Mrs. Emily Scott Passes Away at Age of Ninety-two Years

CAME TO ILLINOIS IN EARLY DAY

Two Children Reside in Genoa, Frank Scott and Mrs. C. F. Deardurff

Harriet Emily Scott was born in New York state, January 9, 1827, and died at the home of her son, Frank, in this city March 25, 1920, at the age of 93 years, 2 months and 15 days.

She came to Illinois in an early day where she was united in marriage to William Scott December 20, 1849. Mr. Scott passed away June 30, 1889.

To Mr. and Mrs. Scott six children were born, four of whom preceded their mother in death. The surviving children are Frank R. Scott and Mrs. Emma Deardurff, both of Genoa. She also leaves one sister, Lois E. Gray, of Chicago.

Funeral services were held at the Scott home last Saturday, interment taking place in Genoa cemetery. Rev. L. B. Lott officiated.

MILK PRICE REDUCED

Compromise Price of $2.75 Fixed for April Milk

A reduction of fifteen cents a hundred pounds in the wholesale price of milk was announced by Charles H. Potter, manager of the Co-Operative Marketing company this morning.

The company, which handles practically all the milk of the producers of northern Illinois, northern Indiana and southern Wisconsin accepted a compromise price of $2.75 a hundred pounds today for April.

Previously the Marketing company had asked $2.90 a hundred pounds, the same as March price, but condensing companies had offered $2.40.

The new price offered is for 3.5 test milk.

Armour's three plants in this district offered $2.25 a hundred pounds for the milk but no milk will be sold to them by the co-operative company at less than the $2.75 figure.

The Nestle's Food company will not buy at any price from the marketing company but still insists on buying from individual farmers.

MRS. CHANDLER DEAD

Wife of Sycamore Cigar Manufacturer Passes Away

The death of Mrs. E. C. Chandler of Sycamore at the Sycamore hospital Saturday morning removes one of DeKalb county's most philanthropic and admirable women from our midst.

Mrs. Chandler, wife of the well known cigar manufacturer, was taken ill a week ago following breakfast and went to bed almost immediately. Her condition grew worse each day until Thursday when she was removed to the hospital. Pneumonia developed and though she fought bravely she passed away at four o'clock Saturday morning.

NOW LOOK OUT

Income Tax Collectors are After the Evasive Ones

The income tax collectors all over the United States are comparing the records of the persons filing income tax with their own to see that no mistake has been made by them and that the taxpayers are not making a fraudulent return.

It is the duty of every person to see that his neighbor makes a correct return because if he does not, in the long run he himself will have to pay the dodger's tax.

Any person that is found guilty of making a fraudulent return is liable to a fine of $1,000 and all of the extras, that they would incur. However a person that makes a mistake and comes voluntarily to make the necessary return, the law holds no penalty for him.

After the first of April the revenue agents are going to start their drive for dodgers and delinquents and the agents have a good many such. In some places the theatres are going to be investigated thoroughly and in Chicago they have already started the prosecution of theatre owners.

This is a tremendous undertaking for the government to handle because of the millions tax returns that have been made and every one of these is checked to see that the correct return has been made. The dodger may get away for a little while but in the long run Uncle Sam gets him.

HE WAS DEFEATED

Warning to Local Candidates in This Experience

A candidate for the office of commissioner of a certain county in Georgia is said to have filed the following itemized account of his expenses in the campaign:

"Lost 1349 hours of sleep thinking about the election. Lost two front teeth and a whole lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent. Donated one beef, four shoats and five sheep to a country barbecue. Gave away two pair of suspenders, four calico dresses, $5 cash and 13 baby rattlers. Kissed 126 babies. Kindled 14 kitchen fires. Put up four stoves. Walked 4,076 miles. Shook hands with 9,508 persons. Told 10,101 lies, and talked enough to make in print, 1000 volumes. Attended 16 revival meetings and was baptized four times by immersion and twice some other way. Contributed $50 to foreign missions, and made love to nine grass widows. Hugged 49 old maids. Got dog-bit 30 times and was defeated."

SANITARIUM READY

Patients will be Received at County Institution

After many weeks of preparation the board in charge of the tuberculosis sanitarium on the old Marsh homestead announce that the place is now ready for the occupancy of patients.

There are several of these who have already made application for entrance to the sanitarium and it is likely that others will at once apply for the accommodations which will give them health again.

Earl H. Browne is the new man at Bert Crawford's grocery. Frank Acres has gone to work for Jas. Kierman, owing to the large increase in Jim's business.

Rev. Howard has asked the village nominees to be present at next Sunday morning's services. He will talk to them on licensing.

At the caucus Saturday Jas. Hutchison, Sr. defeated James Stott for nomination candidate for village president. C. B. Crawford, John Lembke, Geo. Johnson, Ira J. Brown and E. Prouty were nominated as trustees and H. A. Perkins as village clerk.

The Taylor house, occupied by Ben Thomas, was burned to ashes Monday morning.

Chas. Lederle of Belvidero was in Genoa last Monday looking for a location for a store. (The store later materialized, but it turned out to be a saloon. Mr. Lederle put up the building now occupied as a billiard hall by Mr. Nichols.)

Jas. Hutchison, Jr. is very proud of a new "bike," the gift of his father. Its the finest wheel in town.

Mrs. Schneider is building a cottage just west of the Pacific Hotel (Republican building). It will be occupied by her son Gus and his bride when completed. (When the cottage is completed, no doubt is the meaning.)

FOR MARNE MONUMENT

DeKalb county is asked for $125 as its share toward a monument to commemorate the Battle of the Marne, in which the German army, only 36 miles from Paris, were driven back, with the assistance of the American troops, and which was the turning point in the great war. Postmaster T. J. Ronin of Sycamore has been appointed county chairman to raise this fund. The school children will be enlisted, as it is especially desired that the money be contributed by as many persons as possible. Mr. Ronin anticipates no difficulties in raising the amount.

THEY SELL SEED

The McHenry County Soil Improvement association reports the sale of $10,000 worth of seed in one week.

COMMUNITY CLUB

Will Hold Open Meeting at Masonic Hall Monday

The Community club will hold an open meeting at the Masonic hall on Monday afternoon, April 5. Each member is requested to invite several guests.

D. S. Brown will be present and talk on "Forms of Government," a subject that is now foremost on earth, and one that is little understood by masses. We hear so much these days of Republicanism, democracy, bolshevism, socialism and a dozen other isms that the average person is utterly confused. Especially distinguishing between the republican and democratic form of government. A republic is not a democracy and such a thing as pure democracy is utterly impossible.

Mr. Brown has given this subject careful study during the past few months and he can state facts which will be a revelation to many who have been looking at the matter superficially.

BROWN COMES HOME

DeKalb Doctor, Under Indictment, Has Nothing to Say

DeKalb Chronicle: Dr. Oscar J. Brown, under indictment in connection with his alleged activities as a member of the communist labor party for the overthrow of the government, has arrived home from Vermont where he went some time ago called by the serious illness and death of his father.

Dr. Brown was interviewed by a Chronicle reporter but refused to make any statement for publication. He talked at length however, informally to the news gatherer giving his views upon various matters of common interest.

He says that he is much in favor of the system of government in existence in soviet Russia and claimed that most of the impressions that prevail in this country over the soviet form of government are entirely erroneous on account of false propaganda concerning them.

He says that he is much in favor of the constitution of the United States under conditions that once prevailed—when, he says, it was a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

No further information has been received regarding the hearing of the DeKalb man on the charges preferred against him by the states attorney of Cook county.

BARBER AGAIN

Passes check in New York on Hampshire Bank

Operatives of the Burns detective agency claim to have evidence that "Gene" Barber, alleged absconding Marengo lawyer, who so far has eluded all efforts to capture, passed a check in Brooklyn, N. Y., for $247 on Saturday, March 13, and continued on his way with the money.

The check is said to have been made on a check of the State Bank of Hampshire, Ill., and bore the signature of Otto Shuman of the Kane county village.

Hampshire bank officials say the check was made out, signed and endorsed in the same handwriting. Two signatures appeared on the back of the check as witnesses of the identification, they being L. A. and H. M. Barber. They are believed to be relatives of Barber and will be called on to make good the amount.

The last heard of Barber he was in Chicago where he was alleged to have cashed another bogus check.

WOMEN MAY VOTE

In Preference Primary Election on 13th of April

Illinois women will be permitted to vote at the presidential preference primary April 13, regardless of whether national suffrage has been ratified by 36 states prior to that time.

Attorney-General Brundage on Saturday at the suggestion of Gov. F. O. Lowden, pointed out that the Cook county and Chicago election officials had announced their intention of supplying separate ballots to women, and asked if the plan could not be followed throughout the state without invalidating the primary. Mr. Brundage agreed and withdrew his previous ruling.

Secretary of State Emmerson immediately notified all county clerks by telegraph to take the necessary steps to provide for the women voters.

ECHARDT IN CHICAGO

Attending Marketing Committee of Agricultural Association

W. G. Echardt was in Chicago on Saturday to attend a session of the grain marketing committee of the Illinois Agricultural Association. There are five men on the committee and they are to see if the farmer's products cannot reach the consumer without the manipulation that has always happened in the past.

Their work is to devise means that will get rid of the extreme fluctuation of the market and to see that the farmers get the cost of raising crops and a reasonable profit besides. Also that the crop reaches the consumer at a reasonable price which has not been so in the past. For example, potatoes were taken out of the hands of the farmers last fall at the price of 90c to $1.25 per bushel.

The last Saturday quotation of the market gave the price at $3.50 a bushel if they are bought in carload lots. This made them sell at $4.50 a bushel. This, the committee says, is absolutely wrong and they are to try and see that the ultimate consumer does not have to pay the high margin.

KLINGER QUITS

J. E. Klinger, proprietor of the restaurant at Huntley, announces that he will quit business on account of poor health. Mr. Klinger was manager of the Commercial Hotel in this city several years ago.

COMING TO GENOA

"Raffles," the Mystery Man, at Auditorium, April 3

"Raffles," the mystery man, will appear at the Auditorium on Saturday evening, April 3, under auspices of the Genoa Masonic club. "Raffles" brings with him several vaudeville artists and puts on a good evening's performance. He will be hanged over Main street at seven o'clock Saturday evening, in a harness, and then make his get-away.

The Chicago American offered $500 to the person who would catch "Raffles," advertising just where he would be, but no one in Chicago ever caught him. It's a mystery show. Remember the date.

Reserved seats will be on sale at E. H. Browne's Friday evening at 7 o'clock. Those who have bought pink tickets may have them exchanged for reserved seats at that time.

FARMERS MAY BUILD

Milk Producers of Grayslake Fight Nestle's Food Co.

Former patrons of the milk plant at Grayslake, now owned by the Nestle Food company, whose milk was refused on Tuesday morning of last week, have started a movement to build and equip a new factory in that village. Only two farmers pulled up to the Nestle plant on Tuesday morning of last week, altho 144 cans of milk were shipped in from other points. According to the Grayslake times, it is doubtful if the company can operate the plant with so little milk. The plant formerly handled 105,000 pounds of milk daily.

IN THE PATH OF THE TORNADO

Illinois Suffers Loss of Millions of Dollars Sunday Noon

SEVEN DEATHS IN CITY OF ELGIN

Genoa Escapes, But Many Buildings Few Miles Away Are Destroyed

The tornado which passed over the middle west last Sunday, struck Northern Illinois near the noon hour, leaving death and destruction in its wake. Melrose Park (near Chicago) suffered the greatest loss, but it came near home when Elgin was added to the list of devastated cities. The tornado struck the watch city shortly after the noon hour and it was all over in a few minutes. Seven lives were snuffed out, hundreds injured and the property loss will mount into millions.

The Elgin Dead

Mowatt, Miss Elizabeth, 20, crushed by falling steeple of Elgin Congregational Church.

McConnachie, Miss Elizabeth 12, crushed under steeple.

Foot, Mrs. Lulu, 21, killed at First Baptist Church, Elgin.

Kimball, Mrs. William D., 55, killed at Baptist Church.

Weirich, Edward, 600 Adams St., killed when home was destroyed.

Beverly, Samuel, Killed when Grand Opera House was partially destroyed.

Beverly, Mrs. Samuel, killed with husband.

Lowris, Mrs. Richard. The twister entered the city from the southwest, the first great damage being done on Walnut avenue. The tornado then pulled off the usual freakish stunts. It lifted up over the handsome large residences on the state street bluff, then dipped down to the river, destroying property along the C. M. & St. P. right of way.

Crossing the river the wind caught and completely demolished the G. M. Peck department store, entailing a loss of $150,000. The entire west wall and roof of the opera house were removed. Thousands of windows were broken in the business district, many walls cracked and dozens of roofs partly or completely removed. The storm continued a north easterly course across the city, covering a strip about a thousand feet wide. The steeple of the Congregational church was hurled onto the roof and plunged thru to the basement, taking roof and floors with it. The course of the storm followed Dundee Ave. where hundreds of beautiful shade trees were uprooted or stripped of branches. Many houses were unroofed, some moved from foundations and a few completely destroyed. Several churches were more or less damaged but the Congregational was the greatest wreck. Here four people were killed, as noted above. E. A. Sowers, formerly of Genoa, with his wife and two children, were in the church at the time, but all escaped injury. Services had been closed only a few minutes before the storm broke, and most of the people who were waiting for the rain to cease were in the vestibules. This accounts for the small loss of life.

Several wind storms did considerable damage near Hampshire and Sycamore, but the loss as compared with Elgin's is nothing.

An army of men is now working night and day in Elgin in reconstruction. It will be months before plate glass can be procured to take the place of that destroyed. In this respect the big Ackerman store suffered the most, practically every window in the store being broken.

Geo. M. Peck announces that he will erect a new building at once, while the opera house management is figuring on putting up a $100,000 play house.

THE OPERA HOUSE

Now Under Management of Frank Hoffman

Frank Hoffman has leased the opera house from Conrad Kniprath and will hereafter assume full management of the amusement hall. Mr. Hoffman is planning two picture shows each week, with an occasional special attraction. He will not attempt to conduct dances, but has rented the house every Friday night to Robert Furr who will conduct all dances during the coming season.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

It is the mind that makes the man and our vigor is our immortal soul.—Ovid.
"Tis the dessert that graces all the feast,
For an ill, end disparages all the rest."

A VARIETY OF SALADS.

Any meal, after breakfast, will be the better rounded out for a salad, daintily arranged and garnished, served with a new dressing or garnish or a dish of different seasoning.

Red Cabbage and Chestnut Salad.—Take two cups of boiled, blanched chestnuts finely chopped, two cups of boiled red cabbage; sprinkle with one-half cup of raisins. Serve with French dressing, to which a teaspoonful of sugar has been added to every half-cupful of dressing. This is especially good when green salad plants are scarce, as it needs no green foundation.

Beet With Celery Salad.—Boil or bake large beets, skin and cut the bottoms so they will set firmly on a plate. Carefully take out the centers, leaving the shells. Marinate for an hour in French dressing. Have ready chopped celery; mixed with mayonnaise; drain the beet cups, fill with the celery mixture and garnish with sprigs of parsley. Serve on a lettuce leaf. Any desired filling may be used. Chopped Bermuda or Spanish onion and cucumber is especially good.

Butterfly Salad.—Arrange slices of pineapple cut in halves on head lettuce, the curved side toward the center, leaving a small space between in which to put a long piece of green pepper to simulate the body of the butterfly, the pineapple the wings. Make a head with a green grape, peeled, and feelers of fine strips of green pepper. Decorate the wings with sliced stuffed olives, and pass the dressing when ready to serve.

Fruit Salad.—Take grapefruit and carefully remove the membrane, leaving the fruit in sections. Prepare an orange in the same way. Make a nest of lettuce and arrange the sections of grapefruit with a section of orange between, until it keeps its shape in a semicircle. Red apples cut in thin sections, leaving the peeling on, are often used to add color between the sections. Arrange a spoonful of mayonnaise where it will not disturb the color scheme, or pass the dressing.

Chicken and Pineapple Salad.—On heart leaves of lettuce place a slice of pineapple; on this a half cupful of cooked chicken cut fine; over this spread mayonnaise and decorate with strips of pimento.

Contentment lies not in the enjoyment of ease—a life of luxury—but comes only to him that labors and overcomes—to him that performs the task in hand reaps the satisfaction of work well done.—Wilde.

HONEY DISHES.

"If you would have honey you must have money" these days, for honey is keeping up with the present price of sugar. In making a lemon pie use one cupful of honey with the juice and rind of a lemon, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a bit of salt, half a cupful of cold water and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Cook until smooth; add a teaspoonful of butter and fill a baked crust. Cover with a meringue prepared with the two whites, beaten stiff. Brown in a moderate oven.

Boiled Honey Custard.—Take two cupfuls of milk, the yolks of three eggs, half a cupful of honey and a pinch of salt. Scald the milk and pour over the eggs and honey. Cook in a double boiler till the mixture thickens.

Honey Pudding.—Take half a cupful of honey, one cupful of bread crumbs, half a cupful of milk, the grated rind of half a lemon, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two eggs and half a teaspoonful of ginger. Mix the honey and bread crumbs; add the milk, seasonings and the yolks of eggs. Beat thoroughly and add the butter and whites of eggs, well beaten. Steam for two hours in a pudding mold.

Almost any frozen dish will have a smoother, more velvety texture and will not melt so readily if honey is used for sweetening instead of sugar.

Honey Mousse.—Beat one cupful of honey and pour slowly over the well-beaten yolks of four eggs. Cook until the mixture thickens and when cool add a pint of cream, whipped. Flavor with any delicate flavoring and pour the mixture into a mold; pack in ice and salt and let stand three or four hours.

In the making of many dishes in which sugar is used honey takes the place of an equal amount of sugar; but the liquid in the recipe will need to be cut down one-third. The flavor of good honey combines well with spices and flavorings commonly used.

It is one fortunate enough to have a hive of bees it will help a long way in solving the sugar question.

"No soul can ever truly see
Another's heart, noblest part,
Save through the sweet philosophy
And loving wisdom of the heart."

TIMELY DESSERTS.

For the early spring months, having tired of the heavy, rich desserts which have been popular, we turn to lighter and more easily digested dishes. As ple is the always popular dessert, if one can serve it with one crust, half of the indigestible (to some) pastry is avoided. Lemon, custard, cream and chocolate fillings are all good. The following will be found less common, but very well liked: Take one cupful of any canned fruit, such as cherries, currants, pineapple, strawberries or raspberries, which have been crushed and canned uncooked, with an equal quantity of sugar; add a tablespoonful of water with one of flour, mix well, add the yolk of one egg and cook the filling until smooth. Fill a baked shell, and when cool cover with a meringue made of the white of the egg. Place a few marshmallows cut up or whole over the top to add to the appearance. Put into the oven and brown.

Hot Water Ginger Bread.—Take one cupful of sugar, one egg, salt, one-half cupful of melted shortening, a tablespoonful of ginger, one cupful of molasses, and three cupfuls of flour; mix well and add just at the last one cupful of boiling water in which has been dissolved a teaspoonful of soda. Bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot with whipped cream or apple sauce for dessert.

Caramel Cornstarch Pudding.—Take two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch; mix and cook with one pint of milk. Put three-fourths of a cupful of sugar in a smooth frying pan, melt and stir until dissolved and a golden brown, then stir in the boiling hot cornstarch mixture. Stir until all the sugar is well blended with the pudding; add a pinch of salt, and serve in sherbet cups with whipped cream.

Dainty Dessert.—Take the white of one egg and half a glassful of any tart jelly. Whip until stiff and it will stand alone. It will take about 20 minutes. Serve with a thin custard.

Fruit Sherbet.—Take the juice of three oranges and one lemon, with a bit of the rind cooked in two cupfuls of honey; add a quart of rich milk or thin cream and freeze.

We never know the true value of friends. While they live we are too sensitive to their faults; when we have lost them we think only of their virtues.—Hare.

SALADS OF SPECIAL DISTINCTION

For those who are fond of coconut this salad will strongly appeal:

Benares Salad.—Take two cupfuls of fresh grated coconut, two tart apples, finely cubed, one-half cupful of chopped celery, two tablespoonfuls of grated onion, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a dash of red pepper. Serve with French dressing. Use strips of red pepper for garnishing.

Spring Salad.—Slice crisp red radishes in thin slices, add slices of small green onions and a little chopped green pepper. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Banana Candles.—For a dainty salad to delight the hearts of children at a child's party these are simple to prepare. Place a slice of pineapple on a paper dolly, placed on a salad plate. Enlarge the hole slightly to insert half of a banana so that it will stand upright, the small end at the top. Use small bananas and dip them in lemon juice after peeling to keep them from discoloring. In the top insert a small cherry to simulate the flame of the candle and make a handle of angelica cut in strips and inserted in a loop at the side of the pineapple. A strip of green pepper or a strip of orange or lemon peel may be used if the angelica cannot be obtained.

Lettuce Salad With Egg Garnish.—Cut crisp head lettuce in quarters; let stand in cold water for half an hour. Drain and shake dry. Take some hard-cooked eggs, put the yolks through a sieve and chop the whites very fine. Over the lettuce pour some highly seasoned French dressing and sprinkle with the whites, then the yolks. This is a very pretty salad for a yellow luncheon.

Pear Salad.—Set half a canned pear on two or three heart leaves of lettuce. Sprinkle with eight or ten cubes of Neufchatel cheese and half as many strips of pimento. Take one cupful of double cream, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, four tablespoonfuls of pear syrup, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and four tablespoonfuls of honey. Beat until light. Use as salad dressing.

WRAPS FOR FORMAL DRESS

THE loose-hanging ample capelike wraps, from plain crepe to draped dolmans that were worn in rich furs and fabrics during the winter months made a strong appeal to women who dress smartly. They proved very graceful and becoming and exceeded coats in elegance, even when coats were made of the same materials. They grew in popularity and it followed that wraps for wear at the Southern resorts and for evening or formal afternoon dress in the spring, have been designed on the same lines. At the resorts capes in both quiet and lively colors and of many kinds of materials are noticeable on women who dress with distinction. Some of their refuse to dispense with fur in collars or bands and one may see capes of duvetyne in dark orchid or purple tones with marten collars, or of deep-rose color embroidered in gray with gray squirrel collar. Satin in heavy quality appears in turquoise, in white and in black lined with a color. Rich gold brocade with plain colors in

TAILORED HATS FOR MOURNING

EXCEPT for the first three months in periods of mourning, crepe is used sparingly in mourning millinery. It has been replaced by the several kinds of silk that are used for making the exquisitely neat hats that are approved for this special kind of headwear.

Georgette and malines, with silk nets, are to be counted among available silks, besides the varieties that are manufactured especially for mourning wear. The last is the best-liked by designers when they are required to make tailored hats.

Very little trimming finds place on these tailored hats, and such ornaments as are used, are often made of the same silk as the hat, or of faille or grosgrain ribbon. Both in making hats and trimmings, intricate and perfect workmanship is at a premium. Graceful shapes, conservative in lines and size are the correct beginning for all mourning millinery. The group of three silk hats shown in the picture above may be taken as criterions by which to measure up similar hats.

Table Linen.
Leaf effects are especially popular now for table linens and of these the handsomest is the oak leaf design.

GIRL, 13, SEES FAMILY SLAIN

Claims Moonshiner Beau of Sister Committed Quadruple Murder.

ONLY ONE ESCAPES

Facing Trial for Attack on Girl, Man Is Believed to Have Planned to Wipe Out Whole Family.

Amory, Miss.—Charlie Marshall, moonshiner and backwoods beau, is under heavy guard in the jail at Aberdeen, charged with the most brutal quadruple murder ever known in this section.

For, when they buried the charred and shattered bodies of Fannie Green Miller, who had been Marshall's sweetheart; her eight-month-old baby, Burley, said to have been Marshall's son; Robert Miller, Fannie's father, and Leonard, her brother, sixteen, the stage was set for the lynching of Charlie Marshall.

Pearl Miller, thirteen, the only surviving member of the family, says that she watched Charlie Marshall at the hideous task of slaughtering the four victims of the swampland tragedy.

The belief of the countryside is that Charlie Marshall, facing trial shortly for an attack on Fannie Miller, planned to dodge this trial by wiping out the whole Miller family, and that the escape of the thirteen-year-old girl upset this plan.

From miles about the lean and swarthy dwellers of the bottom country drove in with their womenfolk seated in chairs in the boxes of the lumber wagons to discuss in shocked whispers what had been done in the blackness of a stormy night. There were ominous bulges under homespun shirts; there were well-worn shotguns and rifles under the wagon seats.

Sheriff John E. Lewis fled from Amory with his prisoner in an automobile and saved Marshall from the vengeance of the countryside.

There was much talk in the Tom Bigbee bottom about the Miller family and Charlie Marshall. Fannie Miller had known Marshall all her life, but started "keeping company" with him three years ago, when he "saw her home" from a circuit rider's meeting. She was fifteen then, and Marshall twice her age.

Tells Father of Attack.
About eighteen months ago the girl returned one evening and tore up Marshall's picture, scattering the fragments in the fireplace.

Her mother died 12 years ago, and in the lonely farmhouse Fannie had no one to whom she could confide. Later she was compelled to tell her father what had happened. She said that Marshall had seized her as she was walking with him in a field, and had dragged her into a canebrake, smothering her cries by pressing his hand over her mouth.

Robert Miller had his three motherless children to care for, one of them needing him more desperately than ever, so he determined to let the law take its course. He had Marshall arrested. Marshall said he was innocent of the girl's charges and his trial was to have been held at the next term of court.

According to Pearl Miller's story, which she tells with the self-control of a strong-minded adult, Marshall entered her home after her father, brother and sister had been shot down and the home dynamited. He clubbed to death the baby crawling on the floor beside its dead mother, soaked the place with oil and set fire to it as Pearl fled through the loft and ran, with a sprained ankle, over a mile of flooded fields to the home of a neighbor.

FAMOUS BOWERY IS NO MORE NOT SO HARD TO UNDERSTAND

Prohibition and General Good Things Responsible for Disappearance of Its Oldtime Characteristics.

New York's old-time Bowery is no more. No final rites have marked its passage, nor has the last requiem been sung, but of recent months the change has been progressing swiftly and noticeably.

Only old-timers can remember the "Tub of Blood" and other famous dives, but now even the modern hang-outs are disappearing one by one before the advent of national prohibition.

Most potent of the changes in America's former driftway of human wreckage is the virtual disappearance of the "Bowery bum." A newspaper feature writer recently sojourned on the street for a time, and he reported that the "bums" are now almost all at least casual workers, and that "cash," or a sizable roll of the "long green," abounds.

After Experience With Truthful Parent, Teacher Got Great Light on Johnny's Case.

A teacher who believed in co-operating with the parents of her pupils called at the house of a small boy whom she had caught in a number of falsehoods in order to take counsel with his mother.

"I can't see how you can say that," the boy's mother objected. "John never tells me lies. I'm mighty particular about it myself. He's out in the yard now. Annie," she said to his small sister, "you go out and tell him to come right in this minute!"

Annie went, but in a few minutes she returned without the small prevaricator. "He won't come," she announced proudly. "He says he won't."

"Did you tell him who was here?" inquired his mother. "Annie shook her head. "All right," said the truthful parent. "Go back and tell him his grandmother is here and has some candy for him. That'll bring him!"—Youth's Companion.

The Great Idea: Service as the Basis of Human Relations Everywhere.

By DR. LEO LEVY-BRUHL, of the Sorbonne.

The world is passing through a period of great social transformations. What we call unrest is but a symptom of profound changes which are taking place in the minds and hearts of people everywhere. But, as we master the full meaning of what is going on, we shall then realize that the present unrest is the birth pangs of a new ideal of human life based upon service and social justice.

There is only one way out of the economic crisis in which all Europe is floundering. That is to get down to work, to resume production with renewed energy. But the working people refuse to give their labor except on new terms.

There are periods in history when great acts of sacrifice are a social necessity. The individual sacrifices during the war revealed the beauty of the human soul in its capacity for self-immolation on the altar of national and human progress. Now that the war is over, the time seems ripe for collective sacrifices of groups and classes, for the great purposes of human civilization. No one who is at all attentive to the intellectual and social movement of the day can fail to sense the strong popular current that has set in against the special privilege of wealth and economic power. The abolition of all special privilege seems to me the inevitable outcome of the present social upheaval.

I take a hopeful view of the situation. The painful gropings of the day seem to me to be stimulated by a great idea which is becoming clearer every day. It is the idea of service as the basis of human relations. This is our modern expression of the eternal quest for social justice. I believe that we are nearer this ideal than ever before in human history.

Leading Commercial Nations May Fix Gold and Silver Exchange Ratio.

By SENATOR THOMAS of Colorado, Speech in Congress.

Mr. President, I have neither the wish nor the need to revive the old free-silver controversy which disturbed the political and financial chronometers from 1873 to 1900 and which became the paramount issue of the campaign of 1896. Its fundamental premise disappeared when silver touched 1.2929 in the markets of last November. It reversed itself when the price passed that figure. Gold then became the defendant in the world's financial courts. There it can say nothing in its behalf.

Events have confirmed the wisdom of bimetalism, justified the arguments of its defenders, confounded the contentions of gold-standard permanency, and demonstrated the great truth that the material composing money of redemption, whatever it may be, must yield to the inexorable pressure of demand and supply, and rest its fixity of values upon the fiat of human laws and customs.

If any illustration were needed to emphasize this fundamental truth, it can be found in the career of the American silver dollar which has through all the years passed current at 100 cents, while silver in the market has fluctuated from 46 cents to 134 cents the ounce.

Bold, indeed, is the man who will today contend that the leading commercial nations may not agree upon and enforce a fixed ratio of exchange between the metals and thereby steady the markets of the world, increase the volume of standard money, quicken the currents of trade, and establish the world's commerce upon a permanent and enduring money basis.

Our General Welfare and Happiness Are Menaced by Epidemic of Divorce.

By CIRCUIT JUDGE DAVID M. BROTHERS, Chicago.

Russia is menaced by legions of martial bolsheviks. America is menaced by legions of marital bolsheviks. With the possible exception of the germ of bolshevism, there is no "bug" more menacing to our general happiness and welfare today than the "divorcitis" germ. It is a disease that may easily become epidemic. It has already become a cancer in our national life.

Meeting this situation taxes the ingenuity and patience of those having authority to untie marital knots, but who would far rather discover just why the knots were slipping and apply some remedies.

Personal cleanliness and tidiness is one thing that must be given consideration. Untidiness in personal appearance is inexcusable.

You cannot afford to ignore the call of the shoebrush, the clothes-brush, the toothbrush, the hairbrush any more than you can ignore the call of the stomach for food or the lungs for air.

Your mind stands in just the same need of an occasional housecleaning. This is especially true when you begin to think of divorce. Take yourself out into a patch of mental sunshine and give your brain a good scrubbing.

If there are any divorce germs left—consult a lawyer! But only then!

Tentative Attitude of Women Toward Their Jobs Suggests Instability.

By MRS. KEY COMMACK, New York City Banker.

I think the woman in business who gives up one particle of her feminism is throwing away just that much chance of success. Even greater will be her mistake to trade upon her sex.

Concentration is what the business woman needs who would be successful, greater concentration upon her work to the exclusion of a thousand things that distract the feminine mind.

The tentative attitude of women toward their jobs has given employers an impression of feminine instability. It has kept women's wages below men's.

I do not believe women will find aping of masculine mannerisms and clothes an aid to success. An exquisite feminine personality is unique and an asset.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

GREAT NEED IS PRODUCTION

Men Must Be Given Inducement to Work and Guaranteed Fair Deal in the Distribution of the Result.

Article VI.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

The world lives by two kinds of work, the work on the soil and the labor spent in making things. In this way we get the things we eat and wear. We have eaten up our surplus. The world's reserve is gone. We are literally living from hand to mouth. To overcome the food shortage we must put every inch of available ground into production. Only by doing this can we live and gradually get back the surplus which stood as a protection against crop failures.

Production is not automatic, it is the work of man. There is not anything complex about it. You can't use magic. To grow things men must plow and gather. The will to work is our greatest need. The land is available. God furnishes the sunshine and the rain. To get the plows, tractors and farm tools we must look to the industrial arm of life. Here again is the call for men. We are short of man power. Men were killed and crippled in the war. The men who survived the war must help do the work that would have been done by those who did not come back. In their present frame of mind they do not wish to work, at least under the old conditions obtaining before the war. It is necessary to furnish them with an inducement to work. There was little inducement for men to work before the war. The discontented are not kicking at work. Their objection goes to the unfairness shown in distributing the result. It isn't a secret. They are shouting it from the housetops of Europe, they demand a larger share of the things they produce, or they refuse to work. There is a good deal of human nature in it, too. It is only human nature to think of self. There isn't anything unnatural in the workman looking for reward. Willingness to work is largely based on the thought of working for oneself.

Five things are necessary to start and keep production going. In other words, to get the clothes, shoes, stockings, coal and comforts of life, to give the farmer the tools he needs for agricultural production, so that we may eat; to provide the transportation necessary to collection and distribution, to bring the city to the country and the country to the market we must do five essential things.

Production's First Need.

First, we must have plants, and I use the word in the most general sense. These plants must be equipped with machinery and tools, they must be ready for work.

Second, a plant is useless and stands idle unless we provide raw material, the thing furnished by nature that man and machine work into the finished product.

Third, we must have coal. Coal runs the machine and keeps warm the home of the man who runs the machine. The helplessness of the world without coal is brought home to me while I am writing these articles. The miners have left the pit. The government, through the courts, has tried to force them back. The effort is a failure. The streets are dark at night. The houses are cold. Business is crying out against necessary restrictions imposed because of the coal shortage. I realize as I never have before how dependent we are on the men who pick and dig the coal. All of the intelligence and culture, the courts, the gold, are but symbols of power. When the coal miners folded their hands and set their teeth things stopped.

Fourth, transportation is necessary to the gathering, collecting and delivering of raw material and the distribution of the finished product.

Fifth, and last, but first in importance, is man power. The purpose of production is man. He is master of it at every stage, in every department. Without him production is impossible. The business men who proceed on the theory that men could not live without their business, its pay roll, forget the first and greater truth that there would be no business without the workers. Man cuts, digs, gathers and hauls the raw material. He hews the wood, builds the plant. He mines the ore, he makes the tools, the machinery. He oils it, sets it in motion. He runs it. He makes the furnace and the boiler. He digs and shovels the coal which makes the power. He defies the heat of the furnace. He builds the locomotive and pulls its throttle. He makes the freight car and stands in the sleet in the dangerous railroad yard with the signal of safety.

Railroads All Worn Out.

Transportation in Europe is partly paralyzed. During the war railroad tracks and roadbeds were allowed to deteriorate. It could not be helped, but the fact that it was unavoidable doesn't alter the situation. Roadbed and rails have fallen to pieces. There is a terrible shortage of cars. Every-where on the Continent this is felt.

They have less than a third of the rolling stock necessary to meet normal requirements. The demand for transportation facilities will necessarily increase during the period of reconstruction. I have seen locomotives sneezing, coughing, expiring every few miles. Old, broken-down engines, the kind one expects to find in a museum. I was on a de luxe train, a diplomatic express. I commented upon the condition of the locomotive, which came to a full stop every once in a while. I commented upon the condition of the coaches. The chief of the train looked at me, smiled and said: "If you think this one is bad you ought to see some of the others."

The war disarranged plants and factories. The demand was for munitions. Peace gave way to war and plant equipment efficient for peace production gave way to plant construction necessary to manufacture the weapons of war. Plants were commandeered. Machinery was torn out, new machinery put in. A complete reconstruction and reorganization was effected. Now that the war is over and the demand for everything is great, it is necessary to change these plants back and fit them for the production needed. It is expensive, it takes time, it retards production.

It is strange that, while everyone can see and understand the difficulties and delays incident to reorganizing and rearranging machinery and plants, many people cannot see or understand the problem of rearranging men's lives, who for four years have been living abnormally. The effect of the war upon plants and equipment is conceded by the very man who refused to see any effect of the war on the men who were in it.

Women in Labor World.

During the war women answered the roll call. They left their homes and went to work. There is hardly a kind of work that I can think of that I have not seen women doing in Europe. I have seen them loading boats, shoveling coal, washing windows, driving wagons, cleaning streets, conducting on trams. Many of the women who went into the industries were young women. Now that the war is over and the men have come back there is a demand on the part of the men that the women retire to their homes. This is impossible in many cases, for these women have grown dependent upon their jobs for their living. Then, too, there is a shortage of marriageable men. Some employers of labor have taken advantage of this situation. They pay a woman less money than they pay a man for the same work. This makes both dissatisfied. The woman has the sympathy of the working man. He doesn't want her to compete with him to the extent that his wages will be lowered, neither does he want the boss to discriminate against her.

Women have come into the world of work to stay. If there is any meaning in the phrase "class conscious," they are living examples of it. They are more outspoken about their demands than men. They sense a wrong long before a man can see it. They have brought their intuition into the labor world. They are more radical than men, and they stimulate men to action. They have brought to the labor problem a new and interesting angle.

The key to the future is in the hands of these men and women. Production is the door that must be opened. Men and women must work, or winter and want will make a No Man's Land of Europe before the sun of 1920 thaws the frost from the ground.

Children crying for bread, shivering in the cold these bleak winter nights, are praying that men will work when they pray to God for good and warmth. Their help cries are smothered by a great blanket—unrest. Will men hear them?

So I sought to find the causes of unrest, knowing it would bring me close to the heart of the trouble. (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

Dickens' Tribute to the Cow. If civilized peoples were to lapse into the worship of animals, the cow would certainly be their chosen goddess. What a fountain of blessing is the cow! She is the mother of beef, the source of butter, the original cause of cheese, to say nothing of shoebonds, haircombs and upper leathers. A gentle, amiable, ever-yielding creature, who has no joy in her family affairs that she does not share with man. We rob her of her children, that we may rob her thereafter of her milk; and we only care for her when the robbery may be perpetrated.—Charles Dickens.

Approaching the End.

Cicero in his dialogue entitled "De Senectute" makes one of his interlocutors say that all men wish to attain old age and yet complain of the fact when they have attained it. He adds that one of the grievances of the old is that age steals over them more rapidly than they expected. It is pointed out that we cannot prevent time from passing, and that even if we lived eight hundred instead of eighty years the past time, however long, cannot when it has flown away be able to "soothe with any consolation for an old age of folly."

A Sister Wilhelm Did Not Like. Princess Charlotte of Meiningen, sister of the ex-emperor, who died recently, had been a sufferer for years and had undergone many operations. She passed most of her time on the Riviera. Indeed, the princess was a woman you couldn't miss. She wore bobbed hair, when no other woman had ever dreamed of such a thing, and talked democracy, and smoked all the time. The ex-emperor was rather alarmed at her vagaries and preferred his other sister, Queen Sophie of Greece, who is more his sort.—London Mail.

TRIES TO BURN SELF TO DEATH

Crazed Woman Rescued as She Tries to Close Firebox Door.

Bradford, Pa.—Seeking to kill herself by roasting to death, Mrs. Jessie Hunt crawled into a firebox at the Kendall refinery. Prompt action of Charles A. Barr, stationary fireman on duty at the plant, thwarted Mrs. Hunt's attempt at self-destruction. She is in a hospital, suffering from severe burns.

Mrs. Hunt gained admittance to the boiler room by an ingenious ruse. At three o'clock in the morning she knocked at the door of the room and told Mr. Barr that she was looking for a man named Jackson, employed at the refinery. She said "Jackson's wife was seriously ill, and wanted him to return at once." Barr went in search of the man, and when he returned to the boiler room the woman was not in sight.

Detecting the odor of something burning, the fireman examined his boilers. He noticed a fire-box door open and hastened to investigate. Mrs. Hunt was lying on the blazing coals, her head in the open doorway and reaching with one hand to pull the door closed after her.

Barr seized the woman and dragged her from the firebox head-first. Most of her clothing already was burned and falling from her body. Barr dragged the woman out of doors and rolled her in the snow, extinguishing the blaze. Then he turned in a call for an ambulance.

Mrs. Hunt is thirty-eight years old and has three children. Her husband died six years ago. She is said to have been confined in a sanitarium.

FORCED TO GET EXCITEMENT

English Court Clerk Is Given Eight Months in Jail for Altering Postal Drafts.

London.—Here is a young man who cannot get enough thrills out of life without being dishonest. And even dishonesty soon ceases to lead a thrill to him.

James Walter Evers, twenty-six, formerly a clerk at the admiralty, pleaded guilty at the Old Bailey recently to forging and altering naval postal drafts worth $7,100. Pleading for leniency, Evers said:

"During the greater part of my life I have been afflicted with an extraordinary lust for excitement and thrills. While this longing for excitement has often led me into dangerous and troublesome adventures, it has never made me commit a criminal offense until now. I swear when I conceived this scheme my main thought was the excitement. I left off going to post offices because I found myself going into them mechanically and getting no thrill of excitement in handling forged drafts over the counter. I had 200 more drafts in my pocket."

Evers was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment.

"Was he drowned?" asked the wife. "Oh, no," answered the husband, "but he sprained his ankle, I believe!"

Happy Old Age

Of course youth is the great time for happiness, but old age has its compensations, too, provided age represents the declining years of a well-spent life.

But to be happy in old age there must be a good competence secured during the productive years of life. We all must grow old. There is no avoiding it, but there is a way of avoiding a penniless, poverty-stricken old age. That's why we urge people to start a savings account which will be a friend in need as you travel along, and a great comforter during your declining years.

THIS THE MOMENT OF MOMENTS TO GAIN SPIRITUAL UNITY

By DR. JOHN R. MOTT.

DR. JOHN R. MOTT, Chairman Executive Committee Interchurch World Movement.

This is the moment of moments for us to find our unity, our spiritual solidarity, without sacrificing our diversity and that which is most distinctive to each of our communions and which, by the way, is the choicest possession we have.
The reason why we of each denomination most value that which is distinctive to us is not simply because it is ours, but because we honestly believe it is the truth. It is our choicest possession. Without sacrificing our distinctiveness we want to realize our unity and solidarity as we gather 'round the figure of our Lord with open minds, responsive hearts and, I would say, hair trigger wills—by that I mean wills that are eager to leap into action when we see a clear path.

MAKING RURAL SURVEY

Work of Nation-Wide Survey by Interchurch World Movement of Great Importance.

In almost all parts of the United States state rural survey supervisors are finding themselves in situations where they have to restrain local communities from founding federated or union churches, especially without any ecclesiastical or denominational connection. Men are having this experience in various parts of the central West. The last incident comes from one of the Mississippi valley states.

Prairieville has a population of 200 and for years has had two churches. There never has been a resident pastor and most of the time either one church or the other was without its fractional allowance of some minister's time. The people themselves decided that they ought to unite in some sort of community fellowship. They were insistent that they had been unfairly treated by denominational boards and that there was no hope of ever bringing about an adequate ministry of religion for their community through official sources. To them the only solution was to cut loose from all denominational affiliation.

A group of fifteen of them from the two churches and from two country churches, closely contiguous to the town, waited upon the Interchurch World Movement supervisor and ask his help in bringing this about. He reports that they put him through the severest siege of grueling he has ever experienced. The meeting lasted four hours.

The supervisor gave them data concerning undenominational churches, sketched out such plans as had been used in Vermont and Montana, and finally persuaded them to express their convictions in a resolution and present it to the proper denominational officials. The procedure which the Interchurch hopes, in the light of the survey, to follow with these people and was probably the one thing, more than any other, which induced them to abandon, for the present, their idea of a federated church.

Tributary to this little trade center of Prairieville are about 1,000 people. The action of their leaders is proof of the fact that in many an average rural or village community there is latent the dynamic power and the leadership for the democratic management of their own affairs. This instance, and the others occurring, evidence the fact that there is a widespread spirit of rebellion on account of the inefficiency of the ministrations thus far given them.

The Interchurch World Movement has succeeded in procuring a temporary stay of federated and unaffiliated union churches. The people are now ready to accept a denominational church, but they are determined to have only one.

What will church officialdom do for Prairieville and thousands of other Prairievilles that are coming to light?

"No Man Alone Can Take a Trench."
"Keep together! Keep together!" shouted a commanding officer overseas. "No man alone can take a trench!" I say: Keep together! Keep together, men of God! No church alone can take a world!—G. Sherwood Eddr.

The Can't Clog Rotary Hog Feeder

FARMERS! Do you realize what a self feeder means to you?
It means HEALTHIER HOGS, LESS WORK and SAVES FEED.
Agricultural authorities have proven that hogs fed on dry feed grow fatter, have finer flesh and produce more pork than those fed the old way. The hog who gets dry feed from a CAN'T CLOG FEEDER is bound to eat slowly and chew his food so thoroughly that he digests it. That keeps him healthier and put fine flesh on his BACK instead of soft flesh on his BELLY. He will grow 25% faster than one fed the old way. Using CAN'T CLOG FEEDER will keep the quality of your pork up, and prevent much sickness, in addition to stopping WASTE from spoiled feed. For ECONOMY and PROFITS it is something every hog raiser should have.

Who said oil?

"Back to the Republic."

Now listen to the tornado insurance agent. He has come into his own.

It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. We call your attention to the activities of the tornado insurance agents.

It has always been conceded by every fatalist that it is a sign of bad luck to pick up a pin when the point is toward you. This same proverb holds good when sitting down on one.

It is high time that someone was getting busy on the oil proposition. Genoa's streets will soon be in condition to receive the treatment. If you want oil on your street, now is the time to start something; do not leave the matter to your neighbor, for he is assuming the same attitude.

If the delegates to the constitutional convention listen to every interest that appears before them, we will have a constitution that will be a code of "blue laws." The constitutional convention should keep in mind the fact that a constitution is not and should not be a code of laws, but the foundation on which just laws may be made.

It took Mr. Hoover some time to make up his mind which was the proper party to affiliate with. We could have told him some time ago that the Republican party is the only one in sight at the present time. As a presidential candidate Mr. Hoover has made a poor start. Why the delay in naming his love? Republican principles are no different now than a year ago or twenty years ago. They have always stood for everything that builds nations on a foundation of real prosperity.

The "Initiative and Referendum" is not compatible with the Republican form of government, but is the first step toward a democracy, a form of government that no American wants, if he will study the matter carefully. The most profound thinkers this nation ever knew were instrumental in forming the consti-tion of the United States. Anything favoring of a pure democracy was farthest from their minds. The "Initiative and Referendum" has no place in a representative form of government.

Senator Borah accuses the presidential candidates of spending great sums of money in their campaign. Laughter! Does the senator think that the people of the United States are all nuts? We know that all candidates will spend money and then some more. If they do not, they may as well lay down right now. And the more democratic the form of government becomes, the more money must be expended in getting before the people. Will the senator please tell us how he expects the presidential candidates to make themselves known unless they do spend money? Under the system of a preference primary, they must necessarily reach every individual voter, whereas, under the old system, they merely fought for recognition from the representatives of the same people. This same condition prevails down to the county offices.

Not Right Kind of Laughter.
One is tempted sometimes to laugh at another's mishap or disappointment, but the laughter that leaves a sting in someone's heart is not the sort of laughter that helps anyone.

FITZ, MAX AND QUIGG.

Synopsis—Typical tramp in appearance, Daniel Randolph Fitzhugh, while crossing a Chicago street, causes the wreck of an auto, whose chauffeur disposes of it trying to avoid running him down. In pity the occupant of the auto, a young girl, saves him from arrest and gives him a dollar, telling him to buy soap, and wash. His sense of shame is touched, and he improves his appearance. That night he meets Esther Strom, a Russian anarchist, who induces Fitzhugh to address a meeting. Fitzhugh visits Symington Otis, prominent financier, and displaying a package which he says contains dynamite, demands $10,000. Otis gives him a check. At the house he meets the girl who had given him the dollar, and learns she is Kathleen Otis. She recognizes him. Ashamed, he tears up the check and escapes, but is arrested. Esther visits Fitzhugh in jail and makes arrangements for procuring legal advice. His trial is speedily completed and he is found insane and committed to an asylum, from which he easily makes his escape. Fitzhugh takes refuge in Chicago, with Esther, who has become infatuated with him. With the thought of Kathleen in his mind, his one idea is to become rich and powerful, and win Kathleen. While hiding in Esther's house he grows a beard, which effectively changes his appearance. In a fight with Nikolay, jealous admirer of Esther, Fitzhugh wounds him, leaving him unconscious, and escapes. Securing mental employment he learns that Nikolay has been found dead in Esther's house, and in a letter to him she admits the killing, telling him she did it for his sake and that she has gone away. He sees Kathleen from a distance, and is strengthened in his determination to win her.

CHAPTER VI.

Fitzhugh began to fret and fume at his irksome employment. He was coming to believe he had made a mistake in adopting such slow means to an eagerly desired end, when, in the fifth week, something occurred that dispelled his growing pessimism. It was a warm Saturday night, and when he came from the broiling kitchen with his coat under his arm, dripping with perspiration, his employer met him and handed him eight dollars, five of which he promptly placed between the leaves of his savings bankbook, which now showed a balance of twenty dollars.

As he nodded good-night to his employer he noticed a hatch-faced man in a checker-board suit on one of the lunch-counter stools. Before Fitzhugh reached Van Buren street this man confronted him and, smiling as cordially as his hard face would permit, asked:

"How much does the Greek pay you?"

"According to my desert, my solicitous friend. I draw the munificent salary of eight dollars each week."

The questioner pushed back his hat and chewed his cigar. And his head bobbed up and down as he scanned the dishwasher from top to toe.

"I s'pose you'll do," he finally decided. "Come 'long to the next block. Got some'n' I want to show you."

He led the way up State street, and near Jackson boulevard stopped before a gold-and-white restaurant, glittering with electric lights, brand new and spick and span. Across the plate-glass window in letters three feet high was the name, "Max's."

"See that? That's me. I'm Max." He tapped his chest proudly. "You've got to make that name famous. Understand me? Famous! Come! Come 'long inside and I'll tell you all 'bout it."

They went in, and Mr. Max outlined his plan. Briefly, it was this: Fitzhugh, after a visit to a barber, was to appear himself in distinguished garb, and with an aristocratic demeanor, was to promenade State street for five hours daily. Painted in white letters on the back of his frock-coat would be the name "MAX'S."

"Um-hum," observed Fitzhugh, drawing reflectively on his cigar. "How much do I get for this?"

"Well, let me see—say fifteen a week. How's that strike you?"

"Not favorably. Make it thirty and the deal's closed." And even as he spoke Fitzhugh was wondering if his beard sufficiently disguised him. He decided it did. Besides, there were the theatrical possibilities of the thing, and this appealed strongly to his love for make-believe.

After some further bargaining it was agreed he was to receive twenty dollars the first week and, if employed longer, thirty dollars each for all subsequent weeks.

He reported for work Monday morning. Accompanied by Max, he went to a barber's shop and afterward to a clothing establishment where ready-made apparel of the better class was sold. About eleven o'clock he stepped from the restaurant, paused in the vestibule, took a pair of new chamol gloves from a pocket and began drawing them on. When he stepped out into the morning crowd and strolled up State street, swinging a gold-headed cane, his glistening hat towering high above the mass of heads, he started a furore far greater than his sanguine employer expected.

When he reached Adams street there was in his wake a jostling number of more curious ones, anxious to keep him in sight, yet loath to betray their eagerness. He stopped at the corner, mounted a metal refuse box near the curb and, removing his stilk hat with a sweeping gesture, shielded his eyes with his hand and stared straight into the zenith. A minute or more he remained thus, the human jam thickening about him with every second. The sidewalk became speedily choked. A policeman shoved his way through the congestion, reached up, jabbed his knuckles in Fitzhugh's side. "Come out of it, professor," advised he. "It's the closed season for star gazin'."

Fitzhugh put on his hat, stepped down from his pedestal, nodded silently to the officer, and with the pomp and dignity of a lord mayor, retraced his steps down the street, the crowd following.

In the afternoon he again sallied forth and the success of the morning was repeated. He stopped this time at Monroe street for his skyward gaze. Again the crowd surged about him, and again his poise was jarred by a heavy hand. Instead of a policeman, however, he turned to find a man of his own height, but of larger bulk, regarding him with favor rather than of ill-will. He was fashionably attired and there seemed to envelop him an atmosphere of Cash.

"Come Out of It, Professor," Advised the Officer. "It's the Closed Season for Star Gazin'."

The stranger placed his hand on Fitzhugh's shoulder and lowered his voice to a whisper. "I've something for you, friend, that'll make life worth living."

Fitzhugh whispered back: "Lead on, major. I'll follow straight."

In a little while they were seated in a cool place, where large fans whirled softly overhead and where dark bottles and tall glasses were placed before them. The breezy one flipped a card across the table, with the cryptic remark:

"I'm Quigg."

The card fell face up. Fitzhugh read:

QUIGG & PEEVY,
STOCKS—BONDS—GRAIN,

and then briefly intimated:

"And I'm Fitzhugh."

"Greetings, Fitz! Greetings and salutations! What does this sandwich-man stunt bring you in?"

"Such impertinence, Quigg, merits a reprimand, but I'll give you a truthful answer: thirty dollars a week. Commencing next week."

Mr. Quigg placed his glass on the table with elaborate precision. His puffy eyes narrowed.

"Fitz," said he, "I'm going to take a chance. I've watched you twice today, and I think I've found the man I want. I'm no bad judge of a man, either."

He produced a fat morocco wallet and slipped therefrom a treasury note which he passed across the table. "There's your first week's salary in advance. When you're ready for work I am."

Fitzhugh glanced at the bill, and saw it was of a hundred-dollar denomination. He rested both arms on the table and, leaning across, looked his vis-a-vis steadily in the eye.

"Would you mind telling me," he inquired pointedly, "what sort of a game you're playing?"

Quigg chuckled and raised a fat, gloved hand in protest. "I beg to be excused until I've seen my attorney. Here, boy!" A waiter came hurrying.

"Get me a taxi. I've twenty minutes to spare. We'll hustle over to my tailor. That's a bum outfit you're wearing."

Fitzhugh, in accordance with prior arrangement, reported to his new employer at nine-thirty Wednesday morning. He had given up his room in Illinois street, and had taken an unpretentious apartment in a pretentious hotel farther north.

His correct morning attire, faultless, well-tailored, expensive; his finely pointed beard and mustache brushed away from his lips in a French fashion, even the red flower in his buttonhole, lent to his inches an air of distinction foreign to Chicago's higgledy-piggledy financial district. He was acting perfectly the popular conception of a "gentleman of leisure," and quick, sidelong glances of surreptitious interest were cast his way by the hurrying clerks and traders, pressing down La Salle street toward the board of trade, as he entered the building where was the abode of Quigg and Peevy.

On a narrow platform before the blackboard which extended the length of the "customers' room" a phlegmatic youth walked up and down chalking mystical figures, while the telegraphic instrument in a little box at one end chattered its interminable tale. In the three rows of chairs, also spanning the room's length, sat men, well-dressed and nondescript, the latter jotting in dog-eared memorandum books with stub pencils, the former watching the blackboard and conversing earnestly about "market conditions." Messenger boys scuttled to and fro across the floor, clutching at their caps, slapping their books shut, entering and leaving some inner office whence issued the clinkety-click-clink of a buttery of typewriters.

And in all this feverish animation there was something vaguely artificial—too subtle for the casual onlooker, perhaps, but there nevertheless.

As Fitzhugh entered, casting a bored glance around the place, he was met by a uniformed negro, who said: "Mr. Quigg says tell you please, sub, step into his private office at once, sub."

The preceding night, in Quigg's rooms in a hotel, Fitzhugh had been thoroughly apprised of the nature of his post. There had even been "rehearsals." He was therefore not unprepared for what followed his entrance into Quigg's sanctum.

Mr. Quigg, large and prosperous, held a large cigar in a large hand, and occupied a large chair before a large desk, near which sat a colorless, commonplace, inconspicuous man whose weak face was at once inquiring and impressionable. Near by a stock-ticker unrolled its tape into a wicker waste-basket, and from a partly-open door came the furious clattering of many typewriters.

Several years ago the department of agriculture sent out an inquiry to thousands of farm women asking what their homes most needed. One of the letters in reply contained the quoted extract, and in it is voiced the thought found in hundreds of other letters.

An adequate water supply is needed even more by the farm woman than by her city sister, but because this convenience and necessity must come in the country through individual effort rather than municipal, few farm homes have it. In a survey made in 1918 in 26 northern states it was found that but 33 per cent of the farm homes had running water in them. Lack of knowledge as to what water system to install rather than lack of means in many homes is the reason why the women doing the work in it are still pumping and carrying water.

Kinds of Systems. The water system on the farm home may be simple or elaborate, according to the investment the owner is able to make. United States department of agriculture rural engineers say. For a country-home water system, the water may be raised by natural flow, hydraulic rams, pumps, air lifts or air-displacement pumps. Hydraulic rams are the most economical water-lifting devices. Since rams of various sizes and makes perform differently, it usually is necessary to accept the mechanical details determined by the manufacturer. The minimum, never more than the average, flow of the spring should determine the size of the ram. Otherwise, the one selected may be too large for the dry-weather flow. Small flows may be determined by noting the time required to fill a vessel of known capacity. Larger flows may be determined by weir measurements.

When the water supply is far from the ram site, it is usual to pipe the flow to an open tank or reservoir located so as to secure the desired length and fall of drive pipe. Sometimes the flow of a spring is too small to actuate a ram that is sufficient for domestic requirements. In such instances and where a nearby brook can be dammed to obtain the necessary power head, the recoil of the ram may be employed to admit the spring water, which is pumped by the fall of the brook water in the drive pipe.

Horsepower Needed. Water may be raised by hand, windmill, hydraulic rams, steam, hot air, gas, internal-combustion engines, or electric motors. Hand power is unsuited to large supplies of high lifts. Windmills are probably the most familiar type of mechanical power and often are arranged to start and stop automatically. Gasoline and oil engines are well adapted to farm pumping and may be equipped to stop at any desired pressure in a supply tank. The use of electricity for pumping is increasing. The method is clean, quiet and convenient, and starting or stopping a distant pump by throwing a switch may be practical wherever transmission lines are sufficiently near.

The whole question of water in the farm home is discussed in Farmers' Bulletin No. 941, which will be sent free on request to the United States department of agriculture.

ADEQUATE RUNNING-WATER SYSTEM STILL LACKING IN MAJORITY OF COUNTRY HOMES

Dish Washing Is Not Drudgery When Housekeeper Has a Sink Like This.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is no one thing that would make easier the farm woman's work than to have water power in the house. The nature of her duties demands an early rising and a late retiring; but the countless steps in carrying water and emptying water; carrying parings and vegetables and unused fruits to the pails for the pigs; carrying many times a day fresh water for the fowls; carrying, heating, emptying tubs for the bath, for the laundry, for the cooking, canning, and preserving, could be lessened if her home had running water in it. Give her water and she can work out the rest of her problems. Her garden, her orchards, her fowls, her dairy, her lawn, fill up hours which city people do not need to use. She will have more time for reading and be less of a drudge if she can but have a perfected system of water-works.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if kidneys feel like lead or bladder bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulates them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

DOCTOR ADVISED CHANGE OF CLIMATE

Run Down and Lungs Hurt—Stayed Home and Gained 22 Pounds.

"In November, 1911, I had a severe cold and a gripe, which left me with a bad cough. My lungs and shoulder blades hurt so I couldn't sleep and I finally had to give up my job and was ordered to change climate. In April, 1912, I began taking Milk's Emulsion. On the second bottle I could see a change. My appetite was better and I commenced to gain strength and weight. Now (August 23, 1912) I have used 23 bottles, have increased 22 pounds in weight and believe I am permanently cured."—W. F. Bourland, Route 5, Wolf City, Texas.

Mr. Bourland was fortunate in commencing to use Milk's Emulsion when he did. A run-down system invites disease. Milk's Emulsion costs nothing to try. Milk's Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milk's Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milk's Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 50c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milk's Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

GOVERNMENT WARNS AGAINST SACCHARIN

Use of Substance in Place of Sugar Is Condemned.

Many Housewives Do Not Understand That Drug Is Serious Menace to Health—Majority of States Prohibit Its Use.

The use of saccharin in place of sugar, which many housewives are being tempted to resort to in these days of sugar shortage, may involve damage to the health, and therefore is to be condemned, according to specialists in the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture. In most cases housewives have turned to this substance in their emergency because they do not understand that saccharin is a harmful drug; to consider it a harmless, healthful substitute for sugar is absolutely false, say the government's chemists.

The department of agriculture has received a number of inquiries from housewives concerning the properties of saccharin, and in every case it has answered by condemning the use of the drug for cooking purposes. It calls attention to the fact that the bureau of chemistry is now aiding in the prosecution of a large St. Louis concern, which makes saccharin, for violation of the Food and Drug act.

"The attempt to exploit the shortage of sugar and create a demand for saccharin for use in place of sugar endeavors to capitalize the public's lack of knowledge of the properties of this substance, and the bureau of chemistry feels called upon to reiterate the warnings which it has given repeatedly in its publications," said Carl L. Alsberg, chief of the bureau, who cites his testimony before a subcommittee of the senate's committee on agriculture on this same subject, as showing the extent of the present menace due to the public's not being properly informed.

"The department regards the use of saccharin in food as a menace to health," says Dr. Alsberg. "This is the position of the department today, as it was in 1911, when official decisions were rendered. There has been no scientific evidence adduced on the basis of which the department would be justified in any manner in altering its position."

"The department regards food to which saccharin has been added as adulterated, since a substance has been added to the food which may render it deleterious to health. It also regards it as adulterated in that a substance of no food value whatever has been substituted for sugar, a very valuable food. The department has now pending a criminal prosecution against one concern for the shipment interstate of a parcel of saccharin labeled as harmless. Furthermore, a majority of the states prohibit the use of saccharin

BACK ACHING?

That "bad back" is probably due to weak kidneys, a trouble that often follows grip, cold, or overwork. It shows in constant, dull, throbbing backache, or sharp twinges when stooping or lifting. You have headaches, too, dizzy spells, a tired, nervous feeling and irregular kidney action. Don't neglect it. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands have saved themselves serious kidney ills by timely use of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

It wasn't long before Doan's put my kidneys in good shape and I was back to work again, in good health."

A WELL-KNOWN INSTITUTION.

Probably no institution in America is more widely known than Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y. Although established many years ago it is today a modern sanitarium, having all the latest facilities for the correct diagnosis of diseases and their successful treatment through medicine or surgery.

It was Dr. Pierce, its founder, who over 50 years ago gave to the world that wonderful stomach tonic and blood purifier, "Golden Medical Discovery," and that famous non-alcoholic medicine for women, "Favorite Prescription."

In his early professional career, Dr. Pierce realized that every family, but especially those who live remote from a physician, should have at hand an instructive book that would teach them something about First Aid, Physiology, Anatomy, Hygiene; how to recognize different diseases, how to care for the sick, what to do in case of accident or sudden sickness, etc., so he published that great book, "The Medical Adviser," an up-to-date edition of which can be procured by sending 50 cents to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

Later, Dr. Pierce added another link to his chain of good works by establishing a bureau of correspondence to which any one can write for medical advice, without any expense whatever, and if necessary, medicines especially prepared in Doctor Pierce's Laboratory will be sent by parcel post or express for use at home, at a reasonable cost. Thus those who have symptoms of disease need not suffer mental agony fearing that they have some serious ailment, but can have a diagnosis made free by a physician of high professional standing. Write to Dr. Pierce relating your symptoms if you need medical advice for any chronic disease. All letters regarded as confidential.

"Nello, Earth! Nello!"

Marconi believes he is receiving signals from the planets

Testa

Marconi

Edison

OF COURSE you recall Jules Verne's "Ten Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." Well, his submarine is now an accomplished fact, isn't it?

And doubtless you read Kipling's "With the Night Mail." Well, the Atlantic has been crossed in a single flight, hasn't it?

Probably, also, you read H. G. Wells' "The War of the Worlds," in which the Martians descended upon us with fighting machines even more formidable than the tanks of the great war and a mysterious agent of wholesale destruction even more deadly than any gas used by either side.

Well, who shall say that Wells hasn't the right idea about Mars being inhabited by beings just as smart as we are—and probably a good deal smarter?

It is a bold man who says "impossible" these days. Anyway, Guglielmo Marconi, the famous Italian engineer, who perfected wireless telegraphy, has opened up an exceedingly interesting question by this statement:

"I have encountered during my experiments with wireless telegraphy most amazing phenomena. Most striking of all is the receipt by me personally of signals which I believe originated in the space beyond our planet. I believe it is entirely possible that these signals may have been sent by the inhabitants of other planets to the inhabitants of earth."

"If there are any human beings on Mars I would not be surprised if they should find a means of communication with this planet. Linking of the science of astronomy with that of electricity may bring about almost anything."

"While our own planet is a storehouse of wonders, we are not warranted in accepting as a fact the general supposition that the inhabitants of our comparatively insignificant planet are any more highly developed than inhabitants (if there be such) of other planets."

"For all we know, the strange sounds that I have received by wireless may be only a forerunner of a tremendous discovery."

"The messages have been distinct but unintelligible. They have been received simultaneously in London and in New York, with identical intensity, indicating that they must have originated at a great distance."

"These signals are apparently due to electromagnetic waves of great length, which are not merely stray signals. Occasionally such signals can be imagined to correspond with certain letters of the Morse code. They steal in at our stations irregularly at all seasons. We do not get the signals unless we establish a minimum of 65-mile wave lengths. Sometimes we hear these planetary or interplanetary sounds 20 or 30 minutes after sending out a long wave. They do not interrupt traffic, but when they occur they are very persistent."

"The most familiar signal received is curiously musical. It comes in the form of three short raps, which may be interpreted as the Morse letter 'S,' but there are other sounds which may stand for other letters."

"The war prevented an investigation of the Lertzian mystery, but now our organization intends to undertake a thorough probe."

Australia corroborates Marconi's statement. Highly skilled and experienced operators at Sydney have received numerous signals similar to those reported as having been received in England. They consist of frequent repetitions of two dashes, representing the letter M. They are on wave lengths of 80,000 to 120,000 meters. The Australian experts say such wave lengths have never yet been used by any wireless station of the earth."

Now what do the electrical authorities say on the general subject? Here it is, in brief:

Thomas A. Edison has this to say: "Although I am not an expert in wireless telegraphy, I can plainly see that the mysterious wireless interruptions experienced by Mr. Marconi's operators may be good grounds for the theory that inhabitants of other planets are trying to signal to us. Mr. Marconi is quite right in stating that this is entirely within the realm of the possible."

"I have given some thought to the matter and can record one personal experience which may or may not have bearing on proving that Mr. Marconi is right. I was seated on the peak of a great pile of iron ore near the reduction plant at Orange one day, when I noticed that the magnetic needle was jumping about in astonishing fashion. The thought immediately popped into my mind that static signals from some other planet were probably responsible. This idea took such a hold on me that I made the definite suggestion that there be established in the ore fields of Michigan a station where scientific vigil might be kept, in the hope that the great masses of ore in that region would attract magnetic signals from interplanetary space.

"If we are to accept the theory of Mr. Marconi that these signals are being sent out by inhabitants of other planets, we must at once accept with it the theory of their advanced development. Either they are our intellectual equals or our superiors. It would be stupid for us to assume that we have a corner on all the intelligence in the universe."

Nikola Tesla, the famous Serbian inventor and electrical expert says: "Marconi's idea of communicating with the other planets is the greatest and most fascinating problem confronting the human imagination today. To insure success a body of competent scientists should be organized to study all possible plans and put into execution the best. The matter should be directed probably by astronomers with sufficient backing from men with money and imagination. Supposing that there are intelligent human beings on Mars, success is easily within the range of possibility. In March, 1907, I stated in the Harvard Illustrated Magazine that experiments looking to communication with other planets should be undertaken."

"In 1899 I built an electric plant in Colorado and obtained activities of 18,000,000 horsepower. In the course of my experiments I employed a receiver of virtually unlimited sensitiveness. There were no other wireless plants near, and, at that time, no other wireless plants anywhere on this earth of sufficient range to affect mine. One day my ear caught what seemed to be regular signals. I knew that they could not have been produced upon the earth. The possibility that they came from Mars occurred to me, but the pressure of business affairs caused me to drop the experiment."

"The thing, I think, that we should try to develop is a plan akin to picture transmission, by means of which we could convey to the inhabitants of Mars knowledge of earthly forms. This would enable us to exchange with them not only simple primitive facts, but involved conceptions. To talk to Mars seems to me only a matter of electric power and perseverance."

Frank Dyson, British astronomer royal, believes we could get Hertizian waves from other planets. Prof. Edward Branley, Paris, inventor of the coherer, is sceptical. Prof. Domenico Argentieri, Rome, says the supposed signals are worthy of careful observation.

Prof. Albert Einstein, the German astronomer and author of the theory of "Relativity" that is apparently upsetting all accepted doctrines, believes that Mars and other planets are inhabited, but if intelligent creatures are trying to communicate with the earth he should expect them to use rays of light, which could much more easily be controlled.

Are there inhabitants on Mars? That's a question on which scientists differ.

Among scientists who have won the right to speak with authority the foremost was the late Professor Lowell, director of the observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz. Not only was Professor Lowell convinced that Mars was inhabited, but he believed the people had a much higher degree of intelligence than those on earth. He dwelt particularly on their inventive genius.

In 1914 he found a new opportunity for strengthening his pet belief by announcing that instead of losing any of their canals the Martians had built two new ones, which could be seen plainly through the telescope.

"We have actually seen them formed under our eyes," Professor Lowell said at the time, "and the importance of it can hardly be overestimated. The phenomenon transcends any natural law, and is only explicable so far as it can be seen by the presence of yonder of animate will."

Professor Lowell had little to say about the appearance of the beings on Mars. Edmond Perrier, director of the museum of the Jardin des Plantes, in Paris, constructed the first picture of the Martians as he conceived them. He said in part:

"The men on Mars are tall because the force of gravity is slight. They are blond because the daylight is less intense. They have less powerful limbs. Their large blue eyes, their strong noses, their large ears, constitute a type of beauty which we doubtless would not appreciate except as suggesting superhuman intelligence."

On the other hand, Dr. C. G. Abbott holds that if wireless messages are being received, it is not Mars sending the signals, but most probably Venus. Abbott is director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical observatory and assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. He says Mars is eliminated as a possibility because known conditions on that planet would not permit the existence of any form of living creature. It is too cold there and there is practically no water vapor in its atmosphere.

Assuming that Mars or some other planet is signaling us, what can we do in the circumstances? Apparently we can do much.

Dr. James Harris Rogers of Hyattsville, Md., who has devoted his life to the study of electric waves and invented the underground and under-seas wireless used during the war, declares he is going to undertake to teach the inhabitants of Mars the rudiments of intelligence of this planet. Within a year wireless communication will be established with Mars, Dr. Rogers believes.

L. J. Lesh, a New York radio engineer, suggests that one of the methods of constructing a gigantic station would be to erect huge antennae suspended by balloons like the British dirigible R-34. He asserts, however, that a still better way would be to use huge and brilliant shafts of light as antennae for the system. He thinks that projectors could be grouped around one spot where a great amount of electricity could be generated. He suggests Niagara Falls or some other spot with an enormous amount of water power.

Elmer A. Sperry has a searchlight capable of producing a beam having the illuminating intensity of 1,250,000,000 candle power. He would form a group of 150 to 200 of his searchlights and direct their combined beams in the direction of Mars. An aggregation of that sort would possess the luminous equivalent of a star of the seventh magnitude such as our telescopes are able to pick up readily. Therefore, assuming that the Martians had glasses of equal power, they should have no trouble in catching that dot of light from a distance of 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 miles.

It would be possible, no doubt, to operate these lights so that they could give slow signals which would fill all the requirements of a system of communication. However, an array of lights of this character and the needful energizing plant would cost a pretty sum.

The outlay might be warranted some day, but certainly not until it is certain that we are being called by one of our neighbors out in space.

Facts for Sick Women

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The Facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. ROGERS, 533 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sacramento, Calif.—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand on my feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work thinking I would not be able to go back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pains. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—BERTHA J. PARKER, 3320 M St., Sacramento, Calif.

CHEAPLY BOUGHT,

DEAR IN END

This proverb cannot be applied in any case better than in buying remedies. If you, for instance, suffer from constipation, poor appetite, headaches, insomnia, or other stomach troubles, Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine is the best remedy you can buy. Now somebody will tell you that he knows a preparation which is ten, twenty or thirty cents cheaper. You will follow his hint, you will buy cheaply, but you will see soon that you have thrown away your money. A reliable remedy is always worth its weight in gold. Just as Mr. Joseph Zeleznik wrote us on February 23: "Star City, W. Va., box 158. Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine is more worth than money. I recommend it heartily to all my fellow countrymen. Publish my full name and address." Ask your druggist or dealer in medicines also for Triner's Angelic Bitter Tonic.—Joseph Triner Company, 1333-33 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

Extravagant.

"She's extravagant." "She served her husband beefsteak for dinner last night." "What of that? The poor man has to eat, doesn't he?" "Of course, but think of serving beefsteak and no company in the house."
