STORY OF HUMAN INTEREST

Another example is the pressure being brought to bear on the Governor about the case of Jacob Kline who while under the influence of whiskey, in a prohibition country, killed a passing motorist with a gun. A few of the millionaire's friends want his release, while hundreds of others, the people of moderate means and with not so much prestige as money can buy, demand his punishment. We hope that he will pay the penalty visited upon him but are skeptical. It is certain, however, that had Boros committed either one of the above named crimes he would have paid the extreme penalty.—there is something wrong with the law executives and the only way we can remedy it is by the ballot. At the next election, prove that you want what you want when you want it, and above all, JUSTICE.

LETTERS FROM
 REV. C. E. OLMSTED

October 28, 1922
 Dear Friends in America.

We are now on our way back to Thongwa after two days in Rangoon where we have to go once a month to buy supplies and look over business matters. One-third of the tedious nine-hour trip is over, and I am tired of studying Burmese, so shall write to you while the launch winds its way up the remainder of this crooked river.

We have now been at Thongwa (which means "Where three rivers join" for over three months, and it has begun to seem like home to us. It did not seem so at first for we had lived during our previous term in the big city of Rangoon. When we first reached Rangoon on the 28th of June last, its streets and familiar sights seemed to give us a hearty welcome back. We were in the city only two days, however, when we started for our jungle home to begin a new term of service in a strange place and in an unknown language.

Thongwa has a population of about 9,000, but all are Burmese, Indian and Chinese except for two W. F. M. S. missionaries. In Rangoon we ride in motor cars (mostly American manufacture), gharries (a kind of buggy) and man-pulled rickshaws. Thongwa boasts of no conveyances except springless oxcarts and boats. Rangoon has a huge public market, but in Thongwa fish, shrimps and a few vegetables only can be secured. For the past six days we have been unable to buy any beef. It has been a great Buddhist feast time, and pious Buddhists, who are supposed to be opposed to taking life, have bought up all the beef cattle and turned them loose to starve instead of being eaten. We can always buy plenty of rice here, for Thongwa lies in the center of a vast plain, now green with growing rice as far as one can see.

Two new buildings have just been completed here, one for the Woman's Bible Training School, and one for the Methodist Anglo-Vernacular Boys' School, both beautiful brick buildings. We are living in one end of the latter until the new missionary residence is completed. The old residence is 20 years old, badly eaten by white ants and in an unsafe condition for use by people unaccustomed to the fever bearing rays of sun. Our rooms in the school are very comfortable, except during recess time, when the noise of the children playing is deafening. Burmese boys are very active, and have not learned to play quietly.

We have just had ten days' vacation during the Buddhist Thad-injut festival. The Burmese people in Thongwa had a big time worshipping and doing various deeds of merit. One night eighty-one women, each carrying on her head a wooden image of the Buddha about two feet high and lights, marched for two hours all around the town. They expect to receive a great amount of "kutho" or merit for this pious act. The images were afterwards put in a prominent temple in the town and offerings daily placed before them. Among the offerings were any tins of kerosene oil. They were to keep row upon row of small lamps burning which brilliantly lighted that building at night. We are nearly home now. Evan has been entertaining some Buddhist monks with bits of Burmese poetry which he had learned in school, and making the letters of the Burmese alphabet with his fingers, like a dumb man. They thought it great sport to see and hear him.

With kindest regards for all, I am
 Your cordially,
 C. E. Olmsted

Cure for Unhappiness.
 I will walk abroad; old griefs shall be forgotten today; for the air is cool and still, and the hills are high and stretch away to heaven; and with the dew I can wash the fever from my forehead; and then I shall be unhappy no longer.—De Quincy.

Hard to Escape Mosquitoes.
 So numerous are mosquitoes in some localities in South America that the wretched inhabitants sleep with their bodies covered with sand three or four inches deep, the head only being left out, which they cover with a handkerchief.

KINGSTON NEWS

A program of real dramatic worth, marked by fun and pathos as interpreted by sterling talent in impersonation, is that to be presented by the Waldo Wettengl Duo at the Roger Brown Opera House on Wednesday evening, January 3, where two talented entertainers appear in an offering which includes short plays, sketches, readings and musical monologues. Notable will be the work of Waldo Wettengl in "The Man from Show-hegan" in which he plays two diverging and difficult roles. Miss Wilma Lorton is assisting artist and her especial fine dramatic talent is apparent in this play, while in the field of musical monologues and straight readings she appears with fine distinction. Another offering of the evening's entertainment will be "Patches", a short dramatic sketch.
