HISTORY OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY

A Brief Outline Sketch Of The Protectionists; Their Organization

THE GENESIS OF REPUBLICANISM

The Following Was Written by Frank P. Litchert—Chapter Two Next Week

It is not easy to name the exact dates on which the present Republican and Democratic parties were born. Each party developed gradually from the issues of the first half of the nineteenth century and these issues were not always clearly defined. The modern Democrats often refer to Thomas Jefferson as the founder of their party yet Thomas Jefferson was an enthusiastic exponent of the doctrine of protection for American industries, one of the cardinal principles of the Republican party since 1856.

Andrew Jackson, too, is hailed by Democrats of the twentieth century as one of the early heroes of their party, yet Andrew Jackson gained his greatest prominence while President by checkmating the attempted secession of the State of South Carolina, thereby upholding two principles which certainly have not been fundamental in political Democracy, that of the supremacy of national over state rights and the principle of the protective tariff.

While it is the common impression now that political lines were much more tightly drawn in the earlier days of the republic than in the twentieth century, the truth is that while partisan prejudices were often violent, there were occasions when political lines vanished almost entirely. Political parties were born, gained prominence, and died with much greater frequency than now. Party passions rose high but political principles were not so clearly defined. The partisanship against which Washington warned his countrymen in the Farewell Message was the partisanship of personal and foreign factionalism.

The great and over shadowing issue during the first half of the nineteenth century was of course the extension of human slavery. Political parties were national rather than sectional. There were Northern Democrats who opposed extension of slavery and Southern Whigs who did not disapprove it. The inevitable results were compromise, a beclouding of the issue and the consequent postponement of ultimate solution of the problem.

An Effective Threat

The Southern states were from the first insistent on the guarantee of their right to hold slaves and in 1787 when the Federal Constitution was drawn, insisted that without slavery there would be no Union. The threat was effective then as later.

In the earliest days of the republic the Southern states were ardent to become manufacturing centers and did not oppose a tariff for the upbuilding of American industries. Cotton raising was an expensive and not at all profitable industry and had conditions remained unchanged it is likely that the slavery question would have solved itself by process of elimination.

But the invention of the cotton gin changed all of this. It made cotton growing much more profitable and therefore popular, and so greatly increased the demand for slaves. And this cooled the manufacturing ambitions of the South, converting the people to the doctrine of free trade. The reason for this is easy to see. Cotton did not need a protective tariff, since it was raised by slave labor and the cotton grower felt that it was more profitable to him to buy European goods manufactured by cheap labor in exchange for his slave-produced cotton. He got the benefit of the cheap labor both ways. He would not accept the theory that after all his greatest market would be in America and that a policy of all sections of the country would ultimately be most profitable to him.

Notwithstanding therefore, that Washington, John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams and Jackson had supported the doctrine of protection, there was a great outcry in the South against the protective tariff bill of 1823. The law was defended ably by Henry Clay and

ROBBERS AT BURLINGTON

Break in Three Stores Saturday Night—Secured Around $200 and Tools

Taking advantage of a dance in Burlington on Saturday night of last week, robbers looked over the lay of land in that village and sometime between the hours of two and three on Sunday morning broke into three stores and departed with about $200 cash and some garage tools.

It is the supposition of the people of that village that Pfingsten's garage was the first place to fall and with the tools secured there, the cracking of the safe in the H. A. Westcott store was easy. About $200 was gleaned from the strong box. Knives hardware was not immune, either, but in pennies is all that they found on the premises.

No trace of the men has been found and no clew is left for officers to work on.

FORD CAR STOLEN

A Ford car kept in the Ralph White barn in Kingston was removed Saturday night and to date has not been recovered. No one was seen loitering around the place. Clews and tracings of the car have led tonight.

A MESSAGE OF THANKS

The ladies of St. Catherine's parish wish to extend to the people of Genoa and vicinity their appreciation for the wholehearted cooperation received from everyone on the day of the bazaar, dinner and dance

PAST MATRON-PATRON NIGHT

About 85 Attended Annual Star Function—27th Anniversary of Chapter

A large number of people attended the regular meeting of Golden Star Chapter Order of the Eastern Star at the local lodge rooms on Tuesday evening of this week at which time past matrons and patrons filled the chairs. The work was beautifully done by the ladies and earned many compliments, some from people who attend lodges in Chicago where the membership of a single chapter reaches the proportions of 800 or 900.

After the lodge was opened, business taken care of and then closed, a program consisting of a piano solo by Albert Morehouse; vocal solo by Mrs. Florence Elchler. Reading by Mrs. J. T. Shesler and a piano solo by Mrs. E. W. Brown was given. The numbers were excellent and received hearty applause.

The members and guests then repaired to the dining room which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and enjoyed a delicious luncheon.

It was just twenty-seven years ago, to a day, that the local chapter was organized and some of the members who were present on that occasion were at the meeting Tuesday night.

The following past worthy matrons filled chairs:

- Mrs. D. S. Brown
- Mrs. Wm. Parker
- Mrs. Wm. Furr
- Mrs. J. L. Patterson
- Mrs. O. M. Barcus
- Mrs. Allen Mowers
- Mrs. Al Corson
- Mrs. Steven Abraham
- Mrs. S. T. Zeller

The following patrons were in offices:

- E. A. Brown
- Garfield Pierce

POULTRY ASSOCIATION GROWING

Dues of only $1.00 per Year Required to belong to this Club—Meet Nov. 23

The drive for membership in the DeKalb County Poultry association was started in DeKalb county on November 14.

The membership fee was placed at $1.00 per year so that no one need be barred on account of the cost. As a further inducement to the younger breeders, the fee for a person under eighteen is half that amount the first year.

The Poultry show will be held the second week in February in conjunction with the Short course of the University of Illinois offered farmers of DeKalb county at that time.

The next Meeting of the association will be held in the city hall at DeKalb on Friday evening, November 23, when a report will be read on the drive for reaching every poultry raiser in the county.

Everyone interested in the poultry game, either as a fancier or a producer of eggs, is urgently requested to get into the association and help boost the poultry industry.

HAND AMPUTATED

Clem Latham, near Sycamore, Had Hand Crushed in Husker

Clem Latham, for some four years tenant on the John Chatfield farm, about three miles northeast of Sycamore, was the victim of the dangerous corn husker on Saturday.

His wife was driving the tractor while Mr. Latham rode on the husker. In attempting to remove clogged husks, his left hand was drawn into the snapping rolls. He was hurried to the Sycamore hospital, where it was found the member was so terribly crushed that amputation was necessary. He appears to be recovering.

Mr. Latham, who is about 40 years of age, is a hard-working and worthy man, and valued citizen, with children, and he has the sympathy of the entire community. —Sycamore True Republican.

BAKERY SALE

The Truth Seekers Bible class of the M. E. church will hold a bakery sale in Slater & Son's store on Saturday afternoon, November 24, at 3 p. m.

Beautiful Christmas Cards at the Republican office. Prices reasonable.

Watching the Jack-in-the-Box

FOX—RABBIT—COON—POSSUM

Local Territory Reverting to Days of Yore when Wild Animals Abounded

Last week was quite an exciting seven day stretch for the local hunters in these parts. Starting on Tuesday with the shooting of four possums by Harry Chelgreen and party who subsequently sold them to the negroes in Sycamore. On Friday night Dr. Corson and party of men with a good coon dog stealthily crept into the night shadows looking for the furbearing animal. The coon was missed however, and a skunk made himself known to the party which caused its sudden dispersal, but only after two possums had been shot and added to the larder for a real roast.

Sunday morning, E. J. Tischler, hearing much of the prowess of the local marksmen and wanting a few rabbits for himself, departed in company with another hunter for parts unknown. A rabbit was killed early in the hunt and later the dogs, making a real noise, brot into view a beautiful red fox, full grown. The animal was too far away from Ed, however, and he shot, just to see the "boy" run, but the animal turned and headed for Ed's partner, "Dan" who also shot and evidently missed, for the fox ran faster than ever toward Tischler, who ducked behind a tree and waited until it was in full view before shooting. All shots entered the head. After shooting, Ed looked down (this is good) and there was a rabbit underneath his foot that he had been stepping on and didn't know it. This small "portion" was killed at once and then the prize was brought home and placed on exhibition for the benefit of the local marksmen.

HOW THE BUDGET WORKS

System Inaugurated Under Harding Saves Millions—Surplus in Treasury

In a letter to the acting chairman of the ways and means committee in Washington by Secretary of the treasury, Mellon, he gives the following facts:

Treasury Department, Office of the Secretary, Washington, November 10, 1923. Dear Mr. Green:

In accordance with the request which you made shortly after the adjournment of Congress, the Treasury has been engaged for the past few months in considering the possibilities of tax revision and in developing recommendations for the simplification of the law. The fiscal years 1922 and 1923 have each closed with a surplus of about $310,000,000 over and above expenditures chargeable ordinary receipts, including the sinking fund and other similar retirements of the debt. This has been possible through the utmost cooperation between the Executive and Congress, as well as among the executive departments and establishments, all of whom have united in a sincere effort to reduce the expenditures of the Government. At the same time there has been a substantial amount of realization upon securities and others remaining over from the war, and the Treasury has succeeded in collecting customs and internal revenue taxes in amounts somewhat exceeding original expectations. The result is that the Government of the United States is firmly established on the basis of having balanced its budget each year since the cessation of hostilities, with a reasonable surplus each year after providing for fixed debt charges like the sinking fund, and stands squarely committed to the policy of including these fixed charges on account of the public debt in its ordinary budget each year, thus assuring an orderly reduction of the war debt out of current revenues.

What has been done during the two years since the establishment of this budget system shows clearly what united effort can accomplish, and gives every reason for hope that the task to which the Administration has set itself for this fiscal year can be successfully performed, namely, the reduction of the ordinary expenditures of the Government to a total of not more than $5,500,000,000, of which about $500,000,000 will be fixed charges on account of the sinking fund and other retirements of the debt. To do this means reductions of about $170,000,000 in the estimates of expenditures submitted by the spending departments and establishments and the exercise of continued pressure all along the line for the utmost economy and efficiency in the operations of the Government.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETING

Everyone is invited to attend the regular meeting of the Epworth League and take part in the discussions. The topic for the evening is "Christ's Claims on You." Come and you will enjoy the evening.

On Tuesday evening, November 27, the Mystic Workers of Genoa will entertain at a basket social and dance after the business is transacted. Each Mystic is privileged to bring a friend.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE NOV 19--DEC. 1

Collection of Local Quota in Charge of P. E. O. Sisterhood

TO RAISE $150 BY DECEMBER 1

Many of the Genoa Organizations Will Contribute Purses to this Worthy Cause

Each year The Salvation Army appeals to our community for financial aid in carrying on its work. Many times people seem to be ignorant of the fact that this organization is a necessity to our County as well as to the large cities.

Of the 5000 girls in the Rescue Homes of the Army last year 85 per cent went directly from the small towns. Were there any from DeKalb county? The Army, alone, can answer that question, but even if there were not, the citizens should be thankful there is such a Home, and if there was, one or more, it costs something to take care of her.

Through the help of The Salvation Army 10,000 ex-convicts were given jobs. This may not affect our town now, but taking the opposite view it surely would have affected Genoa had a few of these men decided to embark upon an expedition of crime in this vicinity, also it would affect taxes, money used to care for criminals is raised by taxation and it costs a good big sum to support a third of 10,000 when they are behind the bars, yet for a small amount the Salvation Army makes them into wage earners and sometimes tax payers which lessens our burdens.

The 78,000 homeless children who found a home with The Salvation Army come in for their share of these donations. The "down but not out" man, tho he be almost on the edge, reaches out a hand and is helped up; and so The Army charity work goes on. It is their work but it is the public that must furnish the funds during this appeal from November 19 to December 1, for NOW is the only time they ask. Smaller organizations collect there during the year but they are in no way connected with The Salvation Army. The public is therefore urged to contribute now and help Genoa to meet its quota of $150, all of which is used in Northern Illinois. Not a penny leaves the State much less the county.

The P. E. O. Sisterhood is handling the drive here; headed by the following committee: Lois C. Brown, chairman; Bonnie Faber; Helen Smith.

Mr. L. H. Branch of Kingston, Illinois, has charge of the Salvation Army Drive in the Kingston territory. The people of Genoa should bear in mind that this is the only time during the year that money is asked for by the Salvation Army. There are many persons who come to town with a tambourine and head band similar to that worn by the members of the great organization, and it is the very fact that they are trying to "get by" with something, that the should be given a cold shoulder.

At times different members come through the city selling "The War Cry," the spokesman paper of the Salvation Army, but this in no way is a bid for donations, as the purchase lies directly with the customer, there being no charity connected with the transaction whatsoever.

MANY AT DINNER AND DANCE

St. Catherine's Parish Staged Big Day on Tuesday of this Week—Success

Always noted for the splendid dinners, big bazaars and good dances given at any of their entertainments, the parishioners of St. Catherine's church, Genoa, fairly outdid themselves Tuesday in putting over one of the best days ever.

A huge crowd was on hand to partake of the delicious chicken dinner and every trimming imaginable, and the fancy work stands were not without their merriads of customers.

In the evening several hundred attended the dance. Many stands that were on the floor received a big share of the public's patronage. Late in the evening several valuable articles were given away. Fred Shattuck received the ton of coal and a girl in Kingston the large doll.

Mrs. Rowen leaves today (Thursday) to spend the winter in Florida.

Have your own verse put on Christmas cards at the Republican office.

GRAVE MARKERS

Receipt of a Letter from Navy and Naval Dept. of Ill.

The following letter was received by Dr. A. M. Hill and all communications following the reading of this letter following its reading will please be forwarded to him:

To the Patriotic Organizations of Illinois:

To perpetuate the memory of the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Army Nurses, who have served our Country in any of its wars, and to provide information to organizations, such as yours, G. A. R., that you may properly honor our heroes, by continuing the worthy and honorable custom of decorating their graves on Memorial Day as has been originated and so worthily carried on by the Grand Army of the Republic; the State of Illinois is compiling a record of the burial places of all Soldiers, Sailors, Marines, and Army Nurses of all Wars, who have been buried in Illinois and will publish this record when completed.

We want your organization to volunteer to assist in this work, to get in touch with other patriotic organizations in your community, to appoint a joint committee if advisable, to secure publication of your purposes in your community newspapers and to send names and grave locations to the undersigned as soon as received.

If any such graves are unmarked and, if it is desired, the United States government will furnish F. O. B. nearest railroad station, headstones of the best American white marble, 39 inches long, 12 inches wide, and four inches thick, properly inscribed with the name, rank company and regiment or other organization to which the deceased belonged. The state of Illinois will defray the cost of erection of these headstones, set in a cement foundation, at the graves.

Requisition blanks for these headstones will be furnished upon application to the undersigned.

The state of Illinois requests that all possible means be tried to locate burial place of every Soldier, Sailor, Marine or Army Nurse buried in community and to send the name, grave number, lot number, name of cemetery, township and county to the undersigned, that this noble work may be completed and published as quickly as possible. Blanks for this purpose will be furnished on application.

If any persons knows of any grave that is not marked and the deceased was a member of any of the aforesaid organizations, they will please notify Dr. Hill.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Gratitude is a grace that struggles for expression. It does not shut itself up in the heart. It does not allow itself to be merely felt. It wants to speak. It wants to say something. The writer of the 107th Psalm shows us that he thinks well of this tendency to give expression to grateful feeling: yes, that he regards it as a duty. "O give thanks unto the Lord for He is good for His mercy endureth forever." The very fact that we have received gifts from God's hand makes it our duty to express thanks.

We extend a cordial invitation to our Thanksgiving service Sunday morning. We are taking special pains to make the service helpful and enjoyable. We will have the printed program and order of service with special music by the choir and a selection by Mrs. Ada Shesler "A pollyanna Thanksgiving."

ODD FELLOWS GATHER

Nearly 150 Oddfellows and Robbers from the 20th district comprised of the Lindenwood, DeKalb, Sycamore and Genoa chapters met at the local lodge rooms Monday evening of this week.

After the regular business had been attended to, a program was given that ranks with the best heard in the lodge in a number of years. S. H. Matteson, district president, presided over the entertainment which was as follows:

John Hadsall, saxophone solo; Harriet Doty, accompanist

Russell and Krueger, song; Harriet Doty, accompanist

Mrs. Gustafson, Sycamore, vocal solo; Mrs. Couch, accompanist

Russell and Krueger, song; Harriet Doty, accompanist

Mrs. Jonsson, Sycamore, vocal solo; Sulu Clutter, accompanist

Gandy Sisters, Sycamore, vocal duet; Sulu Clutter, accompanist

Mr. Flint of DeKalb projected three reels of motion pictures on the screen much to the delight of the crowd.

COULD HARDLY DO HER WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Eat, Sleep and Feel Better Every Way

Chicago, Ill.—"I was weak and run-down and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time, and dizzy, and could not sleep and had no appetite. I tried different medicines for years, but they did not help me. Then I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for other women and gave it a trial. I began to eat better and could sleep, and consider it a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to my friends and will never be without it."—Mrs. M. OHLSEN, 3640 S. Marshfield Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

It is such letters as these that testify to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This woman speaks from the fullness of her heart. She describes as correctly as she can her condition, first the symptoms that bothered her the most, and later the disappearance of those symptoms. It is a sincere expression of gratitude. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

"FRISCO KID" SYNOPSIS.—On the isolated Meager ranch, on the southern border, Deborah Meredith, trained nurse, Deborah and she resolves to leave, but there seems no possibility of her getting away. Meager glazes over Deborah's plight. He tells her he has sent for a justice of the peace, who will marry them tomorrow. Horrified, the girl seizes a revolver.

She was alone—alone! Beyond law, justice, mercy even, without a friend, a hope; a mere atom left to perish at the will of a brute. Even God had deserted her.

Her wrist watch had stopped, and she possessed no knowledge of the time, yet surely it must be late. The respite now would be short; those who were coming to carry out this mockery could not be delayed much longer. She even hoped now they would come; anything was better than this uncertainty, this horror of waiting.

She wondered where Bob Meager was, and what he was doing. There was no movement about the house, except that of the cook in the detached kitchen. The fellow's regular work would have been completed long ago; no doubt he was busily preparing some sort of feast with which to celebrate the wedding. The wedding! Her wedding! There was the harsh mockery of laughter in her voice as she repeated over aloud the ironic words. Her wedding! Girl-like she had wondered often what it would be like. And now it was here; she was actually waiting the hour, the moment. And the husband; the man whom Fate or the devil had brought to her? He was waiting, too, no doubt, alone in the front room yonder, drinking himself into a reckless courage, becoming a greater demon with every moment of delay. It was too much, too much. The very heart seemed to go out of her, and she buried her face in her arms on the sill, her body shaking with the sobs which could no longer be restrained.

Suddenly her ears caught the distant sound of horses' hoofs through the silence, and she sat up, gasping for breath, once more clutched by fear. Yes, they were actually coming, the end was already at hand; he had not lied to her, not merely threatened—he was really brute enough to carry out the mad scheme. She was upon her feet, standing, motionless and rigid, back beyond view, when the little party rode up to the main door of the ranch house, which opened at their approach, a startling beam of light flashing within.

There were but three in the company, all men. Two of the faces she could not distinguish at all, one a rather trim figure, sitting his saddle like a cavalry man; the other a humping, decidedly ungainly fellow, topped with a broad Mexican sombrero which completely shaded his features. These two remained mounted, but the third man swung instantly down from the saddle, nobly greeting Meager as he stepped into the open doorway. He was a heavily built American, with coarse, bloated face, and wore a scraggly beard. When he spoke he croaked like a frog.

"Hullo, Bob!" he called out, waddling forward. "Well, I got here all right."

"So I see," with no special cordiality in the voice, which was hoarse from drink. "And you didn't come alone, Garry; who the h—l is with you?" "Alone!" He sputtered out a laugh. "Did you think I'd ride across that d—d desert at night alone? Not for all the money you got, Bob Meager. Arvan came along with me, an' out here at Silver Springs we run into another old pard o' yours, an' persuaded him to ride on along with us. Ain't that all right?"

"It depends! D—n you, Garry, I told you this was to be a private affair, didn't I? Who is the fellow you brought along from Silver Springs?" "Frisko—don't that beat h—l!" "Frisko! Why, by G—d, I never supposed he dared show up this side the line." He stepped out eagerly, reeling a little from the liquor he carried, yet heading straight toward the taller figure in the dim light. The latter swung down from the saddle and met him, Meager, garrulous with drink, greeting him effusively. "Say, I'm glad to see you, Kid," he burst forth, "but how the h—l do you dare come here? There is a lot o' guys who'd kill their own mother fer the reward Arizona's got on you. Try'n to commit suicide?" "No, not as desperate as that, Bob," answered the other, his voice rather Juan, and shut the door on her. Go on; I'll take care of the girl. Rather fooled you that time, I reckon, young lady." She looked him coldly, contemptuously in the face, conscious of the struggle to remove the older woman. "Don't try to remain, Mrs. Meager," she said quietly. "Go back to your room. I can take care of myself." "But—but, dearie, what is it they want to do with you?" Deborah laughed bitterly, so desperate by then as to be reckless. "Marry me to this drunken brute," she explained, "this delightful stepson of yours. There is nothing you can do to help me; so go on back to your room—please go!" Sanchez, grinning still, as though he enjoyed the task, forced the helpless woman down the hall. He shoved her roughly into her room, closed and locked the door. Deborah heard the fall on the floor within, but her eyes were upon the threatening face of Bob Meager.

"Well?" she said sharply, "you seem to have won the first round?" "You bet I have. There wasn't no need breaking in, while there was an easier way. So you ain't going to make no row?" "I have not said what I mean to do." "An' I don't give a d—n," roughly. "Only I'd like to know whether you're going along by yourself, or whether we got to drag you? It's one or the other of them two things." "Along where?" "To the living-room, of course. That's where I aim to have the ceremony pulled off."

The girl thought quickly. Resistance there and then was absolutely useless. Both men were armed, and one of them, at least, was crazy drunk. It would be better to appear to yield, to seem reconciled to the inevitable. She was weaponless, unable to put up any defense; perhaps in the larger room some better opportunity for action might present itself. If she lulled their suspicions, led them to believe that she was conquered, she might be able to snatch a revolver from some holster, or even evade them and rush back to the safety of her own room. It was a grim, ghastly chance, but she could think of none better.

"I prefer going there by myself," she said, wondering at the steadiness of her voice, watchful of the expression on Meager's leering face. "No! don't touch me; don't dare to touch me." The fellow laughed, but there was a snarl in his tone. "All right; so the cat has still got claws, has she? Well, I guess I can wait putting hands on you; it won't be for long. Go on ahead, then. Come along, Sanchez."

In spite of her trembling limbs the girl walked firmly, never so much as turning her head to glance at the two behind her. She must act her part, play her character, permit them to think her indifferent to results, yet in no way afraid. Without a question she opened the door herself at the end of the narrow hall, and stepped into the room beyond. There were two men in the room, the short, thick Mexican called Arvan, sprawling on a settee, and the judge, sunk into the easy chair, where old Tom Meager had sat for so many years, calmly smoking a pipe. At their entrance the fellow got upon his feet and bowed, the pipe still in his hand. Deborah looked anxiously about for the other—the "Frisko Kid"—but he was not in the room. Then, ignoring the hand Garry held out, her eyes fastened upon the face before her. She never before had seen a countenance more repulsive or so deeply marked by disapproval, and her heart seemed to choke her before the sudden stare of those pig eyes and the bestial grin of the thick lips.

"You—you are the justice from Nogales?" she asked doubtfully. "That's what I am, Judge Cornelius Garry, ma'am, at your service." "And you were asked to come out here to marry me to Bob Meager?" "Maybe so, if you are the girl." "I am Deborah Meredith. I want to appeal to you, Judge Garry, as an officer of the law, to refuse to perform this marriage."

"Refuse! I refuse Bob? Why, it's all straight enough; I've got the license here all made out regular with your name on it." "That is just the point. That license was procured without my consent or knowledge. I repudiate it; I refuse to assent to it in any way. I have never agreed to marry Bob Meager. I am here now under threat, and I appeal to you for protection."

"My dear young woman," he began hoarsely, "I was told before coming here that you were somewhat temperamental, and might therefore desire not to proceed with the ceremony. I shall not be swayed in any way by such tantrums. My own duty is plain; the papers are in correct form; Mr. Meager assures me that he had your consent, and has acted in accordance with your own wishes in the matter. It is too late at this hour to change your mind. I trust you will see the justice of this and make no further objections."

"Oh, cut out the hot air, Garry," broke in Meager, surging forward, unable to control himself any longer. "Let her rave if she wants to; it don't hurt none of us, I reckon. You came out here to do up this job for me, and the sooner it's over with the better. The law of Arizona don't say anything about whether the female consents or not, does it?" "Well, not directly, Bob; that's implied, rather." "Implied, h—l! You go on and imply it then, pronto. I ain't organizing no debating society, you d—n pot-bellied idiot. I'm here to marry this Deborah Meredith; that's what I'm paying you for; an' after that I'll attend to her tantrums myself." "You mean to force me to marry you?" she asked, her own temper rising to combat his. "Sure," he replied brutally. "I never supposed you'd do anything else but kick. But that's none of Garry's business." "But such a marriage will not be legal; no court would ever sustain it." "Legal! Courts! You make me tired. This ain't Chicago! We're out here in an Arizona desert, and I don't remember ever caring a d—n what the law says, since I was a kid. Here's my law, when it comes to that," and he suggestively slapped the gun holster on his hip, "an' there ain't nobody tells me what I shall do or what I shan't. You better get that first of all. Legal! Well, I reckon you heard what it was the judge said, didn't you? He's got the license there, and the authority. Here's two witnesses, according to law. Now what the h—l you going to do? Suppose any court is going to take your word, unsupported, against the four of us? Besides,"

USE RADIO IN RESCUE WORK RICH IN WITCHCRAFT LORE

Series of Experiments Are Being Carried on at Colliery in England. Library at the University of Cornell Has Complete Collection in This Line.

In the near future radio telephony will probably play an important part in the work of colliery rescue parties. As the rescuers carry out their duties, constant communication will be kept up with those directing operations from a base. That is the object underlying a series of experiments being conducted at Ashington colliery in England. A considerable measure of success has already attended their efforts, and quite recently speech and music were successfully received underground. A party equipped with a three-tube receiving set descended the shaft of the Carl pit and fixed a 20-foot aerial on the bulks supporting the roof. Only one head phone was used, but so clear was the reception that the five men composing the party all heard distinctly. Experiments have already been carried out to depths of 300 yards, and it is expected to test reception at depths of 1,000 yards.—Scientific American.

The Case Isn't Proved. The Stricken One—I tell you, Dolly, I simply can't live without you. The Filippant One—Oh, I don't know, old thing, all the others are pretty healthy.—The Magpie. Strange! Magistrate—Are the prisoners brothers? Answer—Yes, sir, both of them.

Bargatins. "I see you have installed a meat counter in your department store." "Yes, right next to the canned soup aisles." "How are things going?" "Pretty fair. We don't know just how to feature remnant day."

Test This Out for Yourself—

MANY people who drink coffee regularly are troubled with insomnia; or they feel nervous, "headachy," or suffer from indigestion.

It may be hard for such men and women to believe that coffee is responsible for the way they feel. Because they have always drunk coffee, it hardly seems possible that this old habit could cause trouble.

But there is one sure way to find out whether coffee is harming you. Just stop its use for a week or so, and drink Postum.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—absolutely free from caffeine, the drug in coffee, which disturbs the health and comfort of many.

After a week or two on Postum, you will sleep better and feel better; then your own good judgment should decide whether you go back to coffee or continue on the Road to Wellville with Postum.

Sold by grocers everywhere!

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

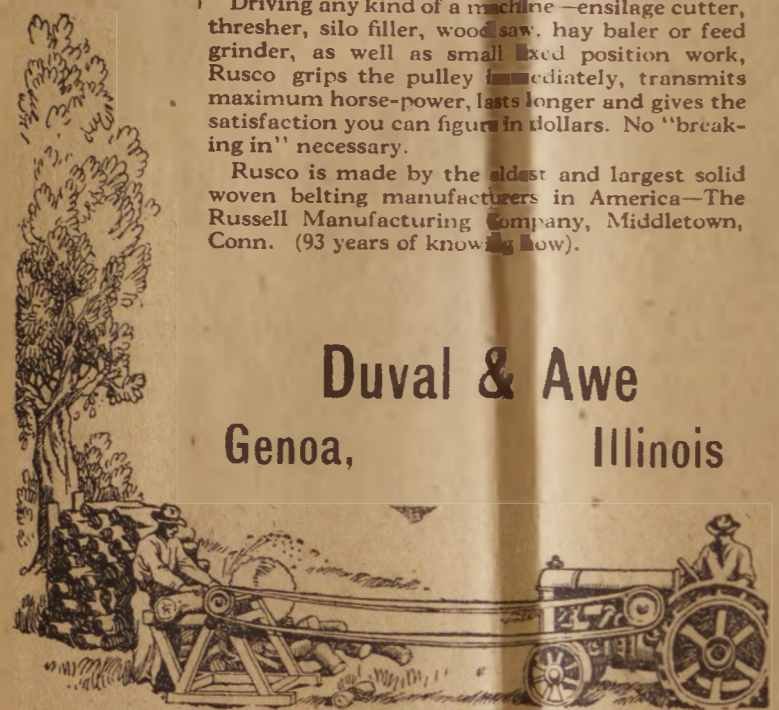

"Well, I'll be d—d, if I don't believe it's a woman!" (TO BE CONTINUED)

the tariff with Clay found an easy way out of the difficulty for South Carolina by proposing a "compromise" tariff. This was gladly accepted by Calhoun and the nullifiers. The Ordinance of Nullification was abandoned and the crisis was over. The issue of slavery extension, however, was at all times more important than that of the tariff. The reason for the passing of the nullification bill was that of the tariff. The reason for the passing of the nullification bill was that of the tariff. (Continued on Page 6)

RUSCO-Tractor Belts

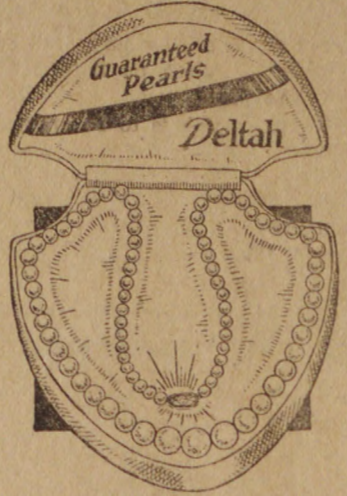

Transmit maximum horse-power

RUSCO Tractor Belts are solidly woven and guaranteed to contain no plies whatever. "Built-up" beltings, which are two or more plies of leather or canvas, cemented or stitched together, do not last long and will not pull evenly—they come apart at the "ply". Rusco is solid woven, making it ply-less—and scientifically treated, which makes it heat-water-steam-and-oil-proof. It is then stretched, tested and cured at the factory under actual operating conditions. Driving any kind of a machine—ensilage cutter, thresher, silo filler, wood saw, hay baler or feed grinder, as well as small fixed position work, Rusco grips the pulley immediately, transmits maximum horse-power, lasts longer and gives the satisfaction you can figure in dollars. No "breaking in" necessary. Rusco is made by the oldest and largest solid woven belting manufacturers in America—The Russell Manufacturing Company, Middletown, Conn. (93 years of knowledge how).

was selected and sworn to try the case and the plaintiff proceeded to put in his proof. Plaintiff's proof being completed on Tuesday afternoon, a motion was made to direct a verdict in favor of defendant which motion was denied. On Wednesday all parties got together and a settlement was reached. The case was then dismissed each party to pay own costs. It has been reported that the settlement was in the neighborhood of $1,500 which the defendant paid the plaintiff.

William Yeager of Fairdale emerged a victor in the lawsuit brought against him by Lee H. Miller, now of Rockford, as the jury in the circuit court of DeKalb county at midnight, Friday, November 16th, returned a sealed verdict which when, in court on Saturday afternoon, read: "We the jury find the issues joined in favor of the defendant, no cause for action."

The plaintiff claimed that on August 19, 1914 he leased to the defendant his farm located in Franklin township consisting of 156 acres of land; that by virtue of the lease the defendant was to hold the farm from March 1, 1915 until March 1, 1918 and was to pay during the term to the plaintiff the yearly rental of $6.00 per acre for all meadow land that may be seeded from year to year and the yearly rent of $20.00 for a pasture known as the little pasture south-east of the house, and the further yearly rent of one-half of the crops raised by the defendant on the plow land on the farm, said rent being called share rent. It was further claimed on the part of the plaintiff that the defendant entered into possession of the farm under the lease and after its expiration held over until March 1, 1920; that during the year 1919 the defendant wrongfully failed and refused to seed not less than 25 acres nor more than 35 acres to clover or timothy and also failed and refused to plow under the second crop of the clover and timothy in 1919 and that the fertility of the soil was greatly damaged. To substantiate his claims and on the question of damages the plaintiff called as his witness Prof. Eckhart of DeKalb an authority on agricultural matters.

The defendant denied all the contents of the plaintiff and defended on the grounds that he had been forced off the farm by Miller who wanted it for his own use; that the plaintiff tore down and removed the old dwelling house and the defendant was compelled to remove his furniture to a house in Fairdale about a mile from the farm and later when the plaintiff erected a new house he refused to permit the defendant to occupy same. The case was tried for two days before Judge Slusser and was given into the hands of the jury on Friday afternoon with instructions that if a verdict was reached it was to be sealed and left with the clerk. The verdict of the jury was read before Judge Fulton on Saturday afternoon. The plaintiff made a motion for new trial which is to be argued later.

ELECTRIFY your HOME

Asserting that residents of the cities of America are no more entitled to the privileges of electricity than are rural dwellers, H. M. Aylesworth, managing director of the National Electric Light Association, told members of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers that electricity "must and will go to the farms."

His assertion was made at the seventeenth annual meeting of the society in Chicago. One entire day's program of the sessions was devoted to discussion of the rural electrification problem.

"The electric light and power companies of the nation," he declared "are not seeking this rural business. It is forced on them. They already have sufficient problems in meeting the ever-increasing urban demands.

"Nor can the average farmer hope for immediate realization of his hopes for an electrical farming age. The engineering problems of adaptability to be solved before arrival of that era are too great.

That his statements were not mere theorizings was indicated when it became known that Mr. Aylesworth is the son of a farmer—that his father after many years as head of an agricultural college, has returned to a truly "electrical" farm—and that his mother is enjoying the comforts which he bespoke for every American farmer's wife.

"Water in the home, pumped by electricity" he continued, "the electric iron, the electric washing machine, electric vacuum cleaner, electric range, electric refrigerator, percolators, curling irons—all of these things are unknown to most farmer's wives and daughters. Electricity will bring them.

"And, most important of all to the household, will be the advantage of electric lighting.

Fire Nearly Wipes Out Entire Business District of City

Damage estimated at $25,000 was caused by fire Wednesday morning that broke out in the downtown district of Cherry Valley, a village seven miles east of Rockford, and for a while threatened to destroy the entire community.

Rockford and Belvidere fire companies had the flames in control shortly before noon, after Jordan brothers meat market had been totally destroyed, R. F. Lee's hardware store partly damaged, and the C. F. Bucey confectionery store, the P. Q. Stevens grocery store and the C. B. Culver general merchandise store had been badly damaged by the smoke and water.

The entire business block on the south side of Cherry Valley's main street, the Grant Highway, were damaged by the flames. The fire is supcation ordinance was not altogether dissatisfaction with the tariff. The ordinance was a trial balloon sent up by the pro-slavery strategists to see how the doctrine of secession would be received by the country. Jackson himself wrote to an intimate friend in 1833 stating of the South Carolina nullification: "The tariff was a pretext, the next will be the slavery or the negro question."

A Continual Struggle
But the North with its manufactories and farms conducted with free labor soon began outstripping the South in wealth and population and there was a continual struggle by the Southern politicians to keep their political strength equal to that of the North in the national Congress, so that the growth of slavery might not be interfered with. It was, of course, impossible to do this in the House of Representatives, whose members are elected in accordance with population. So it was in the Senate that the slave power made its stand.

Again and again the Senators from the slave states found the threat of secession to be their most formidable weapon. When confronted by a determined effort to curb the extension of slavery territory they would come back with the threat, "either we will have our way or we will secede and dissolve the Union." For over a half century this threat was effective and compromise after compromise favorable to slavery was gained from the more powerful North.

But the North continued to outstrip the South in the race for wealth and population and in a few years it became evident to slavocracy that if it desired to continue to hold an equal balance of power in the United States Senate something more must be done. The Missouri compromise of 1820, of course, stood in the way and thirty years after this law had been hailed as a final solution of the slavery question a movement was set on foot in the South to bring about its nullification so that more slave states might be carved out of the west.

Early in the fifties a movement was inaugurated in Missouri which had for its purpose the carrying of slavery into the territory of Nebraska. This movement bore fruit in 1854 when Senator Stephen A. Douglas, Democrat, of Illinois, introduced a bill, designed to divide the territory of Nebraska in two parts, the southern part to be known as Kansas. The proposed legislation became known as the Kansas-Nebraska bill and it provided that the settlers in the two territories should have the right to decide whether or not they would have slavery.

After Heated Debate

The bill was passed by Congress after heated debate, and it, of course, set aside the Missouri compromise because the territory was north of the no-slavery line provided for in the compromise of 1820.

Immediately these started a desperate struggle between the slave forces and the freemen for the possession of Kansas. Slave holders from Missouri, armed with guns, crossed into the new territory and seized lands and soon the New England states sent free settlers to checkmate them. The territory was torn by a cruel guerilla warfare for the next five or six years and the outrages which were committed by the "Border Ruffians" during this time form a dark page in the history of American development. In the end the Free-state men won and Kansas was admitted to the Union a commonwealth opposed to slavery.

The repudiation of the Missouri compromise by the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska bill and the border warfare of indignation through the North and anti-slavery sentiment grew by leaps and bounds. It was felt that the end of compromise was reached. Each arrangement made with the slavocracy had been repudiated in turn and a new arrangement entered into more favorable to the slave power because of the threat of secession which was continually held by the Southern states over the nation.

People in the North were beginning to believe that the time was at hand for a showdown. The Whig party because of its compromising policies was in the throes of dissolution and the Democratic organization was firmly in the grip of the South. People on every hand commenced to say that the time was ripe for a new party, one which would have for its

HONING

We have recently installed an Ammco Centrimatic hone. The purpose of this high priced machine is to true up cylinders, which is readily done to within one thousandth of an inch. This truing eliminates the knocks, rattle, and waste of power that goes with a car whose engine is worn.

The wear is not the fault of the engine but is a necessary grief in all cars for the explosion occurs at the head and of course the greater strain is exerted there.

The gauge and instrument we have to do this work are accurate and trustworthy. Come in and let us show you.

The expense is small compared to the after pleasure derived with a good engine.

Our new machine will true the cylinders in your car and make the engine as good as new.

WHY TRADE
AT HOME?

HOW TO GET
LOWER TAXES

This is the fourth of a series of articles in which the purpose is to show why every citizen owes it to himself to transact all his business with the merchants of his home town. This article deals with taxes. Read it. Whether you pay $2 or $20,000 taxes a year, it will interest you.

Taxes are more easily paid where people do all their trading at home

Who Pays For Public Improvements?

Benefits From Taxation Greater To The Small Tax Payer

Everybody Pays Taxes

The man who pays heavy taxes is the man who pays the bulk of the money to run the town, and keep the schools and the parks and the patronizing home merchants has a direct bearing on his tax bills, and also on the returns he gets in necessities and comforts and luxuries from the expenditures of those taxes. The man whose direct taxes are negligible is likely to think that he has little or no interest in taxes—the other fellow pays them, so let him do the worrying.

For instance, if there is not enough tax money raised in the community to provide proper schools, the man of means can place his children in a boarding school in the city, or in the East; the poor man must keep his children in the neglected school; and let them do the best they can with an inferior teacher.

If the town taxes are so scanty that the fire and police system are inadequate, the rich man can afford the increased insurance cost, and he can hire a private watchman. The poor man can ill afford higher insurance rates, and he either pays them with difficulty, or he goes without insurance, and in case of fire loses everything. And he and his wife and children must take the risk of inadequate police protection.

Now the patronage given the home merchant has a very direct bearing on this tax question. It is the business man who pays the taxes? Where will

THE KITCHEN CABINET

What can an individual do but just distribute such gifts as he has to give, which increases the chances for happiness by increasing the appetite for the things of the spirit.—Edward Yeomans.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

Hubbard squash is now on the market and no more delicious vegetable can be served. Cut it into small pieces, removing the seeds and put over a kettle of boiling water in a steamer. Cook until the squash may be removed from the shell, leaving it clean. Mash and season with butter and salt, whip until smooth and light and serve hot in a hot vegetable dish. The squash may be baked if preferred and served in neat pieces in the shell, with a dab of butter in the center of each, as well as seasoning of salt and pepper. Squash pie is prepared like pumpkin pie and is a great favorite with many.

Pumpkin Pie de Luxe.—Prepare a rich pastry and line a deep pie plate. Beat three eggs well, add a pint of milk, a grating of nutmeg, a teaspoonful of ginger, and half a teaspoonful of lemon extract and one cupful of sifted, well-cooked pumpkin. Stir in one-half cupful of sugar and pour into the pastry shell. Bake an hour in a slow oven. Serve with whipped cream into which has been stirred a few spoonfuls of grated, snappy cheese.

Corn Souffle.—Melt one tablespoonful of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on one cupful of milk. Bring to the boiling point and add one can of corn, one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of salt, a few grains of pepper, yolks of two eggs, beaten until thick and lemon colored, and the whites of two eggs, beaten stiff and dry. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes.

Sautéed Lamb Fillets.—Take two pounds of lamb from the fore quarter. Wipe, remove the bone, and cut into strips one inch in thickness. Arrange on a platter and cover with a marinade prepared as follows: Three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, two-thirds of a teaspoonful of salt, one-half of an onion, chopped fine, one teaspoonful of finely-minced parsley. Cover and let stand over night. Remove, drain and saute in butter until brown.

RHEUMATIC NEURITIS LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Every druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenru, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenru has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitiable and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, the discoverer of Allenru, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenru decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance.

SEASONABLE FOODS

As oysters are now at their best, this is the time to serve them occasionally. An oyster stew is so commonly made that it needs little recommendation, but a good oyster stew is not the result of careless preparation. Oysters should be carefully looked over to remove all shells; the liquor should be reserved after straining, to add to the stew, and enough oysters should be cooked to serve well the number who dine. Scald the milk, using a quart of milk to a pint of oysters. Drop the oysters into the oyster liquor increased by water to cover the oysters and cook them until their edges curl. Overcooking toughens them, and undercooked oysters are anything but palatable. After cooking the oysters remove them to the tureen, add enough butter to season well—the more butter, the better the stew—add salt and pepper to taste, blend the oyster liquor with the hot milk and pour boiling hot into the tureen. Serve at once with crisp oyster crackers.

Grilled Oysters.—Put a large piece of butter into a hot pan and when it smokes drop in the oysters a few at a time. When the oysters are browned remove to a hot dish and pour over them a sauce made of the oyster liquor and the melted butter, thickened and cooked with flour. Season with Worcestershire sauce, salt, cayenne and serve on toast. Garnish with parsley.

Fried Oysters.—Drain and wipe the oysters dry, roll in cracker crumbs seasoned with salt and pepper, dip in egg which has been beaten up with one tablespoonful of milk and then roll in crumbs. Fry quickly in hot fat, drain on paper as fast as they are taken up. Serve hot, garnished with parsley and lemon slices.

Baked Indian Pudding.—Add five tablespoonfuls of cornmeal to one quart of scalding hot milk, sifting it in very gradually and cook in a double boiler for fifteen minutes; then add two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of molasses, one teaspoonful of salt, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of ginger and two well-beaten eggs. Turn into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with a quarter of a cupful of chopped snot and dust with flour. Bake in a moderate oven until the custard is well set.

Gov. J. C. WALTON IS FOUND GUILTY

Oklahoma Senate Votes Unanimously to Oust the State's Executive.

M. E. TRAPP HIS SUCCESSOR

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Charged with corruption in office, neglect of duty, moral turpitude and general incompetence, Governor Walton was impeached by the senate by a unanimous vote. The decision of the senate automatically advances Lieut. Gov. M. E. Trapp to the governorship.

The formal verdict ordering the removal of Governor Walton from office followed after he had been found guilty of 11 of 16 charges presented. Six of the original 22 charges constituting the impeachment bill were dropped by order of the court.

The vote ejecting the governor from office was 41 to 0. One senator was not present. By a standing vote the court denied a new trial, which was asked by defense counsel when the verdict was rendered.

Articles of impeachment against Governor Walton were filed almost two months ago following the warfare between the chief executive and the Ku Klux Klan, which the governor tried to drive from the state. Since the charges were filed, counsel for Governor Walton has tried numerous plans of stopping the proceedings, but they all failed.

Governor Walton was not in the senate chamber when the court of impeachment handed down its verdict. The governor charged that it was impossible for him to get justice in a court which he charged was made up wholly of Klansmen.

FISCAL AND TRADE RECORDS Broken by Panama Canal

Washington.—Operations of the Panama canal and auxiliary agencies during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1923, were record-breaking in volume as to financial returns to the United States government and aid rendered world shipping, the annual report of Governor Morrow made public here shows. From the financial standpoint the canal netted a profit of $12,063,880 from all sources, excluding the Panama Railway Steamship line, as compared with $9,201,613 in the fiscal year 1922, and traffic operations increased on a scale that has brought the waterway to a point of "rapidly overhauling the Suez canal."

Are You Using this Free Service?

It comes with every sack of cement. It has been made possible through the Portland Cement Association by the eighty-six cement manufacturers who are its members.

They realized that important research and educational work was necessary to give people the best information on how to use cement. They also realized that this could be done better by unified effort than by any individual company alone.

As a result, you may have for the asking the benefit of this Association's long and exhaustive studies on how best to use cement for the most satisfactory results in concrete construction.

Whatever use you plan to make of cement—whether you are building a concrete hog house or concrete dairy barn, a stretch of concrete walk or a concrete road, a silo or a skyscraper, a home, workshop or a factory—you need't guess. You can know.

If you want information about the usefulness of concrete under certain conditions, how to mix or place it to get the greatest value out of every sack of cement—you can get it by writing any one of our 28 offices listed below.

Supplying dependable information without charge by booklet, by letter or by personal conference when necessary, is the work of this Association. Millions of helpful booklets, covering a multitude of uses of concrete, are distributed annually to people who know they need't guess—who know they can get the facts from us.

One of our new booklets, "Concrete in Home Sanitation," will surprise you with the number of easy ways in which concrete can be used to make the home healthier and happier. Address our nearest district office for your free copy.

money having been made up in small form. Sterling, as applied to money, is derived from the Hansettic league, which had an important house in England. As their land lay "to the east of England," Englishmen called them "Easterlings," and the gold they paid in the course of trade became known as "Easterling money." Subsequently the expression became sterling.

'PARKA MAN' HAD ONE REGRET

Highwayman Did Not Recognize His Own Pastor—Bishop Was Not Robbed.

Bishop Rowe recently went on record with the following "favorite story": "A fellow known as the 'blue parka man' had been stationing himself between Fairbanks and the mine some twenty miles away, and robbing people at the muzzle of a Winchester. A parka is a sort of shirt that fits tight at the wrists, with a hood attachment. The front part of the hood closes with a puckering string, leaving only a place for the wearer to look out of. The 'blue parka man' did well

Toyland Is Ready at 'The Christmas Store'
HOW THE children will dance and shout with joy when they learn that our great Toyland is open and that they can come and see the great displays of wonderful toys that Santa sent to be distributed among the good little boys and girls. How their eyes will glisten when they see the brightly painted autos, the trains that run on shiny tracks, the cages of ferocious animals and the funny dogs that run and bark. They'll want to see the wonderful mechanical toys: the musical toys, the games and puzzles and the great family of pretty dolls. Come and visit Toyland soon. Grownups as well as kiddies will enjoy it.

Bear in Mind that Winter Storage for batteries means more than just placing them in a dry place. They need proper charging and regular inspection.

Prest-O-Lite SERVICE
does this and returns your battery up-to-snuff in the Spring.
Remember, too, that zero weather causes many a car to stall, if the battery isn't full of vigor. Prest-O-Lite Service keeps your battery full of go and assures you bright lights for long winter nights.
No matter what battery you use, we will keep it efficiently on the job all winter, or store it carefully till Spring. Our expert advice costs you nothing.

PENNY AS TOKEN OR PLEDGE
Derivation of Coin Comes From Such Words as "Panel," "Pane," "Counterpane," Etc.

In its original form the penny was not a coin, but a token or pledge. Its derivation comes from the same source as that from which we get the word "pawn," and also such words as "panel," "pane," "counterpane," and "panicle."

The readiest pledge to leave in pawn was cloth, hence the Latin "panna," a piece of cloth. The original panel was a piece of cloth, or patch, and from this we get the word "pane" as applied to a pane of glass, and also the word "penny," its literal meaning being a pledge or token, and hence a coin. Originally the word was spelt "peny."

The word shilling really means a division of money into small parts, and is obtained from a word meaning "to divide." Thus, in the first place, it was not a coin, but an indication of
