Circular Glass Taking Place of Celluloid Film in New Patent

BUT THIS WAS 20 YEARS AGO

E. B. Millard Make a Proposition to Furnish City With Electric Lights

The following items were clipped from the Genoa Journal of May 16, 1901, the remarks in parenthesis being our own:

John Hutchison has taken a position in the Burlington creamery with Henry Rafferty.

Dr. T. N. Austin and Charles Godfrey were over from Burlington last week. The doctor is thinking of locating here.

William Hepburn died at his home north-east of Genoa, Sunday, May 11. Funeral services were held at the Noy church, Rev. Smith of Munday officiating.

Harvey Burroughs is keeping the dust down on Genoa streets with a sprinkling wagon. He pays the city one dollar a day for water.

J. B. Smith is advertising as an upholsterer. (He later went into the saloon business and found it not quite as "soft" as good upholstering.)

The difficulties involved in the manipulation of a long celluloid film have prevented the extensive use of motion picture photography by amateurs. To avoid this Leo Kamm has invented a camera in which a circular glass takes the place of the celluloid film.

E. B. Millard has made a proposition to furnish the city with electric lights.

M. E. CHURCH

That which promises to be an exceptional and rare treat will be given at the church Sunday evening in the stereopticon lecture, "The Indians of the Southwest."

There has been a popular notion that the Indian population was decreasing. While this may be true of fullbloods, the number of mixed bloods is on the increase. Of late years the birth rate has surpassed the death rate with the government interesting itself in campaigns for better housing, better medical attention, better care of Indian babies, and with missionaries taking to the reservations the Gospel of soap, sanitation and salvation, the increase of population is bound to continue. The lecture deals with the Egypt of America, the cliff dwellers, ruins of ancient dwellings, the cliff dwellers, ruins of dwellings and relics of ancient days; Santa Fe, New Mexico, the centre of modern, ancient and prehistoric attractions; old mission churches; oldest church with wonderful paintings; relics of Spanish days; Pueblo, New Mexico, the Indians, their homes and farms, habits and customs; work of art; their religion and festival; travels in New Mexico; the 33000 Navajo Indians; the old Spanish missions of California; these wonderful shrines and the Indian life centered about them. This is without doubt the most beautiful, helpful and instructive lecture in our course. A silver offering will be taken.

One of our chaplains from Camp Grant will have charge of the morning service.

EVEN IN ZION

As the result of an investigation now being conducted in Lake county, three Zion City residents were placed under arrest last Friday charged with purchasing and selling eggs without candling them. They had also failed to obtain a state certificate. When arraigned in court they were found guilty and fined $15 and costs each.

FARMERS UP IN ARMS

Kane County Men Condemn the Tuberculin Test for Cattle

Elgin News: "Illinois, in the last twenty-five years, has become the dumping grounds for tubercular cattle."

"The tuberculin injected into the cattle is making more tubercular cattle than ever existed before."

"We need a good cattle expert for every township, to advise the farmers about the stock."

"A bottle of whiskey will do harm to no man, as long as he doesn't pull the cork; just as harm comes when the whiskey cork is pulled, so does harm come when the cork of the tuberculin bottle is pulled."

These were some of the verbal shrapnel fired last Thursday at the indignation meeting of farmers, held at the C. E. Beverly farm, East Elgin, called to take some action relative to condemnation of cattle, intended for sale, which farmers firmly believe are free of tuberculosis.

Frank Dunning, who called the meeting, stated that a committee would be appointed, empowered to take such action with state authorities, as might relieve the situation.

"There is one cow in that herd," Mr. Dunning said, pointing to a herd of thirty-two which has been passed upon by the veterinarians, "which is actually tubercular, and which the veterinarian passed as O. K."

"I intend to show that that particular cow is tubercular, and to show that such mistakes frequently occur."

"If the state veterinarian, Mr. Peters, does not come to this meeting, I shall remove the tags from the cows of that herd, and do as I please with them," was the threat of Mr. Dunning, who is a prominent cattle dealer of Dundee. Tags are placed on examined cattle.

In the herd of thirty-two are seventeen which were marked "bad." It was planned to show the gathering the apparent excellence of the members of this herd, and to let them select, if possible, those cows which are considered tubercular.

"One herd of fifty-four had forty-eight condemned, and all that ailed the forty eight was imperfections of the viscera, or the liver; another herd of fifty-seven resulted in the condemnation of forty-three," was the gist of the comments overheard.

Indignation appeared largely centered on State Veterinarian Peters. Mr. Dunning had invited Mr. Peters as well as Governor Len Small, to be present.

D. B. Ellis, local attorney, and V. S. Lumley of Woodstock, were scheduled to address the meeting.

Among those present were: Chas Kerber, Frank Wartles of McHenry; Mr. Tredup, Plato Center; Dr. Tyler; William Ablemann.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Next Sunday, during morning service, our new pastor, Rev. J. C. Hoffmeister, who was sent here by our synod, will be installed by Rev. H. Walf, his predecessor. We kindly ask all of our friends to attend this meeting and help fill the church. We also wish to announce herewith that Rev. Hoffmeister now resides among us and we now have English Sunday school every Sunday at 9:30 a. m. and preaching at 11:30.

A special collection will be taken at close of the services.

Look for announcement of English service in next issue of this paper.

CEMENT GRANT ROAD SOON

The Grant Highway from Winnebago county to the McHenry county line will be cemented this summer under the statewide good roads plan is the word brought from Springfield by Representative W. L. Pierce, who has the word from Governor Small that bids will soon be let for this section of the highway, connecting with the Winnebago county cement construction west of Cherry Valley and running to a point east of Garden Prairie.

ECKHARDT QUILTS STATE JOB

William G. Eckhardt, former DeKalb county agricultural advisor, who has been engaged the last year as director of the grain marketing department of the Illinois Agricultural Association, has resigned the latter position. His resignation was announced at Springfield on Tuesday by the executive committee in session there. His resignation was accepted and his successor will probably be named at the June meeting of the committee.

DIRECTOR MILLER EXPLAINS ACTION

Defends Governor Small in His Attitude Regarding Road Construction

TRYING TO SAVE STATE MONEY

Will Not Build Road's "Regardless of Cost" as Some Interests Advocate

Director C. R. Miller of the Department of Public Works at Springfield, has addressed a letter to every newspaper in the state, in an effort to get before the people the proper information in regard to the highway building program now being carried out. In it he says:

There is one great problem confronting this administration and the people of our state; the completion of our good roads program. This issue is simple.

There are interests—selfish interests, we are convinced—operating throughout Illinois. They demand that we go ahead with the building of roads "regardless of cost."

There is no man in the state more anxious to pull Illinois out of the mud at the earliest possible moment than Gov. Small. But he is determined, in spending the people's money, to get a dollar's worth of hard roads for every dollar spent. As he recently remarked, "I do not believe the farmers of Illinois should be compelled to exchange 100,000 bushels of corn for one mile of hard-surfaced road."

To follow the program of these interests means that many communities—perhaps yours—will not get the hard roads which have been allotted to them—it means the building of a "minimum mileage at a maximum cost."

In our judgment there is no question as to which program is most advisable, most desired, by the whole people of Illinois. And the administration program can be carried out with aid and co-operation of the fair-minded press of the state.

On the other hand the interests are most active. Their propaganda is flooding the state. Their emissaries are spreading their gospel of "build build at once, regardless of cost."

Paid, professional press agents are at work. They are deluging newspaper offices with carefully prepared articles seeking to break down the effort of the administration to bring prices to a level where good roads may be constructed at an equitable cost.

The methods followed are questionable, if not dishonorable. Facts are garbled. Much of the "information" offered is without any foundation whatsoever, and some of it is absolute falsehood.

As an example: I have on my desk a sheaf of "press stories" on the subject of good roads work in Illinois. It is "copy" sent out to Illinois editors, and prepared by a paid press agent who is hired with instructions: "Educate the people to demand the building of roads at once, 'regardless of cost.'"

This particular press agent, for example, in an effort to mislead editors, as well as the people, and to secure publication for his garbled and untrue statements, seeks to convey the impression that he is speaking for this administration. In a confidential note to the editors, attached to one of his stories, he says:

"It is the desire of state officials and good roads boosters to rightly inform those who do not realize this situation."

I feel compelled, as a result of this method of misrepresentation, to say that neither the governor, myself, or others connected with the administration, ever heard of this press agent until he commenced his effort to embarrass our program which has as its basic principle the securing of fair prices for road materials and construction. The personal identification of his employers is not here essential. Suffice to say, he cares not—nor do his employers—about building roads; he is interested solely in letting contracts, and selling road material.

And his mission is most dangerous to the best interests of the state. Publication of his propaganda can never promote sane and successful good road construction. Its circulation tends only to keep Illinois in the mud, instead of pulling it out.

We are succeeding in our efforts to obtain "maximum mileage at mini-

FIRST GAME DISASTROUS

Rockford Slips One Over on the Genoa Nationals Sunday

The Genoa Nationals were defeated last Sunday in the initial game of the season. The Republican does not intend to make excuses for the team during the summer, whenever it suffers defeat, but in this case, the fans are entitled to an explanation. Manager Sell realized that he should not take on a fast team for the opener, and with this in mind had arranged with the Rockford Specials, a good amateur team from Rockford. At the last minute, it was found that this team could not be assembled, so a team composed of several semi-professionals was sent over. It was all right with the local manager. He knew that he was putting his men up against a hard proposition, but he staged the game just the same rather than disappoint the fans who had braved the chilly winds to attend the game. The local team proved up well and there are predictions that Genoa will be leading the amateurs in this neck o' the woods before the season is far advanced.

PHILATHEA CLASS MEETING

The Philathea class of the M. E. Sunday school met at the home of Mrs. John Sell on Friday evening, May 13.

The social committees for May and June being changed, the former will act next month and have the picnic for the mothers.

The class voted to purchase new collection plates for use at the church.

It was also voted to have a strawberry festival to be given next month and a special collection being appointed to have charge of same.

After the business meeting various guessing games were enjoyed.

A delicious lunch was served at small tables after which those at each table were asked to perform an original stunt.

Mrs. H. G. Wright of DeKalb and Mrs. Frank Wylde of Genoa were guests.

num cost." The backbone of high-priced road construction has been broken. Cost levels are lower, as evidenced by the recent letter of Kane county contracts at a saving of $40,000 on a fifteen mile stretch of bond issue roads, and the average reduction of 17 per cent in grading and 11 per cent in bridge contracts.

But the aid of the fair-minded press of the state is needed if this success is to continue. We are not asking for the suppression of fact. We are simply seeking to protect the people of our state from the effect of inspired propaganda.

From time to time the Department of Public Works and Buildings will furnish you with facts concerning the development of the road building program. This information will come to you over my signature as director, thereby preventing the possibility of any propagandist posing as spokesman of this administration.

We will be very glad to have your counsel at any and all times. Our only desire is to serve as well as we may be able the whole people of Illinois.

ORDER COAL NOW

Burlington Road Secnds Illinois Central's Warning

Division freight agent, E. A. Tuttle of the Burlington sends out the following letter to local agents:

It has been brought to our attention that there is a tendency on the part of some consumers to withhold placing orders for coal on the theory that there is to be some general reduction in coal rates.

No doubt, revisions in specific rates will be made from time to time, but so far as we are aware there is no move on foot in the direction of a general reduction and you should make it plain to all consumers that no general reduction in coal rates is contemplated.

Wherever possible you should use your influence to promote the summer storage of coal, for unless there is a substantial movement during the summer period, we will, undoubtedly face a serious coal shortage next fall and winter, with the attendant difficulties on the part of receivers in securing their coal supply, when the weather makes their demands heavy and interferes more or less with the handling by the carriers.

Byers pleaded guilty to the crime Monday and was sentenced at once. He also confessed to various other crimes of a like nature, and altho only 24 years of age, he has been in the confidence game nearly eight years, according to his own confession.

FIRST APPEAL OF THE MOTOR CLUB

Requests Commissioners to Scarify, Resurface and Maintain Road

COMMUNITIES BACK OF REQUEST

Genoa-Sycamore Road Is Used More Than Any Road In The County

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Genoa Good Roads and Motor Club the resolutions below were adopted. The resolutions, without doubt, reflect the sentiment of the people of Genoa and Sycamore and the thousands of others who use this stretch of highway during the year.

The resolutions follow:

WHEREAS, the public highway extending from and connecting the cities of Genoa and Sycamore, known as the Genoa-Sycamore road, is one of the most travelled and heaviest duty roads in DeKalb County and the State of Illinois, and

WHEREAS, the said road, for practically all of its eight miles, is now in bad condition for safe and comfortable travel thereupon, and

WHEREAS, it is evident that said road can not be kept in a smooth, even, satisfactory and safe condition without a fixed and continuous policy and program of maintenance;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the GENOA GOOD ROADS AND MOTOR CLUB that a recommendation be made to the Highway Commissioners of the Towns of Genoa and Sycamore that they, the said Commissioners unite and join in the re-leveling, re-surfacing and permanent maintenance of said highway between the said cities, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a suggestion be respectfully made to said Commissioners that they use a scarifier and heavy roller for the leveling and re-surfacing of said road, and that, after the said road has been so leveled and re-surfaced, the said commissioners work out between them a fair and equitable system for the daily patrol, dragging and maintenance of said highway.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be, by the Secretary of this Club, transmitted to the Commissioners of Highways of the Towns of Genoa and Sycamore, and to the County Superintendent of Highways of DeKalb County.

AN AWFUL DEATH

DeKalb Woman Attempts to Start Fire with Kerosene

As a result of an attempt to hurry along a slow kitchen fire with aid of kerosene, about 6:30 Wednesday morning, Mrs. Victor Hahto of DeKalb was fatally burned, her young son nearly met death by suffocation, her husband is seriously burned by fire, and her two daughters were compelled to jump from a second story window to avoid the fire. Mrs. Hahto, who was badly burned was taken to the hospital immediately after the fire department arrived. She was terribly burned about the face and body and lingered until a few minutes after ten o'clock. The husband's hands are severely burned, while the little son is about recovered from his experience. One of the older daughters, Rose, has several injuries about her body from leaping from the second story to a large pile of boards below.

THREE YEAR OLD WASHED ASHORE

Mrs. Dingman Tells of Adventure of Childhood When Father's Ship Was Wrecked.

RELATES LATER EXPERIENCE

Declares That the Way Tanlac Restored Her Health is More Remarkable Than Anything She Has Ever Had Happen to Her.

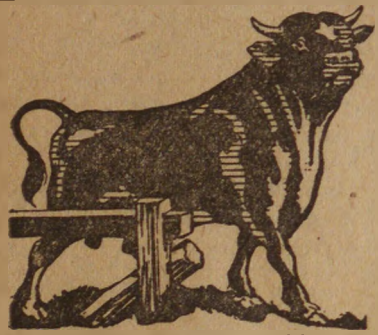

"I've had some remarkable experiences in my life, but none more wonderful than the way Tanlac overcame my troubles and made me gain twenty pounds," was the statement of Mrs. Christina K. Dingman, 1216 Alice St., Oakland, Calif. One of the experiences to which Mrs. Dingman refers is well known to her friends. When a child of three years, accompanying her father, a noted sea captain, on an ocean trip, the vessel was wrecked, but she was almost miraculously saved. The small box into which she was put being washed ashore. According to her statement, Mrs. Dingman enjoyed the best of health until three years ago when she began to suffer from a bad form of stomach trouble and later from rheumatism. How she was completely restored to health is best told in her own words:

"Nobody knows how I suffered for the past three years. No matter how carefully I ate I would endure agonies afterwards from smothering and sinking spells. Sometimes they were so severe I would fall to the floor and would have to be carried to bed. I went for days at a time without eating, as I dreaded the misery I knew would follow, no matter what I ate. Then rheumatism set in and my shoulders and arms hurt me so I couldn't comb my hair. My back felt like it was breaking in two.

"I was almost in the depths of despair when I began on Tanlac, but this grand medicine has made me a well and happy woman. I'm not even troubled with constipation now, thanks to the Laxative Tablets, which are far superior to anything of the kind I ever tried. It seems almost too good to be true, but here I am in the best of health and spirits after I had given up hope, and I'll always praise Tanlac for it."

Priscilla began to get her bearings, finding herself in that sordid room where she had witnessed the meeting of Leonora and Inez, beside the insistent body of the drug fiend, on the night of the storm. She reviewed face after face known to her through the associations of her dreams; English Eddie, heavy, florid and flashy; Charlie the Coke, ghastly of face, shifty-eyed, with his frail, racked body and spasmodic gestures; Inez with elbows planted on the table, a sullen face clamped between two fists; at her side, the Nut, to whose presence nothing of his uptown elegance adhered but the handwork of his excellent tailor, laboring under the burden of a new part, self-assumed, his bottle neck shoulders wearing with poor grace the mantle of Red Carnehan, master of gunmen; three or four others, remembered as lesser limbs of Red's gang.

The company sat in silence, staring at Nora with unfriendly, inquisitive eyes. Precisely so had Leonora on that occasion faced a prejudiced jury of her kind. Only the setting was slightly different, the company detached, its presiding spirit gone beyond recall.

The pause lasted longer than the patience of Inez. She sat up suddenly and waved an extravagant arm, mimicking the manner of bally-hoo before a circus side show.

"Ladeez and gempnum!" she proclaimed in a flat professional bawl: "I have the honor to present to you tonight the only certified Two-in-One in captivity—Miss Priscilla Maine, the latest fashion hint from Pitt' avenue, and plain Nora O'More of this club. Take a good look, ladeez and gempnum, at this peerless freak, the only livin' Two of a Kind. A single price of admission pays for both—one dime, the tenth part of a dollar—and your money back if y'aint satisfied!"

IV. RESURRECTION.

Somebody chuckled hoarsely. Chairs were shifted. Asides were exchanged in audible murmurs. A contentuous voice declared loudly: "It's Nora, all right, all right!" The Nut bent his mouth to mumble into the ear of Inez something apparently in the nature of a remonstrance. She heard him with a surly face, growled a response which seemed to irritate him exceedingly, and turned scornfully away. English Eddie alone changed neither her pose nor the moderately dubious expression with which she was regarding Priscilla.

The latter, drawing upon an unexpected store of latent spirit, moved forward to the edge of the table.

"My name is Priscilla Maine," she uttered with difficulty. "I—I—"

"My Gaud!" Inez commented dramatically—"she admits it!"

"Please!" Priscilla pleaded—"I can hardly speak—give me something to drink—water."

English Eddie sat forward sharply and squirted siphon water into a glass. "A drop of brandy, dearie?"

Ladeez and gempnum!" She proclaimed in a Flat, Professional Bawl.

she suggested in a tone not unkind. Priscilla shook her head. "You'd better," the woman insisted; "you need it." She tilted a bottle over the glass, coloring the water with the liquor. Despairing of getting what she wanted, too thirsty to permit of long hesitation, Priscilla put the glass to her lips and drank. "Everybody sit tight," Inez warned; "the big bunk act is about to commence."

Priscilla lowered the glass, nodded her thanks to the English woman, and with something remotely resembling defiance again confronted her captors. "I am Priscilla Maine," she stated for the second time. "What do you want with me?"

"Only one thing more," Priscilla insisted, as if she had not heard. "I must have my things back—my suit, my blouse, my jewelry."

"Hello!" Harry sat forward, eyeing her sharply. "Thought you looked different. What's become of your clothes?"

Priscilla's nod indicated Inez. "She stole them from me. Make her give them back."

The Nut turned to Inez, scowling blackly. "Give them back—"

"Yes, I will—not. I got a bromide enlargement of me beln' such a slimp."

"You'll do as I say," Harry insisted darkly. "I'm runnin' this show—"

"You are—like h—"

"The girl's defiance found an echo in a new voice at the back of the room. "Like h— is right!"

There was a concerted turning of startled heads.

The door had opened noiselessly. It framed the figure of a man wearing a grubby red sweater hooked up at either hip to permit his hands to remain in the pockets of a pair of tattered, frayed and stained khaki trousers. His pose was rudely nonchalant. A cap of gray cloth pulled forward shadowed his eyes; but the face stamped with an evil, merciless grin, was unmistakable.

After a moment's relish of the dramatic sensation effected by his unheralded resurrection, Red Carnehan slouched in, closed the door with a click of his heel, and put his shoulders to it.

"I'll take a smarter guy'n you are or ever will be, Harry," he asserted in a blotted voice of arrogance, "to boss this bunch as long's I'm on top of the map."

V. THE HAUNTED MAN. Stupefied silence held till shattered by a laugh of uncouth joy. "Red!" Inez cried, jumping up and overturning her chair. "Red Carnehan! My Gaud, Red, you've come back!"

wit enough to refrain from throwing a look of gratitude to this new-found ally.

"Ah, for Gaud's sake!" Inez protested in disgust. "You make me weary. If you think you can trust that double-faced cat any further you can see her—"

"I don't ask you to trust me," Priscilla explained—"only to give me time to rest in quiet and comfort—not here—before we go into our plans. And you need not trust me. I'm willing that one of you shall come with me and see that I play fair. You can trust Addie . . ."

"That's perfectly fair," the English-woman insisted. "I'll go with Nora, and you know me well enough to know she won't lift'er 'and without me seein' it."

"All right," the Nut conceded. "Take Addie home with you and give me your word you'll be ready to see me at eleven tomorrow—"

Inez flounced her feet in a rage. "You pack of poor boobies!" she shrieked. "Can't you see she's only fram'in' to slip you the double-cross—and you all help'n her!"

"Only one thing more," Priscilla insisted, as if she had not heard. "I must have my things back—my suit, my blouse, my jewelry."

"Hello!" Harry sat forward, eyeing her sharply. "Thought you looked different. What's become of your clothes?"

Priscilla's nod indicated Inez. "She stole them from me. Make her give them back."

The Nut turned to Inez, scowling blackly. "Give them back—"

"Yes, I will—not. I got a bromide enlargement of me beln' such a slimp."

"You'll do as I say," Harry insisted darkly. "I'm runnin' this show—"

"You are—like h—"

"The girl's defiance found an echo in a new voice at the back of the room. "Like h— is right!"

There was a concerted turning of startled heads.

The door had opened noiselessly. It framed the figure of a man wearing a grubby red sweater hooked up at either hip to permit his hands to remain in the pockets of a pair of tattered, frayed and stained khaki trousers. His pose was rudely nonchalant. A cap of gray cloth pulled forward shadowed his eyes; but the face stamped with an evil, merciless grin, was unmistakable.

After a moment's relish of the dramatic sensation effected by his unheralded resurrection, Red Carnehan slouched in, closed the door with a click of his heel, and put his shoulders to it.

"I'll take a smarter guy'n you are or ever will be, Harry," he asserted in a blotted voice of arrogance, "to boss this bunch as long's I'm on top of the map."

V. THE HAUNTED MAN. Stupefied silence held till shattered by a laugh of uncouth joy. "Red!" Inez cried, jumping up and overturning her chair. "Red Carnehan! My Gaud, Red, you've come back!"

her out if I had! It wasn't my fault—I swear to Gaud it was all an accident!"

"But, Red—you're off your nut!" Addie reasoned. "Nora couldn't be dead end here at the same time—"

"She is dead! Didn't I see her drown meself? Gaud! I ain't seen nothin' since but her face when she went under, I ain't heard nothin' but her beggin' me not to . . ."

He stammered into incoherence, his chin sank upon his breast, he glared at Priscilla with the look of a lunatic. Abruptly he roused, wild of eye, features working insanely, and threw off the hands of Addie and the Nut.

"Lemme loose!" he screamed. "Lemme loose! I croaked her once, but if once ain't enough, I'll croak her again and make it sure, the—"

Epithets unspeakably vile fell like toads from his slaving mouth. He tugged at a pocket of his trousers—and suddenly an automatic pistol was wavering in his hand. With a choking cry, Priscilla cowered, throwing both hands out to shield her face. The Nut and Addie fell upon Carnehan bodily. For a moment it seemed that they might be able to hold him. But he fought with the strength of a maniac. The hold of the English woman was broken first, she was thrown off shrieking for help. The Nut clung desperately to Carnehan's pistol hand, striving to wrest the weapon from him. Then others closed in, Carnehan became the core of a swaying, writhing tangle of bodies.

It was, Priscilla thought, like looking through a peep hole into hell. They fought like wild beasts in a pit, like beasts they growled, yelped, snarled, snapped, howled, roared. A haze of dust, beaten up from the unswept floor by scuffling, shifting, stamping feet, hung in the gas light.

The pistol exploded with a detonation ear-splitting in that confined space.

Priscilla, witless with fright, felt herself seized and urged toward the door.

"Beat it, child—get out of this as quick's you can! I seen from the very first you wasn't Nora!"

She recognized the accent of English Eddie.

In one lithe bound, a crouching shape of malice with a pale face of evil and blazing eyes planted itself before them and blocked the way. "Keep away from that door!" Inez screamed. "She shan't get away, she shan't! I'll rip her eyes out first!"

She darted clawing hands at Priscilla's face. The bulk of the English-woman came between them. In panic Priscilla pawed frantically at the door, swung it wide, stumbled out, hindered blindly into the wall where the hallway turned, cannoned off, and somehow found herself before a second door.

An aged Chinaman was guarding it. Dully she remembered having seen him before and wondered would he seek to hinder her. But he seemed unaware of her. He was eyeing impassively the door, which, she discovered, was quivering under a rain of blows on the other side.

Grasping instinctively at the truth, she thrust the guardian unceremoniously aside and began to fumble with the bolts.

Acting the Part.

Smith visited his friend Jones, the playwright, and observed with regret that Jones treated his wife shamefully. So he said to Jones:

"Why do you talk so roughly to your wife?" "I hate doing it, but I'm obliged to," returned Jones. "How are you obliged to?" "You see, I am writing a tragedy and I have to keep myself in a proper frame of mind. You should see how I fluff with her when I'm writing comedy!"—Houston Post.

They sat on a bench—he and she. The moonlight was streaming down upon them, and the band was playing sweetly, "One Sweet Kiss and Then Two Others."

"Gracious, Archie!" she exclaimed, that evening, when they reached home—her home. "There is green paint all over the back of your trousers. That bench we were sitting on must have been newly painted!" There wasn't any on her dress.

How They Have Been Endured and How Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Experience of a Providence Woman

Providence, R. I.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female trouble and backache. It began just after my baby was born, and I did the best I could about getting my work done, but I had awful bearing-down pains so I could not stand on my feet. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the good it was doing other women, and I have got dandy results from it and will always recommend it. You can use these facts as a testimonial if you wish." HERO PIPELESS FURNACE

MADE IN SYCAMORE

Special Sale Beginning April 25th and ending May 31st $149.50

Hero Air Washer-Humidifier System

All of the air in your home is constantly passing through the vapor arising from over 500 square inches of water surface. The air is thoroughly washed and purified and all dust, dirt, lint, fibres, odors, and gases removed; large quantities of sediment being filtered from the air.

The evaporation of from 20 to 40 quarts of water daily into the atmosphere of your home creates a natural, healthful humidity, making the atmosphere as refreshing and invigorating as outdoors.

Users are enthusiastic and after you have used this system and have enjoyed deep draughts of pure moist air, so soothing and beneficial to the throat and lungs, you will become an enthusiast also.

This system is no fad, freak or exaggerated selling feature. Like many gifts from Science, it is simple yet revolutionary. So simple, that it should have been in use for ages; yet only eight years old.

Consider carefully that there is a reason for the epidemics that occur every fall and winter. It is because the average American home is a breeding place for disease, especially those of the throat and lungs when the home is tightly closed in cold weather. Startling isn't it?

To Prove the Claims We Make for our "Air Washer-Humidifier System" We quote, The United States Fuel Administration advertised broadcast during the coal shortage as follows:

"65 degrees of temperature in air sufficiently moistened (humidified) imparts the same sensation of warmth to our bodies as 72 degrees of temperature in a room filled with dry air."

Engineering Department, University of Illinois, states:

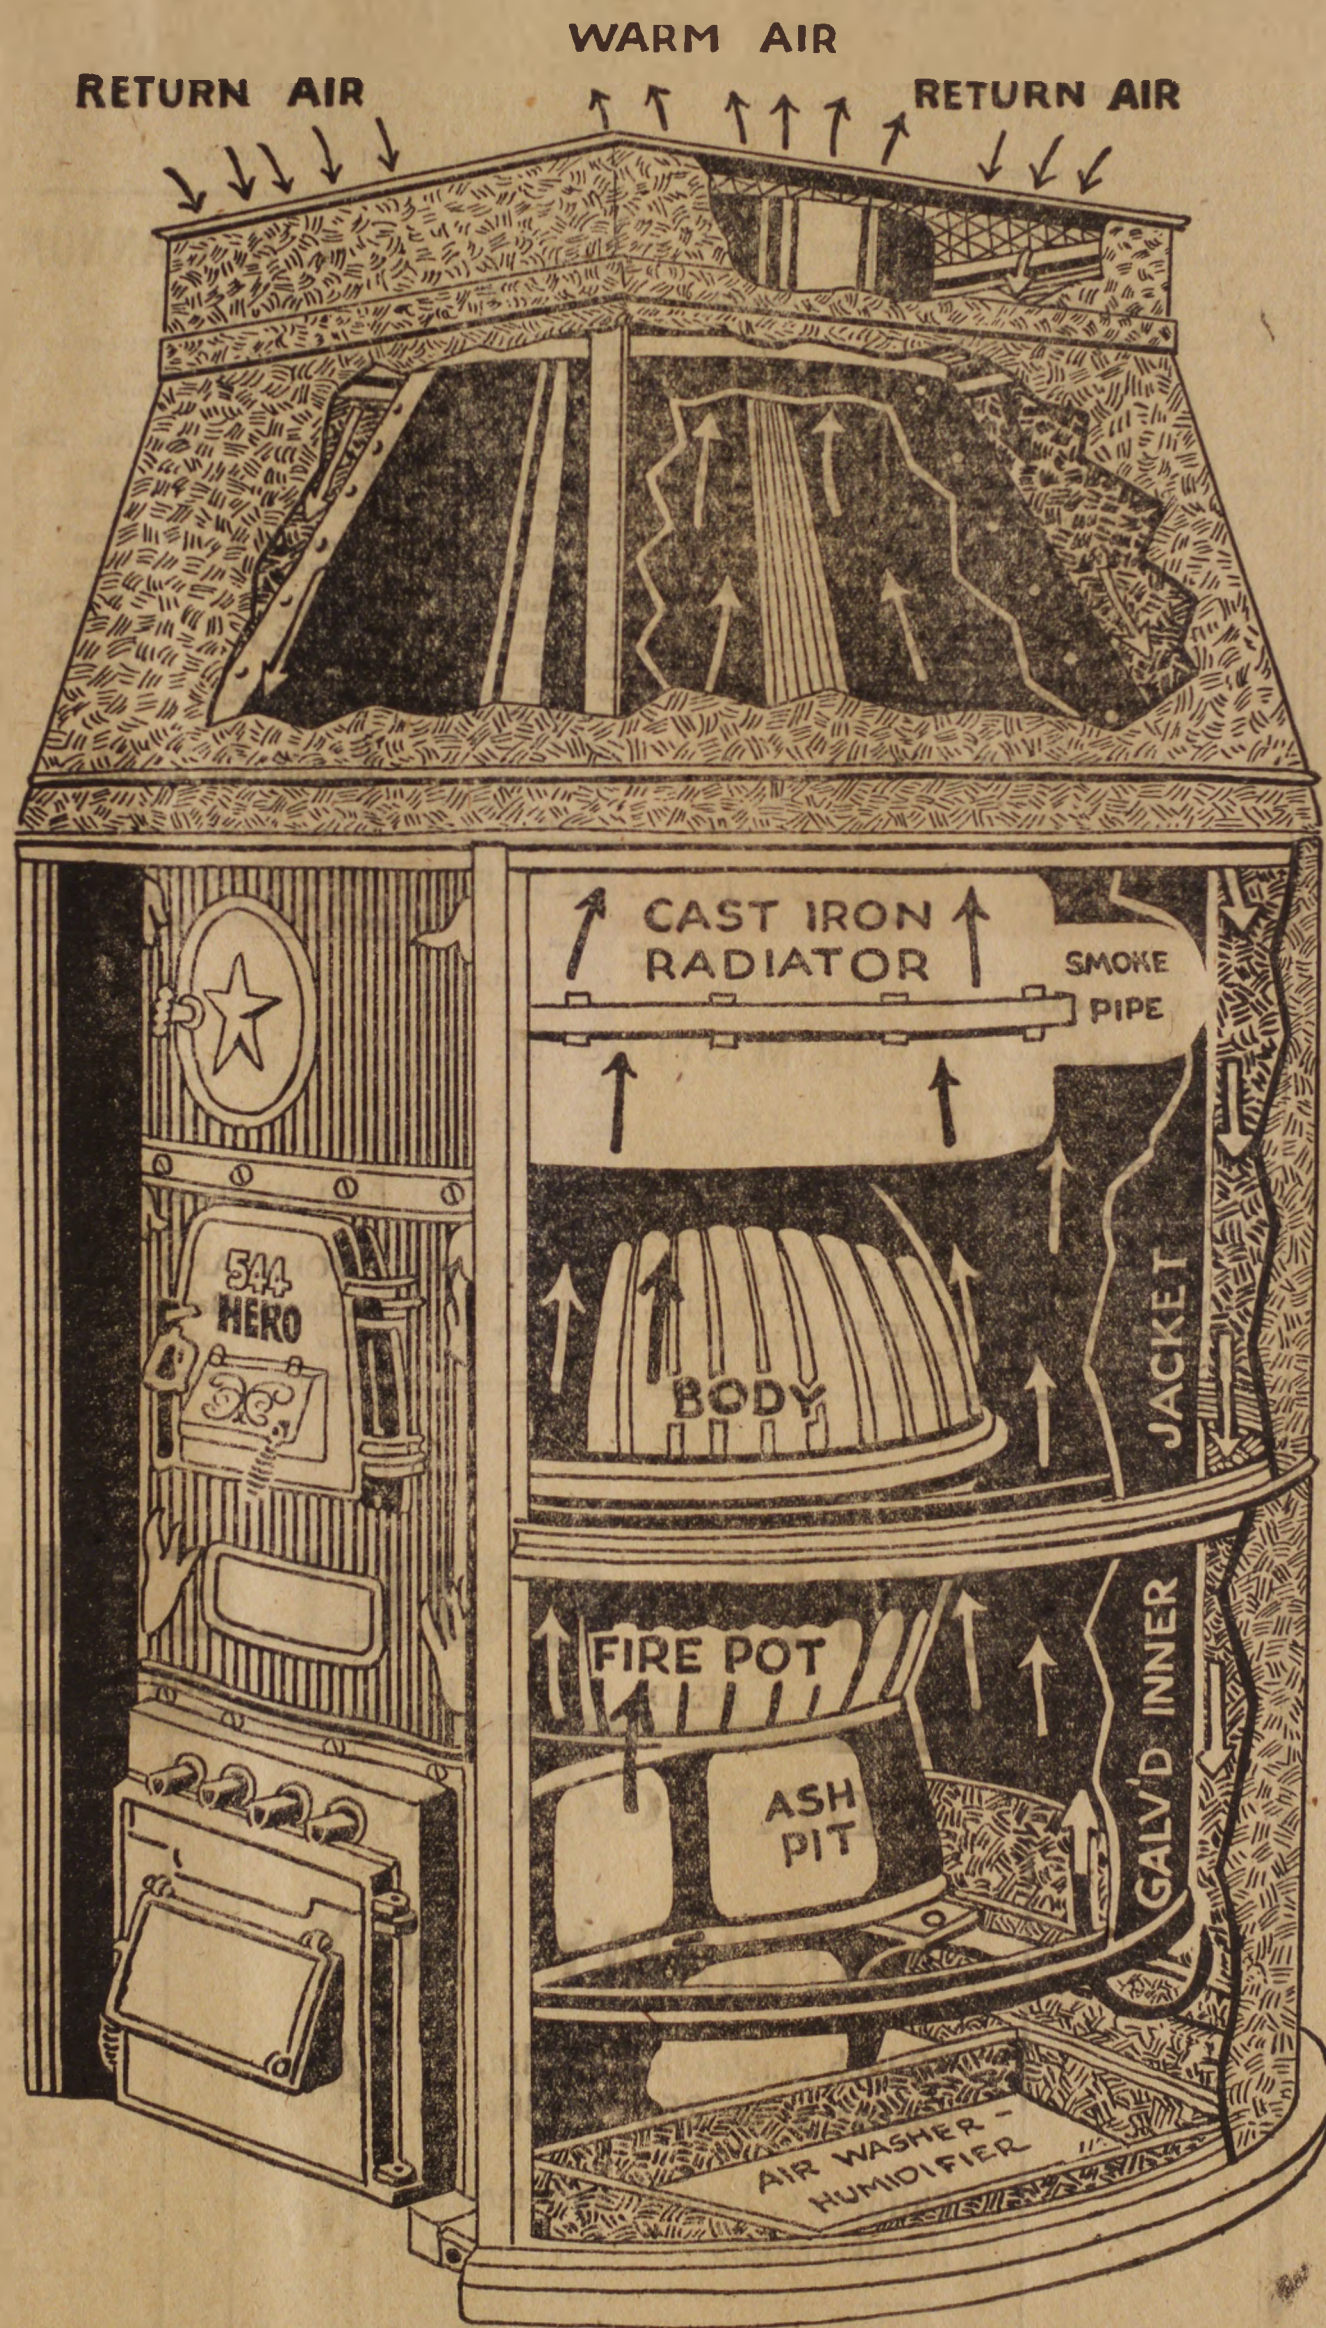

"To heat a house to 65 degrees F. instead of 72 degrees F. with an average temperature of 40 degrees F. means a 24% decrease in fuel consumption."

Dr. Ellsworth Huntington of Yale University in his article entitled "Saving Lives by Moisture in the Air" appearing in the Literary Digest of December 20th, writes:

"Twenty per cent of the lives now lost after hospital operations may be saved simply by moistening the air of the buildings."

"The evidence that health could be much improved by proper humidity seems overwhelming."

"The conditions of the air is the fundamental cause for the difference in the death-rate between tropical and other countries."

The Word Hero

Cast in the fire door of your furnace is your arantee of winter comfort and fuel economy—the promise of a warm and cozy home throughout the winter months. A sturdy dependable friend—the foe of the Frost King.

As An Investment

The great improvement of a Hero Pipeless Furnace in your home enhances its value far more than its cost. If at any time you desire to sell your home, you can do so more readily at a much higher figure with a furnace in your basement. People are not buying stove-heated homes. Real estate men will verify this statement.

Fire Protection

—Better than an Insurance Policy. The heat does not come into contact with the woodwork or any inflammable material, and the warm-air section has a positive insulation of return cool air completely surrounding it.

When You Purchase a Hero

Pipeless Furnace you are buying the most scientific heating plant made, from a financially responsible firm with a good reputation for fair dealing. Thirty years of thorough, practical knowledge of heating requirements back up every statement we make regarding our efficient Hero Pipeless Furnace. The great growth of the Hero Furnace company has been founded upon high quality and satisfied customers.

Our Guarantee

The Hero Furnace Company guarantees that this Heating System is made of first class material and workmanship. If any part develops defects within Five Years From Date of Shipment, we agree to replace such defective parts free of charge at our factory, providing damage is due to faulty construction. In event that the agreements in our sales contract shall have been fulfilled and the furnace, after proper opportunity, has been given us to remedy the defects, shall fail to maintain an average temperature of 70 degrees in the living rooms and 60 to 65 degrees in the bed rooms, the Company will, upon receipt of the furnace at our factory, refund the full purchase price with freight charges both ways, as full liquidated damages.

Important: Air properly moistened is not only much more pleasant and beneficial, but it also results in a saving of over 24% in fuel.

RAVING MANIAC

Four Men Required to Hold Insane Man in Court

Strapped and bound in court, and requiring four men to handle him, a raving maniac, Charles Dickson, foreman of the magento division of the gas engine department of the Sandwich Mfg. Co., was before Judge Pond in county court on Monday. That veteran jurist has, in this county and Cook county, probably passed up on more insane cases than any other judge in the state, and he admitted that he had never seen a more violent case.

The court and jury were puzzled to determine the cause of Dickson's insanity. No taint of that kind was in the family, he was in good health, his habits were regular and normal, he had received no mental shock, and is only 38 years of age.

Yet last week he became violently insane and began telling everybody how to conduct the factory—how to conduct any factory anywhere. He said his life was threatened. He displayed a loaded revolver and made threats. He undoubtedly would have killed somebody had he been allowed liberty any longer.

Dickson has a wife and two children, the eldest child six years of age. He is a son of Samuel Dickson, who owns and conducts the widely known farm south of Sandwich, near Sheridan, where a speciality is made of breeding Shetland ponies.

In spite of the seriousness of his case the physicians who examined him said that Dickson's case was of a kind from which the patients often recovered, and that he had a chance of recovering his mind.

He was taken to the Elgin State hospital that day. True-Republican.

MORRIS WRITES

Kirkland Enterprise: A letter from Joe Morris to his mother shows that at the time it was alleged that he was arrested on a charge of impersonating an officer he was in the woods of Northern Wisconsin and is now living in Chicago several miles from jail and not much prospect of getting any closer.

TEACHER GETS JUDGMENT

Miss Gladys Phelps has been awarded a judgment in the circuit court of Wayne county in a suit brought by her against school district No. 103, in which she sought to recover payment for two months of school which she was compelled to miss on account of the school being closed by order of the state board of health, due to an epidemic of the "flu." It is said this is the first case in which this question was ever raised in Illinois, and unless the supreme court should reverse this decision, this law will govern in Illinois upon this question.

P. E. O. SISTERHOOD

The P. E. O. Sisterhood, in addition to the regular meeting, gave a "Mother's Party" Wednesday, May 11, at the home of Mrs. A. J. Kohn.

Each member of the sisterhood responded to roll call by reading a poem pertaining to mother. The program was in charge of Mrs. Bryce Smith, who read a very interesting paper on "History of Mothers' Day." Mrs. E. W. Brown played two splendid instrumental solos and Mrs. J. T. Shesler gave a reading which was much appreciated and enjoyed by all. Mrs. Henry Burroughs responded to a request for remarks from the mothers and in a few well chosen words related some of her experiences as a mother.

After the program an excellent two course luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Sandall.

The Business of Farming

In the business of farming, buying is just as important as raising and selling, and there are three powerful reasons for buying lumber TODAY:

Buy lumber because the price is right. Lumber is back to normal and it is our belief that everything considered, there is nothing to be gained by waiting longer.

Buy lumber to protect your investment. Repairs which have been postponed from previous years can now be made at normal costs. Repairs made when needed often save many times the amount expended.

Buy lumber to bring greater returns from your farm. Lumber is the big item in many improvements which will cut the cost of hired help, reduce waste, give greater storage, or add to the comfort and convenience of the home—and lumber prices are down where they should be.

Bring your building problem to us. We believe that our business can serve your business to your best interests, and our friendly help and counsel are at your disposal, without obligation.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

That Mighty Serviceable Truck

THERE is this about the Ford one-ton truck that keeps it growing in popularity, namely, the good reports which the owners of Ford trucks spread abroad among their friends and acquaintances.

There is no testimony of merit quite so strong as the testimony of personal experience. It is not long after a Ford one-ton truck is sold in a community until other sales of the same truck follow, because "its works do follow it."

Well, "there is a reason." Yes, there are many reasons. The Ford one-ton truck was built to serve and satisfy. It carries all the Ford virtues: lightness in weight, simplicity in design, strength in construction, flexibility and durability—besides it has the lowest first cost and brings the lowest operating expense in the truck market.

It is just as useful; just as necessary on the farm as it is in the city. It is just as necessary to the tradesman, manufacturers, contractors, commission men and others in the city as it is necessary for such concerns to have a place to do business—in other words, the Ford truck is a general utility, and because of this fact and the further fact of its universal economy it is in a class by itself.

We will be glad to take your order for one or more Ford trucks and will give you fairly prompt delivery. You will likewise have the assurance of that reliable and economical after-service which is such a valuable factor in the service of Ford cars. Price, truck chassis $545.00 f. o. b. INTRODUCTION Editor-in-Chief

The following are extracts from "The Sophomore Busy Bee." The evening story was sent to print with much reluctance on the part of the author, who would rather have kept his work from the critical eye of the public. We are proud of our author and are sure that with time the public will agree with us. The news story well represents our busy reporter. As soon as anything happens, Harry breezes in on the scene of action and then the public knows all about it just as it happened. If you know anything to buy, sell or rent just let Lyle know and it will appear in the most attractive style possible.

THE BET

How Travers Made Good His Story
Traver's bubble of romance was leaking air and collapsing dreadfully; and no wonder. Thinking it over, he decided he was the victim of some hitherto obscure plot. Yes, he was sure of it, Knox's pet mustache had wiggled a little too violently, and Croner had coughed hollowly and much.

Just three weeks before he had been fool enough to let it out that he was the author of "Beauty and Sand." He ought to have known better anyway. He might have expected some slur from that dandified little woman's pet of a Knox. Of course they all knew he hadn't traveled in Mexico, but didn't others write about things by encyclopedia information? He wasn't going to let Knox call him a coward and get away with it; besides it would rather be fun, beautiful haciendas, dusky-eyed señoritas, serenades in the moonlight, and all that; not to mention the ten thousand out of Knox's overful pocket, and the satisfaction of being able to defy his mustache.

He had sneaked over into Mexico without mishap, and had recklessly hired a Mexican guide upon the recommendation of a proprietor of one of those little eat shops, where hot tamales, cakes, muddy colored liquid which, with a rather wonderful stretch of imagination, might be guessed as intended for coffee, whisked with a four hundred mule power kick, and "beef" of doubtful origin are served.

After many motions of his hands and shoulders he had conveyed his intentions to his very respectful guide, and was relieved to find himself perfectly understood and agreed with in everything. So, having purchased a mean looking cayuse with a roman nose and a wicked eye, four flea-bitten burros, and an over-supply of those needless money traps which have such fatal effect upon the tourist, and which everlastingly mark him, he had set out, as a knight of olden time, on a search for anything from mere gold to the most beautiful señorita in Mexico and adventure in particular.

From the first he discovered several things that caused him more annoyance than he had ever suffered before in his pampered life. His four words of Spanish, "No," "Si," "Senor," and "Senorita," couldn't be stretched and his shoulders and arms became stiff and sore, and his yucas organs could only produce a deep, wretchedly broken bass, from his efforts to make his suddenly dense guide show some signs of animation and understanding.

On the night of his fourth day out, he curled up in his blanket with his rifle and six-gun, from which it was impossible to part him in this revolution-breathing, trouble-infested country; and, as his eyes closed, a last glimpse of his dark-skinned money-leech cuffed up on the sand a few yards away.

Upon awakening the next morning, he noticed several things; the beautiful sunrise, the already excessive heat which made him sweat, covered as he was with blankets, and the total absence of his Mexican and whole equipment.

Dazed, he had rubbed his eyes, pinched himself, and, with the aid of a few other tests of similar character, confirmed his opinion that he was far from dreaming, became scared. His horse was gone; the burros were gone; the water bags were gone.

Immediately after seeing that, he had grown infernally thirsty, and turning over, had felt something bulky beneath him in the sand. He had kicked aside his blankets, and there half buried in the sand, was a canteen. At least he was not to die yet! How fortunate it was that he had carried that little belt water bottle!

So here he was. Six-feet three of old American stock, of one of the best families of Boston, a bit too pampered previously, and soft, stranded in the midst of the Lord knew how large a desert.

To the west loomed the snow-capped mountains, tinged with royal purple, and looking invitingly close, to the east, the desert, to the north, the desert, and to the south, more desert. The mountains were his only chance, if he could but reach them before his water gave out.

He sat a half an hour meditating, and hoping that some day, if he ever got out of this fix alive, he would run afoul his greaser; he had already devised forms of torture to make a Navajo jealous.

At last he beatred himself, picked up his water-bottle and rifle, slung on his bandolier, after debating with himself upon the wisdom of leaving it behind, pulled his hat down over his eyes, and set out toward the distant peaks.

He walked and walked, until the sun was high, and the yucca and great candelabra danced in shimmering veils of heat. Now and then he would stop to wipe the sweat from his eyes, and moisten his lips from the canteen, which was already becoming ominously light. And occasionally he would stumble in the sand and brush against the knife-like yucca, necessitating a halt to remove this poisonous shafts which often pierced his heavy puttees and buried themselves in his flesh.

But his strength was going and the mountains seemed no nearer than before. How cool the snowcaps looked. Far up he could see a bit of glittering ribbon. A mountain torrent! He could almost hear the rushing of its waters. Suddenly, not twenty yards away lay a tiny lake, rippling, and mirroring in the sky above.

His mind warned! "A mirrage. Keep going, don't stop! To stop is to remain!" But entirely devoid of mental control, his feet turned aside, and kneeling at the edge, he plunged forward to bury his face in the water. He lunged, but his face was muffled in sand, hot, suffocating sand; and he lay there.

He knew nothing until another sunset had come. Upon opening his eyes, blurred from the heat of the day before, he saw something black on the sand a little ways from him. When his sight cleared, he recognized it. A buzzard, with its long, scrawny, unclean neck outstretched, watching and waiting. A tremor passed through him, then a fierce delight. There was food and drink, hot drink, but moisture at least. Slowly his hand slid down his side, down, down, until his fingers reached his gun butt; slowly he drew, sacree daring to draw a breath, then, summoning all his quickness, he twisted his arm and fired.

A lucky shot. The heavy ball had torn it way longitudinally through the vulture's body, and, after a few convulsive flops, it lay still. Then forgetting everything, but his hunger and thirst, he feasted and drank.

Strengthened, he threw aside his rifle and bandolier and stumbled on. And he went, sometimes on hands and knees, sometimes crawling, any way to move, on toward the now-visible foothills.

Late into the night he faltered onward, until he reached the foothills, and a tiny stream of lukewarm water, lost from its mother stream, and ending its life like so many other things in the region of living death; the desert.

He fell full length in it, rolled in it, and drank in great gulps. At last he crawled half out on the bank and fell asleep.

He awoke when the sun was high, and immediately became sick from the tepid water he had drunk.

He remained there until night fall, then went on, following the stream.

Twice he came upon glowing campfires, and twice he turned and slunk around, fearing, from the tales he had heard, a fate worse than common death.

When day dawned, he found himself upon a crag, overlooking a green valley, like an emerald set in white gold, and through the valley roared a ferocious little torrent, and upon its bank was a red tiled hacienda, with garden, corrals and bunkhouses.

Burning with fever, and weak, he twisted his shirt from his back and feebly waved it, no response. Was he to die at the very door of life. He twisted his gun from its holster, half mad with fear, and fired twice before sinking down in a faint.

When he returned to consciousness, he looked up into the sympathetic eyes of Croner, and behind him, he saw Knox. And, to add to his amazement, he was lying upon a white bed in a cool little room of white and blue, instead of upon the golden-colored sand.

Knox bent over him. "He's coming 'round, Croner," he said, "Gad! what a fight he gave us."

"Jack," he called to Travers, "Don't you know me, Jack, old fellow? That ten thousand's yours all right. For heaven's sake, Jack, are you going off again?"

Travers groaned, tried to speak, failed, and tried again, succeeding: "Knox, old man, forget that infernal money, but for God's sake, bring me some water."

THE SENIOR CLASS PLAY Charles Kellogg

The Senior Class Play as announced will be presented next Tuesday night at the opera house.

Mrs. Reiniken is in charge. Tickets are already on sale and reserved seats may be purchased at Browne's store.

The synopsis of the story is as follows:

Harriet Carley, a young society girl, the stepdaughter of a proud old dowager, has fallen into the clutches of a Spanish adventurer and his wife and to aid them, claims to have had a valuable pearl necklace stolen when in reality she had hidden it, hoping to realize its value from the insurance company. Mrs. C. Christopher Carley, her step-mother, suspects that the robbery has been committed by Alonzo Dow, a gay young millionaire in the hotel, basing her suspicions on the fact that his handkerchief was found in her room. The manager of the hotel hires a detective to find the thief, and when Mrs. Carley tries to offer him the handkerchief as evidence she finds it has been stolen from her purse.

Sadie Brady, a slangy, good-natured stenographer in the hotel, determines to investigate the robbery herself and is much impressed by the suspected Mr. Dow. Sadie is a very winning heroine with plenty of snap and go, a real interesting young woman, posing as an illiterate stenographer, when she is in reality the investigating agent of the Insurance company, Cameron, the detective is completely baffled by the scravity of Mr. Dow and the suspicion begins to rest on the unctious Mr. Beedie, a college professor of Moral Philosophy. The second act occurs the night of a grand ball at the hotel and the thief is hard at work rifling the rooms of the merrymakers. Sadie wrings a confession from Harriet that the necklace was not stolen, but when she tries to find it she discovers that it is missing. As a climax to the mysteries of Act II, Mrs. Quinn, the quaint Irish ward, announces that Mr. Beedie has committed suicide. This proves to be a mistake however, the good doctor has only been chloroformed and his room rifled. The third act occurs in Mr. Dow's room where he is cleverly trapped by Sadie and the detective, but manages to elude them and makes his escape. In the last act Sadie succeeds in establishing Mr. Dow's innocence, and fixing the crime on Cameron, the detective, who is the real culprit.

What is the value of a coat of Paint?

ASK any real estate man. He will tell you that a $5000 house properly painted will immediately command $5500 to $6000 in the market—and the increase on higher-priced houses is strictly in proportion.

Isn't that a striking example of the value of good paint? We are pretty fair judges of paint—couldn't stay in business otherwise—and we will stack Du Pont Paints and Varnishes up against any others produced in this country. Stands to reason that folks who have been making paints for over a hundred years know what is required and HOW.

Glad to show you the way to boost the value of your home to a purchaser—or to yourself. Especially yourself.

Marked relaxation from the tenseness of feeling which has prevailed at Berlin, the last few days was observable in German political circles now that the crisis raised by the allied ultimatum has been passed.

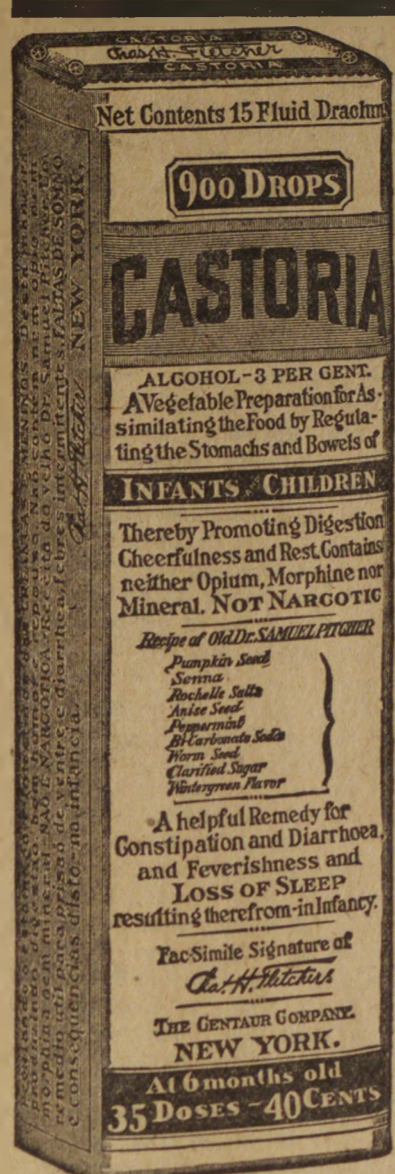

Germany's acceptance of the allied demands has been delivered at London to Prime Minister Lloyd George, who terms the reply a "complete acceptance of every demand."

Prime Minister Lloyd George, in a dramatic speech in the house of commons at London, concerning the Upper Silesia imbroglio, declared the action of the Polish insurrectionists was a complete defiance of the treaty of Versailles.

Queenstown was isolated from the mainland through the blowing up of Belvelly bridge. The bridge connected the mainland of County Cork with Queenstown Island.

Two anarchists attempted to bomb one of the largest factories at Turin. The bomb exploded prematurely, one of the men being blown to pieces and the other injured.

A Berlin dispatch says 16 persons were killed and 30 injured in a train collision at Soran, in Bradenburg.

CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for infants and children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

Why Not?
"You know, on the other side of the earth it's a day later than it is here."

"I don't believe it."
"Well, I'll prove it to you. If you were in Australia and I was here and you were to be shot today I'd know it yesterday."

"Well, if you were a friend of mine you'd send me a telegram today telling me I'm shot."

Important to all Women
Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

Wisdom of Children.

Paul, a small boy, had been invited to a golden wedding party. After learning that golden wedding meant married fifty years he inquired whether everybody had to get married again after they had been married fifty years.

His sister, wise in worldly affairs, said: "Few ever wait that long."

When there is such an ocean of trouble, be thankful you are only touched by the spray.

Literary Repression.
"I suppose you will write a book some day."

"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "The folks out home would never forgive me for writing something and expecting them to buy it, instead of having it sent free as a government publication."

Counting the clock strokes at night means losing the day hours in drowsiness. A cup of tea or coffee at bedtime often results in dreary wakefulness.

POSTUM CEREAL

Better nights and brighter mornings usually follow a change to Postum as the table drink.

Watch Your Kidneys!

That "bad back" is probably due to weak kidneys. It shows in a dull, throbbing backache or sharp twinges when stooping. You have headaches, too, dizzy spells, a tired, nervous feeling and irregular kidney action. Don't neglect it—there is danger of dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands have saved themselves more serious ailments by the timely use of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

An Illinois Case
R. L. Pettis, brakeman, 724 E. 2nd St., Centralia, Ill., says: "I had a dull ache across my back and joints all over when stooping. I became dizzy. My sight blurred and the kidney secretions passed irregularly. The work was hard on the kidneys, but I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they are fine. The cure they made has lasted more than five years."

Obituary

Wm. Reynolds was born on Oct. 11, 1840 in Pennsylvania and remained with his parents until he entered the War. In 1869 he came to this community and made his home with Andrew J. Miller, a comrade of his in the Civil War, remaining there until 1891, then he moved to the John Colvin place until he received his pension, when thru the aid of Brother Hiram Stark, he purchased 10 acres of timber land from Mr. Peterson, which his brother, Smith Reynolds, helped to clear and set out an orchard where he resided all most continuously until May 15, 1921 when he answered the final roll call of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe after living 80 years, 7 months and 4 days. For the last few years he has been in bad health. No one has the opportunity to choose the time of their departure, but what more appropriate time of their departure could be chosen than just prior to the day set aside by our Government to Honor the Soldiers who have passed beyond and just in time to be included in the Decoration Day of '21?
