HISTORY OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

The Dawn of a New Political Era in America

REPUBLICAN PARTY FORMED

The Following was Written by Frank Litchert—Chapter Three Next Week

CHAPTER TWO

In the year 1854 numerous meetings were called in various communities of the North to protest against the enactment of the Kansas-Nebraska bill. In many of them suggestions were made that a new political party, designed to curb the spread of slavery ought to be organized. Many of these have since been characterized as "Republican" meetings, and this has led to some disagreement among historians as to the exact date and birthplace of the Republican party.

One of the first of these meetings was held in the Congregational church at Ripon, Fond du Lac county, Wisconsin, February 28, 1854. A resolution was adopted pledging those present to sever their allegiance from the old political parties in case the Kansas-Nebraska bill passed, and organize a new one to be known as the Republican party.

The bill passed the Senate and a second meeting was called at Ripon by Major Alvan E. Bovey, this time in the school house. The town committees of the Whig and Free Soil parties were dissolved and a committee of five, including three Whigs, one Free Soiler and one Democrat, was appointed to start the formation of a new party. This probably was the first systematic work performed about a fusion of the anti-slavery parties of the north into one organization.

A New Party

In Washington, D. C., on May 9th of the same year the day after the House of Representatives had begun work on the Kansas-Nebraska bill, Israel Washburn, a congressman from Maine, called together thirty representatives in the rooms of Congressmen Eliot and Dickinson of Massachusetts. These men agreed that the only hope of checking the slavepower lay in the organization of a new party for which the name Republican would be highly appropriate.

During the spring of 1854 a number of meetings were held in Michigan by men of all parties. In these resolutions were adopted denouncing the Kansas-Nebraska bill and the organization of a new party was freely suggested.

The Free Democrats of Michigan had nominated a state ticket on February 22. A few weeks later at a mass meeting held in Kalamazoo this ticket was withdrawn. Shortly afterward a call was issued for a convention of the opponents of slavery extension to be held at Jackson on July 6th. This was undoubtedly the first Republican convention to be held in the United States, and the following description of the event is from the Life of Zachariah Chandler, published by the Detroit Post and Tribune:

"The response to this appeal was the gathering at Jackson on a bright midsummer day of hundreds of influential men from all parts of Michigan, representing every shade of anti-slavery feeling, and thoroughly alive to the importance of the occasion and the difficulty of the task projected. The convention far outstripped in numbers the preparations for its accommodation, and after filling the largest hall in the town, it adjourned to meet in a beautiful oak grove, situated between the village and the county race course, on a tract of land then known as Morgan's Forty. The growth of Jackson has since covered this historic ground with buildings, and the spacious grove has dwindled to a few scattered oaks shading the city's busy streets.

"A rude platform erected for the speakers was appropriated by the officers of the convention, and about it thronged a mass of earnest men, the vanguard of the Republican host. In a body so incongruous and unwieldy, confused purposes discordant views, and conflicting interests were unavoidable, but the universal fervor of the fusion sentiment formed a broad foundation for harmonious action, and the convention did not lack for shrewd and sagacious political managers with the skill to direct earnest effort into

Thongwa, Hanthawaddy Dist., Burma

August 2, 1923

Dear Homeland Friends,
We have just been in to Rangoon to confer with Bishop Fisher who is now visiting Burma for a short time. We were in America at all the other times when he has been here, and he was there during the first part of our new term in Burma, so we had never seen him before, altho we had been under his appointment for three years. He has been ill with rheumatism, but we hope he can be with us at Thongwa. We want our theological students to feel the enthusiasm for Christ, so prominent in him.

We have this year in the W.F.M.S. and our Bible schools seven men and thirteen women. Two of the men are married, and their wives are taking work. Two new men students and one old one have studied up to or passed the equivalent of the eighth grade in Anglo-Vernacular schools before coming to us. Two women and two other men have passed about four grades of vernacular school. The others could not read or write when they came. Four women of this type, who have been here five years, and two men will probably graduate this year. We are glad our new students for the most part have the better educational preparation before coming. Now that our school is increasing it wastes too much time to have to teach people to read and write. If we had a companion institution where they could learn, it would not be so much loss. We think also that the better trained students are what the church in Burma needs in greater measure, altho it is wonderful what some untrained workers have done.

During the past hot season all of these students were out doing some form of evangelistic work. One of them, Ma Saw Kin by name, helped us in Thongwa. She and a classmate were sent out regularly with no other companions for personal work among Buddhist people. I do not think she ever addressed any meetings. Just daily, persistent persuading for Christ. When she came back at the opening of the Bible school, there was a distinct change in her responsiveness and understanding. She has been in my class in theology, and while that subject is naturally hard for one who has never done any deep thinking, she digs in and gets the results. It seems she has a new appreciation of these truths which must be her tools of service later, hence she works until the answer comes. Before coming here, she made her living by work in the fields, and could not read nor write.

One of the senior men, Maung Mya Sein by name, spent his summer vacation teaching a village vernacular school of about 40 children, and preaching whenever occasion offered. Since returning to Thongwa we have arranged for him to go every Sunday to a village about five miles away, where there are a few Christians, to preach, hold Sunday schools, and do personal work. He goes to his appointment on horseback regularly, except when the rain is very heavy, holds his meetings and comes back with glowing reports. In this he has developed a real pastoral consciousness. The other day someone came in from this village for some medicine, one of his flock, and Mya Sein took him in hand, hurried around to various places for medicine, and soon had him ready to start back. That spirit appeals to me. Yesterday he went to Swetaw again, and I am eager to hear what success he had. In contrast with the utter indifference of a Buddhist monk to his people's needs, this condition is most interesting. It is by the power of a new Master, even Jesus. Keep these two people and their fellow students in mind as you pray.
Yours sincerely,
C. E. Olmstead.

INVITATION TO MEN

A special invitation has been extended to every man in town to be present at an oyster supper in the M. E. church next Thursday evening, December 6, at 7:30 o'clock. This invitation is extended by the Men's Bible class of the church.

A program will be given and Dr. N. A. Carpenter, the new district superintendent of the Rock River conference will speak.

Something Like That.

A physician should never attend the funeral of an ex-patient; it looks too much like a tailor carrying his work home.

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

Partition Suit for late J. P. Brown Estate Started

$40,000 PERSONAL PROPERTY

Memorial Services Held by DeKalb County Bar for late Judge Irwin, G. Brown, R. Slater G. Dunton

The bill for partition in the estate of James P. Brown, pioneer resident of Genoa, who died on November 4 last, filed in circuit court on Monday, shows that he was one of the wealthy residents of DeKalb county. He left no will, and the property, which consists largely of farm lands, will go to his ten children surviving and the children of a deceased daughter, Elva Banks.

Among attorneys it is said that there is much division of opinion in regard to the partition of the estate and as a consequence that there is likely to be much litigation and delay in the settlement of the estate.

The heirs are James L. Brown, Elta E. Anderson, Carrie R. Reed, Arthur B. Brown, William J. Brown, Lora Z. Adams, Susie Miller, Frank B. Brown, Alta Fenton, Ethel Moritz, the sons and daughter of deceased; Frank Banks, Sadie Banks, Alfred Banks, Herman Banks, Gerson Banks, Edward Banks, Lloyd Banks and Raymond Banks, children of a deceased daughter Elva Banks, the only heirs at law of said James P. Brown.

Mr. Brown leaves as his estate seven tracts of highly improved land in DeKalb county, mostly in Genoa township, aggregating 460 acres; approximately 600 acres in Iowa and 1,500 acres in Minnesota, and personal property estimated at $40,000.

The bill for partition is filed for hearing at the February term of the court.

The memorial services which were held by the DeKalb County Bar association in the circuit court on November 22, 1923, at two o'clock p. m. were of the most impressive nature and those of the citizens who were enabled to be present heard some of the finest eulogies to the recent departed members of the DeKalb bar ever voiced in a courtroom.

Judge William J. Fulton presided at the ceremonies and resolutions were offered in memory of Judge Clinton F. Irwin, George Brown, Roy M. Slater, Hiram T. Smith and George W. Dunton. These resolutions after being read were ordered spread upon the records of the court by Geo. A. James, clerk of the court, and copies ordered sent to the respective families of the deceased members. Thomas M. Cliffe presented the resolution in memory of Judge Irwin and delivered a flowing tribute to this great jurist. He was followed by Judge Fulton, Jules E. Matteson, and L. B. Smith, all of whom talked of Judge Irwin, the jurist, man and citizen. The remarks of the speakers who spoke of Judge Irwin may well be summed up by quoting from the resolution itself which is as follows: "Judge Clinton F. Irwin of Elgin, Kane county, Illinois, one of the late Judges of the circuit court of this county for a period of more than a quarter of a century rendered devoted, consistent and distinguished service to the people of this state, as a lawyer and judge and was at all times an able friend and advocate of the rights of the people; and likewise was Judge Irwin ever sturdy and able of the proper administration of the government and as a citizen he was just, charitable and public spirited, a believer in progress and the higher ideals in all lines of life."

C. D. Rogers of Sycamore presented the resolution in memory of Geo. Brown. Mr. Rogers was very intimately acquainted with the late Mr. Brown and his talk as well as that of the speakers that followed brought back to many members of the bar fond recollections of the past. Judge William L. Pond and G. E. Stott, also spoke of the life of Mr. Brown. The speakers voiced the sentiments of the entire body when they stated that in the death of George Brown, the DeKalb County Bar association lost an honored and respected member; his citizenship an esteemed and wise counselor and the public a most excellent citizen.

ACTION ON T. B. VIOLATIONS

I. A. A. after Violators of Importation of Tubercular Cattle

President S. H. Thompson of the Illinois Agricultural Association has appointed a committee of five to study the problems of enforcing laws and regulations pertaining to the importation of tubercular cattle into Illinois, according to work received by the DeKalb County Farm bureau. This committee, consisting of Henry McGough, chairman, Kane county; George Hunt, McHenry county; Harry Wood, Tazewell county; Carlton Trimble, Crawford county; and C. E. Bamboosgh, Ogle county, will recommend a program of action for the I. A. A. to pursue toward violations, when the Executive committee meets December 5.

SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Babler of Colvin Park celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Friday, November 23rd. A sumptuous dinner was served at the noon hour, and after a pleasant afternoon, supper was served and in the evening Ralph Ort of Kingston entertained the guests with radio selections which were highly appreciated by all. Mr. and Mrs. Babler received a number of beautiful gifts.

Those present from out of town were: Mrs. David Hefty of New Glarus, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knobel of Monticello, Wis.; Mrs. Henry Babler and daughter Charline of Belleville, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Babler of Monroe, Wis.; Mrs. Gertrude Blatt of New Hampton, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Welch, Miss Flova Duck and F. W. Johnson of Genoa; Mr. and Mrs. Latimer and Mrs. Frances Dowell of DeKalb.

The guests left at a late hour wishing Mr. and Mrs. Babler many more years of wedded happiness.

ENSIGN DEBOLT GUEST OF P. E. O.

The most profitable and entertaining meeting in the history of Chapter B. G. of the P. E. O. Sisterhood was held at the home of Mrs. E. W. Brown on Tuesday evening. The chapter enjoyed a pot-luck supper at 6 o'clock with Ensign Debolt of the Salvation Army as their guest of honor, after which the regular business meeting was held.

Miss Nellie Geithman and Miss Ione Stott favored with vocal solos that were highly appreciated by the ladies. The chapter was most highly complimented by Miss Debolt on the success of their drive to raise Genoa's quota of $150 for the Salvation Army. About twenty guests were invited later in the evening to hear Miss Debolt talk of her work in the Orient, especially in India. She also told in a very graphic manner of the work near home in our own northern Illinois for which this drive is being made.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY, DEC. 2

Citizens Are Asked to Dine as Far East Orphans—Contribute to Fund

Will the Golden Rule work among nations as well as individuals? Charles V. Vickrey, President of the International Near East Association and General Secretary of the Near East Relief, thinks that it will and he and his associates are busy planning for international observance of Sunday, December 2nd, as "Golden Rule Sunday."

On this day millions of families in a dozen different nations will be asked, through the Near East Relief and its affiliated and co-operating organizations, to observe the day as one of international goodwill and, as a practical expression of the Golden Rule principle, to serve a dinner approximately the same as that served every day in the year to the orphan children in the care of the Near East Relief and to contribute the difference between the cost of this meal and the usual "Sunday dinner to the support of the orphans.

"Fully five hundred million people in Europe, Asia, Africa, America and Australia, or nearly one-half the population of the globe, are adherents of religions that, in some form, proclaim the Golden Rule as a guide in life," Mr. Vickrey said.

It is as hard to deny one's self an argument as to deny one's self another piece of cake when one wants it.

LIGHTS BLIND AUTOIST

Motorist Hits Bridge and Loses Running Board and Front Wheel

Walter Rosenfeld was the victim of the ignorance of a passing motorist last Sunday evening on the Hampshire-Elgin road just north and east of the former city when an east bound driver failed to dim his lights and sent Walter and his car crashing into the railing of a bridge. The motorist failed to stop and the driver and younger brother, Vernon, were left to get out of the mass as best they could.

A passing motorist, who vouchsafed the information that he had just been passed by a car who failed to dim lights carried the two fellows to Hampshire where a hurried call to the Genoa Garage sent a wrecking crew that towed in the injured car. A minute examination disclosed nothing in the way of damages except a smashed wheel and ruined running board.

A person who fails to dim is just as bad as the criminal who shoots and misses, he won't always miss, sometime someone will get killed. A glance at the above cartoon will serve to tell you just how blinding are the lights of an oncoming car when not dimmed.

THE ROUGHEST ROAD WE KNOW

Sycamore—Genoa Road is Awarded Black Crape Streamer

In negotiating the Sycamore—Genoa road several times in the last month we have repeatedly been jarred loose from our pivot seat in a Ford car in passing over that stretch of highway from B. C. Awe's corner to base line, and fully believe that the cast iron crape streamer goes to this particular section without thanks. We can see that the southern half of the Sycamore road has been worked nicely by the patrolman whose duty it is to keep it looking good, but we would like to know if that gives him permission to shirk his duties to the northern half. We have waited patiently for several weeks for him to begin work upon it, and the longer everyone waits the more terrible becomes the road and still no action.

Must we prolong the agony until someone is injured by bumping; off the pike or will the patrolman see the justice of our side of the argument and spread a little of his work this way?

CEDAR CHEST ON DISPLAY

Contents of this Huge Box will be Displayed Saturday in Douglass Store

The cedar chest that will be given away by the Golden Star chapter of the O. E. S. is causing quite a bit of favorable comment as will be attested to by the various members of the committee who have it in charge.

The chest is nearly filled and on Saturday of this week the contents will be taken out and displayed in the window of the Douglass store. Several of the ladies of the chapter will be near in order to answer all questions pertaining to its origin and destination.

NOTICE

Lodges and societies please note: Donations for the Salvation Army drive will be accepted by the committee for two weeks.

BASKET BALL SEASON OPENS DEC. 1

Sycamore Will Be Place of This Year's First Tilt Between Two Quintets

SEVERAL GAMES ARE SCHEDULED

Marengo, Maple Park, Huntley and Others Will Be Seen on Home Floor this Season

The curtain goes up on the local basket ball squad tomorrow in the Sycamore gym, when the team from the county seat will strive to win honors by defeating Genoa's husky aspirants to this year's title.

The boys have been doing somewhat hard practicing this fall and are about in shape for the winter grind. Several of last year's squad are on deck including Bartle (this year's captain), Nelson and A. Geithman. They will try to furnish thrills for the fans but are being hard pressed by younger boys who are fighting for a coveted place on the five.

Some real games have been scheduled so far and include such well-known teams as Sycamore, Marengo, Maple Park and Belvidere. Should the boys survive these teams, and we see no reason why they have not a good chance to land in the honors, in this year's tournament without a doubt.

On Friday, December 7, the team goes to Marengo for a game and Saturday Maple Park plays Genoa seconds and Huntley plays the first team in the local gym.

Friday the 14th the first team goes to Belvidere for a game that should prove interesting from start to finish.

It will be noticed in looking over the forerunner of this year's bookings that heavier teams have been engaged, thus making the games more interesting and guaranteed to put pep into the most morbid fan. A complete schedule for the season will be printed as soon as possible.

In the meantime, come out and root. Show the boys you are with them, heart and soul, and rejoice in their victories. The "gang" is full of pep this year and is aching to have the support of the whole town. Let's show 'em how we used to do it fel' lows. Let's go!

HOUSE WARMING AND SURPRISE

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Pratt were completely surprised Saturday evening by a large party of friends and relatives. Mrs. Pratt was just preparing the evening meal when a caller came to the door, then found she had several auto loads of callers who had motored from Chicago to help with the house warming. They came laden with well filled baskets and a picnic supper was enjoyed. The Pratts were presented with a beautiful floor lamp by the relatives; two torches and an automatic windshield cleaner by Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell (the latter is a daughter of the late Rev. LeRoy Clendenning) and a motor for sewing machine by the son LeRoy Pratt.

During the evening games were enjoyed and Mrs. J. A. Randall and Mrs. Carrie Clendenning favored with vocal numbers. Mrs. Clendenning gave a number of readings among them "Out of the Old House into the New."

On Sunday other guests arrived and at the noon hour thirty-six sat down to enjoy the bounteous dinner.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hoinville, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hanley, Mrs. Kate Randall, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Randall and two children, Dr. and Mrs. Geo. Lindmark and two children, Clark Johnson, Geo. Doty, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Campbell, Joe Hanley, Miss Delia Larson, Joe Perso, LeRoy Pratt, all of Chicago; Mrs. O. M. Losey, Collins, Ohio; Mrs. LeRoy Clendenning, Elgin; Mrs. Arthur Fulcher, Donald Fulcher and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Colton and little son of Genoa; all the members of the Hoinville family being present with the exception of Mrs. Pratt's youngest brother who is in northern Wisconsin.

The guests all returned to their homes Sunday afternoon excepting Mrs. Losey who remained here until Monday evening when she went to Chicago where she will visit several days before returning to her home in Collins, Ohio.

Philosophers have discovered the source of nearly every human desire except of that to attract public attention.

"I'M YOUR HUSBAND"

SYNOPSIS—On the isolated Meager ranch, on the southern border, Deborah Meredith, trained nurse, is in attendance on Mrs. Meager, whose husband has recently been killed. Immediately after the death, Bob Meager, Mrs. Meager's stepson, arrives and takes possession. He insults Deborah and she resolves to leave, but there seems no possibility of her getting away. Meager gloats over Deborah's plight. He tells her he has sent for a justice of the peace, who will marry them tomorrow. Horrified, the girl secures a revolver. The justice, Cornelius Garrity, scoundrel and bosom friend of Meager, arrives with a party, among them the "Frisco Kid," notorious desperado. Despite Deborah's protests the justice performs the marriage ceremony. She escapes and reaches her room.

CHAPTER V

The Blow in the Dark.

Deborah, the revolver held tightly in her fingers, moved silently back into the darkest corner of the room, and crouched there listening. If those men entered that door she meant to shoot, and shoot to kill. This one deadly purpose was all she was conscious of, or cared for.

Perhaps in some vague way, Meager may have realized her desperation. He knew nothing of her being armed, yet, even in his drunkenness, had learned something of her temper, and hesitated to face her immediately. Why should he run the risk? He already had attained his principal object; they were married, and he could wait until her anger subsided somewhat before asserting his legal rights. Meanwhile the boys were waiting for their drinks, and he felt more inclined to celebrate the victory along with them and let tomorrow take care of itself.

Some faint conception of this situation occurred to her, as she crouched there in the dark watchfully waiting, yet remained undisturbed. The tension relaxed, and she felt again her womanly weakness, her questioning and despair. She laid the revolver beside her on the floor and buckled the belt with its load of cartridges about her waist; then poked the weapon up once again and rested it on her knee. She was no longer crazed, but able to think clearly and decide what to attempt next.

Meager's action could mean but one thing—his utter confidence that she was already securely in his power. She could not escape, she would be waiting there for him when he was ready to possess her. What difference did an hour make; she was his wife; when he was drunk enough, reckless enough, he would come to claim her. Well, let him come; she would continue to wait, and he should have his welcome. His wife! She might be his widow before dawn.

She did not move for a long, long time; did not take her eyes from the closed door, or release her grip on the revolver. She felt cold, tireless, actuated only by a relentless hatred. She wished he would come so that it might be over with. But nothing happened, and little by little, her mood changed. The strain began to tell, began to break down her resolution, left her doubtful and afraid. She ventured to open the door a slight crack and peep cautiously out into the hall; it was deserted, not even a guard had been stationed there, but the door at the farther end, leading into the living room, had been left open, and she could hear the men in there making merry. It was a babel of voices at first; then someone began to sing a rabel song in English, and at the first line she drew back, shutting out the hateful sound with a feeling of supreme disgust.

Trembling from head to foot, she crossed to the window and looked out into the cool mists of the night. No guard had been posted here either. Evidently she had been left perfectly free to go or come as she pleased, yet she fully understood how limited that freedom was. She might flee from the house, but that was all; the borders of the ranch were still her prison walls, stretching in every direction, trackless and impassable on foot, vast, waterless leagues, where she would perish miserably. A light still burned in the bunkhouse, and she would see the light, and she would see the light, and she would see the light.

But what now? This question overshadowed all else. The thing she had been imagining for so long had at last come to pass. He had come to her, come claiming her with insult and outrage, and she had actually dealt the blow of which she had dreamed. Her courage had not failed her, and he was lying there now in the darkness at her feet, sorely wounded, perhaps dead. It was her act; she had done it—what now? She had never faced this situation before, the aftermath. Whether Meager was dead or alive, she must get away. Better to face any danger of the great desert than remain where she was, with not a friend to counsel or protect her, not a white man to whom she could appeal.

The girl thrust the revolver back into its holster at her waist, and glanced out through the window into the quiet night. Of two evils, the desert, or these lawless men, she chose the less cruel, the desert. If she was to die, it would be, at least, in honor. Once decided, her mind worked rapidly. In all probability not a man remained sober about the home ranch; if any horses had been left in the stable, she therefore ought to get several hours the start of a pursuing party. She believed Meager was dead, and if so, his followers would be slow to discover what had happened, and would possess no leadership. This, inevitably would mean delay. While, even if the fellow should live, hours surely must elapse before he could take the trail. With a good horse under her, she would be beyond sight out on the desert, riding straight for those two peaks old Tom Meager had pointed out to her as marking the No-gates trail. With such a start in the race there was surely a chance to win. Her pulses throbbed exultantly at this sudden awakening of hope, and, without so much as another glance at the body prostrate on the floor, she hurried to carry out her plans.

An unrecognized Mexican lay in drunken slumber, curled up like a dog, on the floor of the passage, but she found no difficulty in passing the fellow. She neither heard nor saw any of the others, as she made her way through the rear door and across the few feet of open space dividing the main house from the detached kitchen. There was a lamp burning in the latter, and the remains of fire in the stove, but no occupant. Deborah knew the place well, and lost no time in gathering together what food she required, fortunate enough to discover a small sack in which it could be conveniently transported.

The effort had proven easy and safe so far, and her heart beat hopefully as she emerged from the kitchen, thus equipped. Now if she could only procure a horse, escape actually appeared possible. Doubtless the ranch horses had all been turned loose in the large corral. She had no means of catching these half-broken animals, but it might be that the horses ridden by the party arriving during the evening had been put up in the stable, and for immediate use. These were weary enough from their desert trip when they arrived, but that was hours ago; they must have been fed and watered since, and, with the rest, would be fairly fit by this time for another journey. They were wary broncos, able to endure any amount of hardship. It was then she remembered the horse the "Frisco Kid" had been riding. Even in the darkness she had marked the fine, blooded lines of the animal, the far better condition in which he appeared to be. If she could only lay hands on him.

"Frisco Kid!" What had ever become of the fellow? She wondered as she slowly made her way down the slope, keeping as far from the bunkhouse as possible. She had neither seen nor heard of him since that first meeting with Meager. Perhaps he was among those drunken dogs in the living room, sleeping off their carousal; yet somehow she did not believe it. Somehow his voice and manner had strangely impressed her as different; he did not belong with that crew. Outlaw, desperado, she knew him to be, a man with a price on his head, yet surely he was no drunken, roystering brute. He had not even gone into the house; she was sure of that now, remembering clearly. He had led the horses away, while the other two entered with Meager. Nor had he returned later; not at least while she was at the window, and he was not in attendance at the wedding.

Then the truth suddenly occurred to her—the man was hiding out. He dare not risk drinking, or being shut up in a house. He was a hunted creature, watchful of treachery in every human being. He could trust to no one, not even his companions in crime; there was a reward for him, dead or alive. He would be out yonder in the dark somewhere, alone, and his horse, waking at the slightest sound. Perhaps he would be the one she needed to fear the most, when the pursuit started. These thoughts flashed swiftly through her mind, almost unconsciously, as she stole forward silently through the shadows. She passed a figure lying in the trail, too drunk even to reach the bunkhouse, but as she crept past the open door she saw no signs of any occupants within. Except for the few line-riders, and that outlaw hiding in some thicket of chaparral, the whole personnel of the ranch were stupefied with liquor, indifferent to any occurrence going on about them.

She hurried to carry out her plans.

A bit reckless now, because of this knowledge, the girl ventured through the great open door of the stable, and began groping her way forward searching the stalls. The first was empty, and as she started to advance toward the second, she came to a sudden pause, with heart leaping into her throat—there had been a sound at her left, a rustling of straw, as though something had made a quick movement. She listened intently, drawing a breath of relief at the succeeding silence. No doubt it was a horse stirring, or possibly a rat. Then a voice spoke sternly not three feet away.

"Put up your hands! Who are you? What are you doing in here?" She obeyed instinctively, too frightened to even speak, dropping the bag to the floor, forgetting completely the revolver buckled about her waist.

A hand reached forward out of the darkness and gripped her upraised arm; she was conscious of the close presence of a man, yet for the instant retained no power of movement.

"Why don't you speak?" said the same voice, impatiently, evidently angered at her silence. "What are you sneaking about in here for? Well, I'll be d—d!" his tone changing, "if I don't believe it's a woman."

"It is a woman," she managed to reply falteringly. "But—but does that make any difference?" He laughed, a certain relief evidenced in the sound, although he did not in any way relax his vigilance.

"Well, I confess it might," he admitted, "for you are a most unusual discovery in this section. I was looking for almost anything else. You belong with this outfit?"

"To the Meager ranch, you mean? Yes—that is, I have been employed here. You—you are not a Mexican, are you?"

"I should say not. I belong north of the line, if that's any relief to you. And what's more, if you want to be square with me, I'll play fair on my side. You believe that?"

"I shall have to; it wouldn't do me any good to lie."

"I reckon not; so let's get it over with; who are you?"

"Deborah Meredith," she explained, rather eagerly. "I—I am a professional nurse; my home is in Chicago. Tom Meager employed me to come out here and take care of his wife. Are you a friend of Bob Meager's?"

The man chuckled, and she knew he had put away the weapon he had held in his hand.

"Well, he's got an idea that I am. We've run about together a bit, I admit; which confession maybe is no recommendation to you."

"No, it is not."

"I thought likely it wouldn't be. So you and Bob are not good friends?"

"I despise and hate him; he is a drunken brute."

"Granted freely; but if you feel that way, why did you remain here on the ranch?"

"Because I have had no chance to get away since his father died. I could not desert my patient, and besides, had no reason to suppose Bob would come back and take possession. He was a fugitive from justice; his father had lost all faith in him, and I had reason to believe he had been shut out from all right to this property."

"You had reason to believe? What reason? I am not asking merely from curiosity; I want to understand the entire situation. I already have an idea what this means; you are endeavoring to escape alone?"

"It seemed my only chance," she confessed. "But I am talking with a stranger; perhaps I trust you too much. You are not employed here?"

"No; I just blew in last night."

"What is your name?"

"Daniel Kelleen."

"You are not a cow-puncher surely? You—you have education?"

He laughed good-humoredly. "Nevertheless, I am quite accustomed to cow-punching. Perhaps I've had a trifle more schooling than some of the boys. Now let me have the straight of this affair, and then we'll get busy. Tell it to me from the first."

Deborah stared at the man's dim outline through the darkness. If she could only see the expression of his face—there was no choice left her—she must trust him blindly, absolutely; he could defend or betray her at his own will. So clear was this situation she scarcely hesitated.

"You killed him? You did? Say, I like you. You are sure some girl."

Irish Opera by German. It is strange that one of the most "Irish" of Irish operas should come from a German musician, but it is nevertheless a fact that the typical Irish opera, "The Lily of Killarney," was composed by a German, Julius Benedict. But Benedict, says the Morning Post, was a clever man, and the Irish idiom in its broad aspect is easy to assume. While speaking with an Irish accent he said many beautiful things, and the airs "Eileen Mavourneen" and "I'm lone" would give distinction to any opera that dealt in melody, and sixty years have not dimmed the charm of Benedict's melodies.

practical channels. Such differences of opinion as there were on questions of policy and as to candidates exhausted themselves in private conferences and secret committee deliberations, and the convention itself did its business, with promptness, without discord, and amid a genuine enthusiasm.

"Its temporary chairman was the Honorable Levi Bexter of Jonesville, a pioneer settler of Southern Michigan and the founder of a family of marked prominence in that state. He was well known as the master spirit of many important business enterprises, had been a Whig and then a Free Soiler and had been elected to the state senate by a coalition of both these parties in his own county."

Walbridge and Howard
The permanent chairman of the convention was David S. Walbridge, a prominent merchant of Central Michigan, and an exceedingly active and earnest Whig. His selection was a tribute to the important Whig element in the convention. The chairman of the resolutions committee was Jacob M. Howard, of Detroit, a noted lawyer of highest integrity, who had been the first Whig congressman from Michigan and afterward was elected Republican United States senator from that state. He had prepared an advance draft of the platform and it was adopted by the convention substantially as written.

The resolution set forth that the institution of slavery except in punishment for crime was a great moral, social and political evil; that the law of nature which was the law of liberty gave no one man rights superior to those of another. They denounced the repeal of the Missouri compromise by the enactment of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, and the attempt so to extend slave territory and charged that this was an open and undisguised breach of faith on the part of the South as contracted in the settlement of the Missouri question in 1820. They demanded the repeal of the statute and also of the fugitive slave law and advocated the enactment of a law to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia.

The resolutions then continued:
"Resolved, that postponing and suspending all differences with regard to political economy or administrative policy, in view of the imminent danger that Kansas and Nebraska will be grasped by slavery, and a thousand miles of slave soil be thus interposed between the free states of the Atlantic and those of the Pacific, we will act cordially and faithfully in unison to avert and repeal this gigantic wrong and shame.

"Resolved, that in view of the necessity of battling for the first principles of Republican government, and against the schemes of an aristocracy the most revolting and oppressive with which the earth was ever cursed, or man debased, we will cooperate and be known as REPUBLICANS until the contest be terminated.

"Resolved, that we earnestly recommend the calling of a general con-

Public Interest
In Railroads--

In the United States there are more than 800,000 holders of Railroad Stocks and about 1,000,000 investors in Railroad Bonds.

These security holders represent nearly that many families, as individual investments are usually made by but one member of a family.

Among stock and bond holders are a large number of savings banks, insurance companies, trust companies, universities, etc., in which countless other individuals are directly interested.

It is estimated that half the citizens of this country are directly or indirectly interested in the financial returns and other factors that control the market value of railroad securities.

This is apart from the close relation that exists between the welfare of the carriers and national prosperity. Insufficiently nourished railroads cannot supply the quantity or quality of service demanded by industrial development.

Nor can impoverished railroads contribute their share to general business prosperity through the purchase of vast quantities of materials and manufactured articles needed for maintenance and improvements under normal conditions.

There are a number of critics who attack the carriers and make it more difficult for the roads to earn a fair return and build up the value of their securities.

There are a number of critics who attack the carriers roads and their employees, but also against the great many of investors in the institutions referred to above, and against the multitude of individuals and concerns depending on the carriers for service or for patronage.

WHOOPING COUGH IN GENOA

Several Cases Reported this Week—
 Afflicted Should Remain Indoors

During the past few weeks whooping cough has been going the rounds in Genoa until now such cases as are reported to the authorities must needs be quarantined to check its spread. It is not a fatal sickness in most cases although it can, by carelessness on the part of the child in catching more cold, superinduce an attack of pneumonia.

Whooping cough is a disease known by a rapid series of coughs ending in a long-drawn inspiration, during which a shrill whistle sound, the whoop, is produced. Two or three such fits of coughing follow one another, until some plegm is expelled and vomiting may occur. During a severe spasm the face becomes swollen and purplish, as if suffocation were threatening. The whooping-cough usually comes on with a running nose, difficulty of breathing and slight fever, which are succeeded by a hoarseness cough and difficulty of expectoration.

People should bear in mind that the doctor is only complying with the law when he reports each case to the mayor, who in turn sends a report to the state board of health and causes the marshal to place a sign on the home of the person who is suffering with the aforesaid sickness.

PLANS OF NEW CONGRESS

The Policies that Will Be Taken into Consideration after President's Speech

Taking into consideration only intimations that have emanated from the White House concerning the subjects the President considers of immediate importance to the country, it is understood that the President's forthcoming message to Congress will deal with these subjects in the following manner:

TAX REDUCTION

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's suggestions for tax reduction will probably be supported by the President.

AGRICULTURE

The President will urge the necessity of as prompt action as possible by the Congress for the relief of the agricultural interests. He has so far indicated a sympathetic interest in any sound modification of the existing laws that will facilitate, by Governmental agencies, the marketing of farm products through a Farm Export Corporation, through the War Finance Corporation or by the formation of something in the nature of a United State Grain Corporation.

TRANSPORTATION

Special consideration of the transportation problem will be urged. The compulsory consolidation of railroad systems within a period of five years through direct legislation by Congress may be discussed.

IMMIGRATION

The President is sympathetic with that thought in Congress which will oppose any lessening of the present restrictions on immigration and, it is understood, would be willing to see further restriction imposed.

MERCHANT MARINE

The President is alive to the need of an American merchant marine but is not committed to any special policy, and will doubtless be guided by recommendations from the Shipping Board, which are in the course of preparation.

SOLDIER BONUS

The Soldier Bonus, if discussed at all, will be considered in connection with recommendations on tax reductions.

INTERNATIONAL ISSUES

The President is expected to report to Congress on the recognition of Mexico and to forward to the Senate the two Claims Conventions entered into with the Mexican Government as the result of the recognition of that Government.

So far as he has indicated in his interviews with newspaper correspondents the President will make no special mention of the World Court other than to announce that it is before the Senate and subject to the action of that body.

MISCELLANEOUS

The President is expected to urge the cutting down of Government expenditures; call the attention of Congress to the fact that it has before it a plan for the reorganization of the Executive Department.

It is possible that he will touch on the Muscle Shoals problem and if so he is expected to simply urge upon Congress the necessity of disposing of it promptly.

The necessity for building more public buildings in the District of Columbia to save rentals and to bring scattered bureaus of various departments together under the same roofs may be given consideration in the message; also the problem of reformation.

RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP BIGGER

The accomplishment of North Dakota, which shows a 45 per cent advance in Red Cross memberships over last year, has bestirred the workers in the other states of the middle west which compose the Central Division of the organization. According to Walter Davidson, manager of the division, forecasts of exceeding the present membership are being borne out by early returns from state Roll Call headquarters.

"The better organization of Roll Call and the reviving influences of the recent Japanese relief coupled with the active cooperation of state and city officials, the American Legion and civic clubs have instilled an enthusiasm which cannot be denied," said Mr. Davidson at his Chicago office today. He anticipates no difficulty in reaching the quota of 1,000,000 members in the division.

Word comes from South Dakota that even the most remote places in the state are organized to carry on active campaigns and that a 200 per cent increase over last year's membership is expected. Equally encouraging reports are being received daily from Nebraska, where one county enrolled 15,000 members in one day; from Wyoming where every county in the state is responding; from Montana where memberships started to come in before the campaign actually began.

Iowa is confident of securing 100,000 members and Illinois following the lead of Chicago is piling up memberships towards its quota of 300,000.

Michigan citizens following the appeal of their governor are responding to the call of the chapters in the most generous manner while reports from Minnesota and Wisconsin show that commensurate with the population of those states will be maintained.

Mr. Davidson says the peak of the campaign has not yet been reached and that this week will see a decided increase in returns from all states.

WANTED—NEWS

The Republican would like to have four or five columns of news every week about the home folks and maintains a small steel box in the post office above the desk into which such notes may be dropped by the persons of those states will be maintained.

as possible by writing anything that you may deem of interests to your home community. The only reservation the paper draws is that all such communications must bear the name of the writer.

In addition The Republican maintains a paid correspondent, Mrs. Wallace, who will be glad to receive items. She can be reached via the telephone, No. 801.

vention of the free states, and such of the slave states or portions thereof, as may desire to be there represented with a view to the adoption of other more extended and effectual measures in resistance to the encroachments of slavery; and that a committee of five persons be appointed to correspond and co-operate with our friends in other states on the subject."

Full State Ticket

The resolutions were adopted almost unanimously and a full state ticket was nominated.

In this unpretentious way and under these rather humble circumstances was born the political party which was destined to lead the movement for the preservation of the Union and to reconstruct the nation after four years of bloody civil war, until the United States of America should become the freest, the most prosperous and most powerful nation in the world.

At first some of the more timid ones in the North doubted the wisdom of breaking away from the old parties, but the response of the masses of the people not only in Michigan but all over the North to the action of the Jackson convention was both spontaneous and cordial.

New England joined the movement. A convention was held in Vermont on July 17 and a resolution adopted urging the "friends of freedom in other states to cooperate and be knowns." A delegation to a national convention was chosen and it consisted of one Free Soiler, three Whigs and one anti-slavery Democrat.

The Republican party of Maine was born on August 7 when a convention was held in the town of Strong. A convention was held in Worcester, Massachusetts, on July 20, and resolutions similar to those of the Jackson meeting were adopted. A convention which nominated a Republican state ticket was held in Worcester on September 7.

Its neighboring Western states were not far behind Michigan. A state convention of anti-slavery men was held at Columbus, Ohio, on July 13, although the name Republican was not adopted until the next year. On the same date men opposed to the extension of slavery met at Madison, Wisconsin, and declared by resolution that they would "accept the issue forced upon us by the slave power, and in defense of freedom cooperate and be known as Republicans."

Old Parties Crumbling

Many so-called Anti-Nebraska meetings were held in New York and other northern states. It soon became evident that the old Whig, the Know-Nothing and Free Soil parties were crumbling. As Curtis in his "History of the Republican Party" has aptly said: "It can almost be said that the Republican party founded itself. The movement once formed became irresistible." State tickets were run by the Republicans in 1854 in Ohio Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin and Maine, while in 1855 in addition straight Republican state tickets were run in New York, Vermont and Massachusetts.

The Republicans elected their state ticket in Michigan in 1854 including three of the four congressmen and had an overwhelming majority in both branches of the legislature and Michigan has been Republican ever since. The entire Republican ticket was successful in Wisconsin, too, while the anti-Nebraska men elected five of nine men in Illinois and made gains in many other states. The thirty-fourth congress 3, 1855, contained Democrats and Know-Nothing party. In the House 117 so-called anti-Nebraska men, practically all of whom later found their way into the Republican party, as against 79 Democrats and 37 pro-slavery Whigs.

While the state elections in 1855 were not so favorable to the new party, the Republicans of Ohio completed their organization that year and elected Salmon P. Chase governor or by 15,000 majority over the Democratic ticket.

The new Republican element in the Thirty-Fourth immediately made itself felt. It elected Nathaniel P. Banks, speaker of the House of Rep-

They would emphasize the work this truck does, not its initial cost.

For the woman suffering from nervous troubles causing sleeplessness, headache, hysteria, "the blues," Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine. For the woman of middle age who is passing through the trials of that period, it can be depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time. Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Englemann. You should give it a fair trial now.

U. S. WILL NOT PRESS FRANCE

Washington Treasury Officials Believe Smoot Suggestion Is Impracticable.

FRENCH HAVE LITTLE GOLD

Washington.—It was learned officially here that Treasury department officials are not in accord with the suggestion made by Senator Reed Smoot of Utah for a more positive suggestion to France and other powers that they fund their debts to the United States or send representatives here to consider the matter.

Treasury officials who have been studying the international financial and economic situation closely are confident that France is in no position to pay her debts to the United States at this time. This conclusion was reached regardless of political questions or political aspects, but upon a cold analysis of ability to pay. Consideration has been given to the frequently suggested fact that France is carrying a heavy military establishment and helping arm Europe. This does not mean, however, on the treasury viewpoint that such funds could be diverted to payment of the American debt.

France, it was pointed out, is spending all of her surpluses for military purposes within the French republic. The franc is down to one-fourth its gold value. France has no gold. The United States would not accept francs. To make the exchange on the present basis France would in effect pay, for instance, three million in gold to wipe out a debt of 1,000,000 in American dollars. France is borrowing to meet both principal and interest when these debts fall due. Payments to this outside power could not be made this way, in the United States Treasury view. Consequently treasury officials do not look for an early funding of French or Italian debts to the United States.

No meeting of the World war debt funding commission has been called. One may be within the next month, but suggestions to foreign powers for consideration of their indebtedness to the United States will probably be made guardedly.

Iowa Man Beats Illinois Champion at Corn Husking

Des Moines, Ia.—John Rickelman of Mount Hamill, Ia., won what is said to be the first interstate corn-husking contest ever held in the United States when he defeated H. D. Paul of Ipava, Ill., in a husking match on a farm near here. After deductions and corrections in the totals were made by L. D. Burnett of Iowa State college, umpire of the contest, Rickelman was credited with having husked 44.6 bushels of corn in two hours and twenty minutes of competition, while Paul was credited with 40.5 bushels in the same time.

The killed and injured were in the 1,000-foot level, to which the explosion and subsequent fire were confined.

ANOTHER NURSE PRAISES TANLAC

Mrs. Leona Culpepper, 17 Lucile Avenue, who was a trained nurse for fifteen years, is another highly esteemed Atlanta woman whose gratitude and desire to help others prompts her to tell of the wonderful results she derived from the Tanlac treatment.

"I had suffered from nervous indigestion and loss of appetite for four or five years," said Mrs. Culpepper, "and was nearly always nauseated. I had heartburn so bad I could hardly stand it, and became so weak and nervous I could hardly do my household work."

"Reading what Tanlac had done for others, I decided to try it, and by the time I finished the first bottle I was feeling so much better that I bought two more. When I had finished the third bottle I was feeling fine and had actually gained sixteen pounds. Tanlac is all that is claimed for it."

Allenru has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitious and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, the discoverer of Allenru, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenru decisively conquers their worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance.

A COLLECTION OF GOOD CAKES

A good cake is appreciated and enjoyed at any season, but at Christmas time with the family gatherings and home-comings cake is one of the reliable and always popular foods. In most homes a tasty cake which is good without being too costly is the one we look for. A sour cream cake will be one we will like.

Sour Cream Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of shortening with one cupful of sugar, add one-half cupful of molasses, two eggs, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda, two cupfuls of pastry flour, one cupful of sour cream, three-fourths of a cupful of raisins; add the dry ingredients well mixed, alternately with the sour cream. Add the raisins and the same amount of chopped nuts at the last. Beat well, pour into a large loaf pan and bake about three-quarters of an hour.

Texas Pecan Cake.—Cream three-fourths of a cupful of shortening, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, mixing well. Sift together three cupfuls of pastry flour, three tablespoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt; add alternately with one cupful of milk and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites at the last. Bake in three layers and put together with boiled frosting, using two cupfuls of sugar and two egg whites. Add a cupful of chopped pecan meats just before spreading onto the cake. Fewer nutmeats may be used where they are a dollar a pound.

Sunshine Cake (Two Eggs).—Take one-fourth of a cupful of shortening, one cupful of sugar, two eggs, one-half cupful of sifted squash, one and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half cupful of hot milk and a teaspoonful of lemon extract. Mix as usual, adding the hot milk at the last with the extract. Bake as a loaf or in layers.

Its airy, lustrous line The gossamer displays, And faintly breathes the pine. In autumn days.

CANDY FOR EVERYBODY

Who doesn't enjoy a nice piece of homemade candy?

Sea Foam.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of corn sirup, one-fourth of a cupful of boiling water, two egg whites, one-half cupful of chopped nuts and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Cook until the mixture makes a hard ball in water or hairs from a form, add one-half cupful of nuts and the vanilla and pour over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Beat until nearly firm then drop by spoonfuls on a buttered baking sheet.

Molasses Candy.—Take three cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of molasses, one cupful of butter and flavor to taste. Boil all the ingredients except the flavoring until it makes a hard ball in water. Pour into a greased platter and when cool enough pull. The flavoring is added just as it is poured out. Some like a peppermint flavored candy; any kind may be used to suit the taste.

Peanut Butter Fudge.—Place two cupfuls of sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of milk in a saucepan and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Let it boil vigorously, stirring a little until the mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Remove from the fire and add four tablespoonfuls of peanut butter. Stir until the butter is melted, then beat until creamy. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla and one-third of a cupful of sultana raisins. Turn into greased pans and cut into squares when cool.

After-Dinner Mints.—Take three cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one-half cupful of boiling water, one-half tablespoonful of vinegar. Boil until it becomes brittle in water. Pour out on a buttered platter. Pull, adding two drops of the oil of peppermint. Put into a tight glass jar after pulling and cutting into small pieces. Let stand ten days and it will be creamy and delicious.

Chocolate Fudge.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, one of brown and one of white, add one-half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two squares of melted chocolate and one-third of a cupful of corn sirup. Cook to the soft ball stage and cool before beating; beat until nearly stiff, then pour into a buttered pan and mark off into squares before it gets too hard.

True Enough.

Perhaps we expect too much of our courtesies. If you give a lady your seat in a car, she is not likely to leave you $25,000. A dazzling smile is quite enough payment.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

During courtship a man's word goes about seventeen times as far as it does after marriage. It's all right for a man to talk himself up provided he doesn't run others down.

The average man is better at confessing the mistakes of other people than he is at acknowledging his own. A man at forty knows almost half as much as he thought he knew at twenty.

Health and good looks—the reward of internal cleanliness

HEALTH and good looks go hand in hand. If you do not keep clean internally, your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks, and insomnia—each of which saps your health and vitality. Soon much more serious conditions follow.

Good Looks Throughout Life if You Keep Clean Internally

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation. Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. Physicians Favor Lubrication. The lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness. Not a Medicine. Nujol is not a laxative and cannot gripe. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Don't give disease a start. Adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

One of the best-known attractions in Lyceum, the McCords will appear on the evening of December 6 at the M. E. church. Mr. and Mrs. McCord have been delighting audiences all over the United States during the past eight years. Their program is a happy and lively mixture of dramatic and musical effort. If the dramatic predominates in their unusual presentations it is because of the fact that they both have rare gifts of dramatic lines. Mr. McCord is an artist with grease paint and wigs and his costume characterizations are gems of real worth. Among the sketches will be found "Old Soldier", a platform classic and "The Newly Wed Husband", a skit of the trials of a newly married pair. Mrs. McCord excels in clever monologues, readings and short stories. She is a gifted vocalist and song interpretations are always greatly appreciated.

The following is the recipe for the Turkish dish mentioned in the address at the lyceum course by Miss Sumayeh Attiyeh, the maid from the Orient, who says it will add from 12 to 15 pounds per month to the weight of a thin person. Take the head of a cabbage and cut the leaves separately. One by one, dip into boiling water for about 5 or 8 minutes until they get soft and tender, then take them out and put them into a dish, but be sure that the stems are cut out. Then take one third raw like stew meat of either lamb or mutton. Fry them medium with pure butter. After that return the meat and mix well with the onions. Take your cabbage rolls and lay them above the pieces of meat and onions row by row close together up to the top. Above that cut four or five tomatos, or can use the canned tomato, and cool slowly for an hour or until there is only a little gravy left at the bottom.

rice, two thirds raw ground meat, either lamb or mutton, salt and pepper and plenty of pure melted butter and mix thoroughly together. Some people add chopped unsalted almonds. Then take a cabbage leaf, put flat down and take some of the dressing, lay it along the side and roll up like a cigar and squeeze tightly so it will hold together. In a kettle or pan fry pieces of meat and bones, something like stew meat of either lamb or mutton. Fry them medium with pure butter. After that return the meat and mix well with the onions. Take your cabbage rolls and lay them above the pieces of meat and onions row by row close together up to the top. Above that cut four or five tomatos, or can use the canned tomato, and cool slowly for an hour or until there is only a little gravy left at the bottom.

RUSCO-Tractor Belts

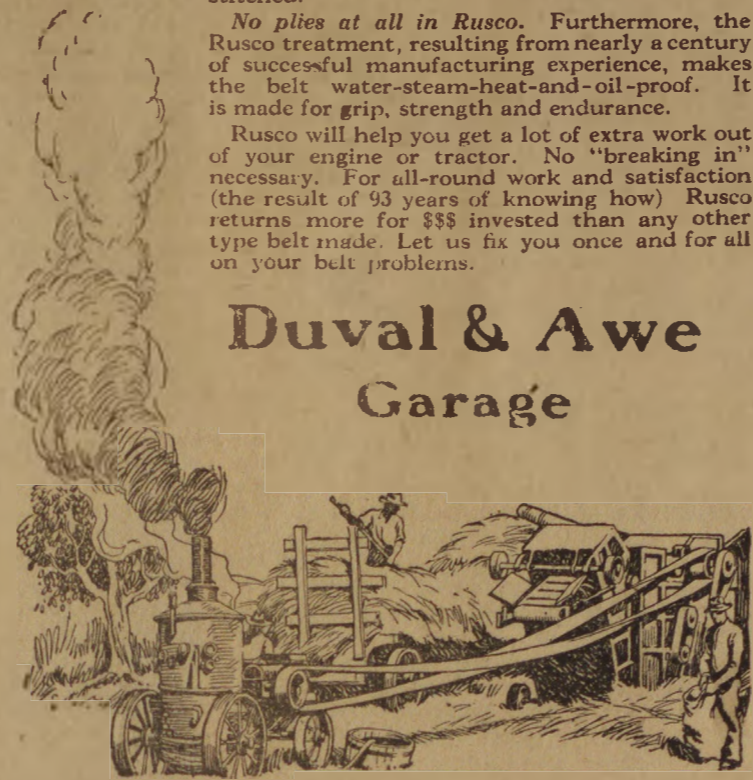

are more economical and serviceable

The Mellon Institute of Industrial Research in a scientific test of all types of belting, proved the superior worth of Solid Woven as against all other types.

Leather belting is made of many strips of hide cemented at the joints (about every 50 inches) or between the plies. Rubber belting of the better grades is made of canvas or duck which is folded into separate plies and rubberized. All stitched canvas belting is folded into separate plies and stitched.

No plies at all in Rusco. Furthermore, the Rusco treatment, resulting from nearly a century of successful manufacturing experience, makes the belt water-steam-heat-and-oil-proof. It is made for grip, strength and endurance.

Rusco will help you get a lot of extra work out of your engine or tractor. No "breaking in" necessary. For all-round work and satisfaction (the result of 93 years of knowing how) Rusco returns more for $$$ invested than any other type belt made. Let us fix you once and for all on your belt problems.
