DEFINES POSITION

Charles E. Hughes Makes Clear Statement in Acceptance

HE STANDS FOR AMERICANISM

Believes in Rights of Americans on Land and Sea and is For Preparedness

Following is the message Justice Hughes sent to Chairman Harding accepting the Republican nomination for president:

"Mr. Chairman and Delegates: I have not desired the nomination. I have wished to remain on the bench. But in this critical period of our national history I recognize that it is your right to summon and that it is my paramount duty to respond. "You speak at a time of national exigency transcending merely partisan consideration. You voice the demand for a DOMINANT, THOROUGH-GOING AMERICANISM, with firm protective upbuilding policies essential to our peace and security; and to that call, in this crisis, I CANNOT FAIL TO ANSWER WITH THE PLEDGE OF ALL THAT IS IN ME TO THE SERVICE OF OUR COUNTRY. Therefore, I accept the nomination.

For Rights of Americans

"I STAND FOR THE FIRM AND UNFLINCHING MAINTENANCE OF ALL THE RIGHTS OF AMERICAN CITIZENS ON LAND AND SEA. I neither impugn motives nor understate difficulties. But it is most regrettable true that in our foreign relations we have suffered incalculably from the weak and vacillating course which has been taken with regard to Mexico, a course lamentably wrong with regard to both our rights and our duties.

"We interfered without consistency, and while seeking to dictate when we were not concerned, we utterly failed to appreciate and discharge our plain duty to our citizens.

"At the outset of the administration the high responsibilities of our diplomatic intercourse with foreign nations were subordinated to a conception of partisan requirements and presented to the world a humiliating spectacle of ineptitude.

United States Has Lost Prestige

"Belated efforts have not availed to recover the influence and prestige so unfortunately sacrificed, and brave words have been stripped of their force by indecision.

"I DESIRE TO SEE OUR DIPLOMACY RESTORED TO ITS BEST STANDARDS, and to have these advanced; TO HAVE NO SACRIFICES OF NATIONAL INTERESTS TO PARTISAN EXPEDIENCY; to have the first ability of the country always at its command, here and abroad, in diplomatic intercourse; to maintain firmly our rights under international law, insisting steadfastly upon all our rights as neutrals, and fully perform our international obligations; and by the clear correctness and justice of our position and our manifest ability and disposition to sustain them to dignify our place among the nations.

"I STAND FOR AN AMERICANISM THAT KNOWS NO ULTERIOR PURPOSE, FOR A PATRIOTISM WHICH IS SINGLE AND COMPLETE, WHETHER NATIVE OR NATURALIZED, OF WHATEVER RACE OR CREED, WE HAVE BUT ONE COUNTRY, AND WE DO NOT FOR AN INSTANT TOLERATE ANY DIVISION OF ALLEGIANCE.

"I BELIEVE IN MAKING PROMPT PROVISION TO ASSURE ABSOLUTELY OUR NATIONAL SECURITY. I BELIEVE IN PREPAREDNESS, not only entirely adequate for our defense with respect to numbers and equipment, in both army and navy, but with all thoroughness to the end that in each branch of the service there may be the utmost efficiency under the most complete administrative heads.

"We are devoted to the ideas of honorable peace. We wish to promote all wise and practical measures for the just settlement of international disputes.

No Danger of Militarism

"In view of our abiding ideals, there is no danger of militarism in this country. We have no policies of aggression, no lust for territory, no zeal for strife.

"IT IS IN THIS SPIRIT THAT WE DEMAND ADEQUATE PROVISION FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE, and we condemn the inexcusable neglect that has been shown in this matter of first national importance. WE MUST MAKE A FAIR AND WISER ADJUSTMENT OF THE TARIFF, IN ACCORDANCE WITH SOUND PRINCIPLES TO SECURE OUR ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE AND MAINTAIN AMERICAN STANDARDS OF LIVING.

"We must conserve the best interests of labor, realizing that in democracy patriotism and strength must be rooted in even-handed justice.

For Honest Business

In preventing as we must, unjust discrimination and monopolistic practices, we must still be zealous to assure the foundation of honest, business.

"Particularly should we seek the expansion of foreign trade. We must not throttle enterprise, here or abroad.

Advance Advertising Man Will Be Here Monday—Meeting Saturday Night

Genoa's big week this year comes in July. The Lincoln Chautauqua opens on the 16th of that month and closes on the 21st. Genoa again gets a Sunday program.

The management of the Chautauqua system claims a better array of talent than ever, there being some numbers of exceptional merit.

The guarantee committee will meet at S. S. Slater's office on Saturday evening of this week to formulate plans for the week's entertainment, and all those who signed the contract last summer are requested to be present.

The advance advertising man will be in Genoa next Monday to put out the first heralds and banners, issue programs and set the ball rolling. Season tickets will probably be placed on sale next week.

DIED AT COLVIN PARK

Fred C. Hagen, Jr., of Belvidere, was Visiting his Brother, Henry

Belvidere Republican.—Fred C. Hagen, Jr., died Friday evening at 11:45 o'clock at the home of his brother, Henry Hagen, near Colvin Park.

The funeral services were held at the home of his sister, Mrs. John G. Schwabke, 620 Van Buren street, where the body had been taken, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. G. W. Belsey, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. The interment was in the Belvidere cemetery.

Mr. Hagen had been afflicted with diabetes for some time, but was confined to his bed for only two days. He was born in North Kingston, DeKalb county, 39 years ago, and was married to Miss Anna Keator, of this city, in 1905. He had lived in this vicinity all his life, with the exception of the last three or four years, when he resided in Elgin. He was on a visit to his brother when taken down with his last sickness.

He is survived, besides the brother an sister mentioned, by his wife. There also remain his father and the brothers, William and Edward, of this city. His mother passed away six years ago.

THE FOUR WILLARDS

Coming to the Genoa Opera House Saturday, June 17

The Four Willards are known as the Famous Harmony Singers, singers that have been playing high class vaudeville houses only. Never before have you had such opportunity to hear such artists in a picture house. The Willards are among the best in the business. From coast to coast the name of Willard is famous, not only for the sterling quality of their act but because of the remarkable fact that all four have beautiful voices, something unusual in the majority of singers. You cannot afford to miss this musical treat for you may feel assured that the management of the opera house has gone to some expense to procure the Willards. For the benefit of the parched citizens of DeKalb a "trailer" is attached to the car on the Aurora-DeKalb electric line which leaves DeKalb at five o'clock on Saturday evenings and is run as far as Maple Park, the nearest convenient place where saloons are licensed. It is reported that over 200 were accommodated on this "run" Saturday evening.

ARTHUR KACHEL stands first in the Chautauqua field as an interpretative actor. The two plays which he will use this season, "The Melting Pot" and "The Music Master," are well worth the study and best thought of every Chautauqua patron. He has been among the Chautauquas a number of seasons and thoroughly understands their demands. His winters are spent in study in New York under David Belasco. He will be here on the third day of the Chautauqua, following the Haskil Entertainers in the night program with an interpretation of one of the above plays.

"We must take up the serious problem of transportation, of interstate and foreign commerce, in a sensible and candid manner, and provide an enduring basis for prosperity by the intelligent use of the constitutional powers of congress, so as adequately to protect the public on the one hand and on the other to conserve the essential instrumentalities of progress.

"I stand for the principles of our civil service laws. In every department of government the highest efficiency must be insisted upon. All laws and programs are vain without efficient and impartial administration.

"I cannot, within the limits of this statement, speak upon all the subjects that will require attention. I CAN ONLY SAY THAT I FULLY INDOSE THE PLATFORM YOU HAVE ADOPTED.

"I deeply appreciate the responsibility you impose. I should have been glad to have that responsibility placed upon another. But I shall undertake to meet it, grateful for the confidence you express.

"I SINCERELY TRUST ALL FORMER DIFFERENCES MAY BE FORGOTTEN AND THAT WE MAY HAVE UNITED EFFORT IN A PATRIOTIC REALIZATION OF OUR NATIONAL NEED AND OPPORTUNITY.

"I have resigned my judicial office, and I am ready to devote myself unreservedly to the campaign."

Priest G. A. R. Post

The most unique grand army post in the United States is the one at Notre Dame university, which is composed almost exclusively of priests and brothers of the Holy Cross congregation. The G. A. R. post was first founded at Notre Dame in October, 1897, with a total of thirty or forty members of the Grand Army of the Republic as well as several members of the Confederate army. Some of these men were the priests that Notre Dame sent to the army as chaplains when the war broke out and others were soldiers who later received the vocation to enter the religious life.

ALLOWED W. H. HEED'S BILL

City Council at Last Meeting Adjust Matters to Satisfaction of Claimant

WILL ISSUE BONDS

Citizens so Decide at the Polls on Tuesday of This Week

A VERY LIGHT VOTE IS CAST

One Hundred Thirty-nine Favor the Issue and Fifty-five Say No—Will Help Council Coming Year

By a vote of 139 to 55 the citizens of Genoa decided on Tuesday that a bond issue of $4,500 was the business way of paying part of Genoa's debt, or that part of the debt contracted before the first of May last. The vote stood as follows.

	First Ward	Yes No
Men	39	25
Women	16	6
Second Ward
Men	32	13
Women	20	2
Third Ward
Men	22	6
Women	10	3
Total	139	55

The next thing on the docket is to find a market for the bonds. At the present time no one is making a desperate effort to get in on the sale, but there is little doubt about their being disposed of.

This $4,500 will not get the city of Genoa out of debt, but it will relieve the situation and give the council an opportunity to make some plans for the future and adjust matters to the revenue conditions as they now exist.

By the time taxes are receivable next spring the city will be in debt another four or five thousand dollars, and it will not be necessary to spend money "foolishly" to incur that debt either. The only wise and sane thing to do at that time will be to issue more bonds, then the annual appropriation must be made in accordance with the possible income and adhered to strictly.

The Republican-Journal has tried several times and in several ways to explain how and why the city is in debt. Some thoroly understand the situation, others do not see the conditions clearly and a few (fortunately, very few) do not want to be shown.

The story is told in a very few words, the facts and figures being so cold and plain that no one can misunderstand. The city of Genoa has for several years been spending in the neighborhood of $14,000 annually, the money being derived from the water works, licenses, fines, taxes, and other sources of a minor nature. The year the sewer system was installed there were many incidental expenses paid out of the general fund. No one item amounted to much but the aggregate was quite a sum. The greatest blow to the treasury came with the order from the state authorities to build a septic tank. As the levy for payment of the sewer proper had already been spread, it was necessary to pay for the tank out of the general fund. This depleted the treasury approximately $3,000. The new ornamental street lighting system was installed, costing about $500 more per year. The city went dry two years ago, making a big cut in the revenue.

The city is behind schedule financially approximately $10,000; it may reach $11,000. For anyone to say that this deficit has been caused by foolish expenditure of money is decidedly unjust to the council that built the sewer and those following.

Note these figures, in the rough, for the past two years and then be less active in condemning some one.

Septic tank and incidentals	$3,000.00
Street lighting extra	1000.00
Loss saloon license	8000.00
Total loss working capital	$12000.00
Maximum deficit	11000.00

Balance ..... $1000.00

As a matter of fact the city council of the past two years has spent less by $1,000.00 than had been expended in years previous.

The writer was city clerk six years and during that time never saw a dollar spent "foolishly." There may have been some expenditures which could have been cut down, but would everyone have stood for the cutting? The city council might right now cut out part of the street lighting system, neglect the streets and do away with police protection, but would YOU stand for it?

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health—

Frankfort, Ky.—“I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish.”—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

Watch Wasn't Necessary. The colonel of a certain regiment in Kitchener's army is a great stickler for obedience, instant and complete. “Smith,” he said to his orderly recently, “I want you to ride down to the railway station and get me the correct time.” Smith shuffled his feet and fiddled with his fingers. “Well, man,” roared the officer irately, “why don't you do as you are told?” “Please, sir,” replied the orderly meekly, “I haven't a watch.” “A watch—a watch!” snapped the colonel. “What d'ye want a watch for? Just write it down on a bit of paper.”

His Reason. Moved to pity at the sight of a small boy luging a monstrous bundle of newspapers, a man stopped and asked: “Don't all those papers make you tired?” “Nope,” the little newsie replied cheerfully. “I can't read.”—Pathfinder.

The Great Objection. “Don't you dislike the man who insists on hearing himself talk?” “No,” replied Miss Cayenne; “not unless he compels other people to listen.”

Concentrated Satisfaction

A great many former users of tea and coffee have learned that there is a pure food beverage made from wheat, which has a delightful flavor.

It never exacts of its users the tribute of sleeplessness, heart-flutter, headache and other ills often caused by the drug, caffeine, in coffee and tea.

Instant Postum

suggests the snappy flavor of mild java coffee, but is absolutely free from caffeine or any harmful ingredient. Instant Postum is in condensed, soluble form, and wonderfully convenient for the home—for the picnic—for travel—everywhere.

If tea or coffee interferes with comfort or success, as it does for many users, try a shift to Postum.

Coats Adapted for Youthful-Appearing or Matronly Wearers Are to Be Had in Appropriate Designs—Pretty Combing Jacket That May Be Fashioned From a Bath Towel and Heavy Mercerized Cotton Yarn.

Those who are gifted with the faculty for creating styles must also be able to adapt styles to women of various ages. They contrive to interpret them in many ways, so that garments bespeak youthful or older wearers. In the picture two coats are shown. The checked model leaves no doubt in the mind that it is suited to and made for a young woman. The coat of covert cloth is not quite so decided in character.

These coats are recommended to meet the general needs of every day for young women. The checked model is in black and white, bordered and banded with black satin. The rolling collar is faced with satin. White celluloid buttons banded with black in three sizes are used for decoration and for fastening the coat. The model fits the figure vaguely above the waistline and is generously wide below. The front sets trimly, with the fullness at the sides and back, held in place by a belt of satin, and the checked material. In the model of covert cloth the sleeves are cut in one with the body of the coat and the garment is hardly more definite in adjustment to the figure than a shawl. The collar is very high at the back and is faced with taffeta silk. It has an open throat. There could hardly be anything more pretentious than a big bath towel and heavy mercerized cotton yarn are needed to make a pretty combing jacket like that shown in the picture. These practical and familiar things of sturdy quality are wrought into many articles for personal use and for furnishings. The bedroom slippers shown with the jacket are crocheted

A long bath towel with blue and black broken stripes on a white ground was chosen for the jacket pictured. It is a very simple matter to convert a towel into a jacket. The towel is folded crosswise at the middle of its length, and a slash six inches long cut for the neck. A slit is cut from this neck opening to the bottom of the towel to form the front opening. All the raw edges are finished with a hem a half-inch wide. The mercerized cotton yarn used for the crocheted edge matches the blue stripe in the towel in color. ### DEVICE WILL BE APPRECIATED ON HOT SUMMER DAYS.

At Small Cost a “Refrigerator” May Be Constructed That Will Contribute Greatly to the Comfort of the Entire Family.

A companion convenience to the fireless cooker for the hot summer days is the iceless refrigerator, or milk cooler. Make a screened case 3½ feet high with the other dimensions 12 by 15 inches. If a solid top is used, simply place the water pan on this. Otherwise fit the pan closely into the opening of the top frame and support it by one-inch cleats fastened to the inside of the frame. Place two movable shelves in the frame, 12 to 15 inches apart. Use a biscuit pan 12 inches square on the top to hold the water, and where the refrigerator is to be used indoors have the whole thing standing in a large pan to catch any drip. The pans and case may be painted white, allowed to dry, and then enameled. A covering of white cotton flannel should be made to fit the frame. Have the smooth side out and button the covering on the frame with buggy and automobile curtain hooks and eyes, arranged so that the door may be opened without unfastening these hooks. This can be done by putting one row of hooks on the edge of the door near the latch and the other just opposite the opening with the hem on each side extended far enough to cover the crack at the edge of the door, so as to keep out the outside air and retain the cooled air. This dress or covering will have to be hooked around the top edge also. Two double strips one-half the width of each side should be sewed on the top of each side and allowed to extend over about 2½ or 3 inches in the pan of water. The bottom of the covering should extend to the lower edge of the case.

Place the refrigerator in a shady place where air will circulate around it freely.—Cleveland Leader.

Stuffed Flank.

Four or five pounds of flank (that part that contains the steak, but do not remove steak). Have butcher cut a pocket in for a dressing. Use a loaf of stale bread or more, if necessary, one-half pint of milk (water can be used or milk and water), one teaspoonful celery salt, two or three onions, small bunch parsley, and about three level tablespoonfuls of butter (melted), salt and pepper to taste. Fill in pocket, but do not pack tight, and close any openings. Bake in a moderate oven, basting frequently. A gravy can be made after it is roasted. A good, tender flank only takes about one and a half or not over two hours.

Split Pea Soup With Bone.

Wash one pint of split peas in cold water and drain. Add an onion quartered, with three cloves stuck in each quarter and a little sprig, each of parsley, celery and a bay leaf. If you have no celery, use celery salt. As soon as the contents of the kettle reach a good boil, push back on the fire and simmer three or four hours with a ham bone or bacon rind, until the peas are tender. The fireless cooker is a good place for this overnight. When ready to use, press through a coarse colander, season with pepper and salt, heat and serve with croutons.—Ladies' World.

Omelet of Herbs.

“Omelette aux fines herbes” is to be had at every wayside inn in the most remote corner of sunny France. Parsley, thyme and sweet marjoram are mixed and rubbed together for the flavoring, according to taste. An omelet “jardiniere” is two tablespoonfuls of mixed parsley, onion, chives, shallots and a few leaves each of sorrel and chevril, minced fine and stirred into the beaten eggs before cooking. These omelets require a little more butter for frying than the plain omelet.

Celery and Carrots.

Boil a few diced carrots until tender, adding salt when nearly done. Then take an equal quantity of boiled celery cut in small pieces. Mix and add one cupful each of flour and butter rubbed smooth, salt and pepper to taste. Boil for five minutes, stirring constantly. The dish should be served as soon as ready.

Apple Parings.

Save your red apple parings. You can get a glass of jelly of the parings from two pies.

Personally Considerate. Kitty—Reggy Soft is continually patting himself on the back, isn't he? Peggy—Yes; the dear boy is so kind to dumb animals.

Three Hundred Million Bushel Crop in 1915

Farmers pay for their land with one year's crop and prosperity was never so great.

Regarding Western Canada as a grain producer, a prominent business man says: “Canada's position today is sounder than ever. There is more wheat, more oats, more grain for feed, 20% more cattle than last year and more hogs. The war market in Europe needs our surplus. As for the wheat crop, it is marvelous and a monument of strength for business confidence to build upon, exceeding the most optimistic predictions.”

Wheat averaged in 1915 over 25 bushels per acre
Oats averaged in 1915 over 45 bushels per acre
Barley averaged in 1915 over 40 bushels per acre

Prices are high, markets convenient, excellent land, low in price either improved or otherwise, ranging from $12 to $30 per acre. Free homestead lands are plentiful and not far from railway lines and convenient to good schools and churches. The climate is healthful.

There is no war tax on land, nor is there any conscription. ### A Will of Nineteen Words.

In one of the shortest wills on record, James H. Darling, who died on December 3, 1913, cuts off his sons with but $1 each and leaves all the rest of his estate to his daughter. The testament, which is dated February 10, 1910, was filed in the orphans' court. It contains nineteen words, as follows:

“After death, I will my daughter, Annie C. Darling, all my money and belongings, except $1 to my sons.”—Baltimore News.

The Cynical Inventor.

A young inventor exhibited a ring to a jeweler.

“A new type of engagement ring,” he said, “that I'm going to patent. It will make me a fortune.”

“Fumph,” said the jeweler. “What is there patentable about this?”

“It's adjustable,” said the inventor.

A Respite.

“Are you looking forward to the summer with pleasant anticipation?” asked the optimistic citizen.

“Yes, indeed,” replied the pessimistic person. “A great many people I'm tired of looking at will go out of town for the summer.”

Some men are about as important as a joke without a point.

It doesn't take a smart baby long to outgrow its smartness.

It takes an artistic bore to be almost entertaining.

Better Than War.

“The whole world is preparing for war,” said William Jennings Bryan at a pacifist dinner.

“I know a man in Miami whose good lady suddenly went in for spiritualism. Did he declare war? No; he did not. He did better.

“Instead of declaring war, the Miami man took to accompanying his wife to all her spiritualistic seances, and at every seance he got the handsome medium to procure him messages from his first wife, who was dead—and, ah, such tender, such loving messages as they were!

“By this method the Miami man soon put an end to the spiritualistic idea in his household.”

New Post Toasties

Here's the why: The New Toasties have a delicate, true corn flavour—unmatched by any other corn flakes. Trial proves. They are the meat of choicest white Indian Corn—first cooked and seasoned, then rolled into thin wisps and toasted by quick, intense rotary heat. This new patented process of making raises distinguishing little bubbles on each flake, and brings out their wonderful new flavour.

Want Municipal Plant
 The city of DeKalb, which is party to a ten year contract similar to that to which the city of Sycamore is a party with the DeKalb-Sycamore Electric company, for the lighting of the streets and pumping water, is taking steps to ascertain the feasibility of that city establishing a plant of its own and doing its own lighting and pumping. At the meeting of the city council on Tuesday evening a resolution was presented to the council by the committee on lights and water to the effect that the committee on electric lighting and water be instructed to get all available data as to cost of installation and maintenance and any other information that will indicate the feasibility of the city's building and maintaining its own plant.

Saloniki a Sty of Squalor.
 Saloniki resembles most ports of the eastern Mediterranean in being a picture of beauty from a distance and a sty of squalor near at hand. It is, in fact, a stately Levantine town in a beautiful medieval setting, comely in the mass, unpleasant in detail.
 As you survey Saloniki from the water it has a dignified air that accords well with its historical renown, being set in stately isolation upon the steep slopes of its bare hills and girded by ruined but still massive walls that rise to a great Venetian citadel on the landward side. Graceful white minarets that the Turks built are sprinkled about among the houses, and the quay, that is the chief street of the town, lined with picturesque Greek sailing craft, stretches for a full mile along the water's edge. But ashore, shut in by the narrow street of the "Frank quarter," your vivid impression of squalor and slovenliness soon makes you forget the graceful picture from the sea.—G. Ward Price in London Times.

Our National Parks.
 Our fourteen national parks, with the name and size of each, are as follows: Yellowstone National park, in Wyoming, Montana and Idaho, 2,142,720 acres; Yosemite National park, California, 719,622 acres; Glacier National park, Montana, approximately 915,000 acres; Mount Rainier National park, Washington, 207,360 acres; Sequoia National park, California, 161,597 acres; General Grant National park, California, 2,536 acres; Crater Lake National park, Oregon, 159,300 acres; Wind Cave National park, South Dakota, 10,522 acres; Platt National park, Oklahoma, 848,22 acres; Mesa Verde National park, Colorado, 42,370 acres; Sullys Hill park, North Dakota, 780 acres; Casa Grande Ruin, Arizona, 480 acres; Rocky Mountain National park, Colorado, approximately 229,000 acres; Hot Springs reservation, Arkansas, 911.63 acres.—New York Times.

London's Last "City Poet."
 Elkanah Settle, a copy of whose rare "Augusta Triumphans" is in the Guildhall library, is forgotten by an ungrateful posterity, but was once a prominent personage in the literary world at London and considered a serious rival to Dryden, by whom he is satirized as "Doeg." He was the last of the "city poets," retained at a salary of 16 a year to perpetrate triumphal odes for lord mayor's day, and similar pageants, and his verses, as Wilkes observed to Dr. Johnson, matched the queerness of his names. Settle was a most prolific poetaster, but somehow never prospered, though he repeatedly turned his coat in religion and politics. He was reduced to playing "the green dragon" at Bartholomew fair and died a poor brother of the Charterhouse.—Westminster Gazette.

A Japanese Wedding.
 A Japanese wedding is a quaintly pretty ceremony. The bride, dressed in a white silk kimono and white veil, sits on the floor facing her affianced husband. Near them are two tables, upon one of which are two cups, a bottle of sake and a kettle with two spouts. On the other are a miniature plum tree, typifying the beauty of the bride; a miniature fir tree, representing the strength of the bridegroom, and a stork stands on a tortoise, signifying long life and felicity. The bride and bridegroom drink alternately from the two spouted kettle in token that they will henceforth share each other's joys and sorrows. After the wedding the bride's veil is laid away to be used as her shroud.

Polar Bears in the Water.
 Polar bears enjoy a bath for the sake of cleanliness as well as for swimming and hunting. At a certain zoological garden when the polar bear's bath was being filled with fresh water it would stand with its mouth open, letting the water run through the jaws, and when the bath was full would play all kinds of tricks, revelling in the water. One of its antics was to float on its back in the water and then catch hold of its heels with its fore paws and roll over in a ball. It would also turn over backward on the edge and fall in with a big splash.

Of Course Not.

Java's Finest Temple to Buddha.

In his posthumous work, "Java," D. W. Campbell goes minutely into the antiquities of Java, which consist of a number of ruins of temples and of other sacred edifices, formerly dedicated to the religion of the people, who, after first embracing Brahmanism, changed their faith (about A. D. 450) to Buddhism and a thousand years later to Mohammedanism. The greatest of the temples is Boro-Boedoer (or Boro-Budur, as Mr. Campbell spells it). It is the finest example of its kind extant; in fact, Buddhism has left no such record anywhere else. Nobody knows exactly when the temple was built, but it is generally believed to be 1,200 years old, though some authorities date it as late as the thirteenth century. There are 436 images of Buddha in the temple. For centuries it lay buried and was unearthed by an Indian officer, Colonel Colin Mackenzie. Two hundred coolies a day were working for six weeks in clearing the riotous luxuriance of tropical bushes and creepers, but it was years before the temple was entirely uncovered.

HARMONY PREVAILS (ALMOST)

The nomination of Charles Evans Hughes as Republican candidate for president of the United States is a safe starter for complete harmony between the stand-pat Republicans and those who left the fold four years ago. Perhaps the "Old Guard" would have preferred Root, but they are satisfied with Hughes as a compromise candidate. It was known that the Progressives would not stand for Root and the Republican convention eliminated him at the opening as a starter toward a reunion of the two political factions. The rank and file of the Progressives, while not jubilant over the outcome of the two conventions, will rally to the support of Hughes, knowing well that such is the only course to take for the best interests of the principles for which they stand. Mr. Hughes goes into the race with no ante-convention promises to fulfill and his letter of acceptance states plainly his position on the great questions at hand confronting the American people today. He is for preparedness and a protective tariff, the two vital planks in both the Progressive and Republican platforms. Many of the Progressives came back to the Republican ranks two years ago, unconditionally, but the great admiration for Roosevelt held others from taking this step, it being their fond hope that their leader would be the nominee of the Republican party this year. Now that Roosevelt himself has repudiated the Progressive movement, those who are still sticking by the sinking ship have a choice of three moves. They may go down with the ship next November and pull the Republican party with them, they may vote for the Democratic nominee and thereby sacrifice the principles for which they and their leaders have been so assiduously working, or they may help elect Hughes and thereby re-establish confidence, giving this country the greatest era of prosperity in its history. Which?

THE FARMER AND THE BIRD

One of the most encouraging signs of a wider interest in birds is in the fact that the State Farmers' Institute has in its program both in 1915 and 1916, a place for an address on "Beneficial Birds," says the Audubon Bulletin.

The farmer is fast learning that birds are a very practical and efficient check on both noxious insects and weeds, and that the birds that nest in his orchard and garden, which he formerly scarcely noticed except to object to their helping themselves to berries, are a very valuable asset.

The principal address at the session of the Department of Household Science, on Thursday, February 24, during the annual meeting of State Institute in Decatur, was an illustrated talk on birds by a prominent educator of Southern Illinois, Professor J. P. Gilber of Carbondale. The addresses given at such times are included in the annual report of the Farmers' Institute which is published and distributed to farmers all over the State. This will give desirable publicity to the message Professor Gilbert brought to the Decatur meeting.

As a result of the awakening interest in bird life in the country, farmers in many localities are establishing local bird protection organizations.

What a time the "keynote" at the Democratic convention this week will have in telling the glories of the Democratic party. He might tell how the free trade has reduced the cost of living (?). He might picture a halo about Wilson's head for keeping us out of war, but he should be very careful not to say anything regarding conditions along the Mexican border where an American is not safe on his own American ranch. He could dwell on the great strides taken by Wilson and his Democratic congress in the matter of preparedness. He should also hesitate about drawing attention to President Wilson's backbone, which is now somewhat out of plumb owing to the many vacillating movements of the past two years.

Over two hundred community high schools have been established in Illinois since the law making such a school possible has been in force. The township of Sandwich is the last to take advantage of the law. Genoa was one of the first townships to start the ball rolling for better schools, but we are no nearer a solution of the problem than we were three years ago. It is true that many have been converted to the new idea in that time, but they have not become good preachers. No one man nor a half dozen men or women can put over a thing of this kind. It requires team work and a big team at that. It is a well known fact that if one man or a few people do all the pushing, these people are accused of having some "ulterior motive." In view of this condition, every voter who becomes converted to the better school movement and really believes that consolidation is the only way, should become a booster. Mere acquiescence never accomplished anything.

Days of Old

Frank L. DeWolf, of San Bernardino, Calif., who is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank Parker, in Kingston, was in Genoa the first of the week and called at The Republican-Journal office. Mr. DeWolf graduated from the Genoa High school in the class of 1883 and was principal of the Hampshire school during 1885 and 1886. The editor was a pupil in the Hampshire school at that time and the visit of Mr. DeWolf reminded us very forcibly of the "weight of years" that are upon us. We "lived in the past" for a half hour and enjoyed the backward journey immensely.

Copley for Hughes

Congressman Ira C. Copley will be a candidate for the republican nomination for re-election says the Elgin Daily News.

In an interview from his office in Aurora, he announced that he is entirely satisfied with the republican nomination of Hughes for president. predicted a G. O. P. victory by a "splendid majority" and set aside all doubts concerning his own candidacy.

"Hughes was my second choice for the nomination," he said. "Certainly I will support him. He is as good a progressive as any of us. His nomination is entirely satisfactory to me and should be satisfactory to all progressives and republicans. If he is satisfactory to them I believe he will win by a splendid majority."

Why Not Face the Facts About Armor Competition?

To the People:

The policy of the United States Government for many years has made real competition in armor-making ineffective.

The Government might have asked the three armor plants for bids and let the entire tonnage to the lowest bidder. That would have made competition effective.

The result of such a course would have been to drive two of the three manufacturers out of business, and leave the country with facilities of only one plant in time of need.

The Government in fact has always asked for bids from the three manufacturers, but no matter what the price quoted, each year's business was divided among them.

Armor makers serve but one customer—the Government, just as a public utility serves but one customer—a community.

The solution of the public utility problem is regulation of rates.

The solution of the armor problem is for the Government to fix the price.

We voluntarily agree to accept any price fixed by the Federal Trade Commission. Isn't acceptance of that offer better than the destruction of an industry built solely to serve the Government?

COMPANY ASKS $2,400

County Telephone People Start Suit Against Illinois Northern

The DeKalb County Telephone company has begun suit against the Illinois Northern Utilities company for $2,400, the amount which the telephone company paid to his widow because of the accident which caused the death of George W. Thompson, at Kirkland on June 15 of last year, says the True Republican.

The telephone company represents in their bill that they operated low-tension wires and the electric company operated high tension wires at the place mentioned. Thompson was killed while working for the telephone company at Kirkland by an electric shock. He left a widow.

He was earning $50 a month, and by reason of his death his heirs became entitled to a sum for four times the amount of his average annual earnings, and the claim was settled, under an order of the Industrial Board of the State of Illinois, to which appeal has been taken, by the telephone company paying the heir $2,400.

The plaintiff company alleges that the defendant company's wires were strung over those of the plaintiff, and the defendant company did not exercise ordinary care, and therefore plaintiff is entitled to recover the amount sued for.

"The Best-liked Car in the Country"

A Motor That Thrives on Short Rations

Motors are just like people—some have to be fed an enormous amount to keep going right, and others eat less but digest all of it—and turn every atom into energy.

The long-stroke (3½ x 5½) motor in the Briscoe Twenty-four is the same that made such wonderful economy records in the 1915 Briscoe—a car that led its field for value at $785.

In the Twenty-four—a car much lighter—the gasoline consumption is almost unbelievably small until you've tested it yourself. We have records of 35 miles to a gallon in actual service.

The motor is Briscoe-built, and especial attention has been given to minimizing friction. Lubrication is simple but thorough.

Here's a motor that will never "eat its head off"—but that gives you a reserve of power more than sufficient to take you wherever you want to go.

And it's in a car that for beauty, comfort and sturdiness will be a revelation to you.

There is a New Thrill in Store for You

It is the thrill that comes from sitting behind the Jackson "34" motor.

And it is evoked by the superb smoothness of operation, the wonderful silence, the extraordinary balance and freedom from vibration, the like of which you have never known in any "four."

Within our seven years' experience in building high quality motor cars we do not recall any model of our own make—or of any other factory—that so instantly aroused such enthusiasm.

Indeed, we might go further and say that we doubt if in the history of motoring there has been a four-cylinder motor so splendidly worked out—so complete in every detail—so marvelously smooth in action.

At 2700 revolutions per minute this motor shows no trace of vibration.

Analyze that statement in the light of all the claims made for every type of motor—and you will see that in its perfect balance is the very essence of all motor satisfaction.

But, we do not ask you to accept our word as to the merit of the model "34"—we invite you to make comparisons yourself.

Compare it with any six. Compare it for silence—for flexibility—for power—for freedom from vibration. For soundness of construction, for simplicity, for economy. Let your own experience lead you to a decision.

And remember, we build two EIGHT CYLINDER models, as well.

HOME A NOVEL BY GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

SYNOPSIS.

Alan Wayne is sent away from Red Hill, his home, by his uncle, J. Y., as a moral failure. Clem drinks Alan's health on his birthday. Judge Hazley sends Alan in his business with his employers. Alan and Alex, Gerry's wife, meet at sea, homeward bound, and start a flirtation. At home, Gerry, as he thinks, sees Alex and Alan eloping, drops everything, and goes to Pernambuco. Alex leaves Alan on the train and goes home. Gerry leaves Pernambuco and goes to Piranhas. On a canoe trip he meets a native girl. The judge falls to trace Gerry. A baby is born to Alex. The native girl takes Gerry to the ruined plantation she is mistress of. Gerry marries her. At Maple house, Collingford tells how he met Alan—"Ten Per Cent Wayne"—building a bridge in Africa. Collingford meets Alex and her baby and gives her encouragement about Gerry. Alan comes back to town but does not go home. Gerry begins to improve Margarita's plantation and builds an irrigating ditch. In Africa Alan reads Clem's letters and dreams of home. Gerry pastures Lieber's cattle during the drought. A baby comes to Margarita. Collingford meets Alex in the city and finds her changed. Alan meets Alex, J. Y., and Clem, grown to beautiful womanhood. In the city Alan realizes that he has sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. Kemp and Gerry become friends. They visit Lieber.

If, in a day of desperate weakness you had embezzled your employer's money and had to flee the country, do you think you could resist the desire to return, even after years? Does home seem to you to be "the anchor of a man's soul?"

The veranda at Lieber's was like that of Fazenda Flores only much bigger. It looked out upon a wide stretch of desert but away at the rim of the desert one could feel the river. The roar of the falls mumbled in the ear. It came from so far away that one had to strain one's ears to actually define it. After supper they gathered on the veranda. They sat in rude, rawhide chairs which were comfortably strong and tilted them back to the national angle. Lieber and Gerry smoked corn-husk cigarettes but Kemp stuck to his yellow papers. Gerry did not want to talk. He sat where he could watch the strange pair whose companion he was for a night. Into the souls of Lieber and Kemp the long silences of solitude had entered and become at home. They were patient of silence. Speech had its restricted uses. They still had their hats on. Lieber's was pushed back, Kemp's was drawn forward. Kemp was whittling. Kemp's words of farewell came back to Gerry. "It's a long trail from the Alamo to New York, but the whole country's under one fence." Texan, Pennsylvania, Dutchman and New Yorker might be social poles but to-night they seemed strangely near to each other.

The next morning Gerry was up early, nervous after his first night's absence from Fazenda Flores. Kemp watched him saddle his horse. "That ain't one of the five," he remarked. "No," said Gerry. "I traded the roan for the iron-gray. Do you think I was done?" "I ain't sayin'," said Kemp cautiously. "I don't want you should think I was teachin' you, Mr. Lansing, but that hoss ain't no iron-gray. There ain't no such color for a hoss as I ever heern told of. That hoss is a blue an' he's a true blue."

"All right, Kemp," said Gerry, smiling. "You've named him true blue and True Blue is in from this day." Lieber came out in pyjamas and called them for coffee. When they were seated he proposed to Kemp that he make his headquarters at the ranch for a while. The advantages were evident. It was a congregating point for the natives from miles round. Goatskins came into Lieber's from hundreds of miles up country. They came singly, in donkey loads or in whole packtrains. Sometimes they passed directly into his hands from the producer; sometimes they ran through a chain of transfers, from hand to hand. All news centered at and radiated from Lieber's. The same men that brought in goatskins would be glad to add orchids to their stock in trade.

Kemp granted his thanks. He had waited two years for this offer. The realization of the obligation Lieber was putting him under embarrassed him. He began to talk. "These greasers," he said, "take a lot o' teachin' sometimes, an' sometimes they don't. F'r instance, you can tell 'em that Cattleys are w'oth money and that the rest o' their parasites ain't, 'nd after they see you throw Bu'l'in'tonias an' Oncidiumis an' Miltonias into the discard fo' three months steady, they begia to sober down to jest Cattleys 'nd realize that it's no use holdin' a four-flush against a workin' pair."

At the scientific names dropping so inconspicuously from Kemp's lips, Gerry stopped eating and looked up. Lieber's face wore the smile of one who had heard it before but is quite willing to hear it all over again.

"But," continued Kemp, "yo' c'n pu'll till you're blin' an' you can't head blackest page in the annals of the San Francisco basin. It seemed but days after the rains when the sparse grass and new-leaved bushes of the wilderness began to shrivel up. Day after day the sun leaped brazen, from the horizon to the sky, his first level rays searching out the scant, stored moisture of withering foliage, and the very sap of the hardy brush. While the cattle were still fat they became weak and turned to cactus for nourishment. They broke down the sickly branches with their horns and rubbed them in the sand to free them of the worst of the thorns. Herders rode the rounds on weakening horses and dismounted time and again to pull out spines from the snouts of passive, panting cows. Bulls died of broken pride. They would not subject themselves to the pain of eating cactus. The river—the great river—was no longer great. It gumbled with a weak voice from deep down in the gorge. Gerry watched its falling level with anxious eye and one day sent an urgent call to Lieber for help.

Lieber came. He brought with him an army, every man bearing with him the tool that had come sourest to his hand. Spades were few and hoes; the bright shares of a pick, or two caught the light like lances. Most of the men depended on the heavy sheath knives they carried at their sides. They looked like an army of sansculottes as they swarmed into the ditch and began to dig. In two days they had sunk it to the required level. When they finished Gerry rode back with them to help bring down Lieber's weakening stock.

Kemp had stayed in sole possession at Lieber's. Digging was not in his line, so he had volunteered to hold the fort against the return of the garrison. He welcomed Lieber and Gerry to a supper of his own making in approved cowboy style: sour-dough biscuits made by a master hand, steaks cut from a freshly killed calf and fried before toughness set in, a pile of creamy mashed spuds. There was a homeliness about the meal that made them eat in silence. They felt as though for years they had been worshipping false culinary gods. The pile of steaks, the leaped potatoes, the hot biscuit, were exotics, strayed into a land of pepper sauces and garlic.

The silence on the veranda that night was even longer than usual. Gerry's mind went back to a French book that he had bought in desperation at Pernambuco. He had ploughed through half of it and with a catch in his thoughts he remembered that it lay open on the table when he left his little room in Piranhas on the morning of two. Some of its phrases, coned over and over again in his struggle with the half-forgotten idiom, came back to him. "La parole est du temps, le silence de l'éternité." He smiled to himself at the twisted meaning the long silence of his companions gave to the words.

Then the smile left his face. He remembered the argument. The instinct we all have for superhuman truths tells us that it is dangerous to be silent with those who would keep at a distance, for words pass and are forgotten between men, but silence—active silence—is forever ineffaceable. True life—the moments of life that leave a trace—is made up of silence. Not passive silence; that is but another name for sleep. But the active silence that breaks down barriers, pierces walls and turns the life of every day into a life where all is intense, where there is no ban—nothing forbidden—where laughter dare not enter, where subjection is submerged and where all—all is remembered.

Gerry felt that this active silence had come upon them. These men were being borne into the silent sphere of his own soul. He felt restless—afraid. He decided to speak. He was on the point of speaking when Lieber let down his chair softly, clasped his hands and broke the silence. "Last night I dreamed I heard the blast of a steamer's horn and when I woke up the cold sweat was on my forehead because I know that there is no desert, no wilderness, so far from the things you would forget that dreams cannot follow you to it."

He stopped and silence fell upon them again. Lieber stared straight in front of him, out into the night. His face worked as though he were struggling to keep his lips closed. When he began to speak again, the words were scarcely audible. "I don't know why I want to tell you two about why I am here, unless it is that as we sat here so quiet I felt that you knew it all—that you knew all that I know and that I was on the point of knowing all that you have known. The little life of life suddenly became big and hateful and I saw in my life a monster lie that the silence was exposing.

"There are lots of men with the beginning of my story. It's common and takes little telling. I was born in Pennsylvania. We were mighty poor farmers but I got all the schooling there was within walking distance of home. My old man saw to that. When I was still a boy our little bank took me in. It wasn't doing much business then but a couple of years later the region struck oil and the bank's business soared by leaps and bounds. It turned into as good a spouter as any of the wells. The family that ran it became rich and went to higher jobs or out altogether. The staff was shovled up and about the time I was of age I was handling more money than I'd ever known was in the world. The amount I stole was an even thirty thousand and I got away with it. It was easier to do thirty years ago than it is today. I got away with it and then it got away with me. It lasted me a year and four months and I saw the end of it up the coast at Pernambuco.

Chapter XXII That dry season saw the beginning of a drought that will long hold the

"I date my birth from the day I spent the last dollar and woke up. I worked. Nothing was too small or too big for me to handle. I got something to risk and then I risked it. I risked it again and again. After ten years I could draw my check for thirty thousand and plus interest and I did. I sent the check to the little bank back home. I waited two months for the answer and then it came; my check torn across and a short letter saying that the loss had already been met by a bankers' surety association. I wrote the association a dozen letters and some of them took some writing. In the last I offered fourfold the theft. There had been plenty of Bible in my bringing-up. They wrote back that it was no use—that I could keep on climbing in peace but it was their business to jail me for fifteen years the first chance they got and they'd do it the minute I set foot where they could grab me.

That letter frightened me. I began to realize that what I'd been working for wasn't money, or honor, or rehabilitation but just the right to go back—the right to go back home. "Nobody had been harder on me than my old man. For years nobody in the house was allowed to say my name and if he saw a letter from me he threw it in the fire, opened or unopened. But somehow it got to him that I had offered to pay fourfold and that I'd been refused and that turned him. It was the fourfold that did it—the divine and sacred measure of justice. He started to fight for me as hard as he'd ever fought against. And then he died and my old mother died. Letters stopped. My brothers and sisters were coming up in the world. They couldn't afford to own a thief much less light for him. So the letters stopped.

I spent money then. I built me a house in Pernambuco that was a wonder palace and I started in to forget. But when you've been remembering with all your might, the color of the paper on the walls of home, the lay of the wood-pile, of the sheds and the tumbling barn and stables, the holes in the fence, the friendly limbs of apple trees and the smell of hay; when you've been coddling bare memories of simple things like those for fifteen years, you can't turn around on your inside self and forget.

"There's a flag the sight of which makes my heart come up into my throat and tears to my eyes. You that he had bought in desperation at Pernambuco. He had ploughed through half of it and with a catch in his thoughts he remembered that it lay open on the table when he left his little room in Piranhas on the morning of two. Some of its phrases, coned over and over again in his struggle with the half-forgotten idiom, came back to him. "La parole est du temps, le silence de l'éternité." He smiled to himself at the twisted meaning the long silence of his companions gave to the words.

The giant gang-boss, McDougal, stood by and nodded solemn confirmation. When Alan was ill by day, McDougal left him and drove the men in his stead, but when the hour for knocking off came with the sudden eclipse of the sun by the horizon, he hurried to Alan's tent, fished him out from some corner on the floor, wrapped him in blankets, dosed him with quinine, tempted him with poor, weak broths and nursed him, unprotesting, through the night.

McDougal had followed Alan into strange lands and strange places and seen him in many a deep hole, and through it all Alan had been the same—a purring dynamo at work. He had been the same until this trip into the Brazilian wilderness, and here a change had come over him. There were times when he talked and what he said was, "No more trips for me, McDougal. I'm a consulting engineer from this on." McDougal had heard more than one man talk like that under fever and he frowned, trying to remember one of them that had ever come back.

Alan was inured to river fever. He had fought it often, and when he saw the fetid pools of stagnant water in the dried-up watercourse he knew he would have to fight it again. Something, some night, a mosquito was bound to get at him, and the fever would begin. He doubted his preventive dose of quinine, but he could not double his spirits for the battle. He came to the field with a gnawing at those sources of health, a calm mind and sure sleep. Sleep did not come as of old after the day's work. Instead he tossed and twisted on his narrow cot and finally would turn on the electric torch to read two letters over and over again.

One he read with a curl of the lip. It was from a pretty woman that had flattered into his life and out. He had forgotten her and now she had come back to buzz words in his buzzing ears. She said, "It costs a woman to learn that happiness is not really tangible. Between being fortunate and happy a gulf is fixed. I was fortunate—just not miserable—and stood on the brink of the gulf. Happiness brushed me with its wings. I reached out to catch it and the gulf took me. How long will it be before I climb back to the height that seemed not so very high when I possessed it? I don't know. . . . I do not hate you—only myself. You have known many women, but you have not known me. That is the bitter part. You do not know what I gave you. One thing I ask you and the words as I write are blurred with tears like my eyes—if ever a foolish woman, honest and true as I was, offers you the same sacrifice, do not take it. I have suffered for all the women you will meet."

"Fool," said Alan to himself, "fool, not to see that I turned her wish-weakness into strength and loosed a dumb tongue."

What sort of a reply do you suppose the cynic Alan wrote to this sorrowing woman? What does he deserve for his sneering attitude? (TO BE CONTINUED)

FARMER'S GREAT OPPORTUNITY

Demand for Canadian Cattle After the War.

The opportunities that Western Canada offers to the farmer have time and again been placed before the public through these columns. The cheap price at which the very best lands can be purchased, and the advantage that is to be had in securing one of the free homesteads of 160 acres has appealed to a great many, and they have embraced them. Many, in fact most of those who have done so are today giving testimony to the good fortune and the timely forethought that led them to go to Western Canada, and embark in an era of farming that has placed them away beyond the pinch of war and given them a reason to look into the future with a hopefulness that they had not had the courage in the past to forecast.

Not only have they been able to secure good lands at low prices and on easy terms but if they desire they have been able to add to this 160 acres of land free, on conditions that are easy. A resident in the Lloydminster district in Saskatchewan who had been farming in the States for some time, took up a homestead in 1910, and commenced breaking with 4 oxen. Two years ago he bought an adjoining quarter section and now has over 100 acres under cultivation. He says, "As my circumstances improved, I sold the oxen and now have six head of horses, twelve head of cattle, and have always a bunch of hogs on hand.

"On an average I have had yields of 25 bushels of wheat, 65 bushels of oats, and 40 bushels of barley to the acre, and last season from a field of 28 1/2 acres, I threshed 1,040 bushels of wheat. I have made a success of mixed farming and would have no hesitation in advising all who contemplate making a new home to come to this district. I sell cream to the Government Creamery here, and find at all times a good market for live stock and other produce."

This is but a modest statement of what a modest man can do in Western Canada, and could be repeated of hundreds of others. Scores of cases could be recited where much more has been accomplished, and it is believed that with moderate investment at the present time, the cattle industry of Western Canada will pay large interest.

The Minister of Agriculture of Saskatchewan, in a recent address, ventured the prediction that the Saskatchewan farmer who developed his land along the lines of general stock breeding would make much more money and find a far bigger return for his efforts in ten years' time than the man who devoted his energies purely and primarily to grain raising. This was the coming golden age of opportunity for the stockman and it was up to the Saskatchewan man to get in on the ground floor and prepare himself for the coming demand.

The close of the war would undoubtedly see a great demand for live stock in Europe and it was only reasonable to suppose that this demand would have to be filled almost wholly by American stockmen, both in Canada and the United States. Europe was slowly draining its rural districts not only of its beef and dairy animals but also using the finer breeding animals and the end of the war would see a condition of affairs which would render necessary almost the repopulation of the domestic animal kingdom in that continent.

The opportunity of Western Canadian stockmen, therefore, lay in being prepared for this demand when it arose. In view of these facts which must be patent to every student of economic conditions as related to the stock industry, he hoped to see within the next three years the stock raising industry in Saskatchewan given an immense impetus forward, which would put it in the forefront of the producing provinces of the Dominion.—Advertisement.

Cats-up. "Sarah," said her mistress during the dinner hour, "will you go down to the basement and get the catsup?" Sarah departed, and a few minutes later the family heard a great shoaling and scampering of feet. Shortly after Sarah came breathlessly into the dining room and said to her astonished mistress: "They're up, mum."

Great Relief. "I'd like to tell you a bright thing that youngster of mine said last night." "Oh, well, go ahead." "But I've forgotten it." "Say! Don't you want a good cigar?"—Boston Evening Transcript.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
