

AFTER THE AUTO LAW VIOLATORS

Secretary of State Emmerson Will Soon Appoint Investigators

"WILL EARN THEIR OWN SALARY"

Mayors of DeKalb and Sycamore Aroused by the Speed Fiends of this County

The new law giving Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson power to appoint investigators to co-operate with local authorities in enforcing automobile and road laws will save the State at least $250,000 a year, the automobile department of the Secretary's office estimates. This amount has been escaping annually because there has not been adequate law enforcement machinery.

The increase of more than 500 per cent in the amount of money collected in automobile license fees under Secretary Emmerson, it is pointed out, has been due partly to the co-operation he has secured from local authorities. With this new agency under his direction, he expects observance of the law to approach 100 per cent.

"While only a few investigators will be employed, Secretary Emmerson said, by sending them to communities where the law has been loosely enforced, and by establishing complete co-operation between the investigators and the local authorities throughout the State, much can be accomplished. The investigators will have the powers of constables and can make arrests in any county.

Local officials, generally speaking, have shown commendable interest in arresting violators of the law requiring automobile licenses, but the need of some agency with state-wide powers to assist in the detection of less obvious violations and to act in communities where local authorities are negligent, has long been recognized. As all of the money collected in automobile license fees goes into the fund for the construction of hard roads, every citizen is directly interested in strict compliance with the law.

The investigators will assist local authorities in discovering and punishing those who own two cars and buy but one set of license plates; automobile dealers who buy but one set of license plates and use car board figures for several other cars; owners of trucks who operate them under a passenger car license and the hundreds of drivers of delivery trucks and many private chauffeurs who neglect to secure chauffeur licenses."

If the estimate of the automobile department is correct, the investigators will force the collection of more than five times the amount of the appropriation for their salaries and expenses. In addition, Secretary Emmerson explains, they will assist in eliminating speeding and other violations of the laws of the road which now make traveling dangerous.

In providing for these investigators, the legislature repealed the provision for volunteer investigators who served without pay. It was found that while these did some good, they lacked the authority necessary to make them effective.

A Special Officer

Aroused at the apparent disregard of the Motor Vehicle Laws by motorists, Mayors Lewis of DeKalb and Brown of Sycamore, have decreed that reckless driving and speeding must stop and the laws and ordinances in regard to dimming lights and open cut-outs must be observed. They have secured the services of a special officer whose duty it is to arrest all offenders in the cities of DeKalb and Sycamore.

The following were arrested for speeding on Wednesday in the city of Sycamore and were brought up for hearing before Police Magistrate Z. B. Mitchell on Thursday.

Sigurd Olson charged with driving more than 30 miles an hour on Somonauk Street.

Leslie Strong charged with driving more than 50 miles an hour on DeKalb Avenue.

W. S. Loinaur charged with driving more than 28 miles an hour on DeKalb Avenue.

This being their first offense they were all warned and each fined $10 and costs. The cases were prosecuted by State's Attorney Poust.

"WELCOME CHILDREN"

Story of Nine Homeless Children Seeking Shelter from the Storm

One of the most satisfying human stories that has ever found its way to the screen is told in "Welcome Children," a National Exchange comedy-drama which will be seen at the Opera House on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, July 12 and 13. The picture is a remarkable human document.

In vivid fashion the picture tells the story of nine homeless, parentless youngsters who face the world alone and ask from it only a haven to shelter them from the storms. Hard to believe, though it may be, these youngsters of the make-believe world experience rebuff after rebuff exactly as do the children of the real world.

Those who may wish to defend what seems an intolerable situation by pointing to the fact that the present housing shortage has brought things to such a pass that children are no longer wanted, will become the most earnest advocates of immediate measures for relief of the situation, once they have seen "Welcome Children."

One of the strongest features of "Welcome Children" is the fact that it points out with almost brutal frankness the fact that while doors are closed in the faces of helpless children, they swing open readily to grown-ups far less desirable. In the telling of its story "Welcome Children" brings many a tear to the eye, and then promptly dries it with a veritable gale of laughter. No one can sit through "Welcome Children" without being stirred to the utmost. See this great picture at the Opera House next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

SPEEDERS BEWARE

Judge Mitchell of Sycamore Will Get You Sure

The following violators of the speed laws were taken before Police Magistrate Z. B. Mitchell in Sycamore Tuesday:

Hayden Goodly charged with driving at 27 miles per hour in Sycamore was fined $10.00 and costs.

Ross Hintzsche charged with going at the rate of 25 miles per hour was fined $10.00 and costs.

Robt. Struck charged with driving with only one light and no tail light was fined $5.00 and costs.

Hirsh Dumas charged with driving at 28 miles per hour was fined $10.00 and costs.

State's Attorney Poust prosecuted all cases.

PHANTOM GUNMAN AGAIN

After an absence of several weeks, the "phantom gunman" is again terrorizing motorists near New Milford. He made his re-appearance last Wednesday night, adopting the same tactics that he used previously. Revolver shots were fired at a half dozen passing motorists and a barb wire was stretched from fence to fence at windshield height. None of the bullets struck their human targets.

In Winnebago county officialdom the belief is growing that the murder of Mrs. Maude Lucile Moss, daughter of Bion J. Arnold and wife of a Camp Grant officer, will be solved.

Enthusiasm at American Legion Thursday Evening of Last Week

OPEN SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION

Several Speakers Give Voice to Sentiment in Regard to Movement

"Will It Pay?"

Ask any one of those who attended the meeting at the opera house last Thursday evening and they will tell you that it will pay, if enthusiasm is any indication of sentiment.

Will it pay it instruct citizens in the principles, precepts and practices of American government? That is the question asked. Every citizen is patriotic when urged by enthusiasm, but the idea of the Layard Brown Post of the American Legion is to create patriotism thru a thorough understanding of the principles of this government. We all think we understand, but how many really do? There is an opening for study and instruction along this line, and Layard Brown Post is giving an opportunity for instruction.

At the meeting Thursday there was little opportunity to get down to brass tacks, it being more of a meeting for ratification of the plan. Judge Adam C. Cliffe, superintendent of Schools Warren Hubbard, Rev. Robeson, Father O'Brien and D. S. Brown voiced their sentiment. In opening the meeting Roy Pratt, the post commander, explained the reason for the meeting and gave notice in behalf of the Legionnaires that they will take up the work where the Grand Army leaves off, paying the great army of civil war veterans a beautiful tribute.

No definite date has been set for the next public meeting, a date will be set for the near future when some real lessons will be given from the platform.

At a recent meeting of the Legion that divinely inspired admonition promulgated by Abraham Lincoln was adopted as a motto:

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in."

By resolution the Post also adopted as text books for the school of instruction Harry T. Atwood's "Back to the Republic" and "Keep God in American History."

Atwood's "Back to the Republic" may be purchased at E. H. Browne's at $1.00 per copy. Members of the American Legion, by special arrangement may secure copies at 85 cents. Every citizen should procure and read both of these books. They are a source of inspiration. Read them and you will understand why the school of instruction in the principles, precepts and practices in American government is essential at this time. Read these books and you will understand why the boys who served in the world war have adopted them as text books. Read these books and you will understand the sentiment of those men who drafted the constitution of the United States; you will take greater interest in public affairs and become a better citizen for so doing.

Had he remained in the army he might have been eligible for vocational training, but the girl was waiting. Now he has no vocation.

The parting words of his captain were "Sergeant, I always consider you one of the most dependable, reliable and competent sergeants that I had." Hill must find his captain, John Baker, to prove his claim for compensation. He is certain the captain will bear out his story of the 20 days in the Meuse-Argonne where the city water was from a spring in which a big mustard gas shell had exploded. That water, which they had to drink to live, burned all the way down.

But Sergeant Hill is not beaten. He is struggling manfully to keep his family together. "The outlook is rather hazy," he said, "but I am not discouraged, and if I am needed again I will be there."

OUTRAGEOUS IF TRUE

Red Tape Keeps Assistance from Hero of World War

One year ago the long troop trains hearing Illinois soldier boys of the Thirty-third division back from France, were greeted with thunderous cheers as they speeded through the state on their way to Camp Grant where the "Prairie Boys" were to be demobilized.

"When the train bearing the One Hundred twenty-ninth infantry rolled into Aurora, Sergt. Rayn Hill of Davis Junction was welcomed by the cries of hundreds who gathered there to greet him. On his breast were the medals which three nations had given him for valor.

But today this hero of 1918, disabled as the result of two severe gasings, must literally beg the government to obtain compensation for the support of himself, his girl wife and their two months' old babe. Hill won the congressional medal of honor, the medaille militaire, croix de guerre with palm, Montenegro silver medal, and the victory medal with three bars.

He applied for compensation in October. A week ago he received his reply. The government ruled his evidence was not sufficient to connect his disability with his service.

Medal From Congress

But congress voted him the medal of honor, with the following citation:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy near Dannevoix, France, Oct. 7, 1918. Seeing a French airplane fall out of control on the enemy side of the Meuse river, with its pilot injured, Corporal Hill voluntarily dashed across the foot bridge to the side of the wounded man, and, taking him upon his back started back to the lines. During the entire exploit he was subjected to the murderous fire of enemy machine guns and artillery but he successfully accomplished his mission and brought his man to a place of safety, a distance of several hundred yards."

Hired Man on Farm

Hill has been working on a farm as hired man, drawing from $45 to $55 per month. This is inadequate for the support of his wife, who gladly married the returning hero, and the two-months' old baby. Her folks and his are helping.

He was 18 when he joined the 12th Infantry. That he learned well the business of fighting is proved by his record with the 33rd division. Verdun, Albert, St. Mihiel, the Somme offensive, Villers, Bretenaux, Marchville, St. Hilaire and the army of occupation are recorded on his discharge.

Had he remained in the army he might have been eligible for vocational training, but the girl was waiting. Now he has no vocation.

The parting words of his captain were "Sergeant, I always consider you one of the most dependable, reliable and competent sergeants that I had." Hill must find his captain, John Baker, to prove his claim for compensation. He is certain the captain will bear out his story of the 20 days in the Meuse-Argonne where the city water was from a spring in which a big mustard gas shell had exploded. That water, which they had to drink to live, burned all the way down.

But Sergeant Hill is not beaten. He is struggling manfully to keep his family together. "The outlook is rather hazy," he said, "but I am not discouraged, and if I am needed again I will be there."

PATRICK HURLEY DEAD

Funeral Services Held at St. Catherine's Church Thursday Morning

Patrick Hurley passed away at a hospital in Elgin Monday night after several weeks' suffering with cancer of the stomach. Funeral services were held at St. Catherine's church Thursday morning at 9:30, Rev. Thos. O'Brien officiating. Interment took place in Genoa cemetery.

The deceased leaves his widow but no children. In the passing of Patrick Hurley, Genoa loses one of its happy characters. "Pat" as he was known to everyone, was a jolly fellow, always with a cheery good morning for everyone and the happy disposition characteristic of his race.

He had been a resident of Genoa many years, attended strictly to his own affairs and made his home his castle.

Mrs. Frank Crawford entertained Mrs. Slifer of Rockford Sunday.

The End of a Perfect Day

GENOA LOSES TWO

Eighth Inning Fatal in Hampshire Game Sunday

Hampshire again hung the sign on the Genoa Nationals last Sunday, the eighth inning being a most disastrous session for the locals, the visitors putting six men over the plate before the third man was retired. Up to this time the game was all Genoa's, there seemingly being no opening for Hampshire to win. It was right here however that Ledoux fell down, or at least the visitors found his vulnerable spot, for they went to it with a vigor that caused the fans to gasp.

There are no excuses to offer for losing the game. The teams were evenly matched so far as field work was concerned, but the visitors simply fell into that batting streak and the trick was done, greatly to the joy of the Hampshire rooters and utter disgust of the local fans.

In the sixth inning the game was help up several minutes while the Hampshire management and team disputed a decision made by the umpire, R. H. Browne. The writer has played base ball, umpired and scored hundreds of games, he has seen many disputes on the diamond but regardless of whether the fault finders were of the home team or the opposition, he has always considered kicking over the umpire's decision the most childish of all, especially when it is known absolutely that the umpire is playing square as Browne was doing Sunday.

The Republican is not going into the details of the dispute last Sunday. The decision in question may have been close; that is not the point. Browne was umpire. As such he was accepted by both managements before the game started. The umpire has a definite duty to perform and that is to make all decisions regarding the conduct of the game. The minute he stops to listen to every growling player his usefulness in that game is ended. His word is law and must be so. It is perfectly natural that a player will at times momentarily take issue with the umpire's decision. It is human nature for a player or his team mates and home rooters to claim "safe" in a close play. But the dispute in well regulated games is mighty short. To stop a game a half hour in an attempt to make the umpire change his decision, while the ball fans who paid money to see a ball game sweaters in the heat, is not sportsmanlike.

Hampshire won the game 8 to 6, and no one is disputing our neighbor's right to feel elated over the victory. To tell you the truth we hated to lose that game just as much as Hampshire wanted to win it.

Sycamore Wins

The Nationals suffered their second defeat in two days Monday when Sycamore held the big end of a 4 to 5 score.

It was a pretty game to watch, not many errors being made and some great infield work was completed on both sides. The pitching was rather loose on both sides, several men being hit and a few more walked. However it was a close game until the 5th inning and then Sycamore took a 3 to 1 lead and widened the breach with two more in the eighth. Genoa was game to the end and battled in the ninth for a win and came very near making it, pounding three runs across the rubber before being retired.

It was a good game to watch boys, and we would have felt much better

CARE OF THE BABY

Life Saving Stations are Needed for Thousands of Them

Beaches and summer resorts throughout the country announce the employment of life guards and the establishment of first aid hospitals. Vacationists are assured of every modern necessity and convenience to safeguard health and life. These are wise precautions, but how about life saving stations for the thousands of babies, the pride and joy of fond parents, and the hope of the nation?

Ice funds are raised for babies in the larger cities. That, in itself, is the public expression of the need of life-saving stations for children. No one can compute the value of a nickel a day for children in an ice fund. Not only is ice needed, but the babies of the land should have an abundance of fresh air, pure water, pure milk, and they should be protected against the disease-bearing, death-dealing fly. Exclusive of excellent work being done in Cook County, Illinois, an empire within its own borders, has responded to this undertaking to this extent: twenty-six nurses are directing the work of forty-two child welfare centers in the counties of Adams, Bureau, Coles, Champaign, DeKalb, Kane, Kankakee, Knox, LaSalle, Lake, Lee, Macon, Macoupin, Morgan, Peoria, Rock Island, Sangamon, St. Clair, Stephenson, Vermillion, Will and Winnebago.

Illinois lost 17,000 babies under the age of two years during the year 1919. We need more health centers, life-saving stations if you please, where the mothers may be taught how to guard the health of their children, not only during the hot summer months, but throughout every month in the year, and where they may be taught how to take care of and how to prepare baby's food. Along this line and the following is quoted from the Bulletin Chicago School of Sanitary Instruction:

"Just now health officials are talking about the hot weather care of the milk; but most of them say little about the proper care of milk for all kinds of weather, be it winter or summer."

"Of course, it is well known that a high temperature soon spoils milk and renders it not only unfit, but dangerous for baby feeding. But many people seem to forget that a higher indoor temperature in December makes it just as necessary as in July. And because many people overlook this important fact, thousands of babies die every year from diarrhoea and enteritis, though it is supposedly a hot weather disease."

The Kingston folks know how to entertain and one may be assured of having a pleasant evening. Take the family and enjoy the music.

The road east of Genoa has been dragged and scraped this week and will soon be oiled.

We brought home the bacon but now that the string of defeats are over let's put on the gas and speed up a notch or two and take the rest of the games. It can be done and we'll do it!

MOONSHINE RAID AT HINCKLEY

Sheriff Decker Arrests Fifteen on the Fourth of July

NIGHT COURT—FINES ARE $1800

States Attorney Poust Sets Record in Prosecuting the Law Breakers

An enormous booze raid was pulled off by Sheriff Decker in the Village of Hinckley on the 4th of July, resulting in the arrest of fifteen violators. The first to be arrested was Edward Baie who admitted he had operated a still of the capacity of about ten gallons. His hired man, Leslie Martin, was arrested next and admitted he was a co-partner of Baie in the distilling operations and also sold the moonshine, dividing the profits with Baie on a 50-50 basis. They furnished a list of their customers resulting in the arrest of the following citizens of Hinckley or vicinity, Ed. Mellinger, Stanley Heeg, Harrison Blakely, Claude Martin, James P. Holm, Melvin Hobbs, Earl Biehl, Albert Anderson, John Greenacre, August Wedemeier, Ralph E. Scott and Homer Greenacre and Melvin Weddige.

The wheels of justice were immediately set in motion by State's Attorney Poust and all the men were brought before Judge Pond on information filed by the States Attorney, at a night session held in the County Court and all entered pleas of guilty. Baie, the chief violator who caused the affliction in Hinckley, was fined $400.00 and costs. Martin, his co-partner in the manufacture of the illicit whiskey, was fined $200.00 and costs. Heeg and Hobbs, under age, were fined $50.00 and costs and all others were fined $100.00 and costs. The total fines assessed amounting to the sum of $1800.00. Judge Pond warned all of the offenders of the necessity for the strict enforcement of the laws placed on the statute books by our law makers regardless of the individual's personal feeling. The unusual night session caused a lot of excitement in the Court House and the rapidity with which justice was meted out to all the offenders is remarkable. The majority were brot in Tuesday afternoon and the same night all cases were disposed of.

LAND IN DEMAND

Why Western Canada Can Take Her Pick of Settlers.

Opportunities and Conditions There Appeal to the Most Desirable Possibilities of Country Proved.

While Canada wants settlers, and is pursuing every legitimate means to secure them, it is realized, as pointed out by Hon. J. A. Calder, minister of immigration and colonization, that selection is necessary, and in order to keep undesirable out of the country legislation is passed that will doubtless have this effect.

Opportunity to live in a country under healthful conditions and liberal laws and among an intelligent and friendly people.

Opportunity to live in a country where children receive free public education and where all children are enabled to start in the battle of life with, as nearly as possible, equal advantages.

Opportunity to live in a country where industry applied to the land will produce something more than the bare necessities of life, and will afford within reasonable time comfort and independence.

Opportunity to live in a country where ambition is not handicapped by any creed, birth, or class, but where every citizen has the right to aspire to the highest position in his or her chosen walk in life.

These are the conditions which will appeal to the most desirable people for this or any country, conditions which, to a certain degree, make an automatic selection of the fittest.

Canada possesses farm lands in large areas which may be had free or at a cost within the reach of the settler of limited means. Vast areas are available for settlement within reasonable distances of railroads. Land values have in the last quarter of a century received a tremendous impetus, so that any good farm land which can still be secured in its raw state at reasonable prices is an attraction.

Such lands today are probably more attractive to the settler than were the free homesteads of the pioneer era. The country has been tried out; its possibilities have been proved; the trails have been blazed; the foundations have been laid. Railroads, telephones and public roads have been provided; market towns dot the prairies and other agricultural districts; schools, churches, and all the marks of modern conditions of life abound.

Records which have been taken over a period of years establish the fact that Western Canada's grain production is greater per acre than that of probably any other new country. It is worthy of note that the production of grain per acre in many of the older countries has increased with the intensified farming methods which the very high cost of land made necessary.

This condition does not yet obtain to any extent in Canada, and yet the yield compares favorably with some such countries in which the cost of land is very much greater than it is in the farming districts of the Dominion. In most cases present owners of Canadian farm land who are not cultivating it themselves are willing to sell at moderate prices and on terms arranged for the convenience of the purchaser, provided that the purchaser is prepared to go into actual operation and bring the land under cultivation and cause it to produce. That is the kind of settler which Canada wants and to whom it extends open arms.—Advertisement.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

New Tariff Measure, Restoring High Protection, Is Ready for Congress.

LONG DEBATE IS EXPECTED

President and Dawes Begin Work of Reducing Expenses—House Accepts Borah Naval Holiday Amendment—De Valera Declines Lloyd George's Invitation to Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

After four months of hard labor the ways and means committee of the house has completed the new permanent tariff bill. It will be formally reported to the house probably before the end of the current week. Then will begin a debate that will seem like the good old times, for the measure drastically revises the tariff law under which we have been operating for eight years and restores the principle of high protection for American industry. Members of the committee estimate it will bring in a revenue as high as $700,000,000 a year—more than twice the amount produced by the Payne-Aldrich law.

Of late years many Democrats have changed their attitude toward the tariff to a considerable extent, admitting the truth of Hancock's dictum that it is a local issue and favoring real protection for the industries of certain parts of the country. But few if any of the minority members of the house can be expected to swallow whole this new bill without going on record as upholding in general the traditional policy of their party—a tariff for revenue only. A long debate, therefore, may be expected.

There are some Republicans, also, who are opposed to certain features of the measure and the closing evenings of the week were given up to caucuses of the Republicans to compare their differences. In several respects the committee yielded at the last. For instance, it is left to the discretion of the President to impose the duty on lumber planned on one or more slides and tongued and grooved equal to the 25 per cent ad valorem Canadian duty. The committee also gave in to the demand of the smaller oil producers and put a duty of 35 cents per barrel on crude petroleum and 25 cents per barrel on fuel oil.

Among the more important general features of the measure are the following: American valuation of imports is provided for, the century old system of foreign valuation being abandoned. Broad powers are given the President to make reciprocal trade relations with other countries.

Duties much higher than in the former Payne-Aldrich tariff law are imposed upon chemicals and products of other industries established during the war which are considered essential from a standpoint of national defense. Far-reaching powers are given to the tariff commission in restricting imports of dyes for a three-year period.

Duties on automobiles are reduced. In compliance with the request of the manufacturers, who advanced the argument that such action would cause other nations to remove high duties on American cars.

Protection on agricultural products about equal to that of the Payne-Aldrich law is given, rates in several instances being less than in the emergency tariff law now in effect.

Duties on wool are on an entirely different basis from former laws, and it is a matter of controversy whether the basic rate is higher or lower than in the Payne-Aldrich law.

Among the commodities on the free list are: Agricultural implements, animals imported for breeding purposes, antimony ore, antioxins and vaccines, bread, chromeite, coal, cobalt, cocoa, coffee, copper ore, cotton, cork bark, iron ore, leather, slates, hides, wood pulp, platinum, radium, silk cocoons, news print paper, taploca and taploca flour, tea, tin ore, works of art, and most kinds of lumber.

Despite the fact that the new tariff will produce a huge revenue, the need of reducing government expenditures is as pressing as ever, and President Harding and Director of the Budget Dawes seem determined to bring about that result. They met last week with the cabinet and the heads of all the bureaus—the first meeting of the kind ever held—and had a heart to heart talk on means to meet the emergency. Mr. Harding quickly gave the floor to Mr. Dawes and that vigorous Chicagoan told the gathering in plain language what he planned to do and what the others must do to help him. Then he added:

"The permanent success of the budget system depends upon certain basic principles, which at its inception must be so firmly established both as to concept and rules of action, that they never hereafter will be questioned. "The budget bureau must be impartial, impersonal, and nonpolitical."

In concluding, he ordered the bureau chiefs to their feet and, holding up his hand, recited the following pledge, addressed to the President: "These men, of whom I am one, realize the perplexity of your position, realize that the business of the country is prostrate, that its working men are out of employment, that we are faced with incalculable necessity of reducing expenditures, and we propose, just as we did four years ago to win the war, to try to do it. And that's all we can do."

President Harding, anxious to have the controversy over the "naval holiday" plan ended, wrote to Congressman Mondell a letter saying that he was "vastly more concerned with the attitude of the congress on this question than I am as to the form of expressing that attitude." When this letter was read to the house, Mr. Mondell and all the others who had wanted the disarmament proposal to include land forces gave in and agreed to accept the Borah amendment to the naval appropriation bill. That is, all but four gave in. The only negative votes were cast by Representatives Moore, Indiana, Republican; and Campbell, Pennsylvania; Carey, New York, and O'Brien, New Jersey, all Democrats, Representative Linberger, California, Republican, voted present.

Republican members of the house and senate conference committee on the resolution to declare the state of war with Germany ended reached a compromise carrying the house declaration of a state of peace instead of the senate repeal of the war resolution, and the senate provisions protecting American interests, with an additional section giving still further protection to the United States. Similar sections end the state of war with Austria-Hungary. So that squabble is settled.

Notwithstanding the impassioned protests of many congressmen and the earnest arguments of many physicians, the house last week passed the so-called Willis-Campbell bill designed to forestall the execution of a regulation providing for the prescription of beer and light wines as medicine held by former Attorney General Palmer to be within the law. The vote was 250 to 93. The measure is now in the hands of the senate, and Senator Broussard of Louisiana already has delivered a red-hot speech against it.

Of the appointment of former President Taft to be chief justice of the Supreme court of the United States there is little to be said that has not already been said in anticipation. Mr. Taft's fitness for the high position is unquestioned and the selector will meet with practically unanimous approval.

The railway labor board issued two orders of importance last week. The first extended to all big railroads the wage cut which went into effect on July 1. The second abolished time-and-a-half pay for all work over an eight-hour day, and, with the exception of this change, extended indefinitely the operation of the national agreements which were to have terminated last Friday. The overtime order is not final, however. It was hoped that the railroads and employees would soon reach agreements relating to rules and working conditions. Rail union leaders to the number of more than a thousand met in Chicago to decide whether the employees should accept the wage cut and to try to avert a tie-up in the country's transportation facilities.

In the Chicago district it appeared the efforts of Judge Landis as arbitrator would result in the ending of the controversy that has tied up all building operations for a long time. The carpenters were the last to yield.

There was rejoicing in England at the news that the great strike of British coal miners had been ended and that the men would return to the pits on July 4. The government grants a subsidy of ten million pounds to avert the hardships of the next three months due to wage reductions. By the terms of the settlement a new wage basis will come into effect for the next eighteen months whereby the miners receive 20 per cent above the pre-war scale of wages, with an additional share of profits, which will be regulated by the creation of a national board and district boards. The strike thus ended lasted 94 days and is considered the most injurious England ever suffered, because it crippled so many industries and affected all classes of the population.

Lloyd George's effort to arrive at a friendly solution of the Irish trouble by inviting De Valera and an associate to confer in London with him and with Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, appears to have failed as have all other attempts to settle the row. Craig agreed to the conference, but De Valera has balked. At first the Irish "president" wrote to Lloyd George a tempering letter, and invited Craig to meet him in Dublin for an exchange of views. Craig declined, and De Valera wrote him: "Mr. Lloyd George's proposal, because of its implications, is impossible of acceptance in its present form. Irish political differences should be adjusted and can, I believe, be adjusted on Irish soil. It is obvious that in negotiating peace with Great Britain the Irish delegation ought not to be divided, but should act as a unit on some common principle."

A London newspaper says the authorities have discovered and frustrated a plot to murder the British cabinet ministers. It says the police are seeking three men sent to London to do the assassinating. They are a French medical student, an Irishman from the western part of the United States and a Spaniard. The same paper declares the forces of the Royal Irish constabulary are to be quadrupled at once.

Rather unexpectedly, King Constantine refused to defer his projected offensive against the Turkish Nationalists and permit the allies to try to mediate. It was believed he knew the Turks were getting ready to attack with Bolshevik aid and determined to strike first. The British exerted extreme pressure on the Greeks, and up to the time of writing the only fighting has been a rather bloody conflict while the Greeks were withdrawing from Ismid. Thursday's news dispatches indicated that Constantine had good grounds for his apprehension. The allied troops in Constantinople were called into action to forestall a vast uprising planned by the Turks and the Bolsheviks, which was to be accompanied by the destruction of public buildings. The Bolshevik headquarters were raided, quantities of weapons seized and several ring leaders arrested.

In the death roll of the week appear two notable names. Charles J. Bonaparte, eminent citizen of Baltimore and cabinet member during the Roosevelt administration, died at his country home. He was a grandnephew of the great Napoleon. Lady Randolph Churchill, who was Jennie Jerome of New York, passed away as the result of injuries received last May. Probably no other American woman has had so great an influence on British public affairs. She was famous as a writer and a wit.

ABLE TO DO HER WORK

After Long Suffering Mrs. Siefert Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pottsville, Pa.—"I suffered with female trouble for four or five years and was very irregular. I was not fit to do my work at times and took medicine from a doctor and got no benefit. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers and took it and got all right. I gained twenty pounds or more and am now able to do my work as usual. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. SALLIE SEIFERT, 813 W. Fourth Street, Pottsville, Pa.

The everyday life of many housewives is a continual struggle with weakness and pain. There is nothing more wearing than the ceaseless round of household duties and they become doubly hard when some female trouble makes every bone and muscle ache, and nerves all on edge.

If you are one of these women do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Siefert did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

TALK IS CHEAP

WANT ADS ARE CHEAPER

If there is something that you want to purchase, whether it be live stock, farm implement or piece of furniture; if you have something that you wish to sell, whether it be a second hand fountain pen or a traction engine; if you have lost something and want to find it; if you have found something and want to locate the owner, the only logical way to get results is thru the Republican want ad column. For twenty-five cents, your wants will be made known to 4000 readers. Did you ever stop to think how absurdly cheap this service is? You talk to 4000 people once a week for a quarter of a dollar.

Every senator and every congressman who seeks delay in making proper provision for the care of disabled soldiers should be relegated to political oblivion. The delay thus far has been sickening and disgusting. Those senators who refused to stand for a summer vacation until needed legislation was finished are deserving of the thanks of the nation.

DeKalb Taxi Owner Hears from the Three Bandits

The Redmond taxi, stolen in DeKalb Tuesday night last week, has been recovered. On Thursday morning Mr. Redmond received the following letter:

"Mr. Redmond:
"Very sorry to make you so much trouble Tuesday night, but we were broke and we couldn't get back to the city any other way so took your machine. We did not hurt the driver as he appeared to be a good fellow. We didn't take your car to the city you will find it a little west of the city as your car is not the kind we ride in when in the city. We have lots of junk in here without your car. But we are coming out again some time before long and have a ride in the best car you got and we want you to be the driver. We will handle you with cannon balls. We will not take the time to fill your mouth with rags it will be lead. This is not a love letter so will close from the Jolly Three. Will see you soon."

Mr. Redmond returned from Chicago Friday night with his machine after buying a couple of new tires which had been destroyed, and some other repairs were necessary. The taxi man said the whole business, including tires and money taken from Fagan would cost him about $200.

Some motorists think a low price indicates a tire bargain.

They do not realize that true cost is determined, not by the purchase price, but by the final cost per mile.

The best tire bargain is a tire that gives the most mileage and satisfaction.

That tire is the Goodyear.

Proof of this statement is the fact that more people ride on Goodyear tires than on any other kind.

JOKE ON MOTHER

Precise Old Lady Convicted of Using Slang.

Dictionary Brought Forward to Prove That Term With Which She Frightened Youngsters Was Taboo.

My mother detested slang, says a writer in Scribner's. The use of slang expressions was to her something very closely akin to making up a bed without properly airing it or going to a party without a clean handkerchief.

When my sister or I used some of the slang of our day, she used to say plaintively that she couldn't think where we got hold of such expressions. Had anyone said to me then that my mother used slang I should have been incredulous and very likely indignant.

While I considered my own right to a latitude of language inalienable to my youth, I felt, if only subconsciously, that mothers (and especially mine, who was of the good old-fashioned variety of genuine mothers) were different.

One would no more expect them to use slang than one would expect them to wear short skirts, or dance, or ride a bicycle, or want the largest helping of ice cream. I am sure if I had heard my mother say "rubberneck" or "for the love of Mike," the sound of such words on her lips would have horrified me even more than they horrified her when she heard them on mine.

It was only recently that the great revelation came to me. Harking back to my childhood, I had used one of my mother's favorite words, "rambunctious," and was promptly asked what it meant by a person who had not had the advantage of being brought up in New England. Surprised at her ignorance, I explained at once that it was my mother's word for—well, for what? I had to put my reluctant brain to work before I could find words that gave even a faint flavor of what mother meant when she said: "Now, you children, you're getting altogether too rambunctious." Not satisfied with my own definition, I finally sought Mr. Webster's aid. Rambunctious was not in the 'abridged' on my desk. When I had turned, grumbling at the words they select to leave out of the abridged to the unwieldy colossus in the hall, I could scarcely believe my knowledge of the sequence of the alphabet. But a careful resurvey failed to find me tripping. Rambunctious was not there. The dictionary passed blithely on from rambler to rameal (the same as ramal, if you must know).

As I laid the dictionary down a new light burst upon me. Rambunctious was not a word in good standing. What was it, then, but the slang of an older generation! My mother had used slang.

In Defense of Corsets.

Sir James Cantile, the great surgeon and authority on tropical diseases, is a warm defender of corsets. In his opinion the comparative absence of liver troubles in women is due largely to the equable temperature their bodies obtain through wearing corsets. And more boys than girls die in childhood because the former do not wear corsets. He urges men to wear cholera belts—a strip of flannel around the waist—to give them the protection that corsets give to women.

Venezuela Named After Venice.

Venezuela was named from the word Venice by Alonso de Ojeda, who found the Onotos, an extinct tribe of Indians, there in 1499. They were fishermen, and built their houses on piles in the water. Ojeda was reminded by their dwellings of Venice, so he named the country Venezuela.

Betty was humored in whatever she wanted, and knowing her fondness for pie her father often gave her his piece after she had eaten hers. On one such occasion a guest asked him if he did not like pie. Steadier egg profits are possible when poultry is provided with good housing. No hen ever made an egg record in a damp, drafty hen house. She needs proper shelter—a dry, rat-proof, sunny, sanitary hennery.

FORD PROFITS FOR MAY
Mount to More than Half Million Every Day

Marvelous profits are those being made at this time by Henry Ford and the motor company of which he is the head. In the issue of June 23 of Pipp's Weekly, E. G. Pipp, former managing editor of Henry Ford's newspaper, says the Ford Motor Co.'s profits for the month of May last exceeded those of any month in the history of the business career of Henry Ford, reaching the sum of more than one-half million dollars each working day of that month.

The total production for the same month was 97,014 cars. The profit on each car was more than $139; to be exact, it was $189.1622 a car.

These profits were followed with a reduction in the price of the car that amounted to about $25 a car, but in spite of the reduction the June profits will exceed the May profits by about $1 to $1.25 a car on all but the sedans.

On the first of May all outstanding notes were paid, the current bills provided for, and there was a surplus of $6,113,017, which has been considerably increased by this time.

GRAVEL GRANT HIGHWAY

This Type of Road Economical and Favorite of Drivers

Rockford Register Gazette: The steps of Governor Small for the building of the remaining stretches of the Grant highway between Rockford and Elgin are business like. They do not involve the issue between administration and the cement trust; the bids asked for being for gravel or macadam road, well within the reach of the bond issue program, and certain to be built. While a gravel road is more severe in wear and tear of tires, when in good order it is nearly as economical of gasoline as the best types and is a favorite of motor car drivers. It will also give the state experience in road building, especially in that of gravel roads, so within a couple of years we will have a gauge of that experience in first cost.

There has been an impression that a gravel road of government type could be built for $3,000 a mile. The experience of the states which have had a longer experimenting, meaning those in the east, show that it costs in the neighborhood of that sum on the average to get the road bed ready for the surface material, no matter what type is desired, and probably $5,000 more to make the best penetration tarvia gravel surface for an 18 foot road. All these questions will be settled by Illinois, experience inside of two or three years, according to the present plans on the Grant highway, although it will need several more years to determine what the upkeep amounts to. That varies somewhat from state to state.

Another important consideration is that if it is found later to be economical to use some other surface the foundation of the substitute roadbed is already laid. In other words, choosing the gravel plan does not throw away the opportunity for a more durable road if needed. The prevalent belief that gravel is the best and in the long run the most economical will be put to a test of practice under the conditions of the counties of the northern tier and either approved or found not to be the best dependence. All these advantages are embraced in the impending improvements.

PLEASES AUDIENCE

Chaplain Patrick of Joliet Gives Stirring Address

Chaplain Patrick of the Joliet Penitentiary delivered his address "America, the Maker of Men" at the water works park Sunday evening before a small but appreciative audience. It was not the kind of speech that elicits applause; it was not a stirring address in the sense of bringing out noisy enthusiasm, but rather the kind that makes one think.

In many ways Dr. Patrick's speech was in line with the idea being adopted by the Bayard Brown Post of the American Legion. He emphasized the fact that citizens should more thoroughly understand their government and its great advantages. He laid particular stress on the point of every day patriotism and not the patriotism that is shown only on 4th of July and Memorial Day.

It is a fact (spoken of by Dr. Patrick) that we are already forgetting to honor the flag and the national hymn. During the war no one dared stand with head covered when the flag passed by. No one dared refuse to stand when the national anthem was played, nor refuse to lift the hat.

This is not due so much to lack of patriotism, but rather to forgetfulness. The writer recently attended a band concert and when the band played the "Star Spangled Banner" at the close of the concert, not one man in a dozen removed his hat and not one in a dozen of those who were sitting arose to their feet. The people there were not disloyal; they have slipped back into pre-war state of lethargy. This same condition exists in all places.

Must it take the firing on a Fort Sumter, the sinking of a Maine or the sinking of a Lusitania to arouse our respect for the flag and the national hymn. "Lord, God of Hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget."

Patience.

The need for heroism in our daily lives may seem to be small, but surely calls for patience are numerous enough, patience with slow moving circumstances, with the brother who does not see truth as we see it, with the unreasonable people who must be managed, if they are to go forward at all. Last, most important of all, we need patience with our blundering, easily discouraged selves. After all, it may be that from a greater height, and clearer vision than ours, patience itself may show as a heroic virtue.

Seed Wheat Not Easily Killed.

Scientific farmers will assure you that the seed of wheat loses its life within, at most, ten years, but Dr. Asa Gray wrote: "In ordinary cases leguminous seeds have longest preserved germinating power; in some very well-authenticated cases up to seventy or perhaps one hundred years. Nearly uniform temperature, darkness and either dryness or humid beyond atmospheric influence must favor the prolongation of vitality."

"No matter where they live there's a nearby U. S. Dealer with his nearby U. S. Factory Branch"

MOST everybody knows the easy-going sort of man who never takes a tire seriously until he gets a blow-out.

How long he will resist universal tire education is a question.

But this is sure—

More people are finding out every day that between leaving things to luck and getting real economy there is a big difference.

Many a car-owner has come to U. S. Tires because he couldn't afford to keep on paying that difference.

Probably seven out of ten users of U. S. Tires came to them only after they'd had enough of "discounts," "bargain offers," "clearance sales of surplus stocks" and other similar appeals.

They have found economy—and they stick to it.

They pay a net price—not "something off list" that may not mean anything in the first place.

They get fresh, live tires, being made and shipped while this message is being written.

No matter where they live there's a nearby U. S. Dealer with his nearby U. S. Factory Branch.

U. S. Tires keep moving.

No opportunity to get old and dried out. No shifting here and there trying to find a market.

Every U. S. Tire a good tire, wherever you find it anywhere in the country.

WOULD GO FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE

Tennessee Farmer Wants to Go From House to House and Tell Everybody About Tanlac.

"If I were not so busy with my farm work I would go from house to house and tell the people about Tanlac," said A. J. Livingston, a well-known farmer, living near Ashland City, Tenn.

"I had stomach and kidney trouble and suffered torment with my back and side. The doctors could do nothing for me, so I wrote to a friend of mine in Nashville about Tanlac, and he advised me to try it, saying he had heard so many favorable reports about it and sent me a bottle.

"After taking the first bottle I felt so much better that I ordered another bottle myself and the result is I am a well man. I told a friend of mine about it and ordered a bottle for him and he had good results. I can eat anything I want and it don't hurt me, and can sleep like a log. To tell you the truth, I just simply feel like a new man and have more strength and energy than I have had in years. It is simply the greatest medicine in the world. I would like to see all of my friends and get those who are suffering to try it, and I hope you will reach them through this testimonial, which I have gladly given."

Tanlac, the celebrated medicine, which accomplished such remarkable results in this man's case, is a wonderful tonic, appetizer and invigorant. It builds up the system, creates a healthy appetite, promotes digestion and assimilation of the food and makes you feel strong, sturdy and well as nature intended.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.

The MYSTERY OF THE SILVER DAGGER

BY RANDALL PARRISH

AUTHOR OF "THE STRANGE CASE OF CAVENDISH" ILLUSTRATIONS BY AWEIL

He pressed something in the side-wall, sliding back a panel, and disappeared, the rough boards returning instantly into place. I was left alone, staring at the spot where he had disappeared. Beyond doubt the entrance awaiting me lay straight ahead, concealed by the hanging curtain. I stepped cautiously forward, listening for some guiding sound from beyond that barrier, afraid to draw it aside and take a blind plunge into the unknown. I could detect the murmur of voices, several of them speaking Spanish, yet in such low tones I could distinguish only an occasional emphasized word. There was no door between us; only that thick, hanging curtain, and I ventured far enough to draw this aside sufficient to peer through with one eye. Beyond was a reasonably large room, but so dimly lighted as to be scarcely visible from end to end. I could discern men present, a number of them, leaning about on chairs, their outlines being fairly revealed, but the light was not sufficient to give me any impression of their faces. It seemed quite possible that I might slip in unobserved, and pass among them unrecognized except through accident. But the risk of discovery was too great. I must find some other point of entrance.

The private doorway through which Wino had disappeared gave me the thought that there might also be others. I dare not follow after him, but if there was another opening to be found I was perfectly willing to explore into its mysteries. The search was brief, yet the very nature of the rough board wall made concealment impossible. Behind the dangling coats I uncovered what I sought, and not a moment too soon. Even as my hand touched the exposed latch, a murmur of voices in the outer entry reached my ears—there were new arrivals being questioned, and admitted.

The panel slid back silently in its grooves, and I peered through the revealed opening into absolute darkness. All I could be sure of, as exhibited by the dim light of the passage was a single step downward, and then apparently a strip of earth floor. I dare not wait and meet those entering; there was but one choice of action. I pressed through the orifice, forced the panel back into place, and stood erect in the intense darkness and silence, listening for the slightest sound.

I was still motionless, my heart beating fiercely, when several men entered the passage I had just left. Pressing my ear against the thin crack I distinguished words so as to piece together scraps of conversation. It seemed to me there were three voices—one speaking Spanish entirely, the others using English. One of the latter spoke first.

"This a dirty night out, but good for our purpose. You came by motor, Alonzo?"

"No. Wine said that was too risky. I walked from the car line. What's up? Do you know, Captain?"

The fellow addressed exploded in Spanish.

"Why you call me that? I tell you my name!"

"It's safe enough in here, but I'll be careful outside. What was this meeting called for?"

"It was a message from Washington, orders maybe, that we act soon. I hope it."

"From Washington? Is Mendez here?"

"Saprista, no! Can he move without a dozen spies at his heels? He find a messenger no one ever suspect. She bring the word."

"She? A woman?"

"Sure! that was better. No one know her; no one ever see her with our people. It was a good trick, and it fool the pigs."

"But who is the woman?"

The other uttered a gruff exclamation of disgust.

"If I know, you suppose I tell? Not much, but I do not know. They trust her—is it not enough? 'Tis my guess she come special for to do this."

"She is a Chilean then?"

"Maybe; maybe American, Spanish. What difference if she be in our service? They know what she is; tonight she is Marie Gessler—it has the sound of Switzerland. Beyond this I care nothing."

"But you have seen her, perhaps?"

"Not a sight; none of the boys have. She was to meet Alva at Times square this noon. I went with him, but no girl—just a messenger boy there with a note in code. Something had frightened the lady, and she made a night appointment over here."

"Here! How did she know the way out?"

"She didn't, for the matter of that; but she had been piped off on Jim's place, and agreed to be there as soon as it was dark. I'm wondering if she showed up; let's go in and see."

The three moved off down the passage, still conversing in subdued tones, the sharp accent of the Spaniard most prominent, and I became acutely aware of the black silence in which I stood. There was no occasion for me to risk my life farther in an effort to learn more. I had located the secret rendezvous of this gang of revolutionary plotters. I was aware of their connection with the Chilean Junta at Washington, and it would be a comparatively easy matter now to capture them red-handed. I saw therefore no reason why I should venture further, or endeavor to learn in detail the nature of this message entrusted to the girl for delivery. My duty now was

CHAPTER IV.

I become a Well-Known Thief.

The sudden, unanticipated attack, the burst of dazzling light in my eyes, rendered me for the moment utterly helpless. I was blinded, and so tightly grasped at the throat as to be nearly strangled. I only dimly realized that my assailant was a man, his grip that of a giant. Then, to my surprise, the fellow laughed oddly, snapping out his light, and releasing his grip.

"Well, if this don't beat h—ll," he said, in the tone of cheerful disgust. "Come in here and let me look you over."

His hand closed on the sleeve of my coat, and before I scarcely found time to catch my breath again I had been dragged through a narrow opening and became aware that a door shut silently behind me.

The fellow gave me little opportunity to either act, or think. A match flared, and was held aloft to a gas jet which instantly broke into a dull flame, sufficient to render visible the full extent of the small room in which we stood. In some semi-conscious way I was aware of bare walls, of a small table opposite with some writing materials on it, and a short bench covered by a blanket. I suppose I saw these things, yet all that I seemed to perceive was the man fronting me, who stared in my face, a quizzical smile on his lips, as though still half uncertain of the reality of my presence. He was tall, a trifle angular, but exceedingly well-dressed, with closely trimmed iron-gray hair and peculiar eyes deeply set in a rather chafy face. He broke the silence, evidently inclined to look upon this meeting as a joke.

"Don't recognize me, I reckon? Well, that ain't to be wondered at, for likely enough you never saw me before. Beats the devil though why you should drift in here; now I suppose it will have to be fifty-fifty."

His words and manner gave me a new lease on life. Whoever the fellow might be he was seemingly friendly. I must meet the fellow in that same spirit and endeavor to extract from him some knowledge of whom he supposed me to be.

"I do not quite get the drift of all this," I ventured. "You imply that you know me."

"H—ll, yes. Over in Bow Street, on the other side. The Hartlebury robbery case. I'd been hearing about you for years, and when that came on, I took a chance and drifted into court one day just to see what you looked like. You've shaved your mustache, and look ten years younger, but I knew you, all right. I never forget a face. Say, you put you onto this game—Waldron?"

I nodded, taking a chance. "I'd have bet my life he was the guy. I might have known he would double-cross me some way. Of course a tip's a tip in this game, and I don't blame you for horning in. Naturally you never knew this was my game—how could you? Waldron never said a word about me, did he?"

"Not once."

"That is how I had it sized up, so I don't hold any grudge against you. Now listen," and he bent forward confidentially, lowering his voice, so I could barely distinguish the words. "We'll talk it all over later, when we're alone. Talk'n't exactly safe here, for these walls are thin, and there is quite a bunch around tonight. There's plenty for the two of us, if we play the cards right, and we'll let Waldron hold the bag. What do you say, Daly?"

So my name was "Daly." Well, that was interesting at least, although it gave me no new light. However, nothing remained for me to do except agree to his blind proposition.

"That's mighty handsome of you. What's the figure?"

"A million!" enthusiastically. "Wait until I get a chance to explain the plan; it looks like Providence had just handed us out the money."

"Why not explain the scheme to me."

"Not now; there ain't time." He glanced at his watch, "and besides, for all I know, some guy might be listening in to what we say. You see there is a bunch o' hell-cats in there waiting for me to give them a song and dance. I'm the big end right now, but I've got to sing low until I'm sure what word these guys have got from Washington. After that I'll know how to trim sail. You wait until I come back, Daly, and then we'll plan this thing out. You think I'm aiming to play fair, don't you?"

"Gentleman George."

Courage may be largely callousness; but that kind is valuable, too.

FOCH SAYS U. S. ASSURED VICTORY

Marshal of France Sends American Message on Fourth of July.

SALUTES THE YANKEE NATION

Declares Yanks Saved the Liberty of the World—Their Prodigious Effort Astounded and Foiled the Common Enemy.

Paris, July 6.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch of France, commander in chief of the allied armies, sent a message to the American nation on the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Marshal Foch's message reads, in part:

"In celebrating America's Independence day in union with the United States, France does not only commemorate the heroic days when Lafayette, with the best of her sons, brought help to the noble cause of the liberty and independence of the United States, but she commemorates also the days more recent and not less heroic, when the American nation stood up fully bent upon the defense of another great and noble cause—the liberty of the world, which was in danger.

"France, in fact, can never forget what America did to help in the great and complete triumph of right over brutal strength.

"What was the American share in the strife for victory? Two sets of figures will give its measure. In April, 1917, when the United States declared war upon Germany, the American army had 9,500 officers and 350,000 men. Eighteen months later, at the time of the armistice, she had more than 180,000 officers and 3,500,000 men.

"A prodigious effort of an entire nation before which the enemy remained astounded and which foiled all his plans.

"Germany intended to settle the fate of the entente before the Americans were able to come into line. Acting strongly and quickly, America ruined the plans of our adversary. She acted strongly and quickly, indeed.

"On March 28, 1918, at the supreme moment of the German drive against the Franco-British front, by an act already consecrated in history, General Pershing spontaneously offered to the commander in chief of the allied forces the direct co-operation of the American divisions already trained.

"On April 24, the first American division came into line before Montdidier and one month later distinguished itself by capturing in a brilliant assault the village of Cantigny.

"At the end of May two divisions were in the battle of Picardy, and three others in the Vosges, where they replaced the French.

"In June, two more divisions took part in the battle of the Marne at Chateau-Thierry, and at Belleau Wood, where in hard and heroic fighting they took an important part in the checking of the enemy.

"July 18 five divisions participated in the victorious offensive of the Sixth and Tenth French armies between the Aisne and contributed largely to the successes.

"On July 24, the first American army was created under the command of general Pershing. Its first orders were to clear the Paris-Nancy railroad line in the region of St. Mihiel and on September 12, attacking on a front of 22 kilometers, it captured the St. Mihiel sector, and 200 guns and 15,000 prisoners remained in its possession.

"Notwithstanding the stubborn resistance of the enemy, despite the numerous obstacles opposed to its progress by the difficulties of the Argonne region, it victoriously drove the enemy back.

"November 1. In a magnificent attack, the American army reached Bazant. On the 4th, it was close to Beaumont, and the 7th it occupied the whole line of the Meuse from Mouzon to Jazellil.

"In the long war that the free nations had to fight against the oppressors of the right, the direct participation of America lasted only a short period, but to the American nation is due the glory of having thrown herself wholly into the struggle at the decisive moment and, in order to insure victory, to have made in every branch of the national activity an unparalleled effort.

"She has generously given her blood to the common cause; 75,000 of her children, dead on the soil of France, testify to this in an undying way.

"Glory to these dead! Glory to the American army! Glory to the American people!"

Engine Explodes; Two Killed. Waco, Tex., July 6.—Fireman Roy Frank and Engineer John B. Crane were fatally burned when a Missouri, Kansas & Texas freight engine blew up four miles east of Whitney. The men died a short time later.

Must Aid Ex-Service Men. Washington, July 6.—General Pershing, assuming office as chief of staff, issued as his first order instructions to the army to aid ex-service men in obtaining the care and other relief to which they are entitled.

Even One Unfamiliar With Music Could Tell the Difference by Listening Close.

Two gentlemen from away back in the big sticks sat one night in a St. Louis cabaret and listened to the chortling of a first-class, A No. 1 jazz orchestra. One of the gentlemen displayed a lively interest in the music being produced; from time to time he even beat a lively accompaniment with his feet.

His companion displayed no such interest; he actually appeared bored by the proceedings. He apparently could not understand the city's peculiar music. At last he said to his friend: "Bill, what tune is it them birds hev been playin' all evening?"

"June!" snorted Bill. "You pore prune; they've played a millyun tunes. Can't you tell one tune from another?"

"Gosh, no. They all sound alike to me. How do you tell 'em apart? You're so blame smart."

"Huh! Why don't you listen close? Some of 'em are a heap longer than the others."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The unsophisticated young clergyman essayed to break the embarrassing silence that had fallen between his fair partner and himself.

"Er—have you ever noticed," he began, "how opposed to modern ideas of politeness is the wording of the Tenth Commandment? I mean the part which says 'And thy manservant and thy maidservant, and the stranger within thy gates.' The guest, you notice, comes after the maidservant."

He waited hopefully for the reply which should open up further conversation between them.

When they arrived on the scene, the gun toters had disappeared, but they found a man named Runge, who hails from Franklin township, behind the barn with his wagon and team. Runge had been hit with a shot or some weapon and was bleeding freely from a wound in his forehead. In his wagon was an assortment of goods, including chickens, geese, eggs and wearing apparel. He was brought to Genoa, but would tell nothing, and as there was "nothing on him" he was released by the police.

It was learned that the shooting party occupied three automobiles. Fifteen empty shells were found in the farm yard the next morning, so it would appear that Runge did some dodging during the target practice. No one has learned who the men in the autos were, nor why they were after Runge. It is believed that they saw the condition of their victim and were frightened away before the officers arrived.

Runge has been mixed up with the authorities in the past and with this knowledge in mind, Officer Crawford hoped to get some kind of a statement out of him, but there was nothing doing. It is inconceivable that three auto loads of "bandits," armed with shot guns, would attempt to hold up a "peddler." Why were they after Runge?

Communicable diseases were reported to the State Department of Public Health for the month of May as follows: Chickenpox, 1,015; diptheria, 1,085; measles, 3,736; mumps, 1,415; pneumonia, 730; scarlet fever, 1,412; smallpox, 976; tuberculosis, 1,192; typhoid fever, 73; whooping cough, 1,398; social diseases, 1,620 surgical operations, 163; defects not corrected, 1180; eyes, 131; nose and throat, 488; teeth 596; pupils enrolled, 3012; weighed, 1379, under normal weight, 701.

The nurse spent in schools 1130 hours; home calls 404; miscellaneous calls 316; school rooms 120; accompanied to doctor for examination 19; to DeKalb and Chicago hospitals 2; assisted doctor in obstetrical cases, after care given and two after calls made in each case, 2; taken to the DeKalb County Tuberculosis Sanitarium through calls for help from the Sycamore Woman's Club, 2; taken by mother to Chicago for operation, 2; taken by mother to Chicago for examination, 1; arranged for operation and hospital care, 2.

Nursing care was given in many homes and also in the Sycamore Hospital. Five children were sent to the Lincoln State School and Colony. Four were examined at the Illinois State Crippled Children's Clinic (Dr. East) three braces were fitted and two braces adjusted.

THE HOTTEST JUNE

Official Recorder Gives Figures to Prove Statement

With corn standing in some fields ten feet high and all tasseling on the 4th of July, the month of June, 1921 will be known to future generations as the hottest of official record.

Alice Holden, of Aurora, who has been official weather recorder for many years says in her report of June that it was the hottest June in 41 years.

The mean temperature for June 1921, 76, is 7.5 above the normal for 41 years. The normal is 68.5. This is the hottest June on record. June, 1894, with a mean of 74.4, comes next.

June of this year had 12 days with a temperature of 90 degrees or above. Nearly all the other days the temperature registered 88 or more above.

The hottest day on record for June is 105 on the fourth of 1897; the coldest, 34 on the sixth of 1893.

The rainfall, 3.22 is 0.70 below normal for 41 years. The normal is 3.91. Last year's rainfall for June was 4.31. June, 1902, had 13.19, the highest on record; June, 1910, had 0.50, the lowest.

BUICK

UTILITY is the dominating characteristic of the new Nineteen Twenty One Buick Valve-in-Head Series.

Buick engineers have always made service and power their leading principles and those who buy motor cars on this business basis will find in the new Buick series high-powered transports just as strong, durable and dependable as the highest engineering skill can make them.

While service and power are emphasized, the new Buick models are cars of striking beauty, highly attractive in lines and in appointments. In resilient spring suspension, making riding smooth and easy, and in the generous room provided for the full number of passengers, they offer a high degree of comfort.

The roomy, commodious new Buick seven passenger open car is a happy selection, combining comfort and utility with extra passenger capacity to meet every need.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarette aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.
