"Won't you be fair to me, Red? You know you're everything to me. But you listened to her lies . . Red. please!"

There was an instant's pause, vibrant with the passion of her purpose and his doubts. But that very moment of indecision told her she was winning-had already won.

Her arm moved round his neck. drawing his head down. He resisted stubbornly, but of a sudden yielded. With a low cry he crushed her to him. The hard stubble of his beard, unshaven for three days, rasped her sensitive skin. The reek of his breath was sickening as he sought the fragrance of her mouth. But she steeled herself, repressed her shudder of repulsion, let him have his way, even mustered a show of response that contented him. For if her flesh crawled, her heart sang; she had won. He had dropped his pistol; it lay unheeded on the table beside them. She nestled more closely into his embrace, breathing broken terms of endearment in answer to his half-coherent words. The movement brought her nearer the table and the pistol, almost between it and Carnehan. He did not seem to notice. She debated the next move, trying to scheme some way to free a hand without exciting his suspicions, so that she might her hand and drugged her with him grope behind her until her fingers found the weapon

What sound it was that startled him, whether a footfall on the stairs or a door banging on one of the lower floors, she never knew. But the man lifted his head sharply, listening, and his embrace relaxed.

He muttered: "What was that?" "I didn't hear anything, Red .

With no more warning she thrust him vigorously from her. Altogether taken by surprise, he stumbled backward, grasping at the air, his face a tragicomic mask of maudlin stupefaction, until the wall behind him brought him up. At the same time understanding smote him like a thunderbolt. He pulled himself together and started for her, but ducked smartly and again fell back on finding himself under the threat of his own pistol.

her up again and started downstairs. On the first landing she heard him shouting the alarm of fire. She struggled, and he put her down, but held as they plunged down flight after flight.

Before they had accomplished half of that descent, the house was buzzing like a hive of enraged bees. On the lowermost landing they had fairly to fight their way through the crowd of panic-stricken tenants swarming out of their cells.

A motorcab was waiting at the curb. Mario hustled her into the vehicle, followed, and slammed the door. Evidently the driver was already instructed; he made off without delay. Leonora collapsed, sobbing weakly, upon the bosom of Mario.

"I see," said Priscilla-"I understand. I'm sorry to have worried you

She tried to smile reassuringly for Philip's sake, but the attempt was not altogether a success. Her memories were too vivid, too moving, the pain in her heart too new and keen. Her lips quivered, her wide dazed eyes once more brimmed with tears.

Fosdick looked aside to Mrs. Trowbridge. "Priscilla's in a highly nervous state," he explained with the authority of the physician. "But I've been studying her for some time and have the case, I think, well in hand, If you don't mind telephoning my office that I can't get there within an hour or two, I think I can quiet her so that she'll sleep naturally for the rest of the night."

The Gathering Storm.

I. THE PLAIN MAN, ANDREWS. Not for an instant had he forgotten the confession of love for Mario implicit in Priscilla's confession of lealousy of Leonors

From the first sensitive to the girl's rounntle interest in this man, Fosdick had seen in it no cause for active concern so long as Mario remained no more ponderable than a figure in a dream. But now it appeared that, like Leonora, whom Fosdick had seen in the flesh; like Bielinsky, known to helped a lot . . . and wanted by the police; like the gunman Carnehan whose haunts Fosdick had been frequenting in search of a key to the riddle: like all these folk Mario was a thing of flesh and blood, and so perilous to all Fosdick's hopes of happiness, and Priscilla, too. For Mario, in love with if not already married to Leonora, was lost to her already. However heavily it might cost her. Priscilla must resign herself to renunciation. And then Time would have to do the rest, with its magical hands of healing and obliteration. In time Priscilla would forget, and be healed, and would find herself anew. And then another's turn would come.

He had been patient now these many years, he could be patient a little longer. And while he waited he would be helping her; he who alone could help her to forget. For her dreams must cease, they must be stopped by one means or another, so that the figures of Mario and Leonora might no longer haunt and torment her. It could be done, they could be stopped, it was a question of means merely. Fosdick pondered two, alike distasteful: drugs and hypnotism. Sincerely Fosdick believed he chose the lesser evil when, taking a pad of blanks, he jotted down a formula for a sedative which he hoped might give the girl nights of dreamless sleep without harmful reaction. The assistant who answered his summons took the prescription to be filled and at the same time announced a Mr. Andrews, calling by appoint-

To Fosdick's pleasant query: "Well, Our year's path spicing! Andrews, what luck?" he replied mildly: "Guess I got your party located all right."

"So soon?" Fosdick's manner betraved some excitement. "Where?" "Hotel Walpole," Mr. Andrews stated in a voice exasperatingly matter-of-fact

"Is she at the Walpole now?" "Nope-she flew the coop with the dark-complected guy about ten this mornin'. He called for her with a tourin' car, a Jap chauffeur and a skirt what looked like a lady's-maid. Pineapple and Cheese.-Arrange slices of pineapple on white leaves of lettuce. Fill the hole in the center of the pineapple with cream cheese that has beer, softened to a paste with a little on the cheese and pile lightly on each ring pieces of apple, banana and grapefruit. Garnish with cherrles and serve with French dressing.

Buttered Cream Onions.--Cook two bunches of young green onions, stems and all, in boiling salted water until tender, then drain. Lay the onions on buttered toast, pour over each a tablespoonful of melted butter and serve very hot. A thick rich cream sauce may be used if preferred.

Chocolate Cream Pie.-Line a deep pleplate with plain paste, wet the edge and put on a half-inch rim. Prick with a fork and bake in a hot oven. Prepare a filling by mixing five tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one-half cupful of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Dilute with onefourth of a cupful of cold milk, add two cupfuls of scalded milk and cook over hot water for half an hour, stirring while thickening. Melt two squares of chocolate, add four tablespoonfuls of hot water, stir until smooth and add to the mixture. Remove from the stove and fold in the whites of two eggs, beaten stiff. Flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla. While still hot pour the filling into the pie, just as the crust comes from the oven. Serve cold, covered with one cupful of whipped cream unsweetened.

Farmers in Western Canada Jubilant at Prospect.

Splendid Winter Weather Has Put the Naturally Fertile Land in Splendid Condition, and Bountiful Yields Are Assured.

"What a delightful winter we have LEGION MEN IN HOSPITALS had," is an expression that could be heard almost anywhere when the topic of the weather became the subject of conversation. Not only in the Middle West and "down east" could it be heard, but also in the Far West, up in the Canadian West. There the same remarkable features that brought forth a wonderful winter existed. Reports from all parts of the country, from famed Medicine Hat in Alberta to Winnipeg in Manitoba, indicate that all through the winter season very little cold weather vas experienced. In December, we read that golf playing had put into the discard all ice sports, that farmers were caught "red-handed" plowing their fields. In January, the Alberta yeoman got out his tractor and in his shirt sleeves was seen preparing ground for the 1921 crop. During February, in Saskatchewan, one farmer harrowed fifty acres and planted the seed. "Why, yes, of course, in March," said at Iowa farmer, who had just heard from his son, who was looking after the Western Canadian farm, "my boy writes me they had some snow, and a few cold dips, but what did that matter? The cattle and the horses came through the winter in better condition than they looked three or four months ago. Grass was plentiful on the prairies, the stubble was rich and valuable as food, and the straw stacks and groves proved ample for shelter."

Spring is now fully upon the Western Canada farmer, his machinery is all in shape for a spring's work, and he is looking forward to an excellent crop year. Last fall there was a splendid lot of moisture that permeated the ground sufficiently to leave a perfect seed bed. Indications are now that the crop will go in in the condition required for successful germination. Then, with the lengthened days of May and June, the many hours of sunshine that they bring, accompanied by showers of rain, and with a soil of which there is none richer nor more generous, there will be seen preparing for a ripening harvest the hundreds of thousands of acres of wheat, oats, barley, rye, alfalfa and corn that will make the hearts of the Western Canada farmers swell with pride as they reasonably look forward to an abundant harvest.

There is a great deal that can be said in favor of the climate of Western Canada. The most important is that those who live there, and have lived in other countries, prefer it to any they have experienced elsewhere. It is true the winters as a rule are colder than are those in countries lying much farther south, but it is also true that they are tempered by a dryness of the atmosphere that makes a lower temperature preferable to that several degrees higher where greater humidity prevails. Enervation and listlessness are unknown; ton, D. C., in an effort to enlist the the air is bracing, but the cold is not penetrating. says the DeKalb Chronicle is, of Kansas, City, Mo. ...

After being treated for cancer of the breast, without the use of the knife, Mrs. Robert Nelson, Herrin, Ill., wrote as follows to Dr. O. A

"Your treatment and skill has meant so much to me that I want to tell others about it. "At the time I went to you I was afflicted with a large cancerous growth in the breast, of about two inches wide and six inches long. The disease had been developing for about 3 years, and it had reached a stage where it was causing me a great deal of

"After you had made a thorough examination of my case, I did not feel very much encouraged when you told me that it had developed to such an extent that you would have to place me in the doubtful class. However, I did appreciate the fact that you wanted to be honest with me and did not want to hold out false hopes for a cure.

"I am glad to be able to say to you and to the world today, that so far as I am able to tell at this time your treatment of my case was a complete success." The above was written to Dr. O. A.

Johnson, Suite 565, 1324 Main St., Kansas City, Mo., the physician who treated Mrs. Neebson so successfully Dr. Johnson is perhaps the best Informed man in the United State today on cancer. He conducts a large institution for the treatment of cancer, in connection with which is also maintained a laboratory for scientific can-cer research. Thousands of cases have been investigated and treated in the past twenty years. This treatment is entirely non-surgical. Purely medicinal measures only are employed; that is, external applications to des-troy the cancer and internal medicaion to purify the blood.

Dr. Johnson has published a most interesting book called "Cancer Fruths," being a statement of his heories and experiences in treating cancer. This book will be sent gladly to any cancer sufferer, or if you have a friend afflicted with that disease, get the book for him. Simply address Dr. O. A. Hope is Expressed That the Reparations Terms Will Enable German Nation to Recover and Renew Its Productive Activities.

Washington, April 6.-Formal statement of the attitude of the United States as to German reparations is contained in an exchange of communications with German government officials made public by the State department. They are in the form of memoranda transmitted through Loring Dresel, American high commissioner at Berlin.

The German communication, dated March 23, was written by Dr. Walter Simons, German foreign minister, and asserted it was "entirely clear both to the government and people that Germany must make reparations to the ceived by President Harding, despite limit of her ability to pay," but sought the ridiculous protests of the Friends "examination by unbiased experts" to

The FORD COUPE

ORE and more this fine enclosed car for two-but it will carry three—is growing in popular demand. Strongly built, the body rests upon that marvelous Ford chassis. It brings to its owner every modern-day convenience; easy riding-while sliding plate glass windows make it breezy and cool in hot weather; dust-proof and waterproof when the windows are closed—it is cosy and comfortable in inclement and wintry weather. Then there is the durability of the car, coupled with the low economy of first cost and the saving of money in operating expense. Behind it, and every other Ford car, is that unsurpassed "Ford After-Service" which is given by the army of Ford dealers scattered all over the country, together with some 15,000 authorized garages, until the Ford owner is always within immediate touch of dependable, reliable service, where the genuine made Ford parts, and the genuine Ford methods are applied in the care of this car.

The Ford Coupe administers to a great variety of owners, from the physician to the traveling man, from the engineer to the architect, and for a pleasure car for two it is unbeatable. We ask your early order if you want a Ford Coupe, because we want to make delivery as quickly as we can, but we must have a little time. Come in and talk it over.

Build It Now and Enjoy It

A lady phoned us the other day.

"I've been waiting four years to put hardwood floors in my living room and dining room," she said, "I've saved a little money by waiting and perhaps if I wait another four years I may save a few dollars more, but I am tired of the inconvenience. I want those floors while I'm alive. Send some one up to tell me what they'll cost.".

Why wait to save five dollars on a repairing or remodeling job, when you can have the work done now and get the pleasure and comfort from it

That expresses our feeling exactly.

during all the intervening time. Building material prices are greatly REDUCED You can build a garage or barn, lay hardwood floors, roof your house, replace cracked walls with Beaver Board-at a cost greatly below that of

Prices may go slightly lower. It's doubtful. Building material manufacturers, caught with big stocks, cleaned them out almost at cost. When demand increases they will ask a fair profit and their quotations will probably

But at any rate, are you going to let five dollars, or ten dollars, or twenty dollars, keep you from that new garage, those new floors, or those needed Beaver Board rooms?

It's worth that much to build them now and enjoy them. If you'll phone or call on us, you'll find us ready with prices and materials that are right. Don't delay. Build now.
