

HOW THE MONEY IS SPENT

Woman's Auxiliary Tells Where The Dollars Go

HOSPITAL PATIENTS BENEFITED

Local Chapter Cleared $250.74 Last Friday—Sent $25 to Build Greenhouse

The Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion wish to thank all those who contributed so generously and helped so faithfully to make the Armistice Day celebration a success.

The amount cleared on that day was $250.74 making a good working capital for the coming year. It might interest the public to know something about the disposal of our funds. We have furnished the Legion rooms with good comfortable furniture also help the boys with the rent and other expenses. It has always been our policy to investigate where our money goes before we contribute to anything outside our own locality. Upon the recommendation of a hospital worker in Chicago we were able to keep three very needy buddies at Drexel hospital, gave them clothing and money. One man had a wife and two children that were destitute. Our secretary wrote her and found out what she needed and the Auxiliary was proud of the box of things they sent her. Whenever we find cases like that we are always ready to help. The following letter will show the many ways we can do good for all the boys in hospitals. The war will never end and we must not forget them and what they sacrificed for us. Twenty-five dollars were given to the cause explained in the following letter:

Galva, Illinois

Mrs. Maude Goding
Genoa, Ill.
Dear Friend:

Received your letter this a. m. and am hastening to answer so that you may have a reply in time for your meeting Friday. How I wish I could be present at your meeting and tell you a few of the things that sound so little when writing.

The greenhouse as planned would be one building set close to the hospital so that the heat, water, etc., could be connected easily with the main building. The lowest bid given for the building alone is $1900 and of course there will be other expense. Now at first thoughts $1900 looks like a small sum to be raised among the units—but folks—it's going to be a tussle. Last year only 136 units did any hospital work and so our committee has the task of awakening interest in all the rest before any work is to be expected from them. It seems to me the responses are coming in very slowly but mother says it's just because the matter is so dear to my heart and I realize so much how much benefit will be derived if we get it. The Auxiliaries I have been able to visit personally have responded nobly. I have been receiving checks from $5 to $100 and now have $520. I had so hoped to have the first thousand by tomorrow so I might sign the contract and have the work begun—but I'm not losing hope and I'm hoping that your unit and a few more will rush in some $100 checks and we can have it started this week.

Now let me tell you a few things about it. There are as you probably know—about 250 mental cases at Edward Hines Hospital. Some of these are hopeless—others merely nervous wrecks that can be cured with the proper care and treatment. There are also over 100 tubercular cases that would benefit directly by the greenhouse. It is almost impossible to imagine the good flowers and plants have done for these boys. They love beautiful things. One boy planted his entire spot in gladiolas. He had some bulbs left so when no one was apparently watching him he planted these around outside of his garden spots allotted. They all grew and were beautiful when they bloomed. One day he came in from the garden tired and ready to eat and sleep and one of his more unfortunate buddies who is confined to his bed all the time asked him what the pink flowers were he could see from his window. "That's my garden," he replied. The buddy wished he could get close enough to see them. With

A DEPLORABLE SITUATION

U. S. Ranks Ninth in Education, Says Dr. Hillis

United States ranks ninth place in terms of educated peoples of the world, having experienced a slump from second place, it was stated by Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of the Plymouth church of Brooklyn, N. Y., a man who is internationally known as an orator and writer of great ability.

Dr. Hillis spoke to capacity-filled house at the First Universalist church, Elgin, on the subject, "The Republic—Is it Gaining or Losing?" The address was based upon "the most important book of the year, the most suggestive volume, the most fascinating and the most rewarding, the United States census."

"Denmark and Prussia claim that only one person out of five thousand of their people, is unable to read or write, while Sweden and Switzerland, Holland and Great Britain make similar claims.

"In our country, seven million people confessed to the census takers they were unable to read and write. And now that experts have made cross-section studies of many mining and manufacturing towns, it is believed approximately 20,000,000 of our newcomers are illiterate.

"Only one-half of one percent of the old native American stock is illiterate.—Elgin News.

HOY FIRST ON TRIAL

Father of Clarence and Kenneth Hoy Will be Called in $300,000 Scandal

Fremont Hoy will be the first of the defendants in the $300,000 McHenry county banking scandal to be placed on trial at Woodstock for alleged irregularities in connection with the Ringwood State Bank and the Fox River Valley State Bank at McHenry.

State's Attorney V. S. Lumley notified the attorneys for the defense Tuesday that the charge against Fremont Hoy, the father of Clarence and Kenneth Hoy, two other defendants, would be the first on which hearing will be called by the state.

The charge on which Fremont Hoy will be tried before Judge Edward D. Shurtleff and a jury is larceny by embezzlement as administrator and conservator of the Sheldon estate. Hoy is alleged to have diverted $6,000.00 from the estate for his private use.

Hearing was set for December 3 in the McHenry county circuit court after Judge Shurtleff refused a change of venue.

There are 29 indictments. The verdict in the trying of the first case is expected to be of great bearing on the other 28.

NEW PUMP WORKING AGAIN

Genoa's new pump, which was out of commission for about three weeks resumed operations last Friday and the men who worked on it hope that nothing goes wrong for a long time. The massive pieces of iron and steel made more than one back ache and several were rather tired when the job was completed.

At first it was thought that the leathers had worn out, but after pulling the pump, a large hole was found worn in the steel casing. Further down in the well, a large piece of pipe was located that had been pounded by the plunger since the beginning of operation.

The pipe was quite badly bent and it is quite remarkable that great damage was not done to the machine.

THE MAIL CAME THROUGH

A letter was mailed to the Wall Street Journal at 7 p. m. on September 27 at Casper, Wyo. Twenty-four hours later it was in the waters of the Big Muddy river at Lockett, some 14 miles from Casper. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train carrying the mail was wrecked as a result of a collapse of the bridge supports at Lockett, which had been weakened by floods.

Ten days later the Wall Street Journal received its letter. The stamp had been washed off, some of the Big Muddy river had left its imprint on the envelope and it carried a United States mail inscription which read: "Salvaged from Coal Creek wreck, near Casper, Wyoming." A brief line, indeed, but with a story of horror, heroism and public service behind it which makes the United States mail a notable department in our government.—Wall Street Journal.

This is one of the various reasons why our federal government is the safest and most reliable on the face of the globe.

NOTES FROM THE COURT HOUSE

Judge Slusser Presided at Trial in Circuit Court—Hurd vs. Kirk

JOHN B. TRAINOR IN JAIL AGAIN

One of Somonauk's Bandits Is in Jail after 3 Years' Liberty—Hearing December 3

Judge Slusser is presiding in the circuit court in the trial of the case of S. J. Hurd of Mendota against Margaret B. Kirk, of Kirkland, for the recovery of agent's commission on the sale of farm land claimed by the plaintiff. On Monday afternoon a jury consisting of the following: A. J. Kohn, J. S. Jacobus, Thos. Jones, Lester Sanderson, Geo. Hage, Chas. H. Brandt, Ed Ball, Herman Wahlgren, Mark Simpson, Geo. Gordon, S. G. Hartman and Alfred Jackson, were selected and sworn to try the case. On Tuesday afternoon the plaintiff had put in all his testimony and the defendant then made a motion to direct a verdict in her favor which motion was denied. If the case is not settled, it is very probable that it will take the next two days to complete the proofs and arguments. It is doubtful if the court will be here next week as Judge Slusser has a criminal calendar at Kendall to take care of.

John B. Trainor, alias Barney Hunt, alias James Keating, alias, etc., leader of the desperate band of gunmen who robbed the Breunig & Dolder Garage at Somonauk on September 18th, 1919, is at last safely lodged in prison at Joliet. He was surrendered to the warden at Joliet by his Chicago attorneys and friends on Thursday, November 8, 1923, but only after an unsuccessful attempt had been made by the invisible powerful influence behind him to secure an immediate pardon or parole for him without being in custody at all, which move was temporarily blocked by State's Attorney Poust.

It will be remembered that on September 18, 1919 early in the morning after the home coming celebration held at Somonauk, the garage of Breunig & Dolder was broken into and a quantity of tires and auto accessories were stolen. Several men with an automobile were observed breaking into the garage by residents of Somonauk and a general alarm was sounded. After a gun battle between former Marshal Hickey of Sandwich, Officer Wright and the bandits in which the rear end of the automobile was bored through with shot. Trainor together with three companions, "Red Frank" Krueger, Harold Toomey and Joe Wheeler, were trapped by a posse in a grove near Kaneville and forced to surrender. All four of the bandits were wounded in the battle with the police. In the bandits car was found a leather suit case full of burglars' tools, map compasses, guns, bullets, dynamite caps and fuses, silk gloves, hammers and innumerable articles for committing burglary.

The four bandits after receiving their sentence were taken to Joliet by former Sheriff W. H. Decker and later Trainor appealed his case to the Supreme Court of Illinois. After serving ten months in the penitentiary without notice to State's Attorney Poust, who had in the meantime been elected to office, the Supreme court released Trainor from the penitentiary pending the outcome of his appeal. Albert Green of Chicago signed Trainor's bond as surety. The Supreme court on April 21, 1921 affirmed the decision of the circuit court of DeKalb county and in accordance with the bond taken by the Supreme court Trainor was to have surrendered himself to the warden at Joliet to serve out his sentence. Trainor had, however, jumped his bail and completely disappeared. Nothing had been heard about his whereabouts for the past two years, also both former Sheriff Decker and Sheriff Crawford had repeatedly requested the Chicago police to assist them in locating Trainor in Chicago, his old bailwick. The Chicago police however, appeared to know nothing of Trainor also he was known to the entire department as a first class crook. When Trainor did not surrender himself, State's Attorney Poust got busy to collect on the bond given by Trainor but found that the supreme

DINNER—BAZAAR—DANCE

The ladies of St. Catherine will give a chicken dinner in the church hall on Tuesday noon, November 20. In the afternoon there will be a bazaar, including a big display of fancy work, etc., in the Genoa Opera house. In the evening a big dance will be held, music to be furnished by a five-piece orchestra. During the dance there will be a musical program, several singers having been engaged for the occasion.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the various attractions. Come and spend the day.

USE AN ACCOUNT BOOK

Good farm management consists in doing each of the many parts of the farm business in such a way as to add to the profits of the farm as a whole, says Mr. M. L. Mosher of the Department of Farm Organization and Management of the University of Illinois. Five important factors which affect farm earnings are (1) crop yields, (2) efficiency in the use of livestock, (3) efficiency in the use of man labor, (4) efficiency in the use of horse labor and (5) low expenses in proportion to gross incomes.

The new farms which do excel in four or five of these factors are by far the most profitable farms of the neighborhood. Investigations carried on by this and other state experiment stations show that only a small proportion of the farms in any locality excel in more than two or three of these factors.

Other forms' of business have long recognized the necessity of business records as a basis for efficiency. The simple farm account book provides a similar basis for the farmer. This record shows the relation of each of the above factors to total farm earnings. A comparison of a considerable number of records of men farming under similar conditions of soil, climate, and markets shows the relative efficiency of each man in the factors named and what may reasonably be expected under the given conditions.

The average investment in an Illinois farm in 1920 was $28,100. Many corn belt farms represent an investment of two or three times this average figure. A business of this size requires accurate records. Simple farm accounts kept by a large number of Illinois farmers for a series of years have shown that some part of nearly every farm business is efficiently handled when compared to what is accomplished on other farms in the community. This condition is similar to conditions in any other industry. A study of the five factors enables farmers to correct in large measure the conditions causing loss.

Many cases can be cited where the net incomes of farms have been increased several hundred dollars per year by increasing the efficiency of one or more of these factors. The simple farm account book points the way to efficiency in farm management.

RAPID DELIVERY SERVICE

There was a time when the railroads had the advantage over the shipper and could tell him to "take my service as it is or leave it alone." However, "them days is gone forever." It was proved conclusively last week when the Leich Electric Co. had a rush order for a switch board to be delivered in Rushville, Ill., a distance of 250 miles south.

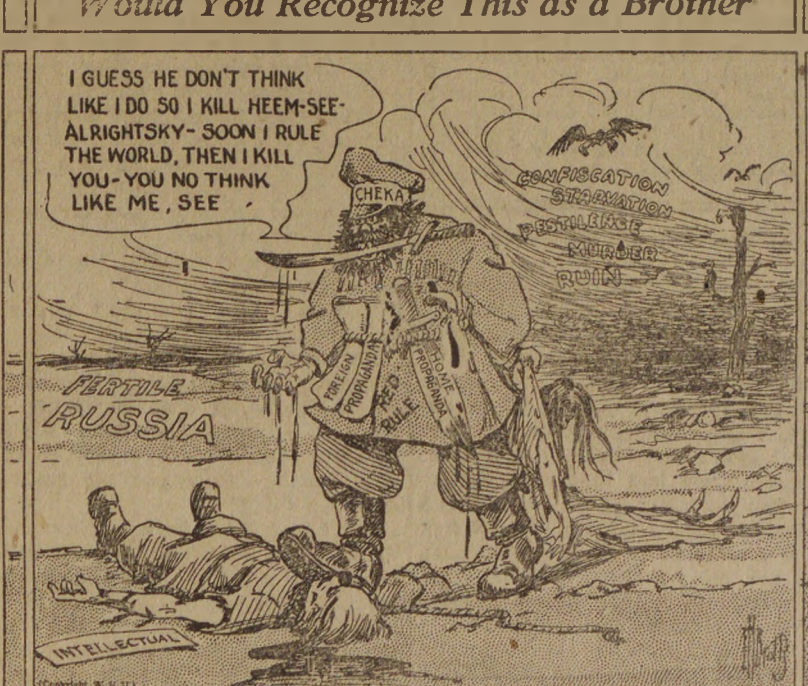

A truck belonging to the Genoa Transfer and Storage Co. was backed up to the shipping room door of this plant on Tuesday night and loaded with the delicate instrument. On Wednesday morning it left Genoa and in the evening the board was within 13 miles of its destination, being delivered in the morning.

Those who have anything to do with freight over a broken traffic line such as running to the south from the north can estimate how much longer it would have taken if the switchboard had gone via the rails. It's just a good case in point that we do need highways and more highways, and the quicker we get them, the larger the volume of business for everyone.

EASTERN STAR HOPE CHEST

The Eastern Star Hope Chest, which is now on display in the window of L. W. Douglass, is being filled with fancy work and household linens. This chest will be given away on December 22. Ask any member of the society, Mercantile Co., or Baldwin's Pharmacy for further information.

LAND VALUES STABILIZING

That land values in DeKalb county are stabilizing and that the hopes of DeKalb county farmers are in a fair way of realization, is noticeable from the recent sale of the David O'Connell, Sr., farm of 164 acres which was bought by John Dugan. Many people from Shabbona and vicinity attended the sale conducted by E. M. Burst, Master in Chancery of the Circuit Court as a result of the proceedings brought by some of the heirs, at the court house at Sycamore on Friday, November 9th. It was noticeable that unlike several prior sales there was sharp bidding at the sale by persons who have no interest in the land. For a time sales made by the Master as a result of court proceedings, were to persons who already had an interest in the land and there has been a scarcity of bids by outside parties. The O'Connell farm located about a mile north of the village of Shabbona was appraised by the commissioners in the partition suit, at $228.50 per acre. The farm sold for $228.50 per acre.

The fact that persons are appearing and bidding at these sales who have no ownership in the land shows that men are again becoming willing to invest their money in farm property in DeKalb county with confidence. Government reports last year showed that in Illinois, DeKalb county stood first in value of production per acre of live stock and grain combined. The O'Connell farm is a well improved farm but there is nothing in the nature of the improvements which would tend to unduly increase its value.

FINED FOR ASSAULT

Jacob Riis, of Cortland township got in bad with his neighbors again and on complaint of Fred Larson was on last Tuesday, brought up before Police Magistrate Mitchell, charged with assault and battery. He entered a plea of guilty and was fined $25.00 and costs a total of $35.00. On his solemn promise to behave himself toward his neighbors and payment of his fine he was released.

A $1750 JUDGMENT

J. H. Grant on Monday, November 12th, obtained a judgment in the circuit court before Judge Slusser in the sum of $1750 against the Shabbona High School District No. 407. The district waived a jury and the judgment was entered by agreement. The suit was the result of a claim for a boiler which was installed by plaintiff and which the district claimed did not operate properly. Shortly after it was installed the school burned down and the suit followed.

WHOOPIING COUGH PREVALENT

There seems to be an epidemic of whooping cough in Genoa at present, several of the smaller school children being confined to their homes by this malady. The sickness starts with a severe cold, generally, and if not carefully taken care of will develop into pneumonia.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to express my utmost appreciation for the material help given me by my friends, neighbors and townspeople at the benefit dance on Friday, November 2.

Montford Bennett.

PAST MATRON—PATRON NIGHT

The O. E. S. will hold a past matron and patron night next Tuesday evening in the local lodge rooms, with the ex-officers filling the chairs. A program will be given followed by a dinner.

ARMISTICE CELEBRATION A SUCCESS

Hundreds Attended Festivities Under Auspices Legion and Auxiliary

ORGANIZATIONS CLEARED $390.00

An Excellent Program in the Afternoon Provided Entertainment—Cassius Poust in Fine Address

There have been five Armistice celebrations in Genoa in the last five years and for a real good time, with everybody enjoying himself, whether it be with feet under the dining table, listening to the program, dancing or playing the stands, the festivities last Friday attained the highest peak of achievement so far as a generally delightful day is concerned. The day opened with a splendid chicken dinner by the Woman's Auxiliary of which some 200 participated. After the feast, for such it was, a program was given, with Cassius Poust as speaker of the day.

Rev. Robeson made a few pleasing introductory remarks and was followed by Clarence Russell and Albert Krueger who sang a vocal duet with Mrs. E. W. Brown as accompanist. Their song was heartily appreciated and they responded with an encore.

Miss Ione Stott then favored the audience with a reading that pleased everyone. Mrs. Waggoner was next on the program and she was greeted with a burst of applause upon concluding a piano solo and also favored with an encore.

States Attorney Poust then took the platform and delivered an excellent address that struck the popular chord of the audience who heartily approved every remark.

Mrs. Win. Engle pleased the assembly very much with a pretty solo and Miss Peterson, who appeared at the piano after the conclusion of Miss Engle's song, rendered two pretty selections which were acclaimed excellent.

Russell and Krueger again appeared and a popular song brought to a close a successful and pleasing entertainment which everyone thoroughly enjoyed.

The various booths then came in for much publicity and this continued until supper time when a delicious luncheon was served by the auxiliary.

After supper dancing provided amusement for the many who had gathered to witness the evening performance of an Armistice celebration. Mrs. Fred J. Duval was presented with the bed spread; Mrs. J. Byers with the quilt; Mrs. Frank Clayton with the hand painted picture; C. J. Cooper with the reel smoking stand and Edwin Albertson with the top of coal.

NOTE OF THANKS

The Woman's Auxiliary and the Bayard Brown Post of the American Legion wish to thank publicly everyone who helped, donated or attended the celebration last Friday. They realize that without the support of the public, which they so generously received, their efforts would have been unrewarded, and they feel deeply indebted to everyone who aided them in making the day a huge success.

GASOLINE, MATCH—CAR GONE

An automobile driven by Elmer F. Johnson of Rockford, and who was accompanied by four other Rockfordites, was destroyed by fire about a mile west of Marengo on the Grant highway Saturday evening.

Johnson's car ran out of gasoline and he returned to Marengo in a passing car and secured five gallons. When he got back to the car he found he had no flashlight. Frieden Johnson, one of the party, struck a match and held it above the tank while Elmer Johnson poured the gasoline into the tank. Some of the fluid spilled on the outside and a piece of the match fell into it, setting the machine on fire. The other occupants jumped for their lives as the car burst into flames. Efforts to put the fire out proved fruitless. The motorists were returning from Elgin where they had attended the Elgin-Rockford high school football game.

The other occupants of the car were Miss Eva Richards, Miss Edna Swanson and Rupert Johnson. The latter is a member of the light football team from Rockford.—Belvidere Republican.

BOY SCOUT MEETING

The boy scouts of Genoa gathered at the legion rooms on Tuesday evening of this week but as there were not enough present to hold a meeting, the chapter adjourned until next Monday night, November 19, at 7 o'clock, at the Legion rooms.

All scouts and all those boys eligible to belong are urged to be present. At this meeting a scout master and an assistant scout master will be elected. George Evans, Secretary.

"TO GET ME?"

SYNOPSIS.—On the isolated Meager ranch, on the southern border, Deborah Meredith, trained nurse, is in attendance on Mrs. Meager, whose husband has recently been killed. Immediately after the death, Bob Meager, Mrs. Meager's stepson, arrives and takes possession. He insults Deborah and she resolves to leave, but there seems no possibility of her getting away. Meager gloats over Deborah's plight.

"Very well," she said, forcing a strange calmness into her voice, "I will listen to what you have to say."
"Listen! I rather guess you will. I like your d—n nerve, but you'll find out I've got some myself. Now, see here, Miss Deborah Meredith. A week ago I didn't even know you existed. But after we had that little scene together the other day in the old lady's room, I made up my mind that I was going to give you a lesson. You didn't like me, did you?"
He stopped, but she did not answer, although her eyes met his own.
"Come on! talk up. I know you didn't; but I want to hear you say so."
"It certainly is true."
"Sure it's true. Why in h—l shouldn't it be? The old man had filled you full—"
"Your father never once spoke of you to me."
"Then my precious stepmother did."
"Only in reply to some questions, but nevertheless, I knew. If it is necessary for me to answer, I will—I do not like you, Bob Meager."
The man grinned almost cheerfully.
"Some fellows might get mad at that, but I don't. I rather enjoy it. Why? Because I've got you where it don't make any d—n difference. That's why. As long as I want you, I'm going to have you. I don't care what you think of me. Likely I'm even worse than that; but from the first minute I seen you in that white uniform, I made up my mind you was the girl I wanted; and I made up my mind, too, that it wasn't any use of my trying to make love to you—not a d—n bit. You'd just laugh at that. So I went to work and figured out another way."

"To get me?" in growing horror. "To get me? For what?"
"Oh, it's all going to be honorable, so don't let that worry you now. This is going to be a square deal, only I handle the cards—see? The first thing I had to do was to build a hog-tight fence around this ranch, so you couldn't get out. I ain't been bothering you any meanwhile. I hain't spoken to you since that first time. There wasn't no use. I saw in your eye what sort of girl you was, and just about what you thought of me. But I'd made up my mind what I was after, and how I was going to get it. I didn't have any notion of coming to you again until I had the cards stacked—see?"
"And—and now you—you are ready to play, and have come?"
"Correct. I can't lose. You got to do what I say, whether you like it or not. Maybe you don't just get this straight? Well, listen. In the first place I am Bob Meager, and, I reckon, you never heard nothin' very soft about me. It's pretty generally known around here that I am a he-man, and that I usually get what I go after. You know that, don't you?"
"I—I have heard of your methods—yes."
"I thought most likely you had. Well, that's one point. The second point is, I'm the real boss of this ling at the calmness with which she spoke, and now on her feet facing him. "I think I know what you mean. You have me completely in your power; you have planned it all out."

"That's the ticket. Now there ain't no use your getting mad. I like you; I like you awfully well, and I'm going to be mighty square with you. But there wasn't any other way for me to get you—was there?"
"No," she said frankly, "there was no, other course possible."
"Which means you don't like me at all?"
"It means all of that, and more, Bob Meager. I do not believe I ever despised anyone so much in my life as I do you. I disliked you before I ever saw you; now I hate the very ground you walk on. Have you any use for me after that?"
"You just bet I have," he grinned. "You're sure a wildcat, but I'll tame you. D—n it! I like it in you; you're not the wishy-washy kind. One of us has got to be boss; I saw that from the very first, and that's what this means now; I'm going to be the one."
"In what way do you mean?"
"Haven't you got the idea yet? I'm going to marry you—see? I took the notion the first time I saw you—you're exactly my style. But I know'd then there wasn't but one way to do it. Now I'm ready to talk business. How is it, my lady? Going to be nice about it?"
She endeavored to rally her courage, even attempting a laugh.
"Marry you? Not in this world. I know you are a scoundrel, but I never thought you were a fool before."
"No, and you never will again," his voice hardening. "Because you will have no chance. It is nothing to me whether you say yes or no. I been down in Nogales today, an' among other things I got a marriage license. It's right here in my pocket, an' the names written in it are 'Robert Meager and Deborah Meredith.' And that ain't all; sometime between now and ten o'clock a justice of the peace is going to drive in here to do up the business for us. That's why I'm telling you all this—so you can sorter brace up and get ready."

She made no attempt to move or to speak; she seemed paralyzed, staring at him through the gathering darkness.
"I ain't going to touch you now," he went on sullenly, angered by her silence. "But you just think it over, and go on back to the house. When I send for you, you better come; that's all."
He turned, and walked back to his horse, and she stood there, trembling in every limb, as he vanished amid the shadows.
She understood now, clearly, definitely, just what she was called upon to face. Bob Meager had not minced his words, or left anything to imagination. He had planned this deliberately, in cold blood, and he had the will, and, perhaps, the power, to carry it out.
At first she was in a white flame of indignation; she even laughed hysterically at the fellow's threat. It seemed preposterous, absurd, a dream of delirium. Marry him! Marry that degenerate brute! Why, she would rather die a hundred deaths than have him even touch her. He was a foul, brutal cur! Yet even as she realized this, shrinking in terror from any possible contact with him, there arose in her mind a sense of fear, a grim, persistent fear she could not conquer.
He was ruthless, merciless. If he truly desired her, nothing would be permitted to stand in his way. He had not been drinking when he talked with her; he had spoken soberly and with full knowledge of what he said. Flendish as it was, he had acted deliberately and in cold blood. That made it all the more dangerous, for he would likely drink now and become an utter fiend. Within an hour he would be raging drunk, capable of any indignity, any wild act. A brute sober, he became a demon drunk. And she must face it—alone! This was the conviction that slowly took full possession of her mind. His threat was not an idle one. He could turn contemptuously away and leave her there, completely confident that she could not escape. There was no spot of safety to which she could fly, no friend to whom she could appeal.
She gazed hopelessly out into the black void; not a light gleamed anywhere except from those distant stars overhead. There was but one way leading across that expanse, the single trail connecting with the pass through the mountain canyon beyond. There might, of course, be others—known to Indian or outlaw—but this path was the only one she ever had traveled. And it never could be traversed alone on foot.

Yet, was there any other hope of escape—of postponement even? To appeal to Bob Meager would accomplish nothing. She knew the base heart of the man now if she never had before; he would only laugh, whether she came to him with reproaches or tears. And there was no one else—not a single white man left on the estate to her knowledge; not an officer of the law nearer than Nogales. The justice of the peace who was coming out to marry them! Bah! Whoever he was, he would assuredly be a creature of Meager's own choosing. No other kind would be employed under the circumstances. And Mrs. Meager would only break down and cry; under no conditions could she be of the slightest service, her terror of her stepson was the real cause of her nervous breakdown.

No, there was absolutely no one to rely upon but herself. And what could she do? The girl stood up in the darkness, her hands gripped, her eyes on the opening through the chaparral leading toward the house—the trail along which Bob Meager had disappeared. She must follow him; there was nowhere else for her to go. She must face this thing alone, with all the desperate courage she could muster. If the worst came she must act, swiftly, decisively—even to killing the monster. There was no other choice left, no other possibility of escape. But where could she procure a weapon? She possessed none of her own; had never dreamed of owning such a thing, yet they were plentiful enough about the ranch. Surely one could easily be secured.
Impelled by this thought of self-defense, realizing clearly that she could turn nowhere else with any hope of escaping this dilemma; that she could neither flee the place nor find assistance, Deborah, the color high in her cheeks, her lips firmly pressed in determination, advanced resolutely through the darkness toward the house. She would defend herself at all hazards; before she would submit to that brute she would shoot to kill.

The men of the home ranch were evidently at supper, the big dining-hall being lighted, and, as she slipped past the unshaded windows, she had glimpse of the fellows within and heard their voices conversing loudly in Spanish. They were a motley bunch, scarcely a face down the long table that was not vicious and depraved—the scum of Mexico, the majority exhibiting Indian blood. They were a precious gang of ruffians, indeed, worthy of their master, and the girl crept away, glad to escape the sound of their voices. There was a single dim light burning in the bunkhouse, but no sign of any occupant. Undoubtedly every hand on the place was at supper, and no better opportunity could be found in which to seek for and appropriate some forgotten weapon. She advanced cautiously, listening intently for any sound, eager to accomplish her object. Once armed, she would feel more confident; the very touch of a weapon in her hand would bring her renewed courage.
The bunkhouse was a long building of adobe, the bunks lining the walls, open at both ends, the only light a lantern swung from a center beam. The glass of this was blackened with smoke, and only a dim radiance made the interior barely visible. However there were no occupants. Without hesitation, but with heart beating wildly, she slipped silently within, her eager eyes swiftly searching the vacant bunks and the wooden pegs above, on which dangled a miscellaneous collection of garments. She advanced gingerly, satisfied that if any occupant had left his belt behind it would be found in one of the bunks.
She had gone entirely down one side, and moved across to the other before she found what she sought, her heart leaping exultantly as she perceived the gleam of a steel barrel in the dim light. It lay fully exposed on top of a dirty blanket, a wicked-looking .44 in a well-worn holster, with a belt containing a half-dozen cartridges. She grasped these in her hands, conscious, even as she did so, of the sound of voices outside. The men were already returning; scarcely a moment remained before some of them would enter the upper door. The moment was sufficient to permit the frightened girl to dash out of the lower entrance into the darkness beyond, and crouch there, the prize still securely in her hands, waiting opportunity to steal away toward the protection of the ranchhouse. None of the fellows chose that entrance, but surged in through the other without a care in the world.

The two who had entered first stretched themselves out in bunks opposite each other, puffing vigorously on their cigarettes, and conversed in English, evidently proud of the accomplishment. One she recognized as Juan Sanchez, who had accompanied Bob Meager on his return, and had since been made foreman, a swarthy, eagle-eyed half-breed, with a long mustache and a livid scar on one cheek. The other was an Indian, a mere boy, but with cruel mouth, and face hideous from pockmarks. Sanchez called him Pedro, yet talked to him as he might to a dog. It was the boy who questioned eagerly:
"Vat he say, senior—the man? I hear eet not all, the fools they make so much noise. We have fiesta?"
Sanchez blew a cloud of smoke into the polluted air, flipping the ash of his cigarette onto the floor.
"Plenty drink, Pedro," he said indolently, "an' no work tomorrow. The boss he marry."
"Marry! the gringo? How that be again, senior?" and Pedro sat up, dangling his feet over the edge of the bunk.
Sanchez laughed grimly.
"Ah, Pedro, I forgot you were there. It was a great night, was it not; yet, Santa Anna; it counts for nothing this side the line. 'Tis no senorita of Mexico this time, but one of his own race, which is different; now he marry for long white."

"He marry of his own race—here?"
"Sure; you have seen her; she cares for the old senora."
"The girl in white?"
"Tis she; and Madre de Dios, I would it was I who had her, Pedro! Did ever you see such eyes? Sacra! I would ride through h—l to make her smile on me."
"Pah!" indifferently, "she is too pale for my taste."
"Pale! with those cheeks and lips! My blood boils at dream of her kisses. I'd give every maid in Mexico for such as her."
"Tis as your taste runs, senior; but how came she to love this fiend of an Americano?"
"Love him?" Sanchez rocked with laughter. "H—l! he has but spoke to her the once, to my knowledge. I doubt if she knows yet the happiness in store for her. 'Tis what I like about him; he does not ask, he takes. Sacra! he got the other so; she hated him, yet it made no difference. He is the devil's own, Pedro. Let's stop this chatter and win a bit of sleep before the bout begins."

Sanchez Laughed Grimly.

Deborah, scarcely venturing to breathe, her heart fluttering with terror, but her hands clasping tightly the heavy revolver, stole silently away through the darkness.

CHAPTER III

The Coming of the Judge.
Assured that the way was clear, Deborah made a quick passage across the open space, a dim, ghostly figure fleeing through the night, and succeeded in obtaining entrance at the side door without being observed.
First of all she must safely conceal the weapon she had stolen, which was too large and cumbersome to be carried upon her person. Her own room at the end of the hall, small, but neatly furnished, gave the greatest promise of security, and she felt a decided sense of relief when she finally thrust the weapon under various articles at the bottom of a bureau drawer. It was there, ready at hand, if an emergency arose, while she felt fully prepared to make use of it. The conversation just overheard had strengthened her resolve to defend herself at all hazards.
Certain that nothing further would occur until the arrival of the expected guests from Nogales, she stole into the room occupied by her patient, relieved to find Mrs. Meager sleeping soundly. Locking the door, she sat down wearily at the window, which was slightly open, peering anxiously out into the night, the cool evening air of the desert caressing her hot cheeks.
Another day? What would it bring to her? Married to Bob Meager? death? or would she be a fugitive, with the stain of murder on her soul? She shuddered, the blood seeming to stop circulating in her veins, as these questions brought home so nakedly the situation. It must be one of the three; there was no alternative. The fellow was fully capable of this infamy. He was but repeating an old offense. Somewhere, down below those mountains that marked the boundary line, a girl of another race had met this same fate now confronting her, and was paying the price.
Well, she would never pay it, or if she must, then she would choose herself what that price should be. She felt at that moment that she could kill the brute as she would a mad dog. It was a duty, a privilege. Again and again her mind swept about the unbroke circle; the chain binding her was complete; she could turn nowhere for help; she was absolutely a prisoner. The revolver hidden away in that bureau drawer alone promised protection. There were tears in her eyes, but not tears of weakness or of pity; her lips were firmly set, and her hands clasping the window sill were steady with determination. She had made up her mind.

"But I refuse to marry him; I do not consent."

Internal cleanliness protects against disease

IT is but a step from those immediate results of constipation—headache, heaviness, loss of appetite—to serious disease. Such minor ailments are a warning that poisons from food waste are flooding your body. Keep clean internally.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation
Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is not a laxative and cannot gripe. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world.

Don't give disease a start. Adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

Your bath goes only skin-deep.

LOAD FOR DOBBIN TO PULL

Horse Should Draw Three Times His Own Weight, Judgment of Humane Association.

A man appeared before the magistrate at the Tower Bridge Police court charged with cruelty to a horse by making it draw too heavy a load, and a discussion arose as to what was the proper load for a horse.

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have endeavored to establish a rule that a horse should not be required to draw more than three times its own weight, but to the person who knows anything of draft horses such a load seems excessive. It means that a horse weighing 1,000 pounds can be made to pull nearly a ton and a half.

While this would not be at all an excessive load on a well-paved, level road, it would be a fearful task for any horse to be asked to pull such a weight on a rough, hilly country road, says London 'H-Hts.

The best authorities give it as their opinion that a common farm horse is only equal to a load of 1,500 weight, while a powerful dray or cart horse can pull a ton.

For its weight, the horse is an excellent puller, and can beat almost any other animal except a mule. The elephant, for instance, finds a load of 2½ tons about all that it can manage, although that may not be more than a half of its body weight. On the other hand, it is a very exceptional horse that can travel more than 65 miles without a rest and a feed, but the elephant, and also the camel, can exceed that distance considerably.

IT WAS ACCORDING TO HOYLE

Great Master of Popular Game Responsible for Rechristening of Game of Whist.

It was an agreeable spectacle to witness Edmund Hoyle (the master of whist, whose code of etiquette for the game has been accepted for six generations) drive up to the Three Pigeons tavern at noon in his white hackney coach with his emblem—the Ace of Hearts—blazoned on the panel. Hoyle was "a man of very speechless humor," who was lured into the study of whist because it was a silent game, says Christopher Morley, in "The Power of Sympathy."

Originally the game was called "whisk"; it was Mr. Hoyle who, by his continual utterance of the imperative and hushing monosyllable whist! when gaming with those whose tongues were apt to wag irrelevantly, caused the diversion, at first only in sport, and then in genuine interest, to be rechristened.

The mornings he spent in tutoring wealthy ladies in the rudiments of the fashionable game, this being the chief source of his income. He was very particular, moreover, as to the standing and rank of his pupils; he was much in demand and could afford to take only such students as satisfied his fastidious taste for youth and beauty.

Playing the Game.

In a certain New England village where the Sunday church attendance was small lived a young widow who had taken quite a fancy to the minister. She could see that he also cared for her, but was evidently too shy to say anything.

One Sunday evening the congregation was smaller than usual. After the services the clergyman said to the widow: "Did you like my sermon?" "It was beautiful," she replied. "I wish more people would come," he said.

She saw her chance. "So do I," she answered. "Why, tonight, every time you said 'dearly beloved' I—1 positively blushed."—Pathfinder.

RUSCO-Tractor Belts

do more work and save money

A RUSCO Tractor Belt transmits greater pulling power from the pulley to the job. Why? Principally because it's solidly woven. Ply belting (stitched or "stuck" together) pulls unevenly and comes apart at the ply.

Rusco has a wonderful grip and a mighty pull; no lumps, joints, exposed stitches or plies; pliable, durable, water-proof, guaranteed belting.

Rusco Tractor Belts (or light fixed position belting) are obtainable in any thickness, width or length desired. We stock all popular sizes or can manufacture to order on short notice.

For every belt-work requirement, Rusco Tractor Belts, made by The Russell Manufacturing Co., Middletown, Conn. (93 years of knowing how) are absolutely guaranteed to contain no plies whatever and to have greater structural resistance to abnormal conditions than any other type belting made. No "breaking in" necessary.

"Who builds for the present builds only for the past," was not written of good roads, but is as true of them as of temples and meeting halls. The organization which knowing it is growing, builds on for its present membership, soon finds it has built too small. The "present," which soon comes, brings a membership too big for the building.

The hard road built just big enough, wide enough, strong enough, well enough for today's traffic, is built for to-morrow, too, only when it is known that the traffic itself, can not grow.

But there are few places where traffic does not grow!

The village of to-day is the thriving town of to-morrow. The town of to-day is the big city of to-morrow, and the big city of the immediate moment becomes the huge city of the next one!

When the Boston Post Road was built, no such thing as the "capacity of the road" was known. But to-day, this road (among many) is strained against its capacity limits most of the time, and always on Sundays and holidays. The good roads connecting any two large cities of the nation; Boston and New York, New York and Albany, Baltimore and Philadelphia, Cleveland and Toledo, Chicago and Detroit, to mention only a few, are often inadequate to carry the traffic which seeks them. They do carry the traffic, but at greatly reduced speed, and speed it as much a part of transport as motion.

New roads should always be built for to-morrow, never for to-day. For "to-morrow" soon becomes "to-day," and the road, big enough and to spare for present needs, is speedily used up to its capacity. To paraphrase the quotation, "Only he who builds for the future, builds for the present!"

out a word the boy left his ward and rushed out into the garden. The nurse that told me this said she met him when he came back—his arms full of blossoms. He had picked every one. He took them in to his buddy and said, "There, now you can see them!" They buddy exclaimed, "God—ain't they pretty." And, Miss Sullivan said it was hard to tell who shed the most tears—the buddy in the bed or she, herself, as she watched them. Hours and days of work to raise his blossoms and then everyone for his buddy!

Another boy said flowers faded and so on his little plot he made a flag of stones which he carried over from the Illinois Central tracks. Every stone had to be put just so and he walked miles back and forth to bring them here. Then he poured on red paint for the red stripes, left the grey stones for the white and made a field of blue. On this he put 48 stars he had molded out of cement—His flag! Hours, and hours to make it—You nor I would probably have never had the patience or the idea to make it as he did and yet he is insane—but he hasn't forgotten "Old Glory" nor what it means to him.

Oh! I could go on and on—but I have so many letters to write and do want to write them. Some one said to me the other day "But Miss Kermeen, you must admit that our insane people at Wauertown and Jacksonville have no greenhouses and they do very well." Oh! folks I admit they do—but these boys are different. They are shell-shocked and gassed—and while we admit they do not need it in the therns of some people—yet we of the Auxiliary say they do need it—because for us the interpretation of the word "need" means anything that we can give that will give to our boys one minute of comfort or cheer. They do need this greenhouse and we will never cease to be glad when we get it for them.

Folks—I ask you to remember—the war was fought for all and if you do not have the funds in your treasury give everyone a chance to contribute. Sterling took the matter before their woman's club, Rotary club, etc. and that way got their contribution.

If everyone could see these boys as I have seen them in their gardens and then walking aimlessly in their rooms because their gardens were dead. I would have the money by now—but people have forgotten and we must not let them keep on forgetting our boys.

Our disabled boys—they gave all for us—now let us give and give gladly for them.

Sincerely yours in behalf of them,
Katherine Kermeen,
State Chairman Hospitalization.

court of Illinois had released Trainor on a worthless bond and nothing could be realized on it. Green the surety was being hunted by the police department of Chicago and was a professional bondsman.

On November 5, 1923 while State's Attorney Poust was at Joliet before the Board of Pardons — Paroles on some other matters, it came to his attention that friends of Trainor were negotiating with the board to have a hearing on a petition for pardon and parole for Trainor, without having to surrender him. Mr. Poust contended it would be a miscarriage of justice to permit a convict and bail jumper to come before the board in any manner while he was still a fugitive from justice. On his return from Joliet the attorneys representing Trainor called Mr. Poust and informed him that Trainor had been surrendered and waited an immediate hearing. A call to the penitentiary however, showed that Trainor was not in the pen but still a fugitive.

On Thursday, November 8th, Sheriff Crawford drove to Joliet with Frank Perry, a parole violator, and arrived there just in time to see Trainor appear before the Board of Pardons and Paroles at Joliet together with his attorneys, and surrender himself to the warden. Sheriff Crawford and the State's Attorney who have been working together to land Trainor planned to take Trainor into custody if he appeared before the Board on Thursday, it being understood by them that an application for a hearing on a petition for pardon or parole would be made on Thursday. No action was, however, necessary as Trainor voluntarily surrendered himself.

Trainor's attorneys immediately made a motion to set a hearing on the petition for Trainor's release and while Sheriff Crawford was there the hearing was set for December 3, 1923. It will probably require a battle to keep Trainor behind the bars as Major Messlein, a former welfare worker who has been actively engaged to secure a release on parole or pardon for Walter Stevens, the gunman of Aurora, is interested in Trainor and also, Trainor still appears to have that unlimited supply of funds with which to hire the ablest counsel of Chicago to secure for him his release.

However, Trainor will meet the most stubborn resistance on the part of State's Attorney Poust who is determined that Trainor must serve his time in the penitentiary as did his associates. Wheeler, Toomey and Krueger. Toomey recently was transferred to the prison for criminally insane at Chester an Krueger and Wheeler are still serving their sentence.

The Horse's Speed Limit.
 Before our agrarian population had taken so enthusiastically to the automobile, two farmers drove into town in an old spring wagon pulled by a very bony nag. The little burg had been incorporated, and among the evidences of this was a brand-new sign at the town line: "Speed limit—10 miles an hour." Observing this, the driver began whipping up his steed vigorously.
 "What's yo' hurry?" demanded his companion in mild astonishment.
 "See that sign?" returned the other.
 "But I dunno if I can make it or not."
 —Everybody's Magazine.

Success.
 The Sunday school teacher was doing his best to inculcate lessons of altruism, and had taken as his example the case of two little boys, one of whom was always ready to grab, while the second was willing to share everything.

"Now, children," he finished impressively, "which of these two boys will you up into the successful and respected man?"
 And as one voice the class answered: "The guy that gits!"—American Legion Weekly.

To Make It Less.
 Owner—How much do I owe you for the day's work?
 Ditch Digger—Three dollars is what I get.
 "Couldn't you make it a little less? You know I've helped you all day long."

Colors for Mourning Vary.
 The colors used as badges of mourning vary in different countries. In this country, as in Europe, the ordinary color for mourning is black. In China, as with the ancient Spartan and Roman woman, it is white; in Turkey it is blue or violet; in Egypt, yellow; in Ethiopia, gray.
 Some have attempted to trace the associations which caused the adoption of the various colors to natural causes. Thus black, which is the privation of light, is supposed very appropriately to denote the privation of life; yellow is the color of leaves when they fall and signifies that death is the end of all human hopes.

 In the East, to cut the hair was considered a sign of bereavement; among the Romans on the contrary, it was deemed a mark of sorrow to let it grow.
Ten Years of His Life Wasted.
 A Frenchman spent ten years of his life inventing a noiseless clock. After he had succeeded, he found that no body would buy a noiseless clock. People do not hear the steady tick-tick of the old clock on the mantel shelf, but the moment the clock is silent, they miss the familiar noise.

Gift of the Desert

By RANDALL PARRISH

Forced by the most fiendish of circumstances into a marriage that was distasteful and full of terror for her, Deborah Meredith chose, instead of living with brutal Bob Meager, to trust her life to the perils of the desert.
 From the midst of treachery and outlawry appeared a hand of doubtful character, but which she was forced to seize as a guide. Then followed in rapid succession a number of adventures with startling sequences, arriving at a climax so pleasing the reader experiences a pang of regret that the tale is no longer.

WHY TRADE
AT HOME?
QUALITY MERCHANDISE

This is the third of a series of short articles pointing out the advantage to every man of doing all his buying from the merchants of his home town. You may not have thought much along this line. Read these articles--They will make you think, and that will help the entire community.

Cheap merchandise is always most expensive in the long run
Paying Overhead In The Large Cities
 When You Shop Away From Home You are Contributing To Big Salaries
THE CIRCLE OF TRADE

Nine times in ten it is lack of thought, or at least lack of carrying out thought to its logical conclusions, which leads men to spend their money away from their home community.
 Such a man ought to remember where his money goes when he spends it. That money is needed to build up his own community but if he spends it with a concern located at a distance, what happens?
 Whatever the rural or the small city buyer spends in the city, is lost to his community for ever. Henceforth that dollar works for another master. It has ceased to be identified with the community's welfare.
 But if the buyer spends his money with a home town merchant--what then? That money stays right at home and works. Part of it, indeed a very small part of it, is profit for the home town merchant. But that profit is usually not taken out of the business. It is kept right there and used to build the community--to add to the merchandise stock--or to pay another employee or to pay for losses sustained during the lean months. If the merchant has had an exceptionally good year that profit goes into the local bank, and is loaned out to home town people--maybe to the very man who spent it at the store. Or perhaps it is spent for an auto, on which the local dealer makes a profit and keeps that part of the money at home; or it goes into a new building, for which local workmen are paid, and home town dealers in lumber, cement, nails, bricks and hardware get their share.
 Part of that money taken in by the home town merchant is spent with other home town merchants--for his children must have shoes and clothing and food and books and all the things that other men's children need. He and all dependent on him spend their money in their own community, and help keep the money working at home.
 He pays taxes out of it, and that tax money goes for schools and roads and fire and police protection and water works and all the community necessities.
 If the men who should be his customers send their money to far away places to buy their goods, how can the merchant keep up his end of the community expenses? If any great percentage of the home town folks spent their money out of the city, the home town merchant very soon would be unable to remain in business. Would the distant city stores and the catalog houses then pay the taxes and give to charity and help keep business going in the community? Would they build those schools and pay for fire and police protection? Would they help out at the church fairs? Would they give work to any people in the smaller communities. Who would do these things of the home town merchant were eliminated.
 Think these things over carefully before you spend your money away from home.

Vast Lake of Pitch.

In the thirteen odd million square miles of territory which comprises the British empire there are many remarkable phenomena, one of the most interesting being the Pitch lake of Trinidad, in the West Indies. It is a natural reservoir of valuable mineral pitch, 100 acres in extent, from which 200,000 tons of asphalt are exported annually. About half way across Kenya colony, in British East Africa, is Magadi lake, a vast natural deposit of soda. The lake is ten miles long, two or three miles in width, and seen from the mountains that surround it, it has the appearance of an immense ruffled white sheet.

A man's friends are often those who are not too particular.

Mrs. A. Van Arnam

Davenport, Iowa.—"I wish I could tell to all the world how much I owe to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I was nearing middle life when my last child came and my health was miserable, I had continuous pain in my right side. I took nine bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and can truly say that I suffered the least that time and my health afterwards was better than it had ever been before. While passing through the critical time of life I depended solely upon 'Favorite Prescription' to keep me well and strong and it did not fail me. I had none of the distressing symptoms most women have at this period, such as heat flashes and dizzy spells. I came through in excellent health and am still just as strong and well as I was thirty years ago, thanks to this best of medicines, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. Alice Van Arnam, 1705 W. Things to Be Made at Home

DAINTY FURNISHINGS

Exquisite, lifelike roses are made of fine crepe paper and set in millinery foliage and stems. Two or three shades of rose-colored paper are used and every petal carefully shaped and arranged. A rose or two, in a bud vase, makes a lovely gift.

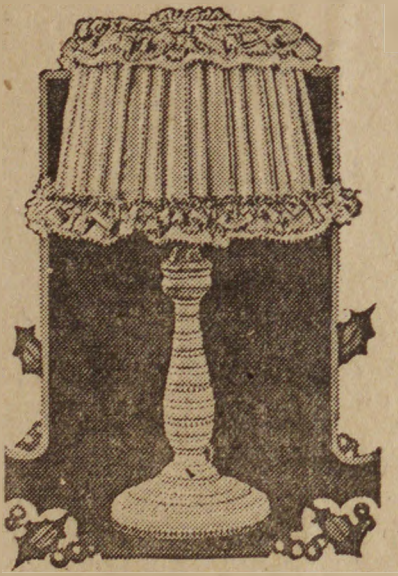

Plain toilet-water bottles are painted in wonderful color blends, with sealing wax paints, and flowers made of tape and sealing wax provide a little nosegay for the stopper.

ARTISTIC SCREENS

A regal-looking lady of old Egypt, painted in vivid Egyptian colors on cardboard, makes a fascinating telephone screen, appropriate for a man's room or the house phone. On the reverse side, lists of names and numbers and reports of calls are recorded on removable tablets that slip under narrow ribbon hands.

DAINTY LAMP SHADES

The prettiest new lamp and candle shades are made of plain and picot-edged ribbon, as shown in the illustration. Plain satin ribbon, in strips set together with narrow heading, and laid in shallow plaits, forms the shade, finished with ruffles of picot and plain ribbon. The lamp standard is also covered with the plain ribbon, scantily shirred and sewed row on row. This is a dainty and elegant gift suited to a boudoir reading stool or dressing table.

USE YARN TO MAKE TOYS

Amusing and grotesque dolls and animals are made of wires wound with heavy yarns. Millinery who will answer for the frames or skeletons, which may be padded with cotton before they are wound with zephyr or coarse yarn. Beads or buttons are used for eyes. A horse, jockey and dog are pictured.

SAYS HIS PRESCRIPTION HAS POWERFUL INFLUENCE OVER RHEUMATISM

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenru, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allenru with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.—Advertisement.

His Preference. "How-do, Mr. Smith?" saluted the motorcar dealer. "Thinking of buying a new car?"

"No, I reckon not," responded Sand-Storm Smith of Rampage, Okla. "I'd rather have a second-hand one that has been broke to drive."

MOTHER! GIVE SICK CHILD "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Harmless Laxative for a Bilious, Constipated Baby or Child.

Constipated, bilious, feverish, or sick, colic babies and children love to take genuine "California Fig Syrup." No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. It sweetens the stomach and starts the liver and bowels acting without griping. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs. Say "California" to your druggist and avoid counterfeits! Insist upon genuine "California Fig Syrup" which contains directions.—Advertisement.

Their Secret. Family Physician—I'm afraid you've been eating too much cake and candy. Let me see your tongue.

Little Bess (perkily)—Oh, you can look at it, but it won't tell.

A Safe and Sure Laxative—Brandreth Pills. One or two taken at bed time will keep you in good condition. Entirely vegetable.—Adv.

Sure Enough. "I read in the paper last night," said Professor Pate, "that a member of the old Burgary aristocracy had turned to burglary as a regular business." "Why do you say 'turned'?" snarled J. Fuller Gloom.

FORMER KAISER GETS PASSPORT

Brussels is Informed the Emperor Will Return to Berlin.

MONARCHY EXPECTED DEC. 4

Brussels.—The former German emperor, William II, now in exile at Doorn, Holland, is preparing to return to the fatherland. He already has in his hands passports for himself and his suite, and the Brussels Gazette goes so far as to say that it is expected the Hohenzollern monarchy will be restored on Dec. 4, William, or his son, the former Crown Prince Frederick William, ascending the throne.

Private advices from Doorn, received by the Agence Telegraphique Belge, say a courier, Von Hoechst, arrived at Doorn at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon with twelve German passports for the ex-kaiser and his immediate entourage. A telegram in cipher was received there in the morning, and early in the afternoon there was a long conference between William and those close to him. Later a high Dutch official, Dr. Kan of the ministry of the interior, called and was closeted with the former emperor for thirty-five minutes.

A wireless system has been installed at Doorn house, which has been the residence of the head of the Hohenzollerns during the late years of his Internment in Holland, and messages are received from Nauen at noon daily.

Paris.—The reports that the ex-kaiser is ready to return to Germany reached Paris at midnight, and high officials were immediately advised. It is understood that a stiff note will be sent to The Hague warning the Dutch government that it will be responsible for the gravest circumstances if the former kaiser is permitted to leave Holland.

Berlin.—The allies have demanded the immediate delivery of former Crown Prince Frederick William for trial as to his war guilt. The demand is contained in a note protesting against his return to Germany, according to well informed diplomatic circles in Berlin.

Britain to Pay $92,000,000 in U. S. Liberty Bonds

Washington.—The British government has notified the treasury that its next payment on the war debt, due December 15, will be in Liberty Bonds. The payment will include $23,000,000 on the principal and $69,000,000 interest. The formal notice from the British government merely stated that the payment would not be made in gold or available funds, leaving the alternative of Liberty bonds, which the refunding settlement permits.

Ban on Japanese Land Owners Upheld by U. S. Supreme Court

Washington.—The United States Supreme court in two decisions held that the anti-alien land laws of the states of California and Washington are constitutional and valid. Both cases came before the Supreme court on appeals brought by Japanese after the state courts had upheld the laws, which prohibits aliens not eligible to citizenship under United States laws from acquiring or possessing real property.

Anti-Semites Drive Professor Einstein From Germany

Berlin.—Menacing letters from anti-Semites received by Prof. Albert Einstein since his return from Russia several days ago have convinced the scientist of the advisability of his leaving Germany for Holland. The letters contain clear intimations that attempts would be made on his life.

$45,000,000 Is Urged for United States Air Force

Washington.—The joint board of the army and navy has submitted to Secretary of War Weeks and Secretary of the Navy Denby a report covering the proposed army-navy air force building programs requiring $45,000,000, it was learned.

France to Offer a New Scheme for German Inquiry

Paris.—Premier Poincare instructed M. Barthou to propose to the reparations committee that it nominate a committee of experts such as the "United States-rejected" to examine Germany's capacity to pay and its resources in foreign countries.

Illinois Bank Robbed.

Peoria, Ill.—A telephone call to the Peoria police said the safe in the bank at Minonk, Ill., had been blown open by automobile bandits, who escaped with $12,000 in Liberty bonds and $1,000 in cash.

for Economical Transportation CHEVROLET

Every Farm Needs Two

EVERY farm needs two automobiles, one of which should be a closed model Chevrolet.

The open touring car is best for general farm use, carrying passengers or perhaps miscellaneous bulky produce or merchandise, but for cold or rainy weather, and for church or social use the family needs a closed car, either a 2-passenger Utility Coupé as illustrated, or the 5-passenger Sedan. The extra large rear compartment is a feature of the Coupé.

These closed cars are very finely made, furnished, upholstered and trimmed. The windows are of plate glass and can be lowered, providing as much air as an open car, yet affording full protection against wind, rain, snow or cold when raised.

With a second car on a farm, one is always available for those at home when the other car is out.

The low prices of Chevrolet make the ownership of two cars feasible for most farm families.

WIDENS MARKET FOR MEAT

United States Department of Agriculture Gives Hog Raisers Additional Outlet.

A wider market for United States meats, particularly pork, has been made available by the efforts of the United States Department of Agriculture and the State department, the most recent evidence of it being the opening of The Netherlands to shipments of fresh pork. This new market, with the English market, which was opened to the same products about 18 months ago, now gives hog raisers a considerable additional outlet at a high point.

The Public Demand.

"Aren't you going to make a speech?" "Not if I can avoid it," answered Senator Sorghum. "Why should I risk saying something that might make me unpopular? All the public appears to ask at present is that I keep quiet and be photographed."

Miss F. R. Bradford, Correspondent

Miss Jennie Tazewell passed away Saturday at 2 p. m. after only a few days' sickness of heart trouble. Miss Tazewell was born in Elgin January 23, 1847 and all but two years of her life were spent in Elgin. Those two years she made her home here with her nephew, R. S. Tazewell, where she made many friends. She was associated with Elgin public school work for over fifty years. She began teaching with the Elgin academy and shortly afterwards went into public school work. She was assistant superintendent for many years, resigning in May 1922. Funeral services were held in Elgin at the Frederick and Curtis Chapel Monday at 2:30 p. m. Rev. J. V. Madison officiating. Burial in Bluff City cemetery. Those from here attending the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Branch, Mrs. Susan R. K. Mrs. F. H. Wilson, Mrs. W. and Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bradford; Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Tazewell children, Margaret and Richard. Only surviving relatives are the nephew, R. S. Tazewell, and her niece, Edna Tazewell, of DeKalb.

A fiery young Canadian, who has enjoyed a rich harvest of experience in many countries of the world the last few years, is to lecture here on Saturday evening, November 17, at the M. E. church on the subject "The Invisibile Frontier." The speaker is Stanley Nelson Dancy, the young army officer, who was chosen by the allied army heads to combat the German propaganda immediately following the war. He had formerly been a Canadian newspaperman, but when the call to arms came, he responded to his country's call and became an officer in the Canadian Infantry. He has traveled through South America as well as European countries and is the author of "The Faith of a Belgian," one of the popular books which appeared following the war. He believes the English speaking nations of the world are the bulwark of the world peace and he reveals stirring incidents to prove that the union of the English speaking races is not so far removed as some would believe. This is the second number of the Lyceum course and is held in the church this time as the hall is not for use at the present time.

A farewell reception was given Thursday evening at the M. E. church in honor of two young families who have left Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Uplinger and son moved Saturday to Rockford and Mr. and Mrs. Ora Koch and daughter, who recently moved to Hampshire were invited to return for the evening. Miss Verna Scrivens gave several piano selections and Mrs. A. M. Simmons gave two musical readings. Mrs. A. M. Simmons and Mrs. A. J. Lettow presented a gift of remembrance to each of the crowd to each family. Light refreshments were served.

Yes, indeed.

"I see the helico for which cost its builder $225,000 to build has lifted him 20 feet into the air." "But that's too expensive a way to get upstairs to ever become popular."—Houston Chronicle.

Come Over to Our House

The Young Folks' Store Successful Home Furnishers

Mail Order Department New Feature

We have lately added to our store this mail order department which promises to be a big money saver as well as providing an enormous stock of House Furnishing merchandise from which to select. You no doubt have received one or more of the fine circulars giving cuts and prices, which you will find compare with all mail order houses, but which differ in the following:-

- First—You place your order and at your option you can have goods shipped direct to yourself or you can have same shipped to W. W. Cooper and we unpack, assemble, make repairs if necessary and deliver to your door, all free of charge. This is worth a great deal to anyone ordering furniture which is so likely to come in damaged, and you pay no more for the merchandise than you would from other concerns, but get this service extra and without cost.
- Second—We will give you the benefit of our buying experience in helping you select whatever you are in need of. This means a great deal as pictures are sometimes deceptive but being accustomed to comparing cuts and descriptions helps one to know practically what piece of furniture or other article will look like when it is received.
- Third—Your money stays at home and helps to better the service which a local dealer can render makes the community in which we live more dependent one upon another, working with and for each other, the one thing that makes living worth while.

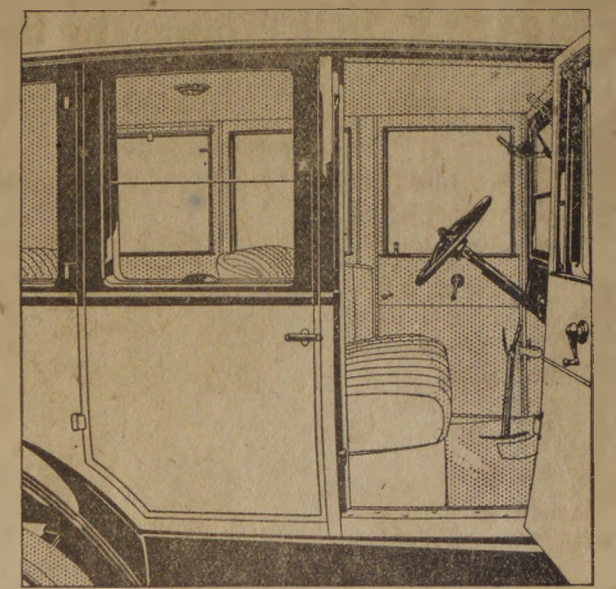

Cash With Order!

Is the one thing that makes all this possible. We receive the money with the order. Enclose our check to the concern from which we buy, and the manufacturer receives his money before goods are shipped, thus eliminating all chances of loss and overpaid. With our guarantee backed by a strong corporation's guarantee, through which we get this service, you are assured of satisfaction. We have had enough dealing with this company now that we feel we can recommend this service to you. All the merchandise we have received has been above the average considering quality and price. We have been very much pleased ourselves with the service and believe all who made purchases have also been highly pleased.

Look over that broadside

Pick out the particular piece in which you are interested and come in and let us help you in ordering same. We know you will be pleased with the service and will be highly repaid in the saving you make.
