Judge William L. Pond

Rep. Candidate for County Judge

Judge William L. Pond, the republican nominee for county judge, was a former Genoa boy and his past reputation is such that assures him the support of the Genoa people.

His loyalty to the duties of the county judgeship was clearly shown in the decision handed down by him in the DeKalb-Sycamore court house matter.

Since his first election to the office his eminent fitness for the position has been manifested and his re-election to the office is an assured fact.

Judge William L. Pond, attorney-at-law, and judge of the county court, is a resident of the city of DeKalb and is a lawyer of well established reputation, one of the truly representative members of the legal profession of DeKalb county. He was born in Genoa township, DeKalb county, Illinois, February 11, 1860, and is the son of Americus H. and Amy N. (Hollenbeak) Pond, who were early settlers in this county. His boyhood and youth were spent upon the home farm, and his education was received in the district school and Genoa high school, from which he graduated June 10, 1881, in the first class graduating therefrom. He then taught the high school at Kirkland one year, an experience to which he looks back with gratitude. In his capacity as teacher he came in touch with Young America, in its generally unsubdued state. He abandoned school teaching, however, for a vocation for which he was more aptly fitted, both by nature and education. Entering the law office of Lowell & Carnes, he remained with that firm one year and completed his course of studies with the firm of Carnes & Denton, of Sycamore. After passing a creditable examination before the supreme court of the state at Ottawa, Illinois he was admitted to the bar June 10, 1884, and commenced the practice of law at DeKalb, in September of the same year.

On November 9, 1887, Mr. Pond was united in marriage with Miss Alice E. Cole, a native of Kingston, Illinois, born April 21, 1860, and a daughter of Marcus W. and Anna E. Cole, both of whom were natives of New York.

In May, 1886, Mr. Pond was elected city attorney of DeKalb, an office which he ably and conscientiously filled for eleven consecutive years, in the meantime serving one term on the board of education. In January, 1887, he formed a partnership with Judge Luther Lowell, which continued two years, having offices in Sycamore and DeKalb. He then practiced alone until January 2, 1895, when he formed a partnership with A. G. Kennedy, who had just located in DeKalb. This partnership continued until June, 1897, when it was dissolved just prior to the election of Mr. Pond as county judge. At that time he was elected to fill a vacancy, and in the summer of 1898, he received the Republican nomination to the office for the full term.

Fraternally Judge Pond is a member of DeKalb lodge, No. 144, A. F. & A. M., and also of DeKalb Chapter, No. 52, R. A. M., DeKalb Council, No. 81, and Sycamore Commandery, No. 15, K. T. Among other fraternal organizations of which he is a member are the Modern Woodmen of America, Royal Arcanum, Knights of the Globe, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Knights of the Maccabees.

Judge Pond is honored and esteemed, not only for his legal acumen and business ability, but for his sterling personal worth. Upright, reliable and honorable, his strict adherence to principle commands the respect of all. He is a staunch Republican, adhering to the true principles of the party, principles which he has advocated since attaining his majority. He is a genial, courteous gentleman, a pleasant, entertaining companion, and has many admiring friends among all classes of men.

FLORA BUCK IN THE LEAD DELIVERS FIRST SERMON

Exceedingly Large Vote Polled During the Week.

DELA KIERNAN IS SECOND MANY ATTEND BOTH SERVICES

Second Week of the Genoa Republican Ladies' Diamond Ring Contest Shows Greater Enthusiasm.

The second count by the judges on Wednesday evening showed a greater increase than was anticipated. The count showed a total of 8706.

Many citizens are becoming interested in the progress of the contest and their help is being contributed to their favorite with the expectations of her winning the worthy prize of the fifty-five dollar diamond.

Much is expected from the Kingston contestant as she has the field to herself and the vicinity affords many subscribers.

The count will be made again next Wednesday evening at seven o'clock. The time has been changed to seven o'clock as it has been arranged by the judges, their explanation being, that the stated time is more convenient to them.

The following is the standing of the contestants by the count of the judges, Wednesday evening, October 22, 1902

Flora Buck	3704
Della Kiernan	3610
Mildred Gibbs, Kingston	612
Edyth Carpenter	300
Libbie Brown	222
Della Geithman	200

MILWAUKEE ROAD IN DEAL.

Local Line Makes Important Deal With Union Pacific.—The Contract Is for an Indefinite Length of Time.

New York, October 22.—The terms of the traffic alliance between the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Union Pacific are given out. The contract, which has already gone into effect, is for an indefinite time. It stipulates that the St. Paul shall have all rights and privileges on the Union Pacific lines that are enjoyed by any other railroad. This includes both the Central Pacific and the Oregon Short Line, reaching San Francisco and north Pacific points.

The St. Paul secures what it has been trying to get for several years—namely: right of way over the Union Pacific system, and through freight and passenger trains to the Pacific coast. In return the St. Paul agrees that all business through Kansas City and as initiated by it shall go over the Union Pacific line.

FELL TWENTY FEET.

Wm. Oursler Falls Down a Steep Stairway and Sustains Two Broken Ribs.—Was Employed in Livery Barn.

Wm. Oursler, employed at Danforth's livery, slipped and fell down a long flight of stairs at his home near the livery on Monday evening.

Oursler sustained two broken ribs and a badly bruised shoulder. Dr. Austin was called and dressed the wounds.

Rev. Ream, New Pastor of the M. E. Church, Delivers Discourse.

At the Morning Services, the Pastor Introduces Himself and Tells of His Life—Morning Discourse in Form of a Talk.

Sunday morning at the Methodist church, the new pastor, Rev. T. E. Ream, appeared before his congregation for the first time in this charge.

His discourse was in the form of a talk, telling of his life and the work he had taken up. He said to his people that he came before them as Rev. Ream, and it is as Rev. Ream that he wants his people to take him, for "I cannot be like any of your former pastors; I cannot be like Rev. Hester; I cannot be like Rev. Satterfield; I cannot be like Rev. Rose, or Rev. Farmiloe; in fact I cannot be like anyone but myself, and that is how I want you to take me," he said.

It was clearly emphasized in his talk, that what he said was for the guidance of his followers in the future.

In the evening, the pastor delivered his first sermon and took as his first topic, "The Christian Mark."

In short he said, "Everything bears the marks of its environment." In ancient India there is a valley several miles in length which is called the "Valley of the Roses." For in the season of flowers, roses of a thousand varieties grow and blossom in every color of the rainbow. Travelers journeying along the pathway leading through this Eden of beauty and bloom become so delighted with the scene and fragrance that they loathe to leave the vale. But what is still more remarkable, for many days after the traveler leaves the scene, his garments still bear the perfume of his journey through the "Valley of the Roses."

Just so, those men and women who have walked in the presence of Jesus Christ, and have traveled in his footsteps and who have taken to their hearts his precepts, have stamped and branded upon their character the likeness of Christ and becoming "living epistles," and the world will know that they have touched the life of the "Son of God."

In a sense, we become like the company we keep and our very surroundings mark us with their character. Visiting the parks of our great cities, we see that the fur of the polar bear proclaims ice and snow; the fins of the fishes proclaim a home of water; the leaves of the great palms proclaim a tropical sun, and thus the student ever discovers that every existence bears the marks of its environment. It is said of Dr. Samuel Morton, the great American physician, that when he was standing in Castle Garden at New York City, looking upon the great stream of foreigners seeking homes and fortunes in America, he could see in their features and dress the marks which told him as plainly as words, which man came from London, which from Paris, which from Rome, which from Athens, and which from Berlin. He could see in each face the clear marks of its nativity and surroundings.

So likewise, in that early society in which St. Paul lived. The em- (Continued on Last Page.)

Capt. A. S. Kinsloe

Rep. Candidate for County Clerk

County Clerk A. S. Kinsloe is well known to the voters of DeKalb county, and his splendid record as soldier and civilian make him a strong candidate. His long service as county clerk has made him familiar with the many details of the office to which he is sure to again be re-elected.

Captain Kinsloe was born in Pennsylvania, coming to DeKalb county when a child. He served nearly four years in the Twenty-third Illinois Volunteer Infantry. He was elected county treasurer in 1886, and county treasurer in 1890.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Northern Illinois Teachers Association Will Meet at Rockford This Week.—Genoa Teachers Will Attend.

The annual meeting of the northern Illinois Teachers' association is in session in Rockford for three days,—Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The meeting is being held in the Congregational church and in the high school.

The problems of truancy and the delinquent and the incorrigible boy, the cigarette habit and the characteristics of those children who need special attention are among the many propositions to be discussed.

Among those who will take an active part in the program are Judge Richard S. Tutill of Chicago; Alfred N. Bayless, state superintendent of public schools; Prof. W. E. Hatch of Oak Park and Prof. G. E. Vincent of the Chicago University.

The intermediate section will be represented by Miss Emma N. Ellis and will convene together with the other sections every afternoon.

BIG SCARE AT NEW LEBANON.

Supposed Robbery of the Postoffice Wednesday Morning Aroused the Citizens.—Money Found in Bottom of the Hill.

Postmaster Ellithorp was the cause of considerable excitement in New Lebanon on Wednesday morning. While making out a registered letter he thought someone had robbed the till and escaped with about thirty dollars in bills.

The excitement was intense when the supposed robbery was discovered and the blame was at once placed on one of the citizens.

Steve Abraham was notified and arrived in the village on the double quick. However, before the constable arrived, the missing coin was found in the money drawer and had been overlooked by the postmaster in his haste to find it.

The village has again settled back in its former state of tranquility and quiet reigns supreme.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

The Adelphian Literary Society Met Last Friday and Elected Officers.—The Program to be Given Oct. 31.

The Adelphian literary society of the high school and grammar grades of the Genoa public school met in called session on Friday afternoon, October 17, for election of officers. In order to benefit the society with a few primary rules of parliamentary law, the election was held by motion and acclamation.

The following officers were elected: Pres. Irvin Burroughs, Vice Pres. Geo. Evans, Sec. Minnie Koeller, Treas. Eva Sager, Organist Julia Bowers.

The next regular program will be rendered October 31, by the following pupils: Anna Kiernan, Fred Hannah, Clarence Thompson, Sabie Leonard, Julia Bowers, Horace Sumner, Charlie Leonard, Eva Sager, Eddie Adams, Edith Serberg, Ervin Crawford, Tressa Taylor, Bessie Gabriel, John Downing, Thomas Ryan, Abiram Crawford, Fannie Lord, Sidney Riddle, Edgar Baldwin, Clarence Wager and Elmer Harvey.

K. Jackman & Son have some last winter's coal bills that must be settled at once.

Are You interested in the contest for the Diamond Ring. Most people are.

The REPUBLICAN stands for the straight republican ticket. If the members of the party have made those on the ticket the nominees for each respective office. A republican can only be termed such if his influence is devoted to the straight ticket.

The fact that the coal strike has been settled speaks highly for our president. The people of our nation owe to him what the miners owe to the people. It seems that the people have come to believe that "Teddie" is one of us, and is thinking of his people not self.

KINGSTON'S NEW PASTOR.

Rev. C. S. Clay Greeted His Congregation Last Sunday Morning.

A large congregation listened attentively to the first sermon delivered by Rev. Charles S. Clay in the M. E. church on Sunday morning. The evening service was also largely attended and one new convert added to the list.

Following is the morning sermon in part:

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God." Rom. 8: 28.

This is a bold and positive assertion, and like all positive assertions, appears a little startling at first. Intelligent mind, before it receives a positive assertion, and stores it away as reliable, has to grapple with the why's and wherefores. At the entrance of thoughtful mind, stands a skeptical guard, and every assertion is challenged and before entrance, must show its passport, or produce his credentials. But when intelligent mind is convinced that such assertion is neither presumptive nor falsehood, but based on facts, or principles, irrefragably true, and commended to sound judgment, the assertion is believed whether it relates to sound doctrine, to observation or experience, to the world without, or the world within. And in this manner we test the assertion of this text.

We notice that the assertion is limited in its application to character, that is specific and unique. "To them that love God," It is erroneously quoted as of universal application, a false quotation, dangerous to contemplate and destructive in its tendency and misleading in its teachings. All things do not work for good to half hearted or the maliciously wicked. All things work for good to heighten the responsibility devolving on the Christian.

This loving God must be more than sentimentalism, that gives vent in little spurts of poetry or assent to the supremacy or Fatherhood of God.

True christian love must develop itself into obedience to God's laws, and heart conforming to his will. Love that has more work, and less gush, more vitality and less theory, more devotion and less irreverence, more sacrifice and honest consecration. Love that expresses itself in well defined action, that stretches out bleeding hands, that prompts weary feet to go into the desert to find the lost sheep.

The workers and the purpose of their work. The works are "all things," the purpose "for good." They must work together, not singly and alone. No other class of individuals have such a variety of servants that are ever ready to do his bidding.

A prescription that has in it deadly drugs, any one of which would kill, together work to the ultimate good of the patient for whom it is intended. So in the great laboratory of God's universe, the successes and reverses, the opposition of enemies or the God speed-you of friends, the failures, the trials, temptations and afflictions, the sorrows and bereavements "all work together."

But can we verify the trust of the text; if so, how? We know from revelation the assertion of text is the outgrowth of implicit confidence, and an intelligent comprehension of God's promises. The following are some of the precious gems of revealed truth: "For the Lord God is a sun and a shield, the Lord will give you grace and glory, no good thing will I withhold from them that walk uprightly;" "Fear thou not, be not dismayed, for I am thy God, I will strengthen thee, yea I will help thee, I will uphold thee with my hand of righteousness."

We know because of the principles of government implied. This is God's world, and he has by no means abandoned it to run against his loyal subjects. The devil in this world is an usurper, and whatever he may inflict against a child of God, shall work for his good.

We know, from the analogy of reason. We do not know what is best for us. That which may seem for our best may prove instead of a blessing, a curse, and vice, versa. A child may love poisonous berries, because they are beautiful to look upon, and their enhancing beauty does not destroy the deadly effect of the poison.

We know from the law of compensation. Everything in this life has a disciplinary tendency to the pure minded. Not a cross is borne, not an injury sustained but that God proposes the sufferer shall be finally and fully compensated, for, "No chastisement for the present seemeth pleasant, but grievous, but they work out the peaceable fruits of righteousness to them that are exercised thereby."

Surprise Parties.

On Saturday evening, a number of the friends of Mrs. Hedda Worcester and family tendered them a surprise and all spent a very sociable evening. Mrs. Worcester and family will soon move to their farm property north-west of town.

Misses Maude and Ruth Benson gave a farewell party for Misses Dorothea and Helen Dix on Tuesday evening. Games were indulged in and refreshments were served. Those present were: Dorothea Dix, Helen Dix, Jennie Ort, Bertha Ort, Olive Moore, Katie Bassett, Winnie Moore, May Gibbs, Maude Bradford, Maude Benson, Ruth Benson, Georgia Walker and Grace Benson.

PROFESSIONAL BRETHREN

By Geo. E. Walsh

CHAPTER XV.

My opinion of Dr. Squires did not improve any after the disclosures just related, and I was naturally inclined to lay all the blame upon him, arguing that he had misled my master in some way or that he held a price over his head and forced him to do his will. I took this view of the question for several days, upholding my master and reviling the doctor, attributing all sorts of evil things to him. Certainly he was as great a criminal as Mr. Goddard, and if one was ever caught in the act of robbery the other would have to be implicated. I felt that the doctor was accepting the easy part of the job, staying home to receive the stolen goods while my master ran the risk of capture and even of being killed.

In the event of the latter's arrest I knew that Dr. Squires would suddenly leave the neighborhood, and my master would be left to suffer the penalties of their mutual crime. Incidentally I decided to prevent any such unjust punishment by being on hand when the doctor found the place too hot for him. I knew enough about their partnership to have him sentenced to the state prison for a good long term.

My old hatred of the doctor returned with double force. I had more tangible reason for disliking him now than when I first suspected him of attempts to kill my master with poisons. My suspicions that he was not all above board in his lonely life in the haunted mansion were now confirmed. I would make it a point to investigate the premises in spite of all opposition.

Thereafter I coolly but deliberately went to work to effect an entrance into the old house, and it may be remarked, incidentally, that when a professional burglar of my standing makes up his mind to enter a building no locks, bolts, bars or electric alarms can keep him out. Moreover, I felt that I had justice on my side this time, and, re-enforced with a quiet conscience, I made specially good plans.

It was three nights later that I found myself on the premises again. This time I was prepared for a work that had become a second nature to me. Leaving my shoes in a clump of bushes in the woods, I proceeded to approach the house with catlike treads. I reached the front porch without mishap. There was no moon out, and the place was extremely dark.

When satisfied that everything was quiet, I climbed up the largest piazza post and drew myself noiselessly upon the upper porch. Here I rested a moment and then crawled along the side so as not to make any crackling noise with the tin roof. I gained the dark side of the house, and by placing one foot upon the staples which supported the blinds I deftly swung myself up on the slanting roof of the third story.

On the top of the house was a round cupola tower inclosed in glass, and I judged rightly that no burglar alarm would be attached to these windows and that noises made there would hardly be heard by the doctor and his old servant in their rooms below. I reached the cupola in safety and after resting a few minutes I proceeded to work.

In a few minutes I had cut out a small piece of glass from the window pane, and then, inserting my hand through the aperture, I easily unfastened the catch. I took the precaution, however, to be sure about a burglar alarm. There was none attached to the window, and so far I was safe.

Once inside the cupola, I flashed a bright ray of light from my dark lantern and inspected my surroundings. It was a small circular room with the accumulated dust of many years gathered on the window sills and floor. It was perfectly bare of articles of furniture and, as I judged, had not been visited by any one for years.

A trap in the floor opened into a hall below. I tried this door and found that it was locked on the inside. An ordinary lock is easier to pick than a padlock attached to a staple on the opposite side of a two inch board. However, I was prepared to encounter all sorts of difficulties.

I could work in comparative safety in the cupola. So I took a cold chisel and softly pried up the ends of the staple driven into the door from the opposite sides. When I had straightened these out, I forced them gradually out of their holes. They fell back with a little clatter that startled me. Would anybody hear the noise?

I waited breathlessly for a full half hour, squinting my eye through the small holes to detect any ray of light. But apparently nobody slept in that part of the house, and the noise had done no harm. I tried the trapdoor. It stuck a little at the corners, but by prying it up with my chisel I managed to raise it without creating any noise.

An old ladder led from the trapdoor to the hall below. I tested it with my feet before venturing my whole weight on it, for I was not certain whether it was strong enough to hold me. Then I quietly dropped down into the hall.

At last I was actually in the doctor's house, but whether I would find what I wanted was another question. Before attempting any investigation I made sure of where the doctor and his old servant slept. Their sleeping rooms, I discovered, were on the ground floor. They opened into each other, and both doors were standing on the jar.

This gave me the two upper stories all to myself, and I began my investigation with an easier mind. The first room I entered was empty, with the exception of a few old clothes, blankets and discarded furniture. The second was furnished as for a bedroom, but very little furniture was in it. The third and fourth were disposed of in a few minutes because of their barren appearance.

The large back bedroom which overlooked the woods was securely locked and the key missing. With fingers all of a tremble in anticipation of a great discovery I proceeded to pick the lock. Fortunately it was a common lock which required but little real skill to open. The spring was a little stiff and rusty, but otherwise it worked easily, and I threw the lock back in its socket without causing anything more than a slight grating noise.

Then I entered the room and closed the door behind me. I flashed the light from my lantern on every side, taking in the whole room in one circular sweep, and for a moment I was disappointed. There was nothing visible in the room except piles of old furniture covering it. It looked as if furniture had been stored in the room and then covered over with the cloth to keep the dust from accumulating on the articles.

But why should the doctor have such fine furniture stored away in this upstairs room? I raised one end of the covering and started back in astonishment. I could almost have shouted in my surprise. Throwing back the cloth in eager haste, I soon disclosed to view a collection of treasures that made my hand tremble. No robber's cave ever revealed a richer store of wealth than that which lay spread out before me.

I soon disclosed to view a collection of treasures.

Advance Engines and Threshers

The Advance Husker-Shredder

The Advance Husker-Shredder is built on honor. It has strength, durability, safety and capacity. It is designed to do a large work for the thresherman after his separator is laid away, thereby continuing the earning power of his engine far into the winter. The advent of the Husker-Shredder has brought many of the farmer's troubles to an end, and the long job of husking by hand is now crowded into a few days. The crop may be quickly marketed, and the increase in "results" by the saving of the corn fodder hay is wonderful. Corn hay has proven to be more profitable as a food for stock than either clover or timothy, and is rapidly appearing in the market in baled form. The Advance Husker-Shredder has a windstacker attached, which enables the farmer to carefully mow the corn hay away without the expense of the help needed for other hay crops. A feeder may be attached if desired, while the shelled corn is entirely removed from the stack and neatly sacked by a bagger attached. After leaving the husking rolls, the carrier delivers the corn ears to the wagon in marketable shape.

May Save Millions of Dollars!

Millions of dollars are annually going to waste in corn-raising states, owing to the fact that farmers have husked the standing corn, leaving the fodder in the field for their stock to run over, treading the most valuable portion underfoot. Corn hay may be had at very small cost, and produces more heat, more flesh, more and richer milk than does timothy or clover. It will pay you to see our sample machine, and talk the matter over.

DELIVERS FIRST SERMON

peror stamped his image upon the coin; the prince wrought his name in the temple porch; the artist carved his letters in the marble base; the herdsman stamped his brand upon his sheep and oxen. History tells us that in the city of Athens in Paul's day there were only 80,000 free citizens, while at the same time there were 400,000 servants. These servants, ranging from the lowest to the highest, were marked or tattooed in some way by their masters. This mark was significant. On the part of the servant, it was the mark of service, the mark of loyalty and the mark of obedience. On the part of the master, it was the mark of support, the mark of protection and the mark of "ownership."

There was still another characteristic of the servants' mark. History tells that it was usually visible; sometimes it was a circle on the palm of the hand; sometimes a letter on the wrist; sometimes a cross on the forehead, and sometimes the master's name was tattooed on the servants' shoulder.

So Paul, entering into the spirit and feeling of the people acquainted with this peculiar custom, feeling himself to be a servant of Almighty God, understanding that he was pledged to be loyal to the gospel while the eternal hills stand, enduring shipwreck and prisons and all persecutions, obeying God's call to go to Gentiles to preach salvation through Christ, clinging unswervingly to the principles of redemption which were marked out by a hand divine, hearing the promises of God's protection and support and especially comprehending that he had been bought by the precious blood of Christ, and was owned by the Great Jehovah, he penned that marvelous declaration: "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

But also under God's providence are found the marks of different service. Just as among the Grecian servants of antiquity, one carried the shield for his master; another drove his chariot; another kept his wealth; another wrote for her mistress, and another taught the children. So also among God's people "Every man according to his several ability."

So Christians bear the marks of their master and his life. But how can we stop here? This thought seems to open for us to night a still greater gospel; a more sublime concept; a yet diviner spirit when we consider that in the life of every Christian man and woman there are marks of similarity and points of likeness even to Jesus Christ, the great shepherd and leader of humanity.

But how can we this hour leave our text and this service without adding the thought: "That the Christian's mark" shall never fade nor grow old. Ours is a fading world for astronomers tell that away out yonder in space suns as large as our own are burning out power; stars are withdrawing their light and all things in our world are doomed to decay. But the Christian's mark shall never fade. This work upon the servant was some India ink which remained for life; no disease could erase it—only death. Death can erase the face and the form but it can never erase the Christian mark. While other things fade and perish, the Christian mark will abide forever—it is the white stone and the new name. "I bear in my body the works of the Lord Jesus."
