HANDSCHIN TALKS TO FARMERS

ing to keep the farm as the small but basic unit.

Production has been stimulated so that at times it cannot be handled, the farmer must not use his organization to force bargains for too high prices, to become a vicious "trust", or it will topple. Look at the experience of the sugar trust and the tobacco trust. The structure soared high for a time but had to topple.

Organize for marketing but do not organize for absolute and arbitrary control.

Financing is A Task

The financing of the farmer is another difficulty. There is a feeling, and a justifiable one that the farmer has been discriminated against, but it is not as true as is generally believed.

The farmer, sometimes, has had too much credit and would have been better able to keep his feet on the ground if he had had less.

What is needed in the line of financing the farmer is a kind of an intermediate credit, one that will only run from six to nine months, from crop to crop.

With his kind of credit established the farmer would find most of his financial difficulties solved.

Is Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the association was held in the Elk room during the morning.

The "grand old man of 'em all," Dillon S. Broyn, of Genoa, who with his bosom friend, Henry Parke, shares the honor of being the father of the soil improvement movement, presided and made an interesting historical address telling of the work of the association since its inception. Henry Parke, the secretary, made his usual annual financial report and then Farm Advisor Tom Roberts made a speech on his work, in the nature of a report and resume of conditions.

He showed how the work of the association had developed and how it is different now than it was ten years ago when the function of the soil advisor was largely advising on individual farm problems and his principal tool, a soil auger with which he tested and tried soils, in order to give advice for treatment of individual problems.

Scope is Changing

Now that work has been thoroughly done for years and the scope of the work of the advisor has changed into dealing with mass problems and the broader development of our agriculture.

Such matters as the federal land bank administration, aid to the government in its data work, corn testing, pig clubs, income tax returns, marketing and stock shipping are a few examples of new problems which are more within the scope of the advisor's work than the old individual matters of advice on agricultural problems.—DeKalb Chronicle.

INSECTS HAVE SIXTH SENSE

Ants Provided With "Feelers," Which Are to Them of the Highest Importance.

All insects and a certain number of other animals are provided with appendages which the ordinary man calls feelers.

These feelers provide their owners with a mysterious sixth sense which we ourselves lack—a sense which is certainly not sight, hearing, or smell, though possibly it may be a very slight sense of touch.

It is by stroking with their feelers that ants discriminate between friend and foe. You may paint an ant blue or cover him with a strange smelling compound, but his fellows will never make a mistake.

The lobster, the prawn, and the shrimp use their feelers to guide them when they are swimming tall first top speed. Bees and butterflies seem to use them for examining flowers before they begin to sip the honey.

The whiskers of the cat and the rat are stiff hairs to the roots of which are attached very sensitive nerves. It is supposed that they act as guides when their owner is moving in the dark. If they touch an obstacle, an instantaneous message to the brain enables the cat or rat to make a quick movement to one side or the other.

PLANTS' POWER OF MOTION

Enthusiasts Who Have Studied the Subject Say That Many Undoubtedly Possess It.

One of the chief popular distinctions between vegetable and animal life is that animals have power of choice and of voluntary motion, while vegetables and plants grow only mechanically. But the microscope seems to show that many vegetable forms can move as easily as can animals. There is a plant called volvox gladiator, so minute that millions of it could be put in a drinking glass, which is seen to whirl like a top across the field of the microscope. Some plants found in ponds, which are still more minute, move habitually, as with an apparent purpose.

Naturalists who have given closer study than others to climbing plants state that these seem to exercise the liberty of choice. Their tendrils, in climbing over pieces of wood with holes, will try one hole after another until they find one that pleases them. One investigator saw a tendril withdraw itself after having pushed itself in a hole for 36 hours.

Bat's Wings Wonderful.

The bat, whose wings are a mass of nerves, which enable it to avoid objects in flight, is declared by scientists to be one of the most wonderful of all animals in its physical makeup. It is claimed for it that it has from one to three senses that no other animal has. So delicate are the nerves of its wings and so responsive to air vibrations that a bat can be blinded and turned loose in a room where several objects are hanging from the ceiling by cords, and it will fly around them without touching any object, the nerves catching the "feel" of the objects as the bat draws near them. Naturalists in experimenting with bats have whirled a cane over their heads so rapidly that the cane appeared to be a misty funnel. On their heads they wore caps of vivid colors that bats dislike, and would frequently fly at. The bats would rush at them until the whirling cane was reached, and then dart down, touch the cap and fly away, passing between the orbit of the cane without being touched, demonstrating a keenness of observation and delicacy of speed judgment unequalled by any other living animal.

Characteristics of Genius.

Most people perhaps think of great literary or scientific men, or other men of genius, as retiring and inclined to live the life of a recluse. Some of them have been of that type, but not all, by any means. Browning didn't belong to those who disliked company and a good dinner; Dickens wasn't of that crowd; Thackeray did not belong; neither did Dick Steele, Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, Joshua Reynolds, or other worthies of the Eighteenth century. Tennyson loved his quiet and Carlyle grumbled in his garret, both to their own discomfiture and with a loss to their readers. Among the New England notables of the middle of the last century, only Hawthorne was downright unsocial. —Kansas City Star.

To Preserve China.

Many a lover of fine china has been heartbroken to discover her choice dinner or tea set lined with hair-like cracks. Hot tea or chocolate poured into dainty cups cracks them instantly.

A Chinese merchant gave this bit of information when a rare tea set was purchased from him. "Before using delicate china place it in a pan of cold water. Let it come gradually to the boil and allow the china to remain in the water till cold." This tempers the china, and it is capable of withstanding the sudden expansion caused by the heat. There is no need of repeating the treatment for a long time." —Toronto Globe.

Not a Live Wire.

Ripp—Can you let me have a few dollars?

Rapp—No, I attended a blowout last night and my purse was short-circuited.—New York Sun.

Dogs Trained Not to Bark.

The dingo, or wild dog of Australia, neither barks nor growls in its wild state, but learns to do both when tamed and placed among domestic dogs. The Australian kelpies, the most prized of cattle dogs, which contain a strain of dingo blood, are trained never to bark.

Old Progress Is Running in High.

Hereafter, instead of leaving our "footprints on the sands of time," all we'll have to do is leave our fingerprints on the police blotter.—New York Telegraph.

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

be remembered by all of them including the husband, who did not appear to take the idea of spending money for her care. It was finally agreed that one of the daughters would take her for awhile and the case was continued.

Elizabeth Lundberg a resident of the city of DeKalb, was granted a decree of divorce from Charles A. Lundberg on grounds of adultery after a hearing had before Judge Cliffe. The complainant testified she was married at Cortland on September 16, 1895 to the defendant and lived with him until July 20, 1921, when she learned of his infidelity to his marriage vows and left him. Out of the marriage there were born six children, one of whom died, and five now living, the oldest being 31 years of age and the youngest 17 years of age. All of the children are married except the youngest who resides at Cleveland, Ohio. The complainant also testified that Charles Lundberg, her husband committed adultery with one Eura Jensen at her home in DeKalb on July 15, 1920 and on several occasions thereafter. Testimony was also offered charging the defendant with excessive use of intoxicating liquor. The care and custody of the youngest child was awarded the mother and alimony provisions were also made. The defendant did not contest the suit.

No Set Time for Best Work.

Thomas Carlyle had a room built to his house in Chelsea with double wall, so that he could not hear any of the noise from outside, and in this room he wrote "The French Revolution." Gautier, on the other hand, could not think well unless he was in a newspaper office where there was lots of noise and racket going on. The human brain gets accustomed each day to a certain time for action and it works better and is more active at that time than any other time in the 24 hours.

Mason Bee's Substantial Nest.

The mason bee, as its name implies, is a builder of structures of stone and mortar. The nest is attached to almost any solid structure and actually does consist of small stones cemented together with mortar. The house consists of many cells of oval shape, and into each an egg is laid. The cell is lined with silken webs by the mother, who gets out of it by a hole in its top. Before leaving, however, she hermetically seals up the cell.

Cards One Thousand Years Old.

The statement, often repeated and apparently very generally believed, that playing cards were invented and first used to distract the melancholy Charles VI of France is not correct; there is a pack in the British museum known to be more than 1,000 years old and there were undoubtedly Japanese and Chinese cards in the Twelfth century.

A Thought for Today.

The good man prolongs his life; to be able to enjoy one's past life is to live twice.—Martial.

When is a Tire Low Priced?

Ask yourself which is the better proposition for you:

A good tire at a fair price, or a poor tire at a low price?

For your own good, you should know.

What about the "special discount" offered you on certain makes of tires?

Does the dealer give it to you out of his profit?

Or does the manufacturer give the dealer an extra profit to cover such "discounts"?

Or does it come out of the tire?

For our part, we believe that a tire is low-priced only when it gives you great mileage.

This is the whole foundation of popularity of GOODYEAR TIRES, the largest selling tires in the world.

Something to Think About
By F. A. WALKER

NOT ON BREAD ALONE

THERE is within all of us an ever-growing appetite which craves substantial nourishment for the soul.
A sumptuous table heaped with palatable delicacies fails utterly to satisfy this hunger.
With all our carnal gluttony we find ourselves at certain periods of our existence yearning for spiritual food.
Wealth and luxury leave but an emptiness; poverty and sorrow distress and harden our hearts; the world is a cheat—a bauble that eludes us and leaves us in vagueness.

Headaches, coated tongue, sour stomach, no appetite, bad breathe, pimples, clogged bowels—Ugh! These are nature's danger signals—remove the cause, eliminate the poisons from the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels—HOLLISTER'S GOLDEN NUGGET TABLETS will do the job—Guaranteed. Baldwin's Pharmacy.

"Hooverize"
By Building Now

You are directly concerned in the unemployment problem. It affects the prosperity of the entire nation. You personally can help to relieve it by following the spirit of President Harding's Unemployment Conference, Herbert Hoover, Chairman—that is, "by making repairs and alterations during the winter instead of waiting until spring when employment will be more plentiful."

By starting or continuing your building now you at the same time help yourself. Winter repairing and building gives you the benefit of plentiful materials, the best of labor and the absence of all rush work. It makes you independent of the delays and congestion that are almost sure to come with the approach of spring with its predicted period of extraordinary activity in building. And when spring does come your work will be completed or well under way.

Cold weather work is simple, commonly practised and thoroughly feasible. This year it is doubly advisable. Ask us to tell you more about it.
