A GILA MONSTER

Reptiles Engage in Death Struggle in New Mexico Mountains.

EVADED FATAL STROKE

Cat Surviving a Bite Took Deadly

Dalhart, Tex.—The "rattlesnake season" last summer in the southwest was unusually destructive of life, and was marked by some startling and dramatic incidents. It is estimated that some fifty deaths from snake bites occurred in the plains country and the mountain regions of New Mexico, Arizona and Texas.

E. B. Van Veen of the Pinal mountain district tells of a fight between a rattlesnake and a gila monster. Bob Henry, on returning from his camp by the Pinal mountain road. was attracted by the sound of a rattlesnake. Turning, he saw a rattler about seven feet long and, three feet away, a gila monster sitting on an ant hill. The snake stood up from the ground higher than a man's knee in he shape of an elongated S. The remainder of his body was upon the ground behind him in a straight line. In addition to rattling, a hissing sound issued from his mouth. The gila was standing up as high from the ground as his short legs would permit. His tensed attitude indicated that trouble was ahead. Suddenly the snake sprang at the big lizard, but it evaded the stroke by flattening himself on the ground. The snake draw himself ur again and struck and again missed. The third time the snake drew back and struck, but the lizard was two inches to the right. The snake started to draw back for another at are best given when one reads what tempt, when the gila monster made a lightning-like plunge, and the next instant the back of the rattler's neck was in the bulldog jaws of the eighteen-inch lizard, which was shaking it like a rat. Y. in the Copper Basin district, has fully recovered. Not only that, but inoculation with the deadly venom has cured insomnia, from which Gustafson had been a sufferer for five years.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Nelson, of Jerome Junction, Ariz., vouch for a story told of a fight between a house cat and a rattesnake. The cat, the mother of six kittens, was perambulating among the little mounds of a prairie dog town when she was attacked by a rattlesnake and bitten on the check. She retired to her nest under the house and for several days her head was swollen to several times its normal size. As soon as she recovered she set out in the direction of the prairie dog town and an hour later returned to the house with a big dead rattlesnake in her mouth, and showing evidence of a hard fight.

Near Bisbee, Ariz., Alfred Kinney, seventen years old, encountered a rattler by the roadside and battled with it. After the snake, apparently stunned by the repeated strokes from the boy's riding whip, retreated to its lair and the boy was preparing to mount his horse, it sneaked out of the hole and bit the boy, and he

PREPARING FOR

EXTENDING THE AGRICULTURAL AREA IN WESTERN CANADA.

For sometime past the Canadian government has had surveyors at work platting new areas for the accommodation of the largely increasing number of settlers coming in to occupy the agricultural districts of the three prairie provinces. There were those connected with the work of securing settlers for western Canada who last spring prophesied that Before Lizard Shock it to Death; there would be as many as 175,000 new settlers from the United States to Canada during the present year, and there were those who doubted that the previous year's figures of 132,000 could be increased. Recent computation made by the officials of the immigration branch at Ottawa show that the largest estimates made by officials will be beaten and that the 200,000 mark from the United States will be reached. As great an increase will be shown in the figures of those who will reach Canada from other countries this year. The results of the year's work in Canadian immigration will give upward of a total of 400,000 souls. But this is not to be wondered at when it is realized what Is offering in the three prairie provinces and also in the coast province of British Columbia, which is also bidding strongly and successfully, too, for a certain class of settler, the settler who wishes to go into mixed farming or fruit raising. When the central portion of this province is opened up by the railway now being constructed there will be large areas of splendid land available for the settler. Reference has frequently been made of late by those interested in developing the American west to the large numbers who are going to Canada, high officials in some of the railways being amongst the number to give voice to the fact. The more these facts become known the more will people seek the reasons and these prominent people say of it. What the farmer thinks of it and what his friends say of it. James A. Flaherty. supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, was in western Canada a short time ago. He says:

A living room is always at the cross- adds to the living room. roads. When your son or daughter wanders into it in an obviously restless frame of mind it is due to an instinctive desire to find something there interesting or amusing enough to warrant staying at home, writes Roger Fulton in the New York Tribune. The preference is always for staying at home primarily. But if the interest—the invitation—is lacking there are always other places to go. The living room is the one place in the house where the family can be brought together and bound together. I often wonder if we realize just how much effect the appearance of home may have on the child and on his being satisfied to stay there. When a child resents having to stay in because "there is nothing to do" there is something radically wrong with his surroundings.

Chicago Man Tells of Awful Suffering.

J. J. Wolf, prop. barber shop, 2086 Ogden Ave., Chicago, Ill., says: "My back ached terribly and I had sharp, stabbing pains throughout my body. I kept getting worse, suffering from splitting headaches and dizzy spells, during which I would nearly lose my balance. My eyes became so effected that I nearly went blind. I became dropsical and was so puffed up at night that when I took off my shoes, there were deep ridges around my ankles. I got so thin and emaciated that my friends hardly knew me. There was always a desire to pass the kidney secretions and I had to get up often at night. The secretions were scanty and scalding in passage and contained a large amount of stringy, white substances with blood. Finally I was laid up, helpless. The doctor did me no good and I gave up hope. When a friend urged me to take Doan's Kidney Pills, I did, and I had taken but a few doses when I felt something give away inside of me. The pain was terrible and shortly after, I passed five gravel stones, each the size of a bear. In three days I felt like a different man. Six boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills made me well. The cure has been permanent." Chicago Man Tells of Awful Suffering.

Arvine's "Dictionary of Anectier town to take in a barnstorming dotes" (Boston, 1860) quotes from some unnamed traveler a detailed account of how an unfortunate Russian author submitted to a similar penalty at Moscow. He had published a quarto volume on "The Liberties of the People" and had taken occasion to inveigh against the venality of the bureaucrats and even question the conduct of the autocrat himself. Naturally the author was taken into custody.

"After being tried in a summary way." continued the traveler, "his production was deemed to be a libel, and he was condemned to eat his own words. The singularity of such a sentence induced me to see it put into execution. A scaffold was erected in one of the most public streets of the city. The imperial provost, the magistrates, the physicians and surgeons attended. The book was separated from the binding, the margin cut off and every leaf rolled up like a lottery ticket when taken out of the wheel. The author was then served with them, leaf by leaf, by the provost, who put them into his mouth to the no small diversion of the spectators, and he was obliged to swallow this unpalatable food on pain of the knout-in Russia more feared than death.

SUSPENDERS. Society has frowned on the masculine suspenders. So the suspender must go-has gone almost, say those who sell wearing apparel for men. It's the age of the belt. Manly shoulders must be unhampered by straps; only the patient diaphragm is to be subjected to a harness. So passes another useful device, sacrificed to fastidiousness. We used to eat mashed potato with a knife till someone with supercilious manners came along and told us the fork was the proper utensil for that important duty. Formerly people poured out their hot coffee into saucers, "blew" it cold and then drank it from saucers, all unconscious of the terrible impropriety involved. Nor was it formerly considered an indication of boorish origin for one to sip tea from a spoon. Oh, these changing times! Suspenders gone the way of the bicycle and the crocheted necktie! Is no one bold enough to do them reverence? Fashion is a tyrant. Some people are determined not to let Christopher Columbus rest in peace. Not long ago a celebrated Jewish rabbi insisted that the great explorer was a Jew, and now comes a member of the Royal Geographical society with the claim that Columbus was a Spaniard and not an Italian. The Spanish scientist says that the veil of mystery that has for four centuries enshrouded the cradle of Columbus has at last been torn aside to reveal him without doubt or argument as a Spaniard. Dr. Horta says that the Italian lineage of the discoverer was accepted because there was no "authentic, respectable and authorized historic documents" to prove to the contrary. On the other hand, the Spanish historian says the only accepted proof of the Italian birth of Columbus was his own statement that he was born in Genoa.

So the Bulgarians took the great and telling work of the war on their shoulders. You have only to know the Bulgarians to understand that this was inevitable.

There is stubborn and aggressive character enough in Bulgaria to spare for all southwestern Europe.

Bulgaria made a hundred-yard dash with ox cart transportation, and made t around an obstacle—Adrianople. The main railroad line and the great Constantinople highway ran by Adrianople. It was on the direct line of communication from the center of the Bulgarian base to the center of its objective. In the center of Thrace, it was the only real fortress on the way to Constantinople. Kirk-Kilisseh, or Losengrade, as the Bulgarians call it, despite their willingness to allow an impression of its formidability to be spread abroad, was not in any sense well fortified.

Now, the first thing was to surround Adrianople: that is, to strike at it from all sides, as the key to the position. A branch of the main Sofiatrieff's, or the First, army swung of a siege, as the indomitable Grant around Kirk-Kilisseh, which was tak- learned by the failure of his first rush you see Taver Pasha trying out lines

The Bulgarian treatment of the corespondents is one of the many indications that the Bulgarian staff did kish demoralization and wrongheaded expect at one time to take Adrianople ness, which might easily lead the Bulby storm.

It was argued by serious corre ought to waste their time or the that no more territory would be taken money of their papers in idleness, that under General Ivanoff, who was to to have received any correspondents tions around Adrianople, while easy at all. But this was not logic to the glory was to be the fortune of Demegovernment. The press represented trieff, who commanded the first army against the toreador; and a very mad in the land who spoke any foreign bull, we know, sometimes gets a horn | language found their work in the comfound his in driving an ox cart and the women in making bread

The plan was well thought out, and the regulations, which would fill a column, left nothing that occurred to war, just as Tchatalja brought Demeofficers or college professors out of trieff down from the clouds of overconsideration. No mention was to be confidence. Papastepe is one of many made of the wounded, nor even of the hills in the narrowing rib of the 203 weather, if it were bad, for bad weather might tell the enemy that the roads were bad.

While many an imaginary account, because it had the similitade of narrative which characterizes all convincical battle, had odds of at least four ing fiction, was hailed as real war correspondence, the Bulgarian staff, when it came to actual reports (exclusive of massacres), was scrupulously exact and exasperatingly late and hills.

> All praise by the press kept the ball of the prestige of victory rolling. It helped to convince the powers and the Turk that the Bulgarian army was irresistible. The stage climax of the whole campaign would be the fall of Adrianople. Therefore were the correspondents moved to Mustapha Pasha, just Lule Burgas was being won; and Constantinople, being then supposedly defended only by a demoralized army, which could not make a stand, every report from Mustapha Pasha which showed that Adrianople was on the point of capitulation added to the stage effect of Bulgarian triumph.

Turks Defy the Bulgars. As the first Bulgarian army drew near the Tchatalja lines, the mise en scene was complete; but Nazim Pasha, making use of the elapsed time to fortify the Tchatalja lines, rather than submit to the humiliating terms of-

'come on. Success had turned the heads even of the Bulgarian staff. They had begun to think that the old fighting quality was out of the Turk, and so willing was the Bulgarian infantry to undergo slaughter that it was only a case of recording another charge of to adjust itself for the blow to fall flesh against shrappel and automatic gun fire, and the day was won,

Alas, an old principle of war, dealing with an impossibility of the same order as squaring the circle in mathematics, was now to bring generalship back from the clouds to solid earth.
