The Woodman Picnic at Kirkland last Thursday was quite a success from a Kirkland standpoint. The day was devoted to speeches, various games etc. The ball game between Genoa and Monroe brought back memories to the oldest inhabitants. The Monroe ball players are gentlemanly fellows, and had the crowd not been permitted to trespass on the diamond, the game would have been a good one. If Kirkland wishes to perpetuate the picnic, she must do away with rowdism.

Crew of Eighteen Men Goes Down with Ill-Fated Vessel.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.—Capt. Higgin, of the steamer Excelsior, which arrived Wednesday direct from St. Michaels and Unalaska, brings news of the wreck of the sealing schooner Walter Earle, of Victoria.

The Earle was capsized on or about April 14 during a terrific gale off Kodiak island and though a number of craft and steamers were reported to have gone in search of her, none of them found her until the Cutting ran across her drifting with the swells and tides.

Not until the wreck was towed into Kodiak and she was righted did the full story of the catastrophe break on the finders. In the fore-castle were found the corpses of eleven Indian sailors, unrecognizable. They were removed ashore and interred on the island. No white man's remains were found in the vessel, and the story of the struggle and drowning of Capt. Louis Magnuson, her skipper and seven or eight other white men, will never be told. They occupied the cabin and are believed to have been swept from the deck of the schooner and drowned in the gale while the Indian sailors were huddled helplessly in the fore-castle until she went over.

SO SWEET! SO SWEET!

So sweet, so sweet, sings a bit of a bird
That comes to me without fail,
When I've said to my Jane a good-by word
And with ax and my dinner pail
I saunter down to the woods to chop,
The snow singing under my feet,
And I strike but a blow on the log and stop
To hear: "So sweet, so sweet!"

Such a speck of a thing in black and white,
Just the merest thought of a thought,
A couple of blotches of day and night
With motion and impulse fraught.
It follows the flight of the maple chips,
And then quick from its swiftest seat
It drops to its spools and the white sap pins
While it sings: "So sweet, so sweet!"

Too little to name, seems this tiny bird,
Unless just a baby's name,
A new mother's wooing and cooling word
That none but a mother could frame.
So with silence abashed and love full bold
I watch while it stands its treat
Of wine from the chalice of white and gold
Softly singing: "So sweet, so sweet!"

I opine that its ornithological name,
With its whicacological stuff,
Might give it a whatacological fame
To a whocological muff.
But to me, tho' its name were as long as the bough
Of the elm that sweeps down to my feet,
I could love it no more than I'm loving it now
While 'tis singing: "So sweet, so sweet!"

PART I.—CONTINUED.

"That Lafarge! H'm! He is tres gentil; but, pshaw, it is no use that, in whisky-running. To beat a great man, a man must be great. Tarboe Noir could M. Lafarge all like that!" It seemed as if he were pulling the nose of the concertina. And Tarboe then proceeded to trace a kind of maze with his fingers on the deck, his two eyes rolling outward like an endless puzzle. But presently he turned sharp on Joan.

"How many times have you met him?" he asked.

"Oh! six or seven—eight or nine, perhaps."

"Your father stared. 'Eight or nine? By the holy! Is it like that? Where have you seen him?'"

"Twice at our home, as you know; two or three times at dances at the Belle Chatelaine, and the rest when we were in Quebec, in May. He is amusing, M. Lafarge."

"Yes, two of a kind," remarked Tarboe, dryly, and then proceeded to unravel his schemes to Joan, permitting Bissonnette, at the same time, to hang up the little sword that danced, and to begin "The Demoiselle with the Scarlet Hose." She entered into his plans spiritedly, and together they speculated what bay it might be, of the very many on the Labrador coast.

Speculation was a delight, and they spent two days longer waiting, and then at dawn there came sauntering up to anchor a merchantman, which signaled to the Ninety-nine. In five minutes Tarboe was climbing up the side of the Free-and-Easy, and in another was in Gopal's cabin, with a glass of wine in his hand.

"Well, Gopal, what kept you?" he said. "You're ten days late, at least."

"Storm and sickness—broken mainmast and smallpox."

Gopal was not cheerful. Tarboe caught at something. "You've got our man?"

Gopal drank off his wine slowly, and then said: "Yes."

"Well? Why don't you fetch him?"

"HAVE I NOT ALWAYS KEPT MY WORD?"

"You can see him just as well below."

"The man has legs, let him walk here. Voila! my Gopal, what's the matter? If he's here, bring him up. We've no time to lose."

"Tarboe, the fool got smallpox, and died three hours ago—the tenth since we started. We're going to give him to the fishes in a brace. They're putting him in his linen now."

Tarboe's face hardened. Threatened disaster did not dismay him, it either made him ugly or humorous, and one was as dangerous as the other.

"D'ye mean to say," he said, "that the game is up? Est-ce que c'est fini? Sweat o' my soul, my skin crinkles like hot glass! Is it the end, eh? The beast, to die!"

Gopal's eyes glistened. He had sent up the mercury, he could now bring it down.

"Not such a beast as you think. A live pirate, a convict as comrade in adventure is not sugar in the teeth. This one was no better than the worst. Bien, he died. That was awkward. But he gave me the chart of the bay before he died—and that was gentil." Tarboe held out his hand eagerly, the big fingers bending claw-like.

"Give it to me, Gopal," he said. "Wait a minute, Tarboe. There is enough time. Come, there is a bell; they're going to drop him."

He coolly motioned, and passed out from the cabin to the ship's side. Tarboe kept his tongue from lashing out and his hand from Gopal's shoulder, for he saw only too well that Gopal held the game in his hands. They leaned over and saw two sailors with something on a plank looking up towards Gopal.

"We, therefore, commit his body to the deep. In the knowledge of the Judgment day, let it go!" said Gopal, and a long, straight canvas bundle shot from sight beneath the water. "It was rough on him, too," continued he, "for he waited twenty years to have his chance at it again. Damn me, if I didn't feel as if I'd hit him in the eye somehow when he begged me to keep him alive long enough to have a look at the gold. But it was no use. He had to go, and I told him so. Then he did the nice thing, mais oui! He gave me the chart. But he made me swear that if we got the gold we would send one-half his share to a woman in Paris who had been kind to him, and the other to his brother, a priest at Nancy. He made me fetch a book of the miss, and I swore on that. I will keep my word—oui alors! Eh, Tarboe?"

"You can keep your word for me! What you think, Gopal, there is no honor in Black Tarboe? And you have known me ten years! Have I not always kept my word like a clock?"

Gopal stretched out his hand. "Like the sun. Bien. That is enough. We will stand by my oath. You shall see the chart." Going again inside the cabin, Gopal took out a map, grimed with ceaseless fingering, and showed it to Tarboe, putting his finger on the spot where the treasure lay.

"The Bay of Belle Amour!" said Tarboe, his eyes flashing. "Ah, I know it. That is where Gaspard the Pilot lived. It is only forty leagues or so from here." His fingers ran in and out of the bay. "Yes, yes," he continued, "it is so, but he has not placed the reef right. Ah, here is how Brigond's ship went down. There is a needle of rock in the bay. It also is not here."

Gopal handed the chart over. "I cannot go with you, but I take your word; I can say no more. If you cheat me I will kill you; that is all; but I believe."

"Let me give a bond," said Tarboe, quickly. "If I saw much gold perhaps I could not trust myself, but there is some one who will swear for me, some one to be trusted. If my daughter Joan give her word—"

"Is she with you?"

"Yes, in the Ninety-nine now. I will send Bissonnette for her. Yes, yes. I will send, for gold is worse than bad whisky, when it gets into a man's head. But Joan will vouch."

Ten minutes later Joan was in Gopal's cabin, guaranteeing for her father the fulfillment of his bond. An hour afterwards the Free and Easy was moving up stream with her splintered mast and ragged sails, and the Ninety-nine was looking up and over towards the bay of Belle Amour, which she reached in the late afternoon of the next day. Bissonnette did not know exactly what Tarboe's adventure was, but he had caught the spirit of the affair, and his eyes were like spots of steel as he held the sheet or took his turn at the tiller. Joan's eyes were on the sky, now the sail, and now the land, weighing as wisely as her father the advantage of the wind, yet dwelling on that cave where skeletons kept ward over the spoils of a pirate ship. When they arrived, after waiting outside a little while Tarboe took the Ninety-nine warily in on a little wind off the land, and came near sharing the fate of Brigond, for the yawl grazed the needle of the rock that, hiding away in the water, with a nose out for destruction, awaits its victims. They reached safe anchorage, but by the time they landed it was night, with, however, a good moon.

All night they searched, three silent, eager figures, drawing step by step nearer the place where the ancient enemy of man was barricaded about by men's bodies. It was Joan, who at last, as dawn drew up, discovered the hollow between the two great rocks where the treasure lay. A few minutes' fierce digging and the kegs of gold were disclosed, showing through the ribs of two skeletons. Joan shrank back, but the two men tossed aside the rattling bones, and presently had the kegs standing between them on the open shore. Bissonnette's eyes were hungry; he knew now the wherefore of the quest. He laughed outright—a silly, loud, hysterical laugh. Tarboe's eyes shifted from the sky to the river, from the river to the kegs, from the kegs to Bissonnette. On him they stayed a moment. Bissonnette shrank back; but there was no need. Tarboe was only feeling for the first time in his life the pangs of suspicion which come with great ill-gotten wealth. But this passed, as his eyes and Joan's met, for she had caught the melodrama of the situation, the overstrain; Bissonnette's laugh had pointed the situation, and her sense of humor had prevailed. "T'sh," she said, with a whimsical quirk of the head, and without any apparent relevancy:

"Lady-bird, lady-bird, fly away home. Your house is on fire and your children all gone."

The remedy was good. Tarboe's eyes came again to their natural liveliness, and Bissonnette said:

"My throat is like a piece of sand-paper."

Tarboe handed over a brandy flask, after taking a pull himself, and then sitting down on one of the kegs, said: "It is as you see, and now, Angel Point very quick. To get it there safely—that's the thing!" Then, scanning the sky closely: "It's for a handsome day and the wind goes to bear us up finely. Good! Well, for you, Bissonnette, there shall be a thousand dollars, you shall have the Belle Chatelaine and the little lady at Point Pierrot. But for the rest you shall keep a quiet tongue, eh? If not, my Bissonnette, we shall be the best of strangers and you shall not be happy. Eh?"

Bissonnette's eye flashed. "The Belle Chatelaine? Voila! that is enough. My tongue is tied; I cannot speak; it is fastened with a thousand pegs."

"Bien sur, a thousand gold pegs, and you shall never pull them. The little lady will have you with them, not without; and unless you stand by me, no one, not I even, will have you at any price. Allons!"

He stood up, but Joan put out her hand. "You have been speaking, now it is my turn. Don't cry cook till you have the venison home. What is more,

"I AM YOUR CAPTAIN."

I gave my word to Gopal, and I will keep it. I will be captain. No talking! When you've got the kegs in the cellar at Angel Point, good! but now allons, my comrades, I am your captain!"

She had reduced the situation to a cheerful adventure, and the men now swung the kegs on their shoulders and carried them to the boat. In another half-hour they were under way in the gaudy light of an orange sunrise, a simmering wind from the sea lifting them up the river, and the gray-red coast of Labrador shrinking sullenly back.

About this time, also, a government cutter was putting out from under the mountain wall at Quebec, its officer in command having got renewed orders from the minister to go forth and bring in Tarboe, the smuggler. Whether the minister was more adventurous than his predecessors, or whether he was a tetsaller, does not appear, but it was evident he was bent on notoriety. And when Mr. Martin, the inspector in command of the expedition, was ordered to take with him Mr. Orvay Lafarge and five men, "effectively armed," it was supposed by the romantic minister that the matter was as good as accomplished.

What Mr. Orvay Lafarge did when he got the word, was to go straight to his hat-peg, then leave the office, walk to the little club where he spent leisure hours—now and again called office hours by people who wanted to be both precise and suggestive—sit down, lift a finger to the waiter, who hurried away and returned in a hurry, lift a glass to his lips and take an observation. After which he threw himself back in his chair, and said: "Well, I'm particularly damned!" Then he became speechless again, until he lifted his fingers, took another observation, and again sinking back, added: "That settles it!"

"Settles what, Mr. Lafarge?" said Mr. Martin, entering on him, and profoundly requiring a lemonade of the waiter.

"Settles the eggs in the basket."

"What basket?"

"The ruined basket."

"What do you mean?"

"The basket that fell, if you like it better."

In time Mr. Martin saw the joke, but did not approve of it. A few hours later they were away on their doubtful exploit.

PART II. THE DEFENSE.

On the afternoon of the second day after it left Labrador the Ninety-nine came shimmering off Isle of Fires, not sixty miles from her destination, catching a fair wind on her quarter off the land. Tarboe was in fine spirits, Joan was as full of songs as a canary and Bissonnette was as busy watching her as in keeping the nose of the Ninety-nine pointing for Cape de Gloire. Tarboe was sitting with the sheet in his fingers giving the sail full to the wind and thinking how he should just be able to reach Angel Point and get his treasure housed by time for mass in the morning.

Mass! How many times had he laughed as he sat in church and heard the cure have his gentle fling at smuggling! To think that the hiding-place for his liquor was the unused, almost unknown, cellar of that very church, built a hundred years before as a refuge from the Indians, which he had reached by digging a tunnel from the store to its secret passage. That was why the customs officers never found anything at Angel Point, and that was why Tarboe much loved going to mass. He sometimes thought he could catch the flavor of the brands as he bent his forehead on the seat before him. But this time he would go to mass with a fine handful of those gold-pieces in his pocket just to keep him in a commendable mood. He laughed out loud at the thought of doing so within stone's throw of a fortune and nose-shot of fifty kegs of brandy.

As he did so Bissonnette gave a little cry. They were coming on to Cape de Gloire at the moment, and Tarboe and Joan, looking, saw a boat standing off towards the mainland, as if waiting for them. Tarboe gave a roar and called to Joan to take the sheet. He snatched a glass and leveled it.

"A government tug!" he said, "and by the Holy Mother, there's your tall Lafarge among 'em, Joan! I'd know him by his height miles off."

Joan lost color a trifle, and then got courage. "Pshaw!" she said, "what does he want?"

"Want! Want! He wants the Ninety-nine and her cargo; but by the sun of my soul, he'll get her across the devil's gridiron! Voila, my girl, this is no sport with you on board. Bissonnette and I could make a stand for it alone, but what's to become of you? Besides, I don't want you mixed up in the mess."

The girl was eying the government boat. "But I'm in it and I can't be out of it, and I don't want to be out, now that I am in. Let me see the glass," she took it in one hand. "Yes, it must be M. Lafarge," she said, frowning. "He might have stayed out of this."

"When he's got orders, he has to go," answered her father; "but he must look out, for a gun is a gun, and I don't pick and choose. Besides, I've no contraband this cruise, and I'll let no one stick me up."

"There are six or seven of them," said Joan debatingly.

"Bring her up to the wind," shouted Tarboe to Bissonnette, dropping the stern sheet. The mainsail closed up several points, the Ninety-nine slackened her pace and edged in closer to the land. "Now, my girl," said Tarboe, "this is how it stands. If we fight, there's some one sure to be hurt, and if I'm hurt, where'll you be?"

Bissonnette interposed: "We've got nothing contraband. The gold is ours."

"Trust that crew—mais, no!" said Tarboe, with an oath. "The government would hold the treasure for possible owners, and then give it to a convent or something. They shall not put foot here. They've said war, and they'll get it! They're signaling now for us to stop, and they're bearing down. There goes a shot!"

The girl had been watching the government boat coolly. Now that it began to bear on, she answered her father's question. "Captain," she said, like a trusted mate, "we'll bluff them." Her eyes flashed with the intelligence of war. "Here, quick, I'll take the tiller. They haven't seen Bissonnette yet, he sits low. Call all hands on deck—shout! They, see: Loce will go down the middle hatch, get a gun, come up with it on his shoulder, and move on to the fo'castle. Then he'll drop down the fo'castle hatch, get along to the middle hatch, and come up again with the gun, now with his cap, now without it, now with his shirt, now without it. He'll do that till we've got twenty or thirty men on deck. They'll think we've been laying for them, and they'll not come on—you'll see!"

Tarboe ripped out an oath. "It's a great game!" he said, and a moment afterwards, in response to his roars, Bissonnette came up the hatch with his gun showing bravely; then, again and again, now with his cap, now without, now with his shirt, now none, anon with a tarpaulin over his shoulders grotesquely. Meanwhile Tarboe trained his one solitary little cannon on the enemy, roaring his men into place out of sight.

From the tug it seemed that a large and well-armed crew were ranging, hidden behind the bulwarks of the Ninety-nine. Martin saw with alarm Bissonnette's constantly appearing rifle.

A Singular Adventure.

The pupils of the Polytechnic school in Paris are, like our naval and army cadets at Annapolis and West Point, renowned for their learning and discipline; but also, like our own cadets, occasionally they become restive and break bounds. Recently some of the pupils met with a singular adventure. They were sentenced to remain within the school limits for some misdemeanor, and of course were then more eager to get outside. One of their number hit upon the idea of escaping by way of a subterranean trap-door which led into the sewers. The foolish boys eagerly followed their leader, thinking it a good joke; but, to their terror, they soon lost their way, and for two days and nights wandered through a labyrinth, without eating, drinking or sleeping. Fortunately, at the end of that time, they met some scavengers and were rescued. The school authorities concluded that the truants had been punished enough, and the pupils agreed with them.

If any man seeks for greatness, let him forget greatness and ask for truth, and he will find both.—Horace Mann.

If you would not excite envy, do nothing great.—Galveston News.

BUTCHERED.

Atrocious Deed of a Spanish Guerilla and His Men.

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 24.—Reliable advices from Cuba via steamer Mascotte indicate that the Spaniards, in their efforts to suppress the rebellion, are perpetrating atrocities as horrible as those attributed to the Kurds in Armenia. A few days ago Capt. Garrido, a Spanish guerilla operating with a company of 200 men in the Santiago de Cuba district, discovered a hospital where nearly 100 wounded insurgents had taken refuge. Garrido ordered the helpless men put to death in the most cruel manner. He refused to allow them to be shot, but made his soldiers chop up the victims with swords. The wounded insurgents were literally dismembered by the Spanish butchers.

When Gen. Jose Maceo was apprised of this atrocity he immediately dispatched several detachments of insurgents to seek Garrido out and capture him alive or dead. Capt. Rafael Gonzales came across him on the outskirts of Santiago, but as the guerilla's force was overwhelmingly superior to his own, he kept watch on the enemy's movements and sent to Maceo for reinforcements. Maceo himself came to his support with a strong force. Garrido's troop was surrounded, and after a short encounter, during which thirty-four Spaniards were killed, he surrendered. Garrido was seized and sentenced to death by Maceo and shot without more ado.

WILL LOWER THE LAKE LEVEL.

No Fear, However, That Government Will Stop Drainage Canal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The reports of the board of army engineers appointed by the secretary of war to examine and report upon the effect the Chicago drainage canal would have upon the waters of Lake Michigan has been received at the war department.

Very little can be learned as to the contents of the report, although it is understood that the board finds that the canal probably would reduce the average level of Lake Michigan about 6 inches and possibly Lake Huron the same. This lower level no doubt would be objectionable to the shipping interests, but from the fact that the lake has varied from one cause or another, such as a lack of rainfall or unusual evaporation, more than one foot in different years, ships have been built with a view to accommodating themselves to this reduced level.

HIS OWN MEDICINE.

A Socialistic Journalist Is Treated to a Dose of It.

GREENSBURG, Ind., Aug. 26.—Julius A. Wayland, editor of the Coming Nation, a socialist paper, is $20,000 wiser now than he was a year ago. About fourteen months ago he moved the plant from this city to what he termed his grand model colony at Ruskin, Tenn. The circulation then amounted to 75,000 and was rapidly increasing. Wayland sought to impress on the colony that all property would be held in common, but had no intention of surrendering the Coming Nation plant. The papers were carefully drawn up and signed by every member of the colony, including Wayland. When too late he discovered his mistake. The board of commissioners demanded an equal sharing of the profits. Wayland refused, and the courts have compelled him to turn the plant, valued at $20,000, over to the colony.

BLACKS TO BLAME.

Labor Statistician Schilling on the Spring Valley Riots.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 27.—George Schilling, secretary of the state bureau of labor statistics, who was sent to Spring Valley by order of Gov. Altgeld to investigate the trouble between the Italian and negro miners there, will state in his report to the governor that the imported colored miners were the cause of the trouble entirely. The town had been peaceful until negroes were brought from the southern fields by the company. Colored women were allowed to carry on orgies and dance indecently in saloons, houses and people were robbed and frequent assaults were committed after the negroes came to town. All citizens sided with the Italians. The report concludes with the recommendation that the disturbing negroes be removed from the valley or more trouble will break out.

A Road Parliament.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The secretary of agriculture is charged by act of congress to collect and disseminate information concerning the public roads. To this end and under authority of that law, Secretary Morton has issued a call for a road parliament, in the hall of the house of representatives at Atlanta on the 17th, 18th and 19th of October, 1895, under the auspices of the Cotton States and International exposition.

The World's Wheat Crop.

BUDA PESTH, Aug. 26.—The Hungarian government has issued its annual statement concerning the wheat crop of the world, which statement is based on consular and other reports. The estimated production of wheat importing countries is 740,422,000 bushels, and of exporting countries 1,651,701,000. The total estimated production is 2,392,123,000 bushels less than the amended estimate of 1894.

The Sycamore City Weekly enters upon its 24th volume this week. The City Weekly is like old wine, it improves with age.

It is only a question of time when Milwaukee will lose her nom de plume of "Cream City." Chicago seems to be after that title and has invaded that city. Hereafter thirty-two saloons there will handle the Chicago product, Great is the "Windy City" but greater still will be the "Windy Cream City."

LAST Saturday's Belvidere Republican contained an article regarding A. J. Hopkin's candidacy for governor that, to say the least was decidedly flat. Neither sense nor reason can be found in the whole article. It was simply the effort of a man talking against time. Something had to be said and it mattered little what was said. The Republican's opposition to Hopkin is likened to the efforts of the man who would try to drain Lake Michigan with a tin dipper.

THAT new flag law is meeting with lots of trouble. Meetings have been held and the law denounced as unpatriotic and arbitrary. One court has held that it is unconstitutional, while another has upheld it. Such a law to us seems unnecessary, patriotism alone being sufficient to cause every school board in this land of ours to hoist "old glory" over the school buildings.

The laying the corner stone of the Northern Illinois Normal school at DeKalb will occur on Thursday, October 3d and the occasion will be one of the biggest events in northern Illinois. Committees have been appointed in each of the towns in the county to co-operate with an executive committee at DeKalb. Gov. Altgeld and staff will be present, also a regiment of I. N. G. The services will be conducted by the Masonic fraternity. A monster parade of uniformed societies will be one of the features. It is estimated that thirty thousand people will be there.

To be a good listener is to possess as great an art as to be a good talker.

The girl who is the close confidant of her father makes, in nine cases out of ten, the best kind of a wife.

It is singular and yet a fact that the virtues we are most loath to believe possessed by others are those we are incapable of ourselves.

A pretty woman, with nothing but her fairness to offer, invariably attracts men. But she seldom holds them.

It is a habit with some people when they wish their own virtues to look whitest, always to use the faults of others as a background.

HEART DISEASE, like many other ailments when they never gets better of its own accord, but Constantly grows worse. There are thousands who know they have a defective heart, but will not admit the fact. They don't want their friends to worry, and Don't know what to take for it, as they have been told time and again that heart disease was incurable. Such was the case of Mr. Silas Farley of Dyesville, Ohio who writes June 19, 1894, as follows:

"I had heart disease for 23 years, my heart hurting me almost continually. The first 15 years I doctored all the time, trying several physicians and remedies, until my last doctor told me it was only a question of time as I could not be cured. I gradually grew worse, very weak, and completely discouraged, until I lived, propped half up in bed, because I couldn't lie down nor sit up. Thinking my time had come I told my family what I wanted done when I was gone. But on the first day of March on the recommendation of Mrs. Fannie Jones, of Anderson, Ind., I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart and wonderful to tell, in ten days I was working at light work and on March 19 commenced framing a barn, which is heavy work, and I haven't lost a day since. I am 66 years old, 6 ft. 4 1/2 inches and weigh 230 lbs. I believe I am fully cured, and I am now only anxious that everyone shall know of your wonderful remedies."

Dyesville, Ohio. SILAS FARLEY.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at 6¢ a bottle for 25¢ or it will be sent, prepaid on receipt of price by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Restores Health

Mr. C. D. Yonker, a well known druggist of Bowling Green, Ohio, in speaking of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, says: "I take great pleasure in recommending it to my customers, for I am certain it will always please them. I sell more of it than all other put together." For sale by F. T. Robinson, Genoa.

The Kishwaukee river is at present the resort of about six-fifths of the men and boys along its banks who do not have more pressing business, all of them being caused to take to the water by hearing of rich finds of pearls in that placid stream. And it's no dream either. They have been found in the South Branch of the Kishwaukee near Sycamore, in herds for some of which the local jewelers have offered seemingly exorbitant prices. Those who have been trying to make the river here give up its hidden treasures, report the finding of pearls of all sizes, colors and descriptions, some of which the owners deem very valuable.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

My little boy, when two years of age was taken very ill with bloody flux. I was advised to use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, luckily procured part of a bottle. I carefully read the directions and gave accordingly. He was very low, but slowly and surely he began to improve gradually recovered, and is as stout and strong now as ever. I feel sure it saved his life. I never can praise the Remedy half 'ts worth. I am sorry every one in the world does not know how good it is, as I do.—Mrs. Lina S. Hinton, Grahamsville, Marion Co., Fla. For sale by F. T. Robinson, Genoa, and H. R. Fuller, Kingston.

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

BIG PROFITS ON SMALL INVESTMENTS.

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful speculation in grain, provisions and stock.

10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED Can be made by our SYSTEMATIC PLAN OF SPECULATION.

Originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system. It is a well known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States, who by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to 250,000 to 300,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand. It is also a fact that those who make the largest from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading. Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time. WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS; also our Manual on successful speculation and our daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE. Our manual explains margin trading fully. ### What it Has Done for One Town It May Do For Our's.

Algonquin a thriving little village lying ten miles north of Elgin is in the throes of the keenest mourning. Not only has the town suffered a loss by fire of over $25,000, but two lives were given up to the insatiable fiend. Strenuous efforts have been made to have water works built, but has met with strong opposition by those who, though fully able, have opposed it on the ground of expense.

Today, with the blackened and charred remains of their homes staring them in the face, and the memory of that father and the son he tried to save, lying cold and still in their graves, not one in that whole town can be found who now opposes the construction of water works.

On next Tuesday bids will be opened and contracts let. Will not this be food for thought for our people.

Resolutions Of Respect.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Odd Fellows to the memory of Fred Prain.

WHEREAS, The great Ruler of the Universe has, in his infinite wisdom, removed from our midst our worthy and esteemed brother, Fred Prain; and WHEREAS, The intimate association held during his membership of our lodge makes it fitting that we record our appreciation of him. Therefore be it

Resolved, That the removal of such a brother from our midst leaves a vacancy and shadow that will be deeply realized by all members of our lodge and his friends.

Resolved, That with deep sympathy with the afflicted relatives and friends of the deceased, we express an earnest hope that even so great a bereavement may be overruled for their highest good.

Resolved, That these resolutions be placed upon the records of our lodge. A copy be presented to the bereaved wife and the mother of our deceased brother, also to the GENOA ISSUE for publication.

The date of sale for the Homeseeker's excursion, Ill. Central, will be Aug. 29, Sept. 10, and 24, 1895. Rates for round trip, one fare and two dollars, remain limit 15 days from date of sale. Tickets will be executed for return and good to return only on Sept. 13, 20, and 27, Oct. 4, and 11, 1895. Tickets sold to Iowa Falls and all points west of Iowa Falls. E. Sisson, agent.

Adopted Resolutions.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the business meeting of the DeKalb County Campfire and Reunion Association at Sycamore Aug. 22, 1895.

WHEREAS, There has long existed in the minds of the people of DeKalb county the opinion that a monument be erected to commemorate the services of those DeKalb county soldiers who served in the Union army during the war for the preservation of the Union; and

WHEREAS, This county is entirely out of debt and the people generally in a prosperous condition, and the small sum required from each taxpayer to carry out the patriotic sentiment of the people will not be at all burdensome; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the DeKalb County G. A. R. posts in annual meeting assembled, that the county board of said county is hereby respectfully requested to appropriate a sum not exceeding $5,000 to be expended in erecting in the court house square a soldiers monument; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the several papers in the county for publication and to each member of the county board.

Yellowstone Park Geysers.

Advice just received at the Northern Pacific office from W. P. Howe, in charge of the lunch station at the Upper Geyser Basin, state that the geysers are playing better than ever. They are much finer than last year. The giant one of the finest in the park, plays to an height of about 250 feet. Last year its eruptions took place once in about five days and continued for 90 minutes. This year it is playing more frequently. Mr. Howe is regularly noting the temperature of the Giantess another of the large geysers. It is also playing frequently and its temperature at time of playing ranges from 193 to 198 Fahrenheit. For six cents sent to Chas. S. Fee, General Passenger Agent Northern Pacific Railroad, St. Paul, Minn. you will receive a fine tourist book that contains a chapter on the park.

On account of Barnum & Bailey's circus to be held at Elgin, Aug. 30, at Rockford, Aug. 31, the C. M. & St. P. Ry. will sell excursion tickets at a fare and one third for round trip. For further information inquire of J. M. HARVEY, agent.

Since 1874 there have been nine epidemics of dysentery in different parts of the county in which Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was used with perfect success. Dysentery, when epidemic, is almost as dangerous as Asiatic cholera. Heretofore the best efforts of the most skilled physicians have failed to check its ravages, this remedy, however, has cured the most malignant cases, both of children and adults, and under the most trying conditions, which proves it to be the best medicine in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by F. T. Robinson, Genoa, and H. R. Shaffer, Kingston.

SURPASSING SPLENDORS.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Depicts the Glories of the Next World.

The People of Earth Can Form No Conception of the Glories of Heaven—A Place Where Sickness and Sorrow Cannot Come.

The following discourse on the subject: "Surpassing Splendors" was prepared by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage for publication this week. It is based on the text:

Eye hath not seen nor ear heard.—I Cor. ii. 9.

"I am going to Heaven! I am going to Heaven! Heaven! Heaven! Heaven!" These were the last words uttered a few days ago by my precious wife as she ascended to be with God forever, and is it not natural, as well as Christianly appropriate, that our thoughts be much directed toward the glorious residence of which St. Paul speaks in the text I have chosen.

The city of Corinth has been called the Paris of antiquity. Indeed, for splendor, the world holds no such wonder to-day. It stood on an isthmus washed by two seas, the one sea bringing the commerce of Asia. From her wharves, in the construction of which whole kingdoms had been absorbed, war-galleys with three banks of oars pushed out and confounded the navy yards of all the world. Huge-handed machinery, such as modern invention cannot equal, lifted ships from the sea on one side and transported them on trucks across the isthmus and set them down in the sea on the other side. The revenue officers of the city went down through the olive groves that lined the beach to collect a tariff from all nations. The mirth of all people sported in her isthmian games, and the beauty of all lands sat in her theaters, walked her porticoes, and threw itself on the altar of her stupendous dissipations. Column, and statue, and temple bewildered the beholder.

There were white marble fountains into which, from apertures at the side, there rushed waters everywhere known for health-giving qualities. Around these basins, twisted into wreaths of stone, there were all the beauties of sculpture and architecture; while standing, as if to guard the costly display, was a statue of Hercules of burnished Corinthian brass. Vases of terra-cotta adorned the cemetaries of the dead—vases so costly that Julius Caesar was not satisfied until he had captured them for Rome. Armed officials, the "Corinthians," paced up and down to see that no statue was defaced, no pedestal overthrown, no bas-relief touched. From the edge of the city a hill arose, with its magnificent burden of columns, and towers, and temples (one thousand slaves awaiting at one shrine), and a citadel so thoroughly impregnable that Gibraltar is a heap of sand compared with it. Amid all that strength and magnificence, Corinth stood and defied the world.

Oh! it was not to rustics who had never seen anything grand that St. Paul uttered this text. They had heard the best music that had come from the best instruments in all the world; they had heard songs floating from morning porticoes and melting in evening groves; they had passed their whole lives away among pictures, and sculpture, and architecture, and Corinthian brass, which had been molded and shaped, until there was no chariot wheel in which it had not sped, and no tower in which it had not glittered, and no gateway that it had not adorned. Ah, it was a bold thing for Paul to stand there amid all that, and say: "All this is nothing. These sounds that come from the temple of Neptune are not music compared with the harmony of which I speak. These waters rushing in the basin of Pyrene are not pure. These statues of Bacchus and Mercury are not exquisite. Yon citadel of Acrocorinth is not strong compared with that which I offer to the poorest slave that puts down his burden at that brazen gate. You, Corinthians, think this is a splendid city; but I tell you 'eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.'"

You see my text sets forth the idea that however exalted our ideas may be of Heaven, they come far short of the reality. Some wise men have been calculating how many furlongs long and wide is Heaven; and they have calculated how many inhabitants there are on the earth; how long the earth will probably stand; and then they come to this estimate: that after all the nations had been gathered to Heaven, there will be room for each soul—a room sixteen feet long and fifteen feet wide. It would not be large enough for me. I am glad to know that no human estimate is sufficient to take the dimensions. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard," nor arithmetic calculated.

I first remark that we can in this world get no idea of the health of Heaven. When you were a child, and you went out in the morning, how you bounded along the road or street—you had never felt sorrow or sickness. Perhaps later—perhaps in these very summer days—you felt a glow in your cheek, and a spring in your step, and an exuberance of spirits, and a clearness of eye, that made you thank God you were permitted to live. The nerves were harp strings, and the sunlight was a doxology, and the rustling leaves were the rustling of the robes of a great crowd rising up to praise the Lord. You thought that you knew what it was to be well, but there is no perfect health on earth. The diseases of past generations come down to us. The airs that float now on earth are unlike those which floated above Paradise. They are charged with impurities and distempers. The most elastic and robust health on earth, compared with that which those experience before whom the gates have been opened, is nothing but sickness and emaciation. Look at that soul standing before the throne. On earth she was a life-long invalid. See her step now and hear her voice now! Catch, if you can, one breath of that celestial air. Health in all pulses! Health of vision; health of spirits; immortal health. No racking cough, no sharp pleurisies, no consuming fevers, no exhausting pains, no hospitals of wounded men. Health swinging in the air; health flowing in all the streams; health blooming on the banks. No headaches, no sideaches, no backaches. That child that died in the agonies of the croup, hear her voice now ringing in the anthem! That old man that went bowed down with the infirmities of age, see him walk now with the step of an immortal athlete—forever young again! That night when the needlewoman fainted away in the garret, a wave of the heavenly air resuscitated her forever. For everlasting years, to have neither ache, nor pain, nor weakness, nor fatigue. "Eye hath not seen it, ear hath not heard it."

I remark, further, that we can in this world get no just idea of the splendor of Heaven. St. John tries to describe it. He says: "The twelve gates are twelve pearls," and that "the foundations of the wall are garnished with all manner of precious stones." As we stand looking through the telescope of St. John, we see a blaze of amethyst, and pearl, and emerald, and sardonyx, and chrysolite, and sapphire—a mountain of light, a cataract of color, a sea of glass, and a city like the sun.

St. John bids us look again, and we see the great procession of the redeemed passing; Jesus, on a white horse, leads the march, and all the armies of salvation following on white horses. Infinite cavalcade passing, passing; empires pressing into line, ages following ages. Dispensation tramping on after dispensation. Glory in the track of glory. Europe, Asia, Africa and North and South America pressing into lines. Islands of the sea shoulder to shoulder. Generations before the flood following generations after the flood, and as Jesus rises at the head of that great host and waves His sword in signal of victory, all crowns are lifted, and all ensigns flung out, and all chimes rung, and all hallelujahs chanted, and some cry: "Glory to God most high," and some: "Hosanna to the Son of David," and some: "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain"—till all exclamations of endearment and homage in the vocabulary of Heaven are exhausted, and there come up surge after surge of "Amen! Amen! Amen!"

I remark, further, we can get no idea on earth of the reunions of Heaven. If you have ever been across the sea, and met a friend, or even an acquaintance, in some strange city, you remember how your blood thrilled and how glad you were to see him. What, then, will be our joy, after we have passed the seas of death, to meet in the bright City of the Sun those from whom we have been long separated! After we have been away from our friends ten or fifteen years, and we come upon them, we see how differently they look. The hair has turned, and wrinkles have come in their faces, and we say: "How you have changed!" But oh, when you stand before the throne, all cares gone from the face, all marks of sorrow disappear, and feeling the joy of that blessed land, methinks we will say to each other, with an exultation we can not long imagine: "How you have changed." In this world we only meet to part. It is good-by, good-by. Farewells floating in the air. We hear it at the rail-car window, and at the steamboat wharf—good-by. Children lisping it, and old age answers it. Sometimes we say it in a light way—"good-by;" and sometimes with anguish in which the soul breaks down. Good-by! Ah! that is the word that ends the thanksgiving banquet; that is the word that comes in to close the Christmas chant. Good-by! good-by! But not so in Heaven. Welcomes in the air, welcomes at the gates, welcomes at the house of many mansions—but, no good-by. That group is constantly being augmented. They are going up from our cities of earth to join it—little voices to join the anthem—little hands to take hold of it in the great home circle—little feet to dance in the eternal glee—little crowns to be cast down before the feet of Jesus. Our friends are in two groups—a group this side of the river, and a group on the other side of the river. Now there goes one from this to that, and another from this to that, and soon we will all be gone over. How many of your loved ones have already entered upon that blessed place? If I should take paper and pencil, do you think I could put them down? Ah, my friends, the waves of Jordan roar so hoarsely, we can not hear the joy on the other side, where their group is augmented. It is graves here, and coffins and hearses here.

A little child's mother had died, and they comforted her. They said: "Your mother has gone to Heaven—don't cry;" and the next day, they went to the graveyard, and they laid the body of the mother down into the ground; and the little girl came up to the verge of the grave, and, looking down at the body of her mother, said: "Is this Heaven?" Oh, we have no idea what Heaven is. It is the grave here—it is darkness here—but there is merry-making yonder. Methinks when a soul arrives, some angel takes it around to show it the wonders of that blessed place. The usher-angel says to the newly arrived. "These are the martyrs that perished at Piedmont; these were torn to pieces at the Inquisition; this is the throne of the great Jehovah; this is Jesus!" "I am going to see Jesus," said a dying negro boy. "I am going to see Jesus," and the missionary said: "You are sure you will see Him?" "Oh! yes; that's what I want to go to Heaven for." "But," said the missionary, "suppose that Jesus should go away from Heaven—what then?" "I should follow Him," said the dying negro boy. "But if Jesus went down to hell—what then?" The dying boy thought for a moment, and then he said: "Massa, where Jesus is there can be no hell." Oh, to stand in His presence. That will be Heaven! Oh, to put our hand in that hand which was wounded for us on the cross—to go around amid all the groups of the redeemed, and shake hands with the prophets, and apostles, and martyrs, and with our own dear, beloved ones! That will be the great reunion; we can not imagine it now, our loved ones seem so far away. When we are in trouble and lonesome, they don't seem to come to us. We go on the banks of the Jordan and call across to them, but they don't seem to hear. We say: "Is it well with the child? it is well with the loved ones?" and we listen to hear if any voice comes back over the waters. None! none! Unbelief says: "They are dead and extinct forever," but, blessed be God, we have a Bible that tells us different. We open it and find that they are neither dead nor extinct—that they never were so much alive as now—that they are only waiting for our coming, and that we shall join them on the other side of the river. Oh, glorious reunion; we can not grasp it now. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him."

I remark again, we can in this world get no idea of the song of Heaven. You know there is nothing more inspiring than music. In the battle of Waterloo, the Highlanders were giving away, and Wellington found out that the bands of music had ceased playing. He sent a quick dispatch, telling them to play, with utmost spirit, a battle march. The music started, the Highlanders were rallied, and they dashed on till the day was won. We appreciate the power of secular music; but do we appreciate the power of sacred song? There is nothing more inspiring to me than a whole congregation lifted up on the ways of holy melody. When we sing some of those dear old psalms and tunes they rouse all the memories of the past. Why, some of them were cradle-songs in our father's house. They are all sparkling with the morning dew of a thousand Christian Sabbaths. They were sung by brothers and sisters gone now—by voices that were aged and broken in the music—voices none the less sweet because they did tremble and break. When I hear these old songs sung, it seems as if all the old country meeting homes joined in the chorus, and Scotch kirk and Sailor's Bethel and Western cabins, until the whole continent lifts the doxology and the scepters of eternity beat time to the music. Away then with your starveling tunes that chill the devotions of the sanctuary, and make the people sit silent when Jesus is coming to Hosanna.

But, my friends, if music on earth is so sweet, what will it be in Heaven! They all know the tune there. Methinks the tune of Heaven will be made up partly from the songs of earth: the best parts of all our hymns and tunes going to add to the song of Moses and the Lamb. All the best singers of all the ages will join it—choirs of white-robed children! choirs of patriarchs! choirs of apostles! Morning stars clapping their cymbals. Harpers with their harps. Great anthems of God, roll on! roll on!—other empires joining the harmony till the thrones are full of it, and the nations all saved. Anthem shall touch anthem, chorus join chorus, and all the sweet sounds of earth and Heaven be poured into the ear of Christ. David of the harp will be there. Gabriel of the trumpet will be there. Germany, redeemed, will pour forth its deep bass voice into the song, and Africa will add to the music with her matchless voices.

I wish we could anticipate that song. I wish in the closing hymns of the churches to-day we might catch an echo that slips from the gates. Who knows but that when the Heavenly doors opens to-day to let some soul through there may come forth the strains of the jubilant voices until we catch it? Oh, that as the song drops down from Heaven it might meet half way a song coming up from earth!

The eternal stars shine out as soon as it is dark enough.—Carlyle.

JUMPED OVERBOARD.

Steamer Crashes Into a Yacht in New York Harbor.

Passengers of the Latter, Panic-Stricken, Leap Into the Sea—All Are Saved Except Robert W. Inman, Well Known in Society.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Robert W. Inman, Jr.'s, sloop yacht, Adelaide, was run into Monday night by the iron steamboat Perseus while cruising off Norton's point. Young Inman was drowned and his guest barely saved. At the time of the accident there were on board the Adelaide Mr. Inman, who is a very well-known yachtsman and clubman, with residences in this city and Cold Springs Harbor; Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Evans, of West Forty-ninth street; a Miss Norton, whom Mrs. Evans was chaperoning, and Herbert Dorno, the mate, whose home is in Springfield, Mass. There were a captain and two others in the crew, but Mr. Dorno does not know their names.

When she was run into the Adelaide was keeled over and at least three persons are known to have gone overboard. Mrs. Evans and Mate Dorno were hauled aboard the Perseus. The Adelaide righted, and eyewitnesses on the Perseus say as she moved off in the dark the forms of three men could be distinguished on the Adelaide. Lifeboats were lowered from the Perseus to rescue those who had gone overboard. They returned and reported that an in-bound schooner had picked up a woman and two men from the water.

At 3 o'clock this morning it was learned that Mr. Evans and Miss Norton were picked up by the captain of the Adelaide. Mr. Inman was lost.

The Adelaide was off shore about 7:30 p. m., coming in from Norton's point. The yacht had the right of way. There was no need of a collision between her and the steamer. Capt. Hulz, of the Perseus, saw the danger, but too late to avoid the collision. He had the engines reversed and the steamer was under but little headway when her sharp nose struck the Adelaide just forward of the midships. The force of the collision was sufficient to stave in the bulwarks of the Adelaide.

Miss Norton, who was standing aft on the Adelaide, seemed to lose her head entirely. With a shriek she jumped into the water. Mr. Evans, seemingly thinking it was his wife who jumped, plunged in after Miss Norton. His wife said that he could not swim, but that Miss Norton, after whom he jumped, could. Mr. Dorno, the mate, was knocked flat on the deck by the boom, and one of his ribs was broken. He was on his feet in a moment, and prevented Mrs. Evans from jumping into the water after her husband.

Dorno grabbed Mrs. Evans around the waist and carried her across the deck of the Adelaide, which was lying close under the guard of the Perseus. Mate Dorno grabbed a big hawser. As he did so the Adelaide drifted away, and he was left hanging from the hawser with the unconscious Mrs. Evans in one arm. Some of the deck hands on the Perseus reached over and pulled Dorno and Mrs. Evans aboard.

Robert W. Inman was a nephew of John H. Inman, the head of his firm, and for several years he has been a familiar figure about town, on the roof gardens and at New Rochelle and Larchmont during the yachting season. Mr. Inman was less than 30 years old. He was a bachelor.

MICHIGAN HAY.

The Crop This Year Shows a Heavy Shortage.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—A hay famine in southern Michigan is one of the agricultural curiosities which the present week has developed. Ordinarily Michigan raises an immense amount of fine timothy. But this year, instead of sending to Chicago large quantities of hay, Michigan is keeping local dealers and shippers busy sending over the product of Illinois, Iowa and other states. A local dealer, who is making large shipments, explained the situation as follows:

"Michigan's crop of hay this year will not exceed one-fifth of a normal growth, and as a result the farmers must buy in order to have feed for their stock during the winter. I think as much as 2,500 tons have been shipped from here in the last few weeks. Most of the hay comes from Iowa, but Illinois contributes a fair share and some of it comes from Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. Another reason for the increased demand from Michigan is that the corn crop is very poor there, and the usual quantity of fodder is not available for stock food."

KILLED HIMSELF.

Self-Murder of a Prominent Missouri Democratic Politician.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 27.—A special to the Chronicle from Wellsville, Mo., says that Hon. Solomon Hughlett committed suicide at noon Monday in James Payton's drug store at that place, where he had just purchased shells for his shotgun. While the druggist's attention was diverted, the gun was discharged, the whole load taking effect in Hughlett's breast and passing through his heart. Mr. Hughlett was one of the leading democratic politicians of Missouri, was twice elected to the legislature and had served two terms as prosecuting attorney of the county. No cause is known for the self-murder.

LYNCHED.

Four Murderers Are Hanged by a Mob in California.

YREKA, Cal., Aug. 27.—About 1 o'clock Monday morning a crowd of 200 men gathered here to lynch the four murderers in the county jail. So quietly were their preparations made that the sheriff had no intimation of their coming. Small groups from all over Siskiyou county began to arrive on the outskirts of the town about 9 o'clock Sunday night. At 1 o'clock, the crowd having gathered, they secured an old rail at the depot and carried it to the courthouse square, placing it between two trees.

The local police were called away by a sham fight. By the time they returned they realized the intention of the crowd. The chief of police went to the engine house to ring the fire alarm bell, but found that the ropes had been cut. He then went to the jail, but the mob had already arrived and in such numbers that the police were powerless. A number of men, all masked, awakened Under Sheriff Radford at the sheriff's office in the courthouse and demanded the keys of the jail from him. He positively refused to open the door or give up the keys. Finding that Radford was immovable the mob went across to the jail and got on top of the stone wall which surrounds it. Deputy Sheriff Brautlatch, who sleeps in the jail, fired two shots to alarm the city marshal, thinking some of the prisoners were trying to escape. He then opened the doors and was immediately seized by the mob, who entered the jail. Having no keys to the cells they were compelled to smash the locks with sledgehammers.

Lawrence H. Johnson, who stabbed his wife to death on July 28, was first to receive the attention of the mob. They broke the lock from the door of his cell and, placing a rope around his neck, led him out of the jail and across the street to where the iron rail was laid between the forks of two trees. Johnson pleaded for mercy, but the silent gathering gave no heed to his appeals. He was quickly strung up, and died from strangulation.

The mob returned to the jail and broke into the cell of William Null, who shot William Hayton at Callahan's on April 21. Null asked to make a statement, but the mob refused to listen, and he was soon hanging beside Johnson. Louis Moreno, who killed George Sears on the 5th inst., was next taken out and hanged. The last and youngest of the four was Garland Semler, aged 19, who killed Caspar Meierhaus at Bailey Hill on the 5th inst. A rope was placed around his neck and in a few minutes he was swinging beside his companions. About this time Sheriff Hobbs arrived on the scene, but was met by several of the mob who notified him that "the job was finished." By this time the greater part of the mob had dispersed, leaving only a few on guard. Soon these departed also, and the square was soon deserted.

The bodies were taken down by Coroner Scofield and Marshal Parks, who removed them in a wagon to the engine house where they were laid side by side. The coroner has summoned a jury to hold the inquest.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 27.—A special to the Post from Springfield, Ky., says: A mob composed of about a dozen men, all negroes, took Harrison Lewis (colored) from jail here Sunday night and hanged him to a tree in the courthouse yard. About 11 o'clock they attacked the jail and demanded the keys of Jailer Smith, who, having been warned of their approach, escaped out the back door with the keys. The mob, nothing daunted, repaired to a neighboring blacksmith shop, procured a sledge hammer and other tools and began battering down the doors. It took three hours' hard work to reach their victim, but their determination never wavered in the least, and promptly at 2 o'clock Monday morning he was hanged. No resistance was offered the mob and quite a number of people were on the street while they were at work, but were afraid to interfere. The crime for which Lewis was lynched was a most cowardly murder. Last Friday night he went out to the house of Joe Brooks (also colored), looking for another negro who had been too intimate with his (Lewis') paramour. Brooks told him that his man was not there, whereupon Lewis fired upon Brooks with a shotgun, killing him instantly.

SPOFFORD EXPLAINS.

Denies His Payment Represents Wrongful Withholding of Money.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Librarian Spofford, in view of various conflicting statements regarding the sum of $22,400 paid by him into the treasury last week, was asked what the amount really represented. He replied that it was approximately the amount due the treasury on balance of copyright and salary accounts, as he found it. Unfavorable and wholly wrong construction, he said, had been placed upon it as representing a large deficit, whereas it was actually a balance between two accounts—a salary account due the librarian for several months' disbursements and an account due the government for several months' copyright fees. He emphatically denied any allegation that the recent payment was made to make good any wrongful withholding of moneys due to the government.

THE STATE FAIR.

Illinois' Preparations for a Splendid Exhibition.

New Buildings, Halls, Tracks and Other Attractions—Premiums Offered—There Should Be a Large Attendance.

As the last regular legislature made a liberal appropriation for the state fair grounds at Springfield, the present board of agriculture, made up of competent business men, have shown their progressive spirit and executive worth in securing most advantageous contracts for the erection of buildings, says a correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Machinery Hall.

This building will stand on the east side of the fair grounds, next to the railroad tracks which run into the grounds. The front is to the south and is 137x176 feet, and the building runs back 500 feet to the north. The building will be furnished with electric power from one end of the structure to the other for the operation of machinery.

Administration Building.

In a certain way the administration building will be the general headquarters. The building will be 230 square feet at the base. The board of agriculture has purchased the grand dome which surmounted the Horticultural building at the world's fair, the largest dome in the world. This will cover the center, and at each corner there will be an annex 60 feet square. In one of these will be the headquarters of the officers of the state fair, and of the superintendents of the various departments. In the others, the dairy exhibit, the floral exhibit, and the telegraph, transfer, express and telephone offices, while the center, under the dome, will be occupied by orchard and agricultural products.

Other Conveniences.

Contracts have also been let for three large and three smaller speed barns, five large ones for draft and other horses, and six large ones for cattle, all containing offices for the superintendents and their assistants.

The accommodations for swine and sheep will be of the most elaborate nature, and more nearly perfect than any heretofore built upon any fair ground.

All the buildings are supplied throughout with water, have solid concrete floors, and are covered with fireproof asbestos roofing. This method of construction makes them substantial enough to stand for hundreds of years.

A Grand Exposition Hall.

The buildings named, together with the grand exposition hall erected last year, will make the list of buildings about complete, with the exception of a poultry house, which may have to be postponed until next year, as all expenditures will be kept within the limit of the appropriation, and every dollar's worth of work will be paid for in spot cash, and not a cent of indebtedness incurred.

The Fair of 1895.

The board has been very agreeably surprised at the number of applications from the most prominent exhibitors in the country for space in all departments, and notwithstanding the vast floor space provided in the large buildings now in course of construction the work of curtailing and economizing space has already begun.

The 156 acres of land donated by the people of Sangamon county lies only 2 1/2 miles north of the Courthouse square and is easy of access by broad driveways and several lines of railway.

The race course is to be made the best in the world, if possible.

Provisions for Guests.

The annoyance caused by lack of sleeping room during the unexpected attendance last year will be avoided. Arrangements are now being perfected by two experienced and reliable business men for offices both in the city and on the fair ground for the purpose of locating all visitors in hotels, flats, apartments, boarding-houses, or in first-class families.

The Premium List.

The board of agriculture takes a great deal of pleasure in placing the premium list in the hands of exhibitors. The offerings aggregate $40,000, and no state fair classification has ever embraced so many items for awards.

The special premiums to county exhibits of agricultural products will be a great feature. Nine of these grand prizes are offered.

Woman's Work.

While the casual observer might be led to believe that the liberal appropriations made by the last general assembly would all tend to the benefit of the exhibits made by the men, such is not the fact. It is true that none of the buildings to be erected this year will be exclusively devoted to woman's work, but it is also true that women are always found to a greater or lesser extent among the exhibitors in the dairy and horticultural and floricultural departments, while the culinary department is exclusively their province. All of these departments will be housed in one or other of the new buildings being erected this summer.

The classification in the department of fine arts has received many additions, among them being premiums for the best illustrated poem or short story, and one for twelve original designs in menu cards.

The Culinary Department.

Turning to what many consider more practical matters, the culinary department should receive close attention. A number of additions have been made to the already large list of bread and cake, notable among them being three premiums of $25, $15 and $10 for the display of bread and cakes made by girls under 14 years old.

Heretofore the jellies, preserved and canned fruits, etc., have been shown only as displays which required a number of varieties to make one entry. The superintendent of this department has now arranged to give a premium for separate samples, and also a premium for displays. This will enable every housekeeper in Illinois to send at least one glass of jelly or one jar of canned or preserved fruit to the fair.

It is strange that so small an exhibit of butter is made at our state fairs, when every farmer's wife in the country considers herself an expert in that line. The liberal premiums offered at the state fair this year should bring out a large exhibit. Nearly $3,700 are offered for butter from the various counties in the state, in addition to the premiums open to the public generally, and the new Dairy building will provide every facility for making the exhibit attractive and keeping it in excellent condition.

A Vesper Prayer.
From all its little bells the brook
Shakes out a silver peal,
And faintly from the forest nook
Their elfin echoes steal.
The shadows lengthen on the sward:
The light dies in the west:
Now through the dewy twilight, Lord,
Send down the balm of rest.
The glimmering kine upon the grass
Lie crouched in dumb content,
And wandering breaths of blossoms pass,
In one rich perfume blent,
The braided gnats in sweet accord
Wall where the willows weep:
Now through the solemn night, dear Lord,
Send down the gift of sleep.

RENEWING THEIR YOUTH

A Strange Story from a Nebraska Village.

The Villagers Excited Over the Increased Health and Vigor of the Older Inhabitants—The Experience of Two "Vets."

From the World-Herald, Omaha, Neb.

A World-Herald reporter was attracted by the evidence of renewed activity of some of the older inhabitants of the village of Bruce, a suburb of Omaha, Neb., and enquired the cause. Mr. Andrew Finkenkelser, who was a member of Company B of the First Iowa Volunteers during the war, made the following explanation so far as he himself is concerned:

"In July, 1866, while my company was on the march through Austin, Texas, I was attacked with rheumatism of the worst kind in one leg at Alexander, La. Being weak I was sunstruck and remained unconscious for several hours. Every summer since I have been unable to stand the heat of the sun, and have been compelled to give up my work. There was in my head a bearing-down feeling which increased until it seemed my head would burst, and it caused a ringing in my ears, and palpitation of the heart set in, so that the slightest noise would set my heart thumping. Several times it has rendered me unconscious for from seven to ten hours at a time. In addition to this the rheumatism extended up my entire side until it drew my head down on my shoulder. I lost my strength and flesh and was totally unfit for work.

"For twenty-eight years I have consulted physicians and taken their prescriptions without deriving any material benefit. My ailments increased in intensity until I was assured that there was no hope for me. During last year I went into the butcher business, but the dampness from the ice used increased my rheumatic pains to such an extent that I was not only compelled to quit the business, but was confined to my house and bed for nearly six months.

"In November last I read in the World-Herald a case of a man who had been entirely cured from the ailments from which I was suffering, by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. On November 28, I purchased a box. In a week I was astonished to know that I felt better than I had for six months past, and before I had used half a box. The ringing in my ears began to lessen in volume and finally left me. The pain from the rheumatism gradually left me, so that within one week from the time I took my first pill I was able to sit up in bed. On January 1st, I was able to go out and walk around a little. The palpitations of my heart entirely ceased. On February 9, I was so thoroughly cured that I accepted a position as night watchman in the Forest Lawn Cemetery, remaining out of doors from 6 P. M. until 6 A. M. I have gained in weight from 144 pounds which I weighed in November last, to 172 pounds which I weigh now.

For nerve building and for enriching the blood Pink Pills are unexcelled. They may be had of druggists or direct from the Dr. Williams' Medical Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

She says she does not love me yet,
But I'd not be surprised
To learn she fibs; because you see
That yet is emphasized.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, by the use of these little "Pellets" they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases. The "Pellets" cure sick and bilious headache, constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks and kindred derangements of liver, stomach and bowels.

Sounds Like a Good Lie.

The following is clipped from and exchange:

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 10th.—Twelve years ago Hiram Hornbeck, then 17 years of age, residing in the town of Neversink, Sullivan County, quarreled with his parents. He left home and went west, declaring his intention of being a miner. Nothing more was heard of him until last Tuesday, when he straggled into his home, ragged, penitent, and penniless. The parents gave him a cordial greeting, and the meeting after his long absence was a happy one.

Shortly after Hiram's arrival, a terrific thunderstorm passed over the farm, and the lightning struck and killed a calf in the barnyard. From there the same bolt entered an open window of the house, hit the family bible lying on the parlor center table, and opened it at the 15th chapter of St. Luke, leaving a black mark opposite the 23rd verse, which reads as follows:

"And bring hither the fatted calf and kill it: and let us eat and be merry."

Work On the Normal School To Begin Soon.

The trustees of the northern Illinois state normal school met in Chicago Monday, to decide upon the plans for the school to be erected at DeKalb. The plans of C. E. Brush, of Chicago, were accepted, and he was chosen as the architect. A meeting of the trustees was held in Springfield last week, to examine the plans submitted. Of the sixteen, the choice was left between two. The building will have a frontage of 350 feet, and average depth of 60 feet. The style of architecture is Norman Gothic and the material to be used is rock faced sandstone or pitched face ashlar as it is technically called. The beauty of the building will be rather in its proportions than in its small details. It will be erected on a high plat of ground one-half mile from the center of the town in the midst of a beautiful grove. The site was given by the citizens of DeKalb, and they will also contribute $10,000 for freight charges, a library to cost $10,000, and furnish water and steam heat for the building. The appropriation made by the last legislature for the building was $50,000. Contractor's bids will be received about Sept. 15th, and excavating will probably be begun by Oct. 1st.

The Discovery Saved His Life

Mr. G. Galloutte, Druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with LaGrippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at F. T. Robinson's, Genoa, L. C. Shaffer's, Kingston.
