

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

W. Newman, Alleged Swindler, Wanted Several Places, Various Charges

FANNIE AINLEY OBTAINS DIVORCE

Emil Silverstone of DeKalb Created Disturbance at Electric Park— Fined $25.00 and Costs

The case of the People against Howard W. C. Newman, alias W. C. Newman, charged with embezzlement was called, being the first on the docket and a continuance was requested by James A. Dowall, of DeKalb who appeared as Newman's attorney. The plea for continuance was made on the ground that Newman's attorney had no time to prepare his defense and this motion was resisted by the State's Attorney who was ready to proceed with the trial. The court finally let the matter go over with a view of hearing it the second week of the petit jury. If the jury is called back next week the case will probably be tried otherwise it will go over until such time as the jury does come back. Newman is wanted in Aurora, Rochelle and the state of Texas.

On a preliminary call of the docket the case of S. J. Hurd of Mendota against Margaret B. Kirk which was set as the first civil case, was continued until next Wednesday. This is a case brought for the recovery of agent's commissions on the sale of land and was tried before Judge Irwin in June 1922. After the jury had heard the plaintiff's case the defendant made a motion to direct the jury to bring a verdict in her favor and the court sustained the motion which resulted in the case ending in a victory for the defendant. The plaintiff, however, appealed from the ruling of the court to the appellate court and this court reversed Judge Irwin and sent the case back to the circuit court for retrial.

Fannie Ainley of Genoa obtained a decree of divorce on October 24th from Boyd C. Ainley on the grounds of cruelty. They were married on April 21, 1903 at Genoa and lived together until August 11, 1921. Five children were born out of the marriage. According to the decree the defendant is to have the custody of four of the children. The complainant is given the right to visit the children at all reasonable times.

Sadie J. Dreher obtained a decree of divorce from Henry A. Dreher on grounds of desertion. The parties were married at Belvidere, Ill., on September 4, 1913 and according to the testimony of Mrs. Dreher her husband deserted her on March 15, 1919 and she has not heard from him since. The court in granting the divorce also allowed her to resume her maiden name of Sadie Jane Hare.

USE ROCK PHOSPHATE NOW!

Urbana, Illinois, November 1—Right now is the time for those who are planning to use rock phosphate for their farm land this fall, to apply it, according to E. E. DeTurk of the University of Illinois. In a statement today he said: "Now is a most favorable time for this work. The ebb in farm work between wheat seeding and corn making makes it convenient from the standpoint of evening up labor distribution.

"Of greater importance, however, is the fact that many fields are in the right condition to receive this treatment. Fields of small grain seeded last spring to clover, either red clover or sweet clover, may be phosphated any time after the small grain is harvested. While no experiments have been carried out which prove that the clover derives benefit from phosphate applied in this way, observation on numerous fields indicate that it does.

"In addition to any possible benefit which the growing clover may receive, the phosphate will become intimately mixed with it before it is plowed down, particularly if the field is disc'd before plowing.

"Phosphate may also be applied to stubble land not seeded to clovers, or, after corn husking, to corn land which will be seeded to clovers in spring grain next spring. The benefit or admixture with the green organic matter is not obtained in these latter cases."

WHY THE RED CROSS IS GREAT

Stood Relief in 110 Disasters in Last Fiscal Year

Maintenance of competent emergency machinery working with speed and concerted effort in disaster relief which is a mandate in the charter granted to the American Red Cross by Congress, found full justification in the Japanese earthquake disaster according to detailed reports of that immense operation. Fresh in the minds of everyone is the prompt action of the Greatest Mother in this terrible disaster.

When the President directed the Red Cross to take charge of this work, it was possible without any hesitation to call into action 3,000 chapters in all parts of this country. No time was wasted in setting up organizations through which to raise this necessary fund but because of the permanent organizations in practically every county in United States the initial fund of $5,000,000 was raised in nine days. Within three weeks more, than $10,000,000 had been contributed thru this official organization.

In United States alone from June 30, 1922 to July 1, 1923, the American Red Cross administered relief in 110 disasters at a cost of $400,000. The killed numbered 240, injured 991, homeless 12,691, buildings destroyed 2,198. The total property loss was estimated at $26,710,000. These disasters ranged from Manitoba, California, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and include serious disasters of all kinds.

In the Central Division of which this state is a part Manager Walter Davidson was called upon during that time to give service and to administer relief in nine disasters. Central Division Chapters are alert to the necessity of keeping their organizations intact so that when emergency arises, they are prepared to act. Chief among these disasters were the floods along the Mississippi river in Illinois, the devastating tornado in the St. Croix Falls district of Wisconsin, the Frontier Mine horror in Kemmerer, Wyo., where 100 men were entombed and the recent floods in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Thirteen disasters units are maintained in Central Division states by the National Red Cross. Thus at a moment's notice supplies of every description may be rushed to the scene of disaster. It is no wonder that American citizens are eager to keep up their memberships in this organization. An opportunity will be given on Armistice Day and continuing until Thanksgiving for every one to renew his membership or become one. Do not fail to add your support to this humanitarian work.

FOOTBALL TEAM QUILTS

The local gridiron warriors doffed the moleskins Saturday and will not resume operations on the football field until next fall at least.

The boys went to Harlem Saturday and were promptly and soundly besmeared with some 63 points to their goose-egg and the battle was over.

We know that the high school could have a team, if it is played year after year and let the boys grow into it, the way they do in basket ball and we would like to see it done.

We also believe that there is no time like the present to begin and would like to see all hands on deck next year to take another kick at the bars.

DON'T FORGET THE DANCE

Tickets for the benefit dance to be held Friday evening, November 2, at the Genoa Opera House, are selling fast. The proceeds are to go to Montford Bennett who is now in the Sycamore hospital with a broken leg, the accident occurring last August.

Several young girls are passing out these coveted pastebards and every one should be sure to get one. Candy and a luncheon will be sold from the dance floor in the latter part of the evening.

● If you can't come buy a ticket anyway; if you can come, and everyone is requested to attend for the purpose of having a good time. Bring your friends, and enjoy the evening.

HEALTH LEAGUE HELD CONVENTION

Mrs. Kilmer of DeKalb Represented County in Meeting

13 STATES SENT DELEGATES

Tubercular Germs on the Run—Death Rate is Receding Slow but Sure

The DeKalb County Public Health League sent the secretary, Angeline Parsons Kilmer, to the 11th annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Tuberculosis conference, held October 8, 9 and 10, at Evansville, Indiana, securing a complete report. As the conference comprises 13 states and the finest speakers of this country and Canada were on the programs, the meetings were of great interest. The Evansville Chamber of Commerce had full charge of the entertainment of the delegates and guests.

Monday afternoon Dr. Hoyt Dearholt from Milwaukee presided. Ten minute reports were given by state secretaries on preventive medicine, clinics, cooperation with the medical profession, finances, supervision of the tuberculous, legislation and cooperation with state boards of health. Then followed a most interesting paper on "Health Camps," by H. M. Cass, S. Dak., a paper by Dr. A. A. Pleyte on "Sanatorium Consultation Service," and an interesting session by Charles M. DeForest, of New York City, on "Where Shall We Get the Money?"

The Monday evening session was of unusual interest, including a lecture by Dr. Francis Trudeau of Saranac Lake, N. Y., son of the great Trudeau, founder of the famous colony there. This lecture was illustrated by slides and photographs. In the lecture Trudeau told of the life of his father and how he was carried to the Adirondacks on a stretcher, a victim of tuberculosis. There were pictures of the old-fashioned cot on which the stretcher was slung. He showed pictures of the first sanatorium opened a few years after his father arrived there in 1878. It was the elder Trudeau who startled the world with his celebrated rabbit colony where he inoculated them with tuberculosis bacilli and then confined part of them in the dark and let the others run free in the sunshine. Of course the twelve rabbits in the hole died, the others got well, and then there was formed the theory that sunshine and fresh air are two of the greatest factors in treating tuberculosis—the method that is now almost universally used with the result that in 15 years the death rate has been reduced 50 per cent and in time the disease will practically be eliminated. The life of Trudeau can be secured from any library and is both fascinating and enlightening.

Tuesday morning H. M. Cass, from Huron, S. Dak., presided. Mr. Cass is full of western enthusiasm and has promised a cow-boy round-up next year at Sioux Falls, S. Dak., where the next annual conference will be held. He stated that anyone expecting to attend might as well learn to ride a bronco as that will be part of the program. This session was given over to five papers on coordination, salesmanship, budgets, publicity and press notices.

At noon the nurses' luncheon was held at the Vendome Hotel with Mrs. Theodore B. Sachs, supervisor of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute presiding. The reports of the nurses led by Miss Harriet Fulmer of Chicago, the oldest public health nurse, were very fine.

Tuesday afternoon was given over to a general medical session, with papers by Dr. Ethan A. Gray of Chicago, Dr. George T. Palmer, Springfield, Dr. Francis M. Trudeau, Saranac Lake, Dr. Roswell Pettit, Ottawa, Ill., Dr. Alfred Henry Indianapolis, Ind., Dr. Collins H. Johnston, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Dr. E. M. Amos, of Indianapolis, Ind.

Tuesday evening the banquet and ball was held with Dr. Alfred Henry Indianapolis, Ind., presiding as toastmaster. Dr. B. S. Wodehouse, secretary of the Canadian Tuberculosis association, from Ottawa, Canada, was the principal speaker. Dr. Wodehouse praised the American system of state and county units and stated that they have nothing in Canada yet to compare with it, but hope

A TRADE AT HOME AD

On page 6 of this issue will be seen a half page ad devoted to the trade-at-home idea. Several of Genoa's merchants are running ads in this space and the reading matter will be worth your while should you care to peruse it carefully.

For four consecutive weeks this half page will be devoted to the trade-at-home club, with different copy in the reading columns each issue. Read them carefully, and you will be surprised at the benefits to be derived from trading with your own townsmen.

BURST PRESIDENT COUNTY BAR

Elected Leader of County Legal Lights for the Coming Annual Term

The regular "default day" luncheon, which was held by the DeKalb county bar association at the Elks clubhouse in Sycamore Wednesday, proved very interesting and profitable to those attending. The matter of court procedure was discussed at length by Judge Süsser, A. G. Kennedy and T. M. Cliffe. A committee was appointed, of which L. B. Smith is chairman, to delve into the question of procedural reforms.

Cassius Poust made a report on behalf of the committee on revision of by-laws, which report was referred to the board of managers for future action. It is the purpose of the bar, in the interest of the public, to promote a more speedy trial of cases now pending in our court and to obtain united action of the court and lawyers to this end, and therefore meetings, such as the one held, are called.

Memorial services for the late Geo. W. Duntun, George Brown and T. H. Smith, deceased members, were also arranged and are to be held in the court house some time in November. Edward M. Burst of Sycamore was elected president of the association and H. G. Kennedy of DeKalb, vice president.

GEITHMAN IN FOR ONE YEAR

Earl Geithman Sentenced by Judge Carpenter on Two Charges

Earl Geithman, who was brought before the Rockford court last week on the charges of driving a car while intoxicated and another of transporting booze, was sentenced by Judge Carpenter of that district court to one year in jail. That is, six months for each offense.

SMALL "SPUDS" DISGRACE TOWN

Crookston, Minn., Oct. 27.—Business boosters here opened their eyes and began to think along a new line when James J. Hammond, of Genoa, Ill., who owns a good deal of land in Polk county, brought to a newspaper of this city, The Times, a baked potato which had been served to him at a local restaurant.

The sample spud was about three inches long, one inch in diameter, and weighed less than four ounces.

"This is a fair sample of the baked potatoes that have been served to me in different places in Crookston," said Mr. Hammond. "I have been led to believe that Crookston is the center of one of the greatest potato growing centers of the west, and personally I know this to be true. That is why I think it all the more a disgrace for any local eating house to fool its guests, many of whom are transients, with potatoes that might lead them to believe this is he kind they raise here."—The Minneapolis Journal.

TALES OF ALASKA

Mr. Phelin, the artie explorer, who lectured and projected pictures on the screen at the Opera House last Saturday afternoon and evening, had the pleasure of showing one of the best educational pictures ever witnessed in Genoa. The large crowd was held spellbound until late in the evening and when it was over, they wanted more.

Alaska is generally credited with being a cold country, and so it is in winter, but in summer it must be quite warm, if a few hundred bushels of potatoes can be raised per acre.

SHERIFF ENTERTAINS

Chief Crawford Had 54 Guests in County Jail Last Week

Altho the action of the grand jury released some 7 prisoners last week, Sheriff Crawford has remaining as his guests of the cell some 47 law violators, and nearly all of these can be traced to the dope or liquor traffic violation of the law.

Out of the total in the bastle, last week some 17 were from the county, and the rest were sent out as federal prisoners by the federal court in Chicago.

One of the interesting prisoners was "Mike De Pike" Heiter, notorious politician and gangster of Chicago, who was sent to Ft. Leavenworth for a year after the hearing of his trial in the big city last week. He was involved in a little $50,000 "booze" deal and will now have a year to repent his folly.

Crawford is exceptionally busy these days and there is hardly a day passes that one or more prisoners are not discharged or brought to the county jail where it is known that they receive the best treatment and lodging possible to provide.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

The Bayard Brown Post American Legion will stage an Armistice Day celebration in the Genoa Opera House next Friday, beginning with a chicken dinner at noon. Orchestra music will feature the entertainment during the dinner hour with a good program in the afternoon as the chief diversion. In the evening supper will be served and a dance given, both of new dances being played.

There will be stands, bazaar displays by the women and other side wall attractions that will consume much of the time of the fun loving public.

Forget your troubles on this day and get among the people and celebrate the commemoration of that eventful day. Everyone will be there; why not you?

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Services 11:00 a. m.; 7:30 p. m.; Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; Epworth League 6:30 p. m.

We are glad to announce that we have organized a Men's Bible Class and extend a cordial invitation to the men to join us. We are associated with the Men's Bible Class Association of Rockford District with a membership of over six hundred. Meet with a live bunch of men Sunday morning at the M. E. Sunday school at 9:45 a. m.

We hope a larger number from Sunday school will attend the morning service. Surely it is not asking too much of you to spend the morning hour in worship.

There are five ministers in the town of Genoa and I am sure that the pastors of the other churches join with me in extending a cordial invitation to the people of Genoa and vicinity to the services in the church of your choice next Sunday. Especially do we invite the radio fans who tune in and get their sermons from some distant city. Try some home institution and stand by the men who stand by you and our town in any and every effort for community uplift and betterment. Try it some Sunday. You will be well repaid and your cooperation and presence will at least be appreciated. Rev. J. E. Robeson.

KRUSE RESIGNS

Coach Kruse, of the local high school, tendered his resignation to the board last Monday evening after many rumors and tales that flew thick and fast thru the city. The exact nature of the disagreement that caused Mr. Kruse to resign is not known, altho it is supposed that he did not agree with Supt. Mackenzie in certain things and his departure would be for the best in interest, peace and harmony in the school.

LOCAL MAN TEACHING

A. D. Hadsall Instructing Students in Manual Training

Owing to the resignation of Mr. Kruse as instructor, the woodworking class was suspended on Monday, but resumed work on Tuesday with Amory Hadsall teaching the class temporarily. Mr. Hadsall has taken considerable interest in the woodworking at the high school, having before this time given classes lessons in setting saws and care of tools. This year he contributed the lumber for the bicycle shed that the class has been building.

At present the class is completing the work on the bicycle racks and figuring the material used, learning to cut with as little waste as possible and figuring costs on the complete job. Considerable time will be spent this week in putting the tools in shape and teaching the class to take care of them.

CHARLES AURNER FOUND DEAD

Well Known Kingston Man Suffered Stroke Friday Afternoon

FELL FROM GRAVEL WAGON

Was Pioneer of Kingston Township—Funeral Services Were Held Sunday

Charles Aurner, member of a large and well-known family of pioneers was found dead on the roadway leading to the gravel pit at the Ellwood farm, last Friday afternoon by Frank Bastian and Ira Milburn. As no marks were found on the body, save that caused by the wagon, when he fell from the seat, the coroner's jury gave a verdict of death by natural causes, paralysis being the general belief.

Mr. Aurner was 75 years of age and was one of the pioneer settlers of Kingston. He enjoyed a wide acquaintance and his friends were counted by the hundred.

Funeral services were held in the Methodist church in Kingston on Sunday, October 28, at two o'clock, and was attended by many relatives and friends of the deceased. Interment in Kingston cemetery.

Charles was one of eight children born to the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Aurner, who were among the first settlers in what is now Kingston township. All of the children are dead with the exception of Joseph Aurner of Kingston and Mrs. Eliza Ives of Kirkland. The deceased's wife died in May 1922 and since that time he had made his home alone in Kingston.

His passing was a great shock to all who knew him and it is not without a sting of regret that the ties of friendship for this likable man have been broken.

REGISTRATION NOT REQUIRED

Soda Fountains and Theatres Need Not Make Annual Registration

Proprietors of Soda Fountains and Theatres will doubtlessly be pleased to learn that Earl T. Weeks, Division Chief of the Internal Revenue, Aurora, Illinois, received notice from the Commission of Internal Revenue that the regulations have been amended so as to dispose with the annual requirement or re-registration of soda fountains on Form 848 and Theatres on Form 752. However, monthly returns on Form 726 on syrups, and annual payment on Special Tax on Form 11 should be made.

The primary effect of this Treasury Decision is the elimination of the necessity of annual registration under both regulations. It is considered that the original registration is of a sufficiently permanent nature to satisfy the needs of the Collector's office. If a person or firm has registered once, whether immediately after commencing business, at the beginning of any subsequent fiscal year, or at any other time, no further registration is required unless the same business or its location is changed, in which case re-registration must be made, giving all the data relative to the change. Re-registration is also necessary in case the form of the business is changed, such as the addition of a partner, or a change from individual proprietorship or partnership to a corporation. Where the business is sold the new proprietor must register.

This Treasury Decision also provides that registration shall not be required of any individual, corporation, partnership or organization required to file Form 11 and pay tax on Theatres, under Section 1001 (subdivision No. 5) of the Act.

These changes have been made to eliminate unnecessary work in the Collector's offices which has indirectly retarded the collection of considerable revenue. If the regulation as amended or the procedure to be followed are not clear, and you desire a further explanation, this office or any deputy collector, will attempt to go into the matter in greater detail if you will outline that phase of the matter about which you are in doubt.

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Separatists, Communists and Reactionaries Make Things Lively in Germany.

GOV. WALTON IS IMPEACHED

By EDWARD W. PICKARD. RHINELAND separatists, Bavarian reactionaries, communists in revolt and socialists dissatisfied gave Chancellor Stresemann and the German reichstag a lively time last week. On the surface it seemed the old empire was on the point of dissolution, but closer study of the situation leads to the belief that the German federation will hold together for some time yet, though the states probably will be more autonomous and less closely united, and the dominating influence may shift from Prussia to Bavaria.

Enthusiastic young separatists, led by an elderly merchant named Lee Deckers, proclaimed the Rhineland republic on Sunday. Starting at Aix la Chapelle in the zone occupied by the Belgians, the movement spread to other cities during the next two days, the police giving way quietly and bloodshed thus being avoided. The French and Belgians remained neutral, seeking only to preserve order. Matthes, Dorten and Smeets, the more prominent leaders of the separatist plan, hurried to the scene and the first named took command, Deckers being set aside. It was admitted by the wiser ones that the coup had been sprung too soon, and this became evident as the socialists, communists and workers got into action. At Aix, Wiesbaden, Mayence and other places the separatists were routed from the municipal buildings, and Matthes and his associates departed from Coblenz, where they had set up their temporary government. At Crefeld, a large city, on the other hand, the separatists defeated the police in a long battle in which twelve men were killed and 200 wounded. On the whole, at this writing, the Rhineland republicans may be said to have failed. However, there was a rumor that their efforts would be counteracted by the proclamation of a republic favorable to the reich.

The communists, incited by soviet Russia, started a revolutionary movement on Tuesday. Orders were issued by their central executive committee in Berlin for the sabotage of the railways, and the work started in Hamburg. Armed bands cut the railway to Lubeck, barricaded the streets and attacked the police stations. The reichswehr, police and more conservative citizens turned out against them in full force and for many hours there was fierce fighting in Hamburg and its suburbs. Warships from Kiel and armored cars were sent to the assistance of the authorities, and thirty hours after the revolt began it had been effectively squelched. In other localities the Reds broke out and are still fighting.

Bavaria appears to be getting the upper hand in Germany. Minister of Defense Gessler tried to depose Gen. Von Lossow, military commander in Bavaria, who sided with Dictator Von Kahr. The general refused to submit and was supported by the Bavarian dierectorate. At first it was believed Stresemann would send troops to enforce Gessler's orders and that such a course would be supported by the socialist government of Saxony, which naturally is opposed to the reactionaries of the neighboring state. But the chancellor called the state premiers into conference and, receiving only qualified support from them, announced: "The government is ready to follow the road of understanding with Bavaria. The government also is ready to open negotiations with the states as soon as possible to discuss the question of greater independence, with the condition that the questions of settlement be on a constitutional basis."

This capitulation of the government enraged the socialists and it was said the ministers belonging to that party probably would quit the cabinet. Bavarian socialists on Wednesday proclaimed a republic in the Bavarian Palatinate, adjoining the Rhineland on the south. The French representative on the Rhineland commission gave the movement his approval, but it was squelched the same day when the local parliament refused to support it.

EVERY day it is becoming more evident to the politicians that Henry Ford is out after a presidential nomination, and they say he doesn't care whether it comes from the Republicans, the Democrats or a third party. Last week the Michigan Ford clubs issued a call for a conference of Ford-for-President clubs, to be held in Detroit on December 12, 13 and 14. The number of these clubs is believed to be between 300 and 400, and it is estimated that 3,000 delegates and visitors will attend the conference. It was announced that the purpose of the meeting was to form a new national party, headed by Ford, but it may be that that will not be found necessary. The Democratic leaders seem more alarmed than the Republicans by the plans of the Ford followers, and the managers of the McAdoo boom especially are said to be worried. The former secretary of the treasury is admittedly the leading Democratic aspirant today, but Underwood and Ralston are still well up in the running.

REPUBLICAN politicians consider Governor Pinchot the only serious contender against President Coolidge for nomination by that party, for of late Hiram Johnson's stock has taken a tumble, except in the Far West. The Pennsylvanian has not yielded at all in his discussion with the White House concerning the best methods of enforcing prohibition. He says the president's program calling for full co-operation of state governments with the federal government does not go far enough to meet the issue and that, while the co-operation will be cordially given, the federal government has exclusive authority to prevent the issuance of liquor from known sources of supply, and that so long as the government fails to exercise that authority effectively the states are almost powerless to deal with the resulting distribution of intoxicants to the individual.

MOROS in Zamboanga have been indulging in an uprising, in the course of which a number of men of the Philippine constabulary were killed. The affair became so serious that Governor General Wood went to the scene with a considerable body of troops.

THE National Council of the Congregational Churches, in session in Springfield, Mass., refused to give its approval to the Lord's Day Alliance, whose general secretary is Rev. H. L. Bowley, leader in the national fight on Sunday movies, baseball and other forms of pleasure and business; but the council did declare for Sabbath observance. A resolution condemning the occupation of the Ruhr and asking France to withdraw her troops was tabled, and another directed against "unpatriotic societies" was adopted without specific mention of the Ku Klux Klan. The council is the first large denominational body to approve of the plan of organic church union proposed by the Presbyterian general assembly in 1918. The committee on comity was instructed to confer with a like committee of the Presbyterian assembly in working out details. The plan of ordination of Congregational ministers by Episcopal bishops, known as the concordat, was definitely disapproved. The plan of union of the Presbyterian and Congregational denominations, presented by joint action of the Presbytery and Congregational union of Cleveland, O., was approved.

ACCORDING to a report by the federal coal commission, a need for strict government regulation of the entire production and interstate distribution of coal has been made evident by the wild wholesale speculation whenever coal shortages have occurred. The wholesalers are accused of having made excessive profits, but those of the retailers are said to have been only moderate during the period from 1918 to 1922.

The commission advocates federal legislation, including the power to limit to a definite maximum amount per ton the margins that may be taken by one or more wholesalers between the mine and retailer or consumer, thus limiting speculative wholesale sales.

U. S. AGREES TO FRENCH STAND

Poincare Reservations No Barrier to Success of Move, Washington View.

COMMISSION ONLY ADVISORY

Washington.—Premier Poincare's declaration against reduction by a commission of international experts of reparations due France from Germany is not regarded by the State department as precluding the success of the work of the proposed commission, it was said officially here.

It was pointed out at the department that it is an obvious rule that a treaty to which France is a party, meaning the treaty of Versailles, cannot be changed without the consent of France, and there is no thought here that the French should be committed in advance to the making of a change in the treaty which would be to France's disadvantage.

The proposal, the State department added, simply that a financial plan be developed after a careful inquiry into Germany's ability to pay, is that this plan then stand on its merits. If the French do not accept the plan worked out that would be regrettable, but at least the plan would be there and there is always a chance that the plan would prove acceptable.

The proposed commission is to be purely advisory, the State department pointed out, and its recommendations will have no binding effect either on France or any other nation party to the treaty of Versailles. Therefore, when Premier Poincare said that the proposed commission would not be permitted to reduce French reparations claims, he said only what might have been expected of him under the circumstances and it did not in any way alter the feasibility of the Hughes plan.

soon to adopt this system and that they will be open for suggestions. They have as yet, only the dominion as a unity, and all work is carried on from the one headquarters. Their first sanatorium was founded in 1893 by W. J. Gage, the first layman in the world to found an institution for the tuberculous. The first national institution was opened in 1906. Their death rate per 10,000 in 1901 was 158. In Canada as here the war made organization and hospitalization imperative. The reports from physical examinations during the world war were so startling in both the United States and Canada that the greatest awakening we have ever had, for better health and prevention of sickness has been the result. They now have a sanatorium in every province and whereas they only had in 1914 capacity for 1,800 beds, they now have 4,200. Most of this expense was paid out from the war chest. Canada cared nobly for her disabled war veterans,

Out of her scattered population of 9,500,000 she had at the close of the war 10,250 men afflicted with tuberculosis who have been treated at a cost between seven and ten million dollars. To date a pension has been paid these men of $14,000,000 not including what has been paid their dependents of something over $1366.00 per veteran. The facts presented by Dr. Wodehouse were of great interest and we feel confident that the Legion boys of Canada and their mothers and wives must rejoice over the fact that their defense of the home land was appreciated and honored.

The musical numbers furnished by the Chamber of Commerce were most enjoyable and the evening closed with dancing from ten to twelve.
The Chamber of Commerce gave a luncheon Wednesday noon with perfect appointments. Dr. George T. Palmer, of Springfield, Ill., was the speaker. Many of our DeKalb county people have heard Dr. Palmer and always enjoy his forceful talks.

GAME PRESERVE IN COUNTY

Petition Out to Establish Game Habitat in Loyd's Woods

A petition asking that a tract of land between Sycamore and Genoa be designated as state game preserve is being circulated by Lewis Lloyd and George Swanson. The petition reads:

"I the undersigned, a citizen of the county of DeKalb and of the state of Illinois, and owner of certain tract of wooded land adjacent to a tract commonly known as 'Lloyd's Woods' and other tracts of land, all of which form a contiguous and compact tract of wooded land, do hereby respectfully petition your department to set aside said tracts of land, so owned by me and said tracts adjacent thereto, situated within said county of DeKalb, and establish a game preserve thereon, in accordance with the law in such case made and provided. I believe the tract mentioned above to be naturally adapted for such purposes."

This petition will be forwarded to the Department of Agriculture, and it is expected Chief Game Warden Stratton will visit the tract designated, and it is believed will report favorably and that the land will be set off for the purpose indicated.

The game preserve has its boundaries clearly defined, and no hunting whatever will be allowed on it. The penalties provided are very severe. However, such animals as escape, may be killed in season, as elsewhere in this state. This is expected to improve the hunting hereabouts.—Sycamore True Republican.

A REAL DINNER

The Ladies' Aid fairly outdid themselves last Saturday in serving a delicious chicken dinner with all the trimmings in the church parlors. Supper was served in the evening and this was well attended, too, altho the dinner was the meal.

Those who were fortunate enough to attend will not forget the delicious repast quickly and another banquet of similar dimensions can not come any too soon to please everyone.

SMALL ATTENDANCE AT RECITAL

Metropolitan Glee Club Received by Small Audience at School Last Friday

The much heralded Metropolitan Glee Club met with small success in Genoa last week Friday evening, approximately fifty people being in the audience.

Some of the numbers were very good and others were just the opposite, making the entertainment about a fifty-fifty proposition.

Lyceum courses and entertainments by outside talent do not take with the people of this vicinity unless something good, really good, comes to town, the same reception will probably be meted out to all of them.

GENOA PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Doty were pleasantly surprised at their home Tuesday evening when about twenty-five friends from DeKalb motored here to remind them of their twentieth wedding anniversary. Games and music furnished the evening's entertainment after which a delightful luncheon was enjoyed.

Mrs. A. J. Kohn and W. H. Jackman entertained the Thimble club at the home of the former on Tuesday. A delicious two-course luncheon was served at one o'clock by the hostesses. The afternoon was devoted to needlework. Mrs. J. W. Ovitz of Sycamore and Mrs. James Hutchison were guests of the club.

E. C. Rosenfeld, son, Walter, and daughter, Roberta, attended the funeral of the former's mother, at Plymouth, Wisconsin, last Saturday. Mrs. Rosenfeld was 93 years old at the time of her death and until about six months ago, was enjoying the best of health. Death is ascribed to old age and general infirmities.

WHY TRADE AT HOME?

'Price' Is Incidental

This is the first of a series of short articles pointing out some of the many reasons why every citizen ought, in self-defense, to give his patronage to the merchants, the banks, all the institutions, of his own town. They are terse, to the point. They set forth plain facts plainly. Read them all.

FROM A SELFISH STANDPOINT ALONE IT WILL PAY YOU TO STUDY THESE ARTICLES

Every resident in every town owes it to himself to do all his trading in his home town.

"Owes it to himself?" you ask. How can that be?"

Yes, from an entirely selfish point of view, the standpoint of cold dollars and cents, he owes it to himself, because he will save money by it.

Let us consider it for a moment from this narrow and selfish side, because every man wants to do as well for himself as he can.

Take the matter of price. That is the great bait offered by those who would sell to the average citizen from a distance. More bad bargains have been made in the name of "low price" than on any other one basis.

To the unthinking, the word "price" means merely the amount of money handed over at the time the article is bought.

To the man who sees below the surface of things, the price is the full amount paid on the entire transaction; and to get at this he must take into consideration all the other elements—first, the cash paid over for the article then, if bought from a distance, the postage and the telegrams; or the train fare to the city; or the mail or the express or freight charges, and then if it be unsatisfactory, all this has to be done over and paid over again. Then he must consider the quality of the article; its suitability to the buyer; its appearance; its durability.

You will see that the price is far from being the only consideration when you think you are buying cheaply. It often happens that an article which looks cheapest on a list is the most costly in the end.

Home Merchants Are Shrewd Buyers

Why should anyone believe that he can buy much more cheaply in a distant city than from the merchant of his home town? The merchant is not a simpleton. If goods of a like quality with his could be bought for less money, your home town merchant would be right here, buying them to offer to you and the other friends in his home town. He is a shrewd buyer himself, or he would not long be in business. Others who are shrewd buyers would soon run him out.

In the first place, the man in the smaller city or the town knows the merchant there. They are neighbors—friends. He knows that if he buys groceries, an automobile, a tire or a pair of shoes, or a plow or a stove—whatever it is—that home town merchant stands behind the goods he sells. If there is anything wrong with the goods, he makes it good there and there, and looks to the wholesaler or the factory to make him whole. He either gives you another article in place of the faulty one or he goes down into his pocket and returns the cash.

The buyer goes into the store and says:

"Bill, I have a little complaint to make. That last bit of goods I bought of you wasn't what it ought to have been. It was away below standard. I've brot it back to show you."

And Merchant Bill, the friend and neighbor looks at it. And if it is not as he represented, he makes good right there. Often he has to stand the loss himself, for he cannot afford to offend a friend and neighbor and he does not always get the "wholesale" to make him whole.

In every way the buyer saves money by trading with the home merchant. The original outlay is little, if any, more than he would pay to a catalogue house, or a big city store—even if the goods were the same, which frequently they are not. Then the saving in time, postage, express and freight charges, and the doubled time and expense of shipping back and forth if the goods must be exchanged—as too often they must—these things are often not fully considered, but they turn the balance between money saved and money lost.

CULLING TRIP

On October 25th the agriculture class of the high school went on a trip to Mrs. Dander's farm to witness a culling demonstration by G. Brown.

The claws of a chicken are an important point in culling out chickens. Chickens if laying eggs are active and therefore use their nails a great deal. The result is that the nails on a laying hen are worn down.

If a chicken is not laying eggs the shanks will become discolored and scaly. If the chicken is laying the shanks will be clear and smooth. The legs on a laying hen will be slender.

There is a great deal of difference in the width between the keel bone and the pelvic bones in different chickens. A chicken having a width of one or two fingers is not worth keeping. Chickens having a width of three fingers are only fair layers but chickens having a width of four or five fingers between the pelvic and keel bones are good layers. In some chickens the pelvic bones slope in and these chickens of course do not make good layers.

The pelvic bones should be thin. About one eighth of an inch is the correct thickness. If the pelvic bones are thick, they will not give and therefore the chickens will not lay eggs.

A chicken with a small, narrow back will not be the best layer. In order to lay a large quantity of eggs a chicken must eat a large amount of food and therefore must have a large body capacity and this a chicken with a narrow back does not have.

The back should carry out broad entirely to the tail. Some chickens have a back which slopes towards the tail and it is impossible for a chicken of this type to lay eggs.

The feeding of a chicken constitutes an important part in chicken raising. A good feed which Mr. Brown suggested was equal parts of corn, oats and wheat, a mesh consisting of bran, shorts, oats and beef scraps. Two pints of this grain per 100 birds is fed in the morning and double this in the evening. Charcoal, grit and oyster shells is kept on hand to aid digestion.

It is very important that a chicken raiser culls out his flock several times yearly, for a number of poor birds would soon take away the profit obtained from good chickens.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE IN COUNTY

We believe that farmers of DeKalb county will be pleased to learn that plans are being made to hold six short courses in DeKalb county in connection with the DeKalb County

Institute and the Smith-Hughes High School Agricultural instructors. The plans are not definite enough at this time to give out detailed information, but from the interest evidenced last year at the Sycamore and Sandwich short courses, we believe this announcement will please our readers. Please remember that these courses are for YOU. Consequently any suggestions you may have to help make these courses a success in every way will be gladly received. DeKalb county is a progressive county. One of the greatest signs of progress is the desire to learn. Let's all get back of this venture and push.—DeKalb County Farmer.

"No, surely not," agreed Mrs. Penfield, genially.

Mrs. Wopple turned to go. "Well, I'll run in just as soon as you get your apple boxes moved. I'll want to see how you're gettin' on. And say, Mrs. Penfield, even if your stock goes up, you won't never forget what close neighbors we been, will you?"

"No, Mrs. Wopple, never," promised Mrs. Penfield warmly.

Amusedly she admitted to herself that Mrs. Wopple had not been far wrong about the apple boxes, which had served the family for multifarious purposes during the months that were past. It was different now—or would be tomorrow. Mrs. Penfield had decided to purchase a few pieces of furniture, to be paid for in installments and to form the nucleus of a real home, real in appearance as well as in spirit.

She was about to set forth on this errand when a man in livery turned the crank in the erstwhile barn-door at Number 47 and delivered a letter to Mrs. Penfield. She opened the letter wonderingly and read it twice before she could comprehend its meaning. It was written on heavy white paper, with Mrs. Weatherstone's address engraved.

"Dear Mrs. Penfield:" It ran. "Will you do me the honor to accept a few articles which I have gathered up around the house in the course of our refurbishing and shall send you tomorrow? Think of them, please, as the co-operation of one mother with another for those who have no money. If at any time you should hear of anyone else who is doing for forlorn children a service similar to your own, will you kindly let me know?"

"Sincerely yours,
"ANNETTE WEATHERSTONE."
Mrs. Penfield dropped the letter and sat for a long time, thinking. "Mrs. Weatherstone's good real feelings," was the thought uppermost in her mind. "She knows I wouldn't accept anything for myself, and she knows I can't refuse things for children that ain't my own. Between the two, I don't see I can do anything—except to thank her best I know how."

Mrs. Penfield would never forget the lean days between Christmas and New Year's. As never before she had realized by how frail a shield she was protecting three children from want and suffering. A slight disturbance in the established routine could reduce them to immediate distress, and as rapidly as feasible she must accumulate an emergency fund which would make a recurrence of those days impossible.

She was realizing, too, that with every year now, the children would legitimately require a greater outlay, if they were to have the equipment to which they were entitled—the ordinary advantages, the training for some particular work, the clothing which could not always be homemade. Both in her own home and here in The Custard Cup she had dealt with young children; she had not by experience struggled with the increasing demands with increases in years.

Mrs. Penfield gave up her shopping plan and took off her hat. She must wait till the nature of the "few articles" was disclosed before she could select the things which would be most needed.

She had, however, taken the letter so literally that she was wholly unprepared for the arrival of a small van the following morning. It was evident that Mrs. Weatherstone's courteous eye had taken in the outfit of apple boxes as thoroughly as had the more critical gaze of Mrs. Wopple. It was also evident that she had made her selections with more discrimination than had occurred with the assignments previously bestowed upon Number 47.

The four beds and the bedding—also the four mattresses, so comfortable that they logically necessitated the alarm clock which was found ticking in a small box—were suspiciously new, but everything else bore evidence of having been used, a fact which made the gift the pleasanter.

It was astonishing how quickly and adequately these furnishings were fitted into the flat which had been Mrs. Sanders'. The two large plain rugs in the living-room and dining-room, the small rugs in the bedrooms, the beds, a small dining table, plain chairs, rocking chairs, to say nothing of a set of blue dishes and a box of plated silver! There were curtains that could be changed to fit; dresses and coats that could be remade. There were four pictures in plain frames. When Mrs. Penfield had unwrapped them, she stood back with her finger pressing out the smile on her lips.

"All right," she acknowledged under her breath. "As Lettie would say, I get you, Mrs. Weatherstone."
The pictures went up, and the tin-can labels went down together with the lifelike bananas and the vigorous old man who advocated cigarettes.

The installation of Bonnie Geraldine was one of the first ceremonies to take place. She and her winter quarters were transferred in toto, and so skillfully that she seemed not to know that she had moved at all, which is the greatest tribute any hen can pay to a change of abode. It was far otherwise with the young fillibuster Caesar Penfield. He was wild with excitement and had to be forcibly detained in the new back yard until he should take a saner, less active view of the life of luxury about to unfold around him.

"Lucky thing we've got him, though," observed Crink. "I couldn't never hold up my head in a stylish place like this 'less we had us a nice dog."

"I ain't so bowled over," declared Lettie, with an assumption of great carelessness. "It's dandy, but we been living fine ever since I froze on to this family."

"Children," said Mrs. Penfield briskly, "you're riz in the world a step or two, and there's responsibilities connected with it. Higher up the ladder you go, the more you got to stretch your moral nature. Now there's one thing you plumb sure got to do from now on. You got to give up prowling."

"Oh," scoffed Crink, vastly relieved, "I 'bout gave that up when I got a steady job a couple hours a day."

"I don't prowl," contributed Thad, his soft eyelashes raying out from his widened eyes.
Lettie was silent.

"I mean you, too, Lettie," continued Mrs. Penfield. "From now on, you can't prowl; you can't be dragging in stuff; you can't scramble over dumps."

"Why, Penzie," cried the child in dismay, "all my life—I've had to—and I got the habit—and—"
"You've got to give it up," repeated Mrs. Penfield firmly. "You'll have lots of other things to do—study and read and sew and cook. You must remember that you got a fine home now, and a bed to sleep in, and grand clothes to wear, and heaps to eat—and you got to live up to it."

"Oh, Uncle Jerry," she called, tentatively. Her thin chest heaved. She threw out her arm in a gesture of utter renunciation.

"All right," she gulped. "I'll do it if it kills me. I gotta stay with you, Penzie."

It was while Mrs. Penfield was exulting with Crink over the possession of a front window, which gave a charming view of the driveway and the pepper tree, that she saw Uncle Jerry coming rapidly into The Custard Cup, in his arms an enormous sheaf of long-stemmed roses, glowing red through the thin paper covering. She lifted the window.

"Oh, Uncle Jerry," she called, "come right in and see ev'rything. It's just—"

"Well—oh—well, Car'line," stammered Uncle Jerry, "I'm in kind of a hurry. I—I'll come in later. I—I got some news for you."

She looked into his genial face, ruddy with embarrassed color under the tan. "Oh, I know," she said softly. "You've fixed it up with—"

He nodded happily. "Say, ain't I lucky? 'Cause she's the real thing—and so—so fine! I didn't scarcely 'bieve she'd take a rough old lumberman like me."

"I'm delighted she did," responded Mrs. Penfield warmly. "I'll be glad to see both of you having a home."

She watched him go on up Miss Haggood's steps, carrying his shoulders proudly, bearing flowers to the gentle lady who had put aside her dreams to live the life of the present. Then she closed the window and went back to her work.

There was to be a supper that in itself would be a house-warming. With her usual forethought Mrs. Penfield had told the members of her family that it would be a fine spread—this time with supplementary details that added overwhelmingly to the weight of her statement. There were to be muffins and honey for the first course; and for the second, a tapioca pudding.

It was only the middle of the afternoon, but preparations were already under way. Crink had been dispatched to the store to get the honey. Mrs. Penfield was setting the table in the dining-room. From the window she could catch a glimpse of the hills, kissed green by the recent rains. Last week it had been winter; today it was spring. With the charming caprice that is California's, January had said: "I was trying to give you some winter, but I couldn't hold to it."

Mrs. Penfield's heart was full of thankfulness as she set out the dishes and placed the silver. She even arranged a centerpiece, a small vase containing a tea rose from a bush that Mrs. Sanders had raised. At last the children were to have the surroundings that help to nurture the home feeling, a feeling which persists if it is incorporated in one's childhood, but which is never built up in exactly the same way if that childhood passes without it. Thoughts of other days, thoughts of the other home that this one called up, knocked persistently against Mrs. Penfield's brain, but she refused to let them enter. Like Miss Haggood, she would live in the present.

The pudding was made. Lettie was beating the white of the egg for the frosting.

"Jimmy, ain't this fun!" she exclaimed. "I've always wondered how it felt to beat an egg. I could keep at it till kingdom come."

Crink burst in at the kitchen door. "Oh, Penzie," he cried, "ev'rybody's so excited down to the store! I got to go right back, but I had to bring these—the honey—and tell you quick."

Mrs. Penfield took down the can of sugar from the shelf above the sink. "What is it, Crink? What's happened?"

He stood in front of her, breathing hard, his eyes shining with eagerness. "Oh, there's been a turrible accident, and the father and mother were killed, but the baby wasn't and—"

"Crink, what are you talking about?" demanded Mrs. Penfield in dismay.
"Why, Penzie, the baby. Ev'rybody's talking 'bout it to the store. It ain't got nobody left—not nobody. Its folks wasn't related to any other folks. And ev'rybody that comes in is talking 'bout it." Crink gasped for breath, but jerked out his statements with wild gesticulations. "Ev'rybody's saying what'll become of the baby, and it'll have to go to a 'stution, and so I thought mebbe—"

Lettie reluctantly relinquished the eggbeater, but zealously advocated the infant. "O Penzie, let's! It'd be such fun! Golly, I'd love to have a—"
Mrs. Penfield stirred sugar into the beaten white and spread the frosting over the pudding. "What's your idea, Crink?" she asked, as she slid the dish into the oven for the final browning.

"Well, I thought mebbe we could take it. You see, we ain't got any baby now—Thad's growing up so fast. And I'd like—"

"Oh, can't we have it, please, Penzie," begged Lettie. "A baby's just what we need. There'd be a heap more variety if—"

"Yes, it'd be a good way to get variety," agreed Mrs. Penfield, looking from one eager face to the other. "I expect you're right. Fact is, I been kind o' worried all the afternoon, thinking how fine we got ev'rything, and how much we got to do with, and how easy it's going to be. Why, I ain't got a thing to do now but keep the house and do the washings and look after you three children; I don't have to watch The Custard Cup 't all any more. I know I ain't got to feel right if ev'rything's so easy."

"Oh, then you will— Oh, Penzie, won't you hurry and get there 'fore anybody else wants it?"

"Land, Crink, there ain't never such a rush as that. But I'll change my dress right now and we'll go down— wherever it is. My goodness, I can't wait myself to get hold of that blessed baby."

"Ev'rybody says it's a fine one," put in Crink enthusiastically. "It's healthy, you know—and ev'rything."
"Oh, we'll have such fun raising it!" said Mrs. Penfield briskly. "I just know it's going to work out grand."

Every Farm Needs Two

EVERY farm needs two automobiles, one of which should be a closed model Chevrolet.

The open touring car is best for general farm use, carrying passengers or perhaps miscellaneous bulky produce or merchandise, but for cold or rainy weather, and for church or social use the family needs a closed car, either a 2-passenger Utility Coupé as illustrated, or the 5-passenger Sedan. The extra large rear compartment is a feature of the Coupé.

These closed cars are very finely made, furnished, upholstered and trimmed. The windows are of plate glass and can be lowered, providing as much air as an open car, yet affording full protection against wind, rain, snow or cold when raised.

With a second car on a farm, one is always available for those at home when the other car is out.

The low prices of Chevrolet make the ownership of two cars feasible for most farm families.

CHARLES AURNER DEAD
Charles Aurner passed away suddenly Friday afternoon while at work. He was hauling gravel from the Nelson pit east of town. His body was taken to the home of his brother, J. Aurner, where an inquest was held. Funeral services were held in the E. church at 2:00 p. m. Sunday Rev. Madison officiating. Mrs. C. G. Chell-green and daughter, accompanied by Mrs. R. S. Tazewell, sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and "Sometime the Silver Cord Will Break." Interment in Kingston cemetery.

Obituary
Charles L. Aurner was born in Kingston June 24, 1848, the fifth child of Leonard and Margaret Dibble Aurner, pioneers of Kingston, coming here in 1837. He was one of a family of nine children. Charlie had spent all his life here in this vicinity and where he made his home after marriage on December 23, 1874. He was united in marriage with Miss Celia Aldrin, with whom he spent many years of a happy, congenial home life, until she was called by death to leave him, May 7, 1922. Having no children, their home was made brighter by adopting a little girl Fern, who with her husband and two little girls were a great comfort in his lonely life after his wife's death. Three brothers and three sisters have gone before. One brother, J. F. Aurner, of Kingston and one sister, Mrs. E. C. Ives, survive him. Charlie, as everybody called him, was a good hearted man with a kindly helping hand for all who were in need and a large measure of love for all his associates and friends. He will surely be missed from his home and this community where he had spent all his seventy-five years and more of life. We will carry him among the flowers which he loved so well with the hope of a happy greeting in the Homeland where no sorrow shall enter in.

On Friday evening they entertained the "Barney Googles" at a six o'clock dinner at the home of Miss Esther Branch, afterwards taking them to the DeKalb Theatre.

Congressman Charles Fuller of Belvidere was here Monday and appointed H. W. Witter as postmaster to fill vacancy here caused by the death of Mr. Sherman. Civil Service examination will be taken in Sycamore November 24, 1923.

Mrs. S. Witter received word last week of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Eliza Adams, of Recluse, Wyoming, October 17. Mrs. Adams was 87 years of age. Before her marriage she was Eliza Whitney and made her home in and around Kingston. She made her home the last few years with her daughter Mrs. Florence Adams. Surviving besides the daughter is one son, Whitney Adams, of Colorado and one sister, Mrs. Minnie Dochum of Belvidere.

Illinois Central System Shows That Railroads Have Made Good on Their Pledge

The railroads have made good on their pledge of last April to meet the unprecedented demand for transportation this year. Although the amount of freight traffic offered has been the largest in history and much greater than was anticipated, the railroads have moved it promptly and efficiently.

It was predicted last spring that railway freight traffic would reach new high levels during the summer and fall. In preparation for the task of moving this record traffic, the railroads announced a program of expenditures upon additions and betterments to their properties amounting to more than $1,100,000,000 for the year. They set out to reduce the number of freight cars needing repairs to 5 per cent of the total and the number of locomotives needing heavy repairs to 15 per cent of the total. They agreed to lay in surplus stocks of coal during the summer, in order to release equipment for other use later in the year. They agreed to carry forward their construction and maintenance programs to have as much work as possible completed by September 1.

All of these objectives have been substantially attained. For example, between January 1 and October 1 the railroads installed 134,636 new freight cars and 4,963 new locomotives, and on the latter date they had on order, with deliveries being made daily, 64,601 new freight cars and 1,242 new locomotives. On October 1 the railroads had in reserve 17,663,448 tons of coal, as compared with 6,756,886 tons on January 1.

The surpassing achievement of the year is that a traffic greater than has ever before been known has been moved without interruption or delay. It was anticipated that car loadings would exceed a million cars a week in nine weeks prior to October 1. In reality, car loadings exceeded the million mark in fifteen weeks. In the week immediately prior to October 1 more cars were loaded with freight than ever before in railway history—a total of 1,092,567 cars. Prior to 1923 the record loading was 1,018,539 cars in the week of October 15, 1920. Loadings in the nine months up to October 1, 1923, amounted to 37,308,891 cars, an increase of 19 per cent over the first nine months of 1922, 28 per cent over the first nine months of 1921 and 10 per cent over the first nine months of 1920. However, it is feared that, even with this unprecedented volume of traffic, the railroads will fail to earn for the year the 5 3/4 per cent upon their tentative valuation to which the Interstate Commerce Commission has held they are entitled.

The railroads, their employes and their patrons are to be congratulated upon their splendid performance in handling this record traffic. There may be some danger, however, that this great achievement of the railroads will create the false impression that a further increase in railway facilities is not needed. To be able to meet the future demand for transportation as they have met it this year, the railroads must not rest upon their oars; they must continue to extend and improve their facilities. Funds must be obtained to provide the additional facilities necessary to reduce the costs of operation and to enable the railroads to furnish the public adequate transportation at the lowest possible rates. Railway patrons must realize that this requires that railway credit be maintained.

Take the corn grower. Just now, when corn is selling at a good price, the railroads are in a position to provide the corn grower with all of the transportation he may desire, a condition that might not have been possible if an agitation for reduced rates or other attacks upon the railroads had resulted in an impairment of railway credit that did not permit of maintaining railway equipment in good condition.

Attacks upon railway credit are attacks upon the public welfare. Moreover, such attacks tend to slow up business and to affect unfavorably the market for all kinds of products, including the products of agriculture.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

President, Illinois Central System.

Haag Washing MACHINES

The Haag washer is designed, primarily, to lessen the burdens of the housewife and it does that and more too. There has never been a machine, driven by electric power that surpassed the HAAG for ease of operation, low cost of upkeep and general all-around utility. We have machines on the floor and will gladly demonstrate their ability to cope with any situation and come out first, that may arise.
