as the corn which Dame Nature also planted is going to grow into an oak.

One June day after he had walked
home with her she sat in her room and with many blushes faced it—faced this fact that she loved the violinist.
The song was all true: She loved her "Johnnie Morgan." And why not? she asked herself. Had she not worked hard for others all her life and been faithful in all things? Was it not right that the sunshine of love and happiness should come into her life.
She dreamed that night of a cottage filled with the music of a violin; and never had she looked so radiant and so young as she did the next day.

"I had a letter this morning from my little sister," she said to Antonio the next evening as he walked home with her. "She is coming next week to spend her vacation with me."

"Ah, the little sister. I shall love the little child for the sake of Saint Anna," exclaimed Antonio.

Saint Anna laughed.
"Oh, she's not so small as all that,"
she replied. Saidie is eighteen and a great tall girl, but I call her my little sister because she always has been my baby. She has been at Normal school and next season she will begin to teach."

Saidie came, and a rosebud of rare perfection she was—a perfect type of blonde beauty, with a warm heart and a vivacity which charmed all who met her. To her physical charms she added a character built on strongest foundations, for to this baby sister had Miss Anna given all the loving care and earnestness of thought, all the building up of ideals that she had missed in her own girlhood and acquired in her hard battles with the world.

The next time Antonio walked home with his "St. Anna" she insisted that he come in and see the "little sister."
He came and they had a cup of tea, and Antonio, who was prepared to make himself agreeable for the sake of his patroness and friend, soon forgot all about her in the presence of the sparkling youth and beauty of Sai-die. He came more often than ever after that and sat in undisguised rap-

the evident genius of the young Italian, who was playing his violin on the street. Always attracted by music she stopped to listen and was struck by the combination of poverty and genius in the handsome young fellow.

He certainly was unusually handsome and he looked even younger than he was for his face possessed a great sincerity and ingenuousness of expression. The soft dark eyes and olive skin were enhanced by the exceeding thinness of the face and by the hungry look in the eyes—a hunger for spiritual and mental as well as physical food, which, shining from those dark eyes appealed directly and powerfully to this warm-hearted woman.
Knowing of an opening in the college she quietly put the man and the opportunity together, with the result that the Italian, within a month, was giving lessons to a class. And the class

ture and adoration at the feet of the younger girl. Nor was she less attracted by the dark faced foreigner with the soft black eyes.

As Miss Anna watched them it all came to her and she saw, not as through a glass darkly, but as in the glare of the morning light, how it all was and would be. She had built up these two, had given them sustenance from her own nature, had fed their souls and warmed their hearts, for this very thing. And what could be better, she thought, than that these two young things, full of life and love and the sunshine of the present and promise of the future, should love each other. Nothing, she told herself, nothing could be better. It was natural.
It was right.

As she stood in front of her glass
she looked closely at herself, scanning her features critically.

"You thought you could be young again?" she said, "but you had more than ten years against you."
She looked closely at her heavy brown hair and noting the few gray hairs about the temples she smiled a little sadly to herself. She looked lovingly at Saidie, asleep on the bed, and said softly:

"He is her Johnnie Morgan," and then with a weary sigh, "Oh, how glad I am that Wellesley needs another drawing teacher next year."

If Saidie had been awake instead of asleep she might have seen above the head of St. Anna, the ring of white light which crowned the head of this

KING AND A PEASANT'S COW.

Italian Ruler Guards Animal for an Aged Woman.

Some days ago the King and Queen of Italy took a long promenade in the neighborhood of their chateau of Racongnol, their summer residence. The Queen suddenly became intensely thirsty. Perceiving an old woman near who was watching a cow the King requested her to give him a little milk.
The peasant, ignorant of the quality of her guests, pretended that her cow gave no milk. "But you have some water at your house," continued the King. "That's yes," replied the old woman. "Could you get some for me?"
"If you would keep my cow while I went for it," "Agreed," replied Victor Emmanuel in the most serious fashion in the world. At the end of ten minutes the old woman returned with a bowl of fresh water. "But how does it happen," demanded the King, "that there are so few people in the country?" "They have all gone down to the chateau to see the King, the Queen and the little Princess. It is only we old ones that one leaves at the house and who will never see them." "But you see them, my worthy woman," replied the King, giving her a new gold piece. "We are the King and Queen."
The peasant woman began to tremble and in despairing voice cried: "Pardon me, Sir, I did not know." The Queen had all the trouble in the world to calm the poor woman, who kept repeating: "To think that I have given my cow to guard to the King!"

Clever London Cabby.

A London "cabby" says that once two distinguished strangers hailed him at Westminster palace and bade him drive at top speed to Marlborough house. After a moment of recollection he recognized the Prince of Wales and his friend the King of Belgium. An awkward attempt at an obeisance from the box was promptly rebuked, and the cabby settled down to his business of driving his royal guests as fast as a hansom may go in London streets.
They stopped at Marlborough house and it was time to pay. "Well driven, cabby," said the prince; "what do I owe you?" "Please, sir, I've already ad a sovereign and a 'arf in the 'an-some," replied cabby, bowing to the prince and the king of Belgium. "Here's for the king of Belgium, then," said the prince, handing the driver a sovereign; "I don't count, you know."

London on the Wane.

London is rapidly losing its position as a port, for the absurd people controlling its docks are pitifully behind the times. Grimsby and Hull are seizing all our trade. Liverpool and Southampton are fast beating London; and Rotterdam, Havre, Bordeaux, Bremen and Hamburg are also benefiting.
London is no more the warehouse of the world.—Rotterdam Nieuwe Courant.

Notes on Wisconsin Experiments.

The writer recently had the pleasure of looking over some of the experimental work in the fields at the Wisconsin station. It was noted that irrigation is still being carried on, but it is all of a surface nature. For a number of years Professor King carried on experiments in sub-irrigation, and the reports of the work done were duly published. After that the matter was dropped so far as the sub-earth work was concerned. We notice that this is the usual result. The fact is, sub-irrigation for large fields is impracticable, for the reason that it requires a vast outlay in the way of labor in trench digging and pipes to convey water, to say nothing of the attendant factors of expense. It is evident that in a country where frost penetrates the ground to the depth of two and three feet, the pipes must be so laid that they can be emptied of water before freezing up. This would require the work of an engineer. It has been found, too, that the pipes have to be numerous and be laid quite closely together to insure a watering of the ground, as the lateral movement of water in compact soils is slight. Surface irrigation is by all odds the least expensive. The land has merely to be laid off in a way that will permit the water to run in furrows, and it will take care of itself. It will move laterally as easily as in any other direction, when it has only air above it.
Irrigation from below is a method that catcher the fancy, but it is not practicable outside of the green-house.

At the present time some very interesting experiments are being carried on in the irrigation of corn. A considerable area is devoted to this kind of experimentation. On one field the corn has been grown for seven years with no fertilizer, but with alternate strips with and without irrigation.
The desire has been to see just what would happen to a field under the two treatments, with and without water. The object lesson is a good one, and we only wish it could be viewed by myriads of farmers that have access to water for irrigating purposes, yet do not use it. Where irrigation has been applied the corn stands seven or more feet high and is heavily eared. Where water has not been applied the corn is stunted and has not made a half growth. The ears are small and not too numerous. It fairly represents a good many fields;
that can be seen in the drouth-stricken region this year. The cost of applying water to the irrigated portion has been small, and in this year of high price for corn the returns for money thus expended will be great. Mr. H. F.
Whiteson, who accompanied the writer said that investigation had shown that the water applied to this corn field had sunk down directly into the soil Under the corn plants themselves the ground was generally found to be very dry, even though the soil between the rows was saturated. He also called attention to the fact that the use of the land for seven years without the application of any fertilizer had resulted in the apparent decrease of nitrogen to a point where the further successful growing of such crops would be a problem unless nitrogen were applied. The lack of nitrogen was noticeable in the yellowing of the leaves along the mid-veins at a time when the lower leaves still remained green.

In spite of all that has been said against alfalfa by the professors at the Wisconsin station, alfalfa is being successfully grown there this year. Professor Moore says that he is becoming quite enthusiastic as to its possibilities in some parts of the state. Of course the amount of sunshine this year has been great and the lack of sunshine has been perhaps the most potent cause for the non-success with alfalfa in Wisconsin in past years. One field has this year already yielded two and one-half tons of alfalfa per acre. The experiments at the stations are not the only ones that are to be employed in demonstrating whether or not alfalfa can be successfully grown in Wisconsin. The students that have graduated at the short course have formed an experiment association for the object of further elucidating the problems that are being solved by the station.
This association comprises between 300 and 400 students, and at this time over 100 are carrying on experiments in the raising of alfalfa. When the reports from these different sources come in they will give very valuable data as to that plant in Wisconsin.

Horticultural School at Madison.

The accompanying illustrations show scenes in the horticultural school at Madison, Wisconsin. The upper picture shows the students of the class in plant life at work in the laboratory, studying the development of plants from seed. The lower picture shows a lesson in tree planting in the garden house.

The lessons in plant-life take up the seed and its germination, the nutrition of the plant and its development from the seed to complete maturity;
how plants are affected by heat, cold,
moisture, dryness, parasites, soil, climate, fertilizers, etc. The laboratory work embraces practice in seed-testing under varying conditions of heat, moisture and oxygen, the planting of seeds under different conditions, with a study from living plant specimens of the formation of roots, leaves, fruits,

ROOM FOR SETTLERS.

COLOMBIA OFFERS A FINE FIELD FOR IMMIGRATION.

The Country Watered by Rivers Is Covered by Forests of Rare Woods, India Rubber Trees, Cocoa, Etc.— General Reyes' Explorations.

That the Colombian rebellion in 1885,
the last big uprising in that country,
was put down, was due almost entirely to the energy and ability of General Rafael Reyes, who was the first to explore that region of Colombia known as Caqueta, and, with his brothers and his nephew, he made the first overland journey ever accomplished across the widest part of South America, through a region completely desert and unknown at that time and inhabited by cannibal savages. They crossed first the Andes and then explored the rivers which run into the Amazon. After this first journey his two brothers died
—one from fever and one was assassinated and eaten by the cannibals. These two pioneers were sacrificed in the almost unknown depths of these South American wildernesses. The Peruvian town of Iquitos, 3,000 miles up the Amazon, has raised in its cemetery
a monument to one of the brothers, Enrique. Although this town of Iquitos is 3,000 miles from the sea, a traveler can, as General Reyes pointed out in a recent address, take a steamer there twice a month direct to Liverpool. The general says: "All the countries of South America, with the exception of Chile, can be placed in communication by means of river navigation. The Amazon is navigable at all seasons for transatlantic steamers from Para to Iquitos. The tributary rivers are navigable for river boats,
such as are used on the Mississippi,
over a radius of between 300 and 900 miles. Thus we have a river navigation of over 9,600 miles, of which 3,000 are fit for transatlantic steamers. All the country watered by these natural canals is covered by forests of rare wood, india rubber trees, cocoa, etc.
The exportations of rubber from this district last year amounted to $20,000,- 000 in value. The Amazon at its mouth, from Punta Tiropa to Cap du Nord, has a width of 180 miles. Its waters are drinkable up to 120 miles out to sea.
Such is the strength of the current that it drives back the ocean. This statement of General Reyes recalls the well-authenticated story of the ship which was once sighted flying signals of distress by another vessel passing down the Brazil coast. As the distressed ship was approached her captain hailed and said: "We are dying of thirst. Send us water." "If you want water," shouted the other captain, "dip it up, you fool; you are in the mouth of the Amazon river." The region explored by General Reyes is of immense importance from a commercial and industrial point of view, and would form a fine field for immigration, for the cultivation of medicinal plants and for the raising of tropical products. It is pronounced by the bureau of American Republics to be "A new world opening its doors to humanity." To the naturalist or sportsman the region offers much to entice, being filled with endless deer and wild boar, and the streams swarming with fish in multitudinous variety.—New York Press.

USE OF DAMAGED DIMES.

Slot Machines Driving Mutilated Coin
Out of Circulation.

"The telephone slot machines are doing an enormous work in the matter of taking worn-out dimes out of circulation," said a treasury official to a Star reporter. "There is nothing to prevent worn-out, mutilated and almost smooth dimes from being put into the slots, and as a result many persons keep the worn-out dimes for that particular purpose. Many druggists and others who keep public telephones make no objection to taking mutilated dimes any more for the reason that they keep a supply on hand to do a telephone business with. When they see that a telephone user is going to put a new dime in the slot they simply take it in and hand a worn-out dime in exchange. Of course the telephone user makes no objection, and in goes the worn-out or mutilated coin. After it gets in there the telephone companies do the rest. Every time they get a quantity on hand, for the government does not care to bother with sums of less than $100, they send them to a sub-treasury and in Washington to the treasury department dis-rest for redemption. The result is that through the telephone companies alone over $1,000 worth of mutilated or worn-out dimes are redeemed each week. Business people have already begun to notice that the great majority of the dimes now in circulation are in much better condition than they were even six months ago. In a lesser degree the redemption of a great quantity of quarters and halves is effected through the long-distance telephones."

The clerk of the county court at Galesburg has rendered a decision that may cause the supreme court some trouble. A couple had taken out a license to marry, one of them being a catholic and the other a protestant. They were married in a protestant church and the bride desired to be married by a priest. The groom went to the clerk asking for another license, but the clerk decided if another marriage took place both would be guilty of bigamy.

The wife of a Methodist minister in West Virginia has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge; her first husband was named Robin; her second Sparrow, and the present ones name is Quayle. There are now two young Robins, one Sparrow and three little Quayles in the family. One grandfather was a Swan and another was a Jay, but he's dead and now a bird of Paradise. They live on Hawk avenue, Eagleville, Canary Island, and the fellow who wrote this article is a lyre bird and an interesting relative of the family.

Kiezyow From the island of Lissa, in the Adriatic, agents of the agricultural department sent cuttings of St. John's bread, which is a leguminous tree, suited for rather dry, calcareous soils in the southern states, Porto Rico and Hawaii. It is a fodder tree, yielding immense quantities of pods, which are shipped and sold for cattle feed, and which are also used by brewers and distillers. The tree commences to bear when it is fifteen years old and yields from 450 to 650 pounds of pod per tree. On the island of Lissa the bearing tree yields pods to the value of $5.50 to $8.50 per annum.—Washington Star.
