Speak Gently.
Speak gently at morn.
Twilight lightens the cares of the day;
Speak gently at night,
Ere cometh the light
Some dawn one may pass away.

Vain then are regrets
For words which, unkind, we have said;
Vain then each caress;
Past then, all address;
No pardons are breathed by the dead.

Speak gently to youth,
Kind words are talismans rare;
Each sorrow assure
Nor add to bowed shoulders a care.

Twere sweet at the last,
When far away summits we gain,
To look o'er a life,
Which, pure in its strife
Had burdened no other with pain.
—Alice D. Jones, in Womankind.

THE GUNMAKER OF ILION

Jefferson M. Clough Refuses a Tempting Offer from the Chinese Government.

His Health Was Too Poor to Permit Attention to Business—A Great Sufferer for Many Years, But Has Now Recovered.

(From the Springfield, Mass., Union.)

There isn't a gun maker in the United States who does not know Jefferson M. Clough, and why? Because he has been intimately associated all his life with the development of the two best American rifles, the Remington and Winchester. For years he was superintendent of the E. Remington & Sons' great factory at Ilion, N. Y. After leaving there he refused a tempting offer of the Chinese Government to go to China to superintend their government factories—and accepted instead the superintendency of the Winchester-Arms Co., at New Haven, at a salary of $7,500 a year.

It was after this long term of active labor as a business man that he found himself incapacitated for further service by the embargo which rheumatism had laid upon him and resigned his position more than two years ago, and returned to Belchertown, Mass., where he now lives and owns the Phelps farm, a retired spot where he has five hundred acres of land.

Being a man of means he did not spare the cost and was treated by leading physicians and by baths at celebrated springs without receiving any benefit worth notice. During the summer of 1893 and the winter of 1894 Mr. Clough was confined to his house in Belchertown, being unable to rise from his bed without assistance, and suffering continually with acute pains and with no taste or desire for food, nor was he able to obtain sufficient sleep.

Early in the year 1894 Mr. Clough heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He began taking these pills about the first of March 1894 and continued to do so until the first part of September following. The first effect noticed was a better appetite and he began to note more ability to help himself out of the bed and to better generally. Last August (1894) he was able to go alone to his summer residence and farm of 163 acres on Grenadier Island, among the Thousand Islands, in the river St. Lawrence, where from the highest land of his farm he commands a view for 13 miles down the river, and 60 of the Thousand Islands can be seen.

Instead of being confined to his bed Mr. Clough is now and has been for some time able to about the farm to direct the men employed there and he is thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him. These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk. They may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

"These are too many bills introduced in our legislatures," said the lawyer. "Quite right," replied the banker. "And the character of the legislation frequently indicates that some of the bills are of high denominations."—Chicago Evening Post.

A LOST TYPE.

O for the glimpse of a natural boy,
A boy with freckled face,
With forehead white, 'neath the tangled hair,
And limbs devoid of grace.

Whose feet toe in, white his elbows flare,
Whose knees are patched all ways,
Who turns as red as a lobster when
You give him a word of praise.

A boy who was born with an appetite,
Who seeks the pantry shelf
To eat his "piece" with resounding smack,
Who isn't gone on himself.

A Robinson Crusoe reading boy,
Whose pockets bulge with trash;
Who knows the use of rod and gun,
And where the brook-trout splash.

It's true he'll sit in the easiest chair,
With hat on his tumbled head;
That his hands are feet on every where—
For youth must have room to spread.

But he doesn't dub his father "old man,"
Nor deny his mother's call,
Nor ridicule what his elders say,
Or think that he knows it all.

A rough and wholesome, natural boy,
Of a good old-fashioned clay;
God bless him, if he's still on earth,
For he'll make a man some day.

CHAPTER XV.—CONTINUED.

They must go farther east, by way of Wagon gap, and back to the agency with their game, as though from innocent and successful hunt. But, in dodging the troops and certain couriers they saw, time was lost, in which they got to drinking and quarreling. Lacy's friends were two well-known contractors for Indian supplies, long accustomed to agency ways, well-versed in Indian affairs and often suspected of being knaves of deeper dye than more swindlers of the aborigines, which species of crime was not bereft of virtue in frontier eyes. They were known to the trade by the names of Stein and Wirtz, and their intimacy with Lacy and certain employes of the quartermaster department had attracted Rand's attention to them months before the robbery. Hearing of their absence from town, he traced them to the agency, thence to the range beyond, and found that the date of their return that way corresponded exactly with that of Thornton's fight. Young Stearns had at last made a coherent statement. Promising to give his luckless father his share as soon as they got back within sight of that harbor of refuge, but plying him with liquor all the time, these men rode to Fossil creek in company, then gave their dozing guide the slip and dashed rapidly ahead. Being aware of the Indian outbreak, they probably studied the country with their glasses and saw the commotion among the distant war parties and so dodged into the range away from the road, and by a wide detour got safely in, while their hapless guide, following in drunken pursuit, ran, foul of the Sioux, was chased and killed. Wisely they hid such of the money as they did not need at the moment, and kept away from headquarters and Lacy awhile until the announcement in the papers that the crime had been definitely fixed on the soldiers Schultz and Schramm gave them courage to unearth their plunder and fetch it nearer home. Not that they intended to divide with Lacy by any means—he was in their toils now, and could be further bled—but to hold him with mingled threat and promise. And all the time Rand was weaving his web about them. The more coherent statements of the half-witted son, now being restored to such intellect as he possessed, had given ample clew, and the arrest of Lacy at Ransom was the result of a dispatch to Rand that his confederates had been pounced upon the previous night at Yankton with over ten thousand dollars of the stolen money in their possession. So long as they did not peach, however, Lacy was still safe, and he played the indignant and wronged and faithful servant, and played it well, for just six weeks; then "Dux femina facti"—the woman who was leader—by the nose—of the triumvirate, and the recipient of much of their stolen plunder, was also arrested when on the wing to the east, and—she couldn't keep a secret; her circumstantial confession of the whole business from beginning to end, made when hoping to win exemption for herself, ended the battle. Then Lacy's own hand penned his parting words and freed his shame-stricken soul.

"It was a well-planned job," said Rand, "on Lacy's part at least, but it had its leak so long as there was a woman in it."

And now, as his evidence was no longer needed, Sergt. Schramm had no further business at either Butte or Ransom. "But you don't want to go back that long distance alone," said Tintop. "We can assign you to camp here until your troop comes home next month." And to the adjutant's infinite surprise, Schramm eagerly assented.

October went, and keener winds from the mountain-gorges and fiercer twinges in Morgan's legs reminded them that winter was at hand. Often now the post surgeon found means to ride over to Butte and see the failing soldier, and many a day officers or their wives contrived to visit town and dropped in to see Connie and offer aid and comfort to her father, but Connie declared she needed no help. She had an excellent servant now, a German woman whom Mrs. Hinkel brought to her, who cooked and washed and did almost everything for so small a sum that when the amount was mentioned I fear me there were women who were sorely tempted to offer the paragon twice as much to quit the Morgans and come to them, but they deserved the more honor that they promptly dismissed the unworthy thought. Connie said Mrs. Hinkel, too, was kind and useful in making things for the children, and Miss Franzen of the public school, who lived in the next block, took such interest in Lot and Billy and taught them so much. Why, they would really be in clover, were poor father only better. And then one evening when Schramm had ridden into town and left his horse at the Empire and had come promptly around to see the Herr Rittmeister, he was amazed to find a tall, gray-mustached, soldierly man seated by the captain's side, while there—right by Connie—in civilian dress stood a tall, slender young fellow, at sight of whom the sergeant's eyes clouded, and he would have retired, but was too late, for with one leap Perry Thornton had him by the hand.

"Schramm, by all that's glorious! Father, look here!" And before the Prussian ex-hussar could realize it, a veteran colonel of dragoons was wringing one of his hands, while the lieutenant clasped the other. Nor would they or the Morgans let him go.

"I have a letter from Berlin which I am charged to give you, Herr von Rhetz," said Thornton pere, and at the name Schramm's lips quivered and twitched and he turned very white, but straight in the colonel's kindly face looked the unflinching eyes of blue.

Yet even then he would have asked to be permitted to retire—the soldier in him shrinking from what he deemed intrusion, and a strange, restless gnawing at his heart impelling him to go and leave them to the joy of a reunion in which no doubt he had really no place—but, one and all, they forbade. Constance held in her hands two cabinet photographs, and Perry stepped forward, took one of these, and, holding it forth, said to Schramm:

"If you need more reason, sergeant, here it is, for this is the picture of a young lady who says she must have yours, and quickly, too."

"The young lady is most gracious, Herr Lieutenant, and most beautiful," said Schramm, studying it attentively; then, glancing up: "The lieutenant's sister?"

"Not quite," laughed Perry, blushing, "though that's what my sisters are beginning to call her—rather prematurely."

And then in his perplexity Schramm gazed past the handsome boy and sought Connie's face. It was beaming.

PERRY THORNTON HAD HIM BY THE HAND.

"Pardon," he said, "I am so dull. Does the lieutenant mean it is his betrothed?"

"Yes, and we are here to drink her health—we five."

For one moment Schramm's eyes sought doubtfully the eyes of the maiden who stood there so unflinchingly and smilingly before them, and then his hand went out in earnest.

CHAPTER XVI.

A winter of unusual severity was that which followed upon the heels of a summer campaign that had been full of lively excitement for Tintop and the regiment. Once more, however, the spirit of social gaiety was abroad, and the Christmas holidays were merry with many a charming function. Hops, Germans, dinners and luncheon-parties, theatricals, minstrels and soldier balls, day after day and night after night, were in full career at Ransom, while dense and blinding snow-storms blocked the roads and soon succeeded in making the trip from fort to town more of a venture than the winter passage of the Atlantic. Starting from town with sunshine and sleigh-bells, one night encounter storm and tempest before half the distance was traversed. December, though sharply cold, had been bright and beautiful until about the 15th; then came the succession of blizzards that cut communication almost entirely and caused a wail of dismay from the shopkeepers of Butte, most of whom had laid in goodly stores of toys and trinkets for the delectation of their best customers, the people out at the fort. The stage had to be taken off, and for days the mails were carried to and fro in saddle. The doctors, senior and junior, found plenty to do at the fort and little to tempt them elsewhere, so their visits to Morgan became infrequent. There was just one man at the post whom no gale could daunt, no storm could conquer, and that was Schramm.

Every one knew that Morgan was slowly growing feebler. "He ought to have gone to the Hot Springs long ago," said the doctor, "but now it is too late." He could not stand the journey without special attendants and accommodations, and those were things he could not, and Uncle Sam would not, pay for. Knowing that he would have nothing to leave, and deeming him near dissolution, his creditors were hounding him again. If he lived, the fifty dollars per month would gradually pay them off, but if he died there was nothing; hence the renewed clamor for immediate settlement. The weather was bitter, the little house cold and draughty, fuel was horribly expensive, and there was the veteran dragoon, a helpless cripple, looking death in the face and imploring him yet a little while to hold his hand, not that the broken-spirited soldier might recover his strength—he was past all that—but that he might linger on even in labor and sorrow, that with his annuity he might save his children from utter destitution. Hours he sat in loneliness, for it was impossible, save at rare intervals, for his old comrades to reach him now. He wondered how Connie could sing so happily about the house. Surely she and Bertha, the middle-aged maid-of-all-work, had accomplished wonders with the little sum he could devote to household expenses. Lot and Billy looked hearty and rosy and well-fed and clothed when they came tumbling noisily in from school. Connie's sweet face and slender form were rounded. The dark circles under the big brown eyes were gone. Here he was, hardly daring to eat, thinking how soon they might be left without bite, sup or cent. Yet Connie smiled and sang, and was picking up little household words and phrases in German, and blushing aced Schramm in his native tongue when Schramm came, as he rarely failed to come, twice, thrice, or oftener during the week, to pay his respects to the gnadige Fraulein, and to see what he could do for the Herr Rittmeister, who, ever since the day of the Thorntons' coming, had vainly protested against the further use of the name Schramm, had insisted that the time had come for the German sergeant to drop his punctilious observance of the deference due all superior officers, and had informed Connie that he should be addressed as Herr von Rhetz; but it was all to no purpose. Schramm forbade. "I left my name with my past when I came to enlist in this army," said he. "I had to win a future for myself, and so took my mother's name meantime. Call me by that so long as I wear the blue." Indeed, he couldn't bear to have the gnadige Fraulein address him as "sergeant" at all. He said that from the first he loved to watch her lips as she struggled with the combination that finally gave utterance to a Sch-r-r-ramm. There could be no question that he loved to watch her lips, no matter what she might be saying, and small blame to him either.

But out at Ransom Schramm was becoming a notability in earnest. Despite his plea to Col. Thornton to keep secret as yet the story of his difference with his stern old father, his retirement from the German service, his practical banishment from home, and then the proffered forgiveness and reconciliation, there were so many suspicions that the Thorntons were pried with questions they could not altogether dodge. Everyone knew by this time Schramm had money in plenty, and that it was deposited in a German bank in the east. "Yes," said Thornton, "that was his mother's fortune, which had become his own;" but the colonel refused to tell more, saying the soldier had a perfect right to serve out his time as Schramm and nothing else. Everybody saw, however, the courtesy and distinction with which the Thorntons, father and son, treated him—Perry, in fact, waxing hot and wanting to fight an ill-conditioned, cross-grained subaltern who sneered at him. Schramm's box was kept in the vault of the First national now, where the cashier and other officials would fain have treated him with greater deference than they showed his officers, had Schramm permitted it. He would never enter the bank when an officer was there, and should one happen in, even the veriest cub in the whole garrison, Schramm would spring back from the counter and stand attention and at salute, never presuming to come forward again until the shoulder straps had vanished. This naturally gave umbrage to the public, which, very properly, preferred moneyed sergeants to mortgaged subs, but no one at the post could truthfully say that Schramm ever in the faintest way failed in the respect and deference due his superiors in grade.

On the other hand, there were those who saw that Schramm's new captain was taking frequent opportunity to treat the young German with scant courtesy; it was apparent from the moment of the return of the troop from the field. They had already begun the homeward march when Schramm was ordered by Tintop to await their return to headquarters, but Capt. Bragg declared that Schramm had shirked his duty with the troop. The medal of honor awarded him was presented by Tintop and pinned on Schramm's breast in presence of the whole command, and Bragg sneered at the colonel's commendatory remarks and sneered again in Thornton's presence as the troop marched in from parade. Perry was already disgusted with having to serve longer in D troop, but no transfer could be obtained. Schramm's duties in barracks and stables were most scrupulously performed, but never to the extent of winning expression of satisfaction from Bragg. Schramm rarely asked to be excused from duty, but often put in for a pass to go to town. There was no good reason for refusing so good a man, so Bragg growled and grumbled, and finally said he couldn't have his horses ridden all over creation, and Schramm must walk thereafter or hire a coach and-four. Schramm never by word or sign showed irritation. He received the blunt, ill-natured reply with silent salute. He hired Curran's buggy, and then, an evening or two thereafter, just before stables, came loping back from Butte on a splendid bay, Lieut. Edward's favorite horse, which that officer had vainly asked three hundred for when he needed money to go east on sick leave, and failing to obtain his price had lent him to the Empire stables in town. Schramm, it transpired, had bought the entire "outfit," equipments and all, but had the bridle and housings stored and replaced by modest black leather and dark blue blanket. Bragg forbade his keeping his horse in the troop stables, and Schramm, flushing slightly, replied, with the utmost self-command and respect, that he could not presume to think of such a thing. Mr. Curran had kindly consented to take charge of his horse in his private stable, where Schramm, you may depend upon it, paid roundly for forage and grooming.

THE MEDAL OF HONOR AWARDED SCHRAMM WAS PRESENTED BY TINTOP.

Then it next transpired that Schramm had named his new acquisition "Rand, and, as Rand, in his capacity as inspector general had frequently rapped Bragg over the knuckles, this gave greater offense to Bragg. Then a famous opera company, crossing the continent, struck a blizzard and were snow bound in a special car at Butte. There was a big hall with a fair-sized stage in town. The owner urged a performance, and the manager agreed to give "Faust" on a guarantee that took the owner's breath away. He braved the drifts, however, and galloped out to the fort and told his story. "Go ahead," said Tintop. "You shall have the band, and we'll all take seats." But when he heard the price Tintop retracted. "We can't stand the figure—that is, I can't, and few of my officers can." Nevertheless the owner found means to give the front row of the gallery, all around, at a reduced rate, and there the fort contingent looked down on the two-dollar seats in the so-called parquet, and just before the overture began in marched forty sergeants, cavalry, infantry and staff from Ransom, each man in his nattiest dress uniform, and took possession of the rows of chairs reserved for them, and after the opera was over did these non-commissioned officers adjourn to Conway's, where another bountiful supper was spread in his big room, and then back to the fort in the dawn of the frosty morning to the tune of soldier sons and merry sleigh bells. "Schramm's stag party" was the talk of the post for a week thereafter. Bragg thought it an outrage that enlisted men should be allowed to sit in public entertainment in presence of their betters. Tintop, on the contrary, said he was proud to see so many of his men intelligent, soldierly, and so thoroughly capable of appreciating such music and such a company. As for the opera people and the local manager, they were enraptured. Connie, you may be sure, was there to see. She and her friend Miss Franzen had been brought thither and taken home in a carriage from the Empire, and invited and escorted by the principal of the public school, to whom, it transpired later, tickets as well as instructions had been sent beforehand, and it was just about this time, just before Christmas, that somebody started the new name for the blue-eyed Prussian, and Schramm, to his manifest concern, was hailed as "Sergt. Croesus."

ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Senate.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12.—Senator Crawford Wednesday called up his bill providing for the payment of 5 per centum per annum on municipal warrants drawn in anticipation of the tax levy, and it was passed. The house bill providing for the taxation of the unsold land of the Illinois Central railroad was sent to the judiciary committee. House bills on first reading were then taken up. Among those advanced were: The bill providing that notaries public shall be citizens of the United States; allowing town authorities to condemn gravel pits to improve roads; limiting the time boys shall be kept in training schools. The house bill compelling the placing of flags on public buildings was referred to the committee on military affairs. The house bill regulating the sale of convict-made goods of other states was advanced to second reading. The same disposition was made of the house bill regarding the leasing of railroads in this state to railroads in other states. Cody's bill, to prevent barber shops from being open on Sunday, was advanced to second reading. Senator Salomon's department store bill, providing for the regulation of these stores, passed, as did also his classification department store bill. The house bill was called up by Senator Barry and passed. Mr. Loventhal's bill regulating the granting of rights and special privileges for lighting purposes by city councils was advanced to third reading. The house bill authorizing drainage districts to issue bonds passed. The following bills were passed: House bill allowing supreme court judges stenographers; making an appropriation for the Illinois reformatory at Pontiac; making appropriations for the Joliet penitentiary; Mahoney's bill to prevent the location of a cemetery nearer than half a mile from the city limits; making appropriations for the state laboratory of natural history; making appropriations for the state penitentiary at Chester; house bill providing for the health and safety of coal miners. The house bill to prevent the use of slot machines was advanced to third reading.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 14.—In the senate Thursday the Loventhal frontage bill, regulating the granting of rights and special privileges for lighting purposes by cities and incorporated towns, was passed. Senator Littler called up his revenue bill, and it was passed. Senator Wells called up his bill prohibiting the manufacture by convicts of anything that is taken into the mouth, which was vetoed by Gov. Altgeld. It was passed by a good two-thirds vote. The Torrens land title bill was reported from the committee on amendments. The house bill, providing for the election of judges of Cook county at the general election, was advanced to a third reading. The senate then took a recess to 2:30 o'clock.

At the afternoon session the arbitration bill was taken up and after discussion was referred to the judiciary committee, which practically kills the measure.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 15.—After passing a large number of bills at a session which lasted until long after midnight the Thirty-ninth general assembly adjourned.

The feature of the closing hours of the session was the defeat of the local option bill. Its friends had enough votes to pass it, but they could not get a consideration of the measure.

The usual wild scenes which mark the closing hours of the Illinois assembly prevailed. Paper, waste baskets, books and bill files were thrown, members yelled like riotous school-boys and there was the greatest disorder. During the day the senate took up the Crawford bills allowing the consolidation of elevated and street railways which Gov. Altgeld had vetoed, and passed them both over his veto. The measures went to the house where the one relating to street railways was taken up. One hundred and two votes were necessary to pass the bill over the veto and on the roll call the bill got 87 votes. Before the fact that it had failed to pass was announced Mr. Crafts, of Cook, got the floor and moved to postpone further action until 8 o'clock in the evening. At that hour the friends of the bill were not ready to take the matter up. When the recess for supper was taken they had gone to work among the members, and it was said that they had had the votes of having enough, but they wanted to be certain of having the requisite votes before allowing the bill to come up again. The hands of the clock were turned back and the hours dragged along, but the street railway people could not get their extra votes. In the meantime a large number of measures were rushed through, among them a resolution to submit a constitutional amendment which will allow Chicago to bond her indebtedness to the extent of $7,000,000. At last the supporters of Gov. Altgeld decided to break the quorum and thus prevent the Crawford bill from coming up. They refused to vote and this broke up the session.

House.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12.—The house at once proceeded to the bills on third reading when it met Tuesday morning. Mr. Revel's bill to prohibit the erection of buildings or the occupying of lands in public parks passed. The senate bill amending the civil service act also passed. It changes the present law so that the salaries of the civil service commissioners in towns of less than 25,000 inhabitants shall be $50 instead of $500 a year. The bill appropriating $104,000 for the erection of a hospital for the incurable insane was passed.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 13.—The house Wednesday reconsidered and passed Perry's bill allowing railroad corporations of another state to purchase leased lines in this state providing that nothing in the act shall operate to authorize the consolidation of parallel lines. Mr. Miller, of Cook, called up the Torrens land title bill on second reading, and after several amendments were adopted it was advanced to third reading. Senator Salomon's bill regulating department stores in towns of over 100,000 inhabitants came over from the senate and was read a first time and advanced to second reading. Mr. Kaiser's bill providing for substituting the question of licensing saloons to a vote of the people in towns of 5,000 inhabitants and less was passed.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 14.—The Torrens land title bill was passed by the house Thursday morning. A number of minor bills were read a second time and advanced. The general appropriation bill for the expenses of the state government was read a third time and passed.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 15.—The first bill passed by the house Friday was that increasing the salary of the chief clerk of the election commissioners of Cook county from $2,500 to $3,500. The bill providing for the payment of interest on warrants of municipal corporations after they have been due thirty days also passed, as did the following appropriation bills: Appropriating $502,000 for the payment of state officers and officers and members of the next general assembly; appropriating $180,000 annually to the Illinois national guard and $30,000 to defray expenses till next July; appropriating $5,000 for the survey of a ship canal from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi river, and providing for the waterway commissioner at $500 a month.

Sullivan's Chicago law directory, just issued, contains the names of 3,525 attorneys, as against 3,242 in 1894.

Congressman Hopkins was down from Aurora several days this week interviewing the state legislature and his republican friends with regard to his gubernatorial chances. It is not not too much to say that Mr. Hopkins, if a person can judge by the cordial, enthusiastic reception he has received here, is making rapid progress in his canvass and he is today the most formidable candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination now before the people. Mr. Hopkins makes a favorable impression where ever he goes, the people like him; they know too, that he has always proved a winner in every contest; and knowing these things they will take pleasure in rallying to his support a year hence to make him the nominee of the next Republican convention for the Governorship—Waukegan Gazette

Schiller Theater.

As predicted Little Robinson Crusoe at the Schiller theatre, has turned out to be the biggest kind of a success. Press and public unite in the judgment that it is by far the most attractive, and likely to prove the most popular performance ever given in Chicago. Upon the occasion of its production Saturday night, the house was crowded to the doors, hundreds being turned away. It was a gala occasion and the piece was received with a degree of enthusiasm and applause seldom witnessed in this handsome theatre. Of course the people laugh and keep laughing. They cannot do otherwise when such a star as Edwin Foy, and public favorites like Marie Dressler; Adele Farrington, Sadie McDonald, Babette Rodney, Frank H. White, Douglas White, the Crawford brothers, and all the others of the star cast, have been brought together in the bright, original and provokingly funny story, Harry B. Smiths "Little Robinson Crusoe," united as it is to the charming melodies and impressive brilliant choruses of the music, W. H. Batchelor and Gustav Luders have especially written for it.

The production is made very elaborate, much the best in what may, very properly be called, operatic burlesque, of everything ever known in Chicago. It is distinctively a Chicago production and fully worthy of the city and its deserved reputation for great theatrical and musical novelties. The scenery throughout three acts of delicious merriment and song, is something superb, a series of realistic stage pictures of life and beauty; a most lavish display, culminating in a glorious transformation scene, developed in a series of beautiful changes illustrating a fairy-like vision under the ocean. Then the coquetish and really ravishing costumes of the pretty women of the chorus, of the bathing girls, the bell-boys corps, the press gang, the jockeys, the Cannibals and the chorus of Cannibal cooks. They were designed by Chicago artists and especially for the production. No such handsome costumes have ever been designed for the Chicago stage, certainly their equal have never been made up in Chicago, and probably they have never been surpassed anywhere as a brilliant stage picture. In a word "Little Robinson Crusoe" is great.

—For every quarter in a man's pocket there are a dozen uses; and to use each one in such a way as to derive the greatest benefit is a question which everyone must solve for himself. We believe, however, that no better use could be made of the money than to exchange a quarter for a bottle of Chamberlains Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoeo Remedy, a medicine that every family should be provided with. For sale by F. T. Robinson, Genoa, and H. R. Fuller, Kingston.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This remedy does not stimulate and contains no whiskey or other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alternative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding Nature in the performance of the functions. A Miracle in Vermont.

THE WONDERFUL EXPERIENCE OF A WELL-KNOWN CHELSEA MAN.

Stricken with an Incurable Disease and yet Cured.

(From the Argus and Patriot, Montpelier, Vt.)

Eight years ago Geo. Hutchinson moved from Bradford to Chelsea, Vt., and bought the sawmill at the latter place. He was known as one of the strongest men in that section. On Dec. 10, '92 while at work in the mill, he was struck in the back by a flying board, which seriously injured him and incapacitated him for work of any kind. As a result of this, Locomotor Ataxia set in, (this is a form of paralysis which deprives the patient of all use of his lower limbs.) The Argus & Patriot interviewed Mr. Hutchinson to-day, and his story is here given in his own words.

"My back ached continually and my legs began to grow numb and to be less and less usable. By the 15th of April I could do absolutely nothing and was scarcely able to stand. My physicians advised me to go to the Mary Fletcher Hospital at Burlington, to be treated, and I took their advice. When I left home my friends bade me good-bye, never expecting to see me alive again. The physicians at the hospital told me that my case was a serious one and I was completely discouraged. I remained at the hospital seven weeks and took the medicines which the doctors gave me. I felt better at the hospital and thought that I was recovering, and went home to continue their treatment, which I did for two months, and also had an electric battery under their advice. The improvement, however, did not continue and I began to give up hope. August 1st, 1893, I could not get out of my chair without assistance, and if I got down upon the floor, I could not get up alone. About this time I chanced to read an account of the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in cases similar to my own. I did not have any faith in the Pills, but thought a trial could do no harm, so I bought some without telling anyone what I was going to do. After I had been taking them some time I found that, for the first time in months I was able to walk down to the post office, and my neighbors began to discuss the marked improvement in my health. As I continued the medicine I continued to improve, and soon recommenced work in the mill, at first very lightly, and increasing as I was able and as I gained in health and spirits, and now for the past three months I have been working ten hours per day almost as steadily as I ever did. I feel well, eat well and sleep as well as I ever did and I have no pain anywhere."

The reporter talked with several other gentlemen in regard to the case of Mr. Hutchinson, who stated that any statement he might make would be entitled to entire credence. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or 6 boxes for $2.50.

Two Lives Saved

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City Ill., was told by her doctors that she had she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Thus, Eggers, 339 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a severe cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, and then bought one bottle of Dr King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at F. T. Robinson's Drug Store, Genoa, and L. C. Shaffer's Kingston.

Dainty Gowns.

Taffetas in tiny checks and fine stripes or in the chine designs of blurred flowers in fade colors are made up in the most refined simplicity. The skirts are without any trimming, and measure from five to six yards at the foot, fitting trimly around the waist, with just a little fullness at the back held in tiny box-plaits or gathered. The corsage is slightly full in the back or laid in box plaits, and is either round or slightly pointed; while the front is very full and drooping. It is often trimmed with many vertical rows of narrow lace, yellow or black; and, oftener than not, opens in the center to show a tucked and lace-frilled piece of mull or linen lawn. Dainty little points or turrets of the white lawn turn down over the silk or ribbon collar, and form the cuff of a long sleeve; or if the gown has elbow sleeves, a lace-frilled band of the tucking turns up over the folded silk band into which the fullness of the sleeve is gathered.—From "Review of Fashions" in Demorest's Magazine for July

A North Dakota editor writes: The politician is my good shepherd, I shall not want for anything during the campaign. He leadeth me into the saloon for my vote's sake. He fillet my pockets with good cigars, and my beer glass runneth ever. He inquired concerning the health of my family even unto the fourth generation. Yea, though I walk through mud and rain to vote for him and shout myself hoarse when he is elected, he straightway forgetteth me. Although I meet him in his own home, he knoweth me not. Senate bill 54, by Mussett—Appropriates $4,000 yearly to aid the Illinois State Horticultural society in holding its meetings and publishing an annual report.

Senate bill 387, by the committee on appropriations—Appropriates $12,370 to defray the expenses of the joint committee on statutory revision created at the last session of the legislature. The bill discharges the commission from further service.

Senate bill 150, by Herb—Appropriates $65,400 to be used in erecting a monument to mark the positions which Illinois troops occupied in the Battles of Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge.

Senate bill 220, by Harding—Abolishes days of grace on promissory notes, checks, drafts, bills of exchange, or other negotiable paper, or commercial instrument, by providing that they shall be absolutely payable at maturity. If they shall fall due on a holiday they shall become due the day following.

Senate bill 89, by Anthony—Amends the law regarding promissory notes. It provides that the liability of all parties upon such notes shall be the same as the principal. Persons severally liable on bills of exchange or promissory notes may all or any of them be included in the same suit at the option of the plaintiff and judgment rendered in said suit shall be without prejudice to the rights of the several defendants as between themselves. Whenever one of the parties has paid the judgment he shall be entitled to have the judgment released as to him, but it shall at his option stand and be enforced against any other party who remains liable to the party paying for the reimbursement of the party so paying.

Senate bill 100, by Fisher—Appropriates $50 annually to every county farmers' institute which holds one or more meetings yearly.

Senate bill 317, by Chapman—Appropriates $40,000 for a classroom, library and laboratory at the Southern Illinois normal school at Carbondale.

Senate bill 206, by Green—Appropriates in addition to one-half of the interest of the college fund $22,116 for the ordinary expenses of the Southern Illinois Normal school at Carbondale.

Senate bill 14, by Littler—Appropriates $3,000 for the paving of the streets around the capitol building and the governor's mansion, and $28,800 to reimburse the city of Springfield for paving in front of the arsenal.

Senate bill 179, by Humphrey—To allow an increase in taxation in the drainage district for the purpose of completing the canal. The bill provides that the board of trustees may levy taxes in the sanitary district, the amount of which for each of the years 1895, 1896 and 1897 shall not exceed 1 1/2 per centum of value of taxable property in the district. The board of trustees shall cause the amount required to be raised to be certified to the county clerk on or before the second Tuesday of August of each year. Any channel or outlet under this act which shall cause a discharge of sewage through or into any river within the district shall be of sufficient size and capacity to produce a continuous flow of water of at least 200 cubic feet of water for each 1,000 inhabitants of the district so drained. The flow shall be maintained so that the water will not be offensive.

Senate bill 158, by Evans—Provides that cities, towns and villages may levy a special tax or license on foreign insurance companies doing business within the corporation. The tax is not to exceed 2 per cent. of the gross receipts from business done by the local agency, and is to be applied for the benefit of the local fire department.

Senate bill 148, by Craig—Provides for the establishment of the Eastern Illinois state normal school and appropriates for the purpose of erecting suitable buildings $50,000. The institution shall be located north of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railway and south of the Wabash railway, and east of the Illinois Central railway.

Senate bill 2, by Hunt—Establishes the Northern Illinois state normal school and carries with it an appropriation of $50,000. The school shall be located north of the main line of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad.

Senate bill 369, by Crawford—Provides a system for the pensioning of retired school-teachers in cities of over 100,000 inhabitants. It is provided that males shall serve twenty-five years and females twenty years in the public schools before they can receive the benefits of the pension fund. The fund shall be raised by the assessment of not more than one per cent. of the salaries of teachers and employes, and it shall be under the care of the board of education and two other persons selected by the teachers.

House Bills.
House bill 340, by the committee on state and municipal civil service reform—An act to regulate the civil service of cities. This measure provides that the mayor of each city in this state which shall adopt this act, in the manner provided, shall, not less than forty nor more than ninety days after the taking effect of the act in such city, appoint three persons, to be known as the civil service commissioners of such city, one to serve for three years, one for two years, and one for one year, every year thereafter one commissioner shall be appointed to succeed the person whose term expires in that year. Not more than two members of the commission shall at any time belong to the same political party. The mayor may, in his discretion, remove any commissioner for incompetence, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office. The commissioners shall classify all the offices and places of employment in such city, with reference to the examination provided for in the act, and the offices and places so classified shall be known as the "classified service" of such city. Examinations shall be practical in their character and shall relate to those matters which will fairly test the relative capacity of the persons examined to discharge the duties of the positions to which they seek to be appointed, and shall include tests of physical qualifications and health and, when appropriate, of mental skill. No questions in the examination shall relate to political or religious opinions or affiliations. All appointments to the classified service are to be made upon merit, as evidenced by the grade obtained by the applicant in the examination. The following shall not be included in the classified service, and shall be exempt from the provisions of the act: Officers who are elected by the people, or who are elected by the city council pursuant to the city charter, or whose appointment is subject to confirmation by the city council; judges and clerks of election; members of any board of education; the superintendent and teachers of schools; heads of any principal department of the city; members of the law department, and one private secretary of the mayor. No person appointed to the classified service shall be removed except for cause, upon written charges, to be investigated by the civil service commissioners. No officer or employe of the city shall solicit, receive or pay any assessment, subscription or contribution for any party or political purposes whatever. Promotions in consideration of political service are prohibited.

House bill 16, Mr. Dudley—Amending the law regarding training schools for boys. Its most important provision is that all training schools for boys organized under this act shall be subject to the same visitation, inspection and supervision of the board of state commissioners of public charities as the charitable institutions of the state.

Before the bill is in force it must be adopted by the voters of each county in the state. Even then no one is compelled to use this system of land transfer, but may do so if they choose. The bill was known as senate bill No. 155 and provides for the registration of the title of land as distinguished from the system of recording the deeds. The features of the bill are as follows:

Recorders Ex-Officio Registrars.

Recorders and ex-officio recorders of deeds shall be registrars of titles in their respective counties. All laws relative to recorders and their deputies, including compensation, clerk hire, expenses, etc., shall extend to registrars and deputies. Recordors and ex-officio recorders before entering upon their duty as registrars shall give a bond of $50,000, except in counties having a population of 200,000 or more, where the bond shall be $25,000, which bond shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. Deputies may perform any and all duties of the registrar in the name of the registrar. No registrar or deputy registrar shall practice as an attorney or be in partnership with an attorney while in office. The registrar shall appoint two or more attorneys to be examiners of titles and legal advisers. Their compensation shall be fixed in the same manner as that of deputy registrars.

Bringing Land Under Act.

The owner of any estate or interest in land, whether legal or equitable, and whoever has the power of appointing or disposing of the entire legal estate in fee simple, may apply to the registrar of the county in which the land is situated to have the title registered. It shall not be an objection to bringing land under this act that the estate or interest of the applicant is subject to any outstanding lesser estate or mortgage, but every such lesser estate or mortgage shall be noted upon the certificate of title, and the title or interest certified shall be subject to all such estates, mortgages, etc. No title derived through sale for any tax or assessment shall be entitled to be first registered unless the applicant has been in possession of the land at least ten years and has paid the taxes for seven years. The application shall be in writing and shall set forth: (a) The name and place of residence of the applicant. (b) Whether the applicant (except in case of corporations) be married or not, and if so the name and residence of husband or wife. (c) Description of the land. (d) Applicant's interest in same and whether it is subject to estate of homestead. (e) Whether the land is or is not occupied; if occupied the name and address of the occupant and their interest in the land. (f) Whether the land is subject to any incumbrance, if any other provision is made in the act. (g) The name and amount of same; if recorded the book and page of the record. (h) Whether any other person has any estate or claims any interest in the land. All matters to be stated in the same county, owned by the same person, may be included in one application. After such application is made the registrar shall cause examination to be made into the applicant's title to the land and shall notify all persons who appear to have any claim against the land. If the registrar finds that the facts stated in the application are true he shall issue the certificate of title and bring the land under this act. The registrar shall as often as once in each week make out and publish in a newspaper published in his county a list of all first registrations effected during the preceding week. The notice must contain a short description of the land, the name of registered owner and date of registration.

Certificate of Title.

Certificate of title shall be numbered consecutively. Every first and subsequent certificate of title shall be in duplicate and one date the day and year of its issue. One copy of which shall be retained by the registrar, and the other shall be delivered to the owner. The registrar shall file at the office of each certificate, original and duplicate, in such manner as to show and preserve their priorities, the particulars of all estates, mortgages, incumbrances, liens or charges, in which the owner's title is subject. In all cases where two or more persons are entitled as tenants in common to an estate in registered land, such persons may receive one certificate for the entire estate or each may receive a separate certificate for his undivided share. A registered owner of land held under several certificates may deliver up the same and receive instead one certificate for the entire land.

The Registrar.

All original certificates of title shall be entered in a book known as the "Register of Titles" in the order of their number. In every case of first registration of land the same shall be deemed registered when the registrar has marked upon the duplicate certificate of title the volume and folium of the register in which the original may be found. Transfers shall be deemed registered when the new certificate is marked as in the case of first registration.

Effect of Registration.

The registered owner of land shall, except in case of fraud, hold the same subject to such claims as may be made in the last certificate of title in the registrar's office except any subsisting lease for a period not exceeding five years where there is actual occupation of the land. Any tax or assessment for which a sale of the land has not been had at the date of the certificate. The right of any person in possession of and rightfully entitled to the land or part thereof adverse to the title of the registered owner at the time when the land is first brought under this act and continuing in possession until the issuance of the last certificate of title. After land has been registered no adverse title shall be acquired by any length of possession merely.

Transfer.

When a registered owner of land desires to transfer his whole possession or a part of it or an interest therein he shall surrender to the registrar his duplicate certificate and the registrar shall issue a new certificate of title to the transferee and cancel the old certificate. If only a part of the land is to be transferred a new certificate shall also be issued for the remaining portion of the estate to the transferee. A deed, mortgage or lease to transfer, mortgage or lease registered land, excepting a will or lease for a period not exceeding five years, shall take effect upon compliance with the terms of this act.

Mortgages, Leases and Other Charges.

Every mortgage, lease for a term not exceeding ten years contract to sell, and other instrument intended to create a lien, incumbrance or charge upon land shall be deemed to be a charge thereon, and may be registered. When filing an instrument intended to create a charge upon registered land the person owning the land shall produce the duplicate certificate in his possession and the registrar shall enter on both the original and duplicate certificates a memorial of the charge. The holder of any charge upon registered land who desires to assign the same or a part may execute an assignment of that which he wishes to transfer and the registrar shall enter in the register opposite the charge a memorial of such transfer and issue to the transferee a certified copy of the instrument of transfer. A surrender of a charge may be effected in the same way as provided for a mortgage and all charges upon registered land may be enforced as now allowed by law.

Trusts, Conditions and Limitations.

Whenever an instrument is filed in the registrar's office for the purpose of creating a transfer or charge upon registered land and the transfer is to be upon some trust, condition or limitation, the registrar shall, unless the instrument directs to the contrary, note in the certificate and duplicate or memorial, the words, "on conditions" or "with limitations," as the case may be.

Transmission.

Lands registered pursuant to this act shall, upon the death of the owner, go to the personal representatives of the deceased in like manner as personal estate, whether the owner dies testate or intestate, and shall be subject to the same rules of administration as if the same were personal estate. But a memorial of the will devising the lands to an executor or his own use or upon some trust, or giving to the executor power to sell, no sale or transfer of registered land shall be made by the executor or administrator in the course of administration, for the payment of debts or otherwise, except in pursuance of an order of a competent court obtained as provided by law. But a memorial of the will and letters testamentary or of letters of administration being first entered upon the register, the executor or administrator may deal with the lands as if they were his own interests in or upon registered land, as if he were the registered owner thereof. When it appears by the will, a certified copy of which, with the letters testamentary filed, that registered land is devised to the executor to his own use or upon some trust the executor may have the land transferred to himself. When the will of a deceased owner of registered land contains a memorial of a bequest, bequest, or otherwise deal with the land, it shall not be necessary for such executor to be registered as the owner, but a certified copy of the will and the letters testamentary filed, such executor may deal with the land pursuant to the power in like manner, as if he were the registered owner.

Dealings of Assignees and Receivers.

Before any person appears at the courts for the benefit of creditors shall deal with registered land he shall file with the registrar a certified copy of the order of the court showing that he is authorized to deal with such land, and the registrar shall enter upon the register a memorial thereof. The memorial having been entered, the person, subject to the order of the court, deal with the land as if he were the registered owner.

Tax Stated.

The holder of a certificate of sale of registered land for any tax or assessment shall within three months after date of sale present the same to the registrar who shall enter on the register a memorial of the sale. The holder of the certificate shall also within the same time mail to each of the persons who appear by the registrar to have any interest in or charge upon the land a notice of the registration of such certificate. Unless such certificate is presented and notice given as provided within the time mentioned the land shall be forever released from the effect of the sale and no deed issued. A tax deed of registered land shall have only the effect of an agreement for the transfer of the title upon the register and may be filed and a transfer effected as in case of other deeds of conveyance. But no certificate of title shall be issued until the expiration of two years after the date of filing such deed.

Lis Pendens Notice.

Notwithstanding that for any purpose whatever, affecting registered land shall be deemed to be lis pendens of notice to any person dealing with the same until a certificate of the pendency of such proceeding be filed with the registrar and a memorial entered upon the register of the last certificate of the title to be effected. No order of any court shall be a lien upon registered land until a certificate stating the date and nature of the judgment is filed in the office of the registrar.

Attachments, Executions, Etc.

Whenever registered land is levied upon by virtue of any writ of attachment, execution, etc., it shall be the duty of the clerk making the levy to file with the registrar a certificate of such. Any person making any claim or lien upon registered land not shown upon the register, and no other provision is made in the act, may file the same in the registrar's office, may make affidavit thereof, setting forth his claim and how and under whom derived, and the registrar shall enter a memorial of the same in the book of the clerk of the court in which any proceeding shall have been pending, or any judgment is of record, that such proceeding has been dismissed or otherwise disposed of, or the judgment has been satisfied, or the proceedings reversed, or overruled, or of any sheriff or other officer that the levy of any attachment certified by him has been released, discharged, or otherwise disposed of, being in the registrar's office shall be sufficient to authorize the registrar to cancel or otherwise treat the memorial of such proceeding, judgment, or levy, according to the nature of such certificate.

Fees.

Any person who fraudulently procures a certificate of title or assists in so doing or any person who illegally makes any alteration in the books of the registrar's office shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be imprisoned not exceeding five years, or either or both. No conviction for such an act shall affect any remedy which any person injured may be entitled to.

Fees.

The fees of the registrar shall be as follows: On the filing of any application for first registration, the applicant shall advance the sum of $15, which shall be paid to the registrar and examiner up to the granting of the certificate of title. When the application includes titles derived from more than one source, an additional sum of $1 for each source shall be advanced. For granting a certificate of title upon each application, and registering the same, $2. For registering transfers and issuing new certificates, $3. If the land transferred is held upon a mortgage, condition or limitation, $5 extra. For entering memorial or register, $3. For filing copy of will with letters testamentary, or filing copy of letters of administration, and entering memorial thereof, $5. For the cancellation of each memorial or charge, $1. For each certificate showing condition of the register, $1. For any certified copy of register or any instrument or writing on file in his office, the registrar now allowed by law to recorders of deeds for like service. All fees collected by the registrar or other officer, under this act, shall be paid into the county treasury once every thirty days. Upon the first bringing of land under the operation of this act and upon the issuance of a certificate of title, and also upon the entry of a new certificate showing same one either by devise or by descent as registered owner, there shall be paid to the registrar one-tenth of one per cent. of the value of such land.

The money received from fees shall be used for the purpose of paying indemnities to persons who, by mistake or carelessness or misfeasance of the registrar, his deputies or clerks, shall be deprived of any land or interest therein. The same to be paid when the loss has been proven in a court of justice. All actions for loss must be brought within a period of ten years from date of such loss.

The provisions of this act shall not apply to land in any county until this act shall have been adopted by a vote of the people of the county, to be held on Tuesday next after the first Monday in November of the year in which the question is submitted.

My Yearly Verses.

They may laugh as feel like laughin',
And may chaff as feel like chaffin',
It don't make no odds in anywise to me;
Fer I always feel like singin'
When the springtime comes a-swingin'
Of its arms, so kind of tickled like and free.

Ev'ry year the same old notion
Comes a-didin', like the ocean,
That I never felt so glad for spring to come;
An' the feelin's new and shinin'
As a cloud's red, golden linin'
And I couldn't fer my life be broken up or gluin'.

I watch the swallows skidmin'
Through the sky, like they was swimmin',
And I thinks, thinks I, they never flew like this!

And the robin pipin' meller
Jest completely makes a feller
Feel more'n full of tickledness and bliss.

And the flock of blackbirds yellin',
And their private business tellin',
Is a sound I always reckon on a store;
And I feel while I'm a-list'nin',
And the plow plint idly glistin',
That I never heard a blackbird sing afore.

Ev'ry spring the air feels cleaner,
And the meader grass looks greener,
Than I can recollect it did last year;
And the posies rubbin' open
Their eyes, and kind of groppin'
Fer the sunshine, never looked so pert an' queer.

With the spring there comes a feelin'
Like some one was slyly stealin'
All the meanness from my life, and puttin' in
Where it was some gracious token,
Brand new things fer old and broken;
So I write my song, and think it no great sin.

Foul breath is a discourager of affection. It is always an indication of poor health—bad digestion. To bad digestion is traceable almost all human ills. It is the starting point of many very serious maladies. Upon the healthy action of the digestive organs, the blood depends for its richness and purity. If digestion stops, poisonous matter accumulates and is forced into the blood—there is no place else for it to go.

The bad breath is a danger signal. Look out for it! If you have it, or any other symptom of indigestion, take a bottle or two of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will straighten out the trouble, make your blood pure and healthy and full of nutriment for the tissues.
