

W. G. ECKHARDT HAS RESIGNED

Advisor of DeKalb County Soil Improvement Association 8 Years

THOMAS ROBERTS FOR VACANCY

Eckhardt Becomes Head of the Grain Marketing Bureau of Agricultural Association

DeKalb Chronicle: At a conference held in Chicago Saturday, the arrangement was perfected whereby, W. G. Eckhardt, for the past eight years the highly successful county advisor of the DeKalb County Soil Improvement Association becomes the head of the newly-organized grain marketing bureau of the Illinois Agricultural Association.

Following the meeting of the directors of the soil improvement association on Friday where the resignation of Mr. Eckhardt as the county advisor was accepted and his assistant, Thomas Roberts, was chosen in his place, the local man went to the city Saturday to meet the officials of the state association. He agreed to devote four days a week to the grain marketing work and on this basis the contract was entered into.

Mr. Eckhardt will be in Chicago on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each week and will spend Monday and Saturday taking care of matters of the soil improvement association, which retains his services as business manager.

The new work on which the local man is embarking is a big one and the bureau is starting out with the expectation that the program now outlined will take ten years to accomplish.

At least two months more will be spent by the bureau head in a preliminary survey of conditions in the state which will take him into every congressional district in the state holding hearings with bank officials, elevator men, and county agents. This preliminary work is highly necessary in order that the work of the bureau can be mapped out by the directors.

General satisfaction is expressed all over the county at the selection of Tom Roberts as the successor of Mr. Eckhardt in the soil advisor work.

Mr. Roberts is a graduate of the agricultural college at Ames, Iowa, and has proven in the year or so, during which he has been engaged as assistant to Mr. Eckhardt that he is thoroughly efficient and well able to handle the important business that confronts him.

Wantn't Quite Ready for Ride.

As the farm where we stayed last summer was out of the beaten track of automobiles, Bobby was both curious and afraid of our car when we came there. At first nothing would induce him to take a ride in it. After one of our urgings to just sit in it, he drew his seven-year-old sister (who certainly was not afraid of a car) down to him and whispered in a most serious manner: "Tell those people when I get older and taller I'll ride with them."

BOY SHOTS SISTER

Accidental Discharge of Rifle Causes Death of Leland Child

The old, old story of the boy who didn't know the gun was loaded was told again Friday at Leland when little Leroy Hoffa, 11 years old, took the stand at a coroner's inquest and told how it was that he shot and killed his little 8 year old sister, Esther. After hearing the boy's story the jury returned a verdict of accidental shooting.

As the little boy sobbed out the story of the tragic death of "my little sister," tears came into the eyes of the jurors. The inquests was held at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hoffa, who reside on the Fred Legner farm, north of Leland. The accidental shooting took place Thursday while the children were at play in the yard.

"We were playing out in the yard, my little sister and me," the boy testified, "and I saw an old rifle on the ground. I didn't think there was any bullets in it. I was going to play soldier and march with it, but when I lifted it off the ground it exploded. Esther, my little sister, gave a scream and fell down. It just went off, without me trying to shoot it and just as soon as I lifted it off the ground."

The bullet from the rifle struck the little girl in the neck. Mrs. Hoffa, who ran from the house when she heard the shot, and carried the child into the house in her arms. A physician was summoned but the girl was dead before he arrived.

COMMUNITY CLUB

The last regular meeting of the Community club year was held in the rest room Monday afternoon.

There were several interesting reports given, the revised Constitution was read and accepted and the election of officers took place.

Miss Irma Perkins, who took the president's chair in December, after the resignation of Mrs. C. J. Bevan, was unanimously elected president for the coming year.

Miss Perkins took hold of a difficult situation in a creditable manner, ever being unbiased in her opinions. It is indeed gratifying to the club to have the chair filled by this competent, well-poised woman.

The following officers were elected: 1st Vice Pres., Mrs. Olive Geithman.

2nd Vice Pres., Mrs. Maude Goding. Rec. Sec., Mrs. Adah Shesler. Cor. Sec., Mrs. Mabel Baldwin. Treas., Mrs. Lois Brown. Auditor, Mrs. Helen Smith.

Daughter's Comeback.

Mother—"Shame on you, Dorothy! The idea of letting a boy whom you've known only a week, kiss you! Why, when I was your age a girl was considered vulgar who would let a boy even hold her hand until he'd known her several months." ## ABOUT THE BIRDS! YOU LOVE THEM?

Do You Want to Learn More About Your Feathered Friends

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

Be at the Opera House, Friday, May 14, 1920, at 2:30 p. m. and Hear the Facts

Do you like birds? Of course you do—or rather you think you do. The fact is, however, that no one knows just how much he really loves the birds until he has studied them.

We like fish, game animals and birds, but we eat them. We like beautiful flowers, but we pick them. We love the song birds, but we have been allowing their destruction without any material benefit nor pleasure to ourselves. We like game animals and eat them, we like flowers and pick them, but we love song birds and destroy them. Consistency, is it not?

The Illinois Audubon Society has for years been teaching the value of the birds to plant and to humane life, and not until every man, woman and child has become familiarized with bird life as it really is, will our feathered friends be fully appreciated and receive the protection growing out of love which we now merely profess.

If you want to know more about birds, be at the Genoa Opera house Friday, May 14, at 2:30 p. m.

George H. Gurber, one of the best informed men on the subject, will be there to tell us much worth knowing. This is a rare opportunity—don't miss it. Everyone is invited.

The meeting will be held under auspices of the Genoa Township High School in aid of the Illinois Audubon Society. Remember the date, Friday of next week, May 14.

MRS. W. H. WOOD

Former Resident of Charter Grove Dies in Sycamore

Mrs. Lulu M. Wood, wife of William H. Wood, passed from this earthly life on Friday morning, April 30, after an illness of four days.

Lulu May Westlake, daughter of Morris H. and Emma Beckley Westlake, was born on her father's farm in Mayfield township, Nov. 29, 1837, and there most of her girlhood years were spent. In 1886 the family removed to the farm north of Sycamore now owned by her brother Norman B. Westlake, and in 1889 she was married to William H. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wood, who were pioneer residents of this town.

To Mr. and Mrs. Wood were born five children: Morris A. of Sioux City, Iowa; Elsie M. the wife of John Nuckles of Point Pleasant, W. Va.; Gladys E. and Walter I. living at home. One son, Arthur H. died in infancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood have always lived in this vicinity, their home for the last 9 years being on the well known farm near Charter Grove, from which they moved to Sycamore just three weeks before Mrs. Wood's death.

THE WRATH OF VOLIVA

Should Make Many Votes for Edward D. Shurtleff

Office seekers at the Republican primary next September have been given warning by Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva that he will fight any candidate for public office who supports E. D. Shurtleff of Marengo for United States senator.

Overseer Voliva is quite a power in Zion City, where about six or eight hundred male voters can be depended on to cast their ballots just as he directs.

At the same time there are several hundred voters in the city who call themselves Independents and will vote just opposite to Voliva's wishes.

Referring to the probability that the proposed cement road through Waukegan north and through Zion City to the Wisconsin line will not be built this year, the Overseer let loose the following creed:

"Lake citizens can put the whole responsibility on Mr. Shurtleff and the busybodies of the Illinois State legislature, who have nothing else to do but to spend the state's money at the behest of a bunch of porch-climbers and criminals," said Voliva as he discussed the road and the persecution of his enemies at the same time.

Voliva declared that he proposes to spend his time and all the money that is necessary in "fighting this gang to a finish."

Lake Politicians Beware

"If the politicians of Lake county want to support this man Shurtleff, that is their business, but they do not need to look to Voliva for any consideration or any support. The time when anything will be done to Sheridan road through Zion City will depend entirely upon the time and the money that it takes to whip these scoundrels to a standstill."

Voliva stated further that he did not propose to let them jump on him or on Zion City and slug them in the open daylight, without getting the trimming that is coming to them.

"A more iniquitous piece of business has never disgraced any state, than conduct of this man Shurtleff who, because Voliva did not support him, imagines that he can wreck and damn Voliva and Zion. But he will find out that Voliva is on the job, and on it good and proper!" said the Zion overseer.

The overseer had on his fighting armor and is ready for battle. He is ready to fight his enemies to a finish. The Illinois legislative committee investigating Voliva will find a man with his back to the wall and ready to defend Zion and Zion City with all of the vim that he is famous for.

Appropriation Held Illegal

Last week the Illinois Supreme Court held illegal the appropriation made by the state legislature of $10,000 to pay the expenses of investigating Voliva's affairs at Zion City. The court holds that such an investigation is judicial and cannot properly be conducted by a committee of the general assembly.

Voliva's opposition to Shurtleff ought and probably will bring to the Marengo man the support of thousands of voters in the state who have long condemned the fraud of the Zion City fake religionist.

WOLVES AT HIS DOOR

Stewart Dirst, farmer near Joliet, was working in the fields of his farm Tuesday when he stumbled and his foot stuck in a hole. He investigated and found it was a wolves' den, containing five small wolves. The mother wolf was not there. Dirst brought the litter to the office of the county clerk and received $20 bounty.

Residents Must Pile Rubbish Near the Street or Alley Lines—that Vacant Lot

Next week, beginning Monday, May 10, will be observed as health promotion week throughout Illinois. ### PRINT PAPER SOARS

Reached Unthinkable Price of 17 Cents in Chicago Monday

The writer, while purchasing stock in a Chicago paper house Monday was handed the glad tidings that print paper that day was being quoted at 17 cents per pound in car load lots.

This quotation was made on paper in large rolls, the most convenient manner in which it can be shipped from the mills.

Weekly papers, of necessity, must buy in smaller lots and the paper comes flat instead of in rolls, meaning that the paper you are now holding in your hands is worth about 20 cents per pound F. O. B. Chicago.

Seventeen and twenty cents may not sound big except by comparison. The pre-war price of print paper in car lots was 1.9 cents per pound or $38.00 per ton. Today it is worth $340.00 per ton. The pre-war price of flat print to country publishers was about $60.00 per ton. Today it is approximately $400.00 per ton. The actual cost of the paper used in one

TO OIL STREETS BY SUBSCRIPTION

Business Men to Meet at the City Hall Friday Evening, this Week

TO DISCUSS PEAN OF CAMPAIGN

Solicitors Must be Backed by Good Will Before Starting to Collect

Owing to the exceeding dampness this spring, citizens generally have not given the subject of street oiling much consideration. But give us one week of dry weather and we will all be thinking oil as well as chewing dust.

Funds this year must be raised as they were last spring—by popular subscription. It is not so "popular" either in the minds of many, but it is the only manner. The city is in no better condition to handle the proposition this year than last.

Meeting Friday Evening

All business men especially and others are requested to meet at the city hall Friday evening of this week to select solicitors or collectors. And no business man, if he wants the street oiled, should try to "pass the buck" to the other fellow. Get to the city hall at eight o'clock and the business can be cared for in ten minutes.

Some one business man will be selected to collect funds on Main street and we know of no such man who has time to stop at every place and explain the plan.

IN MOTORCYCLE WRECK

Miss Maude Sager Injured Near Elgin Saturday

Elgin News: Miss Pearl Craft, a nurse at Sherman hospital, was seriously injured at 5:30 o'clock Saturday night when the motorcycle sidecar in which she and Miss Maude Sager, superintendent of education at Sherman hospital, were riding, became detached and threw them onto the roadway on Villa street, just off the pavement east of town.

Miss Craft received a fracture at the base of the skull and minor injuries while Miss Sager received a fractured rib. Harold Spitz, X-ray operator at Sherman hospital, the driver, was uninjured.

Miss Craft, who was injured in the motorcycle smashup, was to have graduated this week with the 1920 class at Sherman hospital Training school for nurses. Defective connection of the side car to the motorcycle owned by Spitz is blamed for the accident.

Mr. Spitz and the two nurses were on their way to Oak Park to the home of Mrs. Hattie Craft, mother of the injured girl. Spitz, who is a former service man in the X-ray operator at the hospital, under Dr. K. M. Manouglan.

A TEST CASE

Condemning Land for High School Before the Court

A test suit to determine whether or not a community high school has the right to condemn land for use as a playground is in progress at the McHenry county court at Woodstock. Attorneys E. D. Shurtleff and D. R. Joslyn were representing Mrs. Brannard, twenty acres of whose land was condemned for the use of the community high school in the suit. According to the law the community can condemn land for use as a school house or land forty rods from a building. It may be necessary to settle the case in the circuit court.

THE SCHOOL MA'AM

MEETING AT RILEY

American Legion's State Leader

Col. Milton J. Foreman, who is in charge of the Legion's state-wide drive for membership.

the city lying south of Main street will be taken care of.

While the city will haul the rubbish away, it does not guarantee to clean up yards nor carry rubbish from the houses to the road. Every citizen must do his share and the little asked of him is little enough in this case.

The teamsters will systematically travel every street and alley in the city on the days designated.

They will have no instructions to scrutinize the back yards and vacant lots, but will pick up everything that has been conveniently placed near the alley or street line.

There will be no excuse whatever for anyone having an unsightly pile of rubbish in his yard or in the alley back of his home or store after next week.

And here is another good suggestion made by Mayor Hammond. If you observe anything unsightly over in that vacant lot, just clean that up too and place it where the teamsters may get it. No matter how clean your own yard and back yard may be kept, the result is not satisfactory if the neighboring lot is a dumping ground.

RUN DOWN BY TRAIN

Little Sandwich Girl Killed last Wednesday While Playing

While at play on the railroad track at Sandwich shortly after ten o'clock Wednesday morning, Elinor Rachel Anderson, two-year-old daughter of Enoch Anderson, an employe of the Sandwich Manufacturing Company, was run over by west bound passenger train No. 19 and instantly killed.

The little girl had accompanied her mother to the home of the late Marion Christopher, where Mrs. Anderson had gone to straighten up the house. Elinor went out in the yard to play and from there wandered over to the Lafayette street crossing. She was on her knees bending over the rail when the train approached. Her little dress fluttering in the sun light was mistaken at first by engineer J. Heitz as a newspaper. Then he applied the brakes but was unable to stop in time and the little girl's body was severed.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

RADICALISM IN THE SADDLE

Without a Definite Program, People Everywhere Are Demanding a Change in Present Conditions—Threat of "Direct Action."

Article XI.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Radicalism in Europe is rampant. The workers are active, the middle class sympathetic. The industrial centers are hotbeds. The conservatism of the farmers and peasants is breaking down. It is hard to define this radicalism—it is without form. It isn't a definite program, it isn't even political. The people are dissatisfied. The red flag is popular. It promises a short cut. It answers the cry of the impatient. I was surprised to see many of the very men who fought so gallantly under their country's flag and who but yesterday would have torn the red flag from the flagpole, now defending it, carrying it and following it. I am sure they do not know what the red flag stands for. To them it represents a protest against things as they are. Summed up in a word, the attitude of mind of the workers of Europe is eagerness for a change—some change—any change. Every one knows the symptoms, understands what is wrong, but the remedy is only vaguely discussed.

I attach much significance to the new attitude of organized labor in Europe. Labor unions formerly concerned themselves with wages, terms of employment, shop conditions, safety appliances, recognition of their right of collective bargaining. Since the war the labor movement has taken up questions entirely outside of its field, questions properly the concern of all the people, questions of government policy. I have in mind recent demands made by the working men in England, France and Italy. These demands were addressed to the regularly and properly elected representatives of the people, the governments. They were accompanied by threats of general strikes if they were not acceded to. This step is an innovation; it is revolutionary.

The working men are citizens and have a voice in the government equal with all other citizens. After the people have selected their representatives, the men chosen should be responsible to all of the people without regard to class or station. A government by one portion of the people is autocratic. Government of the people, for the people, and by the people, means all of the people. The effort on the part of a minority in the labor movement, who challengingly call themselves socialists, to dictate to the state, representing all of the people, is an attack upon democracy. If successful it would destroy the state and leave the great majority of the people, including the workers, less free than they are now. What sane man, whether he is a working man or not, is in favor of minority government?

Demands Hard to Understand.
I witnessed many demonstrations in Europe under the red flag, in which the leaders demanded three things from the government.

First, they demanded the release of all the men in jail who were held for political crimes. These included men found guilty of sedition and treason during the war. I cannot understand this demand. Why should men be released from jail who sought to stab in the back the men who went to the trenches to fight and die for freedom? I should much prefer to see all of the burglars released. If I am compelled to choose between the traitor and the burglar, I will have no trouble in making my decision.

Second, they demanded that no soldiers be sent to Russia. The agitation on this point was so strong that when the British government attempted to send soldiers to Russia last summer (1919), the soldiers mutinied, and so far as I am able to learn the feeling was so strong, the situation so critical, the government did not dare court-martial them.

Third, they demanded that all conscription laws be abolished. It is apparent that these demands, coming from a minority, backed by a threat, constitute an invasion of the rights of the people. The question isn't whether or not one believes these things should be done; the issue is the method resorted to. Personally I do not believe soldiers should be sent to Russia. In my opinion allied intermeddling has been stupid and harmful, but if these matters of general public policy are to be decided, all of the people should have a vote in making up the verdict.

When you consider this new attitude of labor in conjunction with the growing popularity of "direct action," it indicates that the labor movement is losing faith in law and political action. I am not saying that their experience with politics, their betrayal by men they have supported, the default of political parties to carry out pre-election pledges, may not be responsible for a distrust in political government. I am not denying that capital has had the ear of government more than it should; that property has been given more thought than human beings. I am concerned with the danger that these innovations promise, a danger to the working men themselves, a menace to law and order, without which no one is secure, without which there can be no freedom.

Political Action Called Failure.

I heard a speech in London that deeply impressed me. It was applauded by several thousand men and women—average good British working people. Most of the men wore service badges. The speaker, a clean young Englishman of about thirty-five, said: "Political action is a failure. We vote and we are betrayed. Political parties are the agents of bands of capital. Their purpose is to keep the workers apart, knowing that divided we are powerless. The only time they are willing we should unite is when war calls for men. What did we win in the war? Nothing. We thought we had a stake in the game, that the hand we were playing was our own. Now that it is over we have discovered that we won nothing."

"What did the working man ever get by voting, except the worst of it? The word vote comes from a Latin word, meaning 'to wish.' Who ever got anything by wishing?"
"We are like the story in Bellamy's 'Looking Backward.' You remember he spoke of a coach. On top of this coach the capitalists sit in the sunshine enjoying the ride. On the side of the coach, hanging by their fingernails and toenails are the hundreds of thousands who make up the middle class. Millions of men are pulling the coach. They are sweating and trudging—they are the working men. Running along the side of the coach are millions more, fighting to get a chance to get hold of the rope and pull the coach. They are the idle. There is only one thing to do. That is to stop pulling the coach, let go of the rope. Don't wish about it; do it. The fellows on the top of the coach don't do any wishing—they boss and drive."

The crowd cheered. There is some truth in the speech. It is true that the working man has not had a square deal, but the fact that he has not had fair treatment does not make the plan of direct action a sane, wise plan. Revolution would only lead to blood and disorder and leave the very men who revolted in a worse plight than they are now. The millions who are the majority have an infinitely better weapon than force. They have the ballot. They are in the majority. Men must think their way out of the wilderness. They cannot fight their way out. When they try to they go deeper in.

Bolshevism Finding Favor.

I found the word bolshevism in the minds and on the lips of the working people of Europe. I expected to find them anti-bolshevik if for no other reason than that bolshevism came from Russia and the bolsheviks made peace with Germany while the allies were in a death struggle with her with the result in doubt. I found them confessing their faith in bolshevism, speaking of it as a new religion, resenting the obstacles their own governments had placed in its way.

In Ireland, the last place I expected to find a leaning toward bolshevism, I found an open devotion to it. The Irish people are in many respects the most conservative in the world. The only radicalism they have ever shown is the revolutionary spirit expressed in uprisings for freedom. The Irish are a people of reminiscence and tradition. The Celtic mind is devoted to form and custom. I was present at the Irish Federation of Labor convention held in August, 1919, at Drogheda. The delegates to this convention, representing 300,000 union men and women, went on record almost unanimously for bolshevism. I later learned that few of them, if any, knew exactly what bolshevism was. I asked a leading spirit of the convention if he believed in communism, the abolition of the private ownership of property, and he said, "Of course not; that's rank nonsense; socialism; impossible and impractical." The pro and con of bolshevism has from the beginning been partisan and prejudiced. Working men are bolsheviks because employers are against it, and employers are against it because the men are for it.

Duty Before the World.

Millions of gallant young men have fought for the new world. Hundreds of thousands died to establish it. If we fall to honor the promise given to them we dishonor ourselves. What does a new world mean? What was the old world like? It was a world where toil for myriads of honest workers, men and women, purchased nothing better than squalor, penury, anxiety and wretchedness—a world scarred by slums and disgraced by sweating, where unemployment through the vicissitudes of industry brought despair to multitudes of humble homes; a world where, side by side with want, there was waste of the inexhaustible riches of the earth, partly through ignorance and want of forethought, partly through entrenched selfishness. If we renew the lease of that world we shall betray the heroic dead. We shall be guilty of the basest perfidy that ever blackened a people's fame.—David Lloyd George.

Golden Pheasant Feathers.

A considerable source of profit exists in the feathers of the golden pheasant, which are used in salmon fishing. These birds, which are natives of China, are the hardest of the pheasant tribe, and are not at all troublesome to rear in this country.

SILK RIVALS WOOL IN SUMMER SUITS

HOW ATTRACTIVELY outfitted the beautiful girl pictured here! She has arrived at a stunning appearance by employing simple means, and in this case the character of the fabric used is almost altogether responsible for the success of the costume. This is one of many spring suits made of heavy fiber silk, which are vying with those of wool materials in the spring displays. These silks have a brilliant luster and are woven in many novel patterns employing one or two colors. They have been used heretofore for sports wear, more than for any other, but progress in weaving them has opened a new field of usefulness and they are delighting designers by supplying a new and wonderful medium for street and formal suits.

There is a great variety of weaves in this modern silk, the crepe and ribbed effects predominating, with many new drop-stitch designs. These new weaves inspire designers to further efforts in the invention of styles suited to them. Such brilliant effects in the material make much decoration quite out of the question and this accounts for the simplicity which is so effective in suits and costumes that are made of colorful or lustrous fabrics. In the suit pictured two tones of color, gray and green, both in rather dark shades, are woven in plain crepe and checkerboard pattern. The plain weave makes the skirt and is used on the coat in collar and girdle. The collar merges into a facing below the waist-line. There is nothing to describe in the suit that may not be gathered from the picture. Its very long, close-fitting sleeves with fascinating frills of lace falling over the hands and the plaited jabot of wide, net-top lace, that plays the part of a vest at the front, are details that cannot be spared from the description.

Hat, shoes, stockings and parasol have all been carefully selected for this suit. The hat in light gray and dark green has a spice of black in narrow bands of patent leather, to give it sparkle. Shoes and stockings are gray and green predominates in the parasol where bands of black repeat the black note in the hat.

UNBLEACHED domestic cotton, in the heavy, strong qualities, is among the reliable things that the high cost of living has brought into new uses. A few women have made themselves bungalow aprons and house dresses of it for summer wear and it proves surprisingly attractive with a little simple needlework as its finish. Where it proves most useful is in attire for little folks in dresses and slips or aprons. The natural color makes a fine background for little figures worked in cross-stitch on pockets or belts—bunnies, chickens, birds, kittens and other small friends of the youngsters.

In the matter of price, for several things, the steady upward progress appears to have reached the point where women balk at paying it. They are demanding less expensive millinery for one thing and are determined to do without silk garments unless the prices become stable and less exorbitant for silk fabrics. In a few cities, leagues have been formed whose members pledge themselves to wear their clothes until they are worn out. Suits and dresses of wool are remodeled and worn with good grace since it is hard to get reliable goods even at the increased prices. Shoes are maintained by journeys to the repair shop—where new half soles and rehabilitated heels, give them a prolonged term of service. These economies are enforced in most cases, but it is a good thing that American women are going through this experience for they have long been accused of being the most extravagant and wasteful of civilized people.

This season there is a good chance to economize in millinery because hats include many shapes that were worn last year, or even in earlier seasons. Sailor shapes, wide brimmed leghorns, some of the "cloche" or drooping brimmed hats as well as toques and turbans of former seasons need only a little alteration to make them entirely up-to-date. The light colors that have become soiled, may be varnished with a darker color, or black, and it is the simplest thing in the world to do this work at home. There are several stains or varnishes on the market, usually for sale in drugstores, that are easy to apply. The vogue for dotted Swiss organdie in facings and trimmings suggests one way of bringing the hats of yesterday up-to-date. These materials are used over straw shapes and to make entire hats. Collars and cuffs to match the hat, made of the same Swiss or organdie, add the smartest kind of touch to a street outfit. Of course, every woman has a right to one new hat in the spring, but she is entitled to others if she is clever enough to make them herself and one that will hardly answer all purposes. Even if it would there is pleasure in a little variety in one's headwear.

Frocks Are Interesting.

Smart modes in dresses are in evidence on all sides, until it is difficult to pick out any one mode for word portrayal, but frocks of tricotine are decidedly interesting when developed with plaited skirts and tailored surplus bodices that wrap about the waist and finish with snash effect, the entire bodice being almost completely covered with Japanese embroidery.

A Lingerie Convenience.

Those who have had the annoyance of having the lingerie tape slip from the heading of camisole or gown will appreciate this simple hint. When the tape or ribbon is first put through the eyelets or heading, turn under the ends and sew a white pearl button to each end. The button should be large enough, of course, not to slip through the tape.

HEARTBROKEN MAN STARVES 23 DAYS

Wife Gone, He Crawls Into Woods Where He Is Found Emaciated.

Lathrop, Ind.—Not caring to live because his wife had taken his savings and eloped with another man, Melle Bellish, forty-three years old, crawled into a clump of bushes in the woods near his home to die of starvation. He was found 23 days later by farmers, clad only in summer underwear and a light serge suit. He lay in a clump of bushes, his body completely emaciated, too weak to call for assistance.

When taken to town $133 in cash was found in his clothes in addition to a bank book which showed a good account at a Lathrop bank. It is doubtful if he recovers.

After physicians had succeeded in reviving the man so that he was able to talk in low whispers, he said that 18 years ago he came to the United States from Vienna, leaving a wife and children behind and promising to send for them when he had saved enough to buy a small farm.

Then the war came on and his plans were thwarted. As soon after the armistice as he was able to get in communication with his wife he received a letter in which she said she would come to him if he would send $1,000 for transportation. He sent the money, but never heard from her again. Finally he wrote to relatives of the woman, who told him she had married another man.

THIS NEST MAKES HENS LAY

Egg Drops, Then Bell Rings Up the Owner—There Are Few False Alarms.

St. Louis.—A bell rang in the kitchen of the home of Robert W. Maxton of this city, and was followed by the cackling of a proud hen.

"There's someone at the door," a visitor suggested.

"Oh, no," replied Mr. Maxton. "One of my hens has just laid an egg."

Mr. Maxton was tired of supporting hens that would not lay, he explained, so he installed "trick nests" in his henhouse.

When a hen enters a nest, a door closes and imprisons the fowl until released by the owner. In this way Mr. Maxton ascertains what hens are laying the eggs.

An electric alarm is connected to the doors of the nests, and when a hen seeks exit by pressing against one of the doors, the bell in the kitchen rings.

The plan has worked successfully for several months, Mr. Maxton said, and there have been no false alarms.

SOLD 'DEAD CEMETERY' STOCK

Ghost Followed "Confidence Man" Through War and Into Jail.

St. Louis.—The ghost of a dead cemetery rose up and caused the arrest of Clarence R. Cronk.

Cronk is wanted in Chicago charged with operating a confidence game, because he started to put life in a cemetery proposition before the war.

"I told a banker about my scheme," Cronk said. "He said people are dying every day that never died before, and it's a good business."

Cronk said he put $500 in the dead cemetery proposition and sold $1,600 worth of stock.

"Then the war came along and the cemetery died," according to Cronk.

PURSE IN COW'S STOMACH

Pocketbook Is Recovered Intact From Animal Butchered in London.

London.—A cow's stomach has brought to light a purse which the little daughter of a postman at Worthing lost last summer.

It contained two coins, a button and a postage stamp. The child lost the purse in a field where she went on a school picnic and in which the cow was grazing. After the cow had been butchered recently, the purse was found intact in the stomach.

Your New Home should be made artistic, sanitary and livable.

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

How much better, when you have a new home, to start right than to have to correct errors afterward from former treatment with other materials, when you come to the use of Alabastine, as does nearly every one sooner or later.

Once your walls are Alabastined you can use any material over it should you desire, but having used Alabastine you will have no desire for any other treatment.

Alabastine is so easy to mix and apply—so lasting in its results—so absolutely sanitary—and so generally recognized as the proper decorative material in a class by itself that it is becoming difficult to manufacture fast enough to supply the demand.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

USES OF ASPIRIN

Bayer Company, who introduced Aspirin 18 years ago, give advice.

Aspirin created a sensation when introduced by Bayer over eighteen years ago. Physicians at once proved its wonderful efficiency in the relief of pain. The genuine, world-famous Aspirin, in "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is safely taken by millions for Colds, Headache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Earache, Toothache, Aching Joints, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Be sure the "Bayer Cross," which is the mark of true "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," is on each genuine package and each genuine tablet.

Boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents and contain proper directions. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoacetic-acidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

LONG SINCE HE HEARD WORD

Tramp Probably Would Have Needed Dictionary to Get Proper Definition of Morals.

The tramp was a long, skinny individual with a particularly villainous cast of countenance, and he wore a pair of trousers that had been designed for a man of at least three times his diameter. His rap on the farmhouse door brought out a sour, hard-faced puritanical woman who froze him with one glance and then proceeded to eye him up and down—especially down.

"You needn't ask me for anything," she said, harshly. "I can see that your morals are of the loosest kind and that you deserve nothing."

"Well, mum," replied the tramp, glancing down at his tattered garments, "mebbe so, though I ain't never heard 'em called that name before. Probly me taller ain't jes' up to date, but if you won't give me somethin' to help fill 'em out mebbe you'd spare me a bit of rope to hold 'em up with."—Exchange.

"No, but I've heard a lot of knocking when a piced-up supper was being served."

It seeps its harmful acids and gases all over the body, instead of health and strength. Day and night this ceaseless damage goes on. No matter how strong, its victim cannot long withstand the health destroying effects of an acid stomach.

Good news for millions of sufferers. Chemists have found a sure remedy—one that takes the acid up and carries it out of the body; of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well.

Electrical Heating in Industry

ELECTRIC ARC FURNACE MAKING ABRASIVES

It is only within the past decade that engineers have come to the realization that heat generated by electricity has enormous possibilities of industrial development. Of course it has always been known that electricity passing through a wire created heat of varying degrees and intensity, but formerly this was considered more in the light of an unavoidable nuisance than otherwise.

As the electrical industry developed, however, and central stations of ever-increasing size were built, engineers began to look for means whereby stations could sell their electricity to the best advantage to themselves and the customers they served.

The principal factor contributing to the increased use of electric heating appliances is the way in which they answer the modern demand for conservation—conservation not only in the saving of natural resources, but the saving of time, materials and the reduction of the uncertain "personal element" to a minimum, as well as the improvement of the product.

With the enormous amount of undeveloped hydraulic power in the country, it is not easy to predict where the final stopping point will be, because it is by water power that electrical energy can be most efficiently developed as regards money input versus output.

Most industrial heating of former days was obtained through three mediums—coal, oil or gas. Taking coal as an example in reaching the exceedingly high temperature necessary in some processes, 88 per cent of the B. T. U., or heat units, in a pound of coal are used up in merely raising the fuel and the excess air of the furnace to the required temperature, thus wasting the natural resources upon which we depend so much, and making the average industrial town anything but a healthful or pleasant place in which to live.

With electrical heat, temperatures that are impossible to fuel-generated heat are reached quickly, economically, and without any consequent defilement of the surrounding atmosphere. Along the same line of conservation, manufacturers are beginning to realize that the elimination of spoiled and unfit products, whether rendered so by inefficient and unreliable methods of heating, or by careless employees is just as much conservation as anything else.

The vast variety of processes to which electric heat is applicable has given rise to many devices for its use, ranging all the way from a metal-melting furnace, whose production is 15,000 pounds a day, through the oven field, to small metal melting pots with a capacity of 25 pounds of metal.

In the electrically-heated brass furnace both these conditions are absolutely under the control of the operator. There are several types of brass furnaces in use today: the arc type, which has no automatic control but a low first cost; the induction which just fits a field where productions can be placed on a 24-hour basis; the carbon resistor, best for temperatures not exceeding 1,000 C., and the muffled type, more expensive, but the only one that can be operated automatically.

This furnace can be operated at higher temperature than the carbon resistor type, and at the same time can be regulated to operate at low or temperatures economically, but with the additional feature of automatic control.

The electric furnace, in actual use, has reached the temperature of 3,500 C. Recent experiments in a research laboratory have, however, developed a furnace which gives a temperature of 4,500 C—enough to volatilize diamonds. A comparison of these temperatures with that of the sun, which is estimated at 5,000 C, gives a striking idea of what can be accomplished in handling refractory substances with electric heat.

HEAT-TREATING OVEN UNDER TEMPERATURE OF 850° C

ELECTRIC RIVET HEATER

There are other types of electric furnaces, which, although simple in construction, are capable of doing in one operation things which formerly took several heatings. In making shells, for example, for large caliber guns, it is necessary to expose different sections of the same shell to different degrees of heat.

The war was responsible for many new devices designed with a view to increasing production quickly. One of the things the government needed most was ships—lots of them, and in building ships an enormous amount of rivets have to be heated, and that quickly.

The result was the electric rivet heater. Rivets are now heated by inserting them between two copper bars carrying a heavy current, supplied by a transformer. Since the iron of the rivets themselves is a material of high resistance, they are heated thoroughly and quickly.

It is interesting to know that a new type of Japan is being developed which consists of an emulsion of the asphalt base with water, thus removing the fire hazard, besides being much cleaner to handle. This process is called water Japan.

Besides ovens, furnaces, and other devices mentioned, there are a number of small "individual" electrically-heated pots, furnaces, etc., for use in the shop, garage, or even at home.

Many of them are easily portable. In fact can be attached to almost any lighting or shop circuit. For work in a book binding or pattern shop for instance, the electrically-heated pot keeps the glue continuously at just the right temperature for use, but never burns it; the same may be said of the compound melting pot and the lead or babbitt melter, which are ideal for work around a garage or in a factory.

In spite of its growth in the last few years, the application of electrical heating to industry is only in its infancy. The time will undoubtedly come when the effort to conserve our natural coal and gas resources will cause it to assume much larger proportions.

Of these three classes of ovens, those installed for baking are the most numerous. The work they do varies: baking Japan on various articles,

COAL DUST LODGED IN MINER'S LUNGS

Tells how his cough was conquered and health restored.

"In November, 1918, I was working in a coal mine and the doctors said the coal dust had settled in my lungs. I couldn't lie down on my right side, coughed so I couldn't sleep and had constant pain in my right lung and under my shoulder blades. I coughed so hard the blood would spurt out of my nose. Finally the doctors had me change climate and live outdoors, but didn't improve."

"Then I came home and started on Milks Emulsion. Thank God I did, as it did me a lot of good right from the start, loosening up the coal dust in my right lung. In a few weeks my lungs went free. I could sleep like a baby, had an excellent appetite and my cough left me entirely. I gained back 30 pounds in weight and went back to work in the mines completely restored to health."

"This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. No matter how severe your case you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Most men are more prompt about paying a debt than a debt.

THE THREE ESSENTIALS

When you need a remedy there are three essentials which are decisive in your choice. The ingredients of the remedy must belong to those which are known to the medical science as the most effective; they must be of the desired purity and prepared in a way which guarantees the highest degree of their efficiency; and finally the price must be reasonable, especially today when the high cost of living forces us to the greatest economy. All this is accomplished by Triner's remedies, and that is why so many thousands of patients ask their druggist or dealer in medicines for Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine in case of constipation, poor appetite, headache, nervousness or other troubles connected with stomach disorders, for Triner's Liniment in case of rheumatic or neuralgic pains, sprains or swellings, for Triner's Cough Sedative in case of colds, etc. Triner's remedies give always a safe relief.—Joseph Triner Company, 1333-43 S. MAKING THE MARE GO

The money turn-over of the country is terrific in its intensity, as shown by the Federal Reserve statements, but the mere act of paying up Liberty bonds and then selling them or borrowing on them until your poor Uncle Sammie groans under the load, doesn't get the country anywhere. The process has been so theatrical that the liquidation seems almost like using "stage money." But when it comes to capital or industry the story is different, as there is not a free flow of money, such as is essential to the prosperity of trade and industry. There is a homely old saying that "it takes money to make the mare go," and the absence of the essential capital to make the investment market healthy is traceable to a large extent to the operations of the excess profits taxes, income taxes and inheritance taxes. The fadists started in to outdo Henry George in schemes for levying taxes, and during the war they put over so much of their program that they succeeded in demoralizing the investment market just at a time when railroad and industrial reconstruction needed to be unhampered in order to perform obligations which the public insistently demanded.

It cannot be overlooked that the Government expenses are out of all reason, and that there is every need for retrenchment. The economy cheese knife could pare public expenses by the billions, and it would be to the best interests of the country to "do this little thing," and to get rid of non-essential bureaus in the Government expenses to a point well within the Government revenues is one of the crying public demands.

A little of Governor Lowden's efficiency program injected into government affairs at Washington too is needed.

BULLYING THE PUBLIC

The recent strike of disgruntled railroad employees who refused to live up to the arrangements of their unions with the railroad companies, under which the railroads of the country are now being operated, has emphasized the fact that the public does not propose to stand idly by any longer and see its common rights trodden upon by anybody. Citizens from all walks of life volunteered to keep the passenger trains running during the outlaw strike, and a number of trains were operated out of New York to the suburban towns with business men, town officials, engineering students and clerks as volunteer firemen, trainmen, etc. The New York Evening World commented editorially that "such railroad experience as it could muster furnished willing firemen and trainmen," and that it moved a goodly number of trains and demonstrated that if necessary it could move many more." Evidently the time has come when a strike without public support is precarious, and it is also evident that the public will no longer let itself be walked over and bullied; but on the contrary this same public has demonstrated that it is willing to take matters into its own hands—and emerge as master of the situation. It is doubtful whether there has ever been so splendid an example of the ability of the public to take care of itself as was shown in the outlaw strike and there is a striking indication in the events that have occurred of the great change in sentiment towards the railroads. Evidently the public has come to realize that their interests and the interests of the railroads are interests in common. This changed attitude of the public toward railroads is plainly reflected in the broad and statesmanlike way in which the Interstate Commerce Commission is now going about its task of carrying out the provisions of the Transportation Act through which it is hoped to put the railroads on a solid credit foundation so that they can adequately expend and carry efficiently the business of the country.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

"I like to hear a man talk that way. I despise modesty in business. Of course you are coming in with us? As I said, we shall require five additional millions, perhaps more, to work the thing properly. There is no need now to go into further details. You understand the situation even better than I do." He paused.

"Since this is Saturday," said Fitzhugh, "and since nothing can be gained by your knowing my decision before Monday, I shall meet you Monday morning at ten o'clock and will then give you my answer."

A slight frown appeared on Otis' thin face. He began gathering up his data. "Very well. At what place?"

"At my brokers—Shirley & Co., in the Merrimac block."

"At ten? Very well. I know already what your answer will be—an emphatic 'yes.'" Suddenly he stood up, with a sweeping gesture, as though to force into the background everything pertaining to business. "Now let's talk no more shop. We've had enough for one night."

While they were exchanging parting words the hall door opened and Mrs. Otis and Kathleen entered.

Fitzhugh's heart seemed to stop for the infinitesimal part of a second, and then, as Kathleen came down the hall, it leapt, bounded, raced on with maddening speed. He tingled to his fingertips. It was the first time he had seen her since that moonlight night two summers ago. Then, with the soft June moon on her glorious hair, a gauzy scarf over her bare shoulders, he had thought her exquisite, ethereal. Now, with her sables, her turban of white fur, the tang of the frosty night in her glowing skin, he thought her ravishing, distractingly beautiful.

Momentarily Otis seemed to hesitate, as though reluctant to do something that might afterward earn him a rebuke. But as Kathleen and her mother drew near he intercepted them with his guest and presented him, first to his wife then to his daughter.

As the girl spoke an acknowledgment of Fitzhugh's salutation she looked up for the first time into his eyes. The next instant she started visibly, and, seemingly unconscious of her act, did a rather singular thing: she came very close to him and looked searchingly into his face. The bright color heightened in her cheeks. Her fingers closed convulsively on the muff she carried. Her eyes traveled swiftly over him to his feet, and came to rest again on his face. She seemed in a state of bewilderment.

Then, recovering her composure as quickly as she had lost it, she murmured something conventional and was gone.

He never quite knew, when he found himself walking rapidly down the drive, with the snow swirling round him, how he got there. His brain was in a whirl, his pulse on fire, and over and over he repeated to himself: "She's wonderful—more wonderful than ever. . . . And she knows me!—knows me—Of them all she is the only one. . . ."

His appointment was with Hunt at a Michigan avenue club. It was here he renewed the third acquaintance of that memorable day. A "quiet little game" was brewing in an upper room, and he arrived in time to join at the beginning. The first deal fell to him, and as he shuffled the cards in high feather, exchanging quips with the men around the table, he felt his obvious good spirits, the door behind him opened and some new players entered.

The next moment Fitzhugh was being introduced to the new arrivals. "Mr. Fitzhugh, this is Artie Sparkle." A foppish young man, smiling vacuously, came forward with mincing step and held out a flabby, bejeweled hand.

The "quiet little game" lasted all Saturday night and until late Sunday afternoon. Fitzhugh's Golden Goddess, Luck, frowned upon him at first and he lost steadily; but later his superior playing began to tell, and as her inclemency gradually turned to smiles he won much faster than he had lost. He was decidedly the master of the others.

Artie Sparkle lost continually. Also, he continually drank. It was not quite clear whether his adversity was responsible for his intemperance, or vice versa, but certainly as his libations increased he played the more recklessly. He distributed his paper freely, but as he became more intoxicated there was a decided reluctance to the advances. At length he was flatly refused and advised to go to bed.

At this point Fitzhugh, who so far had loaned him nothing, removed the requested number of chips from his generous heap and shoved them across the table to the tipsy one, who with much difficulty counted them and gave an exchange his I O U for five hundred dollars. They soon went the way of the rest, and he sat slumped down in his chair, his arms dangling limply at either side, his head sunken, his mouth open, leaning stupidly from under drooping lids.

Fitzhugh caught his wandering eye. "Better try another stack, Sparkle," he invited in a friendly way, and began cutting off a small section of his chip pile. "How many may I help you to, Sparkle?"

Artie struggled valiantly to speak distinctly. "A thou—a thou—a big! a thousand, or shap."

With considerable slowness and deliberation the transaction was made, and Fitzhugh pocketed Artie's I O U for a thousand dollars.

The early winter darkness had closed in before the game ended, and most of the gamblers were ready for bed.

Very quietly Fitzhugh went in turn to all those who had taken Artie's I O U's and bought them in. In all they amounted to over eight thousand dollars, and the ones he himself held brought the total to ten thousand five hundred.

Fitzhugh was alone in a private compartment of his broker's office on Monday morning when, promptly at ten, Otis entered. With a brief "Good morning," the capitalist came straight to the point.

"You are with us, Fitzhugh?"

"Sit down, Otis. Make yourself comfortable. Try one of these cigars? You'll find them of an excellent flavor."

Otis took a cigar from the proffered case and sat on the edge of the only remaining chair in the small room. Resting a long hand on his knee, he tapped his wiry fingers impatiently against his leg. He was a little annoyed by Fitzhugh's easy cordiality. He never liked to mix good fellowship with business.

"Well? You are coming in with us?"

"For all I am worth."

"Good!" Otis sat back a little farther on his chair and smiled his satisfaction. "Good for you."

"What we want most of all just now is cash?"

"Yes, and lots of it."

Fitzhugh took out his check book, rested it on the small writing table,

"No!" Artie Jumped Violently. "You Let Me Have No Such Sum. It's a Falsehood!"

dipped a pen in the ink. "I will give you my check now for two hundred thousand."

Otis returned to the edge of his chair. "We must have at least half a million now, and perhaps five millions altogether. I thought we went into all that Saturday night."

"So we did. And I repeat I am with you for all I am worth."

Otis removed the glasses from his aquiline nose, and, twirling them on his finger, looked at the younger man inquiringly.

"I don't believe I quite understand you," he said.

"Didn't I speak distinctly? I say again I am ready to pool my interests with yours to the last cent I possess."

He opened his check-book, filled in the date, stamped with pen poised. "Will you take my check for two hundred thousand?"

While Fitzhugh talked a great light had been dawning upon his caller. It now burst upon him effulgently and he saw the truth. He stood up.

"I understand," he said icily. "I hardly think there is need for further words."

He turned to go. But suddenly the thought of how simply he had been "taken-in" became too much even for his half-starved sense of humor. He stopped at the door.

"It was very cleverly done," he congratulated. "You are a gifted actor."

"Then you won't accept my check?"

"No. This is no game for rabbits to play in."

Fitzhugh smiled. "So you think I am a rabbit?"

Otis deemed the question unworthy an answer, and the door closed behind him.

CHAPTER IX.

Monday afternoon Fitzhugh rang the doorbell of Artie's apartment. Soon Artie appeared.

"My business," explained Fitzhugh, when the servant had gone, "has to do with your I O U's which I hold."

"Av, yes. You did let me have a few hundreds, I remembah."

"The total amount," said Fitzhugh, "is eleven thousand dollars."

"No!" Artie jumped violently. "You let me have no such sum. It's a falsehood!"

"Don't get excited. I bought in all your paper after the game. It totals eleven thousand dollars, just as I said."

Artie sprang to his feet, and, lighting a cigarette, began pacing nervously to and fro. Tossing the cigarette aside, he sat down, resting his elbow on his knee, and passed his hand shakily across his brow.

"I can't do anything for you now," he muttered, without looking up. "My allowance is overdrawn and I'm in a hole. You'll have to wait, that's all."

"Have I said I wouldn't?" suggested Fitzhugh.

Artie looked up quickly, a sudden glad hope leaping to his pale eyes.

"Then you won't press me for it?" he wondered eagerly.

"I may not ask you for it at all. I may make you a Christmas present of the entire batch, if you—"

"Only command me! I'll do anything you say."

"The last three days," continued Fitzhugh, watching the effect of his words, "I've had detectives working for me on a rather delicate matter. They were making a secret investigation of you and your family. I know to a nicety your financial status, your social standing, and I knew before I came here that you were unusually hard up at present. I need a social valet, and I'm willing to give you the job."

"My dear fellow—"

"I shall want to join the best clubs. Your part is obvious. You will introduce me to people whom I wish to meet, you will procure me the entrée to homes I wish to enter. There will be other commissions which I shall give you from time to time, and as you fulfill them I will return, one by one, your I O U's."

The effect of the proposal upon Artie was somewhat singular. He screwed up his mouth in a ludicrous manner and emitted a sound that was a cross between a baby's cry of delight and the screech of a peacock.

"It's excruciating!" he cried, when he found his breath. "It'll be frightful fun." He sobered suddenly. "Aw—I say! One teeny-weeny peep at the slips, what?"

Fitzhugh showed him the I O U's and he nodded his head brightly.

Then his mirth overcame him a second time and he went off into another peal of delight.

While Fitzhugh sat watching him in critical silence a servant entered and announced several callers.

"Ask 'em to toddle right in." Then, turning on Fitzhugh: "I'll try you on my friends—what?" He smiled prettily.

"I suppose I can stand it."

The four or five young men who entered were, for the most part, of Artie's class. They were faccid, listless, seemingly consumed with ennui and a weary of the world. They talked languidly of tailors and different makes of motorcars. They expressed lukewarm preferences for a certain brand of cigarette or a particular kind of mixed drink. None had any individuality but all were cut from the same pattern.

Some time later, in the street below, Fitzhugh paused a moment in the falling snow and spoke feelingly to himself.

"It's enough," said he, "to make a man stop posing."

Then he went home, addressed an envelope to Kathleen Otis, slipped therein a one-dollar bill and after it a card, upon which he wrote:

"May you have a Merry Christmas! Is the wish of him who bought the soap and water."

Fitzhugh planned well in making Artie his "social valet." After that Monday conference in his broker's office he had surmised the relations between himself and Otis would therefore be unamicable. His surmise proved correct when not long afterward he met Otis and his wife one Sunday on the drive. He doffed his silk hat with a Chesterfieldian gesture—and was rewarded for his cordialness by being ignored more pointedly than if he had been an utter stranger.

Clearly after this there was but one way for him to see Kathleen, and that was by the aid of Artie Sparkle.

Fitzhugh never required a second attempt to scale the citadel of any home, no matter how "exclusive" that home might be. He immediately became "the sensation" wherever he went. What with his distinguished appearance, his flashing wit, his skill at repartee, and, above all else, his gift of adapting himself readily to any role and playing it with avidity, his popularity was of a wondrous growth. He never lacked an audience, nor did he ever fail to keep one hanging on his every word.

But Fitzhugh had little time to be a society pivot. Though he was becoming a lion he seldom went out to roar. Only when he believed he should see Her would he accept any of the invitations.

BRAINS, NOT COMMONLY USED.

Brains, not commonly used as food. The above title can be truthful, with the two meanings, for if we used our brains more in the performance of our household duties we might save much labor and material; however, the subject of this article is to be the cooking and serving of brains. Brains have a delicate tissue that makes them suitable for many dishes which call for a tender meat. Remove the skin and fibers, place the brains in a dish and cover with cold water to which has been added a tablespoonful of vinegar. Let stand for two hours, changing the water once or twice. Then drain and cover with boiling water and just simmer on the back part of the stove. Drain and cool, and they are ready for use. Brains of beef, sheep, or pork are used equally well in any of these dishes:

Brains, Oyster Style.—Prepare the brains as in the above directions, separate into serving-sized pieces, dip each in beaten egg, then roll in flour or crumbs and fry in hot fat until a golden brown. Serve with cold slaw.

Brains a la Newberg.—Cut the prepared brains into one-inch pieces. Place one cupful of thick, rich white sauce in a chafing dish with the brains, add two tablespoonfuls of butter or any substitute; season with salt and pepper, with a dash of lemon juice. Heat to the boiling point, stirring to keep from scorching, add a beaten egg and when well mixed serve at once on toast.

Brains Omelet.—Dice half a cupful of brains that have been prepared and cooked, melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the brains, stir a few minutes, add three tablespoonfuls of cream, season with salt and pepper. Make an omelet, using four eggs, place the brains in the center and roll into shape. Serve at once.

Pork Brains Cutlets.—Prepare the brains; then put through a food chopper, using the coarse knife; add to the brains one cupful of thick cream sauce, one-half cupful of bread crumbs and season with salt, pepper and a little lemon juice. Mix well and pour out on a large platter to cool. When cold mold into cutlets, dip in egg, flour, and fry in hot fat until brown.

The flush of youth soon passes from the face, The spells of fancy from the mind depart; The form may lose its symmetry, its grace, But time can claim no victory o'er the heart.

COMMON DAILY FOOD.

Here is a luncheon dish which will be enjoyed and may be served with liver and bacon.

Spoon Bread.—Mix one pint of coarse cornmeal, the white variety, add one-half teaspoonful of salt and enough hot water to make a paste. Then cool and add one egg, a pint of buttermilk, one teaspoonful of soda; separate the white and yolk of the egg. Pour into a hot, well-buttered baking dish and bake in a hot oven. Serve from the baking dish.

Boston Brown Bread.—Mix together one cupful each of whole wheat and graham flour, one teaspoonful of soda and one cupful of cornmeal. Add two cupfuls of sour milk, one teaspoonful of salt, and one-half cupful of molasses. Beat well and turn into well-greased, pound baking powder cans. Cover tightly and steam two hours. Remove cover and dry off fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Slice while hot with a string. Raisins and nuts may be added if desired.

Rice Soup.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of rice water, add one cupful of hot milk in which a slice of onion has been cooked. Melt a tablespoonful of butter, add a tablespoonful of flour, salt and pepper to taste. Cook all together, adding at the last one tablespoonful of chopped parsley.

Potatoes Baked With Cheese.—Put a layer of cold boiled potatoes cut in thin slices into a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, then add a thin layer of grated cheese. Repeat until the dish is two-thirds full. Add a white sauce to cover the potatoes, then buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven about thirty minutes.

Spiced Meat.—Chop fine the tough ends of the beefsteak, add a small piece of suet, season with salt, pepper and any savory herbs, one-half cupful of dry oatmeal, one-half cupful of bread crumbs and enough strained tomato to moisten. Make this into a roll and use with the steak rolled around it. Bake as you would a roast. Add onion juice or a half of a clove of garlic if desired.

COMBINATION DISHES WITH EGGS

Often a cupful of cereal, rice, macaroni or meat may be placed out with a few eggs to make a most nutritious main dish.

Sausage Scramble.—Take one cupful of cooked sausage meat, mix with several beaten eggs and cook until the eggs are set. Serve with buttered toast.

Mexican Eggs.—Split three green peppers lengthwise and take out the seeds. Fry in hot fat until well cooked. Fry six thin slices of ham and place on slices of toast; lay the peppers over the ham and put a fried or poached egg on each slice.

Spanish Eggs.—Cook together one cupful of stewed and strained tomato, one clove of garlic finely minced, one chopped onion and two green peppers chopped. Cook gently until reduced to one-half. Spread on thin slices of toast and lay a fried egg on each slice.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.—Prepare circles of toast with the centers of each slice slightly scooped, leaving a depression. Spread with butter, then fill the hollow with creamed cheese. This may be grated cheese mixed with hot cream to form a paste. Arrange on a hot platter, break an egg on each piece of toast and sprinkle with cheese; place in a hot oven until the eggs are set.

Baked Eggs With Ham.—Make a cream sauce and add to it one cupful of finely minced cooked ham. Butter custard cups, break an egg into each, place in a pan of water in a hot oven until the eggs are firm. Spread the minced ham on slices of toast and turn the eggs on top. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and minced parsley.

Eggs With Creamed Celery.—Make a cream sauce and add enough boiled celery cut in small pieces to serve as a vegetable. Spread on buttered toast and lay a poached egg on each slice. The coarser portions of celery may be used for this dish, using a little water as possible in cooking and adding what is left for flavor to the white sauce.

Then keep your gold, but leave to me The soul to feel, the eyes to see. I am content. By right divine The wealth of all the world is mine. —Helen Hawthorne.

GOOD THINGS FOR LUNCHEON.

A dessert which is good, easy to prepare and serve, is the following:

Quick Bread Pudding.—Cut thin slices of bread into two-inch squares and arrange in a buttered baking dish with layers of raisins, chopped figs or canned grated pineapple. Pour over it four cupfuls of sweetened milk, in which two eggs have been beaten. Set the dish into a hot oven and bake 20 minutes.

Prune Souffle.—Soak eighteen prunes over night and stew until tender. Remove the stones and rub the prunes through a sieve until the pulp is smooth. Beat the whites of eight eggs to a stiff froth. Add seven tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, fold in the prune pulp carefully, turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake twenty minutes. Serve immediately or it will fall.

Oyster Rarebit.—Beat one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add one teaspoonful of chopped onion and the same of parsley. Add three eggs well beaten, one cupful of grated cheese and one cupful of oysters which have been parboiled in their own liquor, then drained. Cook until creamy, stirring constantly and serve on toast. The cheese used should be very mild or the oyster flavor will be spoiled.

Bordeaux Pudding.—Cut sponge cake into three layers, spread with jam, put together again, cover with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Serve on a platter.

Liver With Onion Sauce.—Dredge slices of liver with seasoned flour and fry brown in pork fat. Put the liver on a warm platter. Fry a cupful of chopped onions in the remaining fat in the pan until a slight brown. Add a tablespoonful of vinegar and pour the sauce over the liver.

Mocha Pudding.—To one cupful of brown sugar add half a cupful of butter, one cupful of strained coffee, one egg, two cupfuls of bread crumbs, one cupful of cooked prunes and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. When baked until brown, serve with the following sauce: One cupful strained coffee, one cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of butter, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and cloves, boiled to

SEEKS FOE OF JAP BEETLE GOT MARK TWAIN STIRRED UP

Specialist Has Been Detailed to Bring to This Country Enemy of Horticultural Pest.

The Japanese beetle is going to have its old enemies on its trail in this country. The United States department of agriculture has sent a man to Japan to find those enemies and send them across the ocean. They will then be established in the sections of New Jersey where the beetle has gained a foothold, and they are expected to aid greatly in the control of the pest.

The agent employed in Japan is familiar with Japanese conditions and is a specialist in this kind of work. It is expected that the task will require his sojourn in Japan for two or three years. While something is known of the parasites of the Japanese beetle a great deal is still to be learned only under field conditions where the beetle lives with all the enemies that prey upon it. The beetle reached this country with importations of greenhouse plants, and thus far apparently has been comparatively free from molestations by natural enemies.

Otherwise Content.

Easily Remedied.

A naval officer said at a banquet in New York: "Some of the war stories that I hear remind me of Mark Twain. Mark, you know, once sat in the smoking room of a steamer and listened for an hour or two to some remarkable lies. Then he drew:

"Boys, these feats of yours that you've been telling about recall an adventure of my own in Hannibal. There was a fire in Hannibal one night, and old man Hankinson got caught in the fourth story of the burning house. It looked as if he was a goner. None of the ladders was long enough to reach him. The crowd stared at one another with awed eyes. Nobody could think of anything to do. Then all of a sudden, boys, an idea occurred to me. 'Fetch me a rope!' I yelled. Somebody fetched a rope, and with great presence of mind I flung the end of it up to the old man. 'Tie her round your waist!' I yelled. Old man Hankinson did so and I pulled him down."

Strong and Well.

"I suffered untold agony with my kidneys for years," says John Barnett, 30 Virginia Place, Buffalo, N. Y. "Sometimes I felt that I would burn up with fever, but every now and then would have a severe chill. Often my clothes were wringing wet with perspiration. The kidney secretions were unnatural in color and odor, and burned terribly. At night my shoes were so tight on my feet that I could hardly get them off and my hands swelled so I couldn't hold a teacup. My back! Oh, how it ached! I walked with two canes and was all bent over like an aged man. When the terrible pains shot through my kidneys my knees would give way, and many times I had to be lifted to my feet by people on the street. I don't care whether I lived or died I was so miserable. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me of all kidney trouble. Doan's made me strong and well."

Excess Profits Tax Should Go; It Is the Friend and Helper of H. C. L.

By WILLIAM C. REDFIELD, Former Secretary of Commerce

The crying need of the hour is production. This view is voiced by every statesman and economist of Europe and America. The world is bearing a heavy burden of debt and debts can be paid only by earning the means with which to pay them and the only means of earning is by producing. Production is the direct and the most efficient attack upon the current high prices. The present figures at which goods are sold could not be maintained in the presence of a supply double that which exists, and even the production of one-half more than at present would go far to reduce the direct tax upon us all arising from high prices.

The excess profits tax is a restrainer of production and a direct friend and helper to the high cost of living. It is, so far as the investment of capital in productive enterprises is concerned, an encourager of hesitancy. It removes the incentive to quantity production. It imposes a penalty upon the process the world needs most.

The effective way to reduce excess profits is to produce large quantities of goods and this production itself inevitably reduces prices and excess profits go down with them. To restrain by special and heavy taxation the processes of large production because of the fear of large profits from such production is at once a misunderstanding of economic processes and a means of avoiding the very thing which is sought.

The excess profits tax ought to go. It is unscientific and forms a direct obstacle to that large production upon which for the time all efforts should center.

Loss of Faith Is the Cause of the Demoralization of the World.

By JAMES A. DAVIS, Chicago Advertising Man.

There is demoralization in all the affairs of the world. The cause of the demoralization is nowhere else than in the loss of faith. Faith, after all, is the stabilizer of civilization. On faith is based all that matters in this life. Governmental, commercial, professional, private and domestic affairs can be carried on and sustained only by faith. Without that high attribute what would our form of government amount to? Without it, why and how long should a democracy last?

If we could cut out discussing alleged causes of present conditions and do our best to remedy those conditions through faith in each other, faith in the spoken, the written and the printed word, faith in agreement, faith in statement, faith in good intent and above all, faith in our institutions and the soundness of our institutions, many, if not all, of our present troubles would melt away like mist before the summer sun. Through such a faith there will be evolved by united high-motived individual endeavor, a way out of every complication, economic, political and social, to a sound, prosperous and stable conclusion.

If each of us will carry on with eyes front, head up, in step, facing the only problem before us, that of justifying ourselves as the hope of the world, we will bring our great country through all its problems, financial, political, industrial and social to where it belongs, the advance guard, guide and arbiter of peace and destinies of the nations of the world.

Give Us Better Roads That the Motor Truck May Come Into Its Own.

By J. OGDEN ARMOUR, Chicago Packer

There is no more serious problem before us today than the matter of reducing the cost of getting the products of the farm to the table of the consumer. One step, at least, in the solution is plain—better roads.

As an instrument of economy the motor truck has not yet come into its own. Efficient servant as it is in certain restricted realms, it now awaits the further development of interurban and country highways to reach the measure of its full attainment. It has power and speed that put it outside the class of the horse-drawn vehicle, and a nimbleness and flexibility which gives it a certain advantage over the railways. It is my expectation to see it assume more, and more the function of the "short haul" as its own peculiar province: in part relieving the railways of those duties which they are least able to perform, and in part expanding the field of our national transportation system.

I say, therefore, all speed to the good road movement! It will cheapen our methods of distribution and help to bring the people of our country closer to each other. I commend its common sense and practical wisdom. It may be less spectacular than some of our other national issues, but it strikes deep into the roots of fundamental progress.

Young Men Looking for Good Dancing Partners Choose Homely Girls.

By LOUIS GUYON, Chicago Dance Hall Proprietor

The homely girls dance much better than their pretty sisters. As the manager of a dancing floor where thousands of both ugly and pretty girls do their hop, skip, jump and drag of the new dances, I have observed closely and I know whereof I speak.

Ugly girls make the best dancers. They are more graceful than pretty girls because they are more serious and work harder to make up for lack of facial beauty.

A pretty girl relies on her looks to get partners. An ugly girl goes to dancing with earnestness and is soon far better at the art. She studies how to be charming and eclipses her beautiful sisters in attractiveness very often.

Pretty girls are lazy and indifferent as a rule. They are apt to be conceited and to feel that the world is at their feet. It is, for a day and only a day. Then the other girls have their innings.

It is apparent to me every night that the young men who want skillful partners in dancing choose the ugly girls first.

MAN ROBS 250 HOMES

Quantity Production Burglar Proves to Be Gay Lothario—Helps Victims Sort Out Their Stuff From Loot.

Detroit, Mich.—Edward Franz, quantity production burglar, whose activities during the last six months included the robbery of 250 homes in Detroit, netting loot valued at $80,000, freed the real husband of the woman with whom he eloped. The elopement followed an introduction at a dance last October, and the meeting of the two men took place at the Vinewood avenue police station; but Ora Sherman, the bona fide husband of "Mrs. Margaret Franz," upset all the dope hazarded by psychologists as to what would happen at such meetings.

Franz measured Sherman coolly with his gray eyes and Sherman, with an almost mischievous smile lurking at the corners of his mouth, extended his hand toward Detroit's ace of burglars, according to the police account of the meeting.

"Franz, you have got her, and I'm glad of it," Sherman is quoted as having told the man who had broken up his home. "Keep her, for as far as I am concerned, I am through with her."

Sherman had said to the police previously he had never been able to provide his wife with enough finery to suit her.

200 Cases Identified.
Just 200 burglary complaints have been traced to Franz, according to Detectives Mitchell and O'Dell of Vinewood station. Monday's investigations were augmented by a tour of the pawnshops, during which Franz pointed out to Detectives Gill and Stenhouse of Central station, watches and other articles of jewelry which he had placed in pawn during the six months. Eight watches were found by these officers, their value totaling $200.

Meanwhile, the property room at Vinewood station has become the rendezvous of West side residents whose homes have been entered recently. The stacks of costly silks and satins which Franz stole for his "wife" are slowly diminishing in size as articles are identified by the rightful owners.

"You Have Her, and I'm Glad of It."

Displaying a willingness to cooperate with the police in the work of identifying his loot, Franz was observed Monday afternoon assisting Frank Love, whose home, at the corner of Warren avenue and Twenty-eighth street, was robbed recently, in the recovery of his property.

Had the Links On.
"What did you do with my gold cuff links?" Love asked Franz after every article the burglar had taken from the home, with the exception of the links, had been picked from the pile of loot.

Franz smiled and calmly rolled up his sleeves, revealing the missing links, remarking whimsically concerning the difficulties he had experienced in gaining access to the Love residence.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia; and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

SATURDAY ONLY

It will be some time before we get the Lembke stock of dry goods cleaned up, and as we go along we will find items that must be disposed of, even at a sacrifice in money, tho in reality an advantage to us in the long run. It will be our constant aim to keep the stock up to the market in styles. With that object in view it will be necessary to occasionally sell goods below regular selling price in order to move them quickly and avoid carrying "old stock." Here are a few bargains we are offering for Saturday, May 15.
