BOYS ARE IN CAMP

DeKalb County Well Represented at Springfield

FOUR FROM GENOA ENLISTED

Third Regiment Quartered in Pig Pen and Find Comfort—Roster of Company A

The third regiment I. N. G. of which Company A of DeKalb is a part, is comfortably quartered in the pig pens at Camp Dunne in Springfield. Dr. Patterson writes his wife, however, that the pig pens are not just what the name would imply. The quarters are as comfortable as a camp can be and clean. An Elgin boy writes that the pens are much cleaner than some of the basements he has been compelled to visit when reading meters. The third regiment went to Springfield Friday night of last week, the ovations given the boys in each of the cities wherein companies were organized being inspiring to everyone as well as encouraging to members of the guard. Several score from Genoa went over to DeKalb Thursday evening and again Friday evening, orders being received late Thursday evening that the troops would not move until twenty-four hours later.

Dr. C. A. Patterson, a corporal in the third regiment band, Otto Dralle, Clarence Crawford and Roy Abraham are with Company A. The last two named enlisted just before the company boarded the train Friday night. In Doctor Patterson's letter the first of the week, he stated that he had seen Crawford in uniform, evidence that he passed the examination, but at that time had seen nothing of Abraham. Ralph Ort of Kingston is a corporal in Company M of Belvidere. Joseph Carroll of Herbert, William Sullivan of Henrietta and Paul Miller of Kingston are privates in the same company.

If the third regiment gets into action at the front, the readers of The Republican-Journal will be greatly interested in Companies A and M. We herewith publish a roster and for future reference would advise that the list be clipped and saved.

TO REPORT ON BOND QUESTION

State Highway Commissioner Bradt and Chief Engineer Marr in the Party

The special committee of the DeKalb county board of supervisors appointed at the adjourned session of the board held on January 24 to consider the subject of state aid roads started on a three days' tour of the county on Monday with a view of examining the roads and gaining information on which to base their report which will be made at the September session of the board. This committee, on whom rests the responsibility of reporting on the subject of bonding the county for some $900,000 for the construction of state aid roads, consist of supervisors Jarboe, Stewart, Dodge, Wilkinson, White, Townsend and Hyde. They are being accompanied on their tour by S. E. Bradt, state highway commissioner, Chief State Highway Engineer Marr, Superintendent of Highways Thomas of Claire county, Superintendent of Highways Miller of DeKalb county, County Clerk Henderson and Alvin Warren, chairman of the DeKalb county board of supervisors. THE LIGHT PROBLEM

City Council Visits Other Cities to Gain Knowledge

GENOA THE BEST LIGHTED CITY

Harvard and Walworth Use Cluster Lights on Streets—System is Not The Best for the Money

The mayor and members of the Genoa city council, accompanied by City Clerk L. F. Scott, C. D. Schoonmaker and F. O. Holtgren, made a trip to Marengo, Harvard, Woodstock and Walworth last Friday, seeking pointers on the street lighting proposition. They found that Genoa was better lighted than any one of the four, taking everything into consideration. Before starting on the trip, however, the city council knew that Genoa was lighted good enough. The question that confronts the council is to light the city nearly as well as at present at a smaller cost. The franchise question will soon be before the board and the members desired first hand information that would assist them in making a new contract with the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. The municipal plant proposition has been freely discussed on the streets, but such a plan at the present is out of the question. The citizens would not consent to a bond issue for building a plant and there are doubts regarding the advisability of the plan in a city of 1,300 people. The matter of rates is not a problem that will demand much argument, for that part of the deal rests entirely with the State Utilities Commission. During the past year or more Genoa has really been getting more street lighting service than its contract with the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. calls for. That company has been working under the old franchise which provides for street lighting on a moon-light-midnight schedule, that is, as far as the arc lamps in the out-lying districts are concerned. The ornamental lighting system on Main street is run on an independent contract. The arc lights, instead of being dimmed at midnight, have been running from dusk till dawn for two or three years at no additional cost. This has spoiled Genoa people. If the city council again makes a contract for midnight service there will be heard many a kick. No member of the council wants to go back to the old days and for that reason the trip was made last Friday. The best examples of lighting by the Utilities Co. were found in Harvard and Walworth. In both these places the cluster lights are used at street intersections. A cluster of three or four mazdas give as much light as one of Genoa's arc lamps, but they cost practically as much. In Harvard the midnight schedule is used, a fact that was surprising to the visitors. After all things were taken into consideration it seemed to be the opinion of most of the aldermen that the best plan for lighting the side streets is by means of single mazda lamps placed at intervals along the walks, low enough to throw the rays of light beneath the trees, so that every light would be efficient. The cluster or arc lamps, when hung high at street intersections really light only a small portion of the road immediately beneath, leaving the sidewalks in darkness. It is also suggested that the lights be installed on two circuits so that most of them could be switched off at midnight, leaving sufficient illumination for the night owl to get home without breaking his shins or his neck. It was found in looking up the commercial rates that Genoa is at present getting its service as cheap as any of the cities visited. For the small consumer, Harvard has a better rate, paying nine cents flat. Genoa's rate at present is 15 cents for the first 15 K. W. hours and 7½ cents for all above that amount.

ANOTHER CONSOLIDATION

Alto Township in Lee County Votes for New School

It took several efforts for Alto township, over in Lee county, to reconcile itself to the consolidated school, but a little study into the plan's honest merits overcame all opposition at last and now Alto will have a fine new school building. Being a rural community almost entirely, the election demonstrates the disappearance of opposition from farmers. One visit to Rollo settled the matter. The voters of Alto township Saturday carried the proposition of the township high school by a vote of 113 to 97, a majority of 16. The district will be known as district No. 167 and includes nearly all of Alto township and extends one mile into Reynolds township. This makes the second consolidated high school wholly in Lee county.

ing in January last to consider this subject of issuing bonds, and now they are to take up the subject in September, at which time their special committee has been instructed to report their conclusions. It is evident the board are considering the matter carefully and earnestly. A considerable number of the supervisors at the previous meetings, when this subject was up, favored submitting the matter to a vote of the people, and there are several reasons for believing that the number favorable has increased since that time. In fact, the opinion is advanced that the supervisors at their September session will vote by a good majority to submit the question to the voters. —True Republican.

o'clock, Rev. R. E. Pierce of Genoa, officiating. Interment took place in Genoa cemetery, services at the grave being conducted according to the beautiful Masonic rites. Members of Genoa Lodge No. 238, of which the deceased was a member, attended in a body.

He was the son of James T. and Sarah (Blank) Pierce, being the oldest of a family of eight children. He lived with his parents at Naperville until a year and then moved to Wayne, Illinois, where he lived until he was married. On March 21, 1876, he was united in marriage to Della A. Coon at Corning, N. Y., and resided in the town of Wayne, DuPage County, Illinois, until March, 1882, when he moved to Genoa, Illinois, and resided on a farm which he purchased and on which he lived until his death.

March 1904. A tornado swept this part of the country on that date and caused great damage to property. Charles was in his father's barn at the time the storm passed over. The building was twisted from its foundation and the unfortunate boy was crushed beneath the timbers. He also leaves four sisters. They are Mrs. S. C. Tuthill, Mrs. E. W. Wing and Frank J. Pierce, all of Elgin, Illinois. Mrs. Carrie Underwood, of Los Angeles, Calif., and Eugene Pierce of Big Stone City, South Dakota. One brother, Oliver Spencer Pierce, died March 16, 1910.

Mr. Pierce took great pride in his farm and his buildings and grounds were one of the show places of this part of the county. The house is large and modern in every respect and the barns and grounds are in keeping with Mr. Pierce's desire for the best. He was an active member of the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities and a beneficiary member of the Modern Woodmen. He took an interest in the social affairs of the community and could always be depended upon to do his share whether it be as a citizen, lodge member or a member of any temporary organization. His death leaves a vacancy which will not be filled immediately.

SYNOPSIS.

Alan Wayne is sent away from Red Hill, his home, by his uncle, J. Y., as a moral failure. Clem drinks Alan's health on his birthday. Judge Healy defends Alan in his business with his employers. Alan and Alix, Gerry's wife, meet at sea, homeward bound, and start a flirtation. At home, Gerry, as he thinks, sees Alix and Alan eloping, drops everything and goes to Pernambuco. Alix leaves Alan on the train and goes home. Gerry leaves Pernambuco and goes to Piranhas. On a canoe trip he meets a native girl, the judge fails to trace Gerry. A baby is born to Alix. The native girl takes Gerry to the ruined plantation she is mistress of. Gerry marries her. At Maple house Collingford tells how he met Alan—"Ten Per Cent Wayne"—building a bridge in Africa. Collingford meets Alix and her baby and gives her encouragement about Gerry. Alan comes back to town but does not go home. Gerry begins to improve. Margarita's plantation and builds an irrigating ditch. In Africa Alan reads Clem's letters and dreams of home. Gerry pastures Lieber's cattle during the drought. A baby comes to Margarita. Collingford meets Alix in the city and finds her changed. Alan meets Alix, J. Y., and Clem, grown to beautiful womanhood in the city and realizes that he has sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. Kemp and Gerry become friends. They visit Lieber, and the three exiles are drawn together by a common tie. Lieber tells his story. In South America Alan gets the fever and his foreman sends him to Lieber's.

Consider the mental agony of an intelligent man when he comes to realize that he has committed a great wrong, an irreparable wrong against his wife and against himself. Revelation and a sort of terror come to Gerry.

"You've been up all night," said Gerry. "Go and lie down for a while. I'll call you if anything happens." Lieber rose reluctantly. "Don't fail to call me," he said. "I'll leave my door open."

Gerry sat down in a chair beside the settle. He had not known how tired he was himself. Soon he dozed. His head fell forward on his chest. Sleep came to him and then a great trouble came to his sleep. He roused himself from a nightmare and, suddenly wide awake, found Alan's eyes fixed on his face.

"You!" murmured Alan.

Gerry did not answer. His face became a mask. It seemed to him that only Alan's eyes were alive, and to Alan that Gerry had projected his spirit to his bedside to watch him die.

Alan tried to smile in defiance. "Can't you speak?" he whispered hoarsely.

Gerry leaned forward. The question he had to ask was stronger than he. It forced its way through his lips. "Alan, what did you do with her? Tell me that and I'll go away."

A troubled look came into Alan's thin face. He frowned. "Do with her? Do with whom?"

"Alan," said Gerry, his suppressed voice trembling, "you know. With Alix."

"Oh," said Alan, still struggling on the verge of consciousness. "I remember. I did nothing with her. She wouldn't go with me."

"Alan," groaned Gerry. "I saw you. I saw you and Alix on the train."

The frown was gone from Alan's forehead. He felt sleep coming back to him and he was glad. "Yes," he said, "she was on the train with me. I remember. She jumped off. A baggageman—caught her." He dropped off to sleep again.

Lieber stepped catlike across the floor. He caught Gerry by one ear, and with the other hand over his mouth led him out of the room. Gerry went tamenly. When they were on the veranda Lieber looked at him. "So," he said, his blue eyes blazing, "you only want to kill him."

"No," said Gerry, dazed, "not now."

"Mr. Lansing," said Lieber, "you get out of here. We'll settle this business some other time."

Gerry's lip trembled. "You're right, Lieber," he said. "You're right, only you don't know it all. That chap in there—we were boys together. He ran away with my wife. That's why—" Gerry suddenly stopped. Alix had run away. She had jumped off the train. Where was she, then? What had she done through the years he had been away? Why had she jumped off the train. He struck his hand to his head and stumbled off the veranda.

Lieber's anger died in him, but he turned and went back to Alan.

Two hours later he came out again to find Gerry crouched on the veranda. The spirit had gone out of him, but he turned on Lieber with a determination in his tired eyes. "You told me to get out and I haven't. There are things I've got to know. I'll wait."

"I spoke in haste, Mr. Lansing," said Lieber. "I want you should forgive me. You are all in, too. Come with me."

He led him into his own room, made him lie down, and closed the shutters. Gerry threw himself across the bed, played in bringing resurrection to the abandoned plantation and life to the neighboring stock.

Alan cast a curious glance at Gerry. "Dangerous business," he said, "fooling with the normal level in flood country."

Lieber nodded and went on. He told his tale well. He had seen more than Gerry could have put into words. Gerry listened for a while, but he soon wearied. What had all that to do with him now? He wandered off and started to saddle True Blue. He must get away from Alan. Alan was drawing him, but he was bound in chains. He must remember that. Then, too, what Alan had said about fooling with the normal level worried him. He must go back and station a guard at the great sluice gate.

A sudden puff of air, then a breeze, then a gale, swept down on Lieber's from the southwest. The wind was hot, a furnace blast from the torrid wilderness. It carried with it whirls of dust, light, dry sticks, and, finally, small pebbles that hurtled along the ground. Gerry and his horse sought shelter by the house. Herders came running out from their quarters and gathered in front of the veranda. The wind suddenly turned cold, dropped and ceased. The dust settled. The sun blazed as before. There was not a cloud in the sky. The herders all looked at Lieber. They did not talk. They were waiting.

Lieber shrugged his shoulders. "Somewhere," he said with a wave of his hand to the southwest, "there has been rain and hail and that sort of thing. Temperature fell and drove the hot air off the desert." He told the men, but they did not go away. They stood around, their eyes sweeping the horizon to the southwest. At last one of them grunted. His eyes were fixed on a distant pillar of dust. It came towards them. Lieber used his field glasses. Without taking them from his eyes, he spoke. "It's a man, riding. Looks like he's riding for life. Something is up. He's riding to kill his horse."

As the man approached, a dull rumbling filled the ears of the watchers. So gradual was its crescendo that they did not notice it. The rider spurred and beat his horse to a final effort. They could see he was shouting. He drew nearer, and they heard him. "Flood! Flood!" Then they noticed the rumbling. It became a roar. Far

From his loins back he was paralyzed. With a last desperate effort he straddled his forelegs, but he could not brace himself against the backward sag of dead weight. Gerry felt him sinking beneath him and suddenly found himself standing over his prostrate horse. Of True Blue, his forehead outstretched, his head and breast still held high, there was left only a great spirit chained to a fallen and dying body.

A cry escaped Gerry's lips—a cry of horror at what he had done. Then he remembered why he had done it and ran not for the sluice-gate but for the bridge. As he reached it the rear became deafening. There was a splintering, crackling sound that, measured by the great commotion, seemed like the tinkle of a tiny bell. But there was something in the sound that called to his brain. He cast a glance over his shoulder. The monster beams of his sluice-gate, hurled, splintered, into the air, were still hanging against the blue sky. Under them surged an angry white wall of racing water. Even as he started to run down the long slope to the house Gerry thought with a great relief that if the gate had been closed it would have gone even so, like matchwood.

Below him Fazenda Flores lay peaceful, still, under the blazing sun. The cotton was a little wilted but high and strong, the cane stunted but all right. Only in the pasture bottoms the stock had gathered in frightened clumps. Their instinct had told them that danger hovered near. Suddenly from the quiet house burst Margarita, carrying her son on one arm. While the others watched the rising river, and now this terrifying torrent bursting down upon them from above, she had slipped out to run to him.

The house at Fazenda Flores stood on a domed mound. Behind the mound was a slight hollow before the steady rise to the bridge began. Gerry caught sight of Margarita as she ran down towards this hollow. Terrified, he cast a glance at the descending flood and his eye measured its pace against hers. "Go back!" he shouted with all the strength of his lungs, and waved his arms. It was as though he had not spoken. Through the din and roar of the flood the sound of the words scarcely reached his own ears.

At the very bottom of the hollow Margarita felt that she was stepping away on the horizon rose a white, advancing mist. The rider rolled off his staggering horse. "The flood," he gasped. "Never before has there been such a flood."

Tore Off in a Mad Gallop.

Before the words were out of his mouth there was a frenzied rattle of hoofs and Gerry on True Blue tore off at a mad gallop down the trail towards Fazenda Flores. Almost at his heels followed the first mounted of the herders, riding all they knew to cut across to Piranhas ahead of the wall of water.

Lieber's eyes followed Gerry's flight. Then he turned them on Alan. "That hollow down there," he said, "will be turned into a rushing river in half an hour—perhaps less. We're just safe here, and that's all. You see Mr. Lansing? He's the spot farthest down the trail. I'm thinking we'll never see him again."

A faint flush came into Alan's cheeks. It was a flush of pride—pride in Gerry. Gerry had not hesitated. He had not ridden off like a laggard. Even now they could see that he was riding for life—riding with all his might for the lives that shackled him.

Gerry had never ridden a horse to death before. When True Blue first staggered he put spurs to him and laid on his quiet right and left.

The roar of the river was so loud that he could not tell if he had really beaten the flood or not, though he could see just before him the long, snaky ridge of the main ditch banks. He must get on.

But True Blue only came to a staggering stop under the quirt. With his forehead he still marked time as though with them he would drag his heavy body and master one step nearer home.

from a terrible dream, but with the sigh that trembled to his lips came realization.

From head to toe he was battered and bruised. His cotton clothes were in tatters. His chest heaved in great spasmodic gasps. Breath whistled through his wracked lungs. His eyes protruded. His head ached till it seemed on the verge of bursting. But to his mind pierced a thought sharper than pain—the thought of Margarita and the Man. With clenched teeth he struck out for the current.

Far, far away rose a dusty line of mist. It marked the head of the flood—the meeting of water with the accumulated dust of rainless months. Gerry recognized the meaning of that line. Somewhere there in the turmoil of the first rush of the mad flood were Margarita and the Man—that was left of them. The distance dismayed him, but he swam on. Then he felt the fast approaching end of endurance. A sob choked him.

It was only minutes till his arms refused to answer to his will. They moved so weakly that more than once his gasping mouth sank below the water. He swam great gulps of the turbid flood. Then an uprooted tree brushed by him. He clutched its branches.

When all else in the world has passed from a man's brain there remains the life instinct—the will to fight for the last minute of his allotted being. The life instinct was all that still lived in Gerry. It urged him to a last effort. He dragged his body upon the tree where the branches forked from the main trunk. Utterly exhausted, he sank into their embrace. They held him as though in a cradle.

The rush of the waters began to slacken. They stretched out over the valley and crept up its sides. They did not flow so much now as rise. The valley became a moving sea. On its flowing surface beasts, fowls and reptiles struggled, mad-eyed, for life. Here and there a bloated carcass, brought down from far up the river, blundered blindly through the living and brought screams of terror from the swimming horses, and gasping lows from the struggling cattle.

From the middle of the sea rose the old plantation house still high and dry on its mound. It seemed very tiny—a toy house on a lonely islet.

A great, open, white umbrella lined with green sailed gayly along. It caught in the branches of Gerry's tree. Uprooted cotton bushes floated by, and cane, snapped off, sometimes torn up in whole bills, banked up against the tree and formed a vast, unstable island, toward which swam the deluded stock.

From the mouth of the cleft in the river gorge issued a thundering cataract. It had burst through the walls of the ditch and eroded an unseated section of the rocky erag against which the sluice-gate had been buttressed. The ditch was gone. It could never be again, for the water was tearing the channel of the cleft deeper and deeper. The turbid flood devoured the silt of the valley, accumulated since man was, and carried it, seething, out towards the river. The valley would be left naked, stripped of the source of life.

Gerry's tree had crawled away from the main current. In a vaddy it approached the mound whereon squatted the old plantation house. Dona Maria stood at the edge of the waters. Her two hands were clenched and held above her gray head. Thin wisps of hair hung about her face. Her face was distorted. She was cursing Gerry, cursing the day of his birth, the day of his coming, the day he had opened his ditch. She swept her arms over the terrible scene and called down the curse of all the ruin and death on his head. But Gerry was beyond hearing. In all the world there was none to hear the old woman. She stood alone; about her the silent waters, above her the blazing blue sky.

The tree shot out of the eddy. The current, the main current from the cleft, caught it squarely and swept it away. It suddenly shook its long trail of ruff, and turning and turning, more and more swiftly, swam out on to the churning bosom of the great river.

The valley had disappeared. Squinting on the very level of the far-dunging waters, the old house still stood. The bright sun struck a glint of light from its white walls and gave rich colors to its moss-grown tiles. The roof was crowded with fowl and a strange medley of heavy flying birds, glad of a perch on which to rest. Dona Maria went into the house. She closed the great board shutters. The house looked as if it had closed its eyes in a last renunciation.

Gerry's tree floated down the river. It swung slowly along near the north shore. Just below it were houses. They were perched on the cliff. Below them were more houses and under these the tiled roofs of still other houses just topped the flood. The houses were what was left of Piranhas.

From the shore canoes in search of loot began to shoot out on the quieting waters. One of them happened upon Gerry's tree and then upon Gerry. Gerry's eyes opened and then closed again. He scarcely felt the arms that lifted him. They carried him to the old inn, the miserable little inn he had left behind on that glorious morning of so long ago.

Would it not be a sort of poetic justice if Gerry should die now without ever being able to make amends to Alix for his dreadful suspicion and without ever seeing his son and help?

GOLD IN EASTERN STATES
With Silver and Other Metals Year's Production is Around $30,000,000.

Not all of the gold of this country comes from Alaska and the Rocky Mountain states. A good-sized lump of it, more than 10,000 ounces, worth $224,250, is dug out of the mountains here in the East, remarks the New York Sun.

Gold hunters dreamed for years of hidden wealth of yellow metal in the southern part of the Appalachian range. Some of them stopped dreaming and went to work, missing an Eldorado but gaining enough profit to pay well for their daily labor. As a result 59 gold and placer mines and 24 deep gold mines have been developed.

The most productive of these are in North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. The last-named state has not done so well as in some previous years, but both the others have exceeded the production of 1914. The largest placer mine is in Rutherford county, North Carolina, and the most productive deep mine is in Montgomery county, in the same state.

But the whole story of metal mining in the East is not told in the quest for gold. Besides this precious mineral, silver, copper, lead and zinc have been produced in quantities sufficient to make a total last year of almost thirty million dollars. This is nearly three times the value of the preceding year's production, the increase in gold alone being more than fifty thousand dollars.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription outline—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots. Simply get an ounce of outline—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning, and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength outline, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles—Adv.

Flag for Old Vincennes.
The city council of Vincennes, Ind., is considering the adoption of a flag for Vincennes to be used as the city's official emblem during the coming Indiana centennial celebration, says the Indianapolis News.

The suggested design is intended to set forth the British rule of Vincennes by an old English red "V" in the blue center and the French control by a white fleur-de-lis, which was the national emblem of France during the time this territory was under the French government.

Radiating from the center there are 18 white stripes, indicating that Indiana was the 18th state admitted to the Union. There are also 48 small white stripes, indicating the number of states now in the Union.

Their Use.
"Is it true that battles are being won in Europe with cigarettes?" asked the reformer.

"Oh, no," answered the contributor to a tobacco fund. "Cigarettes are merely used in the trenches to make a policy of 'watchful waiting' more endurable."

Saving.
"Old Van Gelder began life as a poor boy, and look at him now. He's worth millions."

"He saved every cent he earned, I suppose."

"Yes, and some that other people earned besides."

Solitude.
"Of course, you admire the dove of peace."

"Very much. But I don't know whether I care to see it flourishing around under present perilous conditions and running the risk of becoming extinct."

Nothing but the Truth.
Said He—Women will never be paid as much for lecturing as men are.
Said She—Why not?
Said He—Because they do too much of it for nothing.

Explained It.
"Father, what is meant by peanut politics?"
"A gubernatorial campaign."

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK
How Mrs. Kelly Suffered and How She was Cured.

Burlington, Wis.—"I was very irregular, and had pains in my side and back, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and using two bottles of the Sanative Wash I am fully convinced that I am entirely cured of these troubles, and feel better all over. I know your remedies have done me worlds of good and I hope every suffering woman will give them a trial."—Mrs. ANNA KELLY, 710 Chestnut Street, Burlington, Wis.

The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough to women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.

This good old root and herb remedy has proved unequalled for these dreadful ills; it contains what is needed to restore woman's health and strength.

If there is any peculiarity in your case requiring special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for free advice.

A Protest.
"I appeal to you as a statesman—" "Don't dig up that statesman rumor about me just now," interrupted Senator Sorghum. "I'm a statesman most of the time. But with several conventions looming up in the near future and a large following of practical citizens to satisfy, I want to go on record as a politician."

Not Harmonizing.
"The man I am engaged to has been terribly wild, but is going to turn over a new leaf."
"Don't trust such a bad color scheme. Rosy futures seldom grow on purple pasta."

Might Help.
"I find it almost impossible to keep the wolf from the door!"
"Do you ever try eating an onion?"

The Cause.
Mr. Fish—What was the cause of your husband's demise?
Widow Fish—The hookworm!

Bumper Grain Crops
Good Markets—High Prices
Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses

The winnings of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains, is the excellence of the cattle feed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels.

Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

"Our country!" In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong.—Stephen Decatur.

THE THING TO DO

Theodore Roosevelt has come out emphatically and unquestionably for Charles Hughes for president. His letter was read before the national Progressive committee in Chicago Monday and that committee by a large majority decided to quit business as far as national politics is concerned, this year at least. There was nothing else to do, if the Progressives really had the interests of the country at heart and no one can doubt the good intentions of the rank and file of the dead party. It was a severe blow for the leaders, more so than for the men in the ranks. The former are down and out of things politically for a time at least, while the latter can do just as much as they have done heretofore—go to the poles and vote. The vast majority of the Progressives will vote for Hughes. It is not conceivable that any thinking Progressive will sacrifice his very principles just for spite during the present crisis. There are a few of the leaders who threaten to get into the Wilson band wagon, despite its shaky condition, but for the most part these threats are and have been bluff and bluster. Raymond Robbins, who four years ago was the state leader of Progressives, has fallen in the estimate of his former followers and at this time could not be nominated for pathmaster.

Theodore Roosevelt has lost friends among the leaders, but the great army of over 4,000,000 who followed him four years ago believe that he has done the only thing that any thinking American could do and stand by the principles which he has so long advocated. Not only has Mr. Roosevelt retained his Progressive friends; thousands who four years ago became his bitter political enemies will forget the past and commend him for his recent action.

The following extract from Mr. Roosevelt's letter to the Progressive committee is as strong an endorsement as any candidate ever received: "In my judgment, the nomination of Mr. Hughes meets the conditions set forth in the statement of the progressive national committee, issued last January, and in my own statements. Under existing conditions, the nomination of a third ticket would, in my judgment, be merely a move in the interest of the election of Mr. Wilson. I regard Mr. Hughes as a man whose public record is a guaranty that he will not merely stand for a program of clean-cut, straight-out Americanism before election, but will resolutely and in good faith put it through if elected.

"He is beyond all comparison better fitted to be president than Mr. Wilson. It would be a grave detriment to the country to re-elect Mr. Wilson. I shall, therefore, strongly support Mr. Hughes. Such being the case, it is unnecessary to say that I can not accept the nomination on a third ticket. I do not believe that there should be a third ticket. I believe that when my fellow-progressives coolly consider the question they will for the most part take this position. They and I have but one purpose—the purpose to serve our common country. It is my deep conviction that at this moment we can serve it only by supporting Mr. Hughes.

"Mr. Hughes has shown in his career the instinct of efficiency which will guarantee that, under him, the government will once more work with vigor and force. He possesses that habit of straight-forward thinking which means that his words will be correlated with his deeds and translated into facts. His past career is the warrant for our belief that he will be the unflinching opponent of that system of invisible government which finds expression in the domination of the party boss and the party machine. "His past career is a guarantee that whatever he says before election will be made good by his acts after election. Morally, his public record shows him to be a man of unbending integrity, intellectually, it shows him to be a man of original and trained ability. We have the alternative of continuing in office an administration which has proved a lamentable failure, or of putting into office an administration which we have every reason to believe will function with efficiency for the interest and honor of all our people. I earnestly bespeak from my fellow-progressives their ungrudging support of Mr. Hughes."

THE HYPHENATE

The editor has been asked several times during the past few weeks regarding the term "hyphenate," so frequently used these days in political and war talk. Three years ago the term "hyphenated" American had no other meaning than that which commands respect and is entitled to consideration. The United States is made up of "hyphenates" as we understood the term a few months ago. It is perfectly natural to refer to the Germans as German-American, the Irish as Irish-American, the French as French-American, etc., and we as naturally placed the accent on the last word. Practically all the nations of the earth have been instrumental in building up this great country of ours. No sturdier pioneers have we had than those who came from Germany, Ireland, Sweden, England and other European countries. Since the European war started there has been a change in the meaning of the term "hyphenated." When the newspapers now use the term, they do not refer to the good American citizen of foreign birth and parentage, but to the one citizen who places the accent on the first word, the one whose loyalty to his adopted country is doubtful. The so-called "hyphenate" of today is the man who takes advantage of his rights as a citizen of the United States and in an indirect manner tries to lead his adopted country to assist his native land. It is natural that the foreign born citizen should sympathize with the land of his birth and no one denies him that right. When he goes so far as to forget his oath of allegiance to the United States, he must be classed with the "hyphenates." There are very few of this class of citizens in the country, but enough to irritate the government at times.

When the Progressive leaders talk of putting a state ticket into the field, they talk without reason, without principle and decidedly without hope. The principles which prompted the launching of the new party in 1912 are not incident to state politics and there can be no real reason for splitting the vote next fall. Splitting the vote will give the Progressives no hope of winning and will most certainly place the Democrats in power again.

Raymond Robbins' balloon has gone up. The Republicans never did think much of him and the Progressives are now somewhat disgusted. He will hereafter be found in the political graveyard, with Bryan, Mason, Deneen and a few others as his neighbors.

Don't knock. It's not the town—it's you.

Keep in the Sunshine.

There are only two kinds of people in the world—the people who live in the shadow and gloom and those who live on the sunny side of the street. These shadowed ones are sometimes called pessimists, sometimes people of melancholy temperament; sometimes they are called disagreeable people. But, wherever they go, their characteristic is this—their shadows always travel on before them. These people never bear their own burden, but expose all their wounds to others. They are all so busy looking down for pitfalls and sharp stones and thorns on which to step that they do not even know that there are any stars in the sky. These folks live on the wrong side of the street. And yet it is only twenty feet across to the other sidewalk, where sunshine always lies.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Secret of Harmony. Pull together. This is the real secret of harmony. There is a story told of a man who had committed the care of one of his teams to a faithful servant or years. At last one of the horses sickened and died. While the servant was burying the faithful animal, the other horse came across the field and stood by, watching the work as a silent mourner. The master said: "I believe Dick loved Billy." The servant replied: "In ease he did, massa, why, they pulled together nigh 20 years."—Christian Herald.

TUBERCULOSIS MOVEMENT
New Directory Lists 3100 Agencies Engaged in Consumption Campaign

Statistics made public today by The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis show that nearly 3,000 agencies are now listed in the fight against tuberculosis in the United States, an increase of 1,600 per cent since 1904, when the national warfare on this disease was started. These figures are taken from a new tuberculosis directory just issued by the Association.

The list includes 557 sanatoria and hospitals, 153 tuberculosis boarding houses, 90 hospitals for the insane and 35 penal institutions making special provision for tuberculosis, 455 dispensaries, 310 open air schools, and 123 anti-tuberculosis associations and committees. To these are added 158 Canadian institutions and associations, making a total of 3087. The directory also gives a summary of municipal and state legislation on tuberculosis.

When the National Association was formed in 1904 and the first list of agencies printed, only 183 organizations and institutions were found. The second edition of the directory in 1908 reported 649 different agencies; and 1440 were listed in the third edition published in 1911. On the basis of the latter figures, the number of agencies in the anti-tuberculosis movement has increased 115 per cent in the last five years.

TO SELL ROAD

DeKalb-Aurora Line May be Used for Freight

Aurora Beacon-News: A deal is on by which Aurora will get a new freight outlet over a steam road, it was learned late Saturday night. This is to be brought about thru the buying up of the Aurora-DeKalb line by F. W. Cherry, a railroad promoter of Princeton and it's conversion into a branch of an unknown steam trunk line, presumably the Great Western.

This will be done, it is said, by buying up a second mortgage on the property of the road at a cost of about $125,000. This will take the road out of the hands of the receivers who are handling it at the present time and make it practically the property of the steam line in question.

It will then go out of existence as an electric interurban line at which it has never been able to pay and become a steam freight line, establishing direct connection between Aurora and certain steam lines to the west and north from which it has heretofore been practically cut off.

The road is capitalized at $900,000 and has this much stock outstanding. Most of this stock, however, was given out to purchasers of bonds as a bonus. There are bonds outstanding to the extent of about $450,000 on which it is believed the road will pay the interest as a steam freight line. The road was organized between 10 and 15 years ago by local capital, but was not a paying proposition.

More than 1,000 persons take part in it. It is easily the biggest spectacle Ringling Bros. have ever staged and its glorious "Ballet of the Fairies," with 300 dancing girls, is in itself worth going many miles to see. Following "Cinderella" 400 arenic artists appear in the main tent program. Because of the great European war the Ringlings have secured scores of circus performers never before seen in America. An entire trained animal show has been made a part of the main tent program this season. The menagerie now numbers 1009 wild animals. The elephants, including "Big Bingo," the earth's largest pachyderm, have been increased to 41 and almost 800 horses are carried. There will be 60 clowns and a big free three-mile street parade on the morning of the show.—adv.

To Mark County Lines

Along the Great highway, which extends from Chicago to Galena, large and handsome cement posts will be placed to mark all county lines.

Cremation. The process of cremation is as follows: The casket is lowered into the incinerating room, the metal handles and name plate are removed, and it is put into the retort. The heat is so intense that after a few hours only the ashes of the bones remain, all else, including the structure of the casket, having disappeared in light ash or gaseous products. The casket screws and nails are removed by a magnet and about four ounces of pure ash remain.

Unappreciated Sweetness. My small daughter was staying all night with her grandmother. After she had been undressed and was all ready for bed her grandmother asked her if she hadn't better kiss her grandpa, who was sitting near by reading. He evidently didn't hear and continued reading while she stood on her tiptoes smacking her little lips. Finally she turned, disgusted, to her grandmother and said, "Oh, I'm wasting 'em!"—Exchange.

Testing Oil's Specific Gravity. The specific gravity of oil may be ascertained by taking a glass vessel and weighing it; then weigh into it one ounce of water and mark the point where the water reaches; then fill to this mark with oil and weigh it. Express the weight of the oil as a decimal part of one ounce, which will be the specific gravity of the oil. That of grease may be obtained in the same manner, pouring the melted grease into the vessel.

BRISCOE

"The Best Liked Car in the Country"

"A Friend of Mine Said"—

A dozen times a month some one comes into the showroom interested in the Briscoe because of the enthusiastic praise a friend has bestowed on it.

Sometimes it is the striking beauty of the car; sometimes the economy or the comfort or sturdiness, or any one of a score of Briscoe features.

But it emphasizes the fact that a Briscoe owner is a Briscoe booster—a motorist who realizes that he has secured the best value in the market today.

Below we give the names of a few Briscoe owners in town. Maybe some of them are friends of yours. Ask them what they think of their cars. In that way you'll get some real unprejudiced opinions that should be of value to you in making your own selection.

After you've seen them, see us!

The Allen

Having purchased one of these cars for my own use and having satisfied myself as well as some of the skeptical ones as to its merits and ability, I am in a position to accept orders for a limited number of these cars.
If you intend to pay around $800 for a car, you owe it to yourself to see the Allen before you buy a Motor Car.
I believe you will find after a fair investigation, that the Allen really does embody more good points than any other car at the price.

The Lure of Far Lands.
With a reasonable capital, youth, strength, character and a knowledge of the language fortunes can be made relatively easier on the frontiers of civilization than at home. There are, however, many privations to be borne. You are away from friends. Mails at best come once a week. News is scarce. Daily papers exist only in metropolitan towns, and the data they contain are meager. In many localities fresh vegetables cannot be had. Drinking water is positively dangerous. Fleas, bugs, mosquitoes and a host of winged, stinging, biting insects are present to annoy during day and night. Most hotels are bad and the food strange, unpalatable and poorly cooked.

For women but few real opportunities exist. I know of but two women lawyers in Latin America, and there are perhaps the same number of doctors and dentists. Relatively small proportions of the fair sex follow commercial callings. In the far east and Africa, caste, the system of "purdah" and the general belief that woman is inferior to man have retarded her progress.—W. E. Aughinbaugh in Leslie's.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE SPEAKS

Former Bull Moose Paper Is Strong for Republican Candidate

"The Tribune, which supported Colonel Roosevelt and the enlightened program of the Progressive platform in 1912, does not see how there can be any further hesitation. It does not see how Colonel Roosevelt and the Progressives can fail to throw themselves loyally into the fight against Wilson and the Democracy."

This quotation is from the editorial columns of the Chicago Tribune of June 12. It is eloquent in its prophecy. The Tribune was the head and front of the Bull Moosism in the middle west in 1912. Its influence is powerful and its example contagious. Only a few such announcements as the foregoing will be required to complete a most potential Democracy obituary. And here is some of The Tribune's logic:

"We believe the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes has answered all questions decisively. Mr. Hughes is a man whom every sincere Progressive, from Colonel Roosevelt to the last of his followers, may and should actively support. The letter of acceptance lays down with emphasis the principles which Colonel Roosevelt has been so forcefully preaching, and upon which his candidacy was based. It discloses Mr. Hughes' position as virtually identical with Colonel Roosevelt's. Not only that but the spirit is the same, and its promise of clear, unflinching, vigorous action is supported on a record in reform unsurpassed by any living American for courage, single mindedness and persistence in the right."

EPWORTH GROVE

Campmeeting Drawing Big Crowds and Interesting Programs Heard

Epworth League Institute has been one of the most successful ever held on the ground, lasting from Thursday till Sunday morning. A large crowd of young people enjoyed it thoroughly. Rain Thursday and Friday mornings did not dampen the enthusiasm.

On Friday evening a campfire was given with a choir from Geneva Lake, Wis.

The Silver Blend male quartet of Woodstock added much to the enjoyment of Thursday evening, when a second concert was given by the Epworthians. Raymond Moore of Lake Bluff led the singing to the delight of all.

Officers were elected on Saturday. Charles Gilkerson of Marengo refusing to serve longer. Mrs. Gilkerson also resigned as district superintendent of the Junior Epworth League. The new officers are as follows:

President—W. C. Lilly, Rockford.
1st Vice—W. A. Dilley, Harvard.
2nd Vice—Mrs. Z. D. Bancroft, Durand.

3rd Vice—Miss Margaret Helmer, Rockton.
Secretary—H. C. Gooch, Garden Prairie.
Treasurer—C. A. Dehniston, Rockton.

Junior Supt.—Miss Hazel Wilson, Durand.

On Sunday afternoon after a spirited song service, the loving cup was presented to the Belvidere League, it having the highest number of points to its credit during the year.

On Sunday Rev. Clustine spoke at the morning service, Rev. H. V. Holt in the afternoon and Rev. A. D. Klontz in the evening. Big crowds attended each service, 262 Epworthians registering, the largest number ever registered on the grounds.

The pump, casings and cylinder were pulled at the pumping station last Sunday and needed repairs made. It was found that the casing attached to the cylinder, eighty feet down, had nearly rusted away, the holes caused by rust causing a great loss in the efficiency of the plant. The condition brought vividly to mind the fact that Genoa is taking grave chances in attempting to get along with only one well and one pump.

A Rockford man who is in camp at Springfield, takes exception to the Chicago Tribune's article regarding the Eighth Regiment band, and writes as follows: "That we all make mistakes is shown by the Chicago Tribune when it says that the Eighth Regiment has the best regimental band. If the reporter made the statement after hearing the Third's band there are a lot of us down here who will say that he has a poor ear for music."

Miss Evalou Hancock, niece of Miss Maria Holroyd of this city, recently took part in a musical program at Belvidere and made a decided hit. In writing of the program a reporter for the Belvidere Republican says: "Miss Hancock in her soprano numbers afforded even her home friends a delightful surprise, demonstrating the flexibility and wide range of pure tones to wonderful advantage. Her voice under training has responded rapidly and sweetly and gives full measure of quality that is pleasant to hear."

Hunting Trouble.
When a man just naturally wants trouble it is mighty easy to find an excuse for making it. According to Mike Hogan, Casey and O'Brien were having an argument of their own at Breckinridge street and Barrett avenue. It had progressed to the extent that each had forgotten what it was about originally and they were wholly oblivious of the gathering crowd until an urbane and genteel person in a frock coat put in.

"Come, come, my man," he said, gently plucking Casey by the sleeve. "You don't want to fight; I can tell it by your looks. Your face is too benign."

"Two be nine! Two be nine, is ut, ye scut?" bellowed Casey. "Me face is two be nine, is ut?"

And there was where the real trouble began.—Louisville Times.

Santos-Dumont.
Santos-Dumont is visiting many cities in South America in the interest of the Pan-American aeronautic conference. He was born in Sao Paulo, Brazil, on July 20, 1873. From 1900 to 1906 he demonstrated to Europe the possibility of conquering the air with the dirigible balloon as well as with the aeroplane. He spent in aeronautics alone over $50,000 a year for 12 years in experimentation. While in Paris in 1901 he won a prize of 250,000 francs. He was made chevalier of the French Legion of Honor in 1904, and in 1900 received the officer's cross.

Your Flag and My Flag

By WILBUR D. NESBIT

Your Flag and my Flag! And oh, how much it holds—
Your land and my land—secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart beat quicker at the sight;
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed, red and blue and white.
The one Flag—the great Flag—the Flag for me and you—
Glorifies all else beside—the red and white and blue!

Your Flag and my Flag! And how it flies today
In your land and my land and half a world away!
Rose-red and blood-red the stripes forever gleam;
Snow-white and soul-white—the good forefathers' dream;
Sky-blue and true blue, with stars to gleam aghast
The gloried guidon of the day; a shelter through the night.

Your Flag and my Flag! To every star and stripe
The drums beat as hearts beat and fifers shrilly pipe!
Your Flag and my Flag—a blessing in the sky,
Your hope and my hope—It never hid a lie!
Home land and far land and half the world around,
Old Glory hears our glad salute and ripples to the sound!

HAD TO WAIT FORTY DAYS Long Time Before England Got News of the Battle of Lexington

IT SEEMS strange in these days when news of the battles in far-away Europe is cabled to America within a few minutes after they occur—when flying machines equipped with machine guns are fighting each other in the clouds—when advocates of preparedness are arguing that the ocean is no barrier to a foreign foe because of the swiftness of their steam cruisers—to hark back to the battle of Lexington, April 19, 1775, and try to realize the length of time it required for the news of that conflict to reach England.

There were no telegraph wires, no telephone, no dispatch boats or "special correspondents" with each regiment. A steam vessel had not then been dreamed of. There were no cables, no flying machines, no machine guns. Only sailing vessels, of small size, were available to cross the ocean, and as a consequence it took a long, long time for the shot to be "heard around the world."

Dependent on Sailing Ships.
Journalism in America was then in its swaddling clothes. The race of the enterprising journalist to outfoot fleet-footed Time had not then begun. There was not the intense rivalry of today between metropolitan papers, with their specials and war extras, to say nothing of baseball extras. There was, too, a similar lack of activity on the part of editors in London.

The newspapers in Boston and other nearby towns at that time were published weekly, usually on Monday. News of sanguinary events, if they occurred during the week, was necessarily held for publication until the following Monday. It was not surprising, therefore, that the news of the battles of Lexington and Concord was not printed in Boston until April 25—for the idea of issuing an "extra" in such emergencies was not then in vogue.

In the Essex Gazette.
The Essex Gazette, published at Salem, had by far the best report of the events of the day, with an almost complete list of the killed and wounded. The news of this first encounter between the provincials and his majesty's troops was many hours in reaching the other colonies, although post riders and expressmen were started immediately for Hartford, New York, Philadelphia and the South.

In two days nearly all the scattered peoples of the young nation had been informed of the result, and the spirit of the hour had inspired the raising of troops.

To the king, the parliament and the people of Great Britain the days had been filled with anxiety. The main question discussed was "How far fare the colonists carry their resistance?" "Will the provincials stand before the British regulars?" was also a mooted question.

Didn't Anticipate War.
In the face of the steady pouring of grenadiers, dragoons and infantry from the mother country, and the rapidly increasing fleet of vessels of war, all heavily manned, it was believed that the Americans would be cowed and the whole attention of Great Britain was centered upon her rebellious children across the seas.

Day succeeded day. March became April, and April in turn was left behind in the rush of time. May grew old, with no word of decisive action from the colonists.

Not a single word from the conflict of April 19, 1775, had reached England until the bright, clean page, labeled "June," was about to be brought into view and king and subjects were leaving London to escape the summer heat.

Forty Days to Reach England.
It was on May 29, 1775, when the first sailing vessel to arrive from the colonies after the skirmish at Lexington reached Bristol, England. Even at this early day journalism had shown its superiority over government methods, for the vessel brought copies of the Essex Gazette of April 25, containing the brief account of the engagement.

Post haste, they were carried to London, and on the following day the news was printed in the London Chronicle. Thus, 41 days after the shot was fired, its reverberations were heard in distant Britain.

With but a simple headline—"LONDON"—the Chronicle printed the important news, prefacing it with the statement:

"Tuesday, May 30, 1775.
"Yesterday morning some dispatches arrived at Lord Dartmouth's office from General Gage, at Boston, brought by a ship arrived at Bistol, from that Province. They were forwarded by a messenger to his majesty at Kew."

These dispatches contained no news of the skirmish, being dated several days before it occurred.

Country True to Its Ideals.
How truly the United States has pursued the ideal of human progress set forth in the Declaration of Independence has been shown since the world war began by our steadfast stand for the rights of humanity. Here we stand, drawn from the four corners of the earth, a great people united in a common purpose, leading the world toward a realization of the brotherhood of mankind and pointing out to all nations that man's real and enduring aim should be the conquest of himself and of the vast forces of nature, to the end that all may get the best out of life and ever advance in the pursuit of happiness.

God's Hand Upheld Patriots.
If the struggle for independence teaches anything it is that mysterious and mighty unseen forces co-operate with those who are working out God's plan. Had it not been for the help of such forces the result of that struggle would have been entirely different.—Christian Herald.

Patriotic Hymn

OUR father's God! from out whose hand The centuries fall like grains of sand,
We meet today, united, free, And loyal to our land and thee,
To thank thee for the era done, And trust thee for the opening one.
Here where of old by thy design, The fathers spoke that word of thine,
Whose echo is the glad refrain Of rended bolt and failing chain,
To grace our festal time, from all The zones of earth our guests we call.

Be with us while the new world greets The old world thronging all its streets,
Unveiling all the triumphs won By art or toil beneath the sun;
And unto common good ordain This rivalry of hand and brain.

Thou who hast here in Concord furled The war flags of a gathered world,
Beneath our western skies fulfill The Orient's mission of good will,
And freighted with love's golden fleece, Send back its argonauts of peace.

For art and labor met in truce, For beauty made the bride of use,
We thank thee; but withal we crave The austere virtues strong to save,
The honor proof to place or gold, The manhood never bought nor sold.

Oh make thou us, through centuries long, In peace secure, in justice strong;
Around our gift of freedom draw The safeguards of thy righteous law,
And cast in some diviner mold, Let the new cycle shame the old.
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

LONG MAY IT WAVE

The KITCHEN CABINET

Whether a life is noble or ignoble depends not on the calling which is adopted, but on the spirit in which it is followed.—Sir John Lubbock.

CHOICE PUDDING SAUCES.
The same attention should be given to the preparation of pudding sauces as is given to meat sauces, as well as the proper sauce to serve with each pudding.

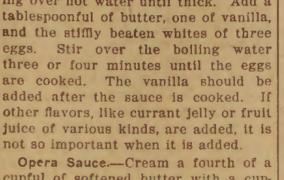

German Sauce.—Boil together one cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water for 15 minutes. Then whisk into it the beaten yolks of three eggs and continue beating over hot water until thick. Add a tablespoonful of butter, one of vanilla, and the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Stir over the boiling water three or four minutes until the eggs are cooked. The vanilla should be added after the sauce is cooked. If other flavors, like currant jelly or fruit juice of various kinds, are added, it is not so important when it is added.

Opera Sauce.—Cream a fourth of a cupful of softened butter with a cupful and a fourth of light yellow sugar. Add slowly as much cream as it will take without curdling. Flavor to taste.

Currant Jelly Sauce.—Beat a cupful of double cream until thick; add currant jelly till a light pink in color.

Brown Sugar Sauce.—Take a cupful and a half of medium brown sugar, add a pint of boiling water and a tablespoonful of cornstarch; boil ten minutes. Just before serving add a tablespoonful of butter and a grating of nutmeg.

Creamy Sauce.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter with a cupful of powdered sugar. Add a tablespoonful of vanilla or any desired flavor and two tablespoonfuls of cream, beating well. More cream can be added if it is not soft enough to drop easily from a spoon.

Orange Sauce.—Beat four yolks with tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, a cupful of cream and the grated rind of an orange. Cook like custard until smooth; strain and serve. Fine on a fruit salad.

Chocolate Sauce.—Boil together for five minutes a half cupful each of sugar and water. Cool the sirup before stirring in four ounces of chocolate, melted. Add a half teaspoonful of vanilla or a pinch of cinnamon. Stand in a pan of hot water, and when ready to serve add a half cupful of thin cream.

Every good and commanding movement in the annals of the world is the triumph of enthusiasm. Nothing great was ever accomplished without it.—R. W. Emerson.

The most wasted of all days is that on which one has not laughed.—Chamfort.

GARNISHES FOR SOUP.

The garnishes for soup will often make an otherwise common soup quite out of the ordinary.

Marrow Balls.—Take a tablespoonful of finely cut marrow, three tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, salt and pepper to taste. Work to a smooth paste, adding a little raw egg if needed to make it smooth. Form in balls the size of a filbert, drop into the boiling soup and simmer about fifteen minutes.

Spinach Balls.—Take an equal bulk of finely chopped cooked spinach and very fine bread crumbs. Season highly with pepper, salt and cayenne. Add enough egg white to moisten well, then let stand to stiffen. Shape in balls the size of hickory nut; poach in the hot soup for five minutes and serve four to each plate.

Force-meat Balls.—Scrape enough raw lean veal or chicken to make a half pound. Soak half a cupful of bread crumbs, free from crust, in milk; when soft squeeze dry; add four tablespoonfuls of butter, the scraped meat and the yolks of two eggs, pound the whole smooth and force through a coarse sieve. Season with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Form between two teaspoons into almond shaped balls; cook about ten minutes in stock that just simmers.

Ham may be used as above, with parsley and onion juice, leaving out the salt and nutmeg. Pound to a paste and the sifting may be omitted. Shape into large balls and cook in stock. They should be as light as a sponge and may be served with any soup.

DELICIOUS CAKE FILLINGS.

An ordinary cupcake or a plain, cheap, simple cake recipe may be so varied by frostings and fillings that it is always different.

Pineapple Filling.—Take a tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in a little pineapple juice, add a half cupful of grated pineapple and enough lemon to make it pleasantly tart; add very stiffly boiled frosting to make sufficient quantity of icing, and filling.

Orange Filling.—This is especially delicious with any white cake, but is a great favorite as a filling for chocolate cake. Take the rind of an orange as well as the juice, put into a cup and fill the cup with water, cook two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, a pinch of salt, the yolks of two eggs and a third of a cupful of sugar with it; add a teaspoonful of butter and a little lemon juice. Cool before using on cake.

Fruit Filling.—Take a cupful of seeded raisins, a half pound of blanched almonds, a half pound of figs, the same amount of dates and a fourth of a pound of citron. Put these twice through the meat chopper and add enough boiling frosting to make a soft paste.

Plain Chocolate Icing and Filling.—Melt two ounces of chocolate over hot water, add two cupfuls of brown sugar, a half cupful of milk and a teaspoonful of butter; cook until it makes a soft ball in cold water. Cool, add a little cinnamon and stir until thick enough to spread. Put it on while the cake is warm.

Maple filling is delicious, using maple sugar for the sirup and beating it as any boiled frosting.

Good to Remember.

Every young man should remember that if his income is just a little above expenses every day, he will eventually become well off. If his receipts daily lack a little of meeting his expenditures, he will in time become a candidate for public favors at the poorhouse. Honest work at any calling and such economy as the case requires is honorable; while idleness and spendthrift habits are a disgrace to anyone, young or old.—New Canaan (Conn.) Advertiser.

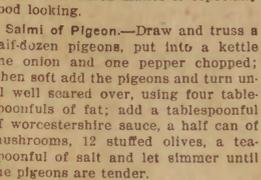

COMPANY MEAT DISHES.

There is no more welcome meat dish than chicken pie and when baked in the individual dishes, it is especially attractive. When cooking the chicken, if a small piece of onion is added, not enough to be at all objectionable, the little flavor adds much to the dish. Three very small biscuit may be placed on the individual dish which makes it especially good looking.

Salmi of Pigeon.—Draw and truss a half-dozen pigeons, put into a kettle one onion and one pepper chopped; when soft add the pigeons and turn until well scoured over, using four tablespoonfuls of fat; add a tablespoonful of worcestershire sauce, a half can of mushrooms, 12 stuffed olives, a teaspoonful of salt and let simmer until the pigeons are tender.

Swiss Meat.—Cut the meat from a three-pound shin of beef. Into a soup kettle put a tablespoonful of sugar and stir until melted and brown; then add three quarts of water, putting the beef bones in the bottom of the kettle and the meat on top of them. Cover and simmer gently for two hours, then add a bouquet of herbs, an onion, a turnip and two carrots, all diced, and a cupful of cooked peas. Cook until the vegetables are tender, then add a thickening of four tablespoonfuls of fat and three of flour, cooked together; add a little of the soup. Strain the soup and serve clear. The meat and vegetables may be heaped on a platter. This will make a most satisfying meal with a simple dessert.

Turkish Tongue.—Wash a fresh beef tongue and cook it slowly for two hours. Skin it and tie in shape, save the water in which it was cooked for a soup. Put four tablespoonfuls of sweet fat into a kettle; add a sweet red pepper, chopped, a pint of button onions and a carrot, cut in fancy shapes; stir until they are slightly browned, then add the tongue and a half pound each of raisins and stoned dates. Add a quart of the liquor in which the tongue was cooked, cover and simmer gently two hours longer. Serve the tongue with the other ingredients around it. Reduce the sauce if necessary and serve with it.

Who is the happiest of men? He who values the merits of others, and in their pleasure takes joy, even as though it were his own.—Goethe.

Hippopotamus Can Run.
In spite of its clumsy bulk the hippopotamus can trot fast. That is why he was given the name of river-horse. The hippo's feet are kept far apart by the wide body and make paths with a ridge down the middle, so as to be recognizable at once. They swim well, but go at their greatest speed when they can gallop along the bottom in shallow water. They can stay under water a long time, and when they come to the surface they send little jets of spray from their nostrils. The cow is devoted to the calf. Judging by Conditions.
"Sin, my dear pupils," said Deacon Barnes to his Sunday school class, "is the legacy of Adam."
And the bright boy in the class remarked that that was probably the first case on record where a will was not broken.
"Yes," said the deacon, "but it should be remembered that there was enough to go around. I don't remember hearing of anybody who didn't receive his share of the inheritance."

Sterno Canned Heat

Here is something for which you have been waiting these many years. It is a paste, put up in cans of various sizes and is used like a candle. No fuss about lighting it, no odor, no danger, no grease, in fact nothing but satisfaction. It produces a wonderful heat and is ideal for quick cooking in light housekeeping, for a lunch or in the sick room. To make a cup of tea or heat water for any purpose in hot weather or in the night it is a great find. No wicks to trim and no burners to clean. To light, simply strike a match; to extinguish, simply blow it out—that's all there is to it. Call and let us explain.
