YOU AND GENOA'S WELFARE

Buy in Genoa. If all the people who live in Genoa would buy all their groceries, all their hats and caps, all their shoes and stockings, and every article of apparel, and every horse blanket, curry comb, halter, bridle and harness, every pin and needle, and all their paint, in fact, if everybody living in Genoa would buy every thing they had to buy, and could buy, in the city of Genoa, the town would prosper. There is nothing like being loyal to your town and if you are loyal to the town the town will be loyal to you!

If every body in Genoa would spend their money in Genoa, it would make the banks and business enterprises boom like a Green Bay tree. The volume of money would be greater in the banks and business houses than it has been within a half century. It would be the wonder of the age! Everybody would have money and there would be no moneyless people in Genoa. If everybody would patronize the industries in Genoa there would not be enough people in the town to do the work.

Gentle reader, did you ever stop to think what individual loyalty means to Genoa! It means greater business. It means that there will be no idle workers of any kind in the town. A few years ago Montgomery Ward & Co. increased the volume of their trade twenty millions of dollars. Some of that came out of Genoa. Don't send your dollars outside of Genoa, but keep them here, where they will give you a larger rate of interest and better returns every day in the week. Try it, and see if the volume of money will not make you an inflationist instead of a contractionist. It's the people that put the money in the town, and it is the people that can rob the town. Be loyal to the town.

Every year the banks and post-office and express companies tell many tales of money sent out of the town for articles that ought to be bought in Genoa. The tale is a long and sad one—and you, reader, are one of the guilty ones.

Be loyal to your town! Do not be guilty, any longer, of sending your money to a stranger who does not care a fig for you and your family, and wouldn't even contribute a smile to your happiness and your family's welfare.

Be loyal to your town and buy everything in Genoa.

OBITUARY

Richard McCormick was born in Ireland November 11, 1835

Richard McCormick was born in the town of Fore, County West Meath, Ireland, November 11, 1835, and passed away at his home in this city August 5, 1915. When a small boy his parents moved to County Caven, but soon returned to West Meath, where he explored the "nooks and crannies" and lakes of Old Ireland, of which he loved to tell in his later years.

He did not like the land laws of Ireland, and longing to be a land owner, he emigrated to America in 1856, coming in a sailing vessel. The ship was six weeks on the ocean, encountering a storm which took it to the West Indian Islands.

He arrived in Genoa August 20, going to the home of his uncle, James Merriman, former landlord of the Commercial Hotel. He was preceded to America by a brother, Michael, and an aunt, Ann Kiernan, (now deceased) Jas. R. Kiernan's mother.

He was married to Frances Wager September 24, 1862, and moved onto the Wager homestead where they resided until moving to Genoa March 4, 1897. Of this union there were three daughters and one son: Mrs. Anna Robinson, deceased; Mrs. Margaret Rowe, Ft. Benton, Mont., (who has resided with her father for three years, since the death of his wife); Mrs. Elizabeth Hoover, Genoa, and Owen R. of Minneapolis, Minn. Other immediate relatives surviving are a sister, Mrs. Mary Smith, of Cresco, Iowa; a half sister, Mrs. Julia Brien, of Greene, Iowa; half brother, Andrew McCormick, of Ireland; niece, Katherine Flynn, of Waverly, Iowa.

Mr. McCormick was closely associated with Democratic politics, being a delegate to state conventions several times and a member of the county central committee until his resignation at the last election on account of declining years.

The sympathy of the community is particularly extended to his daughter, Mrs. Rowe, who left her home in Montana to remain at the side of her father during his

KILLED AT DEKALB

George Shoop and M. F. Roach, in Auto, Hit by Fast Train

Another terrible grade crossing accident occurred at DeKalb at about 5:30 o'clock on Wednesday evening of last week when George Shoop, for many years a valued citizen of DeKalb, superintendent of the caretakers of the Normal school buildings, met instant death. M. F. Roach of the taxicab firm of Roache & Concide is at the hospital with a fracture at the base of the brain and a broken collar bone and other injuries.

At the first street crossing the taxicab occupied by the two men and driven by Mr. Roach waited for a westbound freight train which was passing. When the train had passed the gates were raised and the machine driven on to the track. But the gateman had failed to look down the track and see the passenger train coming from the west, it being late and running at high rate of speed. As the train was near the crossing the gateman saw it and started to again lower the gates, but not in time to stop the taxi which was hit squarely.

Mr. Roach is a native of Hampshire. Several years ago he married a Genoa school teacher, Miss Lyons.

With the ultimate aim of having a state aid highway between Chicago and Lake Geneva, Wis., via Elgin, officers of the Elgin Motor Club have started a campaign to prepare a good road from Elgin north to Lake Geneva, declining years, and his little grand-son, Richard Hoover, who was always his grandfather's constant companion.

Funeral services were held at St. Catherine's church Sunday afternoon, Rev. Fr. O'Brien officiating.

The following relatives from out of town were in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. Owen R. McCormick, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. V. F. Farniloe, Geneva; Mrs. Mary McCormick, a sister-in-law, Shell-rock, Iowa; Mrs. Mary Smith, Cresco, Iowa; Mrs. Katherine Flynn, Waverly, Iowa; T. W. Berry, Michigan; Will Anderson and wife, Kirkland; F. A. McCarty and wife, Elgin.

DEKALB BUSINESS MEN ALIVE

Will Build New Road as Inducement to Farmers to Trade in DeKalb—Aurora Blue Laws

DeKalb business men, alive to every advantage, have succeeded in getting favorable action on the proposition to open a new highway out of the little town of Clare which will make a short cut to one of the hard roads leading to that city. By so doing they hope to induce the farmers in that locality to go to DeKalb and trade. Up to this time this trade has gone to Sycamore and the merchants there are casting an anxious gaze in that direction. Good roads in these days largely determine the direction of travel. Distance is no longer so much of a consideration.

Warrants, it is announced, will be sworn out for a number of Aurora merchants who have been keeping stores open Sundays. The ordinance under which they are to be prosecuted was passed at the behest of Aurora barbers who wanted shaving stopped on Sunday and to accomplish this had to have a measure enacted forbidding labor of any kind on the first day of the week. Strictly enforced, it is declared, the law could be made to operate against cooking Sunday dinners and giving the automobile a Sunday morning bath.

Use of bicycles or motorcycles in the rural delivery service is prohibited by an order by Postmaster Burleson effective Jan. 1, 1916. In announcing his order Mr. Burleson holds that vehicles of these types do not have the carrying capacity needed for the parcel post service and do not afford necessary protection for mails in bad weather. The order will affect about 8,000 carriers who use bicycles or motorcycles.

While cutting hay near Belvidere, recently, Supt. Corvie of the poor farm discovered a prairie chicken's nest which contained 17 eggs and the mother bird had deserted the nest. He took the eggs to the poultry house and placed them under a setting hen which did not roam the prairies. The result is that this tame hen now has nine prairie chickens among her brood.

Mystery surrounds the disappearance and recovery of a six cylinder Knox touring car, belonging to C. H. Backus of Hampshire. The car disappeared during the night Wednesday. It was found three-quarters of mile outside Hampshire Thursday morning. It had evidently run into a tree and was slightly damaged.

Five Geneva girls, two of them high school graduates last June, have made application for positions as letter carriers for the Geneva post office, when the new service will be inaugurated October 1.

Jacob Haish, the veteran manufacturer and benefactor of DeKalb, has presented the woman who has faithfully taken care of Mrs. Haish for many years, with a house and lot.

The Geneva Commercial Club spent the week-end at Lake Geneva and Lake Delevan. There were 22 autos in line with 84 passengers.

The Boone county Fair at Belvidere will be held this year August 31 to September 3.

According to a late estimate the U. S. Census bureau gives DeKalb a population of 9,259.

JOHN DOWNING DEAD

Funeral will be Held at the M. E. Church Friday Afternoon at Two O'clock

John B. Downing passed away at his home in this city at 6:30 o'clock on Tuesday evening, Aug. 10, after a long illness of Bright's disease. Funeral services will be held at the home on Friday afternoon, Aug. 13, at 1:30 and at the M. E. church at 2:00.

For many years Mr. Downing conducted the blacksmith shop at the corner of Genoa street and Railroad Ave. He was a good mechanic, of a congenial nature and always had a pleasant greeting for the passer-by. His shop had been closed during the past several months on account of poor health.

BOY DRIVES HEIFER

Son of Joe Blundy Creates Sensation at Belvidere

Belvidere Republican: Autoists passing the farm of Joe Blundy, a couple of miles west on the river road report a spectacle seldom seen in this day and age of advancement—a Holstein heifer nearly full grown, hitched to a sulky and driven by a lad who will be in his teens for some years yet to come. The youngster has become so accustomed to driving the cow that when he passes people while out riding he is unconcerned as he would be were he driving a horse or riding a bicycle.

His name is Ralph Blundy. He is the same boy who last year created a sensation at the county fair by hitching up a calf and a dog to a little wagon and driving the team to the grounds. The reason for the lad pressing the cow into service is probably due to the fact that he has always wanted a pony. So when his father told him he could not have one, he decided to make the best of things and "break" in his calf. It was no sooner thought of than done, and though neighbors now consider it a common sight, many autoists make it a point to drive by the boy's house in the hope of seeing him on one of his frequent joy rides.

Ralph, is a son of Joe Blundy, former resident of Genoa.

Killed With Scythe

Little Robert Linley, aged ten years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Linley of Shabbona, ran out into a field near the Linley home last Thursday, directly into the path of a swinging scythe in the hands of his older brother and received a vicious gash across the face and head as he came suddenly through a clump of tall grass. The little fellow fell, covered with blood among the new mown hay at his mother's feet. With a cry of horror the brother threw down his scythe and picking up the little form ran to the house. A doctor was called but the little fellow died in a few minutes.

Eighty-two Years

On Friday, Aug. 6, Mrs. George Olmstead celebrated her 82nd birthday anniversary. It was a beautiful day, just the kind for such an occasion, and about twenty old friends and neighbors called to assist in the celebration. The guests came in autos, four at a time, at different times of the day, so as not to worry the aged hostess. It was a day in which one could live in the past, the old neighbors being free with their stories of years gone by. Before departing the guests were invited to partake of a delightful lunch, served by Mesdames E. H. Olmstead and L. P. Durham.

Mrs. W. J. Seymour visited her mother in Elgin last week.

THE OX-CART DAYS

Old Country School a Companion of the Ancient Vehicle

VERDICT OF GREAT EDUCATORS

Consolidated School Gives an Opportunity for Conserving the One Hundred Cents in the Dollar Spent for Education

This community is going to have a new school. The territory to be included in that community will depend upon the action of those who reside in the neighboring school districts. There seems to be an impression that this school will be for the benefit of district No. 1. So it will, but no more so than for all other districts included in the consolidation.

The person residing in the farthest corner of the territory involved will be entitled to just the same privileges as the person residing next door to the school building. It is also true that the board of education in district No. 1 started the ball rolling toward consolidation. The people of that district can, however, do no more than place itself on record for the consolidation when it comes to the actual petitioning. All other districts must act independently and of their own volition and we feel confident that when they thoroly understand just what consolidation stands for, there will be no doubt about the action they will take.

The state of Nebraska is one of the foremost states in consolidation. The editor recently wrote to A. O. Thomas, superintendent of the State of Nebraska department of public instruction to get his idea of the old district school and the consolidation plan, receiving the following reply:

August 4, 1915

Mr. C. D. Schoonmaker, Genoa, Illinois.

My dear Sir:— Your communication of the 30th ultimo is received. We are pleased to know that you are working on the plan of consolidation. We do not have our bulletin in shape to send out at the present time. We have done much work in Nebraska this year along the line of consolidation and have not seemed to need the bulletin especially.

In the first place our people are in favor of consolidation because it brings together larger groups of children, giving rise to the advantage of numbers in instruction; it gives greater spirit to the work and greater life to the community. This is the day and age of transportation. We do not hesitate to gather up the children now days and transport them to school; it is a strong moral safeguard; it overcomes tardiness and irregular attendance; it gives an opportunity for conserving the hundred cents in the dollar of the money spent for education; it insures better teaching; it gives an opportunity for the children in the rural places especially to receive the same educational advantages accorded to the pupils in the towns and cities.

May I say, Mr. Schoonmaker, that I am very glad to know of your interest in this proposition. The old school was a companion of the ox cart. The new day brings need for a new institution.

I regret that I have not something definite which would be of service to you. I can, however, wish you the highest possible success in your movement.

Very sincerely yours,

A. O. THOMAS.

Almost simultaneously with the launching of the movement in Genoa, the following editorial appeared in the Saturday evening Post:

"We suppose that there is no community in the United States that would not look with powerful displeasure on the man who was known to be the habit of swindling children out of their pennies; but hundreds of communities in the United States

NEW MAIL SERVICE

First Mail on Interurban Carried on Monday of this Week

On Monday of this week the first United States mail was carried on the Woodstock & Sycamore Traction Co.'s road, between Marengo, Genoa and Sycamore. This week the mail is carried only one trip a day. Mr. Ryan, the manager of the traction company, not satisfied with the service, called the chief mail clerk from Chicago to meet him in Genoa Tuesday and arrangements were made to carry the mail three round trips each day, as follows:

South bound—Leave Marengo at 8:15 a. m., 11:45 a. m. and 3:15 p. m.; leave Genoa 9:15 a. m., 12:45 p. m. and 4:15 p. m.; arrive in Sycamore at 9:45 a. m., 1:15 p. m. and 4:45 p. m.

North bound—Leave Sycamore at 10:00 a. m., 1:30 p. m. and 5:00 p. m.; leave Genoa at 10:30 a. m., 2:00 p. m. and 5:30 p. m.; arrive in Marengo 11:30 a. m., 3:00 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

There is no town in the country that will have any better mail service than Genoa, thanks to the energy of Manager Ryan. It should be said for the Woodstock & Sycamore Traction Co. that it will receive no more pay for the three round trips per day than for the one, but Mr. Ryan desires to give the people the best service possible and therefore asked for this change. He is leaving nothing undone to make this little stretch of road pay out. Here's hoping that she will be a winner, for if the road makes good, the towns along the line must certainly reap some benefit.

Northwestern to Lay Steel

Roadmaster Wm. White has announced that under his supervision eleven miles of track will be laid between Herbert and DeKalb, the work to be started sometime next month. New 30-pound rail is to be used entirely. Two years ago rail of the same weight was put in the greater part of the way between Belvidere and Henrietta. So when this new job is completed, practically the entire route between Belvidere and DeKalb will be covered by the heavy 30-pound stock, replacing the 72-pound rail. This heavier material will enable the largest of engines to run over the route in absolute safety. It is probable that a gang of seventy-five or more men will be brought to do the work, as a smaller number could not complete the work by the time it is wished for, that is before snow falls.

YOU press the button; We do the rest. If you have a kodak, take your films to Carmichael for developing and printing. Absolutely first-class work, and you will be informed as to errors in exposures. See our show window this week. L. E. Carmichael.

swindle children out of something much more precious than pennies, with never a blush. The educational gold brick, which our fathers celebrated, is palmed off year after year on a great number of country boys and girls.

"Not that our fathers' celebration was unjustified. A little, ill-equipped, one-teacher country school is much better than no school at all; but it remains today in many rural communities where it has no more business than an ox-cart would have as a pleasure vehicle. A string of little, old-fashioned, one-teacher country schools, with a course of studies not at all related to country life, in a rural district where many farmers own automobiles is an injustice to country youth.

"The consolidated school, graded, well housed, well equipped, with adequately paid teachers and a course of studies knit up to country life, is the farm's best asset."

THE ANNUAL PICNIC

Thursday, Aug. 19, Date of Big Doings at Kingston Park

JUDGE D. J. CARNES TO SPEAK

Kirkland Band to Furnish Music During Entire Day— Beautiful Natural Park will be Thronged by Old-Timers

The Northern Illinois Old Settlers' and DeKalb County Farmers' Picnic will be held at the Kingston township park on Thursday, Aug. 19, and plans are being made to entertain a monster crowd on that day. Judge D. J. Carnes of Sycamore will deliver the address and the Kirkland Band has been engaged to furnish the music. There will be amusements for old and young, all the stunts usually found at a large affair of this kind.

The Kingston park is one of the prettiest spots in DeKalb county, there being an abundance of shade, a clean river bank and a spring of pure running water. Take a dap off and enjoy this picnic.

MARRIED AT SYCAMORE

Miss Beulah Fenton Becomes Bride of South Bend Man

Mr. Claude Byers of South Bend, Ind., and Miss Beulah Marree Fenton of Genoa were married at Sycamore on Saturday, Aug. 7, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Rist of that city.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fenton of Genoa and has here resided all her life, with exception of four years spent at Jennings Seminary at Aurora, Ill. A kind look and a good word for everybody has made for her a community of friends who are now wishing her years of happiness.

Mr. Byers for several years has been in the employ of the Orange Judd Co. and while canvassing this country a year ago made many staunch friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Byers will be at home in South Bend after October 1.

Return of an Old Favorite

On Saturday evening, August 14, Bubb and Bennett's ever popular romantic drama "A Royal Slave" will be the offering at the Genoa opera house. Manager P. A. Quanstrong is to be congratulated on having booked them for the above date as it is an attraction of merit, and will be remembered as being one of the best that has ever appeared here. To judge from the favorable comment of those who witnessed the former production, and now signify their intention of attending a second time, the house will be packed. "A Royal Slave" has always been noted for the beauty and magnitude of its scenic equipment, and Mr. Bubb promises that this season's effort will surpass anything he has ever given us in the past.

The costuming of the bill as usual with 40 complete changes of wardrobe is very elaborate and something entirely out of the ordinary, special attention being called to the gowns worn by Miss Irene Solomon who is considered one of the best dressed women on the American stage. The play in itself is a dramatic treat, but in addition to this many catchy and novel vaudeville numbers are introduced, which alone are worth the price of admission. The cast embraces some very capable players including Mr. Warren Fabian, who has played the part of Agnola, the Slave over one thousand times in this country and Canada and whose excellent work has made him countless friends in this and other cities where he has appeared. Seats are now on sale at Carmichael's drug store.—Adv.

AIR FLEETS KILL 22

ZEPPELINS DROP BOMB ON TOWNS IN ENGLAND—ONE IS BLOWN UP.

RAID MADE ON BAVARIA

Allies Take Eight Lives in Reopening of Great War in Sky—Women and Children Are Slain by Exploding Missiles.

London, Aug. 11.—East coast towns of England and Scotland are passing a sleepless night in momentary expectation of a fresh invasion by German Zeppelin airships on a bomb-dropping expedition.

The anxiety is based partly on a report that five Zeppelins were seen flying past an island near the entrance to the Zuyder Zee toward Scotland on Monday and partly on knowledge that the "war of the air" has been reopened with greater vigor and more stupendous operations than ever experienced.

The first blows in the new campaign fell almost simultaneously on not only England, but Germany. A German air squadron raided the east coast of England and killed fourteen persons while dropping bombs for four hours on Tuesday. An allied aeroplane fleet raided Bavaria and killed eight civilians at Sankt Ingbert.

Zeppelin Blown Up in Fight.

After the raid in which they killed fourteen and injured fourteen civilians in England, which lasted from 8:30 o'clock Monday evening until 12:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, the Germans lost one of their airships. It is believed four or five big Zeppelins took part in the raid. One of them was attacked by gunfire on its way home and so seriously damaged that it fell into the sea. It was towed to Ostend, a Belgian port held by Germans, but there was attacked by allied aviators from Dunkirk, who are reported to have blown it to fragments.

The weather was bad when the German air squadron raided the east coast, but this did not seem to interfere with the flight of the invaders. A storm succeeded the thick weather, a fact that alleviated the anxiety of Britons, who heard the report that five more Zeppelins had passed Vlieland in a flight toward Scotland. Nevertheless many were frightened in consequence of the success of the raid of Monday night, which is described in an official report issued by the admiralty.

Greatest Raid of the War.

How many German aircraft participated is not revealed by the British admiralty, but from the fact that the expression "air squadron" is used in the official report it appears probable the raid was the greatest since the beginning of hostilities.

"A squadron of hostile airships visited the east coast last night and this morning between the hours of 8:30 p. m. and 12:30 a. m.," says the official British announcement. "Some fires were caused by the dropping of incendiary bombs, but these were quickly extinguished and only immaterial damage was done.

"The following casualties have been reported:

"Killed—One man, nine women and four children.

"Wounded—Five men, seven women and two children.

Air Battle at Ostend.

"One Zeppelin was seriously damaged by the gunfire of the land defenses and was reported later being towed into Ostend. She has since been subjected to continual attacks by aircraft from Dunkirk and has been under heavy fire, and it is now reported that after having her back broken and her rear compartments damaged she was completely destroyed by an explosion.

"The night was extremely dark and was accompanied by thick fog in places, which rendered night flying by aeroplanes very difficult.

"It is reported that Flight Sub-Lieut. R. Lord, who was one of the pilots sent up to engage the enemy, was killed on landing in the dark."

The Zeppelin destroyed as a result of the air battle is the first positively known to have been wrecked while on a mission of destruction to England. Recently one of Germany's $1,000,000 dirigibles was destroyed over Belgium by a British aviator, Reginald Warneford, who was killed a few days later on a French flying field.

Fifteenth Raid on England.

This air raid on the British coast, the fifteenth since the war began, increased the total number of victims from German air attacks on English towns to sixty-nine. A total of 207 persons have been wounded, accepting the British admiralty figures.

Berlin Bares Bavarian Raid.

Berlin, via London, Aug. 11.—An official communication issued today says:

"Monday forenoon from six to eight enemy aeroplanes attacked Zweibrücken and Sankt Ingbert, which are outside the military district. From fifteen to twenty bombs were dropped on Zweibrücken, causing unimportant damage. At Sankt Ingbert eight persons were killed and two wounded."

Canadian Flyers in England.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—A corps of Canadian aviators has reached England and been absorbed in the naval branch of the service, says a message received here. It is composed of the first men trained in the aviation school recently opened at Toronto.

T. GILBERT PEARSON

T. Gilbert Pearson is the secretary of the National Association of Audubon Societies and he has just been in Washington to call the attention of the department of justice to the fact that plumes of the egret are being smuggled into New York from Florida and other southern points in defiance of the law. If the offenders are caught there will be a dearth of aligrettes in New York next winter. In his personal appeal to the attorney general, Mr. Pearson told him that the parcel post was being used by the smugglers and that sometimes bundles of plumes were wrapped in oilcloth inside a bundle of cheap alligator hides and shipped by express.

YANKEES DEFEAT MEXICANS IN FIGHT ON RANCH

Twenty Bandits Killed by U. S. Troops and Rangers—Battle Near Norias, Tex., Lasted Two Hours.

Harlingen, Tex., Aug. 10.—Three American troopers and two Texas rangers wounded, 20 Mexican bandits killed and several other bandits wounded. This was the result of the two-hour battle at the King Ranch house near Norias, Tex., Sunday night, according to advices received by Chief of Police Oscar Morris of Harlingen.

The Mexican bandits who besieged the ranch and fired upon it continually for two hours numbered 60 men, according to Chief Morris, while the defending forces included eight United States soldiers, seven Texas rangers and a number of the ranch employees.

The soldiers and rangers formed part of a force that had been sent out to trail the bandit gang which has been committing depredations in Cameron county for more than a week. This force had been divided and that part which took refuge in the King ranch house had been compelled to retire when they came upon a stronger force of bandits.

Another part of the force arrived after the troopers and rangers had been firing through loopholes at the attacking Mexicans for two hours and the bandits retreated. The re-enforced soldiers and rangers immediately set out in pursuit of the fleeing Mexicans and Chief Morris said that he expected to hear of more fighting hourly.

BLAMES SIX FOR BOAT PLUNGE

Eastland Owners and Officers Named—True Bills Voted by Grand Jury at Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Six persons were named in three true bills voted by the state grand jury in the investigation of the Eastland disaster. One is a joint instrument against four officials of the St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship company, owners of the vessel, and two officers of the ship are named separately. The true bills against the owners charges manslaughter and that against the two officers alleges criminal carelessness. The men named are: George F. Arnold, president of the St. Joseph-Chicago Steamship company; William H. Hull, vice-president and general manager; W. C. Steele, secretary-treasurer; Ray W. Davis, assistant secretary-treasurer; Harry Pedersen, captain of the vessel, and Joseph M. Erickson, engineer of the ship.

WRECK FAST TRAIN; 2 KILLED

Unknown Persons Deliberately Cause Disaster on Pennsylvania Line East of Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 11.—Two trainmen were killed when the Pennsylvania railroad's fast passenger train running from St. Louis to New York went into an open switch and was wrecked a few miles east of Indianapolis. None of the passengers were injured seriously. The dead are: William H. Ervin, engineer, Indianapolis, and William Z. Henness, fireman, Indianapolis.

Deputy Coroner Wagner said that the lock on the switch had been broken, the lamp extinguished and the switch opened by some person with intent to cause the wreck.

Russians Repulse Teutons From Bausk, Courland—Petrograd Says Kaiser's Campaign in Baltic Has Failed.

Headquarters of the Austrian Army in Poland, Aug. 10.—The defeat of the Russians on Sunday in the fighting on the line between Lubartow and Miechow resulted in driving the troops apart, leaving a large gap between Russian troops fighting north of Lubartow, who led northeast across the Vievprz at Lessekowice, about twelve miles north of Lubartow, while those around Miechow fled northwest to reach the Vievprz by way of Baranow.

Russ Claim Victory.

London, Aug. 10.—While Vienna dispatches assert a breach 22 miles wide has been made in the Russian line between Lubartow and Baranow, in southern Poland, and Berlin reports the complete occupation of Praga, across the Vistula from Warsaw, and gains at all other points in Poland, analysis of reports indicates that the Russians have balanced the day's score by driving the Germans from Bausk, Courland.

This Russian victory is cited as of vast importance in that it not only halts the German drive toward Riga, and the outflanking movement planned there to make the Russian second line of defense untenable, but it also saves the armies which have retreated to Riga, and the vast war supplies and thousands of cattle and quantities of provisions removed there in connection with the Slav retreat in Poland.

Petrograd Optimistic.

Petrograd dispatches assert the Teutonic campaign in the Baltic region has completely failed and Von Buelow's northern army has fallen back to Mitau. This Russian victory is generally credited to the 600,000 fresh men, many of whom had had but one month's training before they were hurried for this point by the czar four days ago to stop the Teuton advance near the Baltic.

By FREDERICK WERNER.

International News Service Correspondent. Berlin, Aug. 7.—Ivangorod, the strong Polish fortress on the Vistula southeast of Warsaw, has fallen. Austro-German troops entered the city on Thursday, it was officially announced here.

The evacuation of Ivangorod was part of the general plan of Grand Duke Nicholas to withdraw his troops all along the line. The city is an important railway center. One line runs into Ivangorod from Warsaw, another from Novo Minsk, another from Brest-Litovsk and others from Radom, Lukow and Lublin.

Germans Occupy Lomza.

Berlin, Aug. 11.—The Russian fortified city of Lomza, which had been holding up the German advance across the Narow river, was occupied by the German troops. German forces under General von Flack, after a series of fierce night attacks, broke through the line of forts encircling Lomza at daybreak and occupied the city. Four of the forts were taken by storm.

Surging toward the second line Russian fortress of Brest Litovsk, 110 miles east of Warsaw, the Austro-German forces of Field Marshal von Mackensen and Archduke Josef Ferdinand are sweeping away all resistance at every point where the Russian rear guard makes a stand.

Evacuation of Vilna, capital of the government of Vilna, has been ordered by the Russian war office, it was officially announced at Petrograd. The evacuation has begun. The treasures of the great libraries and museums are being moved.

NYMPH OF WOODS CAUGHT

Sparta's Sheriff Wraps Girl of Mystery in Horse Blanket and Lodges Her in Jail.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 11.—After a week's search, Sheriff George Bass and Humane Officer George Manuel drove into Sparta with Sparta's mysterious nude wood nymph wrapped in a horse blanket. Crowds followed the party to the jail, where the nymph is being cared for by the sheriff's wife. The identity of the girl is a mystery and she refuses to talk. She meets all questions with a laugh and seems to care not at all that she has been cavorting about through Monroe county woods for nearly a fortnight clad only in a lace nightcap trimmed with a blue ribbon. The nymph is a decided blonde and appears to be about twenty-five years old. Beyond admitting she had been in La Crosse and that this city might be her home, she refuses to answer any questions.

TWO DIE IN AUTO RACE HELD AT DES MOINES, IA

Joe Cooper, Driver, and Keller, Mechanic, Fatally Injured in Contest Won by Mulford.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 9.—As 7,000 persons packed the grandstand on the new one-mile saucer speedway witnessing the 300-mile auto derby that marked its dedication, they saw Joe Cooper shoot around the east end of the bowl at a speed of 100 miles an hour in his Sebring. The next instant the machine was catapulted off the rim of the saucer, dropped on the ground 20 feet below, and carried by the terrific momentum at which it was traveling, plowed through the dirt for 40 feet under the seats on which they were standing.

The car was upside down when it came to a stop. Cooper and Louis Piel, his mechanic, were pinned beneath it.

Cooper was dead when taken from the twisted body. Piel was carried to a hospital unconscious and may live. With 60 miles left to go, "Billy" Chandler blew a tire and his Deussen crashed through the wire fence at the "pole" and turned turtle. Chandler was picked up for dead but was revived.

His mechanic, Maurice Keller, died at the hospital at 8:20 p. m. The doctors say Chandler will recover.

The 300-mile derby, a fight all the way between Ralph De Palma, Ralph Mulford and Eddie O'Donnell, was won by Mulford, although a dispute arose among the judges and officials as to the winner.

For the greater part of the race the speed slightly exceeded 85 miles, while at times De Palma, Mulford and O'Donnell struck a 90 and 94-mile gait. Mulford's average was 86.2 miles an hour.

The official time and the order in which the cars finished follow:

Table with columns: Driver, Time, Average. Mulford, Deussenberg, 3:27:22, 86.2; De Palma, Stutz, 3:28:52, 85.2; O'Donnell, Deussenberg, 3:33:04, 84.2.

The Results at Chicago. Driver Time Average. Resta 58:45 102.85; Cooper 59:39 101.41; Lurman 61:22 98.63; Oldfield Flagged.

Speedway Park, Chicago, Aug. 9.—Darlo Resta won the world's 100-mile rest championship by driving his French Peugeot 100 miles at an average speed of 102.8 miles per hour. His time was 58 minutes and 45 seconds.

Earl Cooper, in an American Stutz, roared across the tape only 45 seconds behind Resta, with a record for the century of 101.41 miles an hour.

United States Prosecutors Through With Illinois Election Frauds—Find Irregularities.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The department of justice has approved the suggestion of District Attorney Charles A. Karch of the eastern district of Illinois that further proceedings on the alleged election frauds in the Danville congressional district be dropped. COMMANDER M'NAMEE WIRES PLEA FOR AID AS MOBS RADE AT VERA CRUZ.

DEATH TO ALL FOREIGNERS

President, Facing Problem of Immigrant Clash With Carranza, Cuts Short Vacation to Return to Washington in Crisis.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The situation in Mexico took a new and startling turn on Tuesday, and it is believed there is a strong probability a clash between the United States and Carranza is imminent.

The developments of the day were:

1. Commander McNamee, in command of the naval forces of the east coast, reported that mobs in Vera Cruz were being incited to murder foreigners, and that the situation was extremely serious. He asked that two battleships be sent to him at once.

2. In response to his request, the battleships Louisiana and New Hampshire sailed last night from Newport, R. I., for Vera Cruz. The gunboat Marietta also has been ordered from Progresso to Vera Cruz. It is understood also that the gunboats Wheeling and Machias, which are on the Mexican coast, have been ordered there.

3. President Wilson has decided to cut short his vacation in Cornish, N. H., and return to Washington at once.

4. Dr. Juan de Ortega, Guatemalan minister to Mexico, who was ordered expelled by Carranza, was taken on board the gunboat Sacramento at Vera Cruz for safety. His wife and daughter are with him. They will be brought to the United States.

5. The navy department hurriedly prepared plans to divert from Haiti some of the marines and ships which are now there. This will be done if the situation at Vera Cruz becomes more critical.

6. Announcement was made that more troops will be sent to the Mexican border at once.

7. Secretary Lansing left Washington at midnight for New York, where the conference of the Pan-American diplomats on the Mexican situation will be resumed.

8. Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, sent in a report on his conferences with General Villa. The rebel leader is said to have agreed to the demands made on him.

The orders for the sailing of the Louisiana and the New Hampshire were withheld until late. On receipt of the report from Commander McNamee, Admiral Benson, acting secretary of the navy, ordered the commanders of the two battleships to prepare to sail. He then conferred with Secretary Lansing.

The point was raised that the news of the departure of the war vessels might cause a general uprising against foreigners in Mexico, and it was decided to put the question up to President Wilson. A long code message was prepared and sent to Cornish. Presumably the president favored sending the battleships.

The text of Commander McNamee's report was not given out, but it was learned from both departments that he described conditions as causing intense fear of serious trouble among all foreigners in Vera Cruz. He said there were street parades, gatherings of mobs and incendiary speeches, with threats against foreigners.

The indictment culminates an investigation by the federal authorities.

NO IDEA What Caused the Trouble. "I always drank coffee with the rest of the family, for it seemed as if there was nothing for breakfast if we did not have it on the table.

"I had been troubled for some time with my heart, which did not feel right. This trouble grew worse steadily.

"Sometimes it would beat fast, and at other times very slowly, so that I would hardly be able to do work for an hour or two after breakfast, and if I walked up a hill, it gave me a severe pain.

"I had no idea of what the trouble was until a friend suggested that perhaps it might be coffee drinking. I tried leaving off the coffee and began drinking Postum. The change came quickly. I am glad to say that I am now entirely free from heart trouble and attribute the relief to leaving off coffee and the use of Postum.

"A number of my friends have abandoned coffee and have taken up Postum, which they are using steadily. There are some people that make Postum very weak and tasteless, but if made according to directions, it is a very delicious beverage." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum comes in two forms: Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup. "There's a Reason" for Postum. —sold by Grocers.

MRS. MABEN WAS MADE WELL

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Wants Other Suffering Women To Know It.

Murfreesboro, Tenn. — "I have wanted to write to you for a long time to tell you what your wonderful remedies have done for me. I was a sufferer from female weakness and displacement and I would have such tired, worn out feelings, sick headaches and dizzy spells. Doctors did me no good so I tried the Lydia E. Pinkham Remedies — Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash. I am now well and strong and can do all my own work. I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and want other suffering women to know about it." — Mrs. H. E. MABEN, 211 S. Spring St., Murfreesboro, Tenn.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for nearly forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Same Thing.

Hearing a noise at the kitchen entrance, the man of the house slipped quietly to the rear door and suddenly opened it. The grocer's delivery boy was there with a basket containing a dozen eggs, a pound of butter and some Roquefort cheese.

"Oh, it's you, is it, Billy?" said the man. "My wife is always afraid when she hears a noise here, especially after it begins to grow dark. She thinks it's a robber."

"Well, she needn't change her mind on my account," gloomily responded the grocer's boy, handing over the goods and presenting the bill, which called for $1.87. — Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

A Last Resort.

Mr. Tompkins was obliged to stop over night at a small country hotel, says Harper's Magazine. He was shown to his room by the one boy the place afforded, a colored lad.

"I am glad there's a rope here in case of fire," commented Mr. Tompkins as he surveyed the room, "but what's the idea of putting a Bible in the room in such a prominent place?"

"Dat am intended for use san," replied the boy, "in case de fire am too far advanced for yo' to make yo' escape, sah."

But a man never realizes what fool ideas he has until after he builds a house according to his own plans.

He Was Heap Careful.

Said a western mining man at the Astor hotel in New York city the other day, according to the Times: "We have a bachelors' mess in the mining camp where I'm located, and we usually have a Chinaman to do the cooking. Some of the Orientals are fine cooks, after they get over a few of the peculiar ideas they have imbibed from their own country's oddities in the culinary line.

"Not long ago we got a new Chinaman as cook. A couple of days later one of the fellows got a pedigreed Irish terrier pup given to him—a real dog. My friend had to go up to one of the mines that afternoon, and he turned the puppy over to the new Chinaman. 'You be mighty careful of this dog,' he said to the cook. 'Me be heap careful,' was the answer.

"That night, at dinner, the new Chinaman brought on, with great ceremony, a covered dish.

"'Me heap careful,' he remarked, as, with a smile of pride, he removed the cover.

"'Underneath was the pedigreed pup, neatly cooked in the best Chinese style.'"

WEIGHING AND RECORDING COW'S MILK

Holsteins and Guernseys on a Wisconsin Dairy Farm.

(By R. W. LATTI, New Mexico Experiment Station.)

Efficiency is the demand of the times and records of production are the first step in a study of efficiency. It pays to know what any producing factor in an industry is doing. Weighing and recording a cow's milk requires only a few seconds, and will give new interest to the work. Butter-fat tests should be made at regular intervals, as once a month. In taking a sample of a cow's milk for a butter-fat test, the following factors should be borne in mind, as causing variation in the test:

Night's and morning's milk commonly vary in richness.

The first milk drawn, the middle milk, and the strappings all test different.

The milk tests lower when the cow is fresh, and goes higher as she falls off in milk.

Abnormal weather, or other environmental, nervous, or health conditions.

Unexplainable and irregular variations from day to day.

Age of animal, the mature cow's milk testing more than a heifer's.

Breed has a marked influence on the test, but individually causes greater variations. These influences remain fixed, however, and each cow has a normal individual fat-test, and this cannot be changed by feeding or management.

The following rules should be observed in sampling a cow's milk for a butter-fat test:

Select a period of normal feed, weather and general conditions.

With all of the milking in one vessel, pour back and forth between pails, three or four times.

Put a small portion in a clean, tightly-sealed bottle, with some preservative, as a corrosive sublimate tablet, to keep the sample from souring.

Repeat this with four or six successive milkings, adding an amount to the sample in proportion to the amount of milk in each milking. After each addition to this composite sample, whirl the sample bottle around till all the cream which has stuck to the sides of the bottle is thoroughly mixed into the milk again. Keep the sample in a cool, dry place. Two ounces of milk is enough for a fat-test in duplicate.

Posted an invitation to Chicken Thieves.

CHICKEN HOUSE TO BE BURGLAR PROOF

Victimized Owner Has Invited All the Thieves to Attend Cornerstone Laying.

Moultrie, Ga.—A granite chicken house, double-locked, double-barred and fixed with an electric burglar alarm, will be built here soon by C. R. Atwater. He has posted on his front gate an invitation to all chicken thieves in the neighborhood to attend the laying of the cornerstone and inspect the plans of the new "coop."

This invitation is a defiance. He intends to build his new chicken house so carefully that it shall be absolutely proof against burglars.

Let them come and look, if they choose, and learn his plan thoroughly. When all the double locks and double bars and electric alarms are in place he defies any burglar to break in.

For the time being this vault will be the habitat of one lone hen, being all that is left of Mr. Atwater's brood.

One by one the others have been stolen.

This persistent theft determined him to build a granite chicken coop and equip it as though precious gold were stored within. The laying of the cornerstone will be attended with unusual ceremony.

SHOT AFTER 50-YEAR FEUD

Boy is Wounded in Head With a Rifle Bullet as a Result of Aged Quarrel.

Darby, Pa.—Charged with shooting ten-year-old Paul King of Seventy-first near Woodland avenue in the eye with a rifle, Edward Sunquest, seventeen, of North Front street, was held under $500 bail for court by Justice of the Peace Harry Schuyler.

According to the evidence, the shooting and the arrest are the result of a fifty-year-old feud that has been waged by the Darby boys on the west side of Cobb's creek and the "Paschallvillers," on the Philadelphia side of the creek. Last Monday a "challenge" was sent over by the Philadelphia boys, which was promptly accepted, and soon stones, bricks and other missiles were hurled through the air.

According to some of the Darby boys, a colored youth appeared with the Philadelphia boys, armed with a shotgun, and fired several shots at the Darby boys, but the leaden pellets few over their heads. Learning this, Sunquest got his rifle and fired one shot, which struck the King boy below the right eye, lodging at the base of the brain. He fell unconscious and was carried home. An X-ray picture has shown the exact location of the bullet, broken into three parts, but it is so closely imbedded in the boy's head that the doctors cannot operate.

It is expected that this incident will put an end to the fighting for a time at least.

Hagerstown, Md.—While engaged in tearing down an old barn on the farm of Charles E. Viris of Weaverston, workmen discovered a tin can containing over $1,200 in bank notes. HONEY IS LOOKED UPON AS A LUXURY

Every Farm should Have Complement of From One to Half Dozen Hives of Bees.

Honey is looked upon too often as a luxury. It is true that honey, especially comb honey, is a delicacy in that it takes the place of jam and jelly. In Europe, however, honey is a household article and is used to a considerable extent to replace sugar in cookery. The claim is made that it is a comparatively simple matter to substitute honey for sugar or molasses in many recipes and that the resulting flavor is often novel and pleasing. Iceing made with honey instead of sugar will keep soft and fresh for months, and cakes, especially those in which butter is not used, have been kept fresh for several months.

The United States department of agriculture has made a rather extensive investigation concerning the use of honey, and has just published Farmers' Bulletin 653, Honey and Its Uses in the Home, which may be secured for the asking. This bulletin not only contains much general information concerning honey, its forms, method of making and keeping, but also contains many recipes in which it constitutes an important ingredient.

Comb honey is practically certain to be pure because the processes by which it is adulterated cost more than they will save. Formerly there was a very prevalent idea that extracted honey, that is, honey removed from the comb, was often adulterated. However, recent legislation regarding adulterating food materials has been such that very little, if any, adulterated honey finds its way to market.

It is not necessary, however, for farmers to depend on buying honey, because every farm should have its complement of from one to a half-dozen hives of bees.

POISON CUTWORMS IN GARDEN PATCH

Kansas Mixture Scattered Around Infested Areas Will Prove Quite Effective.

(By A. G. RUGGLES, Minnesota Experiment Station.)

The cutworm will get your garden truck if you don't watch out. If you haven't fall-plowed, you may successfully fight the pests by the use of poison.

A slightly different formula from the old-fashioned poisoned bran mash was found very effective against grasshoppers in Kansas in 1912. In 1914, this mixture was very successfully used against crickets, army worms and cutworms.

The formula for the Kansas mixture is as follows: Bran, 1 pound; paris green, 1 ounce; sirup, ¼ pint; orange or lemon, ¼ ounce; water, 1½ pints.

Mix the bran and paris green separately while dry. Squeeze the juice of the orange or lemon into the water, grating the peeling and pulp, and adding this also to the water. Dissolve the sirup in this mixture and wet the poisoned bran, stirring thoroughly. This mash is scattered around the infested areas.

LITTLE ESSENTIALS FOR THE DAIRYMAN

Many Cows Being Deceived by Man—Cardinal Factors in Dairy Cleanliness.

(By J. M. BENNINGTON.)

Lucky is the man who leads in quality.

The important part of milking is to get it all.

The man and the cow are the twins of the dairy business.

There are as many cows being deceived by men as there are men being deceived by cows.

There is some affinity between a good dairyman and a good cow.

By co-operation with the dairy cows men can achieve wonderful results on the farm.

More fresh air and less "hot air" are needed in the dairy business.

Every shiver of the cow shakes dollars out of her owner's pockets.

There is good money in raising good cows to sell.

Put every acre of land to work. Idle acres like dry cows, eat up the profits.

Common sense, flavored with love for the cow, will insure success in the dairy business.

Sunlight, fresh air and hot water are cardinal factors in cleanliness.

Close cropping of pastures is very unprofitable.

A good dairy cow must be intelligent, courageous and gentle.

Great lung capacity is essential to high production.

A box stall should be part of the furniture of every well-regulated cow stable.

Every dollar, every effort, spent in soil improvement will bring large and compounding interest.

The easiest way to prevent disease is to remove the cause.

For the land's sake, and the improvement of the ration, grow plenty of clover and alfalfa.

NEGLECT WILL SOON DEVASTATE ORCHARD

Thorough Cultivation is Needed, but It Must Stop in Time to Give Wood a Chance.

When you are pushing the young orchard for growth it needs thorough cultivation, but it should stop in July in order to give the wood a chance to ripen before fall.

Rub off the water sprouts in the center of the tree and do not allow them to grow large enough to be pruned.

Look out for the curculio on the plum and peach trees. Jar them off on sheets and be sure to burn every one.

If you made the mistake of not pruning your grapevines last winter let them alone now, as bleeding would be sure to follow the knife at this season.

If you can arrange to spray just as the petals of the buds are well formed you can save the bees, as a great many are killed by spraying just as the buds are blooming.

Your trees may look clean and healthy, but that is no reason why they should not receive careful attention this fall, and next spring as well.

Neglect will soon destroy an orchard.

Fresh Eggs One Year Old

STRANGE, but literally true. MORNING GLORY Egg Preservative will keep eggs fresh and sweet for an indefinite length of time in any climate or temperature.

MORNING GLORY is purely vegetable in liquid form, and is applied with the hands. No brush or dipping. A child can treat 1,000 eggs with MORNING GLORY in twenty minutes. None of the preservative enters the egg. Pores of the shell are hermetically sealed and the egg retains its natural appearance, and can be transported without shrinkage or deterioration.

Until this wonderful discovery fresh eggs in season less reported by the U. S. Agricultural Department was $50,000,000 annually. Due to application in transportation. Think of it! Fifty millions of dollars that egg raisers of the United States can now save and do without cold storage outfits.

The use of MORNING GLORY enables the producer to have fresh eggs for home consumption all the year round, and the surplus eggs can be sold at the price of new laid eggs.

After many exhaustive tests, lasting from three months to nearly two years, and subjecting fresh eggs to a package and then cold temperatures, the eggs were broken and found to be fresh and sweet. The letter reproduced at the left is only one of many testimonials.

After six months test... your preservative is genuine. Alfred W. McCann, Pure Food Expert New York Globe, March 20th, 1915.

Canada is Calling You to her Rich Wheat Lands

She extends to Americans a hearty invitation to settle on her FREE Homestead lands of 160 acres each or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

This year wheat is higher but Canadian land just as cheap, so the opportunity is more attractive than ever. Canada wants you to help to feed the world by tilling some of her soil—land similar to that which during many years has averaged 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Think what you can make with wheat around $1 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming is fully as profitable an industry as grain growing.

The Government this year is asking farmers to put increased acreage into grain. Military service is not compulsory in Canada. There is no conscription and no war tax on lands. The climate is healthful and agreeable, railway facilities excellent, good schools and churches convenient. Write for literature and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to

So much pressure is being brought to bear on Frank O. Lowden that he will no doubt become a Republican candidate for governor. Many of those who followed the Progressive movement are out for him while those high up in the councils of the Republican party are enthusiastic in their approval.

Aside from manufacturing automobiles and conducting several philanthropic schemes, Henry Ford is about to inaugurate a campaign against the cigaret and his influence in this direction will be felt throughout the United States. At least 15,000 men will be brought to his way of thinking and these are the men in his employ. If these fifteen thousand follow Mr. Ford's example and enter the fight (which they should do) the cigaret industry will receive a stinging slap.

In commuting Leo Frank's death sentence to life imprisonment Governor Slaton of Georgia performed an act of heroism greater than that of the soldier who stands in the path of the enemy's bullet in battle. By the act he not only places his very life in jeopardy, but makes himself practically a recluse for months to come or perhaps for life if he continues to reside in the state of Georgia. Owing to the doubt expressed by several judges in regard to Frank's guilt, Governor Slaton could do no less than commute the man's sentence. In years to come the people of Georgia may have occasion to regret their present attitude and remember their governor as a man who was not afraid to follow the dictates of his conscience.

The murder of Warden Allen's wife at Joliet Sunday by a "trustee" should by no means discourage the working of the "honor system," but it teaches a lesson which is as emphatic as it is terrible. It is one thing to trust a bunch of prisoners on the highway under nominal guard, but another to leave a negro or any other convict as a servant for a beautiful woman. It shows plainly that in a prison the beast in the man develops faster than the mental attitude. It is well to treat convicts as human beings but one must not lose sight of the fact that a man who is imprisoned for murder or manslaughter is largely an animal. The murder of Mrs. Allen was not only revolting in the act itself, but deplorable in that she was a friend of the inmates of the prison and brought to bear all the influence she could muster for bettering the conditions under which they existed. She was indeed a martyr.

Horse Races in Genoa

Some good horse races will be held at the Genoa Driving Park on Saturday, July 3. As the fourth of July comes on Sunday this will be an excellent opportunity to celebrate. A big field of horses will be entered in races as follows: 2:17 pace, purse $50.00; 2:25 trot, purse $50.00; 2:40 pace, purse $40.00; 3:00 trot, purse $15.00; Running race, purse $10.00. Horses from Belvidere, DeKalb, Elgin and Marengo will be entered. Dan Hohm of Sycamore will act as official starter.

Field and Patterson are oiling the highway east of Genoa this week, from the corporation line to the Wing school house. This same stretch of road was oiled last year and the result was decidedly gratifying to those who traveled that way.

Dr. Hemenway placed on the editor's desk this week a mess of new potatoes which surely take the prize, averaging eight inches in circumference. They are the early Ohio variety. He also left a box of Kellogg's Prize strawberries, the most delicious and largest berries seen this season. The doctor is now picking berries for the market from a patch covering nearly an acre, and states that right now is the time to place orders for berries for canning. He has several varieties, all of them being excellent. C. E. Adams also brought in a sack of new potatoes which are far ahead of the average in this community.

The monster maple trees on Main street, between Sycamore and Locust, were trimmed this week. The foliage had become so dense that the sun never reached the road, resulting in a muddy condition most of the time.

W. H. Snow, formerly of Genoa, proprietor of the Key Club which was recently raided in Elgin, has purchased a saloon on Broadway in Aurora. He still retains a lease on a building in Elgin, there being considerable doubt about Elgin going dry again next spring.

Five Italians who have been working on the railroads in this city left Tuesday for Italy to join the army in that country. The boys are leaving of their own volition and seem pleased over the prospect, rather than apprehensive.

Jas. R. Kiernan and John Gahl shipped a car load of fat steers to Chicago Tuesday night. It was a fine bunch of cattle and will bring oodles of money to the owners. All is not gold that glitters, however, and all money brought in by the sale of fat cattle is not velvet. It costs considerable to get a bunch of steers into condition for the market. The man who knows how, gets a satisfying profit usually, if the market holds up. One who is not wise to many little details of the business can just as easily drop a roll of money. Kiernan and Gahl are rated as very successful feeders. They shipped a car of hogs last week.

There were some doings in the corn fields during the first of the present week, the rains having at last ceased. It will be necessary to replant many acres; however, if the weather will now only continue warm there is a chance for some kind of a yield of corn. Northern Illinois has never known a failure of crops, but if we get anything like an average yield this fall it will depend upon the fall weather.

FORDHAM FOR LOWDEN

Former Democrat and Progressive Candidate for State Senator

H. L. Fordham, cashier of the Union State Bank of Dixon, former democrat and in the 1912 campaign prominent in the progressive party, and last fall a candidate for state senator on the progressive ticket, Monday came out strongly in favor of the nomination of Colonel Frank O. Lowden of Ogle county as the republican candidate for governor next year. In an interview he said: "If Colonel Lowden becomes a candidate for governor he has my unqualified support. I have been a democrat all my life until the 1912 campaign came on. In 1914 I had the honor of being the progressive party candidate for state senator from this senatorial district.

"It now looks as though the movement as a party movement has failed and as I see no hope in the democratic party for the things I would like to see enacted into law I must turn to the great republican party to help carry out the ideals of good citizenship that I cherish."

ART BEDSTEAD

The Bed Room

"Blessings on him who invented sleep."

When we realize the number of hours of our lives that we spend in sleep, we should study more to make the place of our so-doing attractive and congenial.

The Bed Room is the most intimate and personal room in the house; in it should be gathered all our own little, individual belongings and the character of the room should reflect that of its occupant.

As we all differ in age, tastes or requirements, so each room demands its special treatment; and we would do well to consider these essentials more carefully.

Consider the individual; make your daughter's room dainty, refined and charming; your son's room simple, quiet and manly; your own room dignified, comfortable and restful; and above all, secure an artistic and harmonious sequence of coloring in adjacent rooms.

So shall your dreams be sweet and your waking vision pleasant. This week we feature a special display of Art Colonial Bedsteads in the New Wood Finishes and Brass.

TROOPS HALT MOB

GOV. SLATON OF GEORGIA MEN-ACED BY RIOTERS AFTER HE SAVES FRANK FROM DEATH.

MARTIAL LAW AT ATLANTA

Executive's Mansion Surrounded by Angry Crowd—Soldiers Are Stoned When They Attempt to Disperse Them at Point of Bayonet.

Atlanta, Ga., June 22.—Bayonets fixed, a khaki-clad battalion of Georgia's National Guard surrounds the home of Gov. John M. Slaton, standing off a mob of thousands which is crying for the governor's blood.

The entire Fifth regiment was called out. Atlanta itself, it is expected, soon will be placed under martial law.

The governor proclaimed martial law at exactly eleven o'clock and by shortly after midnight the crowd was gradually being dispersed. There was no firing.

Following are the soldiers more seriously hurt:

- Lieut. Arnold Parker. Major Catron. Private Popper.

The first troopers reached the estate of Governor Slaton, six miles from Atlanta, at eleven o'clock Monday night. Word had been sent to the executive by telephone that a mob of seven to ten thousand was descending upon his home, shouting for vengeance for little Mary Phagan, for whose murder Leo M. Frank was to have paid the penalty on the gallows on Monday but for Slaton's intercession.

Troops Disperse Mobs.

Governor Slaton immediately ordered out the troops and proclaimed martial law for a distance of half a mile on each side of his house. The entire Fifth regiment was called to arms. One battalion was rushed in automobiles to the governor's country home. The crowd had a long start on the troopers, and more than seven hundred were in front of the governor's gates when the militiamen dashed up.

Bayonets fixed, the troops began to move forward in a circle, of which the governor's mansion was the center. Muttering, the mob gave way.

On the porch, despite the pleas of his wife and friends, the bright moonlight sharply outlining the white of his linen, stood Governor Slaton, unafraid in the face of mob violence.

Staunchly he stood out, a target, the cries of the mob beating in his ears: "Give us Slaton. Give us Georgia's traitor governor."

He wanted to address the crowd, but his wife and friends dissuaded him.

At first the mob outside rapidly retreated before the steel of the soldiers. Then it re-formed. Several hundred gathered near a pile of bricks began to bombard the troops with the heavy missiles.

A brick struck and felled Lieutenant Parker. He fell to the ground, seriously if not fatally injured. Other soldiers were struck, and some painfully injured.

The troops swept forward, prodding the ranks of the rioters with their bayonets.

This angered the mob, and it kept up its attitude of defiance.

Frank's death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Slaton. Announcement of the governor's decision came several hours after Frank had been taken secretly from the jail here and hurried to the state prison farm at Milledgeville. Frank was sentenced to be hanged here today for the murder of Mary Phagan in April, 1913.

"It was a plain case of duty as I saw it," said Gov. John M. Slaton, discussing his action in commuting Leo M. Frank's sentence. "If I had failed to commute Frank's sentence I would have been guilty of murder, as I see it. Of course, I care for the public approbation," he continued, in explaining his course, "but I could not have that man's blood on my hands under the circumstances."

Governor Slaton, who commuted the sentence of Leo M. Frank, was hanged in effigy at Marietta, Ga. A life-sized dummy strung up to a telegraph pole bore an inscription, "John M. Slaton, Georgia's traitor governor." Mary Phagan, the victim of the pencil factory murder, formerly resided at Marietta.

TEUTONS SHELL ITALY COAST

Austrian Torpedo Boat Bombs Monopoli—Naval Planes Damage Stations at Bari and Brindisi.

London, June 23.—News of the successful bombardment of Monopoli, Department of the Puglie, in southeastern Italy, by an Austrian torpedo boat and of the damaging of the railway stations at Bari and Brindisi by Austrian naval aeroplanes is contained in the official statement issued in Vienna.

Tank and harbor buildings in Monopoli were damaged by the fire from shells from the Austrian torpedo boat. The Italian minister of marine announced that reports that the Austrians had established a submarine base off the southwest coast of Italy had been confirmed.

In the Isonzo region the Austrians have suffered immense losses in successive onslaughts against the Italian positions north of Gorizia. The Italian losses were also heavy. The Austrians failed to retake an inch of ground.

JOLIET WARDEN'S WIFE MURDERED IN PRISON

Slayer Attacked Mrs. Edmund M. Allen and Then Set Fire to Bed—Husband Was Away.

Joliet, Ill., June 21.—Mrs. Edmund M. Allen, wife of the warden, was murdered in her bedroom on the third floor of the administration building of the state penitentiary at Joliet early Sunday morning.

It is believed that an attempt was made to attack Mrs. Allen before she was struck down. Then, when she was either dead or unconscious, her body was placed on the bed, a quantity of wood alcohol poured over it, and the bedclothes ignited.

The crime was accomplished within a remarkably short space of time, as the electric buzzer, by which Mrs. Allen made her calls for the convict who acted as house servant in the warden's private quarters, had sounded but a few minutes before two other convicts, who had not been able to find the houseman, made their way to the third floor of the building to answer the call, and found smoke emptying into the hall and the room aflame.

Warden Allen left Joliet for a ten-day visit to West Baden, and Mrs. Allen was to have joined him there. There were but few of the prisoners who knew of the warden's absence, and this fact may aid in the solution of the crime.

Since becoming warden of the penitentiary, a place his father held years ago, Allen has attracted national attention by his devotion to the policy of greater freedom for the convicts in his charge.

Seventeen hundred convicts, at a given signal, made a rush in an effort to drag "Chicken Joe" Campbell, negro convict, suspected of the murder of Mrs. Allen, from his cell and lynch him. The prisoners, shouting their demand that Campbell be turned over to them, made a concerted attack as they were being marched out of the prison dining hall. The guards drove the convicts back.

U. S. HINT STOPPED JAP ARMY

Washington Reported to Have Opposed Landing of 300,000 Japanese Troops in Europe.

The Hague, June 23.—The Handelsblad says today Japan was prevented from sending 300,000 troops to Europe as the result of an unofficial hint to Great Britain from Washington that such an expedition would be undesirable.

The newspaper declares a Japanese army of that strength was landed in Manchuria, where it was exercising preparatory to departure for the European battlefield, but that Great Britain, after receiving the intimation from the United States, informed Tokyo that she was "sorry, but under American pressure, must request that the Japanese government do nothing further concerning the dispatch of an expeditionary corps to Europe."

"After this," the Handelsblad concludes, "the Japanese army disappeared from Manchuria, probably much to the relief of Great Britain, which has never desired Japanese participation in the fighting of Europe."

THAW BEGINS NEW BATTLE

Slayer of Stanford White in Fourth Attempt to Gain His Liberty—Jury Is Chosen.

New York, June 23.—Harry K. Thaw's fourth legal effort to gain his freedom was called for judgment in the superior court before Justice Peter B. Hendrick. A jury of substantial looking business men, which is to collaborate with Justice Hendrick upon the question whether the murderer of Stanford White is—not was—sane or insane, was chosen. It will be for Justice Hendrick to decide. The jury is an auxiliary and advisory body merely. The trial is expected to consume not less than two weeks.

TAGGART IS INDICTED

INDIANAPOLIS MAYOR AND 125 OTHERS ALSO CHARGED WITH POLL FRAUDS.

ACTION IS SURPRISE TO ALL

Men Prominent in City and Political Affairs Included in Charges of Corruption at Election—Taggart and Bell Give Bond.

Indianapolis, June 23.—Thomas Taggart, Democratic national committee man for Indiana; Mayor Joseph E. Bell, Samuel V. Perrott, chief of police, and 125 others were indicted by the Marion county grand jury here, charged with conspiracy to commit a felony through violation of election laws, bribery and blackmail. Taggart and Bell were the first to acknowledge service in the case and were released on $5,000 bond each. Several other men appeared and were released on bond.

The indictment caused a sensation. While it has been rumored on the streets for some time that several men were to be indicted as a result of an investigation of the last election, it was not thought men so high in political councils would be included. Not more than a dozen spectators were in court when the grand jurors, accompanied by Alvah J. Rucker, prosecutor, submitted the report to Judge James A. Collins of the criminal court.

Bell's Aids Indicted. More than a dozen members of Mayor Bell's official family were indicted and as many more members of the police force were named. The others indicted included election officials, ward and precinct leaders, workers at the polls and voters.

Mr. Taggart arrived in Indianapolis from French Lick about the time the indictment against him was being returned. "No, I don't know anything about it," said Mr. Taggart when asked if he had any statement to make.

List of Others Indicted. Many members of Mayor Bell's official family, former city officials, policemen, ward leaders and primary and election officials are among those indicted. The more prominent are the following:

- Fred Barrett, city attorney. Robert Metzger, former chief of police. Frank P. Baker, former county prosecutor. Herman Adam, city sealer of weights and measures. Dennis Bush, street commissioner. Edward Lyons, Democratic candidate for county treasurer. Dr. John W. Sluss, Republican, and former superintendent of the city hospital. Donn M. Roberts, former mayor of Terre Haute, who was convicted in the election fraud trial in the federal court here recently. Charles Coval, formerly Mayor Bell's secretary. Jacob H. Hilken, city building inspector. Oscar Merrill, police lieutenant. Patrick J. Roche, city detective. Michael Glenn, city detective. Linked With Terre Haute. Roberts' connection with Indianapolis politics was touched upon at the trial in the federal court when he was convicted and sentenced to six years in the federal prison. Several witnesses mentioned the alleged fact that Roberts had sent repeaters to Indianapolis during the election and two Indianapolis men testified to going from this city to Terre Haute to work in the election there.

All the men—Democrats, Republicans and Progressives—are named in a single indictment, which contains 48 counts and covers 175 typewritten papers. The main charge is conspiracy to commit felonies by corrupting the election, by violation of the primary law, the registration laws, by bribery and blackmail.

ARIZONA, LARGEST WARSHIP, LAUNCHED AT NEW YORK

Pretty 17-Year-Old Esther Rose of Prescott, Ariz., Christens Ship With Water.

New York, June 21.—The largest battleship in the world, the Arizona, was launched here at the New York navy yard in Brooklyn. In the presence of many thousand spectators pretty seventeen-year-old Esther Rose of Prescott, Ariz., smashed across the bow of the mighty ship a bottle filled with the first water that passed over the spillway of the great Roosevelt irrigation dam. Thus the superdreadnaught was christened with the name of a prohibition state.

The Arizona is a great triumph for Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, head of the navy yard, and his subordinates. She was built in fifteen months, or three months less time than the privately built Pennsylvania.

She will be able to throw from her dozen fourteen-inch rifles a broadside of 16,800 pounds a distance of 20 miles and make good target practice at 12 miles. She will displace 31,400 tons light and more than 32,000 tons when fully equipped and manned. On the water line she will measure 600 feet and will have an over-all length of 608 feet. Her beam is 97 1/2 feet and her mean draft almost twenty-nine feet.

Horror gripped the hearts of the watchers, for there were but two guards at hand, Oscar Channel and Walter Margerum. While these brave men raced seaward, life buoys on their arms, to reach the bathers farthest out, bathers formed human lines to reach others.

Men, women and children were taken out unconscious and stretched on the beach. Eighteen there were of them at one time, going back to fight for the others as they were revived.

College Boy and Girl Drown. The drowning of Miss Creamer, a student of Beechwood college, was one of the saddest features of death's toll-taking.

Leech, who was a poor swimmer, went after Miss Creamer when the party found themselves in the grip of the undertow, but was unable to make headway. He sank twice. Charles Mattlack of West Philadelphia, a stranger to the members of the party, brought Leech to safety and then went out for Miss Creamer, but both sank together.

TEUTONS TAKE RAWA-RUSKA

Capital of Galicia Is Being Bomarded by Teutons—Russians In Retreat.

London, June 22.—Advance of the Austro-German troops to within eight miles of Lemberg, and the attack of the railroad town of Zolkief, eight miles north of the Galician capital, is announced in a Berlin war office statement. While this attack is going on at the gates of the city the center of General von Mackensen's line is battering the last of the Russian defenses at a point eleven miles west of Lemberg.

Rawa-Ruska, thirty miles northwest of Lemberg, on the railroad which leads through Zolkief to the capital, was captured by the Germans on Monday. The Russians are reported falling back all along the Lemberg-Rawa Ruska line.

Advices received indirectly from Przemysl even assert that the Germans' heavy guns are now throwing shells into the outskirts of the city.

U. S. WARNED BY MEXICO

Secretary Daniels Puts Action in Sonora Up to Discretion of Admiral Howard.

Washington, June 23.—The Mexican authorities in the state of Sonora, where Americans are threatened with extermination by the Yaqui Indians, have served a practical ultimatum on Admiral Howard, who has gone to the rescue, that he must not land his forces on Mexican soil. Secretary Daniels said after receiving this information that he would not send Admiral Howard any further instructions. The state and navy departments have thus put squarely up to the discretion of Admiral Howard whether or not he shall land and take the consequences of his act.

Washington, June 22.—Governor Maytorena's first troop train sent into the Yaqui valley was attacked at Jori and retreated with a loss of 40 dead, wounded and missing. Consul Simpich at Nogales reported to the state department.

Consul Silliman at Vera Cruz reported that the Carranzistas claimed to have penetrated close to Mexico City, which they promised to take within a few days.

EIGHT BATHERS DIE

TWO HUNDRED PERSONS BATTLE FOR LIFE AT ATLANTIC CITY.

CARRIED OUT BY UNDERTOW

Exceptional Tide That Catches Throng in Deep Water Proves Too Powerful for Some—Heroes Try to Rescue—Many Saved.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 21.—Lashed and beaten into helplessness by merciless waves while held in the grip of an undertow, eight persons met heroic deaths on the beach, while other heroes, red-shirted beach guards and bathers, battled desperate against tremendous odds to save them.

Thousands lined the board walk and beach, women wringing their hands and weeping bitterly as the heart-breaking tragedy was enacted before their eyes.

Besides the known drowned, three persons, one of them a young woman, are missing. The known victims: Miss Marian Rhoads Creamer, twenty years old, student of Beechwood college.

Charles Mattlack, Philadelphia. John Lisle, thirty years old, lawyer, Philadelphia.

Charles Green, fisherman. William Francis Crow, Philadelphia. Frank Brigham, sixteen, student. Phillip Arnold, Jr., twenty-four, Philadelphia.

Mr. McCabe, Philadelphia. The heaviest tide of the season did not deter thousands from entering the turmoil of breakers in the morning.

Caught by Rising Tide. Shortly after 10:30, while hundreds were joyously leaping about in the great combers along the Chelsea front, a shrill cry went up. Two minutes later 200 men, women and children were shrieking for help. The rising tide had filled an "offset" or "slue," and as the bathers, panic-stricken, turned shoreward they plunged into it over their heads.

Horror gripped the hearts of the watchers, for there were but two guards at hand, Oscar Channel and Walter Margerum. While these brave men raced seaward, life buoys on their arms, to reach the bathers farthest out, bathers formed human lines to reach others.

Men, women and children were taken out unconscious and stretched on the beach. Eighteen there were of them at one time, going back to fight for the others as they were revived.

College Boy and Girl Drown. The drowning of Miss Creamer, a student of Beechwood college, was one of the saddest features of death's toll-taking.

Leech, who was a poor swimmer, went after Miss Creamer when the party found themselves in the grip of the undertow, but was unable to make headway. He sank twice. Dr. J. W. Ovitz received notice last week to appear in Harvey, Ill., on a specified date to answer to the charge of exceeding the speed limit, the summons having been issued by a city court official. The doctor is undecided as to whether the joke is on him or the city of Harvey, the fact being that he was never in that city in his life. The constable or police made a mistake in reading the number of the machine that was doing the speeding. Instead of appearing in person at Harvey, Dr. Ovitz sent an affidavit setting forth the above facts.

Everybody is wearing the new Outing Shirts

Those new outing shirts at Holtgren's have made a big hit with the young men of Genoa. They are all that can be suggested in comfort, and the right thing in style for summer wear. The convertible collar is a decided innovation in shirt making. For the real hot weather they may be turned down low and in the cool evening turned up like the ordinary soft collar. They come in several patterns, with neckties made to fit with the collar up or down. The short sleeves do away with that annoyance of "rolling up" and wearing a sleeve band. See them in our show window.

It had an overwhelming effect upon me. I had been very near death. Scold's must have ended the struggle in which I was engaged, had not this knowledge of actual and unpunished crime come to ease my conscience. John Scoville was worthy of death, and, being so, should receive the full reward of his deed. I need hesitate no longer.

That night I slept. But there came a night when I did not. After the penalty had been paid and to most men's eyes that episode was over, I turned the first page of that volume of slow retribution which is the doom of the man who sins from impulse, and has the recoil of his own nature to face relentlessly to the end of his days. Scoville was in his grave. I was alive. I had struck a man down for his money. I had struck a man down in my wrath. Scoville's widow and little child must face a cold and unsympathetic world, with small means and disgrace rising like a wall between them and social sympathy, if not between them and the actual means of living.

Oliver's future faced him untouched. No shadow lay across his path to hinder his happiness or to mar his chances.

The results were unequal. I began to see them so, and feel the gnawing of that deathless worm whose ravages lay waste the breast, while hand and brain fulfill their routine of work, as though all were well and the foundations of life unshaken.

I suffered as only cowards suffer. I held on to honor; I held on to home; I held on to Oliver, but with misery for my companion and a self-contempt which nothing could abate. Each time I mounted the bench I felt a tug at my arm as of a visible, restraining presence. Each time I returned to my home and met the clear eye of Oliver beaming upon me with its ever-growing promise of future comradeship, I experienced a rebellion against my own happiness which opened my eyes to my own nature and its inevitable demand. I must give up Oliver, or yield my honors, make a full confession and accept whatever consequences it might bring. I am a proud man, and the latter alternative was beyond me. I could forego pleasure, travel, social intercourse, and even the companionship of the one being in whom all my hopes centered, but I could not, of my own volition, pass from the Judge's bench to the felon's cell. There I struck the immovable—the impassable.

I decided in one awful night of re-remuneration that I would send Oliver out of my life.

The next day I told him abruptly . . . hurrying him to spare myself . . . that I had decided after long and mature thought to yield to his desire for journalism, and that I would start him in his career and maintain him in it for three years if he would subscribe to the following conditions:

They were the hardest a loving father ever imposed upon a dutiful and loving son.

First, he was to leave home immediately . . . within a few hours, in fact.

Second, he was to regard all relations between us as finished; we were to be strangers henceforth in every particular save that of the money obligation already mentioned.

Third, he was never to acknowledge this compact, or to cast any slur upon the father whose reasons for this apparently unnatural conduct were quite disconnected with any fault of his or any desire to punish or reprove.

Fourth, he was to pray for his father every night of his life before he slept.

"This last a confession? Had I not said to be such? If so, it missed its mark. It awed but did not frighten."

to contend with his compunctiousness as well as with grief and disquiet. It was an hour of struggle on the part of and of implacable resolution on mine. Nothing but such hardness of heart would have served me.

And I faltered once he would have been over, and the tale of my sleepless nights been repeated. I did not falter, and when the midnight stroke rang through the house that night I separated by its peal a sin-beclouded but human past from a future arid with solitude and bereft of the one possession to retain which my sin had been hidden.

I became a father without a son—as lonely and as desolate as though the separation between us were that of the grave I had merited and so weakly shunned.

But I was not yet satisfied. How could I insure for myself the extreme punishment which my peace demanded, without bringing down upon me the full consequences I refused to accept.

You have seen how I ultimately answered this question. A convict's cell! A convict's isolation!

But after some weeks of this, fresh news arose. An accident was possible, or all Bela's precautions, someone might gain access to this room. This would mean the discovery of my secret. And this fence was built.

This should have been enough. But guilt has terrors unknown to innocence. One day I caught a small boy peering through an infinitesimal crack in the fence, and, remembering the window grilles with iron with which Bela had replaced the cheerful casement in my den of punishment, I realized how easily an opening might be made between the boards for the convenience of a curious eye anxious to penetrate the mystery of my seclusion. And so it came about that the inner fence was put up. This settled my position in the town. No more visits. All social life was over. It was meet. I was satisfied at last. I could now give my whole mind to my one remaining duty. I lived only while on the bench.

March 5, 1898.

There is a dream which comes to me often—a vision which I often see. It is that of two broken and irregular walls standing apart against a background of roseate sky. Between these walls the figures of a woman and child, turning about to go.

The bridge I never see, nor the face of the man who died for my sin; but this I see always—the gaunt ruins of Spencer's Polly and the figure of a woman leading away a little child.

That woman lives. I know now who she is. Her testimony was uttered before me in court and was not one to rouse my apprehensions. My crime was unwhitened by her, and for years she has been a stranger to this town. But I have a superstitious horror of seeing her again, while believing that the day will come when I shall do so. When this occurs—when I look up and find her in my path, I shall know that my sin has found me out and that the end is near.

O shade of Algernon Etheridge, unforgetting and unforgiving! The woman has appeared! She stood in this room today. Verily, years are nothing with God.

Added later.

I thought I knew what awaited me if my hour ever came. But who can understand the ways of Providence or where the finger of retributive justice will point. It is Oliver's name and not mine which has become the sport of calumny. Oliver's! Could the irony of life go further! Oliver's!

There is nothing against him, and such folly must soon die out; but to see doubt in Mrs. Scoville's eyes is horrible in itself and to eliminate it I may have to show her Oliver's account of that long-forgotten night of crime in Spencer's Folly. It is naively written and reveals a clean, if reticent, nature; but that its effect may be unquestionable I will insert a few lines to cover any possible misinterpretation of his manner and conduct. There is an open space, and our handwritings were always strangely alike. Only our e's differed, and I will be careful with the e's.

Her confidence must be restored at all hazards.

My last foolish attempt has undone me. Nothing remains now but that sacrifice of self which should have been made twelve years ago.

CHAPTER XIX.

Sunset.

"I do not wish to seem selfish, Oliver, but sit a little nearer the window, where I can see you whenever I open my eyes. Twelve years is a long time to make up, and I have such a little while in which to do it."

Oliver moved. The moisture sprang to his eyes as he did so. He had caught a glimpse of the face on the pillow and the changes made in a week were very apparent. Always erect, his father had towered above them then even in his self-abasement, but he looked now as though twenty years, instead of a few days, had passed over his stately head and bowed his incomparable figure. And not that alone. His expression was different. Had Oliver not seen him in his old likeness for that one terrible half-hour, he would not know these features, so sunken, yet so eloquent with the peace of one for whom all struggle is over, and the haven of his long rest near.

Had he been able at this moment to look beyond the fences which his fear had reared, he would have seen at either gate a silent figure guarding the walk, and recalled, perhaps, the horror of other days when at the contemplation of such a prospect, his spirit recoiled upon itself in unimaginable horror and revolt. And yet, who knows! Life's passions fade when the heart is at peace. And Archibald Osterlander's heart was at peace. Why, his next words will show.

"Oliver"—his voice was low but very distinct, "never have a secret; never hide within your bosom a thought you fear the world to know. If you've done wrong—if you have disobeyed the law either of God or man—seek not to hide what can never be hidden so long as God reigns or men make laws. I have suffered, as few men have suffered and kept their reason intact. Now that my wickedness is known, the whole page of my life defaced, content has come again. I am no longer a deceiver, my very worst is known."

"Oliver?"—This some minutes later. "Are we alone?"

"Quite alone, father. Mrs. Scoville is busy and Reuther—Reuther is in the room above. I can hear her light step overhead."

The judge was silent. He was gazing wistfully at the wall where hung the portrait of his young wife. He was no longer in his room, but in the cheery front parlor. This Deborah had insisted upon. There was, therefore, nothing to distract him from the contemplation I have mentioned.

"There are things I want to say to you. Not many; you already know my story. But I do not know yours, and I cannot die till I do. What took you into the ravine that evening, Oliver, and why, having picked up the stick, did you fling it from you and fly back to the highway? For the reason I ascribed to Scoville? Tell me, that no cloud may remain between us. Let me know your heart as well as you now know mine."

The reply brought the blood back into his fading cheek.

"Father, I have already explained all this to Mr. Andrews, and now I will explain it to you. I never liked Mr. Etheridge as well as you did, and I brooded incessantly in those days over the influence which he seemed to exert over you in regard to my future career. But I never dreamed of doing him a harm, and never supposed that I could so much as attempt any argument with him on my own behalf till that very night of infernal complications and coincidences. The cause of this change was as follows: I had gone up-stairs, you remember, leaving you alone with him as I knew you desired. How I came to be in the room above I don't remember, but I was there and leaning out of the window directly over the porch when you and Mr. Etheridge came out and stood in some final debate on the steps below. He was talking and you were listening, and never shall I forget the effect his words and tones had upon me. I had supposed him devoted to you, and here he was addressing you tartly and in an ungracious manner which bespoke a man very different from the one I had been taught to look upon as superior. The awe of years yielded before this display, and finding him just human like the rest of us, the courage which I had always lacked in approaching him took instant possession of me, and I determined with a boy's unreasoning impulse to subject him to a personal appeal not to add his influence to the distaste you at present felt for the career upon which I had set my heart. Nothing could have been more foolish and nothing more natural, perhaps, than the act which followed. I ran down into the ravine with the wild intention, so strangely duplicated in yourself a few minutes later, of meeting and pleading my cause with him at the bridge, but unlike you, I took the middle of the ravine for my road and not the secluded path at the side. It was this which determined our fate, father, for here I saw the stick and, catching it up without further thought than of the facility it offered for whittling, started with it down the ravine. Scoville was not in sight. The moment was the one when he had quit looking for Reuther and wandered away up the ravine. I have thought since that perhaps the glimpse he had got of his little one peering from the scene of his crime may have stirred even his guilty conscience and sent him off on his purposeless ramble; but, however this was, I did not see him or anybody else and I took my way leisurely down towards the bridge, whittling at the stick and thinking of what I should say to Mr. Etheridge when I met him. And now for fate's final and most fatal touch! Nothing which came into my mind struck me quite favorably. The encounter which seemed such a very simple matter when I first contemplated it, began to assume quite a different aspect as the moment for it approached. By the time I had come abreast of the hollow, I was tired of the whole business, and hearing his whistle and knowing by it that he was very near, I plunged up the slope to avoid him, and hurried straight away into town. That is my story, father. If I heard your steps approaching as I plunged across the path into which I had thrown the stick in my anger at having broken the point of my knife-blade upon it, I thought nothing of them then. Afterwards I believed them to be Scoville's, which may account to you for my silence about this whole matter both before and during the trial. I was afraid of the witness stand and of what might be elicited from me if I once got into the hands of the lawyers. My abominable reticence in regard to his former crime would be brought up against me, and I was too young, too shy and uninformed to face such an ordeal of my own volition. Unhappily, I was not forced into it, and—But we will not talk of that, father."

"Son,"—a long silence had intervened—"there is one thing more. When—how—did you first learn my real reason for sending you from home? I saw that my position was understood by you when our eyes first met in this room. But twelve years had passed since you left this house in ignorance of all but my unnatural attitude towards you. When, Oliver, when?"

"That I cannot answer, father; it was just a conviction which dawned gradually upon me. Now, it seems as if I had known it always; but that isn't so. A boy doesn't reason; and it took reasoning for me to—accept—"

"Yes, I understand. And that was your secret! Oh, Oliver, I shall never ask for your forgiveness. I am not worthy of it. I only ask that you will not let pride or any other evil passion stand in the way of the happiness I see in the future for you. I cannot take from you the shame of my crime and long deception, but spare me this final sorrow! There is nothing to part you from Reuther now. Alike unhappy in your parentage, you can start on equal terms, and love will do the rest. Say that you will marry her, Oliver, and let me see her smile before I die."

"Marry her? Oh, father, will such an angel marry me?"

"No, but such a woman might."

Oliver came near, and stooped over his father's bed.

"Father, if love and attention to my profession can make a success of the life you prize, they shall have their opportunity."

"The father smiled. If it fell to others to remember him as he appeared in his mysterious prime, to Oliver it was given to recall him as he looked then with the light on his face and the last tear he was ever to shed glittering in his fading eye.

"This is My Story, Father."

"God is good," came from the bed; then the solemnity of death settled over the room.

The soft footfalls overhead ceased. The long hush had brought the two women to the door where they stood beside the bed, his head buried in his arms. On the face so near him there rested a ray from the westerling sun; but the glitter was gone from the eye and the unrest from the heart. No more weary vigils in a room dedicated to remorse and self-punishment. No more weary circling of the house in the dark lane whose fences barred out the hurrying figure within from every eye but that of heaven. Peace for him; and for Reuther and Oliver, hope!

(THE END.)

Gems That Brought Misery.

The history of diamonds and the many other precious stones, ruby, turquoise, emerald, opal, topaz, sapphire, chrysolite, sardonyx, amethyst, nearly all of which are mentioned in the Scriptures, goes far back of historic times, and is lost in a maze of religion, superstition and legend. It has been intermingled with intrigue, politics and diplomacy; murders galore; scandals unnumbered; imprisonments and beheadings. The story of the "Diamond Necklace," which, possibly innocently on her part, smothered the fame of Marie Antoinette was one of the factors in agitation that led to the great French revolution. The Bastille opened to several of the actors in the scandal, one of them Cardinal de Rohan, who was arrested in his robes in the midst of his court. Cagliostro, the famous magician swindler, was another of the Bastille prisoners, for pecuniary gain, escaped from the prison to London, where she died in penury.

Live as in Olden Times.

In eastern Palestine and Arabia are to be found the most picturesque race in the East, those strange, nomadic tribes, the Bedouins.

Their mode of life has not greatly changed since Biblical times, and today they steal cattle and camels, and their young men steal wives, as was their wont in Old Testament days.

Indeed, the purloining of cattle and camels is considered lawful among them, and the more a tribe or an individual can enrich himself in this manner the more their prowess comes to be recognized.

These people, however, who live by thieving and move by stealth, are invariably hospitably itself to the stranger within their gates.

He Knew.

A teacher in a children's institution was giving the geography class a lesson on the cattle ranches. She spoke of their beef all coming from the West, and, wishing to test the children's observation, she asked:

"And what else comes to us from these ranches?"

"This was a poser. She looked at her shoes, but no one took the hint. She tried again:

"What do we get from the cattle besides beef?"

One boy eagerly raised his hand. "I know what it is, it's trips," he announced triumphantly.

FANCY-WORK FEATURE

LITTLE NOVELTIES OUT OF THE ORDINARY IN NEEDLE ART.

Pincushions With Natural Flowers, Is Pleasing Ornament to Dressing Table—Charming Table Center for Home Working.

A few flowers always make a very pleasant addition to the dressing table, and in this sketch we show a novel and useful article for holding them. It consists of an oblong cushion in the center of which is fitted a little glass dish. Any small glass dish will serve for this purpose, and the space in the center of the cushion must, of course, be made to correspond in size.

The pincushion from which our sketch was drawn was of the shape shown in diagram A, on the right of the illustration, and it was covered with cream satin, edged with a fine silk cord and trimmed with lace. In each corner there was a little bunch of very narrow ribbon matching exactly the color of the cord. The left hand sketch clearly shows the way in which the cushion should be made, and sketch B shows it complete, with the dish fitted in the center and filled with flowers.

When not being used for flowers, the glass dish makes an excellent receptacle for hairpins and little odds and ends such as buttons, studs, etc.

The same idea could be easily carried out in other shapes, and a circular cushion with a little bowl fitted into the center would look very pretty and be equally useful.

A most uncommon and charming center is easily made at home like the one here sketched. A piece of silk, satin or fine muslin will be needed, also some sprays of prepared maldon-hair fern, such as can be bought at any fancy shop, some white or cream net and a little lace edging.

Lay the satin or muslin down and arrange on it in the four corners, sprays of fern; arrange until quite satisfied that the effect is dainty and artistic, then lightly stitch the fern here

GROWING CRAZE FOR BUTTONS

New Specialty Devised for Increased Demand in Trimming Wash Dresses, Blouses and Waists.

To comply with the increasing craze for buttons a welcome new specialty has been devised for the trimming of washing dresses, blouses, etc. For the present these new buttons are only made in white of a gimp texture recalling crochet work, which they supersede by the mere fact of having a mold round or oval, made of a cunning composition warranted to be rain and damp proof. The tiny ball shape appears to be the favorite. It is literally lavished on every accessory of dress, whether placed in separate sets or vertical rows, in circles or in clumps. As an example, a daisy fringe of these wee berries tremble along the edge of the wide brim of a child's shady hat, while a boss of them fills the hearts of a few blossoms softly nestled amid tulle draperies round the low crown. No great effort of imagination is needed to employ these new buttons effectively and no specially deft fingers are required to arrange them in pretty ways. The makers of these white washable buttons will at least have no cause of complaining of the success of their invention. Colored buttons are now clamored for.

Suffrage Veils.

The very newest in suffrage regalia is the suffrage veil, which at a little distance looks like any other modish veil of floating, filmy character with a border along the lower edge. Look closely at this border, however, and you will discern that the pattern

BOX JACKETS QUITE PLAIN

Model Shows Simple but Not Severe Effect, and Expresses Decided Youthfulness and Grace.

The summer's styles are specially suited to developments in white serge, and since a white suit is almost a necessity for many occasions, the difficulty of finding an appropriate model is greatly simplified with such a variety of designs to choose from.

Box jackets with plaited or circular skirts are very smart just now when kept quite plain and tailored. A splendid example of this style is depicted in the sketch, and carried out in white serge or gabardine.

The box jacket model, which has a great deal of style as well as individuality, while affecting the simplest lines, and certain military embellishments, is not, as might be supposed, in any way severe, but expresses rather decided youthfulness and grace.

The top is made so that it may be fastened closely about the base of the neck or turned back from the throat by leaving a few buttons undone. The buttons are run from the top to the bust line, and fasten through a set-on strap rounded at its end. The upstanding collar is slightly gathered into the neck, and is cut very high across the back and sides with a point under each ear.

The edge of the jacket runs a trifle longer in back than in front, and shows a straight hand-facing some eight inches deep, encircling its width. Button-trimmed straps are set on at either side of the front and the back, with their ends looked under the lower edge, forming a most attractive trimming. Long sleeves show a deep facing.

PLEA FOR THE CHILD.

(From Address by FATHER PATRICK MURPHY of Texas.)

I content tonight that there are helpless children whose little bodies are crying out for nourishment—the food they need—and yet the mother cannot cook it for them because that bunch got all the money first! The little child is crying. I'll tell you, and I am sure any doctors in the audience will bear me out, when a child in the poorer homes is not properly nourished, its pain is not in the stomach alone; there is not a blood cell in its little body that is not suffering.

I maintain that you men who are going to vote wet, should think of this: There is not a blood cell in the child's body that is not crying out to your God against you.

In your city there are little wasted hands raised up in pleading. You will find them in the homes of your drunkards. You will see the faces of the little ones, thin, emaciated and telling pathetically of their hungry bodies. These little children are praying that you will decide a great question regardless of what you seem to lose by it.

HERE TO STAY.

The following is quoted from a letter written by Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota to George W. Perkins, chairman of the Progressive national committee: "The prohibition movement today differs from that movement in other times. When you and I were boys, every spring there was seen a temperance agitation and everybody took the pledge. Some kept it and some did not. The present movement is entirely different. There is no hysteria or excitement about it. It is simply a calm, deliberate judgment on the part of the American people, from the man who employs to the man who is employed, that the saloon is a menace. Having come in this quiet way, free from hysteria and excitement, and as a result of deliberate judgment, I am inclined to think it is here to stay, and if times are good, is liable to be more of a factor than we sometimes suppose."

IN RUSSIA.

From July to December there were recorded in Petrograd in 1913 ninety-seven suicides, but in 1914 only fourteen. The same phenomenon was observed in Warsaw, where during the first half of 1914 there were recorded 419 suicides, and during the second half only 205. The reduction of the number of small loans made by the pawnshops, and the increase of the deposits in the savings banks, were among the further gratifying results of temperance. For the first two months of 1915 the savings banks of Petrograd received deposits exceeding the figures for the corresponding months of 1914 by one and a half million rubles (£150,000), while throughout Russia the quantity of deposits increased by a hundred billion rubles (£10,000,000).

HOW TO IMPROVE SALOONS.

A liquor paper wants to know how to improve the saloon. We make the following suggestions, and guarantee that if followed they will improve any saloon in America:

Take down the sign.

Move out the bars and fixtures.

Empty the stock in trade down the sewer.

Get the bartenders some other work.

Pull down the curtains.

Lock the doors.

Put a "To Rent" sign on the outside.—Exchange.

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

NO MODEL LICENSE LAW.

Major Dan Morgan Smith was for four years general counsel for the liquor organization known as the Model License league. The following paragraphs from an address of his shows why he threw up that position and is now speaking and working for prohibition.

"For four years I advocated the passage of a model license law as a means of lessening the evils of drink. As the head of the law department of one of the three largest liquor associations in America, I maintained that its passage would take the liquor dealers out of politics and the law-breakers out of the liquor business."

"Was I wrong? I shall never know, for the liquor crowd were paying me to talk reform and paying others to defeat reform!"

"The Model License law was effective as a vote-getter, but it never cleaned out one dive, never effected one reform, for, although advocated in every fight against prohibition in the last six years, it has never been enacted in any place. Its advocacy has fooled more decent people into voting with the liquor crowd than all the specious nonsense about taxes and personal liberty put together. Can we expect laws from the liquor camp that will eliminate the dive, or lessen drunkenness or stop the sale of liquor to minors? Can we expect brewery agents to pass laws that will take away the license of brewery-owned saloons? Can we expect legislators, nominated and elected by the brewery interests, to pass laws that will take the liquor business out of politics? No, the only thing we can expect from the liquor people is just what we have received in the past—lying promises."

WEDDING DRESS IN TAFFETA

Full Skirt Finds Its Chance Here and Ripples Out into Double or Triple Bouffancy.

At smart weddings the number of taffeta dresses worn is noticeable. Here the full skirt finds its chance, and ripples out sometimes in a single skirt, sometimes in a double or even a triple skirt. One very smart model of crisp black taffeta has a double skirt, with the edges trimmed with deep bands of fine tucks. This tucked band holds the double skirt out in a most bouffant manner, and may or may not be edged with a tiny knife plaiting of taffeta. This skirt has been worn most attractively with a bodice, which, though more fitted than those of other seasons, follows the natural line of the figure rather than the pinched-in waist. It drops a bit below the waist in front.

OLD HATS NOW MADE NEW

Sunburned Straw Transformed by Oil Color and Benzine to Fresh and Pleasing Appearance.

In the August Woman's Home companion a New York woman tells us follows how to make an old hat into a new one:

"I want to tell you how to transform your old hats into new and charming ones with only a tube of oil color and a bottle of benzine. Into a cup of benzine (do not use near a fire) put a little color, mix well and strain through a cloth wet with the benzine. Apply this thin dye with a broad, flat bristle brush to a sunburned Milan or faded dark straw, and, lo! it is fresh and new, and the color will not fade in the sun nor run in a shower. Faded flowers can be dipped into this same dye and be renewed."

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism untried for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that with all the civilization of the modern world, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MODERN MACHINERY FACILITATES HAYING

Machinery Adds Greatly to Harvesting of Any Crop.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.) Haymaking is an art which a great many farmers have not yet learned. The modern method of making hay is far different from that of the old days, when the grass was cut with scythes, turned with pitchforks—if time permitted—and stowed away in dark, musty barns, or stacked in the open field to keep or spoil as might be. In modern haymaking, time is essential. If the crop should be cut a day too soon it will easily spoil. If a day too late its quality may be impaired by its dry, woody growth. If it is allowed to lie on the ground 24 hours too long before being tossed and cured, its quality may be reduced one-half.

Modern haying machinery makes haymaking easier, but even with all the appliances that ingenious manufacturers have given us, the proportion of farmers who make a "sure thing" of their hay crop every year is all too small. There always has been a great deal of trouble in curing the clover hay crop. Much of its value is lost because of the lack of help necessary to properly cure it and take care of it after it has been cured. The hay-tender has helped greatly, and this kicking machine is now seen on every good farm where the best modern methods are employed.

The side rake is another fine machine which helps us in saving the crop, and if clover is cut at exactly the right time the use of these two machines will enable any farmer to save all there is of his crop, with at least 99 per cent of its feeding value.

Heretofore, much of the hay of this country was lost through allowing it to stand in stacks in the field. The hay barn is now a necessity on every good farm where the most is made of everything. Where hay is still stacked, canvas covers help a great deal, but the only way to properly care for clover hay is to put it into a well ventilated barn. The value of the hay crop depends largely upon the man who makes it. He must have exact knowledge of the time to cut it, just how it must be cured in all kinds of weather, and how to store it. He must thoroughly understand the use of all haying machinery, and know how to make the most of every hour of the haying season with his human help as well.

The proper use of machinery is the most important thing. Too many farmers in their haste to get the crop off the ground crowd their mowing machines beyond their capacity, which always results in considerable loss. Nothing is more indicative of a poor farmer than the sight of a hay field in which little rows of grass, varying from two to six inches are left standing, the result of trying to make a seven-foot cycle bar cut a seven-foot six-inch swath. The machine should be set and so driven as to cut every spear of grass slick and clean, and lay it down evenly. Then, when the raking comes on, there is another source of loss in the careless way in which the ground is covered, or rather not covered. Little bunches of hay left here and there count largely in the aggregate, and mean large money loss.

IS BOUND AND LEFT IN OLD ZINC MINE

Missouri Millionaire Is Saved From Death by the High Price of Ore.

St. Louis.—James H. Worth, millionaire mine operator, of Joplin, Mo., and Indianapolis, Ind., owes his life to the high price of zinc. Held prisoner in an abandoned zinc mine, he had been left to perish, and doubtless would have done so had not two prospectors, Roy Caldwell and Sam Huston, gone into the old mine and discovered Worth, who had been there in the drift five days. He was unconscious when found, but was soon revived.

The high price of ore caused the prospectors to enter the drift in hope of finding zinc overlooked by former operators.

Worth says he was accosted at a Joplin hotel by a stranger, who said he was desirous of looking at mining land. The stranger introduced his business partner. Worth does not remember the names of the men, but says they drove with him to the abandoned mine.

He Had Been Left to Perish.

In a remote drift, he says, he was bound, gagged and tied to a piece of mine timber. The kidnappers attached a long fuse to one of his feet and another to the end of a box containing dynamite. The fuse was lighted, and one man told him:

"It will reach the dynamite in 12 hours, and, if the rats don't get you first, this will finish the job."

The rescuers discovered that the men in walking about had accidentally cut the fuse.

MOURNS YEARS; KILLS SELF

Bereft of Family, Man Dies on Anniversary of Slocum Disaster.

New York.—Eleven years ago Greenwich village mourned with George Feldhausen. His wife and all his children had perished when the steamer General Slocum was burned. Recently the story of his grief was told again. Feldhausen's body was found in his place of business at 50 West Eighth street. He had committed suicide by means of illuminating gas on the anniversary of the death of those he cared most for.

For many years Feldhausen had been the owner of a German cafe, with bowling alleys attached. It was a meeting place for the neighbors who desired good beer and a game of cards. In the summer Feldhausen's figure was a familiar one as he stood at the doorway of his place, coatless, but immaculate in a plaited linen shirt and old-fashioned black string tie. He was seen last the other evening at the doorway looking into the street and back through the years. In the evening his cafe was closed and the next day friends found his body.

MISSED HONOR; TRIES TO DIE

Boy Drinks Poison When He Learns He Must Take Examination in Mathematics.

New York.—When he learned that his name was not on the list of students exempt from taking an examination in mathematics because of exceptional proficiency in that study, Harry S. Levine, fifteen years old, of 204 Third street, Brooklyn, swallowed a solution of iodine in his classroom in the Boys' High school of that borough recently. The boy had a phial of iodine in his pocket which he had bought to relieve a sprained finger. As instructor George Downing completed the reading of the list the lad put the bottle to his lips and swallowed the contents.

Mr. Downing administered an antidote and young Levine was then taken to St. John's hospital. He was able to leave the hospital in a short time and was taken to the children's court. Justice Wilkin paroled the boy, who returned to school to take an examination in history.

UMBRELLA TO COVER ACRE

Amusement Provider Asserts He Has Scheme Nothing Short of Stupendous.

Tody Hamilton—the only man who ever lost an elephant in Manhattan and would not be comforted—says—and if Tody Hamilton (who once lost two lions and a tiger near Forty-second street and Broadway) says a thing is true, then it's true whether it's true or not—Tody Hamilton says that Luna park is about to raise an umbrella which no living man can borrow, let alone steal.

The umbrella will cover an acre of Luna park ground, so it was said by Tody Hamilton—who for years saw to it that a baby giraffe was born annually in Madison Square garden on the night Barnum & Bailey came to town. First of all, a steel umbrella handle will be constructed in Luna and the handle will be 140 feet high, so it was said by Tody Hamilton—who was the first man to reveal the news that Slivers, the clown, was the first man to strike gold in Alaska.

The umbrella will be steel-ribbed, covered with circus-tent canvas, and will be raised and lowered by machinery, according to a statement issued by Tody Hamilton—who once crossed hoop snakes with puff adders while with the Barnum show and raised thereby a crop of living automobile tires.

Five thousand persons will be able to enjoy the cool shade under the umbrella. A searchlight with rays shooting for ten miles, an intermittent flash beacon, thousands of electric bulbs and things and stuff to taste will decorate the steel and canvas umbrella at night. The completed umbrella to cost $25,000, according to Tody Hamilton—who added that he had just turned down an offer made by Colonel Roosevelt to stock the Luna lagoon with a correspondence school of man-eating fish.—New York Sun.

Sleep. For do but consider what an excellent thing sleep is! It is so inestimable a jewel that, if a tyrant would give his crown for an hour's slumber, it cannot be bought; of so beautiful a shape is it that, though a man live with an express, his heart cannot be at quiet till he leaves her embraces to be at rest with the other; yea, so greatly are we indebted to this kinsman of death, that we owe the better tributary half of our life to him; and there is good cause why we should do so; for sleep is that golden chain that ties health and our bodies together. Who complains of want, of wounds, of cares, of great men's oppressions, of captivity, whilst he sleepeth?—Thomas Dekker.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Dr. J. C. Watson.

MUSSEL MUD AS FERTILIZER GETS 2-CENT MONEY ORDER

Organic Remains of Shellfish Secure Fertility to Poorest and Most Exhausted Soil.

Consul Frank Deedmeier writes from Charlottetown, P. E. I., Canada: In most of the bays indenting the shores of Prince Edward island are found extensive deposits of mussel shells, so called locally, being organic remains of countless generations of oysters, mussels, clams, and other bivalve animals generally. The shells, usually more or less intact, are found imbedded in dense deposits of mud-like substance and this combination is a fertilizer of high value and potency. It supplies small quantities of phosphates and alkalies. An ordinary dressing of it secures fertility in a striking manner to the poorest or most exhausted soil. The shells decay slowly, year by year, throwing off a film of fertilizing stuffs. The deposits around Prince Edward island vary from five to twenty-five feet in depth. They are taken up by dredging machines worked from rafts in summer or from the ice in winter.

Two-Cent Balance is Paid Through Express Company by Kansas Woman.

The smallest money order ever made out by the agent for the local express company was given to a woman to pay on an account owed to a mail-order house, according to a Blackwell story printed in the Ardmoreite. The woman had received a letter from the mail-order house notifying her that she owed the firm two cents. Indignant and unable to realize the spirit that would prompt anyone to mail a bill for two cents, the woman decided that a post office stamp would not suffice and that only a money order would do. The fee for the order was three cents and the postage stamp necessary to carry it cost two cents more so that with the two-cent postage stamp that carried the bill to the woman seven cents was expended in collecting a two-cent debt.—Kansas City Journal.
