We carry a large assortment of postcards. All styles, of all descriptions and prices. Some of them are works of art. Some very sentimental and some very, very funny.

Some of them are sure to express just the idea you would want to convey to him or to her by post. You know you can convey ideas by postcard that would be difficult to express by word of mouth. Stick your stamps on our postcards.

Yours truly,

Lamps Used Before Candles.
Lamps were used before candles. They date back almost as far as history goes and were common in ancient Egypt, China, Assyria, Greece and Rome. Lamp, from the Greek lampas, a torch, and candle, from kandeel, the Egyptian word for a common lamp, originally meant the same thing, and the mosaic candlestick held oil lamps, not candles, as we now use the word. Man early improved on the torches of the Homeric age and caught the idea of obtaining light from porous fiber soaked in animal or vegetable oils. Lamps of brass, bronze and stone have been found in the pyramids and in ancient Indian temples, and in general use for domestic purposes in Greece in the fourth century B. C. The earliest candles we hear of were those of the ancient Romans made of rushes coated with fat or wax.

What Pa Said.
The door of the drawing room opened slowly and Edward appeared. Prudence flew at once to his side. Edward was pale, but otherwise he seemed quite himself. He had been undergoing the ordeal of asking papa's consent.

"Tell me, what did father say?" asked the girl as Edward sank into a chair.

Edward stared into vacuity.

"Tell me; oh, tell me! The suspense is killing me. Did he say 'No'? Did he say, 'Take her, my boy'? Oh, do not keep me in this uncertainty. Tell me, what did father say?"

Edward sighed and muttered:
"He simply looked up from his work, said 'Thank goodness!' and went on writing."
