Fifty Injured When Unemployed and Police Clash; Cheers for Lenine.

MINE STRIKE BRINGS PERIL

Disorder Starts When the Paraders Try to Break Through a Heavy Police Guard and Get Into Downing Street.

London, Oct. 20.-Disorders occurred in Whitehall during a demonstration by unemployed men who had sent a delegation to Premier Lloyd George in Downing street. The disorder started when the unemployed demonstrators tried to break through the heavy police guard and get into Downing street. It was during this rush that the window stones from the treasury crashed down. Poice re-enforcements were rushed up and mounted police were called out to assist the regulars. Finally the crowd began to throw stones. The police finally dispersed the rioters.

The parapet on one side of Downing street also collapsed during the crush.

The deputation to the premier consisted of 15 heads of London bureaus asking relief for the unemployed. The disorders were still proceeding when the deputation emerged from the premier's official residence in Downing street and tried to quiet the crowd. At the same time a small party of demonstrators went to the neighboring Trafalgar square, set up a red flag. sang the "Internationale" and cheered Lenine and Trotzky. With Governor Cox, Senator Harding seems to be the main issue. Cox has done nothing more thus far than try to inject into the national campaign the same brand of virus that characterized the recent campaign in lilinois. It always pays a merchant to give publicity to the merits of his own wares, rather than devote his time in an attempt to belittle his competitor. Of course when the merchant has no marketable goods he is out of luck. Mr. Cox will be a member of that "Out of Luck Club" after November 2.

It was very evident that the three people who had just entered the corridor of the Stafford hotel were not of the ordinary wealthy class usually seen there. The only thing which distinguished them from the frequenters of that most fashionable of Chicago's fashionable hotels was that they appeared to be just a little more fashionable and just a little more richly dressed. "An unusually pretty girl, with her father and mother," would have been the thought of a casual ob-

Casual observers were scarce in that hotel corridor, however. There was a tall figure in a gray uniform standing near the door, presumably an attendant. The girl's father handed the light wraps of the ladies to the man in uniform and the three passed into the reception room.

"Straight" Talk Best. When your words count you don't need to use so many of them. It's a pleasure for some people to talk. Other men talk under protest and bepression. These men always get a hearing because people know they will get the facts without orations. And this is as it should be. Every man should be able to express himself. He can learn if he is willing to make the effort. It may scare him half to death at first, but he will soon find pleasure in seeing his ideas take action in others. Whether you are a ready talker or not you will profit much by making your talk count.

Prismatic Colors.

It is commonly said that there are 1789. seven primary colors in the rainbow, namely, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. But these colors mix, and the so-called Fraunhofer lines name ten, as red, red-orange, orange-yellow, yellow, green-yellow, and yellow-green, blue-green, skyblue, blue and blue-viotet and violet. The Indians did not have names for all the subdivisions of color. Their name for blue is ochako; for green, okchamali; red is called humma, and vellow, lakna. These are names in the Choctaw tongue.

Head of University in the Great Yeilow Territory Has Proof of Spread of Occidental Ideas.

"He had been pretty well all over the world," said the professor, "and when I asked him what country had impressed him most, he said at once, China. And when I asked him what in China had impressed him most, he said at once, the West China Union university. The professor's remarks were made to the Daily News, London, and he followed them up with a delightful story of the way in which Chinese eminences showed their appreciation of this blossom of Western enterprise, the university of which the professor happens to be the president. Some dozen years ago he was fleeing for his life 1,500 miles down the Yangtze to save his head. He was a "foreign devil," and no university had been started. Seven or eight years later, the military governor of Szechuan sent him a beautifully inscribed statement of his opinion of the university, and a gift of $3,000. The professor was on his way home via Peking. In the Chinese capital he had an interview with the president of the Chinese republic, then Yuan Shih-Kai, who also gave him a declaration of approval and $4,000 as a personal gift to the university.

The First Congress.

The first congress was supposed to meet on March 4, 1789, and it is a curious fact that there was not a quorum of either house present for a month thereafter. Only eight senators were present on March 4, and they adjourned from day to day until April 6, when a quorum was present. Only 13 members of the house assembled on March 4, and a quorum was not present until April 1. The Constitution of the United States took effect in the following states: Delaware, Pennsylvania. New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland, South Carolina, New Hampshire, Virginia and New York, on March 4, Dream That Means Death.

A peculiar dream is that which has visited a certain Irish family for generations, invariably before a death or some big change. They call it their kissing lady dream. The person who experiences it dreams that they are sitting in a very old-fashioned room before a blazing wood fire, when suddenly the door behind them opens and a beautiful girl in green, tight-fitting garments enters, and, stealing softly behind them, draws their head gently back and kisses them full on the lips. As she does so there is always the clanging of steel on a stone staircase, the hurried tramp of armed men, and they awake trembling.

However, the term didn't come into general use until the presidential campaign of 1828, when the supposed illiteracy of Andrew Jackson, the Democratic candidate, led Seba Smith, the humorist, writing under the name of "Major Jack Downing," to start the story that Jackson indorsed his papers "O. K." under the impression that they formed the initials of "Oll Korrect."

James Parton, the noted biographer, discovered in the records of the Nashville court, of which Jackson was judge, numerous documents indorsed "O. R.," meaning "order rescinded." He therefore urged that it was a belated business that Major Downing saw on the deak of the presidential candidate. The Democrats, in lieu of denying the charge, adopted the letters "O. K." as a sort of party cry and fastened them on their ban-

ONE OF THE OLDEST METALS

Abundant Proof That Iron Has Been in Use Since the Very Earliest Days.

Iron must have been familiar in the time of Moses. A wedge made of iron was left in the great pyramid by the builders, which proves that the metal was known and in use about 1,500 B. C. Besides, in the fourth chapter of Genesis, it is mentioned that Tubal Cain was a pioneer in developing the arts of iron making and brass working. Brass, however, was a very indefinite term among the natives. When spoken of in the Scriptures it is seldom to be understood to signify the alloy of copper and zinc now called by that name. The "brass" tempered for edged tools or weapons of war was a bronze, usually a compound of copper and tin. Copper was also known to mankind at a very early period. Articles of copper were found 81 feet under the statue of Rameses the Great, which was erected 3,500 years ago. Debris has accumulated there to a depth of nine feet, and the copper articles were found, on further excavation, 72 feet lower down.

Gretna Green.

Gretna Green, the rendezvous of eloping couples, was once the haunt of persons who exercised cupidity at the expense of Cupid, and innkeepers, ferrymen and tollhouse tenders exploited the couples who fled there. Any witnesses served to make the marriages recognized as legal, but the "professional witnesses" there, like the "marrying parsons" of some American towns, engaged "touts" to bring couples to them, and when the railroad from Glasgow to Carlisle started running, the station platform at Gretna Green thronged with these obnoxious "commissioned men."

According to a popular legend, blacksmith shops were favorite meccas for eloping couples, but authority is lacking for stories of smithies who would pause while shoeing horses to help legalize marriages.

Her courage and capacity brought the reins of government into her own hands. At the death of Thothmes she was the master spirit of the age. The dominant woman built the splendid terraced rock temple of Dair-el-Bahari on the Theban plain. Her chief gipry was in sending an expedition to the Land of Punt (Ophir) by way of the Red sea. A woman dug the first Suez canal, and as the expedition returned up the Nile the shouts that greeted the queen (who always wore the babiliment of the male) was the first "God save the king" in history!

"I LOVE JIM."

Synopsis.-Writing long after the events described, Jack Calder, Soot farmer of West Inch, tells how, in his childhood, the fear of invasion his childhood, the fear of invasion by Napoleon, at that time complete master of Europe, had gripped the British nation. Following a false alarm that the French had landed, Jim Horscroft, the doctor's son, a youth of fifteen, quarrels with his father over joining the army, and from that incident a lifelong friendship begins between the boys. They go together to school at Her-They go together to school at Her-wick, where Jim is cock boy from the first. After two years Jim goes to Edinburgh to study medicine. Jack stays five years more at school, becoming cock boy in his turn. When Jack is eighteen Cousin Edie of Eyemouth comes to live at West Inch. Jack falls in love at first sight with his handsome, romantic, selfish and auto-cratic cousin of seventeen. They watch from the cliffs the victory of an English merchantman over two French privateers. Reproached by Edie for staying at home, Jack starts to enlist. Edie tells him to stay. Jack says he will stay and marry her. She acquiesces. Jim comes home. Jack sees Jim kiss-

They were not far away, but too taken up with each other to see me. She was walking slowly, with the little petulant cock of her dainty head which I knew so well, casting her eyes away from him, and shooting out a word from time to time. He paced acidity and gases that put the stomach along beside her, looking down at her and bending his head in the eagerness ress, upon his arm, and he, carried off his feet, plucked her up and kissed her again and again. At the sight I could neither cry out nor move, but stood with a heart of lend and the face of a dead man staring down at them. I saw her hand passed over his shoulder, and that his kisses were as welcome to her as ever mine had been.

Then he set her down again, and I found that this had been their parting, for indeed in another hundred paces they would have come in view of the upper windows of the house. She walked slowly away, with a wave back once or twice, and he stood looking after her. I walted until she was but so taken up was he that I was within a hand's touch of him before he whisked round upon me. He tried to smile as his eyes met mine.

"I saw you," I gasped, and my throat had turned so firy that I spoke like a man with a quinsy.

"Did you so?" said he, and he gave a little whistle. "Well, on my life. Jock, I'm not sorry. I was thinking of coming up to West Inch this very day and having it out with you. May-

Then by chance I met her again-on my soul, Jock, it was chance for me-and when I spoke of you she laughed at the thought. It as for her not being free, or you being more to her than a friend, it was fool's talk. So you see, Jock, I was not so much to blame after all, the more so as she promised that she would let you see by her conduct that you were mistaken in thinking that you had any claim upon her. You must have noticed that she has hardly had a word for you for these last two weeks."

I laughed bitterly. "It was only last night," said I, "that she told me that I was the only man in all this earth

He peeled off his coat down to the elbows and then he slowly pulled it on again.

As she looked from one to the other of us, with the cold morning sun glittering on her face, I had never seen her look so lovely. Jim felt it also, I am sure, for he dropped her wrist, and the harsh lines were softened upon his face.

"Come, Edie! Which is it to be?" he asked. "Naughty boys; to full out like this,"

CHAPTER V.

The Man From the Sea.

Well, I was never one to sit groaning over a cracked pot; if it cannot be mended, then it is the part of a man to say no more of it. For weeks I had an aching heart; indeed, it is was cousin and cousin, she said, but a little sore now, after all these years and a happy marriage, when I think of it. But I kept a brave face on me. and above all I did as I had promised that day on the hillside. I was a brother to her, and no more, though there were times when I had to put a curb upon myself.

For the most part she and Jim were happy enough. It was all over the countryside that they were to be married when he had passed his degree. and he would come up to West Inch four nights a week to sit with us. My that she could ever bring herself to folk were pleased enough about it. and I tried to be pleased too.

> We used to take long rambles together, Jim and I, and it is about one of those that I now want to tell you We had passed over Bramston heath and round the clump of firs which screens the house of Major Elliott from the sea wind. It was spring, and the year was a forward one, so that the trees were well leaved by the end of April. It was as warm as a summer day, and we were the more surprised when we saw a huge fire roaring upon the grass plat before the major's door. There was a fir tree in it, and the flames were spouting up as high as the bedroom windows. Jin his heels his old sister, who kept house for him, and two of the maids, and all four began capering about the fire. He was a douce, quiet man, as all the country knew; and here he was, like Old Nick at the carlins' dance, hobbling round and waving his drink above his head. We both set off running, and he waved the more when he saw us coming. "Peace!" he roared. "Huzza, boys!

Peace!" And at that we both fell to dancing and shouting too, for it had been such a weary war, as far back as we could remember, and the shadow had lain so long over us that it was wondrous to feel that it was lifted. Indeed it was too much to believe, but the major laughed our doubts to scorn.

"Aye, aye, it is true," he cried, stopping, with his hand to his side. "The allies have got Paris, Boney has thrown up the sponge, and his people are all swearing allegiance to Louis XVIII."

"And the emperor?" I asked; "will they spare him?"

"There's some talk of sending him to Elba, where he'll be out of mischief's way. But his officers-there are some of them who will not get off so lightly. Some deeds have been done these last twenty years that have not been forgotten. There are a few old scores to be settled. But it's peace, peace!" and away he went once more vith his great tankard, hopping round his bonfire.

Well, we stayed some time with the major, and then away we went down to the beach, Jim and I, talking about this great news and all that would come of it. How little did Jim know at that moment, as he strode along by my side so full of health and of spirits, that he had reached the extreme summit of life, and that from that hour all would in truth be upon the downward slope. There was a little haze out to sea, for it had been very misty in the early morning, though the sun had thinned it. As we looked seaward we suddenly saw the sail of a small boat break out through the fog and come bobbing along toward the land. A single man was seated in the sheets, Dyes Color Card"-16 rich colors. He looked from one to said today. D'you see? Now, then, fair the other of us, and his gray eyes had something in them which I had never seen before. You could read the question, but there seemed to be a menace at the back of it, as if the "Great Britain?" he asked again,

"Yes," said I, while Jim burst out laughing. "England? Scotland?"

"Scotland. But it's England 'past yonder trees." "Bon! I know where I am now. I've

"Where did you come from, then?" asked Jim.

"I was in a ship that was wrecked." said he shortly. "What is the town down yonder?" "It is Berwick."

"Ah, well, I must get stronger before I can go further." He turned toward the boat, and as he did so he gave a lurch, and would have fallen had he not caught the prow. On this he seated himself, and looked round him with a face that was flushed and two eyes that blazed like a wild beast's.

"Voltigeurs de la Garde!" he roared in a voice like a trumpet call, and then again, "Voltigeurs de la Garde! He waved his hat above his head, and suddenly pitching forward upon his face on the sand, he lay all huddles

The Housewifes Burden

When a woman is almost distracted from overwork, her home is in disorder, crying children, and on top of all is suffering from backache, bearing down pains, or some other form of feminine ills, then she should remember that hundreds of women in just her condition have been restored to health and regained their youthful strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and not rest until she has given it a fair trial.

Proof that it Restored the Health of These Two Women

Cairo, Ill.—" Some time ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had a bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read so many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine."—Mrs. J. R. MATTHEWS, 3311 Sycamore Street, Chattanooga, Tenn.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby came when I could no longer keep up. It strengthened my back and relieved me of the ill effect which so often develops at such times. That was my first experience with the Vegetable Compound. Years afterwards I took it during the Change of Life and got along so well I scarcely ever had to lie down during the day and seldom had dizzy, fainting spells. I am now well and strong, can do all my housework with perfect ease and it is a comfort to me to be able to say to other suffering women 'take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and be strong. I will be glad to have you use my name if it will be the means of helping any one." — Mrs. R. A. FAIRBURN, 606 Orchard Knob Ave., Chattanooga, Tenn.
