In the announcement of Chas. Adams for the office of collector we wish to say that the report that has been circulated to the effect that Mr. Adams is owner of a large farm near Kirkland is absolutely without foundation. Mr. Adams is a poor man and as every one knows is in poor health and more over is deservng and worthy of the office. A man with better intitution and more deserving has not been before the people.

Dr. Segurland of Caladonia has been missing since last week Wednesday. On that day he went to Rockford to visit a patient at the hospital and after that went to the depot to take a train for home but the train had gone. He then went over to the C. & N. W. depot to catch a train home via Belvidere. He purchased a ticket and this was the last seen of him so far as any trace can reveal. The sheriff of Boone county has a slight clue in the finding in Rockford of a pocketbook in which was a Woodman receipt in favor of the doctor and a return ticket from Rockford to Caladonia. The people are greatly worked up over the disappearance and great mystery prevails.

Evangelist Sunday has converted nearly the entire town of Afton, Iowa. Religious fever is stirring skeptics, infidels and everybody there. The mayor of the town threatened Sunday's arrest for criticizing the city authorities, but three days later the official joined the hundreds who had already professed Christianity. Later the city marshal followed the mayor's example.

In last week's paper we made mention of the daughter of Mrs. Charles Dralle who left home on account of abuse and that it was reported that the treatment of the girl was such that the authorities might look into it. Mrs. Dralle and her daughter have been to see us and claim that such is not the case as to whipping but the girl left an account of the house work and washings being too heavy and she could not stand it.
The farmer readers of the JOURNAL should now take advantage of the extra inducements we have to offer in furnishing clubbing rates with the GENOA JOURNAL and either of the following high class farm papers: Farmers' Voice, Farmers' Review, Farm, Field & Fireside or National Rural, and in addition, or until they are gone we will also give each subscriber a copy of Kendall's family receipt book. This offer is made to those who are paid up one year in advance.

The reserved seats for "That Girl" are going fast and those who desire to witness a good play had better make their wants known at once or they'll have to stand up. The managers of the play guarantee the play and players as first class and offer to refund your money if you don't like "That Girl." Olga Lorraine has been seen here before and is well known. The company is the best ever engaged by this little artist and is highly spoken of. The fact that the prices have been reduced makes it all the more important that you secure your seats in advance, for standing room will surely be scarce the night of the show. "That Girl" is good. Don't miss it.

Barney Geithman moved from his farm near Ney to Genoa Tuesday. We welcome him among us, always glad to see the substantial farmers retiring after years of toil.

FOR RENT:—On account of Mr. Daven deciding to move away from Genoa I offer my new residence property on South Genoa street for rent, either the whole to a single family or will rent to two desirable families. Furnace heat, bath, barn, etc. Inquire of owner. J. B. Smith.

A large number of the friends of Barney Geithman and family gathered at their home on last Monday evening and gave them a farewell party before their leaving the farm and moving to Genoa. All who were present report having been pleasantly entertained and a general good time was had. Games of all kind, a little of the merry dance and an inviting supper made up the evening's enjoyments.

We wish to call the attention of the voters of Genoa to the announcement in this paper of several men for township offices. Men whom the people have never found to be a disgrace to any position to which they have been intrusted and who will continue to be honest representatives of the people whom they represent. No men have worked with more energy for the public good regardless of the interests of their own pocket-books, than has Mayor J. E. Stott and Assessor Geo. W. Buck. No men have filled any office with as little complaint as these gentlemen and we unhesitatingly commend them to your consideration

PERISH AT GOLDEN GATE.

Big Vessel Sinks and 128 Persons Drown.

CONSUL WILDMAN IS LOST.

The Steamship City of Rio de Janeiro Strikes Upon Mile Rock in a Fog, Backs Off and Settles Down—Struggle for Life Boats.

The Pacific Mail company's steamship City of Rio de Janeiro, while entering the San Francisco harbor from the orient during a heavy fog Friday morning, struck a sunken rock and went down in about fifteen minutes in thirty fathoms of water off Fort Point.

A revised list of the dead shows that 128 persons were lost. Capt. William Ward, the ship's master, and an old employe of the Pacific Mail Company, went down with his ship. There were 201 persons on board the ill-fated ship.

Vessel Strikes a Rock.

The City of Rio de Janeiro was on her way in from the oriental ports via Honolulu with a valuable cargo. It sailed from Hongkong Jan. 22 for San Francisco via Yokohama. Quartermaster Frederick Lindstrom gave the clearest idea of the striking of the craft and let it be known that the mass of rock with which the iron prow came in contact was Mile rock, against which a pretty stiff current was setting. The rock is in a line off Fort Point with Point Lobos, and two-thirds of a mile from the San Francisco shore. His explanation was that the vessel struck head on, crushed in her bows and filled immediately. Instantly the decks were crowded with the passengers and crew and the Chinese steerage passengers rushed up from below and tried to crowd into the boats. The members of the crew, headed by Capt. Ward and his assistants, kept the Chinese and the white men off while the boats were being lowered. By this time the ship had backed off and was settling down by the head.

Struggle to Reach the Boats.

A number of women were hurried into the lifeboats, but as the ship was going down fast confusion got the better of heads that were not cool, and there was a struggle to get into the smaller craft. Some of the Chinese and male passengers on the afterdeck jumped overboard. No one can say just how many took to the water, but it is reckoned that about forty went over the side. The fog kept settling down on the bay and it became difficult to see a ship's length abaft the bows.

Rounseville Wildman, United States consul-general to Hongkong, his wife and two children, were among those who perished in the wreck.

Ship Sinks Quickly.

It was all over in ten minutes. In ten minutes after the Rio Janeiro struck on Fort Point reef, in sight of land had the misty fog permitted, she had filled, settled and sunk, and more than half her passengers and crew remain unaccounted for.

In the tale of dead and living, in the dark hour that comes before the dawn, sleeping men and women were rudely, violently summoned to meet their Maker on the instant and without warning.

The women were calm. It may be that they did not realize the imminence of the danger, or it may be that in moments of strong emotion women have more control of themselves than men; but it is true that not until the final moment, when the ship broke her back and sunk with a roar of escaping steam, were the voices of women and children raised in lamentations or fright.

Some were drowned sleeping in their beds, many were carried under in the devouring suction of the whirlpool and never rose again, and many driving about in the black and blinding fog went down from exhaustion in the waters before help came.

It is told how men in the boats could hear the screams of swimmers in their agony, but could not reach them before they sank forever, drowned in the dark like rats in a hole.

It was save yourselves who can on an ebb tide running out at sea like a mill race, and this may serve to account for the fact that only three or four women are among the survivors.

The children all perished. Many were carried out to sea floating on spars, wreckage or rafts, and were never heard of again.

Only two of the ship's boats ever reached the shore. One of these, by hard rowing, carried nine persons to Meigs' Wharf. The other two boats either were never launched or were wrecked by the plunging ship before they got clear.

Roused from sleep in their cabin as the first gray of daylight stole into the enshrouding fog, Rounseville Wildman and his wife and children had but a few minutes of struggling before they went down to death. The story about the drowning of the Wildmans was told by Pilot Fred Jordan and Philip Nussenblatt, a steerage passenger.

The Wildmans had begun dressing when Captain Ward hurried along routing passengers out of cabins, for they ran out half clad in response to the alarm. They followed the captain aft in a general rush of the passengers, as the bows were well down in the water. All lights on the ship had gone out, but in the misty twilight persons could be distinguished a few feet away.

Captain Ward led the Wildmans and others to a gangway that had been dropped over the side. A boat already lowered had struck bow or stern first and filled with water, but the air-tight compartments kept it afloat. It was manned by the Chinese sailors.

"Where are your bailing buckets?" shouted Captain Ward.

Two or three passengers had at that time clambered down into the boat sitting in water that was up to their waists. Pilot Jordan stood at the head of the gangway, hurrying the passengers down over the ship's side.

"Get in, get in," he shouted to Mrs. Wildman, as the consul's wife hesitated at the gangway.

Mother Cries for Her Boy.

"I want my boy," answered the excited woman.

Her eight-year-old son, Rounseville Wildman, Jr., was a few feet behind her, and Jordan picked him up. Consul Wildman was close to the pilot, carrying Dorothy, two years old. "We'll follow you," shouted Jordan. "The boy's all right."

Mrs. Wildman started down the gangway, the others following closely. She got to the fourth step, and the survivors cap tell no more of the Wildman family.

"The decks were split and forced up just as though there had been a great explosion," is Nussenblatt's story. "The boats plunged down and stern heaved upward, the ship surged over on the side toward the small boat and we all went down into the sea. I hardly know what happened except that I had the sensation of being carried a long ways down under the water, and when I found I was going upward again I thought I could not survive to reach the surface. But I finally got to air and found a plank, on which I floated until I was picked up, an hour and three quarters later."

Nussenblatt saw nothing of the Wildmans after his return to the surface.

Risky Investment in Coffee Raising.

With a great flourish of trumpets did the colonial circles announce a few years ago that capitalists at Hanover, Hamburg and Berlin had decided to take up on a large scale the coffee culture in the Usambara district of German East Africa, a section which, it was asserted by experts, was particularly well adapted to such an enterprise. A cash capital of 1,000,000 marks ($238,000) was raised and 500,000 young coffee trees were planted. In 1899 the trees were to bear their first crop. However, not more than 10,000 marks ($2,380), or 1 per cent of the capital stock was realized. The following year the managers succeeded in getting 1 1/2 per cent, but these proceeds were not sufficient to meet more than one-fifth of the annual running expenses. At the recent meeting of the shareholders it was stated that the whole matter was to be regarded as a failure, and that coffee culture in the German East African colonies was not advisable, as the trees could not be made to produce more than a half-pound net. Nevertheless, the directors of the company succeeded in carrying a resolution calling for the issuance of bonds to continue experimenting, and, if possible, to save the money already invested.—Wolfgang Veltz, in Chicago Record.

The Mother Got Him.

"Joseph Kimmel, the Leavenworth boy of 19 who married a widow of 40 one day recently," says the Atchison Globe, "was formerly a Midland student. He was engaged to a young girl named Wolsperger, of Leavenworth, also an ex-Midland student, but her mother refused consent to the marriage, intimating that the boy could have her if he wanted. He transferred his affections from daughter to mother and they eloped to Kansas City, she from her children and he from his guardians, and were married."

THE ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Work in Both Houses at Springfield.

REPORT OF THE PROCEEDINGS.

Bill Gould of Chicago Prepares a Bill to Punish Wife Beaters and Wife Deserters with the Lash—Educational Commission Asked For.

Wednesday, February 20.

Among the bills introduced in the senate was one by Senator Fowler defining hazing as a felony and providing for its punishment by imprisonment in the penitentiary.

The senate was in a humorous mood and for an hour it engaged in a discussion of Senator Davidson's bill, which excludes the dehorning of cattle from the limitations placed on the practice of veterinary surgery. The matter was amusing to every one except the author of the bill, who was surprised and mystified by the sudden and seemingly violent opposition to his harmless measure. He could not understand the situation until the debate closed, and those who had opposed it voted for it. Every one voted for the bill.

Among the bills introduced in the house were the following: By Cummings, to prohibit non-resident physicians from practicing medicine by proxy in this state. By Gould, to provide penalties for wife-beaters. The bill provides that "any person who shall brutally assault and beat his wife shall, upon conviction thereof, be sentenced to be whipped, not exceeding forty lashes, or be imprisoned in the county jail for a term not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court."

Thursday, February 21.

Senator Mahoney of Chicago introduced a bill in the senate which is designed to put an end to most of the justice-shop evils in Chicago. The title of the bill sets forth its purposes, and reads as follows: "A bill for an act making any act done with willful intention of unduly annoying, harassing or oppressing any party or parties to any legal proceeding, a crime and to prevent agreements with judicial officers as to their fees." The terms of the bill are designed to make criminal any collusion between justices of the peace and constables and the crooked crowd which generally is found hanging around justice shops in Cook county. Some of the bills introduced are as follows: By Senator Hill—To make kidnaping a felony, punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary. By Mr. Lichtenberger—a bill making it unlawful for a corporation to engage in the practice of law. The bill makes it unlawful for any corporation to engage an attorney for services in a suit to which it is not a party, or to furnish directly or indirectly any money, advice, counsel or legal services, or pay for the services of witnesses, doctors or experts, or to examine abstracts of title to real estate, or to give or furnish opinions of title to real estate except in cases in which the corporation has a direct interest. By Mr. Swigart—Providing for a uniform system of school textbooks. The bill provides that in counties where the act is adopted school textbooks shall be purchased by the directors of each school district and paid for out of the school fund. The amount so expended not to exceed $150 per annum for each pupil.

Friday, February 22.

The University of Illinois was inspected thoroughly by the legislators and all now think that a number of new buildings are needed. On the arrival of the legislators at the university grounds they were met by the corps of cadets and the regiment formed for review and inspection. After the review of the battalion of lawmakers, headed by President Draper, inspected each building. After all the buildings were inspected the body was collected in the main building and a convocation was held, all students and many town people attending. Interesting and encouraging speeches were made by the legislators. The inspection was then finished and the body of lawmakers, well pleased with the institution, departed at 2:30 o'clock.

Saturday, February 23.

The farmers and live stock raisers of Illinois are after the Chicago stockyards. They say they are getting weary of paying railroad and stockyard companies terminal charges in addition to the regular freight. They have framed up a bill against this practice, which will be introduced in the house by Representative William A. Rankin of Iroquois county, who is regarded as one of the most substantial farmers in that section of the state. The bill is different from the general run of bills aimed at stockyards, because there seems to be no suspicion that there is anything of the sandbag character attached to it.

In brief the bill provides that the charge for the entire service of receiving a car load of live stock and delivering it to any public stockyards in the state shall be included in the single item of freight rate, and this freight rate charge shall cover and be the only compensation which the railroads or other common carriers can charge, collect or receive for each and every expense or service connected with the transportation of the live stock from the shipping point to the stockyards.

NOTES OF THE SESSIONS.

The house adopted appropriate resolutions of respect to the memory of Justice Jesse J. Phillips of the Supreme Court.

The house on motion of Mr. Curtis adopted a resolution memorializing Congress to amend the federal constitution so as to make United States senators elected by the direct vote of the people.

Representative McCulloch of Peoria is pushing a bill allowing courts which commit girls to a training school to discharge the same at any time that it may appear proper.

President Templeton of the Illinois Pan-American Exposition Commission, has appointed the following committees: Executive committee, Stanton, Brenton, Smyth, and Templeton; horticulture, Stanton and Davidson; agriculture, Brenton and Grier; manufactures, Smyth and Brundage; education, Smyth and Evans. The commissions will be assigned to an office in the south end of the state library in the state house until the time comes for them to be on duty in Buffalo, which will be some time in May.

Senator Campbell introduced a bill providing for municipal ownership of street railways, being the bill drawn by the Street Railway commission of Chicago and a copy of the bill introduced in the house by Mr. Mueller.

Senator Payne of Rock Island introduced a bill providing that insane criminals in the state reformatory may be sent to the hospital for the criminal insane at Chester.

Representative Ketterling of Cook introduced a bill requiring life insurance companies to invest in securities with this state 50 per cent of their net reserve on all policies issued to residents of the state.

Method of Reducing Weight.

The Banting method of reducing weight was invented and practiced by William Banting, an Englishman, about the year 1871. Before commencing his experiments his weight was 220 pounds, and his breath was short and his motions slow and laborious. For breakfast he took about five ounces of beef, mutton, broiled fish, or cold meat of any kind except pork; a large cup of tea, without milk or sugar; a small biscuit or one ounce of dry toast. His dinner consisted of five or six ounces of any fish except salmon, any meat except pork, any vegetable except potato, one ounce of dry toast, any kind of poultry or game, and two or three glasses of Madeira, sherry or claret—beer, porter or ale being forbidden. For tea, two or three ounces of fruit, one or two small biscuits and a cup of tea without milk or sugar.

For supper, three or four ounces of meat or fish, similar to dinner, with a glass or two of claret. He breakfasted between eight and nine o'clock, dined between one and two, took tea between five and six, and supper at nine. Under this treatment he lost forty-six pounds in weight in a little more than a year.—New York Weekly.

A WISE DRUGGIST.

For $5.00 He Guarantees to Do That for Which a Lady Offers Him $100.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 25, 1901.—(Special).—Some two years ago a local druggist engaged in a transaction which was in its details somewhat remarkable. He was visited by Miss Anna P. Nichols, who had a doctor's prescription for rheumatism, which the druggist was filling. In the course of conversation the good lady said: "I would give one hundred dollars to get well."

He immediately replied: "Give me five dollars and I will guarantee to cure you."

She agreed, and he at once handed her a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, saying: "They are 50c a box. Two boxes may cure you, but I am quite sure that ten will."

Miss Nichols tells the story as follows: "Dodd's Kidney Pills are veritable life preservers. I was troubled for five years with Rheumatism, so that at times my right arm seemed paralyzed and I could only walk with difficulty, and could not go out of doors if the air was damp or cold. I took so much medicine that I think my system was poisoned rather than helped. One day when my druggist was putting up a prescription for me I remarked to him that I would give one hundred dollars for a remedy that would make me better."

"Give me five dollars and I will guarantee to cure you," he said. I readily agreed and he handed me a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, saying, "They are 50c a box. Two boxes may cure you, but I am sure that ten will."

I left my prescription intact and, instead, took these Pills, and I found them, as I said before, to be veritable life preservers. Before I had finished the second box I had my first perfect night's rest in years. I gradually improved. I had determined to use the ten boxes before I would give up, but imagine my surprise to find that before half that quantity was used I was completely cured. This was two years ago, and I have not had a twinge since."

Miss Nichols is Vice Grand Baxter, Rebekah Lodge I. O. O. F., and is one of the best known and most highly respected ladies in Kansas City, and her experience will be read with interest by her many friends.

Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure Rheumatism. They are 50c a box, six boxes for $2.50. Buy them from your local dealer if you can. If he cannot supply you, send to the Dodds Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Latin Phrases.

The word "re," largely used in business letters as "re your communication," is a contraction for "in re," a Latin phrase composed of the preposition "in" and "re" the ablative case of the word "res," a thing. Freely translated, the phrase means "in the matter of." "Re" is used instead of "in re," simply for convenience, and custom has sanctioned its use. "Ultra vires" is also Latin. "Ultra" means beyond, while "vires" is the accusative plural of the word "vis," strength or power. The phrase "ultra vires" means beyond the power or right of. Thus if we say that some action is "ultra vires," a certain body, it is meant that the body has no right to act as it has done.

Licorice Business is Profitable.

In the southern Caucasus large tracts of land are covered by the licorice plant. A Scotch gentleman who visited this country from Constantinople had his attention drawn to this potential source of wealth, and erected a factory on the spot for the distillation of the licorice juice. The erection of similar factories quickly followed, so that now a large export trade is carried on in this product, and the peasantry of the district find a remunerative occupation in the gathering and sale of the root to these establishments.

Contribution to "Conscience Fund."

The West Chester and Philadelphia Street Railroad company a few days ago received a contribution to its "conscience fund," accompanied by this letter: "Sir: Inclosed find a $2 bill to pay fare I did not pay in the '60s. To get right with God. Sir, are you right with God? Get ready for the judgment day—get ready, man; do you hear?" The president of the road intimates that the unknown writer must have a tough conscience, considering that it stood the wear and tear of wrongdoing for something like forty years.

A PRETTY COMPANION

By Louise Bedford.

CHAPTER IV.

Janetta only stayed long enough to listen to a few polite inquiries as to whether she had suffered any inconvenience from the accident, then rose and asked leave to retire for the night.

"You can go if you wish," said Clarice; "but please don't imagine that Harry and I always need to be left together. I am generally down in the drawing room in the evening. To-night was an exception, Good-night. Tell me if you are not comfortable."

Captain Merivale rose and opened the door.

Then Janetta bethought herself that it would only be courteous to return down-stairs and wish Mrs. Mortimer good-night. She found her seated before the fire, reading a novel.

"The interview was a long one, and therefore I conclude successful," she said, laying down the volume.

"Miss Seymour is quite delightful, and kinder than words can say," answered Janetta eagerly.

"And you feel the world beneath your feet? So it may be for a time. You will be the reigning favorite, just because you happen to be blessed with a handsome face and figure. Prize them whilst you have them; when you lose them the world will pass you by."

"The world, perhaps; but not those whose love one has won already. I shall think poorly of myself if I have not made a single friend."

It was the second effort Janetta had made in their brief acquaintance to reach Mrs. Mortimer's sympathy; apparently it failed.

"Shall you like it when you see another step into your shoes?"

Janetta rose. I am very tired. Will you think it rude of me if I go to bed?" she said, not answering the question.

Mrs. Mortimer's attitude towards her did not greatly disturb her. She had a bright, wholesome nature, and felt it possible to outlive the lady's unspoken jealousy.

Besides, the days that followed were so full of delightful and exciting experiences that she had no time to trouble her head with what Mrs. Mortimer thought about her.

Clarice Seymour had taken an impulsive liking for her new companion, and poured tokens of her favor upon her. The very difference of character between the girls possibly made them greater friends.

Janetta was strong, self-reliant, and self-contained, even-tempered, and accustomed to give help rather than receive it; Clarice was capricious as the weather—one day all smiles and sunshine, the next at war with herself and the world, railing at the fate that kept her helplessly tied to the sofa.

Yet through all her varying moods she possessed a fascination for all about her; and Janetta condoned her fretfulness and waywardness for the grace and charm that peeped out constantly, even in her most irritable moments, like specks of blue sky on a cloudy day.

"How old are you?" asked Clarice suddenly, when Janetta had been with her for about a week. "I believe you are years younger than I am, and yet you have a kind of motherly way with me when I'm wicked and cross, as I am today."

"I'm two-and-twenty," said Janetta, with a laugh.

"And I am four years your senior, and yet I feel as if I were a child and you a woman; you are so tall and strong, and you make me feel comfortable even when you are sitting in the room. You are making me a monster of selfishness. Do you know you've scarcely been out of the house since you came?"

"I don't want to go out. I'm never dull with you."

"I've told Harry it must not go on," said Clarice. "I've sent him off to hire a bicycle for you, and he'll take you out; it will cheer you both up. I wonder sometimes if Harry will get tired of waiting for me—do you?"

"I think the very fact that you are delicate, and need so much petting and love, would make me love you all the more," said Janetta.

"Ah! that's a woman's view. I wonder if it's Harry's. I often want to ask him, and I'm such a coward I dare not. If he wants his freedom he must ask for it; I will not give it him."

"I think," Janetta said, rising to rearrange Clarice's cushions, "if you fret yourself over imaginary ills you won't be down tonight."

"I shall if you leave me quiet!" cried Clarice, who had not ceased talking for the past hour. "You'll promise that you'll go out with Harry?"

"Oh, yes; I'll go if you like," said Janetta, who was learning that the simplest way of managing Clarice was to humor her whims.

She looked such a picture of grace and strength when she came down ready equipped for her ride, in a neatly-made coat and skirt of some dark material, relieved only by a bright-colored ribbon in her sailor hat, that Captain Merivale gave her an involuntary glance of admiration.

"My mistress' orders are that I'm to take you for a good long ride," he said, wheeling round Clarice's bicycle.

"She says she has kept you too tightly tied to her sofa."

"It is the place where I like best to be," Janetta answered, with perfect sincerity.

Yet the swift ride through the bright sunshine of the February afternoon was a real enjoyment, and the company of a clever, cultivated man like Captain Merivale was intellectually invigorating.

They were racing along the broad road that stretched like a white line for miles along the top of the cliffs when Janetta began to slacken speed.

"Tired at last?" cried Harry, with a triumphant laugh. "I thought I would just let you have your fling. You must be magnificently strong to keep up a pace like that."

"I am not tired now," retorted Janetta, with shining eyes and flushed cheeks. "I could go on for miles and miles, but Miss Seymour will be glad to see us back."

"Do you know why I brought you this way?" asked Harry, with a sudden change of tone. "We are close to the very spot where Clarice was thrown over the cliff on to that projecting ledge of rock that you can see if you get off your bicycle for a minute."

Janetta jumped off, went to the edge of the cliff, and peeped over, with shuddering interest. "I wonder she was picked up alive! Were you with her?"

"Yes," replied Harry shortly. "It was hard lines on us both, wasn't it? We had been engaged just a month."

"She's getting better, isn't she?"

"I do not know. Sometimes I think—"

Harry came to an abrupt pause, and Janetta did not ask him to finish his sentence.

They pursued their way home at a more sober pace, and Janetta felt the brightness of the day had departed with the relation of that sad little story.

They found Clarice on her couch in the drawing room, every vestige of ill-temper gone, looking her best and brightest, arrayed in a new gown of soft texture and bewitching hue.

"Yes, I hope you are going to say something nice to me," she said, with an arch smile at her lover. "I had it made as a glad surprise, and came down partly to gratify my own vanity, and more to annoy Doctor Drake, who told me to stay upstairs this evening. Instead, I've invited him to dinner and put on a new frock."

"I care little for the motives that brought you down, as long as I find you looking so happy and pretty, if I may give expression to a truth," said Harry, sitting down by her sofa. "Mrs. Mortimer, will you be kind enough to give us some tea? We are hungry and thirsty after our ride."

Mrs. Mortimer looked more glum than usual. She had employed her afternoon in lecturing Clarice upon the impropriety of sending out Janetta with Captain Merivale, and Clarice had answered her remonstrances with merry, derisive laughter.

"I'm not afraid to trust them; Harry is going to marry me; but if you feel like that, dear Mrs. Mortimer, take a tricycle and follow after them," she had remarked, a little flippantly.

"If harm comes of it—"

"No harm will come," interposed Clarice, a little sharply. "Janetta is the soul of honor, and of Harry there is no need to speak."

"You have known her for a week," said Mrs. Mortimer.

"And she is as easy to read as a book," Clarice had said. "And there the subject dropped."

"I'll tell you a secret, Harry," said Clarice, when they were left alone for half an hour's chat before dinner. "I've ordered a new dress for Janetta—an evening dress—such a pretty one, and it's on her bed ready for her to put on tonight. I want her to look her best. She knows nothing about it."

"Will she wear it, do you think?" asked Harry, a little doubtfully.

"I shall be furious if she doesn't. I want Doctor Drake to take a fancy to her."

"So that's it, is it—you are turning into a matchmaker? A dangerous game, Clarice. I advise you to drop it."

To Clarice's intense mortification Janetta, who did not come down until the dinner gong sounded, appeared in the simple black dress that she wore every night. Neither did she and Doctor Drake seem to find interests in common; for although he took her in to dinner, and talked to her as in courtesy bound, when he came into the drawing room afterwards he seated himself by Clarice's sofa, and devoted himself to her for the rest of the evening.

CHAPTER V.

"Janetta, I'm going to call you by your Christian name and you can call me Clarice," announced Miss Seymour the following morning.

Janetta looked up from her writing with a swift shake of the head. "I should like you to call me Janetta, but I prefer to call you Miss Seymour."

"I've been waiting for your faults to crop up. I feared you hadn't any; but I've found you out now—you've a very nasty pride."

Janetta laughed merrily. "How have I shown it?"

"Twice already. You didn't put on that new dress last night, you decline to call me by my proper name today."

Janetta's colors came and went. "Did it seem horribly ungrateful? I had a hard struggle with myself before I knew what to do, and then it seemed quite clear to me that I must keep my independence, and wear my own clothes as long as I can earn money enough to provide them. You are so kind and good to me that you ignore my true position; but I must remember my own, and respect its conditions. It does not seem fitting to take your gifts and call you by your name when I am really your paid companion. We are not on equal terms."

"It seems to be as if we were on very equal terms; both of us are orphans—at least, I think you told me that you had neither father nor mother living."

"Yes, they are both dead," said Janetta shortly.

"And because I happen to have more money than you, why should you mind if now and then it pleases me to give you things? I have not many pleasures."

"You don't really know me, you see. In your generous, impulsive fashion, you've invested me with various qualities which, as you know me better, you'll find I do not possess."

"You think my friendship is like Jonah's gourd—that it will wither in a day or so," said Clarice petulantly.

Whatever topic of conversation might be started, Janetta noticed that it always veered round to one or two subjects—either Captain Merivale, or the likelihood of Clarice's recovery. With a heart at leisure from itself, she grew day by day more painfully interested in what the future might hold in store for the two whose love-story was being enacted before her eyes.

Sometimes she suspected that the passion of devotion must always have been more on her side than his. His manner to her was gracefully affectionate; but for herself she felt that she would have demanded something warmer from the man she was going to marry.

"I shall go to India with a much easier mind now that I know Clarice has some one with her who will make her life so bright," said Captain Merivale one afternoon, as they were returning from a walk by the sea.

"It is good of you to say that," Janetta answered. "I need not assure you that I'll do everything I can to make Miss Seymour happy. She's the kindest friend I ever had, and I'm glad I've got to know you so well. I like to think that, when she gets better and you marry, I shall feel that I may keep you both as friends."

Captain Merivale did not answer for a minute, and Janetta glanced up at him a little uneasily, and saw that he had turned rather white.

"Yes," he said carelessly, "we've been capital friends ever since we met in that curious way on the railway, and I pulled you through the window."

Janetta felt puzzled and hurt by his manner. His tone was studiously indifferent, and he referred pointedly to what had been, rather than to what might be in the future. She thought, with bitter mortification, that in her eager sympathy with him and Clarice she had proffered friendship which had evidently been regarded as an impertinence.

"With all my boasted independence, I've forgotten my position," she said to herself reddening with vexation; but her resolve was taken at the risk of vexing Clarice, she would have no more walks or talks with Captain Merivale.

She did not make her way as usual to Clarice's room that afternoon when she came in from her walk. She felt as in her inward annoyance might find expression in her face. She was considerably surprised as she entered her bedroom to hear the quick shutting of a drawer, and Mason, with some appearance of confusion, began to close the window and draw the blind.

Janetta was certainly not suspicious by nature, but the girl's manner made her feel certain that she had been tampering with her things.

MARQUIS OF LANSDOWNE.

The Only Man in the British Cabinet Who Could Speak French.

When the Marquis of Lansdowne was governor-general of Canada he had to make a speech to the French-Canadians, says M. A. P. With all its loyalty to the English connection, this little bit of transported France adores very rigidly to many things French, and especially to the purity of the French tongue—at least as it was spoken in the eighteenth century. Few viceroys have ever ventured accordingly to leave the safe security of the English tongue, and it was with some trepidation that the French-Canadians heard that Lord Lansdowne was going to deliver a speech to them in their own language. But he had scarcely uttered the word "messieurs" when the whole audience burst into cheers; they recognized at once the accent of the true French tongue, the accent only possible to a man of French blood, and one who had spoken French as his mother tongue. It is perhaps this accomplishment which had something to do with Lord Lansdowne's latest appointment. When some one remonstrated with Lord Salisbury for retaining the two offices of prime minister and foreign secretary, his reply was that he could not help himself, there was but one member of his cabinet who could speak French, and that was Lord Lansdowne. And now Lord Lansdowne will receive the foreign ambassadors every Wednesday afternoon, and whatever else may be found fault with, his French will be faultless. Lord Lansdowne's mother was a daughter of Gen. Flahalt, one of Bonaparte's officers.—Toronto Star.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

MARKS OF THE LORD JESUS CHRIST.

On Christian Heroism—The Great Reward That Comes to the Faithful Soldier of the Cross—Heroes and Martyrs of Everyday Life.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopfch.)

Washington, Feb. 24.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage praises Christian heroism and tells of great rewards. The text is Galatians vi, 17, "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

We hear much about crowns, thrones, victories, but I now tell the more quiet story of scars, honorable and dishonorable scars. There are in all parts of the world people bearing dishonorable scars. They went into the battle of sin and were worsted and to their dying day they will have a sacrifice of body or mind or soul. It cannot be hidden. There are tens of thousands of men and women now consecrated to God and living holy lives who were once corrupt; but they have been regenerated, and they are no more what they once were than rubescence is emaciation, than balm is vitrol, than noonday is midnight. But in their depleted physical health or mental twist or style of temptation they are ever and anon reminded of the obnoxious past. They have a memory that is deplorable. In some twinge of pain or some tendency to surrender to the wrong which they must perpetually resist they have an unwholesome reminiscence. They carry scars, deep scars, ignoble scars.

But Paul in my text shows us a scarification which is a badge of honorable and self-sacrificing service. He had in his weak eyes the result of too much study and in his body, bent and worn, the signature of scourgings and shipwrecks and maltreatment by mobs. In my text he shows those scars as he declares, "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." Notice that it is not wounds, but scars, and a scar is a healed wound. Before the scar is well defined upon the flesh the inflammation must have departed and right circulation must have been restored and new tissue must have been formed. It is a permanent indentation of the flesh—a cicatrix. Paul did well to show those scars. They were positive and indisputable proof that with all his body, mind and soul he believed what he said. They were his diploma, showing that he had graduated from the school of hardship for Christ. They were credentials proving his right to lead in the world's evangelization.

Not Ashamed of Scars.

Men are not ashamed of scars got in battle for their country. No American is embarrassed when you ask him, "Where did you get that gash across your forehead?" and he can answer, "That was from a saber cut at San Juan." When you ask some German, "Where did you lose your right arm?" he is not ashamed to say, "I lost it at Sedan." When you ask an Italian, "Where did you lose your eye?" he is not annoyed when he can answer, "I suffered that in the last battle under our glorious General Garibaldi." But I remind you of the fact that there are scars not got in war which are just as illustrious. We had in this country years ago an eminent advocate who was called into the presidential cabinet at attorney general. In mid-life he was in a Philadelphia courtroom engaged in an important trial. The attorney on the opposite side of the case got irritated and angry and in a most brutal manner referred to the distinguished attorney's disfigured face, a face more deeply scarred than any face I ever saw. The legal hero of whom I am speaking in his closing argument said: "Gentlemen of the jury, when I was a little child I was playing with my sister in the nursery, and her clothes caught fire, and I ran to her to put out the fire. I succeeded, but I myself took fire, and before it was extinguished my face was awfully burned and as black as the heart of the scoundrelly counsel who on the other side of the case has referred to my misfortune." The eminent attorney of whom I speak carried all his life the honorable scar of his sister's rescue.

Rearing a Family.

But why do we go so far for illustration, when I could take right out of the memories of some whom I address instances just as appropriate? To rear a family for God and heaven a large family of children in that country home was a mighty undertaking. Far away from the village doctor, the garret must contain the herbs for the cure of all kinds of disorders. Through all infantile complaints the children of that family went. They missed nothing in the way of childish disorders. Busy all day was the mother in every form of housework and twenty times a night called up by the children all down at the same time with the same contagion. Her hair is white a long while before it is time for snow. Her shoulders are bent long before the appropriate time for stooping. Spectacles are adjusted, some for close by and some for far off, years before you would have supposed her eyes would need reinforcement. Here and there is a short grave in her pathway, this headstone bearing the name of this child and another headstone bearing the name of another child. Hardly one bereavement lifts its shadow than another bereavement drops one. After thirty years of wifehood and motherhood the paths turn toward the setting sun. She cannot walk so far as she used to. Colds caught hang on longer than formerly. Some of the children are in the heavenly world, for which they were well prepared through maternal fidelity, and others are out in this world doing honor to a Christian ancestry.

Martyrs All Around Us.

People think they must look for martyrs on battlefields or go through a history to find burnings at the stake and tortures on racks when there are martyrs all about us. At this time in this capital city there are scores of men wearing themselves out in the public service. In ten years they will not have a healthy nerve left in their body. In committee rooms, in consultations that involve the welfare of the nation, under the weight of great responsibilities, their vitality is being subtracted. In almost every village of the country you find some broken down state or national official. After exhausting himself in the public service, rough American politics kicks him out of congress or cabinet or legislative hall, and he goes into comparative obscurity and comparative want, for he has been long enough away from home to lose his professional opportunities. No man that was ever put to death by sword or instrument of torture was more of a martyr than that man who has been wrung to death by the demands of official position. The scars may not be visible, for these are scars on the brain and scars on the nerves and scars on the heart, but nevertheless are they scars, and God counts them, and their reward will be abundant.

The Unseen Scars.

In all lands there are veterans of war who may not have had their face scraped with one bullet or their foot lamed by one bursting shell and who could not roll up their sleeve and show you one mark suggestive of battle, yet carry with them weaknesses got in exposures to disease along malarial swamps or from many miles of marching, and ever and anon they feel a twinge of pain, each recurrence of which is sharper or more lasting, until after awhile they will be captured for the tomb by disorders which started 20 or 30 or 40 years before. And their scars are all unseen by human eyes. But those people are as certainly the victims of war as though they had been blown up in an undermined fortress or thrust through with a cavalryman's lance. What I want to make out is that there are scars which are never counted except as God counts them, and I want to enlarge your sympathies.

There is a woman who has suffered domestic injustice of which there is no cognizance. She says nothing about it. An inquisitor's machine of torture could not wring from her the story of domestic woe. Ever since the day of orange blossoms and long white veil she has done her full duty and received for it harshness and blame and neglect. The marriage ring, that was supposed to be a sign of unending affection, has turned out to be one link of a chain of horrible servitude. A wreath of nettle and nightshade of brightest form would have been a more accurate prophecy. There are those who find it hard to believe that there is such a place as hell, but you could go right out in any community and find more than one bell of domestic torment. There is no escape for that woman but the grave, and that, compared with the life she now lives, will be an arbor of jasmine and of the humming bird's song poured into the ear of the honeysuckle. Scars! If there be none on the brow showing where he struck her arriving home from midnight carousal, nevertheless there are scars all up and down her injured and immortal soul which will be remembered on the day when there shall leap forth for her avengement the live thunderbolts of an incensed God. When we see a veteran in any land who has lost a limb in battle, our sympathies are stirred. But, oh, how many have in the domestic realm lost their life and yet are denied a pillow of dust on which to slumber? Better enlarge your roll of martyrs. Better adopt a new mode of counting human sacrifices. A broken bone is not half as bad as a broken heart.

Marks of Christian Service.

There are many who can, in the same sense that Paul uttered it, say, "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus"—that is, for the sake of Christ and his cause they carry scars which keep their indenture through all time and all eternity. Do you think that Paul was accurate when he said that? If you have studied his career, you have no doubt of it. In his youth he learned how to fashion the hair of the Cilician goat into canvas, a quiet trade, and then went to college, the president of which was Gamaliel, an institution which scholars say could not have been very thorough because of what they call Paul's imperfect command of Greek syntax. But his history became exciting on the road to Damascus, where he was unhorsed and blinded. His conversion was a convulsion. Whether that fall from the horse may have left a mark upon him I know not, but the mob soon took after him and flogged and imprisoned and maltreated him until he had scars more than enough to assure the truthfulness of his utterance, "I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus."

All of Paul's sufferings was for Christ's sake. He had intellectual powers which could have achieved for him all worldly successes. You see what he could do in a courtroom when with extemporaneous speech he made the judicial bench tremble; when on Mars hill he confounded the Athenian critics; when he preached amid the excitement of a tumbling pentecost; when in a storm at sea he took command of the ship, the only one on board cool headed. With his inspired logic, and his courage of utterance, and his power of illustration, and his capacity to move audiences, and his spirit of defiance, there was no height of worldly power he might not have gained.

Army of Christian Soldiers.

All ye who bear in your body the marks of the Lord Jesus, have you thought what use those marks will be in the heavenly world? What source of glorious reminiscence! In that world you will sit together and talk over earthly experiences. "Where did you get that scar?" saint will say to saint, and there will come back a story of hardship and struggle and persecution and wounds and victory through the grace of the gospel. Another spirit will say to listening spirit, "Where did you get that hurt so plainly marked?" And the answer will be: "Oh, that was one of the worst hurts I ever had. That was a broken friendship. We were in sweetest accord for years, together in joy and sorrow. What one thought the other thought. We were David and Jonathan. But our personal interests parted, and our friendship broke, never to be renewed on earth. But we have made it all up here, and misunderstandings are gone, and we are in the same heaven, on neighboring thrones, in neighboring castles, on the banks of the same river."

Practical Application.

Now what is the practical use of this subject? It is the cultivation of Christian heroics. The most of us want to say things and do things for God when there is no danger of getting hurt. We are all ready for easy work, for popular work, for compensating work, but we all greatly need more courage to brave the world and brave satanic assault when there is something aggressive and bold and dangerous to be undertaken for God and righteousness. And if we happen to get hit what an ado we make about it! We all need more of the stuff that martyrs are made out of. We want more sanctified grit, more Christian pluck, more holy recklessness as to what the world may say and do in any crisis of our life. Be right and do right, and all earth and hell combined cannot put you down.

The same little missionary who wrote my text also uttered that piled up magnificence to be found in those words which ring like battle axes on splitting helmets: "In all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us, for I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

How do you like that, you cowards, who shrink back from aggressive work and if so much as a splinter pierce your flesh cry out louder than many a one torn in auto da fe? Many a soldier has gone through a long war, been in twenty battles, led a regiment up a hill mounted by cannon and swept by musketry and yet come home without having been once hit and without a mark upon him. But it will not be so among those who pass in the grand review of heaven. They have all in the holy wars been wounded, and all bear scars. And what would the newly arrived in heaven do with nothing to show that he had ever been struck by human or diabolic weaponry? How embarrassed and eccentric such an one in such a place! Surely he would want to be excused awhile from the heavenly ranks and be permitted to descend to earth, crying "Give me another chance to do something worthy of an immortal. Show me some post of danger to be manned, some fortress to be stormed, some difficult charge to make. Like Leonidas at Thermopylae, like Miltiades at Marathon, like Marlborough at Blenheim, like Godfrey at Jerusalem, like Winkelried at Sempach gathering the spears of the Austrian knights into his bosom, giving his life for others, show me some place where I can do a brave thing for God. I can't go back to heaven until somewhere I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." My hearer, my reader, quit complaining about your misfortunes and disappointments and troubles and through all time and all eternity thank God for scars!

A HISTORIC HOME.

Rousseau's Famous "Les Charmettes" Ready for a Purchaser.

In all literature there is hardly any house more famous than Les Charmettes, that modest dwelling in Chambéry where Jean Jacques Rousseau, the renowned French philosopher, spent the happiest years of his life, and therefore it is no wonder that the reading public of Europe was considerably surprised and somewhat shocked when it heard the other day that it had been advertised for sale, says the St. Louis Star. The advertisement set as follows: "For Sale—Les Charmettes, the historic home of Jean Jacques Rousseau, together with furniture, fields, and orchard." In 1600 the house was built, but it first became historic on July 6, 1738, that being the day on which Mme. de Warens, Rousseau's friend, purchased it, together with a barn, meadowland, orchard, plowland, vineyard, two oxen, two cows, ten sheep, seven hens, and a cock." The new owner occupied it at once and Rousseau joined her there later in the same year. Of his life there one of his French biographers says: "To Mme. de Warens the world is infinitely indebted since it was she who provided this man, the son of a Geneva watchmaker, with a home in which he had ample opportunity to improve himself and to develop his many talents. Since 1732, the year in which Rousseau's 'Confessions' were published, Les Charmettes has been a Mecca for thousands of his admirers from all parts of the world, not a year since that time passing in which hundreds have not visited it and reverently taken away from the little flower garden some buds or leaves in memory of him.

Nature knows no pause in progress and development, and attaches her curse on all inaction.—Goethe.

Illinois First in Railroads.

While New York state is first in point of population, it is seventh in miles of railroad, according to one authority. Illinois, the third in population, is the greatest railroad state, with nearly 11,000 miles of track. Pennsylvania is second, both in population and in railroad tracks.

Bust of Miss Olcott.

A bust of Louisa M. Olcott, the gift and work of Frank Edwin Elwell, the well-known sculptor, has been unveiled at the University of Kansas. Miss Alcott, besides being a writer of popular tales, was most active against the Kansas-Nebraska bill. Mr. Elwell first studied art under Miss Alcott's sister at Concord, Mass.

Jewish Version of Talmud.

Rabbi Jacob David Wilowski, one of the most famous talmudists of Europe, is lecturing in New York. Later he will lecture at Chicago. This learned man, who presides over a large congregation in Sluzk, Russia, has attained literary fame by publishing eighteen volumes of commentaries on what is known as the Jewish version of the talmud.

Here and There.

J. Charles Peterson, of Elgin, was the successful candidate for the West Point cadetship.

'Six roads that lead from Danesville to hell,' is the startling topic of a series of sermons to be preached by a Methodist minister of Danesville, N. Y.

In California every country road is to be named and every farm house will be numbered. This is said to be one of the good things that will come to the rural free delivery of the mails. With the new idea in vogue it will be as easy to direct a letter or person to a place in the country as it will be to a house in the city.

An eastern exchange says that after having been laid in the receptacle of the bygone for a dozen years or more it is stated that the ear-ring has been restored to the favor of the fair sex and ere long it will be as conspicuous as it was in the days when barbaric princesses decked themselves with such gaudy ornaments.

It is very evident that the editor of the St. Charles Chronicle and the editor of the DeKalb Advertiser entertain decidedly different views in relation to accepting a state office. We are not at present in position to discuss the advisability of editors accepting these snaps as it often takes large channels to contain large streams though the streams are sometimes greatly inflated.

Many eastern railroads are adopting plans that our western thoroughfares might do well to follow and thereby install a public good. Passengers are requested to leave the car by the rear platform and to enter by the front platform. It is said that this greatly facilitates matters and enables the local trains to maintain better time.

There are two families in a western state named Day and Sunday who are neighbors. Mr. Day is the father of seven girls while Mr. Sunday has an equal number of sons. Four sons have married Days, another is engaged, whereupon the local paper feels called upon to remark that "every Day will be Sunday by-and-by."

To doubt the efficiency and profit of newspaper advertising is to deny the value of an intelligent and enterprising salesman and to affirm that sales cannot be promoted by judicious talk. When a salesman tells a prospective customer anything favorable about the wares of the establishment which he represents, or when he says that the concern has this or that thing at a reasonable price he advertises. So, too, the display window is an advertisement. The chief difference between this advertising and newspaper publicity is that the latter reaches thousands instead of a few prospective customers.

Bro. Ranalle of the Syamore Advertiser has been "down on the farm" and with tearful eyes and trembling limbs visited the home of his boyhood. A hole in the wall, the old Ben Davis orchard and the tree from which his "pa" cut switches to train his rising young scion. But one of the recollections which returned to our brother and caused a pang to shoot through his heart, i. e. if an editor has one, was the depleted family of girls of William Carr. Eva, Myrtle and Nellie, all gone, but what we want to know is, whether of the girls was the favored one,

or rather the afflicted one. On his return he actually ran up against a real cigar factory and strange to say it was in Dixon, splendid city they say, but who would have booked them for a cigar factory.

Amethysts are widely distributed in the United States, being found in New England, in the Lake Superior region, in Virginia and North Carolina, in Georgia and several of the western mining states. Several specimens discovered in Connecticut rival in color and luster the best variety of the Oriental gem.

Christmas Customs of Norse Origin.
More or less of the old Norse mythology has found its way into modern Christmas customs. The mythic tree of the ancient Scandinavian forest appears laden with gifts and adorned with candles. The skull of an enemy killed in war, out of which the Norseman drank his festive ale, is represented today by the wassail bowl appropriate to the Christmas celebration. The yule log, too, is Norse.

Grow H of a Giant.
A woman has just died in New Jersey who was the last of the chorus that sang and strewed flowers in the path of Lafayette. It is thus within the memory of one lifetime that this nation has made its wonderful progress from a revolted colony of Great Britain to a position second to no nation in the world. It is a record for patriotic Americans to be proud of.— Baltimore American.

Tenant Equal to Occasion.
A landlord recently walked into a Salem (Mass.) store and ordered his tenant to vacate. The tenant meekly listened to the command, and then, exhibiting a constable's badge, ordered the landlord to vacate the premises under the threat of arrest for trespass upon the tenant's store. The astonished landlord got out.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Grammar of English Dialects.
Professor Joseph Wright is collecting phonographic specimens of English dialects, partly to enable him to check the material for a comprehensive comparative grammar of all the English dialects in the United Kingdom and partly to hand down to posterity a faithful record of the dialects as spoken at the end of the nineteenth century.

Bishop's Salary Is $35,000.
One of the most learned British ecclesiastics is Rt. Rev. Brooke Foss Westcott, D. D., bishop of Durham.
His salary is $35,000, of which he gives more than two-thirds to charity. The bishop is a great favorite with the Prince of Wales, who once said to him:
"I only allow three persons to lecture" me—my mother, my wife and the bishop of Durham."

Mexico Buys American Books.
Mexico buys more American books than does France, and nearly as many as Germany. Much of this trade is due to the large resident American population to be found in Mexican cities and to the demand from mining camps where Americans are living, and not a little is due to the growing spread of English among the Mexican people.

Doctors in China.
When a sick Chinaman consults a doctor he expects the prescribed medicine to take effect at once. Consequently most of the medical practitioners give their patients, for a first dose, some red-hot mixture, such as tincture of cayenne, which makes the invalids feel as if a torchlight procession were coursing down their throats.

Perils of Civilization.
If we are to be driven to the hard labor of opening oysters for the sake of avoiding preservative and to milking cows to keep clear of formaldehyde, it is evident that the highest civilization has not lightened our burdens, but rather added to them. By the way, embalmed beef has gone out of fashion, hasn't it?—Detroit Free Press.

Few Divorces in Canada.
Statistics are said to show that in the past thirty-two years only 271 divorces have been granted in Canada.
It is not easy to sever the conjugal tie across the border. Parliament passes on most divorce cases and petitioners do not care to face the solemn proceedings.

Wells-Fargo Sued for 5 Cents.
A San Francisco business man has sued the Wells-Fargo company for five cents, this being the price of a revenue stamp he was required to affix to a shipping receipt. He claims that it was the company's duty to furnish the stamp. This is a test case.

Col. John C. Eddy and his brother, Major William H. Eddy, have each served in the New York militia twenty-five years and are eligible to retirement. It is probable that these veteran officers will be given advanced brevet rank and retired early next year. They are members of a manufacturing firm in Brooklyn.

Japanese Soldier's Uniform.

There is one thing that strikes a foreigner as being particularly strange in the uniform of the Japanese soldier. This is that the numerals which he wears upon his shoulder straps to denote the number of his regiment are European numbers, not Chinese or Japanese ideographs.

The queen of Holland has an enormous fortune, only a part of which belongs to the crown. She will settle 20,000,000 marks on her future husband. A quarter of this sum Prince Henry can dispose of by will if there are no children. The rest will revert to the queen's estate.

Do We Want Better Lights

Many People are in Favor of it Since the new Gasoline Lamp Has Been Exhibited.

The people in the vicinity of Sycamore and Main streets have been treated this week to a street light that has been far ahead of any electric light that any city can boast of. It is placed over the intersection of the streets named and is there as a sample lamp for the people and the board to study and enjoy.

C. J. McDowell is the agent for the lamps and they are made by the Sterling White Gas Lamp Co. of Sterling, Ill. The lamp was put into operation last Friday night and was giving such a beautiful light that many derogatory remarks were made in regard to its lasting qualities but all through the night it burned with the same steady, brilliant light and at five minutes past five it went out, having burned since five o'clock the night before.

The best part of it is that the same amount of light was maintained during the entire night as is stated by a party who was watching it at the time it began to die down and in about two minutes it was out.

It certainly deserves a thorough investigation by the village and if we are not mistaken they will be found to possess several qualities that the arc electric lights lack, viz., it does not need a line of poles all over the town, it requires no heavy insulated wires of great length and cost, it does not have to be fed by a monster and expensive dynamo, it does not have to be run by great power, it does not possess an unsteady, flickering light but is as steady as the light of old Torris, in short the expense is many times lower and the light more satisfactory to the pedestrians.

As to the price of the lamps, they can be bought for twenty dollars each and in quantities of ten or twenty a lower price can be got on them. They will require two poles each and wire enough to reach across the street. To burn them all night it takes one quart of gasoline and a man to fill and light it. The company give a two year guarantee on every lamp and if at any time one becomes out of repair it can be sent to the factory and another lamp at once sent in its place.

THE OLD CREAMERY SOLD.

A Final Accounting to the Stock Holders and a Small per cent Returned to Them.

Last Saturday as advertised the creamery owned by a number of Genoa people was sold at public Auction and brought less than four hundred dollars all told. This transaction has been an eye-opener to those who subscribed stock and will be a lesson to them that all is not gold that glitters.

A number of years ago a proposition was put on foot to build a skimming station, the cream to be shipped away for churning. Stock was taken by a number of farmers who never patronized their own institution by taking their milk there; the cream separator was nearly a failure in its workings as a separator and various other drawbacks brought the business to a sudden and early end since which time the property has stood idle and its windows were used as a target for the boys to shoot and throw stones at.

H. N. Perkins, W. F. Eiklor and A. H. Olmstead were appointed managers with power of attorney to dispose of the property and make a distribution of the money to the stockholders so far as it will apply, which will be but a very small percent.

Geo. Olmstead was the successful bidder on the building and lot, getting it for $312 subject to the water tax. The personal property consisted of vats, scales, pipes, engine and boiler, pulley, etc., and went very low.

Will Leave Soon.

J. M. Daven, the foreman of the shoe factory, we are informed will soon leave Genoa and take up his residence in the city of Chicago. Mr. Daven has been one of our people about a year and in that time has made many friends who regret his removal to new fields of labor. It is this connection there is much speculation as to the prospect of the factory shutting down for the summer or just for a few weeks. Notwithstanding the many reports that have been started, there has as yet been no definite orders issued, but our opinion is that the company cannot afford to close the business up and allow it to remain idle any great length of time.

A Missionary Honored.

Rev. Frank A. Gregory, a son of the dean of St. Paul's and the oldest missionary of the S. P. G. in Madagascar, is the recipient of the cross of the Legion of Honor for his services not only to natives, but to the French soldiers in that island. This graceful action evidences the harmonious relations between the French and English missions. Mr. Gregory has been working in Madagascar for the last twenty-six years.

Death of John Gray.

A Well known and respected Citizen of Genoa Township Passes at the age of Almost Eighty Five.

Last Friday, February 22, occurred the death of Uncle John Gray at his late home near Ney church after an illness of a few weeks, at the age of eighty-four years, eight months and twenty days. The funeral took place at the Ney M. E. church, last Sunday, with Rev. E. K. D. Hester officiating. The remains were brought to Genoa and on Monday were taken to Mr. Gray's former home in Pennsylvania by one of his daughters who arrived here on Thursday evening.

In the death of Mr Gray the people of Genoa have lost a valuable citizen. His memory is one that will be long cherished by the host of friends that he had drawn about him. He was a man whom to know was to respect, always kind and condescending, ready to give his wise council to those who sought it, yet reserved and polite. Although he had lived in the county a comparatively short time he was exceedingly well known and highly respected.

John Gray was born in Lycoming county, Pa on June 2, 1816 and was married to Susanna Fogue December 28, 1838. In October 1871 his wife died and he was again married December 10, 1874 to Mrs. Jerusha Buck, widow of Daniel Buck and who survives him.

After his second marriage he purchased a mountain tract and followed lumbering for several years. In 1882 he sold his Pennsylvania home and came to DeKalb county Ill. and has since been living upon his wife's farm on section 4.

A Former Genoa Boy's Prominence.

Ruloph W. Hollebeak, a Candidate for State Representative from Adair County, Iowa.

From an Iowa paper.

"The friends of R. W. Hollebeak of Walnut township are urging him to be a candidate for representative of Adair county. As Hon. Jerry Wilson is not a candidate for reelection the field is clear for a new man and many of the leading republicans of the county stand ready to give Mr. Hollebeak their support. While we have no desire to interfere with Adair county politics we cannot refrain from saying that the Republicans of that county will make no mistake should they decide to send Mr. Hollebeak to the next General Assembly. He is one of the most energetic and enterprising farmers of the county. Is wide awake to every thing of public interest, and has always been an active worker in the party and as yet has never asked for anything. The services he has rendered the party at large and the personal work he has done for the county ticket in the past should entitle him to the unanimous nomination. After an acquaintance of more than twenty years we would not hesitate to endorse him for any position he might seek."

R. W. Hollebeak is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Hollebeak and a brother to A. S. Hollebeak, Mrs. G. H. Ide and Mrs. Doliann Totten of this place and will be favorably remembered by all in this vicinity. We are glad to hear of Mr. Hollebeak's popularity and are sure that he will be a faithful servant to his constituents.

Little Sophia Tischler Dead.

On Friday morning February 22, Sophia Tischler, the seven months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tischler of Stott street died at the hospital in Rockford where it had been operated on for a trouble of the spinal column. Doctors in great number had been consulted and as a last resort, a week before it was decided to submit it to an operation which was performed on Saturday the 16th inst.

This lovely bud, so young and fair Cal'd hence by early doom, Just came to see how sweet a flower In paradise would bloom.

Ere sin could harm or sorrow fade Death came with friendly care, The opening bud to heaven conveyed, And bade it blossom there.

The funeral sermon was preached in the Advent church and burial was in the Genoa cemetery.

Thomas E. Lawrence Dead.

Many of the old residents of Genoa and especially among those of the Masonic fraternity will be surprised to learn of the death of Thomas E. Lawrence in Elgin. He was born in Canada near Kingston, Ont., September 29, 1833 and came to Illinois in 1844. Mr. Lawrence was first made a mason in Genoa lodge No 288 in June 1858. After holding important offices in the lodge until 1865 he withdrew from Genoa lodge and joined the Elgin lodge No. 117. He also received chapter degrees in Sycamore lodge No. 49 R. A. M. in 1858.

NEGRO KILLS WHITE GIRL.

Terre Haute Teacher Murdered with Razor.

MOB MAY AVENGE DEATH.

Miss Ida Finkelstein the Victim of a Black Man Who Shoots Her, Then Cuts Her Throat—She Describes Her Assault.

Miss Ida Finkelstein, a teacher in a school near Terre Haute, Ind., whose family lives in Chicago, was killed by a negro Monday evening. A posse of police and citizens began searching the city of Terre Haute for her slayer and there were threats that he would be lynched if caught. Miss Finkelstein had dismissed school and started to the house at which she was boarding. It was getting late, and as she was hurrying through a desolate piece of woodland a negro armed with a gun, who evidently had been hunting, called upon her to stop. She quickened her steps, thinking to escape, but the negro opened fire with a shotgun and several of the shot struck her in the face. Thinking the negro meant to rob her Miss Finkelstein stopped and waited for the man to approach, and when he came up to her she handed him her purse containing $3 and started to go. The negro, however, grabbed her around the waist and held her. The girl struggled and the negro drew a razor and cut her throat. She continued to struggle and scream and the negro finally fled. Miss Finkelstein, weakened from her struggle and loss of blood, walked half a mile to a house, where she fell, and was taken in. She gave a good description of her assailant. An ambulance was summoned, and Miss Finkelstein was brought to a hospital in Terre Haute, where she died at 11:30 p. m. Miss Finkelstein has no relatives in Terre Haute, but she has many friends among the Jewish residents of the city, who know her heroic struggles as the main support of a widowed mother with six young children. Seven years ago her father, a pack peddler, was murdered in a saloon at Hymera, a mining town. After that time she graduated from the high school and then spent two years in the State Normal school. She has been teaching two years at the little country schoolhouse. Her mother and brothers and sisters moved to Chicago some time ago, and the daughter sent to them nearly all her salary as teacher.

ask Senor Silveira to form a ministry. Whatever government may assume power the queen regent will insist on the re-establishment of the old relations with the church and the religious orders. General Weyler will be continued in his command as well as all the generals recently appointed through his influence.

Sell Sand for Sugar.
Chicago police are looking for a gang of sugar swindlers which has been operating on the west side. Barrels mostly filled with sand and stone, with a top layer of sugar, have been sold for $8 each. Mrs. Bertha Ault, 367 West Van Buren street, was one of the victims. She purchased a barrel of the alleged sugar for $8 and soon discovered that she had paid for a barrel of sand. After discovering the fraud, the woman went to the Desplaines street station and swore out a warrant against a man named Brueker, who she said was the peddler who had sold her the barrel.

Fertilizer Output Cornered.
The Virginia-Carolina Chemical company, the $12,000,000 which controls practically all of the fertilizer output in the south, has entirely wiped out all danger of opposition by purchasing the plant of the Charleston Mining company for $1,500,000. The purchase includes 27,000 acres of phosphate land. Farmers fear the price of fertilizer, an absolute necessity for the cotton industry, will be advanced. Philip Godley is president of the Charleston Mining company, and nearly all of the stock is owned by Philadelphia capitalists.

Five Persons Burn to Death.
The home of George James, four miles from Versailles, Ind., burned and James and four daughters were burned to death. Mrs. James and another daughter were absent. James got up at 5 o'clock, built a fire and went back to bed. The stove tipped over and set the house on fire. The daughters, who slept upstairs, were aroused and came down, but instead of going out doors they rushed into the room where their father was. A son of 12 years old who was sleeping with his father got up and escaped through a back door, though he was badly burned.

Hetty Green Wants Money.
Mrs. Hetty Green of New York has filed an appeal at Taunton, Mass., to the supreme court from the decision of Judge Fuller in the case which she prosecuted several months ago in a contest over the terms of the will of Sylvia Ann Howland of New Bedford. By the terms of this will Mrs. Green was a beneficiary to the extent of nearly $1,500,000, but she contested the will and the decision was reversed to her.

Buttermakers Award Prizes.
The National Buttermakers' convention came to an end at St. Paul, Minn., the closing hours being devoted to discussion of topics of interest to the delegates. The choice of a place for the next convention was left to the executive committee. Over 4,000 delegates attended the convention, which is said to have been the most successful in the history of the association. Minnesota secured the highest award, and three out of four medals. Kansas won the silk banner for the highest state average, 89.44 per cent.

Fear Dynamite at Woodstock.
Woodstock is undergoing a dynamite scare. In a wreck which took place on the Grand Trunk railway there last week forty tons of dynamite were spilled and has been carried to different points about town. E. C. Rice, a telegraph operator, found a stick sufficient to blow up several houses in his coal bin. An open window near by faced the street, and someone evidently had thrown the dynamite in. Of the forty tons four are missing and are scattered about town.

MAY MAKE UP A CABINET.

Spain's Queen Will Ask Silveira to Form Ministry.

The queen regent of Spain, Maria Christina, is sadly perplexed as to the selection of a new premier. She desires above everything to avoid a renewal of the anti-clerical disturbances and demonstrations. For this reason she fears to call on Senor Sagasta, the liberal minister, to form a cabinet, as his anti-clerical ideas are well known.

A cablegram from Madrid says the regent will not hear of anything being done that might displease the pope and play into the hands of the pretender, Don Carlos, by giving offense to the religious orders, especially the Jesuits. She has therefore determined to

$2.50 SENT FREE!

The Well Known Chicago Heart Specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D., L. L. B., will send $2.50 Worth of His New and Complete Treatment to our Readers.

There never was a better opportunity for persons suffering from diseases of the heart, nerves, liver, stomach or dropsy to test, free, a New and Complete Treatment for these disorders. Dr. Miles is well known as a leading specialist in these diseases, and his liberal offer is certainly worthy of serious consideration by every afflicted reader.

This new system of Special Treatment is thoroughly scientific and immensely superior to the ordinary methods. It consists of several remedies carefully selected to suit each individual case, and is the final result of twenty-five years of very extensive research and experience in treating this class of diseases. It consists of a curative elixir, tonic tablets, laxative pills and usually a plaster selected for each case. Extensive statistics clearly demonstrate that Dr. Miles' New Treatment is three times as successful as the usual treatment.

Thousands of remarkable testimonials from prominent people will be sent upon request which prove the doctor to be one of the world's most successful physicians. Mr. Julius Kestler, of 350 Michigan Avenue, Chicago, testifies that Dr. Miles cured him after ten able physicians had failed. Mrs. R. Trimmer, of Greenspring, Pa., was cured after many physicians had pronounced her case "hopeless." Col. E. B. Spillman, of the 4th United States Regulars, located at San Diego, Cal., says: "Dr. Miles' Special Treatment has worked wonders in my son's case when all else failed. I had employed the best medical talent and had spent $2,000 in so doing. I believe he is a wonderful specialist. I considered it my duty to recommend him." "Four years I had severe trouble with my stomach, head, neuralgia, sinking spells and dropsy. Your treatment entirely cured me," writes Hon. W. A. Warren, of Jamestown, N. Y.

As all afflicted readers may have $2.50 worth of treatment especially adapted to their case, free, we would advise them to send for it at once. Address Dr. Franklin Miles, 203 to 207 State St., Dept. L, Chicago. Mention this paper.

HELP FOR WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED.

"I do not feel very well, I am so tired all the time. I do not know what is the matter with me."
You hear these words every day; as often as you meet your friends just so often are these words repeated. More than likely you speak the same significant words yourself, and no doubt you do feel far from well most of the time.
Mrs. Ella Rice, of Chelsea, Wis., whose portrait we publish, writes that she suffered for two years with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and had all kinds of miserable feelings, all of which was caused by falling and inflammation of the womb, and after doctored with physicians and numerous medicines she was entirely cured by

MRS. ELLA RICE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
If you are troubled with pains, fainting spells, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere, headache, backache, and always tired, please remember that there is an absolute remedy which will relieve you of your suffering as it did Mrs. Rice. Proof is monumental that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine for suffering women. No other medicine has made the cures that it has, and no other woman has helped so many women by direct advice as has Mrs. Pinkham; her experience is greater than that of any living person. If you are sick, write and get her advice; her address is Lynn, Mass.

Sour Stomach?

Back up a sewer, and you poison the whole neighborhood. Clog up liver and bowels, and your stomach is full of undigested food, which sours and ferments, like garbage in a swill-barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, headache, furred tongue, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. CASCARETS quietly, positively stop fermentation in the stomach, make the liver lively, tone up the bowels, set the whole machinery going and keep it in order.

Don't hesitate! Take CASCARETS to-day and be saved from suffering!

“After I was induced to try CASCARETS, I will never be without them in the house. My liver was in a very bad shape, my head ached and I had stomach trouble. Now, since taking Cascarets, I feel fine. My wife has also used them with beneficial results for sour stomach.”

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS.

Summary of Legislation in National Body.

MEASURES IN BOTH HOUSES.

President Issues a Proclamation Requiring Meeting of the Senate—Saying That Public Interests Require Such a Meeting on March 4.

Wednesday, February 20. The senate spent the day on the postoffice appropriation bill. The amendment of Mr. Butler proposing a reduction of about 9 per cent in the pay for railway postal service was defeated—18 to 51—after a debate in which Mr. Depew answered Mr. Butler's criticisms on the large profits made by American roads.

The house passed the sundry civil appropriation bill and entered upon consideration of the general deficiency bill—the last of the general appropriation bills.

Thursday, February 21. The senate considered postoffice appropriation bill. Amendment providing for pneumatic tube service killed. The old controversy over the special appropriations for fast mail service engaged much attention. It was decided to begin holding night sessions Friday night.

The house passed deficiency appropriation bill, after day of exciting debate.

Friday, February 22. Senate passed two of the great supply bills—the postoffice and the diplomatic and consular appropriation. During the greater part of the session a proposition to discontinue the appropriations for fast mail facilities from New York to New Orleans via Atlanta, and from Kansas City, Mo., to Newton, Kan., was under discussion. By a decisive vote the appropriations were continued. An effort was made to obtain an appropriation to continue the pneumatic tube service in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, but it failed.

House devoted an hour to unanimous consent legislation and two hours and a half each to the passage of private claims bills and private pension bills. Nine bills were passed by unanimous consent and twenty-nine claims bills and 139 pension bills were passed. Among the latter was the senate bill to pension the widow of the late Gen. Henry W. Lawton, who was killed in the Philippines.

Saturday, February 23. The president has issued a proclamation calling a special session of the senate for executive purposes immediately upon the dissolution of the present congress, March 4.

The text of the proclamation is as follows: "By the president of the United States of America—A proclamation: Whereas, Public interests require that the senate of the United States be convened at 12 o'clock on the 4th day of March next to receive such communications as may be made by the executive: Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the senate of the United States to convene at the capitol in this city of Washington on the 4th day of March next, at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members of that body are hereby required to take notice. Given under my hand and the seal of the United States at Washington the 23d day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and one, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-fifth.

"WILLIAM MCKINLEY, Secretary of State."

Monday, February 25. Senate devoted the day to debate on the Philippine amendment to the army appropriation bill.

House devoted the day to conference reports. Occurred in senate amendment to navy bill, striking out appropriations for new battle ships and cruisers.

Find Arsenic in Medicine.

Mrs. Frank Beatty narrowly escaped death at Hamilton, Ohio, through arsenic placed in medicine which was being administered to her for nervous prostration. Her husband noticed something was wrong and secured a physician, who succeeded in saving the woman's life. A relative is suspected of placing the poison in the medicine. The police have the case in charge.

Revokes Indianapolis Saloon License.

The Anti-Saloon league of Indianapolis have scored what its leaders assert is a great victory. Judge Alford revoked the license of Saloonkeeper John Heitkam, it being Heitkam's second conviction to a charge of violating the Nicholson liquor law. It is the first case of the kind in the county, although many saloonkeepers have been twice convicted.

Prominent Virginian's Suicide.

Major Randolph Harrison Finney, a man of means and a member of one of the most prominent families in Virginia, hanged himself to the transom of his chamber door at his residence in Richmond, Va., and was dead when found by his wife. A wound received while at the head of a battalion in the confederate army resulted in blindness some years ago, and this, with bad health, caused him to take his life. One of his sons is secretary to the secretary of the navy.

Fifty Men Lost in a Mine. A disastrous fire in Diamondville coal mine, No. 1, near Kemmerer, Wyo., was attended with serious loss of life and great destruction of property. There were some fifty miners and fifteen horses entombed, but one miraculous escape was made, however, by John Anderson, who was working near the mouth of the level when he realized the mine was on fire. With much difficulty he reached the main lead, and by throwing a heavy overcoat over his head and shoulders he pushed his way through the flames and reached the main shaft completely exhausted and terribly burned, but will recover. He was taken out by friends. It is believed that none of the others can be saved.

Petrified in the Grave.

At the cemetery near Fountain City, north of Richmond, Ind., when the grave of Mrs. Thompson Smith was opened, in order to remove the body to another cemetery, it was found to be solid stone. The features are plain, and the teeth and hair are the same as when the remains were placed in the grave. It took four persons to lift the body from the grave. The body is as white as chalk, and is intact, except a portion of one foot. It is said that the petrification resulted from the fact that the ground is a peculiar clay mixture, and that water stands there a considerable portion of the year.

Her Contribution Limited.

In a letter to Senator Vest at Springfield, Mo., inclosing a check for $500, her contribution to the Missouri Confederate Monument Association, Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst says: "I note what you say in regard to my husband's generous donation to the confederate home in your state. While he was living he was making money, and since he passed away I have been trying to accomplish a great many things which have consumed all my income. Besides, I have divided my estate with my son, giving him the better half, and I am precluded from doing many things which otherwise I would be in a position to do."

Drowns Her Six Children.

Mrs. Rose Wurzer, a widow, in a fit of insanity, drowned her six children, aged 4 to 12 years, at Unionstown, Wash. Two were boys and four girls. She threw them into a well thirty feet deep, containing two feet of water, then jumped in herself and held the heads of the children beneath the surface until all were drowned. Mrs. Wurzer was found alive in the well with her six murdered children by the neighbors, who pulled her out with a rope. She is violently insane. The woman's husband died a year ago, since which time she has been supported by the county and the charity of neighbors.

Points Out Danger to Russia.

The Journal de St. Petersburg asks: "Will not a dangerous precedent be created by the desire to prove at any price that alleged secret premiums are concealed by the Russian sugar regime? If Russia employed the same logic she would with even greater justification, be driven to impose countervailing duties upon cast iron, steel, copper, and other American products to which the principle now being established could be applied with equal justice."

Exile Dies in Squalor.

A veteran of the Franco-Prussian war and an exile from the fatherland because he wrote a poem criticizing the policy of Bismarck, Hugo C. Schultze died in squalor and poverty at 259 East Sixty-fourth street, Chicago. The body was discovered by the police on Wednesday morning, two days after death. For the last five months Schultze had lived over the candy store of Julius Pink.

Nominations by the President.

The president has sent these nominations to the senate: John H. Fessler of Colorado, to be consul at Amoy, China; Captain William Crozier, ordnance department, to be professor of natural and experimental philosophy at the military academy at West Point; First Sergeant Thomas F. Lowden, Fourth Infantry, to be second lieutenant, U. S. A.

Crazed by a Killing.

From the steppes of Siberia to pre-saic New York the face of a beautiful woman, whom he slew, has followed Col. Otto Bierliath. He shot the woman when a pack of wolves was ready to tear her limb from limb. He gave her, as he believed, a merciful death, and at the same time saved her from a living death, as an exiled prisoner of the czar. But that has not taken from him the mental torture he has since suffered, and in despair he surrendered himself to the authorities and was placed in the Bellevue insane hospital.

A UNITED STATES SENATOR

SAYS THAT PE-RU-NA, THE CATARRH CURE, GIVES STRENGTH AND APPETITE.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, personally endorses Peruna, the great catarrh cure and tonic. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, at Columbus, Ohio, written from Washington, D. C., Senator Roach says: "Persuaded by a friend I have used Peruna as a tonic, and I am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—W. N. Roach, La. more, North Dakota.

No other remedy can take the place of Peruna.

Mr. Ed J. Makinson, contractor and builder, 610 Grand Block, Wash-bash street, St. Paul, Minn., says:

Mr. Ed J. Makinson, Contractor and Builder.

"Many doctor bills can be saved by the use of Peruna. I have all my friends taking Peruna, and I have heard nothing but praise from them. Last fall I had a bad cough. I took four bottles of Peruna and it cured me. I am inclined towards consumption, as all my family have died with it. I weight 185 pounds, and I believe it is Peruna that has given me such good health."—J. Makinson.

As a result of the changeable climate, catarrh has become one of the most prevalent and universal diseases known to man. Nearly one-third of the people of the United States are afflicted with catarrh in some of its many phases and stages. Add to this the fact that catarrh rapidly tends to become fixed or chronic, also the further fact that it is capable of producing a great many other diseases, and we begin to realize the true nature of this dread disease.

So formidable has catarrh become that in every city or town of any size numerous doctors are to be found who make the treatment of catarrh a specialty. Of course a great deal of good is accomplished in this way, but as yet a comparatively small number of the people can avail themselves of this treatment because of the great expense necessarily attached to it.

To all such people Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, comes as a great boon. Not only is it more successful in curing catarrh than the treatment of the catarrh specialists, but it is within the reach of every person in this land. Peruna can be bought at any drug store, and is a remedy without equal for catarrh in all forms, coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption, and all climatic diseases of winter.

Peruna is not a guess, nor an experiment; it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna has no substitute—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna. Let no one persuade you that some other remedy will do nearly as well. There is no other systemic remedy for catarrh but Peruna.

Mr. Byron J. Kirkhoff, attorney, co. u. s. elor-at-law writes from 691 Gates ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., the following: "I have used your Peruna for catarrh and find its curative powers all you recommend. It cured me of a very bad attack and though I suffered for years I feel entirely relieved, and if it will benefit others, I gladly give it my endorsement."—B. J. Kirkhoff.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address Dr. Hartman, president of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

As a sufferer for thirty years from the worst form of Psoriasis, finally cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I wish to tell you my experience, that others may benefit by it. I was so grievously afflicted that the matter that exuded from my pores after the scales had peeled off, would cause my underclothing to actually gum to my body. After remaining in one position, sitting or lying down, for an hour or two, the flesh on my elbows and knees would split, so thick and hard would the crusty scales become. The humiliation I experienced, to say nothing of physical agony, was something frightful. The detached scales would fairly rain from my coat sleeves. I have read none of your testimonials that appear to represent a case so bad as mine. But as to the cure. I commenced bathing in hot Cuticura Soap suds night and morning, applied the Cuticura Ointment, and then wrapped myself in a sheet. In two weeks my skin was almost blood red in color, but smooth and without scales. Patches of natural colored skin began to appear, and in less than a month I was cured. I am now passed forty years of age and have skin as soft and smooth as a baby's. Hoping that others may benefit by my experience, and regretting that sensitiveness forbids me from disclosing my name, I am yours gratefully, J. H. M., Boston, Mass., Sept. 30, 1900.

Millions of People Use Cuticura Soap

Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of bath for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily cleanse themselves to women, and especially mothers. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odors. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. No other medicated soaps is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the best skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world. Sold by all druggists.
