

WHAT WAS NEWS IN THE YEAR 1895

The Editor Urges Organization of a Bicycle Club

BILLY HEED IS A DOG FANCIER

Rev. Howard Mixes in Politics—Scott and Buck as Inventors

The bicycle will soon be abroad in the land. It is hoped that a good road club can be organized here this year. We have plenty of good riders. Billy Heed is becoming a dog fancier. His present possession is a pug, from southern Arabia, with a pedigree as long as its tail.

John L. Hoag, an old resident of Genoa, died at the home of his daughter in Elgin at the age of 69 years. He resided on a farm 4 miles northwest of Genoa twenty years and in Genoa twenty-one years.

Geo. W. Buck and F. R. Scott are interested in a watering pot for chickens for which a patent has been applied for.

A. Tyler will shortly begin the erection of a new brick building 36x69 feet, next door to City Hotel.

Mrs. Geo. Sisley was the victim of a surprise party on Saturday in honor of her St. Patrick's birthday.

Rev. Howard devoted last Sunday evening to giving instructions as to how to vote. According to the reverend gentleman's requirements, candidates would be as scarce as Democrats who did not vote at Saturday's caucus. (What does this mean, Old-Timer?)

E. Prouty is the proud owner of a camera.

The following nominations were made at the Republican town caucus Supervisor, K. Jackman; town clerk, H. A. Perkins; assessor, I. Q. Burroughs; collector, E. D. Ide; highway commissioner, J. H. Vandresser; school trustee, Chas. Preston.

FIRE BELL RINGS

Awakens People at Five O'Clock Saturday Morning

The fire bell aroused the people of Genoa at five o'clock last Saturday morning, a blaze at the Evans' Cafe being the cause of the early rising.

An overheated or defective pipe, leading from the furnace to the chimney, had caused the joists and flooring above to ignite. The damage from the fire was slight, but it was necessary to shoot considerable water into the basement.

The fire was discovered by night Police Crawford. He aroused Jay Evans, who sleeps over the restaurant, by firing several shots from his revolver and then rang the bell.

A few chemical fire extinguishers placed at convenient places in the business section would be a good investment.

In most cases where it is now necessary to turn on the hose, a chemical extinguisher would do the work.

SUPERINTENDENT OF HIGHWAY

The board of supervisors of DeKalb county at their next meeting will have the opportunity of choosing a county superintendent of highways from among three men. At the recent competitive examination at Elgin, the following passed, according to the report recently made: County Superintendent of Highways William C. Miller, County Treasurer Walter M. Hay, and Arthur S. Russell, city engineer of DeKalb. Earl Lowman of Sandwich also took the examination but failed to pass.

GRANTED DIVORCE

Fred McBride of the T. McBride and Son Coal company of Elgin and Rockford, was granted a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Emma Louise McBride, by Judge Frank E. Shopen in the Elgin city court Saturday afternoon. Mrs. McBride formerly resided in Genoa.

DANCE AT KIRKLAND

Wm. Lang will give a dance at Lindstrom's hall in Kirkland on Friday evening, March 26. Dahlstrand's orchestra will furnish the music.

TO VOTE ON BONDS

The proposition to issue bonds in DeKalb to the amount of $45,000.00 to build a city hospital will be voted upon at the April election.

BETTER PAY ASSURED

Constitutional Convention Listens to The Teachers

Illinois teachers are assured an increase in pay that will do much to put a stop to the exodus from the schools which has gone on among the teachers for the past two years. This fact was definitely established at the "Educational Field Day" which the Constitutional Convention delegates at Springfield held March 10th. When the last school executive and teacher had spoken and the last question been asked from the floor that was packed with delegates and persons interested in the fate of the schools, members of the convention on all hands promised that that body was thoroughly aroused to the situation and that while it might not write into the new constitution the revenue raising program, exactly as it was written and urged by the teachers, there would be provision for the adequate support of schools and the correction of evils that are now driving competent teachers out of the profession.

The great part of the discussion at the "Field Day" was upon the plight of the rural schools, where experienced teachers are increasingly scarce and where efficient education is particularly necessary to uphold the American tradition of its famous men coming from the "little red school house." The present taxing system was declared by all speakers to be unjust in that it bore too heavily upon some rural taxpayers and too lightly on others, and that it had brought too many school districts to the limit of taxation without having produced good schools.

As the first "Field Day" of its kind and the most prominent attempt to solve the teacher question, that has been held since the attempt to solve the national crisis in education arose, the convention's hearing of the teachers is already famous across the country. Newspapers in all sections of the land have featured it as "Illinois Makes First Scientific Attempt to End Teacher Shortage." Hitherto city councils and boards of education over the country have been the only bodies to conduct researches into causes and remedies for the situation whereby 175,000 teachers out of a nation's total of 700,000 are missing from their rooms.

TOO CHEAP FOR A FORD

Pingree Grove Men in Bad for Buying Flivver

Elgin News: Herman Dopke, thirty-five years old, and Louis Dopke, thirty years old, Pingree Grove farmers, were ordered held to the grand jury in $1,000 bonds each on a charge of receiving stolen property by Police Magistrate George R. Thompson late Monday afternoon.

Charges of receiving stolen property were placed against the two men by Chief of Police D. Frank Gahan after they had admitted purchasing for $100 the Ford touring car stolen in Chicago by Harry Sullivan, seventeen years old, and Jerry, his fifteen year old brother, and James Rores, fifteen years old, all of Chicago.

The youths were taken off a Milwaukee passenger train here by Chief Gahan and Sergeant Robinson Sunday afternoon upon receipt of information they were trying to dispose of a stolen car in Pingree Grove. They claimed to have abandoned the machine on the roadside near Pingree Grove, but $101 found in their possession convinced the police they had sold the car and a search of the Pingree Grove neighborhood was started.

The car was found in the possession of Herman and Louis Dopke and they were brought to Elgin for further questioning that developed in charges of receiving stolen property being placed against them by chief Gahan. They have been released on bond.

The three youths confessing to stealing the car were taken back to Chicago.

A NINE HOUR DAY

Woodstock factory employees, that is, men and women working in that city, will call nine hours a day's work hereafter, instead of ten, as has been the rule heretofore.

SANDWICH BUYS TRACTOR

The city of Sandwich has bought a tractor and new grader for keeping its streets in repair.

DO THE MOVIES HURT THE EYES?

United States Department of Health Says They Do Not

EXPLODES THE GENERAL BELIEF

Discomfort at a Picture Show Should Be Regarded as a Danger Signal to Picture Patrons

The fact that millions of people go to motion picture shows throughout the United States daily without experiencing any discomfort to their eyes, or that such eye trouble that is found is not traceable to "over indulgence" in the movies, would seem to indicate that motion pictures are not injurious to the vision.

It is true, of course, that some people do experience a certain amount of eye strain at a motion picture, but in these cases the trouble appears to be due to an ocular defect of eye strain at a motion picture. Such persons should therefore have their eyes examined by a competent eye specialist, for it is quite certain that the same person would find even more discomfort in the same period of concentrated reading.

In this connection it may be pointed out that employes of motion picture playhouses, who spend a large part of the day looking at the pictures, do not seem to be troubled with their eyes any more than the average individual. This is largely a personal observation since no extensive investigations have been made of the eyes of motion picture employes.

It is safe to say a person may witness a picture play lasting about an hour and a half each day without straining the eyes or experiencing any discomfort, provided the eyes are good and there are no hidden defects to the vision. Indeed it is not unlikely that a motion picture show might be means of advising one of faulty vision.

In case of eye trouble coming on after concentrating the eyes on the printed pages of a book for a long period one does not blame the book, but thinks at once of the eyes and the probable need of glasses.

Eye discomfort in the movies should therefore be regarded as a danger signal and should lead the sufferer to the doctor's office for an examination.

TO LIGHT THE FARMS

Marengo Public Service Company to Extend Its Lines

Marengo News: The Marengo Public Service company is preparing for an extension of its lines throughout the rural communities for the purpose of furnishing farm homes with the same service which their town patrons enjoy. The extension will be made in all directions out of the city of Marengo, providing a sufficient number of patrons are procured, at least four per mile being necessary.

The extension of the Marengo Public Service company's lines will provide farm houses with electricity for light, power and other uses. The rural housewife may have electricity for cooking, for lighting, for operation of vacuum cleaners, washing machine, flat irons and electric fans.

POSTPONED AGAIN

The much postponed trials of the twenty-seven Elburnites charged with raiding a wine car in the North Western railroads yards at Elburn early in January were postponed for another week on motion of the defendants when called in county court at Geneva Wednesday. Owing to the many postponements of the trials, the costs have amounted up to almost $2,500 against the twenty-seven defendants, it is said.

ROAD RACE IN AUGUST

Elgin's national automobile road race, revived last year, has won a place on the 1920 racing calendar. The big classic will be run on the eight and a quarter mile course west of the city on Saturday, August 21. It will be a 250 mile event for $15,000, instead of a $10,000 purse.

NOTICE

There will be a meeting of the boy scouts in the M. E. church next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

A "GENTLEMAN"

* A man who is clear both outside and inside; who neither looks up to the rich or down to the poor; who can lose without squealing and win without bragging; who is considerate of women, children and old people; who is too brave to lie, too generous to cheat; and takes his share of the world and lets other people have theirs—Anonymous.

MRS. ROSENKE AGAIN

In Hold-up in Chicago Last Saturday—Second Time

Mrs. Chas. Rosenke, formerly of Genoa, who figured in a saloon and restaurant hold-up in Chicago some time ago, had a similar experience last Saturday. In this instance she was in the midst of flying bullets, but escaped injury. Mrs. Rosenke, who was employed as chef in the restaurant, was forced to leave the kitchen at the muzzle of a gun and ordered to line up at the bar with the others.

The following story of the hold-up appeared in the Chicago Sunday Tribune:

Four armed thieves stormed the restaurant and saloon of Otto Gross, at 3159 West Chicago avenue, from three sides yesterday morning, shot down the proprietor, wounded his wife in the right wrist, and escaped in an auto with nearly $1,000 after terrorizing patrons with a volley of shots.

Two of the bandits had suddenly burst in at the side door of the saloon. A third entered the restaurant by a rear door, and the fourth by the front door.

Gross, his wife Clara, and her father, Otto Perksech, of 3203 Garfield boulevard, were marched to a corner of the saloon and patrons in the restaurant were mobilized before a grab for the money which Gross had been counting preparatory to paying checks of workmen in the vicinity. Gross snatched his revolver from under the bar and opened fire, emptying his weapon at the robbers. The robbers of the bandits replied in unison, bullets flying from every part of the room.

Gross fell with bullet wounds in the scalp, left leg and neck. His wife screamed as blood spurted from a wound in her right wrist. Gross fired his last shot as he sank to the floor. He said afterwards that one of the bandits appeared to stagger as he rushed for the door.

TO BUILD PAT SMITH BRIDGE

County Superintendent, Will Miller, States Attorney Smith and the township are just concluding arrangements for closing up the bond issue to build the Pat Smith bridge over the Kishwaukee north of Kirkland which is to cost $25,000 says the Tribune. $5,000 of this sum is to be derived presently from the levy of a road and bridge tax, the township of Franklin will pay $10,000 of the balance and the county will pay the other $10,000 needed to build it. The bond issue will be for the sum of $20,000 and will bear 5 1/2 per cent.

AURORA WANTS DAYLIGHT

In Aurora shops and factories a movement to return to the daylight saving system is meeting with much favor and it is thought will become operative March 28. A petition is now being circulated to make it as near unanimous as possible. Several factories have signified their intention of observing it whether the other shops do or not. It is not the intention to change the clocks at all but to go to work at 6 o'clock.

HAY IN SPRINGFIELD

W. M. Hay, county treasurer, left for Springfield Monday evening to meet with other treasurer of the State Tax Commission on March 16th and 17th, with a view of discussing a method of securing a more uniform valuations of property in the state. This meeting is called at this time in order that, as supervisor of assessments, the county treasurer may give the local assessors their new instructions when they call for their books on April 1.

BEWARE OF OAT SMUT THIS YEAR

Illinois Experiment Station Issues the Warning and Names Cure

FORMULA WILL SAVE THE CROP

Based on Five Year Experiments at The Illinois University Experiment Station

Do you want a big oats crop this year?

Then don't run any risk. Treat your oats for smut. The Republican has received from the University of Illinois a reliable smut treatment. Over a period of five years several treatments were experimented with by the Agricultural Experiment Station of the State University, and the one here given proved the most effective of all. The use of this University formula will save Illinois farmers thousands of dollars in the coming crop. Here it is:

1. Thoroughly fan and screen the oats.
2. Mix one pint of formalin with 10 gallons of water for each 8 bushels of seed to be treated.
3. Keep this solution covered so as to prevent the formaldehyde gas from escaping.
4. Sprinkle the solution over the oats, using one pint to each bushel, and mix thoroly.
5. After two hours uncover the oats. If they have been thoroly mixed they will have absorbed the moisture so thoroly that they will be dry enough to sow at once in a broadcast seeder or drill.
6. If the oats are not seeded at once, they should be spread out in a thin layer and stirred occasionally to allow the escape of the formaldehyde gas.

This recommendation is based on five years' investigations planned to determine a simple, convenient method of treating oats for smut.

THE NEW LAW

Requires that Candidates for Committee Must File

Under the new law the election of precinct committeemen will not be the informal manner that it formerly was when there was blank lines on the ballots and the voters wrote in any names they happened to think of, many of the nominations being made as jokes.

Now the petitions have to be placed on file the same as for any offices and there is no more opportunity for writing in names than there is for any other candidate.

The Committeemen also have important functions under the new law and their election is not left to chance says the DeKalb Chronicle.

For the coming spring primaries the following nominations have been made by the Republicans of the various election districts in this county, there being only a few contests as will be seen:

- Afton—James McDole.
- Clinton—1st, Carl H. Wilkinson, 2d, Carl L. Greeley.
- Cortland—1st, C. F. Noble, 2d, W. F. Hemenway.

Teachers of the Elgin public schools who have taught the full year, will receive a bonus of $200, to be paid on June 4, 1920. To those who are in the employ of the board of education at the close of the year, but who have not taught the full school year, the bonus will be prorated, $200 for nine and one-half months, payable June 4, 1920. The teachers of the public schools will therefore virtually receive the increase of $200 annually which they at one time petitioned the board of education for.

A GOOD PROGRAM

Father Finn of Rockford Talks on Patriotism Tuesday Night

The entertainment and dance at the opera house Tuesday evening, under auspices of the Friends of Irish Freedom, was well attended, in fact practically every seat was filled when the program opened at 8:15. The program was interesting thruout, Father Finn of Rockford holding the close attention of his audience in his address on "Patriotism". Father Finn is not an orator that prompts applause, but is a thinker and speaks as such, his words all being carefully chosen and delivered in a manner that leaves a knowledge of the truth with his audience, rather than filling his hearers with short-lived enthusiasm. He spoke eloquently of his own loyalty and loyalty in general to the American government. The speaker asked fair play for the Irish Republic, spoke of his own love and the love of other Irishmen for their native land, but emphasized the fact time and again that this love of native land did not in the slightest degree alter their praying, working and fighting loyalty to America, the land of their adoption.

The other part of the program was received with applause following every number. It was all good, but we would not be loyal to Genoa if we did not say that the local talent was just as good as the best from out of town.

In her own characteristic manner Miss Evelyn Patterson sang several Irish melodies and was roundly applauded. Miss Klea Schoonmaker made her debut as a singer before a large audience and her voice was a revelation to those who had not heard her sing previously. She has an exceptionally fine alto voice and a few more years of training will develop a wonderful volume and range.

During the dance Miss Nell Bolinger of Sycamore entertained with several selections. Miss Bolinger has appeared before Genoa audiences on various occasions and never fails to please.

The dance was a success financially, and admonition of Father O'Brien before the first selection had been played, kept it free from the vulgar.

HISTORIC MEETING

First in DeKalb County of Pastors of Various Churches

On Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 the Pastors of the Protestant churches of DeKalb county met at the First Baptist church in DeKalb. The meeting was called by the county convener, Rev. W. R. Yard, and was in the interests of the Interchurch World Movement.

This meeting was historic in the sense that it is the first time in the history of the county that such a meeting has been held.

The oldest citizen does not remember when there was, previous to this time, a meeting of all the pastors of all the denominations in the county.

The purpose of the meeting was to begin the organization of the county for the survey and drive which is to be put on within the next six or eight weeks.

The organization will consist of a county chairman, a county financial director and a county survey director. Each church which is cooperating and each community will have its chairmen and its committees. The organization and work will be thoroughly done.

TEACHERS TO RECEIVE BONUS

Teachers of the Elgin public schools who have taught the full year, will receive a bonus of $200, to be paid on June 4, 1920. To those who are in the employ of the board of education at the close of the year, but who have not taught the full school year, the bonus will be prorated, $200 for nine and one-half months, payable June 4, 1920. The teachers of the public schools will therefore virtually receive the increase of $200 annually which they at one time petitioned the board of education for.

CHANGING MIND COSTS $2,000

J. L. Egan, a farmer living near Tampico, sold his farm there a short time ago for $302.50 per acre to a party from the southern part of the state, and being unable to find anything to suit him has bought the farm back again so that he would not have to move March 1, paying an advance of $2,000. That don't look like cheaper lands.

ENTHUSIASM IS LACKING IN GENOA

Candidates for Office are not Getting in Each Other's Way

ELECTIONS HELD NEXT MONTH

County Commissioner of Highways, Assessor, Town Clerk and Three Aldermen

Township election, Tuesday April 6.

Last day for filing petitions for town election, March 22.

City election, Tuesday, April 20. Last day for filing petitions for city election, April 5.

Up to the present time neither the town nor city clerk has been working overtime in filing petitions, there seeming to be lack of enthusiasm, incident to former years.

The supervisor holds over another year, Mr. Stewart having been elected at the last annual election. The office of commissioner of highways becomes vacant this spring, but it is understood that the present incumbent, J. W. Brown, will seek re-election. For assessor J. W. Sowers will again take a chance, if a chance it might be called, but for many years Mr. Sowers has not been compelled to lay awake nights, worrying about the outcome, for he has been the only candidate for years. He is to have any opposition this spring, the opposition has not yet made himself known.

Walter Buck is the only candidate for town clerk at present, his petition being now in the field.

Of course we again must elect trustees of the Noy Cemetery and perhaps a constable.

The City Election

In the case of city affairs, there is no more of a rush for recognition than in the township. Mayor Hammond, who was elected last spring, holds over another year, but three aldermen are to be elected, one from each of the three wards. In the first ward, Robert Cruikshank retires; in the second, John Canavan, and in the third, Kline shipman. Mr. Shipman was elected last spring to fill vacancy.

City Clerk R. B. Field and City Attorney G. E. Stott, who were elected last year, hold over, the term being for two years. L. F. Scott as city treasurer also holds over another year.

DEKALB DOCTOR IN BAD

Sheriff After Man Who is Charged With Conspiracy

Chronicle: Acting on instructions from the states attorney's office of Cook county, Sheriff Henry Decker was in DeKalb last week looking for Dr. Oscar J. Brown, the first news of whose indictment on a charge of conspiracy was given in The Chronicle.

The sheriff did not find the doctor as according to Mrs. Brown, he had been called to Vermont several days ago by the serious illness of his father in that state.

Mrs. Brown stated to a Chronicle reporter that she did not know when her husband would be home, but that she thought it would be sometime.

According to States Attorney Lowell B. Smith there would have been proceedings taken against Dr. Brown before this in DeKalb county but for the fact that the alleged signing of the constitution of the Communist Labor party, which is the basis of the indictment was done in Cook county and technically no alleged offense has been committed here.

States Attorney Smith says that the charge is a serious one and that the penalty if the case is pushed and the defendant found guilty would be sentenced of from one to ten years in the state penitentiary.

The proceedings are brought under the state statutes and the case is to be heard in the criminal court of Cook county.

Mrs. Brown refused to talk for publication and was quite emphatic in her statements that Dr. Brown was never a party to any movement for the overthrow by force of the government but believed in upholding the constitution of the United States.

She said that he desired the overthrow of the present class that has control of the politics of the nation but that he was loyal to the ideals of the republic.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By R. RAY BAKER

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It is unlikely that ever another man held the unique position in a community that Richard Jerome occupied in Wakefield.

Vocationally Richard was a lawyer, and a good one. A generous practice had given him a financial status that might be termed comfortable, and of late years he had placed certain restrictions on his legal business which permitted many spare moments for his avocation, which was the mending of broken hearts.

The avocation paid Richard not a penny, but he performed the work with a gleam in his eye and joy in his heart; for he loved humanity and could not bear to see his fellows suffer when a way to alleviate their troubles was ready to his hand.

Never had a lovelorn young man appealed to Richard in vain; never had he failed, in his assumed role of Cupid, to "get the verdict." His almost uncanny insight into the ways of women gave him something akin to fame in Wakefield, although it was a fame that was spread by word of mouth and not by newspaper headlines and half-tones.

It began when Richard's chum, Anthony Brexton, came to him with tears in his eyes and wailed:

"It's all over, Dick. Will you please get me a bottle of carbolic acid or an equally deadly poison? Isabelle has turned me down and life holds nothing for me now."

Richard had calmly lighted a corn-cob pipe which was so old it looked as if it might have been the pattern after which all the others were copied, had settled himself comfortably, and said:

"First—before we get this carbolic acid—let's hear your story. Not that I am curious, but I object to spending good money for poison unless it's necessary. Remember, I am a lawyer. Why not let me advise you? My fee will not be heavy."

Anthony had laughed miserably.

"You advise in a love affair? That's funny, Dick. Why, you're a confirmed bachelor. You've never been engaged, never had a girl in your life."

"Maybe that will give me a better perspective in the matter," said Richard. "It won't hurt to try."

Then he had listened while Anthony unfolded his tale of woe, and when it was finished and the latter was huddled back in his chair choking back sobs and looking like a child that had crept out of bed early Christmas morning and found his stocking empty, Richard had taken the case up complacently with:

"Your problem is easily solved. Isabelle thinks you have proved yourself faithless. She won't listen to your explanations. She's a fort and you're trying to storm her with shells that won't penetrate the walls. The thing to do is to find a new method of attack. Put yourself on the defensive and wait for the garrison to make a sortie. Then capture the garrison. Now, this is my plan in detail—"

A week later Anthony appeared again, radiant, jubilant. The scheme had worked.

Now, Anthony had a friend who developed heart trouble, and the friend went to Anthony for advice. "Take it to Jerome; he'll fix it," was the advice he got, and Richard proffered a prescription that healed the wounds. And so on, and so on, till Richard's reputation was firmly established.

Richard was not a youth in years, although he seemed one at heart, and most of his friends were at least ten years younger. Richard was nearly forty and there were tinges of gray in his hair and some wrinkles on his forehead. He was not handsome, but strength of character was stamped on his face, and this attracted most people he met.

One day a young man came into his office with a listless manner and a heart that was not working right.

"My name's Fred Mania," he said by way of introduction, and cast a sour look out of the window at a painter on a scaffold across the street. "I've been living in Wakefield only a month, but during that time I've fallen in love with the most wonderful girl in the world. I've talked her about considerably, and I've tried desperately hard to win her, but she has not responded. I've not yet really proposed because I could tell the time was not ripe, but she knew what I was driving at and last night she told me I could not see her again. I knew Elmer Johnson at college, and when I told him my troubles this morning he referred me to you. It seems you patched up a little love affair for him about a year ago."

Mr. Mania did not offer to reveal the name of his ideal, and Richard did not press him for it. This middle-aged Cupid was not curious or meddling. He simply advised where advice was sought.

"No doubt she's trying you out," he said. "Remain away from her; don't try to see her. That will keep her guessing, and before long she'll probably make it a point to meet you somewhere and find out if you really care. If she does it indicates one of two things—either she loves you or she's a flirt. If she's a flirt, you don't want her."

A few days later Mr. Mania was back, looking more woebegone than before.

"It doesn't work," he announced, dolefully. "I've done as you advised, but she might as well be dead as far as any effort she's made to see me."

It began to look like failure for Richard Jerome, love mediator.

"We'll have to try a new plan," he said after a pause, during which he resorted to the ancient corn-cob. "Call her up and tell her you've got to see her just once more. Then go to it. Tell her you're desperately in love, and that she must marry you. Be a cave man within reasonable limits."

Three days later Mr. Mania appeared for the third time, and this time he was wretchedness personified.

"It's all over," he cried bitterly, kicking over Richard's waste basket.

"She says she doesn't love me and will not marry me. She says I'm a nice enough sort of a chap, but she doubts that I have real character. For one thing, I'm too young, according to her opinion. She wants an older man."

Richard was putting on the corn-cob. He could not evade the fact that he had come face to face with his first failure as Cupid.

"In fact," Mr. Mania resumed, "she told me there was one man in this town that she admired and has loved for four years. He's rather old for a girl like me," she said, "but I'd jump at the chance to marry him. Some day, perhaps, he'll come my way, but if he doesn't I'll never marry at all."

Richard emptied the ashes from the pipe and filled it again. He struck a match and was preparing to apply the flame to the tobacco when his client went on:

"The funny part of it is, Julia has never been in this man's society but once four years ago, when she was his partner on a Sunday school hayride."

Richard dropped the match suddenly. It had burned his finger. He sat puffing, but getting no smoke, and asked:

"What did you say is her name?"

"Julia Roth" was the response.

The corn-cob fell and sprinkled unlighted tobacco over the floor, while in his mouth Richard retained the broken stem. He rose and took his hat from a peg on the wall.

"I'm sorry," he said, as Mr. Mania prepared to leave. "I'm dead sorry for you; but I've got to admit that for once I have failed as a heart doctor."

They stepped toward the door, listlessness in Mr. Mania's gait, while in Richard's there was an unaccustomed vigor. He opened the door and paused.

"I don't mind letting you in on a little secret," he said, and his eyes were bright. "I've loved that girl ever since the hayride, but—well, I have been a pretty good adviser in the love affairs of others, but when it came to mine—"

He placed an arm on the other's shoulder.

"I'm dead sorry for you, really; but you can't blame me for wanting a little heart throb of my own."

AGAIN THE TERRIBLE TURK!

Details of Tragedy Which for Some Reason Did Not "Make" the First Page.

Early dawn was spreading over the valley. The first sun's rays were stealing over the white houses far below.

They were standing still, watching the maturing beauties of nature.

"Dear," said she gushingly, "look at the beautiful sunrise."

"Just look at the lovely dewdrop," he cried appreciatively.

Indeed, the dew was sweet. Their feet were soaked with it and it fell down on their uncovered heads, drenched them quietly.

"And that waterfall—how gorgeous!" she murmured, turning around to whence came the mighty sounds.

He started to move. "Oh, don't go yet," she pleaded.

"But I'm hungry," he said. "I want my breakfast."

"Oh, Hoppy, let's hunt for some breakfast—here in the fields. We might find—"

Here she stopped and her eyes dilated in terror. Wonderingly, and as though sensing some danger, he looked, too. Small wonder she stopped—froze in her tracks, for if ever an evil, murderous-looking, blood-thirsty face leered into theirs, it was the face of the sinister Turk.

Then arousing himself from his torpor the lover uttered a shriek of terror and dragged his loved one along with him as he went.

The Turk—a wonderful specimen he was, too—with a wicked wink, let them flee some distance. Then coolly, deliberately, he followed.

The poor frightened creatures never looked back and the wily Turk never lost sight of them. Suddenly he made up his mind and leaped toward them.

Oh, if they could but get safely behind some trees—or hide in the dark corner of some hidden cave.

But no! "Twas not to be! Doggone if it was. The only place left them to escape from the terrible Turk was the cool, inviting waters beneath the roaring torrent.

Alas! Ere they reached the surging surgery to escape from a more terrible death, the red-faced, hungry turkey was upon them and gobbled the two little grasshoppers up at one gobble.—Detroit Free Press.

Poor Man.

"You like to see Mrs. Styles come in to your shop, I suppose," said the caller.

"Indeed, I do. She never complains at the prices I ask for her hats," replied the milliner.

"No; I understand her husband does all the complaining in the family."

TAILORED SUITS FOR SPRING WEAR

THE choice of a tailored suit for spring gives one more concern than any other item in the wardrobe, except the hat that is to go with it. The woman who knows how to clothe herself correctly, from head to toe for the street, in unostentatious but elegant garb, as full of style as it is quiet—well, she will command admiration. No one can outshine her. She must begin by studying her own peculiarities, considering her figure and her own style. Some women look best in the plainest suits, but they are rather few.

Women of this day have a great advantage because the needs of all figures and all styles are very carefully studied by professional designers. They plan to conceal the angles of women who are too slender and to lengthen the curves of those who are too stout. They incorporate new style features and manage them aptly, and they introduce color or omit it, so as to suit every one.

The new spring suits are swinging away from the fanciful styles of the past season and are somewhat plain-er. Vests in contrasting colors and made of silk, for which there was a furor last spring, have reappeared, but they do not dominate the styles, for there are many coats without vests to be worn over the popular lingerie waists. Braid and buttons are sparingly used, embroideries flourish and there is a pronounced liking for neat effects. Coats are shorter than they were; jacket styles have attained some importance; skirts are about shoe-top length, the extremely short models which Paris launched, finding themselves rejected in this country. The two suits shown above may be taken as types worth considering; that one having a vest of cross-bar fantasi silk and vertical accordion platts in coat and skirt revealing new features in the mode.

BOUDOIR PILLOWS

IT IS hard to decide which of two things is most vitally interesting to the female of the species, and they are the clothing she wears and the furnishing of her home. Except for the care and thought she bestows on her family, nothing engrosses her as these things do. It is an instinct with women to want to be attractively clothed and to make their homes attractive, and let us hope that these things will remain uppermost in her ambition.

A great deal of attention is given now to pillows for different parts of the house—those for the living room, the parlor, and the bedrooms—which they help to make inviting and restful. Cretonnes and other cheerful and durable fabrics serve for porch furnishings, silks, tapestries, plushes and other more pretentious fabrics take care of the living rooms, while bedroom or boudoir pillows avail themselves of dainty laces, embroideries, silks, ribbons and even georgette crepe and chiffons.

Most of these boudoir pillows are first covered with silk in light colors

Paris Fashions.

What is described as the cuff turban is an interesting new small hat. A Paris model is of hatters' plush and is finished with a scroll embroidered mesh veil that is uniquely draped over the hat. In Paris the novelty of the hour is the big paradise bird, which almost covers one side of a hat or toque, and one of the best Rue de la Paix milliners declares hers are hat horsehair cleverly dyed.

CLEAR UP AN OLD MYSTERY

Pennsylvanian, Believed Slain When a Boy, Returns Home.

MEETS HIS MOTHER

Stepfather, Made Insane Because of Accusations of Having Murdered Boys, Confesses to the Crime.

Sharon, Pa.—Yielding to a longing to visit the scenes of his boyhood days George Burrows Keaster returned a few days ago to the rural district of Clarion county, just over the Mercer county line, and in so doing cleared up a mystery of many years' standing.

In the early eighties William Keaster, a farmer residing on the highway between Know and Colensburg, married a widow with two sons, ten and twelve. Shortly after the marriage the boys disappeared and a search failed to reveal their whereabouts.

The circulation of a story that Keaster had murdered the boys resulted in breaking up the home. The accusation so preyed on his mind that Keaster became insane and was committed to a state hospital, where he died.

Confesses Murder.

On the date of his commitment he told the warden that he had murdered the eldest boy and had been forced to repeat his act to prevent the youngest from accusing him. He said that the bodies of the boys were buried in the garden near his home. A search of the premises failed to reveal them.

Several days ago there appeared in the locality of the old Keaster home a stranger who claimed to be the elder of the boys.

The wanderlust called the boys to the West; they crept out of bed, left the house, boarded a freight train and finally reached the state of Washington. They obtained employment in the woods, where the younger was killed five years after his departure from home.

Since that time the eldest brother has wandered over the Pacific coast. He never wrote home and never received any word from relatives. Shortly after his arrival in Clarion county he located his mother, Mrs. Anna Burrows Keaster, and a happy reunion followed.

Banishes Robber With Spoon.

Great Falls, Mont.—With the aid of a silver spoon which he secured while dropping quickly behind the bar of a soft-drink saloon, George Edmonds, the bartender, saved his employers from being robbed by a man who entered the place from the rear and covered Edmonds with a gun. The silver spoon so resembled a revolver projected from the rear of the bar that the highwayman turned and fled.

NEEDFIRE OLD FOLK CUSTOM

Part of the Ritual of Purification That Has Survived in Scotland Until Recently.

In folk custom, needfire is fire kindled by friction of two sticks of wood or of a rope on a wooden stake to ward off demons of disease. Among the many customs and beliefs connected with fire one of the most important is that of ritual purification. The new fire is supposed to regenerate, as fire sacrifice is designed to sustain, the invisible beings. Needfire is a practice, usually, of shepherd peoples to ward off disease from the flocks. In historic times the sparks for kindling the needfire were obtained by twirling a wooden peg around a wooden post. As in the case of new fire, the needfire was almost always accompanied with the extinguishing of the fires of the locality, and the neighbors also rekindled their fires from it as in the new fire ceremony. In practice, the people passed, or the herds were driven through or between the flames of the needfire for purification. The needfire custom survived in the highlands of Scotland until recent date, and probably traces of this superstition still exist in parts of Europe.

Unnecessary Exposure. It happened at an inspection in France in the days before delousing became widely patronized social centers. The eagle-eyed top had discovered a large, healthy cotelet parading up a private's blouse.

Water Power Wasted. The Alto Parana river, which divides Paraguay from Argentina and Brazil, and its many tributaries, could make Paraguay an important industrial center. The power of these waters is practically unknown, but is estimated as having, in some places, a fall of 200 feet, and a force of 100,000-horse power. The Igazu falls are regarded as even more powerful than Niagara.

Economy. "Why are you letting your children learn those classic dances? Don't you think it is a foolish fad?"

"Not a bit of it. It saves shoe leather."

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

NEW, GREAT FORCES AT WORK

Demand for New Order of Things is Universal and Reactionaries Merely Swell the Rising Tide of Discontent.

Article IV.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

The most obvious thing in Europe is the changed attitude of the people, and yet there are many, particularly in the conservative, employing class, who refuse to see. There are none so blind as these. While they close their eyes and minds to the obvious, the change goes on. It is not idle rhetoric to say that new great forces are at work.

Everywhere I found people talking about a new Order. Men separated by hundreds of miles are thinking and talking the same ideas. It startled me to hear the same ideas up in the Balkans that I had heard in France and England. I did not meet any one who was able to give me a clear, complete meaning of the phrase, but it is on the lips of everyone. It has a meaning, and time will produce a plan. The people are forward looking—they are thinking, waiting for something to happen. They have faith that it will happen and that it will bring great good to the human race.

A meaningless minority of reactionaries scorn and scoff at all talk of a new Order. These are the backward-looking men of big business, the stand-patters in politics. They are out of touch with the times; they think the real world is the little circle in which they live. They are the barnacles on big business. They smugly set down all talk of change as bolshevism. Fortunately the real leaders of business are breaking away from this point of view. Progressive, human and open minded, they see and know that unrest is a problem and that it must be solved. They are paying heed to the complaints of the workers. They admit that there is justice back of the complaints. Instead of arguing coercion, they are talking concession. They know a change has come, they want to meet it.

New Order Must Come.

A new Order will come. The one question that is bothering the minds of men who are awake to the change is, will it come through revolution or through evolution. The greatest friend of revolution is the stubborn employer who refuses to see the change, accepts things as they are, and insists upon the use of force as the only cure for unrest.

Money is a gross thing when compared with human life. To mention Europe's financial losses in the same breath with her dead and wounded, seems sordid, but it is an everyday world and in it money has its logical place. Since the war some people are thinking that money has had too important a place in the world. It has been charged with pushing man out of his place, but bills must be paid and Europe needs money. The war cost billions and billions of dollars. Millions of men had to be clad and shod, billions and billions of cartridges and shells, rifles, cannons, airplanes, ships, were made. Europe owes the money. How will she pay it; where will she get it? It is a question that even the wisest and most optimistic of men in Europe hesitate to answer. Some wonder, is there an answer?

Europe has borrowed until her interest charge today is almost as large as her whole cost of governmental administration was a few years ago. I heard Lloyd George say that England faced a yearly interest charge of three hundred million pounds. Another official told me that this interest charge that England must pay each year is nearly one hundred million pounds a year larger than the cost of administration was at the time of the Boer war. Only the other day her interest was due on some loans from the United States and she was forced to default, and our government charged the interest to the principal and passed the day of payment on. In the meantime the pound is going down in value. When I was on the Continent it had reached $4.14. Today it is under $3.87, and steadily going down.

France is in even a worse plight. The banks are loaded with government paper. She has made no provision by taxation to pay her debt. I was told on every hand that any effort to impose a tax would bring on a revolution. It is said that her debt has reached the startling figure of $640 for every man, woman and child in the country. When I left Cherbourg to sail for America a regulation had been put into effect prohibiting any one leaving France from taking money with him, either metal or paper money. In excess of a thousand francs, and on that day you could buy almost nine francs for an American dollar. Can France pay? The figures prove France insolvent. Her officials and her men of prominence say she cannot pay. Her war debt is enormous.

Poverty on Every Side.

Italy is as bankrupt as France. A forced loan temporarily held the lira from losing all of its value. Her war debt threatens the throne.

In the new Balkan countries we find no gold reserve, little but poverty. In Czechoslovakia the government closed the borders for ten days, commanded the people to bring their money to the banks where stamps were put on the bills. When they brought their money they were given 50 per cent of it back and receipts for the balance. In this way the government cut down the volume of paper money 50 per cent. Even after this was done in the city of Prague I bought kronens for less than two cents a piece.

In Poland every kind and species of paper money is in circulation. Her frontiers have not been fixed by the peace table, and the profiteers in money smuggling have dumped the worthless paper of Europe into Poland. In October I was in Warsaw and my recollection is that the mark was worth about two cents in American money. Poland has no metal money. She hasn't a gold reserve. Her struggle to get credit to keep her people from dying by the millions from hunger and cold is pitiful.

Austria is penniless, poverty-stricken. Vienna is a city of ghosts, listless, peeps, human beings. They drag their feet after them. Their heads are bent between their shoulders. The kronen was worth a cent when I was there in September, and even at that price there was practically nothing to buy. Austria is her extremely, her people starving, petitioned the peace table for the privilege of selling her art treasures and heirlooms. The plea was to exchange them for bread and coal. Necessity prompted the plea. The peace table refused the permission, holding that these things of value might be the only collateral out of which the allies could collect the indemnity.

Europe's debt is her crown of thorns, as her dead is her cross. Unrest is her Calvary. A new Order is her hope—her resurrection.

Facing Gigantic Task.

Europe is not dying; she is exhausted, tortured, confused. She is trying to find herself. She is putting all of her remaining strength into the effort. The task before her is stupendous. She must rebuild her house. She must nurse her wounded, care for her cripples. She has counted her losses, inventoried her possessions. The past must bury its dead. Tomorrow is for the living. Today she is planning for the tomorrow. She must repair her house, put it in order. To understand her work, to know her plans, to feel her problem, it is necessary to know her thoughts. Unrest is frightening her. Fear is keeping her from work. It is causing her to worry. With all her soul she is pleading to the rich and powerful to become as little children again, her children. She is telling them that the fate of the family is at stake, that they must make concessions to their more unfortunate brothers. She is trying to make them understand that they are brothers. Many of them have forgotten the relationship. When she urges them to stop wrangling and quarreling she is pleading for their common good, the family welfare. She is warning against the danger of justice too long denied, of unrest too long pent up. She is translating the mutterings and mumblings of the discontented. She knows the complaint in their hearts, she sympathizes, she understands.

This was Europe as I saw her in her black rags arising from the war. (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

Shoemakers' Wax a Liquid.

It is not always possible to draw a very clear line of demarcation between a liquid and a solid. Shoemakers' wax, which is so brittle that the fragmentation obtained when a sheet of it is hit by a bullet resembles that in the case of the very brittle metal antimony, is actually a liquid. To show this place leaden bullets upon a sheet of shoemaker's wax and then support the whole upon corks. At the end of a month the corks will be found floating upon the sheet of wax instead of beneath it and the bullets will be at the bottom as in a liquid.

Largest Movie House.

New York has in building a moving picture theater with a seating capacity of 5,300, which may constitute it the largest of its kind anywhere. Judging by the heavy patronage in other such places, the new house may be filled at the chief performances. The public is seeking professional entertainment as never before.

Age is an opportunity no less Than youth itself, though in another dress. And as the evening twilight fades away, The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day.

SAVORY DISHES.

Often a cupful or two of cold left-over fish will make a most appetizing and nourishing dish.

Savory Fish.—Cut a two-inch cube of salt pork in dice and fry out. To three tablespoonfuls of pork fat add three tablespoonfuls of flour, stir until well blended, then pour on gradually one and one-half cupfuls of cold milk. Boil and add one cupful of flaked halibut or haddock, three-fourths of a cupful of potato cubes, which have been cooked, the pork scraps, and the yolks of two eggs. Season and serve hot.

Mock Crab.—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter, add one-half cupful of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, three-fourths teaspoonful of mustard, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika. When well blended pour gradually while stirring constantly one and one-half cupfuls of scalded milk. Bring to the boiling point and add one can of kornet, one egg lightly beaten, three teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce. Turn into a buttered dish, cover with a cupful of buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

Head Lettuce With Pears.—A most attractive and appetizing salad is this: Arrange the crisp heart leaves of lettuce on the salad plates and fill each nest with eighthths of carefully peeled pears. A few strips of red pepper placed over them as a garnish adds to the appearance, but paprika may be used, sprinkled over the dressing. If French dressing is used, add a bit of onion and a dash of cayenne.

Coffee-Date Pudding.—Soak a box of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold coffee. Add a pint of boiling coffee, one-half cupful of sugar and a pinch of salt. Strain and cool. When beginning to thicken add one-half pound of quartered dates and a half cupful of walnut meats. Serve with cream.

Pineapple Custard.—Add a cupful of diced, sugared or preserved, pineapple, to any good recipe for custard and bake as usual.

Fame is the scentless sunflower, With gaudy crown of gold; But friendship is the breathing rose, With sweets in every fold. —Oliver Wendell Holmes.

TIMELY TIPS FOR HOUSEWIFE.

Of all our food, cheese is the most compact and concentrated. It contains no connective tissue, bone or other waste so that a pound of cheese is without waste. It is highly nutritive, containing twice as much food value per pound as meat, and is much more economical to buy.

Cheese has been called hard to digest, because being rich it slips down with little mastication and being in hard lumps in the stomach does often cause distress. This same compactness which gives us such valuable food in small compass, makes it harder of digestion unless it is eaten with coarse food, such as dry crackers or vegetables which need good mastication.

Other meat substitutes which will lend variety to the diet are whole wheat, dried beans, peas and lentils, peanuts, walnuts, pecans, eggs, butter, cream, olive oil, milk, macaroni, and rice. Dried fruits as well as fresh are indispensable in a well balanced diet. These foods in various forms and in combinations with others will give a sufficient variety.

Children, when teething and suffering with swollen gums, will be greatly refreshed by cool fruit juice or scraped apple. A worrying baby is often suffering for frequent drinks of pure, cool water. It is well to remember that young children and animals cannot tell us what they need, and often suffer because of the carelessness of those who should be responsible.

Foods which must be denied children should not be placed temptingly before them—a strong reason for having the children eat alone. Their food should be palatable and attractively served. Table manners may be learned very early which will never have to be relearned.

Currants and raisins may be cleaned by rubbing them with flour, then shake it off to remove all dust. To get the flavor of orange for tea, sauce or for any other dish, rub a cube of sugar over the rind to absorb the essential oil. One orange will furnish flavor for two or three cubes.

Drop the yolks of eggs left over into a cup and cover with cold water. If the yolks are unbroken they will keep several days.

Always let the water run a minute from pipes that have held water over night or for several hours.

God give us more of the people who set about definitely and actively to cultivate the habit of happiness; people the corners of whose mouths are turned chronically up, not down; people who are looking for inspiration and calling forth the best from all.—R. W. Trine.

EVERY DAY HELPS.

A pinch of cream of tartar in fudge or frosting will prevent sugaring and will make it nice and creamy.

The whites will come off oranges if held under cold water and scraped. Cover poached eggs just a minute before serving to give them the pretty pink, glazed look.

Water ferns at least once a week with cold coffee or tea; it will make them very luxuriant.

Add a little chopped cabbage and apple to the ordinary potato salad to give it a little unusual flavor.

Canned pineapple juice cooked with sage or tapioca and served with cream, using a garnish of chopped pineapple, makes a most dainty dessert.

A small amount of preserves stirred into cake crumbs and flavored with a drop of rose, garnished with whipped cream, makes another easy and good dessert.

For a delicious layer cake filling take one cupful of maple sirup and stir thick with powdered sugar, add nuts to the filling and use the plain mixture for the top.

One new thing a day is the rule for the evening meal conversation. Each contributes something of interest, making the gathering a cheery, happy event.

When running sash window curtains on rods which are not smooth at the ends, use an old glove finger over the rod.

When cooking rice, save enough to make griddle cakes for breakfast. Add one cupful of rice to the batter. Use some for supper or luncheon dish with meat and tomato.

When tying a package and you have no one to put a finger on the string to hold it, slip the end you are tying twice under the string; the knot will not slip while you finish tying it.

Halves of pears and peaches with chopped nuts and any liked salad dressing make delicious and quickly made salads.

French zinc, thinned with boiled oil to make it of the right consistency, is a much finer white paint than any made of white lead, goes farther, and has a much finer gloss.

We can be what we will be but only by holding ourselves to consistent and well calculated thought and action. Sheldon Leavett.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY.

One of the most wholesome of breakfast foods and one reasonable in price is the whole wheat grains cooked until soft and gelatinous. Serve with top milk. This is food especially good for growing children.

Green Soup.—Wash two quarts of spinach in several waters. Wash, peel and chop fine three small turnips, two onions, a bunch of celery and a sprig of parsley. Fry the vegetables gently in four tablespoonfuls of butter. Add one pint of water and simmer until tender. Mix two tablespoonfuls of flour with a little milk, add it to one and one-half pints of milk, let boil five minutes. Put all the vegetables through a sieve, then add the hot milk and serve with fried bread.

Spanish Eggs.—Cook together one cupful of stewed tomatoes and one clove of garlic, finely minced, one chopped onion, two sweet green peppers seeded and chopped. Cook gently until reduced one-half. Spread on thin slices of buttered toast and lay a poached or fried egg on each slice.

Boiled Fish in Court Bouillon.—Mince one onion, one stalk of celery, three sprigs of parsley. Fry them in a little butter, add two teaspoonfuls of salt, six pepper corns, a bay leaf, three cloves, two quarts of boiling water, one pint of vinegar. Boil fifteen minutes, strain and keep to use in boiling fish. Rub the fish with salt and lemon juice and put in the boiling liquor; simmer until the flesh falls from the bones.

Maple Junket.—Warm just lukewarm one quart of milk, add one dissolved junket tablet, one-third of a cup of maple sugar and pour into sherbet cups. Serve with grated maple sugar and cream, or a pudding sauce made of two-thirds of a cup of maple sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful of boiling water, two tablespoonfuls of butter and vanilla to flavor.

Escalloped Celery With Cheese.—Cook the rough coarse portions of celery, cut in bits, until tender, add to a rich white sauce in layers with cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until the cheese is melted.

ROSE IN COFFIN TO REBUKE REVEL

Swedish "Corpse" Awoke as Friends Feasted—Twenty Witnesses.

Stockholm.—Jens Jonsen, a farmer, residing at Famen, died there after a week's illness.

The corpse, having been placed in a coffin, was kept for three days in the house, where neighbors came to pay their last respects and to partake of the usual refreshments served on those occasions. The company was greatly alarmed when on the evening of the fourth day the "dead man"

Shame on You All!

arose in his coffin to an upright position and addressed the following words to his family and friends:

"You thought me dead. I may have been, but the sounds of your revelry awoke me. Shame on you all for spending my money in feasting! I have done with you, and prefer the next world to your society."

The man thereupon sank back in his coffin and died in reality this time. He was buried the following day, the whole village turning out to attend the funeral.

The Svenska Dagblad, which prints this story, appends the signatures of 20 witnesses who testify to its truth.

X-Ray Fails to Save Burglar From Prison.

Los Angeles.—When Fred Wyatt appeared before Judge Frank Willis, having been sentenced for burglary three different times previously, he displayed a little lump on his head and said he knew he had a brain depression that caused his difficulties. He asked for an X-ray examination of his brain. On order of Judge Willis an X-ray was taken at the county hospital and later returned to Judge Willis. His brain was reported normal.

"There's something there that makes me steal," said the defendant when shown the X-ray plate.

"I wish we could take an X-ray that would show the mental peculiarities of people that make them do wrong, but we can't," remarked Judge Willis, as he sentenced Wyatt to San Quentin for from one to five years, with a previous sentence of ten years for other offenses added to it.

GIVES LIFE TO SAVE DOG

Des Moines, Ia.—Lester Wilson, ten-year-old son of Harry Wilson of Valley Junction, gave up his life in an effort to save his pet dog. The dog went through the ice over Coon River. Lester was drowned in an effort to save him.

Lester and two other boys were conasting down the bank of the river. The other boys broke through the ice and Lester's dog jumped in after them. The boys scrambled out, but the dog could not get a foothold.

The Wilson boy reached out to grab his pet and losing his balance plunged headlong into the river under the ice.

The dog dived beneath the ice when he saw his master disappear, but was pulled out by the other boys.

Engineers and Divers Will Try to Recover Valuables From the Sunken Liner.

London, England.—Efforts to raise some of the treasure from the ill-fated Lusitania will be made soon. Engineers and divers who have been prospecting about the sunken liner believe that they can get at least thousands of pounds' worth of valuables, but that it will be impossible to raise the steamer or much of the cargo, owing to the great depth of the water in which it is lying.

BACK HURT ALL THE TIME

Mrs. Hill Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Removed The Cause.

Knoxville, Tenn.—"My back hurt me all the time, I was all run down, could not eat and my head bothered me, a ail caused by female trouble. I was three years with these troubles and doctors did me no good. My medicine helped my sister so she advised me to take it. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and now I am well, can eat heartily and work. I give you my thanks for your great medicine. You may publish my letter and I will tell everyone what your medicines did for me."—Mrs. PEARL HILL, 418 Jacksboro St., Knoxville, Tennessee.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

MAN'S BEST AGE

A man is as old as his organs; he can be as vigorous and healthy at 70 as at 35 if he aids his organs in performing their functions. Keep your vital organs healthy with

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles since 1896; corrects disorders; stimulates vital organs. All druggists, three sizes. Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation.

Looked Like It. Clerk—"You can't keep me down. Employer—"What are you trying to do, hold me up?"

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Some men don't care whether they ride in an automobile or a patrol wagon—just so they get a ride.

Whenever there is a tendency to constipation, sick-headache or biliousness, take a cup of Garfield Tea. All druggists.—Adv.

No, Nora, painting the cheeks red is not a cardinal virtue.

When Nervous and Rundown

Advance, Ill.—"After a hard and serious illness I was restored to a perfectly healthy condition through Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription which I took as a tonic. It proved to be such a splendid tonic that I have taken it many times since then, whenever I have been nervous and rundown, and it has never failed to strengthen and build me up in health.

"I can also speak just as highly of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' as a blood purifier and a medicine that is safe to give to little children. When one of my daughters was only a year old she had scrofulous sores all over her head. I gave her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it healed up every blemish and her hair grew nice and thick. She has grown into womanhood and has never had any return of blood disorder of any sort since that time. I give the 'Discovery' all the credit due it for this cure and take pleasure in recommending it."—Mrs. Etta Lewis, care Mrs. P. M. Roberts, R. R. 1, Box 31.

Quincy, Ill.—"I am glad to tell what Dr. Pierce's Anuric (for the kidneys) has done for me; it is a fine remedy. I had been a great sufferer with my back and hip for years, but 'Anuric' did wonders for me. I have taken two small bottles and now tell every one what a good medicine it is."—Mrs. Stella Steedall, 1532 Jefferson St.

All women who suffer from feminine disorders are invited to write the Faculty of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for free confidential consultation and advice, no charge being made for this high professional service. This will enable every woman to benefit by the advice of the distinguished physicians.

 The sanitary sewer on Main street, between Washington and State, is causing some trouble, the pipe being filled with oil and grease from the garage. #### WANDER FROM STRICT TEXT

Matter of Marvel That Phrases From the Bible Are So Frequently Misquoted.

No book has contributed more to the general stock of misquotations than the Bible. No book exists in such a multitude of forms, which may account for some of the popular departures from the wording of the King James version. But it is not easy to supply reasons for most people's habit of saying: "In the sweat of thy brow," when the text reads "in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." Why "the parting of the way?" "Bone of my bone," instead of "bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh" may be due to the desire for perfect parallelism. And the same explanation may hold for "Thus far shalt thou come, but no further," instead of "Hitherto shalt thou come." But why the general preference for "better part," when we are expressly told that "Mary hath chosen that good part?" The Vulgate, for whatever reason, says "the best part" —"optima pars"—often cited in the middle ages in proof of the superiority of the contemplative life, as represented by Mary, over the active life, symbolized by Martha. But apparently no such contrast was originally intended. Why, again, "a multitude of sins," when it is said of charity that it "shall cover the multitude of sins?" Perhaps there is no other reason save that the tongue is an unruly member; such at least the world agrees in calling it, though the biblical text describes it as "an unruly evil."—Marry Ayres, in The Review.

TRICKS OF ANIMAL HUMBUGS

Abundant Proof That Deceitful Acts Are Accompanied by Consciousness of Wrongdoing.

In military stables horses are known to have pretended to be lame in order to avoid going to a military exercise. A chimpanzee had been fed on cake when sick. After his recovery he often feigned coughing in order to procure dainties.

The cuckoo, as is well known, lays its eggs in another bird's nest, and, to make the deception surer, it takes away one of the other bird's eggs. Animals are conscious of their deceit, as is shown by the fact that they try to act secretly and noiselessly; they show a sense of guilt if detected; they take precautions in advance to avoid discovery; in some cases they manifest regret and repentance. Thus, bees which steal hesitate often before and after their exploits, as if they feared punishment.

A naturalist describes how his monkey committed theft. While he pretended to sleep the animal regarded him with hesitation, and stopped every time his master moved or seemed on the point of awakening.

Arabian Physician.

Then there is the Kitab-al-Mansuri of Ali Razi, the most eminent of the Arabian physicians, the Rhazes of European writers, of whom it is said that when in his old age he suffered from cataract and was asked to have his blindness removed by an operation, he replied: "I have seen so much of the world that I am wearied of it." Of whom also it is said that when called upon to select a site for a hospital in Bagdad, he caused pieces of meat to be suspended in various localities, and chose that one in which, after a given time, the meat showed least putrefaction, thus anticipating the knowledge of microbial infection. To him it is said that we owe the oldest account extant of smallpox and measles.—Asia Magazine.

Crickets.

The newspapers haven't told you our most important event. The crickets have come, and are trilling away, each on his own hook, and without unison, like an orchestra tuning its fiddles. This means that the curtain is going to rise for the entry of autumn. . . . I said the birds had ceased, but I was wrong. The screech-owl is in season, and every night yodels mournfully about the house like a banshee. . . . But the crickets have come, too, and are cheerful enough in their monotonous way. I venture to think they have told me the same thing before. But that makes them all the more like human society.—Lowell.

The Composer's Cigarette.

Brahms always was credited with a frugal mind, and the following story is told of him and the late Erich Wolff:

A cigarette had been offered by the former to the latter, who received it with emotion and placed it carefully in his waistcoat pocket.

"Why do you put the cigarette away? Why not light it now?" asked Brahms, who already had struck a match.

"I cannot smoke it," replied Wolff. "I shall take great care of it; it is not every day that one gets a cigarette from Johannes Brahms."

Thereupon the composer opened his cigarette case again and said, with a smile of satisfaction: "Then just give me back the good cigarette, will you? For your purpose an imitation will serve just as well."

Market for Hair.

It was stated recently that human hair is worth $2.50 an ounce, and some people have professed surprise at the price. As a matter of fact, the figure is far below the fact. It is true that some human hair can be purchased at so low a figure as $7.50 a pound, but this is the coarsest, commonest stuff, concerning the origin of which it would not be wise to inquire too closely.

From $100 to $250 a pound are quite usual prices for good examples of hair of ordinary colors, while the rarer hues, particularly white and auburn, are much more expensive.

For pure white hair there is always a larger demand than supply, and the prices paid for the best qualities vary from about $25 to $30 per ounce. A well-known London dealer has sold white hair at $500 per pound.

Wasted.

Mr. Jones returned home the other evening in fine spirits. "My dear," said he to his wife, "this afternoon I closed the deal for the new house. I had the title examined and found it perfectly clear. The examination cost me a hundred dollars, but—" "Now, isn't that a perfect shame!" exclaimed his young wife. "All that money wasted!"—Cartoons Magazine.

In the Wilds of Alaska.

The chief food of the caribou of Alaska is reindeer moss, of a greenish-white color, which is scattered over the hills and mountains. Their favorite feeding grounds are on the treeless and semi-treeless parts of the territory including the tundras along the coast of the Arctic ocean and down to the Pacific side of the Alaskan peninsula. They scatter widely in summer and collect in herds in the fall. Each herd has its leader, and it is said that if the leader is killed the rest of the herd become panic-stricken and stampede back and forth until another animal takes the lead.

The Better Maxim.

"Look on your best friends with the thought that they may one day become your worst enemies," was an ancient maxim of worldly prudence. It is for us to reverse this maxim and rather say, "Look on your worst enemies with the thought that they may one day become your best friends."—Dean Stanley.

Origin of "Eleventh Hour."

The "eleventh hour" means figuratively the last minute, or, as we sometimes express it, "just in the nick of time." The expression now in general use, comes from the parable narrated in the gospel according to St. Matthew of the laborers hired for the harvest.

Better Late Than Never.

The strangest wedding I ever saw was that of an aged aunt, who, in her youth had had a suitor who went off to make his fortune and never returned until, old and infirm, but wealthy, he returned to claim his old sweetheart, who was so feeble she had to remain in a wheel chair during the ceremony. —Chicago Tribune.

Avoid the "Know-It-All."

A well-educated man is always ready to admit that there are a lot of things he doesn't know. It's usually the know-nothing who is a know-it-all.

Costly Coat Is in Great Favor

Heavy Outer Garment Is Distinctive Article in Season's Wardrobe.

USE FUR, VELVET AND CLOTH

Favorite Materials Are Lovely as Well as Expensive—Cape Arrangements Prominent in Scheme of Evening Wraps.

Frocks are lovely this season but after a careful study of the season's modes one feels inclined to say that the coat is the distinctive article in the season's wardrobe—coats are so handsome, so varied, so altogether to be desired, and also in these most desirable forms so expensive, says a leading fashion writer.

One can buy a cheap coat, but unless pocketbook limitations positively enforce rigid economy, one is not likely to buy a cheap coat. Temptation to extravagance lurks on every hand. It is easy to be wise when folly does not wear alluring guise; but if a woman gets into a coat shop this season with more money in her pocket than she intends to spend, the chances are that she will invest it all.

Cloths, velvets, furs, all of the materials for the high class coats, are both lovely and costly. In addition, the modish coat is one of such ample fullness that it calls for much of that same costly material. There is no dodging high prices with that combination of expensive material and plenty of it.

Variety in Cost of Fur Coats.

The smart fur coat varies in price with the kind and quality of the fur, but even Hudson seal and caracul mount up if freely used and trimmed with other fur. These are two standard furs for the coat of more moderate price, and, while the seal, which is a matter of fact is dyed muskrat, is the softer and more becoming, caracul stands wear and weather more sturdily. The matter of becomingness is settled by the big collar of long-haired fur or contrasting short-haired fur that is likely to be used upon either the seal or the caracul.

Noted recently were remarkably smart-looking coats of caracul dyed in a bisque or tawny shade—and in about three-quarter length or even shorter. The collars were draped in loose folds or made, as one especially noted, in hoodlike shape at the back. These models were unquestionably intended for rather dressy wear.

But, to return to the subject of coats of exquisite cloths and velvets, so closely allied are these materials that in some instances one can scarcely tell whether it is the cloth or the fur that is the foundation material for the wrap. Especially is this true with regard to the coats of the more expensive type.

Smart Models Pictured.

One coat, handsomely trimmed with fur, was of velours in a beautiful dark brown tone with quantities of beaver trimming. The body of the coat was built upon straight lines but given the modish width at the hips by shaped pockets of the beaver, which extended from the waistline to the coat hem. There was a large collar and cuffs of the beaver. A youthful small round hat and round muff of the beaver accompany the coat.

Another coat, of navy blue velours, rich in texture and with a wonderful bloom in its soft surface is trimmed with opossum, which gives the effect of chinchilla and is also tremendously effective in contrast with the soft dark blue velvety tones of the cloth.

The coat under discussion is made on the simplest of lines and has a large collar and large patch pockets and cuffs of the opossum. There is a narrow girdle of the material.

Velvet Wraps Are Lovely.

Velvet coats and capes of this season are really lovely, and upon them the designers have lavished their skill and inspiration as well as the handiwork of materials. There is a great variety of line displayed in these coats and because of the suppleness of the material it may be manufactured in a variety of ways. Such wraps invariably show a large fur collar and many ways of introducing fur trimming. Often the collar is so large that it covers the shoulders like an enormous fur cape. Again, there may be a velvet collar with wide fur band trimming. Another new and effective model of velvet had a large fur hood falling down over the back of the mantle. The lower part of the wrap was banded by the fur.

All Colors in Vogue.

All the dark velvets are used for afternoon coats. Black, of course, has first place because of its adaptability; but very dark browns, the dark greens, grays, prune, dark blue, the castor tones, amber and sulphur yellows and various shades of reds appear in the display of afternoon coats. All of these, without exception, are fur trimmed—some in dark, long-haired fur like skunk or its cheaper relatives. But any and every effective type of peltry from sable to beaver is pressed into service.

Among the velvet coats much originality in sleeves, as well as in collars, is possible. The dropped shoulder is emphasized by lines of fur and the sleeve wrinkles softly from elbow to wrist. The collar may be of velvet and banded by fur.

Cape arrangements are seen upon some of the chic velvet coats, as well as upon cloth models, and enter into the scheme of beautiful evening coats. But the evening coat is another story. Afternoon cape coats having wide sleeves or just a wide encircling band of fur sewn into the sides of the garment are one of the smartest things this season.

A charmingly picturesque cape coat is of this type and made of blue velveteen. The deep yoke is trimmed with several bands of fur. The lower part of the wrap is attached to the shaped yoke with fullness. The arm slips through wide fur-trimmed bands at the sides.

An extremely smart coat and skirt costume is made of brown velours trimmed with dyed squirrel of a darker tone. The bodice of the coat is rather snugly fitted. Fullness is introduced at the hips and trimming consists of bands of the squirrel. The long shawl collar of fur fastens at the waistline with a large button.

Fur is introduced on frocks and suits in all manner of ways. It edges openings, is inset in panels, and borders semi-fitted long-waisted bodices at the lower part and various other decorative uses are made of it.

COACH SHARPE REPLIES TO CRITICISM OF YALE ALUMNI AND UNDERGRADUATES

DR. AL. SHARPE TAD JONES

Although most of the Yale alumni and undergraduates cordially support Dr. Al Sharpe in his policies as general athletic coach and director, a minority has made his life miserable since the Harvard and Princeton defeats by demands that he retire in favor of Tad Jones, who was head coach three years ago. Goaded by incessant criticism of his football coaching, Doctor Sharpe said:

Won't Insist on Contract. "If Yale alumni and undergraduates really attribute the loss of the Harvard and Princeton games to my coaching and want to bring Tad Jones back as head coach I shall not demand that Yale carry out my three-year contract. If my work is unsatisfactory and there is a popular demand that I go I shall go. There have been critiques that were not working for the best interests of Yale, and there was not harmony. There is too great a bridge between the academic and the scientific departments. Yale lost its two biggest games because of loose playing."

Doctor Sharpe was asked to comment on the statement made by Trainer John Mack to the effect that, when an eleven is on the one-yard line and cannot score because of a missed signal, something is wrong. He answered:

"The play that was called for was an off-tackle play and Braden, who took the ball, went through center."

"Then Braden disobeyed his signals?"

"Either that or he misunderstood them."

KID WILLIAMS COMING BACK?

One-Time Bantamweight Champion Could Not Keep Away From Fistic Circle—Now a Manager.

Kid Williams, one-time bantamweight champion, as was expected, would not remain away from the sport very long. Do not misconstrue us as saying that the Kid will attempt a comeback, for it is doubtful whether the great Little Monumental City battler will ever don the gloves again. Williams, however, will return to the spot in which he achieved much glory, as a manager, as he has taken Little Jeff under his managerial wing.

AMERICAN SPORTS IN CHINA

Football and Baseball Successfully Introduced at Tsing Hau College, Located at Peking.

American football and baseball have been successfully introduced at Tsing Hau college, Peking, China, according to Ming S. Lowe, registrar of the college.

After his arrival in China he obtained the services of an American coach and physical director, D. K. Brace, a Red college graduate, to coach the various teams then organized, in a tentative way, in baseball, American football, soccer, tennis, track and swimming.

American football and Yankee baseball are among the most popular sports at Tsing Hau college. A golf course is soon to be laid out near the college.

GEORGE GIBSON NOW LEADER OF PIRATES

Anything but a Stranger in Smoky Town of Pittsburgh.

Was Big Factor in Success of Club in Days When Fred Clarke Had Team Battling for National League Pennant.

George Gibson, named by Barney Dreyfuss as the next manager of the Pirates, is anything but a stranger in the city where he is to make his debut as a major league manager. Gibson was the star catcher of the Pittsburgh club for more than ten years, and was a big factor in the success of the Pirates in the days when Fred Clarke had the club battling annually for the National league pennant. In 1909, when the Pirates annexed their last pennant and also won the world's series, Gibson participated in 150 games.

Gibson, who was born at London, Ontario, on July 22, 1880, made his professional debut with the Kingston club of the Hudson river league in 1903. The following season he caught a few games at Buffalo, and in 1904 he became regular catcher for the Montreal club of the then Eastern league. He started the 1905 season with the Maple Leafs but was purchased by the Pittsburgh club in mid-season and before the campaign ended he had established himself as regular backstop. From 1908 to the end of the 1915 campaign, Gibson was the mainstay behind the bat for the Pirates, and in six different seasons he caught more than 100 games.

During the 1916 season Dreyfuss asked for waivers on Gibson and the New York club put in a claim for his services. The veteran was ordered to report to Manager McGraw, but he declined, and for a great part of the season he remained out of baseball. During the winter Gibson had a conference with McGraw and agreed to join the Giants. He was with the New York club during the campaigns of 1917 and 1918, acting mainly as coach of pitchers, though he participated in a few games each season. Manager McGraw gave Gibson his release a year ago in order that he might accept the managerial position at Toronto. In his first year as manager Gibson led his team home in second place, and he now gets his opportunity to show his managerial skill in the majors.

RALPH GREENLEAF IS WINNER

Crowned King of Pocket Billiardists in Tournament Just Closed in Philadelphia.

Final results in the tournament just closed in Philadelphia crowned Ralph Greenleaf of Wilmington, Del., king of pocket billiardists of the country. The champion's showing was an impressive success. The honors just won mean much to him in a financial way. In addition to first prize money of $1,500, he will draw a salary of $2,400 a year from the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, and will receive an additional consideration of $150 a week for an 18 weeks' exhibition tour. Plainly the time this young man has spent in nanking the ivory on the green cloth has not been spent foolishly.

JOSEPH O'BRIEN ASSUMES DUTIES AS OFFICIAL OF NEW YORK BASEBALL CLUB

JOSEPH D. O'BRIEN

Joseph D. O'Brien, the new secretary of the New York Giants, has taken charge of the Fifth avenue building offices.

O'Brien is a familiar figure to New York fandom and a capable executive. Indeed, he was club secretary with the late John T. Brush and preceded Foster in office. O'Brien is a baseball man of varied experience, whose career has been brilliant in the extreme. As president of the American association he placed the Class AA circuit in the first rank of minor league baseball.

John B. Foster, the retiring secretary, has been a popular official. New York football fans owe him a debt of gratitude. It was his untiring efforts that brought, annual army-navy and other major gridiron battles to the Polo grounds.

NAVY TO HAVE DOBIE AGAIN

Coach's Contract Does Not Expire Until End of Next Season—Will Stick Another Year.

Gilmour Dobie will continue as coach of the Naval Academy football team for one more year at least. It developed the other day and was confirmed in official quarters that the contract between the coach and the naval athletic authorities made at the beginning of the season of 1918 covered three years and not two, as generally supposed. Dobie will, therefore, be in charge again next season.

It is said that Mr. Heinz conceived the notion of that 57 varieties slogan during the month of March.

What is Russia, why is Germany and where is Turkey? We must leave the answer to Father Time who eventually answers all world riddles.

If it takes two to make a bargain and at least two to start a quarrel, one should be charitable enough to hear both sides of a story before condemnation of anyone.

E. D. Shurtleff's announcement as candidate for United States senator has caused a severe puncture in Wm. B. McKinley's boom. Mr. Shurtleff's popularity will give McKinley's millions a fast race.

The Chicago Journal already has Governor Lowden's hide up to dry. But then, the Journal's noise does not carry far. It is doubtful if Mr. Lowden has suffered any pain as a result of the incessant flaying.

The constitutional convention has a slow job at the best, but if it must stop and listen to every delegation that journeys to Springfield, we may look for a tentative constitution some years hence. The convention has a big task, and one must consider all conditions before criticizing its lack of speed.

The Leonard Wood campaign committee is using considerable space in The Republican this week to advertise the Wood boom. This is the first instance in 25 years' experience as a publisher that any presidential candidate has bought space in our paper or any other paper, so far as we know. It is right and proper. The candidates are seeking an office which carries a big salary and unlimited prestige. Why should they not pay to tell the voters their story? In past years the publisher has done the boasting and if he had good luck could later get in and pick up a few crumbs that fell from the table at the victory banquet. General Wood's initiative in buying space instead of depending entirely on the press agent sponging plan has placed him higher in our estimation.

Beautiful American Bird.
In his distinguishing black on the forehead and yellow on the throat, the Maryland yellow-throat is one of the most beautifully marked of any member of his tribe and gives an appearance of Spanish grandeur, says the American Forestry association of Washington. There is no mistaking the sound of this bird, and it is rendered in a variety of ways which make it sound like any one of the following: "Which-is-it?" or "What-a-pity, what-a-pity?" or "Which-way-sir, which-way-sir?" or "I-beseech you, I-beseech you;" or "Witchery, witchery, witchery." The bird is particularly fond of thickets by the side of running water.

COULD NOT SEE THE FUTURE

Oldtime Clevelander's Rebuke of "Visionary" Makes Interesting Reading at This Time.

A Cleveland man who has inherited a mass of ancient correspondence ran across the following letter some time ago and found in it a little sermon on time's mutations. It was written in 1853 to an ancestor of his, a citizen of many activities, the writer being Hon. John W. Allen, lawyer, editor, congressman, the first president of the Society for Savings.

It appears that the recipient of the letter had written to his congressman suggesting a railway across the continent, an amazing vision in 1853.

Did Congressman Allen take kindly to the suggestion? He did not. On the contrary he gave the author of the wild scheme a neat dressing down.

"Why do you want at your age," he wrote, "and with property enough for your comfort and the well being of your children, to embark in such a crazy undertaking? . . . When you are well, don't take physic. Truly your friend, J. W. Allen."

It will be noted that the world and the railways have advanced a good deal since that solemn warning was delivered.

Comforts Over a Volcano.

Up in the mountains, where snow covers the ground more than half the year and zero blasts whistle out of the north, lies the town of Chaudesalgues, and in this town there has not been a heating stove or a furnace for many years. Coal, firewood and gas are unknown and there are no chimneys in this town of 2,000.

No, Chaudesalgues is not in Utopia. It is in Auvergne, France, and the explanation of its emancipation from soot and furnaces and ashes lies in the fact that it is built in what was the crater of a volcano, and from the ground beneath comes boiling water in great volume. Lectures Pour Tous, a Paris magazine, tells how this water is piped through the streets and under houses throughout the town without cost to the resident. Even in the coldest of weather, and it gets very cold in Chaudesalgues—well below zero—the houses are kept at a balmy temperature merely by raising a trap door in the floor and letting out the heat from the flowing waters, the magazine says.

Looting by the Ancients.

After the battle of Cannae—August 2, 216 B. C.—in which the Romans were totally defeated by Hannibal, the Carthaginian leader ordered that the gold rings should be taken from the hands of the dead Romans and heaped up in the vestibule of his quarters. Enough were collected to fill a bushel basket, and they were sent to Carthage, not as valuable spoils of war, but as proof of the great slaughter among the Roman patricians and knights, for at that time none below the rank of knights, and only those of highest standing among them, those provided with steeds by the state, had been given the right to wear gold rings. On days of national mourning the gold rings were laid aside as a mark of sorrow and respect and iron rings were substituted. This was the case after the defeat at Cannae and on the funeral day of Augustus Caesar in A. D. 14.

And the Fly Escaped.
One of the queerest stories of automobile wrecks comes from Geneva. A man driving along the state road toward Waterloo had the windshield of his machine open. A dragonfly entered through the opening and hit him in the face. He tried to brush it off, moving the steering wheel unconsciously, ran into the ditch and through a fence and had a bad smash-up. And the worst of it is, the sufferer can't see the fly for damages.—Buffalo Express.

A Pilot Married.
"I hear that the grocer discharged you for swindling him," remarked Mackindie to a friend. "It's a lie!" said the latter. "He asked me to put a lump of lead under one of the scales and I did so, and then in a few days when he examined it he told me to leave. "Did you not fasten the lead on properly?" asked Mackindie. "Oh, certainly, I fastened it right enough," was the reply, "but it was under the wrong side of the scale that I put it, and it weighed against himself!"

Just as popular on the farm as it is in the city. In fact, it fits the family demands in every vocation of life. Large, roomy seats, finely upholstered, plate glass windows make it an open car in pleasant weather, while in rainy and inclement weather it becomes a closed car, dust-proof and rain-proof. It is not only comfortable, but really cozy, and above all, economical in operation and maintenance, and has all the Ford merits of strength and durability.

"YOU LOVE HIM!"

Synopsis.—Typical tramp in appearance, Daniel Randolph Fitzhugh, while crossing a Chicago street, causes the wreck of an auto, whose chauffeur disabes it trying to avoid running him down. In pity the occupant of the auto, a young girl, saves him from arrest and gives him a dollar, telling him to buy soap, and wash. His sense of shame is touched, and he improves his appearance. That night, in a crowd of unemployed and anarchists, he meets Esther Strom and in a spirit of bravado makes a speech. Esther induces Fitzhugh to address the radical meeting. He electrifies the crowd, and on parting the two agree to meet again. Fitzhugh visits Symington Otis, prominent financier, and displaying a package which he says contains dynamite, demands $10,000. Otis gives him a check. At the house he meets the girl who had given him the dollar, and learns she is Kathleen Otis. She recognizes him. Ashamed, he tears up the check and escapes, but is arrested. Esther visits Fitzhugh in jail and makes arrangements for procuring legal advice. His trial is speedily completed and he is found insane and committed to an asylum, from which he easily makes his escape. Fitzhugh takes refuge in Chicago with Esther, who has become infatuated with him, but with the thought of Kathleen in his mind he gives her no encouragement. His one idea is to become rich and powerful, and win Kathleen. While hiding in Esther's house he grows a beard, which effectually changes his appearance.

And, heedless of his protestations, she told him. She was a widow. Her husband had been a Russian nihilist and was killed in Petrograd. After his death she had fled to America.

"Now, of course, you want to hear my story," he decided, when she finished. "Don't you?"

She noted the unwillingness in his voice. "Some other time," she answered.

"I'd better get you something to eat," she reminded herself presently, and rose and started toward the door. "You must be hungry." She paused with her hand on the knob. "Isn't there something else I can get you?" she asked.

"Yes; I wish you'd get me some evening newspapers." He ran his hand, first in one trousers pocket, then in the other, before remembering their emptiness. "Never mind," he told her. "I'll do without."

"I'll get them all," she promised soothingly. "It's only a few cents," she added as she went out.

When she returned, bearing a tray of food and a bundle of newspapers, Fitzhugh had made his toilet and looked a little more presentable—or, rather, a little less unkempt.

He threw aside the more conservative journals, which announced his escape in staid paragraphs, and read first those saffron-colored ones, which told the news with huge black type against pink and green backgrounds. The first one shrieked at him:

MANIC ESCAPES!
OVERPOWERS GUARD AND FLEES IN STORM!

He smiled and turned to the next one. Then he started and sat up very straight. Lavishly smeared over the damp front page, smelling of printer's ink, this is what he saw:

MADMAN MISSING!
$1,000 FOR CAPTURE!
SYMINGTON OTIS OFFERS REWARD!

He read it again and again, enjoying the notoriety to the full. He had come into the limelight.

When Esther knocked at his room next morning about eight, Fitzhugh had been up an hour.

"Come to my room as soon as you're dressed; I've a surprise for you."

He listened until he could no longer hear her footsteps on the uncarpeted stairs, then opened the door and found, just without, a parcel. Opening it, he disclosed a complement of underwear, socks, shirt, collar and tie. There was also a cup. Again he experienced an uncomfortable feeling of gratitude and shame for accepting, perforce, so much from a woman. In a closet at the end of the hall he had unearthed an old wooden clothes-tub. He filled it at the hydrant, carried it to his room, and stripped and enjoyed a cold bath. Then, arrayed in his new haberdashery, he went to his benefactress.

"You have three guesses," she cried gayly, holding her hands behind her, her face radiant. She fumbled with what she held behind her, shifting it to one hand, reached up, playfully tweaked his unshaven cheek and rubbed her palm against his stubby grain. "Now can you guess?"

He nodded, smiling. "You've bought me a shaving outfit," he said soberly. "I'm sorry. I'm not going to shave.

I'm going to grow a beard—a Van-dyke."

She fell strangely silent; and when she spoke he thought her voice sounded hard, unnatural. "I see. A disguise. How stupid of me not to think of it. That means, of course"—she picked up the shaving mug and appeared to be interested in its contour—"that means you will be leaving here."

He was in a quandary. He knew not how to answer. Deep down in his heart he knew he was going to leave her, was going to shut her out of his life. He had decided that again last night when drawing up his plans. But he could not tell her so now—not while she stood there questioning him, with such accusation, such bitter reproach.

"You will, won't you?" she demanded, her face reddening.

He chose the path of least resistance. He took the shaving mug from her hands, replaced it on the table, and put his arms around her and kissed her on the lips. It was probably the most prudent answer he could have made; and when, upon her repeating her question, less insistently, he said, "Don't think about unpleasant things," she promised to try, and lighted the oil stove and busied herself with breakfast preparations; and as she went about her work she hummed to herself almost happily.

During breakfast, however, she returned to the troublesome topic.

"Daniel," she began, refilling his coffee cup. "I want you to tell me what you intend doing. I don't like you to have secrets from me."

"Really, I am surprised and saddened. I never suspected I was so transparent."

"I'll tell you what I'd like, Daniel." Her voice was low and serious. "I'd like to have you go back to Russia with me. There's work to be done in Russia—Oh, such quantities of work!—and you and I could do so much. Oh, Daniel, you don't know what it's like in Russia—the poverty, the misery, the millions cowed by tyranny. They are groping in the darkness. They need light. They must be taught that all workmen are their comrades, all the rich their foes. They must be taught to strike back when they are struck—"

"See here, Esther!" Fitzhugh's clenched fist struck the table a ringing blow. His quiet demeanor had radically changed. "I've something I want to tell you. Henceforth my brain, my energy, every particle of me, will work toward but one end—Material Success. Money means Power, and Power is my goal. I've known all along I could reach it. I shall have to be cold, heartless, selfish. There's no other way. The poor!—pooh! What are the poor but beasts of burden to pack and carry for their masters, who are the rich and intelligent."

As he talked Esther crouched back in her chair, cringing from him as though each word he spoke was a whip-lash across her face.

"Naturally, you hadn't thought of me," she murmured, when he paused.

"On the contrary," he said, and there was a hidden meaning in his words, which, keen as she was, escaped her, "you are the person of whom I'm thinking most just now."

A glad light sprang into her eyes. "Then you are going to take me up with you! With your money—you see, I take it for granted you will become wealthy—how much we could do for the underclasses!"

He tossed away his cigarette, took a swallow of coffee, put down his cup abruptly. "I'll do the square thing by you—remember that. Perhaps money cannot compensate you for all you have done for me—I doubt very much if it can—but if it can, Esther, I shall repay you a hundredfold."

"Symington Otis Offers Reward!" He Read It Again and Again, Enjoying the Notoriety to the Full.

Ski Jumping in Summer.
Since the first cave men slid down a glacier, skiing has been considered a cold-weather sport. Among the snowclad hills of the cold north countries skiing has developed until it is the national sport of Norway. But now comes an expert ski jumper who established his own precedent, in good American fashion, by skiing on the hottest summer day. Of odds and ends he has built a slide, approximately 100 feet long and terminating at a gap of 25 feet, beyond which is a landing incline of heavier, broader construction and surfaced with canvas. This is kept slippery by applying soap and lard.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Had Preferred Position.
Walford came home from the neighbors and his mother inquired what he was doing. He said they had been playing war and were knocking the boys down. His mother then inquired if he wasn't afraid of being hurt. "Oh, no; I was one of the knockers," he replied.

She sprang up. Her brief gladness had fled. Her face was very white. "Then you are going to throw me over!" she blazed at him. "I thought so!"

"Have I ever shown any wild desire for your company?" he asked icily. He was also standing. His face was white, too. "In our short friendship has it not always been you who took the initiative?"

"But the first time we met you had no money, no place to sleep."

His brow darkened. "I thought I was going to have trouble with you. But never mind. I'll settle in full my account with you, and we'll quit even."

A furious torrent of words rushed to her tongue, but before she could loose it something occurred which, even in that tempestuous moment, dammed its flow. A shadow obliterated the sunlight, and she turned in time to see what cast it. A second later a street-dewy knocking rattled the peremptory door.

"Go to your room and lock yourself in!" she ordered, and pushed him before her toward the hall door. "It's Nikolay—the big Russian you met at Smulsk's. He mustn't find you here. He's ready to kill you, almost. Do hurry! Run all the way to your room and lock the door."

He tarried no longer. Yet the excitement of the moment did not banish his diplomacy, for he pressed her hand and kissed her before going. After his departure she composed herself at the breakfast table. The battering at the door swelled louder with every second.

Fitzhugh gone, Esther unbarred the door and admitted her visitor.

"Come in Nikolay," she invited.

He entered, glowering, and sat in the chair Fitzhugh had vacated.

"Why did you keep me waiting?" he asked sullenly.

"Because," she replied evenly, "I was trying to decide whether or not I wanted to see you."

"And did you decide?"

She lifted one shoulder, with elegant indifference, and stirred her coffee. "I had to let you in. Another minute, and you would have torn the house down."

He turned his massive head this way and that, sniffing the air very audibly. "I take it you care more for your friend who rolls his own cigarettes." He opened a box of Russians and lighted one.

She did not speak, and he went on: "You've taken quite a fancy to this young spellbinder, haven't you?"

"If you mean the boy who left just as you came—his my brother."

Nikolay threw back his head, and gave a loud, mirthless laugh. "Brother! What a liar!"

She caught her breath sharply and sat very erect, a crimson spot burning vividly in either dark cheek. Her bosom rose and fell stormily.

"Be careful what you say to me," she warned him; but the anger in her low voice seemed only to fan his jealousy to a fiercer flame.

He ground his teeth as he frowned at her, and the great hairy hand lying on his knee opened and closed. "You will equivocate, won't you? As if you could hoodwink me for one instant! Don't try it, you Esther. You know well enough why I loath this—this—"

"Randolph Fitz," she supplied swiftly. So he did not know Fitzhugh's real name. That was good.

"You know well enough, I say. It's because you love him."

He jumped up, kicked his chair out of the way, and began pacing the floor savagely.

"You can't be serious, Nikolay!" She made a brave effort at gaiety. "I care for him? Surely you are jesting." She tilted back her chair, as he stopped and towered over her, and smiled up at him coquettishly.

"Why will you torture me so?" he cried, holding out his great arms to her. "Can't you see how I love you? Don't you know I've loved you for years? And this Fitz!"—he spat the word out—"this vagabond of a Fitz! You've known him but a few weeks, yet you're—Surely you cannot love him! Tell me that you don't. Tell me—tell me, Esther, that you love only me!"

The woman knew how to act. She hesitated, smiled up at him demurely; then, breathing to herself the name of the man she loved, she rose, and, with her eyes closed tightly, held up her lips to the man she despised.

Some while later Nikolay took his departure.

FARM TERMS NOT IN DICTIONARIES

Great Many in Common Use in Agricultural Discussions Not Yet Recognized.

MOVEMENT TO STANDARDIZE

Department of Agriculture Plans to Secure Uniform National Usage of Terms Indispensable in Agricultural Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A great many terms in common use in agricultural discussions have never found a place in the dictionaries. So widely used and important a term as "vitamin" has not yet found its way into the principal unabridged dictionaries. For the public, therefore, there exists no approved spelling, no approved pronunciation, and no approved definition of the name of a thing that is vital to all living things.

Terms Not Recognized.

There are scores of terms, indispensable in agricultural writing or speaking, that have not been recognized by the lexicographers, and there are quite as many new usages of established words. "Blood line," a term commonly used in discussions of breeding, is not in the dictionaries. Nobody knows whether it is one word, two words, or a hyphenated word. "Overrun," a term widely used to express the thing that is practically the determining factor of profits in creamery establishments, is unknown to the dictionaries. "Standardbred," "trap nest," and any number of other commonly used terms, understood well enough by agriculturists, remain undefined for the accurate information of the general public.

To Standardize Terms.

The United States department of agriculture, through the joint efforts of the bureau of animal industry and the division of publications, has begun a movement to standardize the use of such terms, and about 30 of them are on the middle now. Three points of view are taken—that of the field man who knows the common usage of the layman, that of the scientist who has the view point of the specialist, and the point of view that looks merely to the use of good English. Each word is submitted to the various classes of persons interested, together with the proposed usage and the authority or lack of authority for it. From the suggestions received in reply, the finally approved usage will be determined.

The first agricultural term to be acted upon in the manner described was "corn belt." That was considered more appropriate than corn-belt or cornebelt.

Although the principal purpose is to establish approved usage for department of agriculture publications, lists of terms evolved will be furnished later to dictionary editors with the view of obtaining uniform national usage. The co-operation of agricultural experts and editors is invited.

ALFALFA IS FERTILITY AID

Where Crop Can Be Grown Successfully It Excels All Other Hay Crops in Yield.

Thirty years ago alfalfa was quite a stranger in Wisconsin, but its introduction and dissemination have gone on at a rapid pace until about 60,000 acres of this great forage are now grown in the state.

"Alfalfa growing is popular in Wisconsin," declares R. A. Moore and L. F. Gruber in a free bulletin just issued by the experiment station at Madison. "Where alfalfa can be grown successfully, it excels all other hay crops in yield to the acre, feeding value, drought resistance, soil enrichment, and weed eradication."

Trials conducted on the Wisconsin experiment station farm at Madison show that alfalfa gives yields practically double that of clover hay and three times as much as timothy. An acre of alfalfa produced in a single season three times as much protein as an acre of clover and nine times as much as an acre of timothy.

COVER BROKEN WINDOW PANE

Glass Should Be Replaced Without Unnecessary Delay—Muslin or Paper Is Good.

When a window glass becomes broken in the poultry house it should be replaced or covered without a day's delay. By no means should the aperture be left over night.

It is but the work of a few minutes to tack over the hole a thick piece of muslin or other white cloth. This will keep out the wind and let in some light. If muslin is not handy, paper can be used. This is, of course, only a makeshift until one can get the glass needed.

RAISING STOCK WITH CROPS

Live stock is not always profitable; neither is exclusive crop growing. Men cannot always be sure anything will be profitable. But when all things are considered what is surer and safer than live stock with crops?

Progress of Work in Developing Improved Stocks.

Department of Agriculture Co-operating With Experiment Stations in Practically All of Important Producing States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seed stocks of Irish potatoes commonly available to growers contain many mixtures, not infrequently diseased, and as a rule not as productive as they should be. The chief of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, makes this statement in reporting on the progress of work in developing improved seed stocks. It is a recognized fact, he says, that the yield of potatoes in this country is far below that secured in some other countries, and the difference is commonly attributed to the use of relatively inferior seed stocks. Seed-improvement work is being carried on by the department in co-operation with agricultural ex-

A GRANDFATHER'S STORY

From $143 to a Competence in Three Years.

F. J. Chamberlain tells a story of his efforts before moving to Canada in 1916 to make a living. It was hard work. He had so many "ups and downs" that he became dispirited before he earned the success of former neighbors of his who were doing well up in Canada. He sold his holdings for a song, and had a sale of what effects he had. When he straightened up with his storekeeper and paid a few debts he found that he had $143 in cash, a good constitution, a wife and five children. He had saved some few things from the sale. These he put into a car with the effects of a couple of others, who like him were going to Canada. He went into the Gem Colony in Alberta in 1916, bought a piece of land and commenced operations. The money he placed in the bank, and started one of his boys out to earn enough money to supply the table. The older boy used his wages to break up the sod on the 160 acres. But let Mr. Chamberlain tell the rest of the story, which he has signed over his own signature. He says: "I rented 70 acres and hired it put into wheat, thrashed 23 wagonloads for my share. We lived in the granary two years.

"The first of December, 1918, I laid the concrete foundation for a twenty-five hundred dollar house and completed it by the last of January. I have nine head of cattle, fifteen pieces of machinery, seven outbuildings paid for and half interest in a thrashing machine. This is an old grandfather's story, as my son-in-law came with four children from Idaho last March and bought 320 acres C. P. R. irrigated land and we helped him develop 200 acres of it. They can't say around here, 'everybody works but father.'"

Increased His Wealth Six Hundred Fold.

There are more stories of success in Western Canada. There's that of Allan Nicholson of Hazelbridge, Manitoba. In speaking of it he says: "I shall never regret coming to Manitoba. I came here seventeen years ago. I think it was in the spring of 1903. My old home was at Le Mars, Plymouth county, Washington township, Iowa, where I had been farming for a good many years. I had a farm of 248 acres, of which I owned 80 acres and rented 160. When I left in 1903 I sold my equity in the farm for $75.00 per acre. The nearest station to my place was Dalton, and my old neighbors there will remember me very well.

"When I came to Canada I rented three-quarters of a section at South Plympton, near Springfield, Manitoba. After a year or two's experience at renting I bought my present farm of 320 acres, and am now engaged in mixed farming. I have always had good crops since I came here, and some of them have been bumper crops.

"If I went back to the United States today I could take back $5.00 or $6.00 to every $1.00 that I brought into the country. My land today is worth from $75.00 to $85.00 an acre, and in addition to my grain growing I have made a specialty of high-grade Percheron horses, purebred Shorthorn cattle and purebred Berkshire hogs. I have had uniform good luck in connection with my stock, and today I would not sell my farm for a cent less than $30,000.

"The older settlers of Le Mars, Iowa, will remember me very well. I was greatly impressed with the country when I made my first visit here in 1903, and that impression has been here.

"The climate agrees with us all. Before I came here my doctor's bills were something awful. I had no sooner got one paid than I was due for another one. Since we have been in Manitoba $50.00 would pay all our doctor's bills for the last seventeen years.

"I think I am doing my old friends a kindness in letting them know how well I have done since I came here. This is certainly a country of opportunities. I have had no more good luck than falls to the fortune of any ordinary person, and I am satisfied I could never have done as well had I remained in the old home. I shall be pleased at any time to give information to old friends who care to write me about my experiences in this country."

MANURING IN COLD WEATHER

Particularly Advisable to Make Application in Winter, Says Purdue University.

The Purdue university extension department particularly advises application of manure in winter when it contains a great amount of straw and undecomposed matter. The loss of plant food because of the leaching of the manure will be offset by the advantages of winter application. As far as possible coarser manures should be applied to the heavier clay soils, since these will respond in fertility and will be made more mellow and porous.

FOR EVERYBODY

A prominent physician writes in a recent article that there is perhaps not one man who would not need a thorough cleaning of his intestines from time to time, even if his stool seems to be regular. That is why Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine is a remedy for everybody. It cleans intestines perfectly. Its special virtue consists in its overcoming constipation without purging and therefore without weakening. Another remedy which you should have now at home is Triner's Cough Sedative. If you come to the theater or a concert, you find at once that coughs and colds are now in season. That eternal coughing spoils your enjoyment. If all such disturbers knew of Triner's Cough Sedative, they would not torment themselves and molest the rest of the audience. Your druggist and every dealer in medicines keeps Triner's remedies in stock. Joseph Triner Company, 1333-43 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

MANURING IN COLD WEATHER

Particularly Advisable to Make Application in Winter, Says Purdue University.

The Purdue university extension department particularly advises application of manure in winter when it contains a great amount of straw and undecomposed matter. The loss of plant food because of the leaching of the manure will be offset by the advantages of winter application. As far as possible coarser manures should be applied to the heavier clay soils, since these will respond in fertility and will be made more mellow and porous.

MEMORIAL to NURSE CAVELL

THE center of St. Martin's Place is now occupied by tall steel girder turrets on the top of which a crumpled trolley piles narrowly, writes H. Avray Tipping in Country Life (London). Within the palliated enclosure below it there is work and bustle, and solid masonry will soon be appearing above the boarding. The constant stream of passers-by casts in looks of inquiry and expectation on this admirable site which soon will be occupied, worthily and aptly, by the memorial to Nurse Cavell. The preparations for it have already aroused so much public interest that Sir George Frampton, R. A., has very kindly offered the photographs of the first model and of the full-sized and final statuary details for reproduction.

More than four years have now passed by since the German authorities in occupied Belgium committed an act of sheer brutality as stupid as it was inhuman. True, it was one of many, but if not more flagrant, it was one that was certain to obtain more publicity than others. Yet the invaders' barbaric ignorance of the sentiments and spirit of the civilized portions of the globe led them to believe that the killing of Nurse Cavell was merely an ordinary and permissible manifestation of frightfulness which would tend to ease the difficulties of their rule, and cause a merely ephemeral anger in the outside world. Falkenhayn has summed up the policy of the Prussian High Command as an effort "to break the enemy's will to war." Intelligent and capable within their very limited and self-complacent purview, he and his fellows imagined that the drowning, shooting, starving and torturing of civilians would be effective bricks in the building up of their tower of tyranny, and were genuinely surprised to discover them to be mere mud blocks that the torrent of world-wide horror dissolved into slush, bringing down their whole edifice with a crash.

Among the thousands of devoted women who gave themselves up to the alleviation of the sufferings of the wounded of all nations none was more tapable and self-sacrificing than Edith Cavell. Her reputation was established, her fame had spread. Even if a woman wholly bent upon work of charity within enemy lines rendered herself liable through pitifulness to the stern decrees of martial law, not the death sentence, surely, but deportation was adequate as well as wise. Such was the world opinion, but not the German; and at dawn on October 12, 1915, Nurse Cavell was shot. Indignation, long seething and boiling, now burst forth universally in swirling clouds of angry steam. The Entente's "will to war" was strengthened. Neutral sympathy grew nearer to "direct action." The Germans, busy driving nails of victory into the wooden colossus of Hindenburg, alone failed to see that they were driving nails into their own coffin.

The effect in England was strong and instantaneous. Lives by the thousands were being lost. Mourning was spreading over the land. The present was crowded with anxiety, the future with gloom. But there was room for fierce resentment, and no sacrifice of a single life did more to crystallize the resolve to carry through. The hurrying of events, the tax on memory at a time of clustered crisis must not bring oblivion of the deed and forgetfulness of the noble woman. In the capital's midst, imperishable granite must keep alive her memory as a fallen champion of the great and generous band that was keeping alive the spirit of devotion to humanity. Lord Burnham headed the movement, and response to the appeal for funds came quick and free. The rich man's cheque, the poor woman's postage stamp joined to form the ample stream.

Among those who most deeply felt, most bitterly resented the inhuman act was Sir George Frampton, and so moved was he that he came forward with the offer of his unremunerated services. Of course, the generous offer of the distinguished sculptor was gratefully accepted, and it is his work that now approaches completion. The illustrations show to what purpose and with what success he has wrought.

The memorial takes the form of a monument 40 feet high, composed of silver gray granite and standing on an island in the midst of St. Martin's Place, grouping with the church on the right and the National Gallery on the left. In front steps lead up to a space where wreaths and other votive offerings may be laid. Forward from the plinth and main body of the monument just a pedestal on which will stand the statue of Edith Cavell in statuary marble, indicative of purity. The arrival of the ship bearing the great block from Italy through the U-boat troubled seas was long delayed and anxiously expected, but at last it reached its haven safely. The illustration however, is taken from the clay as it finally left Sir George's hands. The attitude is one of simple dignity. The features show calm determination. The gaze of this clergyman's daughter is directed with steadfastness towards the Church of St. Martin—prototype of charity to the poor and suffering. A fine conception has been amply realized. Yet it is almost surpassed by the perfection of the terminal figure, expressive of the whole spirit of humanity. Imperturbable serenity, eternal kindness flow from every line and feature. The one draped arm half enfolds and protects a nestling babe, emblematic of small states and downtrodden races. The other is uplifted in the attitude of benediction. The specialized purpose of the monument—that of a memorial to the devotion of our nurses—is indicated by the red cross that stretches across the robe.

The British lion is trampling the snake of envy and malice, and below and treachery. No long panegyric is set before the statue. The telling, unforgettable words are "Edith Cavell: Brussels: Dawn; October 12, 1915." Boldly lettered on the sides of the monument are "Sacrifice" and "Devotion." "Faithful Unto Death," "Fortitude," "For King and Country" find appropriate place. The monument commemorates a solemn episode of a solemn time. Any approach to the exuberant movement, the dramatic poses of the baroque style, would have been utterly out of place and has been absolutely avoided. The impressiveness of repose, of dignity restful but strong, of form perfect but simple, of sculpture expressive but calm—such has been the aim and achievement of the creator of this most excellent work.

Miss Edith Cavell, an English woman, head of a training school for nurses in Brussels, Belgium, was arrested there by the Germans August 5, 1915, sentenced to death and executed October 12. The charge against her was that she had harbored fugitive British and French soldiers and Belgians of military age and had assisted them to escape from Belgium in order to join the colors. Miss Cavell was the daughter of an English clergyman, the late Rev. Frederick Cavell, vicar of Swardston, near Norwich. She received her training at the London hospital.

Brand Whitlock, American minister at Brussels, made strong efforts to save Miss Cavell from death, but without avail. Late on the night of October 11, he sent by a messenger the following note to the German governor, Baron von der Lancken: "My dear Baron: I am too sick to present my request myself, but I appeal to your generosity of heart to support it and save from death this unhappy woman. Have pity on her!" Minister Whitlock telegraphed October 12 to Ambassador Page in London: "Miss Cavell was sentenced yesterday and executed at 2 o'clock this morning despite our best efforts, continued until the last moment."

Hugh S. Gibson, secretary of the American legation in Brussels, in a memorandum which was forwarded with Mr. Whitlock's report to London and was published with other documents in the case October 22 in Britain, and generally throughout the world, said that Herr Conrad, an official of the German civil branch, gave positive assurance on the 11th that the American legation would be fully informed of the developments in the case.

"Despite these assurances," said Mr. Gibson, "we made repeated inquiries that day, the last one at 6:30 p. m. Mr. Conrad then stated that sentence had not been pronounced and specifically renewed his previous assurances that he would not fail to inform us as soon as there was any news. At 8:30 it was learned from an outside source that sentence had been passed in the afternoon, before the last conversation with Mr. Conrad, and that the execution would take place during the night."

Mr. Gibson, accompanied by Mr. Dehavan, counselor of the American legation, and the Spanish minister to Belgium, went to Baron von der Lancken's headquarters and pleaded earnestly with him for delay in carrying out the sentence. The baron said that the military governor was the supreme authority and that an appeal from his decision could only be carried to the emperor. The military governor in a conference with the baron said he had acted only after mature deliberation and that he considered the death penalty imperative.

Miss Cavell was tried by a court-martial with others accused of the same offense and was shot in the prison of St. Gilles at 2 o'clock in the morning by a squad of soldiers. Those who saw her before and at the time of her execution said that she met her death bravely. She acknowledged at the trial that she had helped soldiers to escape, but there seems to be nothing on record to show that she had been guilty of spying.

In view of all the circumstances and of the fact, announced in Minister Whitlock's report to Ambassador Page, that she had nursed German officers and soldiers, the execution of Miss Cavell aroused great indignation, not only in Great Britain but in neutral countries. Services attended by many distinguished persons were held in St. Paul's cathedral, London, October 29, in memory of the dead nurse and steps were taken to erect a monument in her honor.

Dr. Alfred F. M. Zimmermann, German under-secretary of foreign affairs, issued a long statement, October 24, justifying the execution of Miss Cavell on the ground that she was at the head of "a well thought out, worldwide conspiracy to render the most valuable services to the enemy to the disadvantage of our army."

The execution of Miss Cavell, according to Prof. J. H. Morgan, a noted British jurist, was not perhaps, the most revolting of the innumerable outrages committed by the German army, but it was certainly the most callous and the most authoritative. Hundreds of women and young girls were outraged by German officers and then, many were shot, and others burnt alive. But what distinguishes the case of Miss Cavell—not forgetting the singular nobility of her character—from these obscure tragedies is the fact that, owing to the presence of the vigilant and high-minded minister of a neutral state, the veil has been lifted upon the whole proceedings from their inception to their mournful conclusion in the courtyard of the prison of St. Gilles, and the world has had revealed to it in the most lurid light the sinister character of German "justice." He says: "When it is said—and it may be admitted—that Miss Cavell was guilty of an offence according to military law in harboring British and Belgians and assisting their escape, let the reader reflect from what kind of fate it was she was seeking to save them. The noble woman was condemned and executed on a charge of having offended against military law. I know nothing more tragically ironical than that the power which has broken all laws, human and divine, should seek to justify the condemnation of Edith Cavell with all the pomp of a tribunal of justice. While thousands of ravishers and spoilers go free, one woman who had spent her life in ministries to such as were sick and afflicted is handed over to the executioner. Truly there has been no such trial since Barabbas was released and Christ led forth to the hill of Calvary."

SUFFERED TEN YEARS FROM INDIGESTION

Trouble Gone, Appetite Strong, and Eats Anything Without Distress.

"I had a case of catarrh and indigestion of ten years' standing. I had been treated by the best medical men in Michigan. When I commenced taking Milks Emulsion, I was in bed. I improved so fast that I kept the neighbors wondering. I am now up and working every day. My cough is gone. My appetite is great, and I can eat anything without hurting me."
 —H. D. Lovelee, Rockford, Mich.

Indigestion is seldom cured by "helping" the stomach digest food. Digestives, like physic pills, usually make slaves of the stomach and bowels. Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day. It produces remarkable results in colds, coughs and bronchial asthma.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children. No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 50c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

KEYS—THEIR USE AND ABUSE

Concerning the Inventions of Locksmiths and the Disadvantages of Being Locked Out.

The key is an acknowledgment of man's depravity. If every man respected his neighbor's goods and privacy, we should not be burdened with carrying keys, in bags or pockets, hunting for them in a panic, and frequently losing or mislaying them. We have the care of a door key, an office key, a trunk key; a safety-box key (if we are coupon-cutters); our locker key, if we are sports, and automobile and garage keys, if we own these luxuries. Keys naturally multiply with our outward prosperity. Diogenes, living in a tub, was a happy man, as far as the responsibility of keys went, and although some people might prefer more roomy apartments for a permanency, at least Diogenes wasn't obliged to turn his toga pockets inside out in a vain attempt to locate his key—when returning to the tub after a brief sojourn at the club.

Key-rings, upon which you can concentrate your responsibilities, are sometimes desirable; on the other hand, if lost, the whole bunch must be replaced. I consider the mode of the public bath frequenter, that of wearing the bath-house key on a rubber ring around the neck, preferable to any other method. It absolutely cannot be lost, unless the bathier is eaten by a shark.—Esther G. Babson, in Boston Transcript.

England's "Mad Poet."

The name "Mad Poet" was applied to Nathaniel Lee, an English dramatist who was born in Hatfield in 1683. He was the son of a Presbyterian minister of Hertfordshire who conformed to the Reformation. He was educated at Westminster school and Trinity college, Cambridge. For a time he was on the stage, but later devoted himself to writing tragedies, of which he produced about a dozen. His first successful play was the "Rival Queens" (1681), known afterwards as "Alexander the Great," in which occurs the famous line, "When Greek joined Greek then was the tug of war." He collaborated with Dryden in "The Duke of Guise," (1682). Lee became insane in 1684, and was confined in the asylum for five years, hence he was styled "The Mad Poet." He died in a fit of intoxication at London in 1692.

The Can't Clog Rotary Hog Feeder

FARMERS! Do you realize what a self feeder means to you? It means HEALTHIER HOGS, LESS WORK and SAVES FEED. Agricultural authorities have proven that hogs fed on dry feed grow fatter, have finer flesh and produce more pork than those fed the old way. The hog who gets dry feed from a CAN'T CLOG FEEDER is bound to eat slowly and chew his food so thoroughly that he digests it. That keeps him healthier and put fine flesh on his BACK instead of soft flesh on his BELLY. He will grow 25% faster than one fed the old way. Using CAN'T CLOG FEEDER will keep the quality of your pork up, and prevent much sickness, in addition to stopping WASTE from spoiled feed. For ECONOMY and PROFITS it is something every hog raiser should have.

LEONARD WOOD
For President

This is one time your vote means something

NO primary in the history of Illinois has meant more to all the people of the United States than the Presidential Preference Primary this year.

The names of two men are before you, and you are asked to make your choice between them — which of them you think should be President of the United States.

YOU are asked to do this, not by your vote for delegates, but by recording your judgment so that the country may know what you think. Stripped of all else, this is the meaning of the Illinois Primary this time, so far as the country is concerned.

Now stop and think what manner of man should have your voice in such a time as this — perhaps the most trying time in our history — the world seething with unrest, suspicion, bitterness—a time of danger. Is it not true that we need a man in whose steadiness of purpose, in whose steadfastness of mind, and in whose courage we can trust? Do we want a politician merely — a man of compromise — or do we want a man as much like Lincoln and Roosevelt as we can get? A man fearless and honest; a man whose character stands out as a strong, earnest, understandable American. A man who has done things. A man who is unafraid. A man who knows what he wants to do and then does it.

If you agree with this — then you will give your voice and vote for Leonard Wood because you know what kind of man he is and what he has done. He is more than a soldier — he is an executive; an administrator; an organizer and a statesman. He has proved his constructive ability. As Governor-General of Cuba and later in the Philippines, he directed the acts of hundreds of thousands of human beings, made them happy and orderly, built model schools, established new hospitals, abolished profiteering, developed industry, rehabilitated agriculture, established justice in the courts, and out of chaos developed in a few years one of the contented, prosperous nations of the world. No less a man could have done these things.

There are other good men and true, but there's no other man before the people who measures up to the need of the time as does Leonard Wood. He is a Republican. He is a man of the people and for the people—all the people.

This is once, at least, that your voice at the primary will be heeded. This is one time your vote means something. Do not be misled; do not be afraid to speak your mind.
