RIDES TO FOX LAKE ON BICYCLE

C. D. Schoonmaker Becomes a Printer's Devil in Office of Genoa Issue

An important real estate deal took place here last week. The fine 120 acre farm just north of town, owned by Chris Sherriffe, was purchased by G. C. Rowen at $60 per acre.

Farmers are selling the new hay crop at $12 per ton. C. D. Schoonmaker of Chicago who has been visiting his sisters, Mrs. O. E. Cozzens and Mrs. Geo. E. Sisley, has decided to remain here and cast his lot with the issue.

Genoa base ball team defeated Marengo 13 to 8 last Saturday. Clayton Patterson very judiciously umpired the game, while our "invincible Charley" made good use of his stentorian voice.

Jerry Patterson has gone to Odessa So. Dakota, to care for a brother who has had a broken leg.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Renn a baby girl is making things lively for them. Came Saturday night.

E. Sisson went to Fox Lake on his bike Saturday morning to join the other Genoaites.

Five Genoa cyclists saw the sights of Hampshire, Burlington and Sycamore last Sunday.

HE WAS "PARDONED"

Habitual Criminal by Instinct Again in the Toils

The notorious "Ed." Rice has been arrested again for robbery.

The people of DeKalb county have cause to remember Rice. Following is some of his record here:

(1) Stole from residences circus day at Sandwich about three years ago.

(2) Forfeited his bail and escaped.

(3) Caught committing burglaries in identically the same manner in Mississippi.

(4) Brought to Sycamore, convicted for Sandwich robberies and sent to penitentiary.

(5) This spring was paroled without state's attorney receiving notice of hearing, and shortly after was given a "special discharge" by the parole board.

(6) Now, arrested at Mt. Clemens, Mich., for a daylight burglary.

State's attorney Smith received recently the following telegram:—Am holding "Mark" for a daylight robbery. Signed, Egan Strait, Chief of Police.

"Mark" is this E. D. Rice, whom State's Attorney Smith by prompt and energetic effort convicted for the Sandwich daylight robberies, and put safely behind the walls of the penitentiary.

While Rice was in the county jail, he made every sort of clever plea for leniency, and outside influences were brought to bear on his release. When he "jumped" his bond, the bondsmen, with the assistance of State's Attorney L. B. Smith, in a country-wide search, that extended to the Pacific coast where it was found Rice formerly resided, uncovered his record for years showing him to be a habitual thief. Yet with all this evidence, our loose pardon board, before whom appeared one of the best criminal lawyers of the state, allowed this man his freedom to again prey on the people.

The people of the county will watch with interest to see if slippery Ed can again escape justice.

THIS RESTLESS AGE

Why are people unhappy in this restless age? Do you know the cure? Come out to the combined Epworth League and evening church service next Sunday evening at 7 p. m. and bear what we have to say about this topic, which will be followed by a short message from the pastor.

WANT SOME STOCK?

A tire factory desirous of employing 500 men will open in Cary within a few near future. The new concern is the Sure-On Tire Saver Co. of Chicago, which has purchased the building at the corner of Depot and Main streets formerly occupied by the Oatman Condensed company.

CATTLE KING TO BE SET FREE

James Dorsey, Convicted of Selling Diseased Cattle to be Pardoned

Federal Judge Landis last week paid his respects to Woodrow Wilson in terms which reflected no credit upon the President of the United States or upon the law enforcing departments of the government.

Court had been convened to hear the usual run of federal matters. As the jurist reached the bench and the court audience rose in deference, the judge saw William Small, a clerk in District Clynne's office, in the courtroom.

Apparently Judge Landis had been informed, just before court was convened that the sentence of William Dorsey of Gilbert, Ill., reputed mil lionaire and so-called cattle king had been cut by presidential dictum from eight to four years. Dorsey was convicted on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

"Am I correctly informed" the court asked, leaning across the bench to Small, "that the sentence of Dorsey has been cut in two by the President of the United States?"

When he was advised this was a fact, the court said:

"This millionaire cattle king was sentenced some time ago to serve eight years in the federal prison for using the mails in a scheme to defraud. Dorsey was charged with selling tubercular cattle and using the mails to help his purpose.

"I want to make a statement of this case to the assembled bar.

"There are about eighty defendants in this courtroom. I suppose most of them had been taking too much drink or some trivial infraction of our laws.

"On the other hand, there is this man Dorsey. He sold about 12,000 head of cattle a year, and made about $120,000 a year. The indictments against him charged him with misuse of the mails. He advertised through the mails that the cattle were full-bred Holsteins and that the purchasers of the cattle would be given certificates showing that all the federal and state laws in regard to the sale of cattle had been complied with.

"But Dorsey hired an old horse doctor, who would sign blank certificates and then had clerks fill out the certificates. An avalanche of complaints concerning the tubercular cattle poured in from Mexico to Alaska.

"Finally Dorsey was brought to trial and sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary. The sentence, although it was stayed a number of times, was affirmed by the Court of Appeals. Finally—through the oversight of somebody, I suppose—Dorsey went to the penitentiary.

"When the President of the United States passed in his affairs to cut this sentence in two, I am forced to wonderment as to the frame of mind he must have been in to cut such a sentence.

"I suppose Dorsey's pardon is about ready. However, I am going to watch this man and this case with great interest."

OUT FOR CORONER

Dr. Brewer of Shabbona is the Only Candidate

Dr. Brewer of Shabbona is candidate for coroner of DeKalb county, in fact at the present writing he is the only candidate.

Dr. Rodney Wright of DeKalb and J. D. Morris of Kirkland had announced their candidacy but later withdrew from the race.

Dr. Brewer stands high in the esteem of the people of Shabbona, and as that town has not had a county office for fifty years, the chances are that the doctor will have no opposition.

A CHILD IS BORN

But Young Mother Gives Up Her Life

Mrs. Sophia (Bennett) Kniprath, wife of Conrad Kniprath, Jr., passed away at the Sycamore hospital Monday, July 13, following a Caesarean operation. Mrs. Kniprath brought a bright little daughter into the world. The deceased was nineteen years of age.

Funeral services were held at the home at 1.30 Wednesday afternoon and at 2.00 at the M. E. Church.

EIGHTY YEARS

A reunion was held at the Fred Ollman home on Washington street, Thursday evening, July 8, it being Mr. Ollman's 80th birthday. After a pleasant visit, refreshments were served. The following were present: John Ollman and family; Albert Ollman and sons; Will Ollman and daughters; Ed. Ollman and family of Colvin Pary; Mrs. Henry Udine, son and daughter of Aurora; Mrs. Fred Schmidt and daughter of Elgin and Mr. Anderson of Kirkland.

When the children departed they wished the happy father a happy birthday and many more.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

Robbers recently entered Mr.

WEST VIRGINIANS

Entertained at the Home of Ezra Lewis July 4

Mr. Ezra Lewis and wife who live 3 miles East of Genoa, Ill., invited The West Virginia people who live in and near their home to their beautiful lawn grove for a West Virginia picnic and basket dinner Sunday, July 4. At 12 o'clock the ladies had spread their baskets on the lawn table, and such a feast as was in sight is seldom seen. All surrounded the table in due time and did ample justice to the good things before them.

At this time it was discovered that Mr. Lewis was absent, but soon he came to light with a can of ice cream which all thoroughly enjoyed.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Lewis, wife and family, Clayton Lewis, wife and family, Thos. Lewis, wife and family, Pearl Fisher, wife and family; Harry Lewis, Harry Harrison and Rilla Lewis, all of Genoa, Ill.

Alfred Ledley, wife and family of New Lebanon; Charles Fisher and family of Rockford; Cripple Ohlinger and family of Esmond; Lloyd Lewksbury and family; Wm. Lewksbury and family of Sycamore; Taylor Rush and family of Kingston; Harry Rayburn and family, Geo. Land and family, Bertie Liewing and family, J. W. Fogelson and family of Kirkland and Herman Liewing and wife and family of Sycamore. Mrs. Molly Long of Chicago.

At 5 p. m. all departed with deep gratitude in their hearts to Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Lewis for their kind hospitality and the very pleasant time all had enjoyed. —Hobo—

DAN ARBUCKLE DEAD

Kingston Loses One of Its Best Citizens Sunday

D. B. Arbuckle, one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of Kingston township, passed away at Rochester, Minn., July 10, the body being shipped back to Kingston Monday.

Mr. Arbuckle and his wife went to Rochester several weeks ago where the former placed himself in care of the Mayo Bros. Owing to his advanced age, however, and the nature of his ailment he was unable to successfully fight the battle.

Word was sent to relatives last week that Mr. Arbuckle could not live. His son, Frank, departed for Minnesota at once but he arrived too late to again see his father alive.

Funeral services were held at the home at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The body was laid to rest according to Masonic rights, many from Genoa lodge being in attendance.

LOSES BOTH FEET

Henry Adams Submits to the Inevitable Ordeal

Henry Adams, formerly of Genoa, a brother of Frank Adams, submitted to an operation at St. Joseph's hospital in Belvidere last Tuesday, both feet being amputated.

Conditions arising from a freezing which he suffered last winter made necessary the operation.

Adams was overtaken by night on the road between Belvidere and Beloit one cold day last winter. The automobile which he was driving got out of order and he took refuge in a barn, where he spent the night. He was found next morning by a man who entered to feed his horses. He was badly frozen, and at Belvidere some time later it was decided that the feet could not be saved and amputation was made. Only the forward parts of his feet were removed, however, with the result that since his recovery he has been unable to walk and the remaining parts of his feet were so distorted that it would be impossible to fit artificial feet to them. The only possibility of his ever walking with any degree of skill was the amputation of both feet at a point which would permit the fitting of artificial feet.

The operation was performed on Tuesday and the patient stood the ordeal well.

FELL FROM CHERRY TREE

John Calvin Ashby, 63 years old, fell out of a cherry tree at Somanuk last Friday night at 7 o'clock and died three hours later in Aurora hospital from a fracture of the skull. His wife was standing under the tree urging him to come down when the accident happened.

MC HENRY TO BUILD

It has been definitely decided that St. Patrick's parish of McHenry will erect a new $75,000 church edifice. Altho McHenry has a smaller population than Genoa, she has two Catholic congregations. St. Mary's parish (German) recently rebuilt an edifice that is worth at least $75,000. The Johnsburg church, three miles from McHenry cost nearly a hundred thousand.

FORAGE OR FOOD POISONING

Agricultural Experiment Station Establishes Fact of Its Fatal Effect

HUMANS SUBJECT TO DISEASE

An Antitoxin has been Discovered Which Will Prevent Development of Poisoning

Champaign, Ill., July 14: That forage or food poisoning of farm animals has, by extended experiments, been definitely established as a specific fatal disease and that horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, as well as the human family, are susceptible to the disease, are some of the conclusions drawn by Dr. Robt. Graham of the University of Illinois in Circular 38 of the College of Agriculture, issued today.

The public interest in food poisoning has been stimulated from the recent outbreaks of the disease in man, resulting from the consumption of incompletely sterilized ripe olives. The results of investigations show that animals suffer from a similar disease.

Food poisoning deals principally with the fatal disease commonly referred to as botulism. The poison is developed on animal feed, including ensilage, wheat screening, ground oats, oat hay, or other feeds, during the time it is stored before being fed. The poison is the result of bacterial growth upon the feed and may take place without any visible change in the feed. Molds so often associated with food poisoning in animals have a very remote connection with the primary cause of the disease, according to the results of recent experiments.

The results of the work reported in the circular indicate that feed which has produced illness and death in animals may be fed without danger if certain preliminary treatment is given it. Cooking to the point of boiling, exposure to sunlight for two or three days, thorough washing in water, are procedures that are recommended. In many outbreaks it is difficult to detect the feed involved, and of course until this information can be definitely obtained it is always advisable to make a complete change of feed.

A specific antitoxin which will prevent the development of food poisoning has been developed and applied with good results. From preliminary observations made by the University it appears that veterinarians may find botulinus antitoxin a very valuable asset in combating food or forage poisoning in domestic animals. It can be obtained from the University Experiment Station, until available from commercial sources, at the cost of production, which at the present time is two cents per cubic centimeter.

A SNAPPY GAME

Genoa Team Defeated by Clair last Sunday

The Genoa base ball team was defeated by the Clair aggregation last Sunday by the peaceful tune of 9 to 7. There never was a time during the entire game when the visitors should have looked like winners, a few costly errors marked up on Genoa's side of the score card telling the story.

The Genoa boys were heavier with the hickory, faster on their feet and put more snap into their play than did the visitors, but they fell down right at the point where a little more practice would have no doubt prevented the fall.

It was a game worth seeing and was quite well attended.

The One Out of Ten

By MERCED DE PINA

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Mrs. Ennery gave a dinner for her sister Alice's chum, who was visiting them. First among the invited were Jack Wilford, an old comrade, and Howard Teller, a distinctly eligible friend of Jack's.

People are apt to wonder what formed the bond between Alice and Mary Grant, for the latter gave a first impression of merely quiet charm. There was nothing forceful about her, except, perhaps, an angle of her chin. As a matter of fact she was an athlete of great skill withal, so modest that only her few friends knew of her prowess.

After dinner the guests scattered before settling to bridge—the business of the evening. A few gathered around a window, through which the flare of a street lamp attracted all eyes to a large machine outside the door. Teller claimed ownership.

"Aren't you afraid to leave it out there unguarded?" asked one of the men.

Teller laughed carelessly. "Not a bit! It's anchored, safe enough, with the spark-plug out, and if I should forget to take that precaution, why— even down home, not one in ten of the boys cares to handle that car!"

"You are an enthusiastic motorist, Mr. Teller?" interrupted Mary.

He turned and stared, unable to fathom her tone.

Jack spoke. "He's a fiend, a perpetual break-the-record automaton!"

"Can't help it, with that car!" Jack, who knew Mary well, looked a question when Teller presently drifted away.

Mary shook her head. "He's too sure of himself—and others, I would like— Her eyes twinkled as she pulled Jack closer and whispered in his ear.

"Do you think you could?" said Jack doubtfully. "You heard him say— not one out of—"

"But he said 'not one out of ten.'"

"I'm the tenth!" she declared confidently. "If only the spark plug happened to be in!"

"It would serve him right," admitted Jack responsibly. "I'll join you as soon as I've telephoned Ben. I'll tell him to meet us at Fox's Bend, but that if we don't show up in twenty minutes or less, we're not coming. He's a regular old clam, and I'm sure of catching him. Wait for me!"

"No fear! I need you as witness." "You're sure—"

"Coward!" taunted Mary. Not five minutes later, two figures, keeping well in shadow, stealthily approached Teller's machine. Mary, a little ahead, made a hurried inspection of the car before Jack reached her side.

"Fate!" she greeted him. "He has over-reached himself—the spark plug is in."

The glare of the street light simplified their start. Under Mary's experienced guidance the car bounded forward, then settled into a smooth, rushing glide. So they sped along, quite inconspicuously, and incredibly soon Jack, who had dictated their route, leaned forward and exclaimed:

"There's Ben!"

Quickly they stopped and descended, extinguishing the lights and replacing the rug over the radiator, lastly removing the spark plug. This Mary slipped into her coat pocket as Jack helped her into the carriage Ben had waiting for them with a fast horse attached.

"Just keep your eye on that car until it's called for, Ben," said Jack, as they drove away, "and your tongue quiet."

"Aye, sir," responded the village factotum imperturbably, quite unconcerned except with the extra bill in his pocket.

The conspirators re-entered the drawing room to find the bridge tables forming.

In the interest of cards the little incident was forgotten, and at the end of the evening no one, in the midst of good nights, thought of connecting it with Teller's exclamation as he looked out of the window. Curiosity drew to his side those who had lingered, and each echoed his cry.

The car was gone! Consternation held Teller's tongue tied. Some one suggested telephoning the police, and awakening to the value of instant action, he hurried from the room without noting the glance exchanged between Jack and Mary.

"I say, Jack, do you mind footing it? I don't feel equal to a hack—it's too slow." Teller made a wry face.

"Just the night for walking!" agreed Jack heartily, "I'll be with you in a minute," and left him alone, with Mary.

Teller stared gloomily at his boots. "I thought," she ventured, "with the spark plug out—"

"It wasn't!" snapped Teller, almost impolitely. "I beg your pardon," he added.

A faint laugh, a mere gurgle, parted her lips. Then Jack appeared, and hurried the puzzled and disconsolate Teller homeward. But as they waded good night, Mary thought: "I wonder—he's a good athlete, but—is he a good sport?" Then she sighed, tried to analyze the sharp little sting of compunction that suddenly pricked her; and because she failed to stifle it, fastened the blame upon Teller, skillfully avoiding Alice's questions, and successfully courted a few hours' dreamless sleep.

Not so Teller. He was, indeed, a good sport, as well as a good athlete. But the loss of his car overshadowed all other sensations. Teller loved his car. He welcomed the telephone ring that interrupted his thinking, and snatched hopefully at the receiver.

"Information!"

"But I didn't ask—"

"I know. I'm just offering it gratis." The voice was deep and gruff. "Talking it for granted you'd like to hear anything you could about your car—"

"What about the car?" he said.

"Know old Ben's stable, close to Fox's Bend?"

"Yes," fibbed Teller.

"You'll find your car there."

"How do you know?"—fearing a ruse.

"I'm information, that's my business." The voice softened. "The car isn't hurt. Good-by!"

"Hold on!" cried Teller, but too late. He sat down, half dazed, half angry.

"Now, who in—" he mumbled, "who laughs like that?" He called upon his memory. A dim picture met his effort; a girl's quizzical smile, a few persistent, teasing questions, and the echo of a laugh which had held no meaning for him at the time, but which he now probed with interest. "I wonder!" he exclaimed. "Impossible! A woman couldn't touch that car, above all, not that slip of a girl!"

Jack, with whom he was staying, found him whistling. "It's all right, old man, I've found her!" Jack stared. Teller laughed. "Her—capital H!"

"Where is it?"

"It?"

"The car."

"Blast the car!" cried Teller. "I mean—that is—not entirely. I say, Jack, is she the sort that could do it?" with sudden pleading. "I just couldn't stand a let-down now!"

The maid handed Teller a small package marked "urgent." Teller opened it. The plug of his machine rolled to the floor with a card scribbled "Information."

At the very spot described Teller found his machine. "If she didn't do it," he muttered, "I'll never forgive her!"

As Jack had implied, Mary alone was visible. "Discovered!" shouted Teller, in greeting, and fancied he saw her start. "My car," he added for her relief. "It was the most mysterious thing! Had your breakfast? Good! Want to take a spin—and I'll tell you all about it!"

"Why—yes," said Mary.

"Want to drive?" asked Teller, as they started.

"I?" cried the girl in surprise.

"Why not?" he continued coolly. "Lots easier by day."

"Since you took my car, you'll have to include me."

Again Mary laughed, this time a little uncertainly.

A wave of confusion seized her. "But I had no idea you'd take it this way!" she blurted.

"Never can tell," retorted Teller. "It takes all forms."

"I just couldn't resist," murmured Mary, and grew furious because it sounded like an apology. "You seemed so—so—"

"A regular boaster," admitted Teller, proving his sportsmanship in the confession, "but you can't say I'm not a good sport."

"I'm not sure," said Mary slyly. "May I drive?" she added, with apparent irrelevance.

"You drive—back home, if you like," he commanded. "We'll start fair, all over again; just to prove, that I am a good sport, and a good fighter." But Mary only laughed again, the same low gurgle that had teased his ears and memory; this time, however, with something of a quiver in it that thrilled him to the hope of victory.

CALLING THE CATTLE HOME

In the Mountains of North Carolina the Note of the Yodel is Still Heard.

I sometimes wonder where the cattle calls heard in the North Carolina mountains came from, syllables sedulously handed down from one generation to the next, Winifred Kirkland writes in the Outlook.

When the sheep come scuttling and scurrying with sharp, hurried bleatings across a pasture sown with bowlders gray and shaggy as themselves, the cry that brings them to the salting is "sheep-nan, sheep-nan." When the cowbells are near at hand, their incessant clamor subdued by enfolding tree and bush, there is no need of calling the cows home, but when these are slow in returning from pasturage in the long gold twilight, then the cattle call of the mountains is a cry long to be remembered.

Some mountain woman standing by the bars suddenly straightens and breathes deep, then utters a rich yodel that rings and echoes far and far up the black recessed covey where who knows what mysterious evening herdsman holds the cows. Patient, far-reaching, musical, it summons until the far bells reluctantly tinkle, and slowly come nearer and nearer, presently dusky horns and lumbering flanks emerge from deep forest gloom. While the cows shamble down to the home gate from out the haunted ravine rings the sweet bell note of the wood-thrush, chiming on and on, at recurrent intervals, until full darkness possesses the forest, when another bird begins, and the pathos of the whip-poorwill issues from the wood like the swish of an elfin fall.

RECOMMENDED TO THE SEAMSTRESS

THE fairly efficient seamstress who has what the French call "a sense of clothes," can take a small allowance in money and dress much better on it than richer women who lack good taste. Also she gets more pleasure out of her achievements and there are a good many women in this favored land who have the knack of doing much with little. Thanks to the wide publicity given by newspapers to all matters of dress in centers of fashion no American need ever be behind the times in styles.

Two afternoon gowns shown in the picture here, may be recommended to the seamstress who undertakes to make her own dresses. They offer a choice between long, straight lines for those who admire the slim silhouette and curved ones for those who are too slender, or those who find unbroken lines unbecoming to them.

Tricotee with an open or dropstitch stripe, makes the handsome straight line dress. The design is simple but original, achieving a sleeveless jacket effect in the body which slips over an underbodice carrying the sleeves. Wide satin ribbon, in a soft quality, makes a short crushed band across the front, simulating a girle, and square buttons are set at each side where it terminates. The elbow sleeves are finished with turn back cuffs that employ a band of ribbon and buttons in the same way. There is a very simple neck with sailor collar at the back.

A plain satin underskirt and bodice supply the foundation for the attractive frock of georgette, which might be made of voile. It features the new neck mode—high at back and open in front, and very full ruching of plaited silk with pinked edges, at the bottom of a full, short tunic. The girle is a folded length of bias satin.

Little Maids in Silk Attire

IT IS, or it ought to be, a great occasion for the very little girl when she arrives at the splendor of her first silk dress. With it she has responsibilities thrust upon her; she must be taught to be careful to keep it clean and thus comes the beginning of her training in neatness and the unflinching charm of daintiness. Fashion decrees silk coats and frocks for little maids by the time their third birthday dawns and has selected sprightly taffeta as the prettiest and most practical of weaves for them, although neither crepe de chine nor georgette are denied them. But these softer silks are used in light colors for dress-up times while taffeta is sturdier and extends its usefulness to coats and dresses that will stand more wear.

Taffeta in dark blue makes the charming little frock shown in the picture on a little girl of four. It has a quaint flavor of old times (which it is easy to achieve in taffeta) with its short baby waist, round neck and wide, ruffled collar. The bottom of the waist is finished with a frill and band of the silk, the band having slashes in it for a narrow ribbon girle to slip through. Short ruffled sleeves are caught up at the elbow and tied with ribbon. White socks and black slippers are in keeping with this little affair of other days.

Either taffeta or cotton will be successful in the pretty embroidered frock shown. It is scalloped at the bottom and set on to a narrow yoke also cut in wide scallops. A very simple sitchery like feather or cat stitching runs parallel with the scallops and little rose buds are embroidered above it. The same decoration appears on turned back cuffs that finish elbow sleeves and there is a sash of the dress material slipped through slashes cut in the body of the frock.

Julia Bottruby

THAT SPLASH OF COLOR.

Organdie and novelty cotton frocks are good looking. Imported embroidered volles dotted in vari-color are given the splash of interest by a vivid sash of organdie with butterfly loops and trailing sash ends. Another treatment which is very effectively used in these volles and in the organdie frocks is two-inch insertions of shirred tulle or of tucked organdie in a contrasting shade, which gives a much more hand-worked effect than the insertion of narrow laces. Yellow or gandie is used in this way with gray organdie and white tulle in the pale colored frocks.

Novelty Ribbons. New novelty ribbons are brilliant allies of the woman whose expenditures must be restricted, for they may be fashioned into evening bodices of bright color and rich effect, as well as into girldes and panels.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

The average person is quick enough to remark about the red flame of the sunset, but he seldom sees the dove colors and steel blues that lie back of him in the east. He sees the scarlet maple, or an orange stain upon a hillside in October, but he overlooks the silvery sheen of the wind-swept poplar and the cloudlike surface of the Indian grass. He is not blind to Niagara or the Alps, but he has an unhappy way of never regarding anything that is not 'big,' and hence he loses a great deal of pleasure in life which comes from discovering and enjoying the so-called commonplace.—John Van Dyke.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE FOR DINNER?

A change of menu is one of the constantly recurring problems of the day, and the progressive housewife is not satisfied with a monotonous diet. Variety in the serving of food does not depend so much upon the purse as upon the trained mind which is able to work out suitable dishes, fitted to the amount one is able to spend for food.

Honey Muffins.—Sift together three cups of flour, four teaspoonsful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add two tablespoonsful of melted butter, three eggs, well beaten, one cupful of strained honey and one cupful of milk. Bake in well buttered muffin tins.

Snowballs.—Make a batter of one cupful of cream or top milk, two tablespoonsful of sugar, the yolks of four eggs, two teaspoonsful of baking powder, and flour to make a drop batter. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Fill buttered cups and bake in a hot oven. Serve with crushed strawberries and cream.

Southern Sally Lunn.—Take four cups of flour, three eggs yolks, beaten very light, one cake of compressed yeast dissolved in a little warm water, two cups of scalded milk, cooled; stir in a tablespoonful of melted butter, and after all the ingredients are well mixed add the stiffly beaten whites. Set to rise, and when light bake in well buttered muffin pans.

Blueberry Muffins.—Take two eggs; beat well; add one cupful of sugar, one cupful of milk, two teaspoonsful of baking powder, two tablespoonsful of melted butter and two cups of flour sifted with the baking powder. Add two cups of blueberries; mix well and bake in buttered muffin pans in a quick oven.

"Soup makes the soldier," said Napoleon I, but Napoleon III wisely suggested that "a soldier could not be made on soup made out of nothing."

SUMMER FOODS.

Have a good bed of spinach to use as long as the family enjoy it, then can what is left for winter, adding a few carrots, a stalk of celery and an onion for flavor. This mixture is especially good for small children just beginning to eat vegetables.

Baked Spinach.—Wash two pounds of spinach and cook without adding more water. Drain when tender, chop. Mash the yolks of two hard-cooked eggs and mix with the spinach; season well with salt and pepper. Line a deep buttered baking dish with the spinach, dot with bits of butter or cubes of salt pork. Beat three eggs lightly, add four tablespoonsful of milk, three-fourths of a cupful of grated cheese, the chopped egg whites, one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard and paprika to taste. Pour into the spinach, mold and bake till the custard sets.

Molded Salmon.—Take two cupsful of cold boiled salmon or a can of salmon, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one egg yolk, two teaspoonsful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, paprika and mustard to taste, two tablespoonsful of melted butter, two-thirds of a cupful of milk, one-fourth of a cupful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of gelatin softened in one-fourth cupful of cold water. Mix the dry ingredients, beat in the butter and milk, add vinegar. Cook in a double boiler, stirring until the mixture thickens. Add the gelatin, then the salmon, mix well and pour into molds. Serve on a bed of lettuce with any desired dressing.

Wilted Cucumbers With Sour Cream.—For those who can enjoy a cucumber without crispness this is a tasty dish. Slice cucumbers and put into salted water until wilted. Rinse in fresh, cold water and dry on a cloth. Season with salt and pepper and serve with thick sour cream poured over them.

Stuffed Peppers.—Parboil shapely green peppers, cut off the stem ends and scoop out the pulp and seeds. Fill the shells with seasoned crumbs, sausage or any chopped cold meat. Bake until well done, basting with melted butter. Serve on toast.

Rutabagas are so often served mashed and seasoned that we tire of the good vegetable; the following will be something to give variety: Cut with a French potato cutter sufficient balls from a large rutabaga, cook until tender, then serve in a good sauce. Rinse the turnip balls in cold water to which has been added a little vinegar, which will add flavor and blanch them at the same time. For the sauce, fry a small onion chopped fine, one small carrot also chopped, in a tablespoonful of butter; when a pale brown add one and one-half tablespoonsful of flour and cook until the mixture bubbles; add one and one-half cupsful of white stock or milk and cook until creamy. Season with one and one-fourth teaspoonsful of salt, a few dashes of pepper and paprika, and cayenne. Pour over the turnips and garnish with parsley. Another sauce which is very good which may be served on diced turnips or turnip balls is a white sauce—a well beaten egg yolk, parsley and a bit of lemon juice.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE FAMILY.

A beefsteak pie is not a common dish yet it supplies more than one valuable food element.

Beefsteak Pie.—Take three-quarters of a pound of round steak, grind fine, using some of the fat. Season with salt and pepper. Beat two eggs, add two cupsful of milk. Mix one and one-half cupsful of flour, one and one-half teaspoonsful of baking powder, then mix with two cupsful of milk. Add to the meat and stir, mixing well. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake in a moderate oven for an hour.

Date Custard.—Four boiling water over one-half cupful of dates, stone and cut into small pieces. There should be one-half cupful after stoning. Scald one and three-fourths cupsful of milk, add, moisten three cupsful of cornstarch with a little cold milk. Add salt and cook fifteen minutes. Add two well-beaten eggs, the stoned dates and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Turn into the individual molds and serve cold.

Egg Night Cap.—Beat one egg until light. Add one cupful of milk and two tablespoonsful of sugar and a pinch of salt. Scald one cupful of milk and just at the scalding point pour gradually over the egg mixture, grate a little nutmeg over the top and serve hot. This is a good drink to stimulate the stomach, drawing the blood away from the head and inducing sleep.

Grape Foam.—Beat one egg until light. Add two tablespoonsful of sugar, one wine glass of grape juice, one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice. Mix well and pour into a water glass; fill with cold water. Use a second glass, pouring back and forth until well mixed. Serve with cracked ice.

Tomato Chowder.—Take one and one-half cupsful of tomatoes, six medium sized potatoes, three medium sized onions. Dice the potatoes, mince the onions, cut a slice of salt pork into dice and fry a light brown. Add the onions, and cook until a light brown. Add the potatoes, tomatoes and paprika to season. Cover with boiling water and simmer forty-five minutes. Add three cupsful of milk, bring to the boiling point and serve.

Call to mind for a moment that a nation's rise and fall can be measured absolutely by its art, that a healthy and vigorous period shows itself in strong, pure art, and a period of debasement and vice in a low and vicious art.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.

The deduction made by our government scientists whose mission is to figure out just what kinds of foods are necessary to sustain the human body, is that the high cost of food is killing thousands of Americans and undermining the health of thousands of others. The reason for the casualty list is that the most expensive foods are necessary to sustain the health. Economy and necessity causes housewives to select the cheaper foods and thereby deprive their families of the important food principles.

The disease which is prevalent in undernourished children has made a great advance in the last few years. The word "acidosis" is so new that it is not yet in our dictionary. When bread and other starchy foods are consumed most extensively, as they are in most poor families, they bring on acidosis. The principal symptom is difficulty in breathing, as the lungs are trying to eliminate the excess of poison.

Such foods as cakes, pies, hominy bread, potatoes and hot cakes should never make up more than half the menu. Young and old should eat spinach, chard, cabbage, carrots, lettuce, turnips, onions, apples, pears, oranges, grapefruit, and other fruits, as berries.

Where it is possible to have but a small garden spot, vegetables of various kinds may be grown and thus reduce the cost of living and furnish the family with the needed food. String beans served with butter, milk, bacon fat or in salads will furnish food which contains a right proportion of the food principles.

It is pleasant to be reminded that sugar is a luxury that could be largely eliminated with no bad effects. Now that summer is with us, a diet of fresh vegetables, fruits and milk in plenty and at regular intervals will not be a diet difficult to follow.

Adhesive plaster is a most useful household remedy for various things from sore fingers to corns and callouses.

LEAVE GIRL TO DIE UNDER CAR

Men Force Her Chum Into Another Machine and Drive Away.

IS BURNED TO CINDER

Tragedy is Culmination of Wild Ride of Intoxicated Party—Girl's Wrist Watch Fused by the Heat.

New York.—Despite the pleadings of a girl companion, who begged them to try to save her companion who was being cremated beneath a burning automobile, two men, both under the influence of liquor, forced the companion into another automobile and drove away while the screams of the burning girl grew fainter and fainter.

The girl, whose identity is unknown save that her name was Helen, was of a party of four in an automobile that turned turtle at Old Mill road and Queens boulevard shortly after four o'clock in the morning.

The tragedy, the culmination of a wild ride, was witnessed by Anthony Kutillas and his wife, who live all most opposite the spot where the accident happened, and Thomas Fischer of 1821 Palmetto street, Ridgewood, N. Y.

Awakened by Screams.

The Kutillas were awakened by the screams of two girls shortly after three o'clock. They rushed to a window and saw an automobile running a zig-zag course past their house. The automobile soon disappeared, but the screams of the girls could still be heard.

In a few moments the car returned, running at a high rate of speed and stopped when the driver saw a stalled car belonging to Fischer. Stopping but a few seconds, the chauffeur started again with such speed that the car overturned.

The two men and one of the women were thrown clear of the wreckage, but the second girl had been pinned beneath the wreckage. Flames burst out immediately.

The girl who had been thrown from the car was uninjured and, according to Mr. and Mrs. Kutillas and Fischer, begged the men frantically to save the girl who was being burned to death.

Never Mind Her, Come On.

"Never mind her!" shouted one of the men. "Come on!" With that he grabbed her and started pulling her down the road. Another car came along and the two men forced the girl into the second machine and sped away.

Meat-Packing Industry Is Most Important of All in the United States.

By SENATOR KENDRICK of Wyoming, Speech in Congress.

The measure providing for federal supervision of the meat-packing industry has to do with the most important of all the industries in the United States.

It is difficult to convey a correct impression of all that the industry means to the country. The value of the products of the meat-packing houses of the United States in 1914 was placed by the census bureau at $1,651,965,424.

These figures tell only the story of the animals going to market. Out on the farms and ranges there are vast herds preparing for market.

And so we are dealing with an industry the great magnitude of which few men who have not known it intimately have even imagined.

Social Struggles Are Signs of Healthy Unrest Which Means Progress.

By MISS FRANCES PERKINS, N. Y. State Industrial Commission.

We want to meet these social problems squarely and not be afraid of them. It is the unknown one and that is the reason so large a part of the public is in a panicky state of mind over the recent labor disturbances.

I admit the expression of these social struggles is unpleasant and usually makes for a great deal of inconvenience, but the struggles themselves are symptoms of the healthy unrest from which progress springs.

People conversant with the facts and at the same time having an intelligent sympathy with the human emotions actuating the protests against the existing order of things, must work constructively to open up avenues which shall eventually lead to equitable settlement.

Roosevelt Forest Experimental Station Devoted to the Study of Wild Life.

By CHARLES C. ADAMS, Director.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt's interest in wild life is to be perpetuated through the agency of a forest experimental station, bearing his name. It was Col. Roosevelt's hope that the work be undertaken in "a big way."

The legislature has enacted that there be maintained at the station records of experiments and investigations and research work, a library, means for practical illustration and demonstration, and that research be carried on in relation to the habits, life histories, methods of propagation and management of fish, birds, game and food and fur-bearing animals and forest wild life.

Upon a foundation of fact and inference through investigations we may hope to build up principles of management or policies for wild life which will fit into the texture of modern social and economic conditions.

Why Not a World "Marriage Pool" That Civilization May Not Perish?

By PROF. PAUL CARNOT, University of Paris.

The last census figures showed a great surplus of males over females in the United States. We have millions of surplus women. Then why not a Franco-American bureau to facilitate the marriage of American men with the girls of France, where the war left such a shortage of men?

Supreme councils and ambassadors' councils and prime ministers and foreign ministers are sitting up nights discussing territorial boundaries and the rates of exchange, but they are actually doing nothing to solve the greatest social problem that has confronted the world since Christ was born—the question of marriageable young women who are destined to repair the war's human wastage but who find no husbands awaiting them.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS

The regular meeting of the Board of Supervisors of DeKalb County, Illinois, was called to order at the County House, Genoa, Ill., at 2:00 p. m. on Monday, June 14th, A. D. 1920, by George S. Hyde, Chairman.

half miles south of Lee in Lee County known as the Mullen Bridge (also within eighty rods of the DeKalb County line) should be repaired by filling the cracks in the east abutment with mortar and placing a small wooden bulkhead at the northeast corner.

The probable cost of the two culverts will be approximately six hundred dollars each, and as it appears from the state law that Lee and DeKalb Counties will be compelled to share approximately equally in the cost of the above work your committee would recommend that it be empowered to proceed jointly with the Committee on Highways from Lee County in repairing the above bridge and advertising for bids and letting contracts for the construction of the above culverts, the expense of all of the above work to be shared equally by the two counties.

Respectfully submitted, A. G. STEWART, Chairman, W. G. MCKENZIE, Member, Committee on Highways.

Mr. Jarboe presented and read the report of the Pauper Claims Committee and moved that it be accepted and adopted. Motion carried.

REPORT OF EDUCATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Board of Supervisors: Your Committee on Education beg leave to submit the following report:

We have examined the accounts of Warren Hubbard, County Superintendent of Schools, and find them agreeing in every particular with his report submitted to the Committee on Education. This report shows that there is a balance of $28.35 in the Institute Fund and no balance in the Distributive Fund.

We further find that Warren Hubbard has been employed in office work during the time beginning April 29th, 1920, up to and including June 14th, 1920, for twenty-four days; thirteen days in visitation of schools, four days in other official duties, and two days in conducting seventh and eighth grade examinations; and we further find that there is now due him $18.50 for traveling expenses and $31.70 for incidental expenses incurred in conducting seventh and eighth grade examinations. We also recommend the payment of these bills.

All of which is respectfully submitted. W. H. STOREY, Chairman, A. J. HEWENWAY, Mr. Wright presented and read the report of the Election Committee on the selection of the Judges of Election and moved that it be accepted and adopted. Motion carried.

TOO WEAK TO DO ANYTHING

A Serious Feminine Illness Remedied By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Casco, Wis.—"After the birth of each of my children I had displacement and was so weak I couldn't do anything I found a book about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I thought I would try it, and after taking it I soon felt better. That was fifteen years ago and I have felt well ever since except that I had a slight attack of the trouble some time ago and took some more of your Compound and was soon all right again. I always recommend your medicine and you may publish my testimonial for the benefit of other women."—Mrs. JULES BERO, Jr., R. 1, Box 99, Casco, Wis.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for women in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots. There's no longer the slightest need of being ashamed of freckles as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get a small ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning, and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

American Express Travelers Cheques if they are wise. The Cheques are useful only to the person whose signature appears in the upper lefthand corner, and the penalty for forging them is a heavy one.

These Cheques form an important feature of our complete service. They are as sound and dependable as any other commodity of this bank, and we cannot recommend them too highly to travelers.

They comprise a simple and perfect method of insuring travel funds. They are self-identifying. You sign them in the upper left-hand corner when you buy them, and you sign them in the lower right hand corner when you cash them. The signatures identify you.

Just as this bank is fully equipped to serve big business in a big, practical way, just so is it happy to serve in many ways the individual traveler. And we believe we are serving the traveler wisely when we sell Dollar, Sterling and French Franc American Express Travelers Cheques.

The Man Who Wasn't Himself

By ROBERT AMES BENNET

Copyright by W. G. CHAPMAN

"I MUST STAY."

SYNOPSIS.—Alighting from a train at Denver a well-dressed traveler is familiarly accosted by a man about his own age. The traveler ignores the advance. A few minutes later he is greeted as "Will" by an elderly lady and gentleman, who stop their auto to speak. He imagines it a case of mistaken identity and announces himself as "Richard Clinton," on his way to the coast. The couple appear greatly surprised, and learning he is to be in town until midnight, the lady, introducing herself as Mrs. Kirkland, and her husband as Doctor Kirkland, invites him to dinner, explaining the action by his truly remarkable resemblance to a friend of theirs. He accepts. At the Kirkland home he meets a young lady who greets him as her fiancée. She is Ellen Kirkland, and plainly is greatly hurt by his assertion that he is "Richard Clinton." At dinner "Clinton" learns that his host is a medical specialist and that he is believed to be Will Lowrie, a young man who had been suffering from a nervous breakdown and had gone east for medical treatment. Lowrie had had in his possession bonds of the value of $100,000, belonging to the bank where he was employed, which have disappeared and of which he has no recollection. With Doctor Kirkland "Clinton" goes to the Lowrie home, the doctor being satisfied that Amy Lowrie, Will's sister, will convince "Clinton" he is really Lowrie, suffering from loss of memory. Amy declares at once he is her brother, and insists on treating him as such, to his great embarrassment.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

"Is the whole town a pack of lunatics?" exclaimed Clinton, his blue eyes flashing. "I shall not go to a hotel. I will take my train tonight as I intended, and—"

"Oh, no, no!" implored Ellen. "Surely you'll not desert us!"

"I will go on to California," he insisted. "There I shall send for proofs of my identity, and when I have finished my visit to the coast, I shall return here to convince you of your mistake."

"You shan't go!" declared Amy. "I must," he replied. "If I stay here, you and Miss Kirkland will persist in this delusion. Probably you'll soon hear that your brother is in the East or abroad. Imagine your anger at me when you learn that I am not he."

"Mr.—Clinton," said Mrs. Kirkland, "do you not realize that it will cause us much apprehension—anguish—if you go away while we still believe you to be Will?"

"It would be dishonorable of me to say," he rejoined, and he started toward the door.

"I shall go and not return until I have the positive proofs of my identity to show you."

"Proofs of what you think you are? Oh! that means you'll never come back!" cried Ellen.

Amy slipped away and glided out into the room behind the parlor as Clinton took another step toward the hall door. Bemm set himself directly in the way.

"Hold on, old man," he advised. "As your friend, y'know, I really can't let you go."

Clinton put out his hand to push him away. Bemm caught him by the wrist in a viselike grasp. Clinton's face went white; his eyes shone like sunlit ice. He spoke in a very low and quiet tone: "You fool. There are ladies present. Let go."

"Not unless you give me your word to stay and clear up about those bonds," replied Bemm.

Clinton made an attempt to wrest himself free. Bemm held him fast with unexpected strength. But he made the mistake of permitting a shade of irony to appear in his suave smile. The look in his prisoner's eyes warned him to guard himself. He flung up his right arm with the quickness of an expert boxer. Clinton was a fraction of a second quicker. His clenched left hand drove in over the upswinging arm and encountered Bemm's chin. Stunned by the blow, Bemm swayed backward and would have fallen heavily had not Clinton eased him to the floor.

Ellen uttered a stifled shriek. Clinton straightened up from beside the white-faced inert interloper and looked apologetically at the girl and her equally startled mother.

"Pray pardon me!" he said. "Do not be alarmed. He'll be all right in a few moments. . . . I could not stand for his laying hands on me."

"To think that you could have so forgotten yourself!" reproved Mrs. Kirkland.

"Was I to endure being treated as a thief?" he broke in. "I regret that he forced it upon me before yourself and your daughter. However, I shall now relieve you of my ungentlemanly presence."

"Oh, Will! No, no! Do not leave me!" implored Ellen.

Before he could reach the hall doorway Amy popped into it from the other side and outspread her arms to bar the way.

"You dear old silly," she bantered.

"That's all the good it did you, knocking down poor Charlie boy. You can't run away. I've locked the front door, and I've hidden the key and your hat."

"Miss Lowrie," he sternly replied, "I will not permit even you to—"

"Growly bear! Growly bear!" she mocked.

He stepped toward her with the evident purpose of pushing past into the hall. She darted to meet him, and, before he could evade her, flung her arms about his neck. He grasped her wrists, but her fingers were locked fast. To have freed himself he must have resorted to outright violence.

"I—I—Miss Lowrie," he stammered, "really this is—is most—"

"Promise!" she demanded, clinging tighter.

He looked down into her upturned face. The starlike brown eyes were soft with tender affection and bright with merry triumph. To gaze into them and remain stern was an impossibility.

"But I—"

"You must—else I'll never, never let go. You'll have to carry me around with you all the time, everywhere."

The embarrassment that had succeeded his sternness gave place in turn to a whimsical look. "I've a mind to take you at your word."

"You mean—?"

"Take you with me."

She released one hand to stroke his forehead. "Your poor head!" she soothed. "There! There!"

With a sudden return of irritation, he sought to draw himself free from her. She clung to him and again locked her fingers together.

"No, you don't," she exclaimed. "It's no use trying to escape. You've got to promise."

"I say, Miss Amy," murmured Bemm, eagerly sitting up, "if I should try to run off, would you—"

"I promise to remain until Doctor Kirkland comes," broke in Clinton.

"Oh, you will? And Charlie's not hurt?" exclaimed Ellen.

"That's a dear old brotherkins!" approved Amy in the same breath, and she rose on tiptoe with her smiling lips upturned for his brotherly salute.

Bemm sighed enviously. At the sight Clinton bent over the temptation. His lips came so near to the girl's that his mustache grazed the tip of her saucy nose. But instead of kissing her on the mouth, he put up his hand to lift her backfacing head, and pressed his lips reverently to her broad white forehead.

"I say, now," remarked Bemm, "if that's not proof you're her brother—! Miss Amy has only to say the word and I shall be charmed to illustrate how on who is not a brother—"

The girl faced the others, leaning affectionately on Clinton's shoulder.

"Ellen dear, call Tillie to fetch a bucket of ice water. Poor Charlie Bemm is still off his head."

"I'm not," denied Bemm, rising a trifle unsteadily. "On the contrary, it was my head that came near being off me."

Mrs. Kirkland looked earnestly at Clinton. "May I suggest that an apology—" she began.

"From me!" flashed Bemm, with a heartiness that forestalled Clinton's apology.

Clinton put out his hand to push him away. Bemm caught him by the wrist in a viselike grasp. Clinton's face went white; his eyes shone like sunlit ice. He spoke in a very low and quiet tone: "You fool. There are ladies present. Let go."

"Not unless you give me your word to stay and clear up about those bonds," replied Bemm.

Clinton made an attempt to wrest himself free. Bemm held him fast with unexpected strength. But he made the mistake of permitting a shade of irony to appear in his suave smile. The look in his prisoner's eyes warned him to guard himself. He flung up his right arm with the quickness of an expert boxer. Clinton was a fraction of a second quicker. His clenched left hand drove in over the upswinging arm and encountered Bemm's chin. Stunned by the blow, Bemm swayed backward and would have fallen heavily had not Clinton eased him to the floor.

Ellen uttered a stifled shriek. Clinton straightened up from beside the white-faced inert interloper and looked apologetically at the girl and her equally startled mother.

"Pray pardon me!" he said. "Do not be alarmed. He'll be all right in a few moments. . . . I could not stand for his laying hands on me."

"To think that you could have so forgotten yourself!" reproved Mrs. Kirkland.

"Was I to endure being treated as a thief?" he broke in. "I regret that he forced it upon me before yourself and your daughter. However, I shall now relieve you of my ungentlemanly presence."

Clinton Was a Fraction of a Second Quicker.

"That depends," answered Clinton, a trifle dryly.

CHAPTER IV.

The Bear.

The muffled ring of the doorbell stirred Amy to agile activity. She bent down to thrust her fingertips into the side of one tiny slipper.

"Must be doctor!" she exclaimed. "Where in the world did that— Oh, there! It is!" She straightened up, rosy cheeked, to flourish the key of the front door in Clinton's face. "Own up! You'd never have looked for it there—now would you?"

"Magic!" he declared. "You'll not pretend you really had that huge thing in one of those slippers!"

Her face clouded. "Oh, Will, for you to make such a compliment as that! It shows you can't remember I'm only your sister."

"Miss Lowrie," he replied, between amusement and exasperation, "if it were not for you, I would go at once. This continual insistence that I am not—"

"But doctor—he'll soon cure you!" she cried in joyful relief, and she darted into the hall, calling, "Walt, Tillie, I have the key. I'll let him in."

The lines of Clinton's firm mouth tightened. He confronted Doctor Kirkland, who came hastening in from the hall with one big plump hand on Amy's shoulder. The physician waved his other hand around the room and ordered genially: "Sit down. We'll talk this over like sensible people."

"I agreed to remain until you came, Doctor Kirkland," said Clinton, stiffly.

"He was going to run off and leave us!" announced Mrs. Kirkland.

"Leave—tonight?" queried her husband. He eyed the would-be runaway attentively. "It was my understanding that you agreed to remain in Denver until—"

"Until I had sent on for proofs to convince you of my identity," broke in Clinton. "When I agreed to that I did not foresee how exasperating this absurd mistake would become."

"Exasperating?"

"Yes. Can none of you imagine how it seems to me? I come to Denver an absolute stranger to you all—"

"Oh, Will!" sighed Ellen.

Amy, suddenly full of concern, began stroking his forehead.

"You see?" he cried. "To sit here and let her—and I no more her brother than Mr. Bemm!"

"No, no," differed Bemm. "Miss Amy never offered to be a sister to me. I'm glad to say."

In spite of the girl's soothing fingers Clinton's forehead gathered in a frown. "This is no joke," he said. "It has gone far enough already. Every one of you seems so deluded that the only thing for me to do is to go on to California and not come back here until I have received proofs that must convince you."

"You are sure that you can furnish proofs?" asked Doctor Kirkland.

"Positive."

The physician gravely shook his head. "Complete case of dissociation," he observed. "Perfect instance of secondary personality. My dear boy, in the circumstances I cannot expect you to believe me. We must all seem, as you think, absolute strangers to you. Yet may I request you to listen seriously to what I have to say?"

Clinton looked at his watch, glanced around at the tense faces of Bemm and the ladies, and reluctantly acquiesced: "Very well, if you do not take too long, and if Miss Lowrie will kindly cease to—will take another seat."

"Oh-ah!" murmured Amy, drawing away from him, deeply hurt.

"Can't you see?" he burst out. "To let you—most despicable of me!"

"But—but to think that y-you—!" sobbed the girl.

"My dear boy," said Doctor Kirkland, "try to be reasonable. As a mere question of probability, here are five of us believing that you are yourself—that is, Will Lowrie; while you alone—"

"But I know that I am not he; I know I am Richard Clinton."

"You mean you believe you know. You are not conscious of being other than what and who you think you are. May I ask if you have ever studied abnormal psychology?"

"Not studied; though I have some idea—"

"Some? Good! If you have even the slightest idea of psychopathology you will know that anyone subject to amnesia, that is to say, loss of memory—"

"My memory, sir, is excellent."

"Oh, Will," reproached Ellen. "You say that when you do not even—"

"Leave him to me, daughter," interposed the physician, and he fixed his shrewd gaze on Clinton's angry face. "My dear boy, in many cases of amnesia the patient not only forgets his past life but also forgets that he has forgotten. This amounts to dissociation of the personality."

"This medical jargon, sir, is, to say the least—"

"One moment, please. Have you recently met with a shock, such as that of a railway collision?"

"I was in a motoring accident. But that was more than a year ago."

"Over a year ago," echoed Amy. "What a fabrication!"

"Please do not interrupt," admonished Doctor Kirkland. He nodded gravely to Clinton. "More than a year ago, you say? Was it a severe accident?"

"Only to the car. I was merely stunned."

"Knocked unconscious! H'm! That and the preceding psychopathic conditions—quite in line with the other cases reported."

"Doctor Kirkland," impatiently retorted Clinton, "certain as I am of my present sanity, much more of this solemn twaddle will drive me mad."

"No, you need have no fear of that. Only you must be calm and reasonable. You will understand how conditions such as yours develop if you will kindly permit me to explain about the peculiarities of amnesia—the peculiar results of the loss of the time memory, combined with the frequently associated phenomena resultant in dissociation, hallucinations—"

"I Shall at Once Return to the Station."

"All of you are subject to hallucinations when you mistake me for that Will Lowrie!" hotly declared Clinton.

"Now, now, my dear boy; be calm," soothed the physician. "This excitability—"

Clinton sprang up, his blue eyes flashing with anger. "Enough, sir! I shall at once return to the station. As I have agreed to send on for proofs of my identity I shall do so. The proofs will be mailed direct to you. In the meantime you can telegraph to your missing friend or to those who have charge of him. But I will stay here no longer."

The cold anger and determination of the young man's tone struck speechless even the physician and the debonair Bemm. Ellen looked helplessly from her father to her equally mute mother. The hush that had fallen upon them was broken by the quiet voice of Amy, asking in a matter-of-fact tone: "When did you say your train leaves?"

"Shortly before midnight," answered Clinton, frowning at Bemm.

"It's pretty late in the day to get a berth," remarked the girl. "But if they're all taken I suppose you can sleep in the smoking room."

"I have a stateroom engaged through to the coast," explained Clinton, his voice softening, though he continued to frown at Bemm.

Amy smiled across at Ellen, and answered artlessly: "Of course, you are old stupid. But I shall need the stateroom, so unless you have luck—"

"Really, Miss Lowrie, I fail to understand—"

"Didn't I call you an old stupid? You say you won't stay. Well, then, I am going along with you."

"But—but, Miss Lowrie, I cannot—"

"Perhaps you can't. I can," smilingly declared the girl.

Clinton turned appealingly to Dr. Kirkland. "This is—it cannot be permitted! Surely you'll not allow her! Send for her mother!"

"There isn't time," said the girl. "Any way mamma never would forgive me if I let you go off alone."

"Good heavens! You really mean to—"

"Of course. You simply must have someone to take care of you till you come to your senses."

He wiped the perspiration from his forehead. "If only I could make you realize— To let you go would be impossible. I must stay."

"Two darlings—my fiancée and my little—sister!"

INSURE CLOTHES AGAINST MOTHS

Use Preventive Measures When Winter Garments Are Put Away in Spring.

INSECT NO DISCRIMINATOR

Woolen Stuffs and Fur Are Favorite Materials of Little Pest—Closet or Wardrobe Should Be Kept Scrupulously Clean.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

This is the time of the year when the little moth gets busy. It is much easier to bar him from your wardrobe than it is to put him out afterward and repair the damage. Early in the spring is the time to use the "ounce of prevention." The moth is no discriminator of persons or things; the school-girl's half-worn woolen gloves or your new bolivia coat with the squirrel collar are all one to him when he starts on his performing pilgrimage.

Woolen stuffs and fur are his favorite materials. Eternal vigilance seems the only successful method of protecting woolen garments from the pests. Garments which are used from time to time all summer cannot be wrapped, but must hang in the closet and wardrobe ready for unexpected changes in the weather, but they will keep in good condition, the United States department of agriculture suggests, if the following precautions are carried out:

Keep the closet or wardrobe clean. If possible, hang garments in a closet that has a window. Brush clothes thoroughly at regular intervals. Turn pockets wrong side out, cuffs down and brush. Brush under laps, plaits, and the top of hems. Every one knows how much dust collects in all of these crevices of clothing. If this dust is not allowed to remain the moths will not have as good a lodging place.

Precaution in Storing. The larger part of one's winter wardrobe is usually carefully "put away" in the spring to remain stored until cold weather appears again. Some people are fortunate enough to be able to send their clothing to a storage company, which makes a business of seeing that moths do not damage garments left in its care. The rank and file, however, still have to follow grandmother's methods and pack their clothes in trunks or cedar chests or wrap them up and store them on the closet shelf.

In the fall, when they are unpacked, there is always the fear that in spite of your care the moths may have found a way in during the summer. Much of this anxiety would be unnecessary if the garment were made absolutely clean when stored away, and if it were packed in as nearly an airtight way as possible.

Thorough brushing should remove all moths and eggs, but hanging for a day in the sun and wind also helps. When the garment is clean, the next step is to wrap it up so carefully that the moths cannot reach it. This can be done in several ways: Sew it up in strong, brown wrapping paper; use pasteboard boxes and seal with strips of gum paper, or place the garment in paper bags which are sold for storage purposes. A most effective method is to pack the clothing in a trunk, sprinkle in freely naphthalene flakes; when filled place a soup plate on top of the clothing and place three tablespoonfuls of carbon disulphid in the plate. Close tightly and do not open again until fall. Care must be taken in using disulphid to keep all flames away from its fumes as these are as explosive as gasoline.

Effective Precaution. Naphthalene flakes or moth balls alone, using two pounds in an ordinary trunk, are most effective for protecting clothes from moth infestation and for killing all stages of the insect. Camphor is less effective, and while red cedar chests readily kill all adult moths, they do not prevent the hatching of moth eggs. Tests show that the following substances often used for the purpose possess no value as moth "repellents": Tobacco extracts and powders, lavender flowers, cayenne pepper, allspice, cloves, angelica root, black pepper, borax, coleocynth pulp, eucalyptus leaves, formaldehyde, hellebore, lead carbonate, lead oxide, lime, quassa chips, sodium bicarbonate and sodium carbonate.

Brushing, dusting with naphthalene flakes or pyrethrum powder and careful wrapping are the best insurance against moths. Placing in a cedar chest provides additional safety.

POPULARITY OF MILK INCREASING ON FARM

Cheaper and Fresher in Country Than in Cities.

Dairy Division of United States Department of Agriculture Endeavoring to Get Children to Drink More Milk.

Milk is plentiful on practically every farm in the middle West, yet comparatively little is drunk by farmers' children. In fact less milk is drunk by farm boys and girls, taking the whole country over, than by city children, statistics show. This, in spite of the fact that milk is cheaper and fresher in the country than in the city. It is said that this accounts for the fact that the proportion of undernourished children in the country is larger than in the city.

To get more children, both in the city and in the country, to drink more milk is the endeavor this year of the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture, co-operating with the state agricultural colleges. During the last year six milk campaigns have been carried on in Connecticut, four in New Jersey, six in Massachusetts and one in each of a dozen other states. The increase in milk consumption following a campaign has been from 1 to 33 per cent.

Iowa has been making a special effort recently to improve the health of its school children in the state by inducing them to drink more milk. The work started last October with a "milk week." During the six days of lectures and demonstrations 31,900 people were reached directly and 300,000 indirectly. Libraries, schools and clubs co-operated in the work, and during the week 4,500 school children wrote essays on the value of milk.

In one Iowa county among 308 rural school children only 114 drank any milk at all before the campaign, and but 5 brought it to school for lunch. Since then an increase in consumption of milk amounting to 15 to 25 per cent has been made in the various counties in the state, and thousands of rural school children are now carrying milk to school for lunch.

MANY FLAVORING MATERIALS

Vegetables of Distinctive Flavor, Jellies and Spices Useful for Varying Meat Dishes.

Vegetables of distinctive flavor such as onions, carrots, or celery; savory herbs, such as parsley, sage, bay leaf, or thyme; and materials such as vinegar, pickles, or currant jelly; spices, such as pepper, cloves, or "curry" mixtures, and sharp or highly flavored materials are useful for varying meat dishes.—United States department of agriculture.

Grapefruit is excellent used instead of lemon in tea.

Old quilts can be washed and saved for lining new ones.

Old glass tobacco jars are fine for cookies, cereal, rice, etc.

A "step stool" in the kitchenette saves carrying many a chair.

When an egg is beaten for fish or croquettes, add one tablespoonful of water; it goes farther.

In making a pie, brush the undercrust over with the white of an egg. This will prevent the juice from the fruit soaking through and spoiling the appearance.

Stock Raising in WESTERN CANADA

is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley, and flax have been made in raising Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Bright, sunny climate, nutritious grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms

Farm Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—Land equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 35 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good grain farms at proportionately low prices. These lands have every rural convenience: good schools, churches, roads, telephones, etc., close to live towns and good markets.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you.

U.S. Supreme Court Saves the Birds

FOE OF INSECT PESTS
By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

OUR migratory birds are safe. The federal migratory bird act of 1913, designed to carry out provisions of a treaty between this country and Canada for the protection of migratory birds, has been held constitutional by the Supreme court of the United States.

This takes us back to a blistery March day in 1919 when a distinguished party of shooters was popping away merrily at the mallards and bluebills in a marsh at Nevada, Mo. It really was a distinguished party. In it were Attorney General Frank McAllister of Missouri; J. R. Reynolds of Kansas City; E. S. Vilmore, Kansas City, and M. S. Bodine and Clarence Evans of Paris, Mo.

But congress had previously passed the federal migratory bird act, which among other things prohibits spring shooting of water fowl. How came it then, that the attorney general of the state of Missouri was in the party?

Well, he was "from Missouri." The Missouri folks have to be shown, you know. And Attorney General McAllister and his friends had an idea that the migratory bird act was unconstitutional. They liked to shoot ducks—spring, as well as fall—and they proclaimed that the act interfered with the sovereignty of the state of Missouri and with the property rights of the people of Missouri.

So Attorney General McAllister of Missouri and his friends went hunting March 7, 1919. Moreover, they didn't care who knew it. Maybe they even tipped it off to the federal game wardens. Anyway, the federal game wardens put in an appearance and arrested the attorney general and his party. The party was arraigned at Clinton, Mo. McAllister took the case into court, asking for an injunction to restrain the federal game wardens from enforcing the law. Federal Judge A. S. Van Valkenburgh held the law constitutional and the state appealed to the United States Supreme court.

To George Shiras III, and Elihu Root the millions of bird-lovers owe gratitude. So do the millions of gardeners and farmers who, with the insectivorous birds gone, would be eaten up by their insect foes. George Shiras, a member of congress from Pennsylvania, began the fight away back in 1904. Elihu Root—possibly the most commanding intellect in the country today—clinched the victory.

T. Gilbert Pearson, secretary and executive officer of the National Association of Audubon societies, who has also a big share in the victory, is a wide-awake citizen and thoroughly familiar with the situation. Let him tell the story of the long, hard fight. Says Mr. Pearson:

"George Shiras III, was a man of means who was interested in good works. In looking over the situation in reference to the protection of birds, he discovered that the states all had different seasons in which migratory game birds could be shot and that that the situation really amounted to was that game birds could be shot in different parts of the country all through the year. He decided that the only way to remedy this state of affairs, which would in time result in the extinction of game birds, was to put the matter under government control and thus do away with the constant and everlasting wrangling of the states. So he introduced a bill in congress for the protection of migratory birds. It was referred to a committee and put in a pigeonhole, and that was the last of it.

"Before this time the only protection law in force in the States was the Audubon law, which succeeded in getting enacted in all but about eight states. This, however, did not prohibit the selling of birds. In 1910 we brought about the prohibition of the sale of pigeons.

"In theory, the state game laws worked nicely, and it could be shown on paper that each state could have its chosen shooting season and still there would be no dying out of birds. But in practice they did not work so well. Take, for instance, duck shooting—when the ducks start north in the spring they are mating and if you shoot one, that breaks up the pair for the season.

"Well, four years after the pigeonholing of Shiras' bill, John B. Weeks introduced in the house the same bill with slight modifications. Nothing came of it. He introduced it again in 1909, and again in 1911, while at the same time George P. McLean introduced a similar bill in the senate. In the spring of 1912 committee hearings on the bill were begun.

"Both these bills mentioned migratory game birds only. Now, there are only about 50 game birds," Mr. Pearson said meditatively, puffing his pipe, "and there are 1,200 kinds of birds in North America. There are 51 warblers alone in the eastern part of the United States. Therefore, the Audubon society urged that the bill be changed to apply to all migratory birds, and this change was adopted and put before congress.

"The bill became a law on March 4, 1914; ex-President Taft signed it on the morning that he gave up his office as one of his last official acts. Authority was given to the department of agriculture, then, to go ahead and make the rules governing the killing of birds. The department of agriculture did not know anything about birds, so they turned it over to a special branch of the department, the Biological survey. Three men of the Biological survey drew up a lot of regulations and announced them to the states. Immediately there was a roar of objections from all over the country, and all of the states thought their rights had been infringed.

"Then came a test case. Out in Big Lake, Ark., a man killed a coot in violation of the regulations. He was arrested and the federal judge for the Eastern district of Arkansas declared the federal migratory bird laws illegal. The case, of course, then went to the Supreme court of the United States. The Supreme court was very hostile, and the case dragged along for several months. Finally, the Supreme court did a very unusual thing. It asked the department of agriculture to restate its case, from which we understood that the court was a tie, and the case was referred back to the department of justice.

"In the period of waiting which followed Elihu Root came to our assistance. 'This may be declared unconstitutional and everything lost,' he said, 'but we may be able to beat it. A treaty is not subject to revision by the Supreme court, so why not get these ideas written into a treaty?'

"Immediately the machinery was set in motion which would turn the bill into a treaty. After a great deal of trouble arrangements were finally concluded with Great Britain for Canada and the treaty was drawn up. But a treaty is a dead letter unless congress by law states what department shall enforce it—that is every treaty requires an enabling act.

"I went down to Washington and spent six weeks there trying to arouse interest in the enabling act for our treaty. The treaty was ratified by congress on September 29, 1916, and a year or so later the enabling act was passed. Then the government, remembering the tremendous amount of abuse heaped upon them after the drafting of the first set of regulations, decided to have a committee to find out what the people wanted, and they appointed a national committee of first a dozen men and later about 20.

"Soon after this in Missouri some men went hunting and violated the regulations and were arrested. The case was referred to the Supreme court, and on this case the present decision is based, holding legal the enabling act and thus protecting the treaty."

This very wise decision makes quite clear the position of state rights when it comes to birds, it says:

"The state, as we have intimated, founds its claim of exclusive authority upon an assertion of title to migratory birds, an assertion that is embodied in statute. No doubt it is true that as between a state and its inhabitants the state may regulate the killing and sale of such birds, but it does not follow that its authority is exclusive of paramount powers. To put the claim of the state upon title is to lean upon a slender reed. Wild birds are not in the possession of any one; and possession is the beginning of ownership. The whole foundation of the state's rights is the presence within their jurisdiction of birds that yesterday had not arrived, tomorrow may be in another state and in a week 1,000 miles away. If we are to be accurate we cannot put the case of the state upon higher ground than that the treaty deals with creatures that for the moment are within the state borders, that it must be carried out by officers of the United States within the same territory and that for the treaty the state would be free to regulate this subject itself."

With the federal migratory bird law in operation and Canada holding up her end—as she is—the birds have a chance. As soon as Mexico is brought to time and made to behave decently, the same kind of treaty will be arranged with her. Then the birds will be protected all along the line of migration.

It is the opinion of most duck shooters that the good effect of the federal migratory bird law is already very much in evidence. The birds now nest in many of their old nesting places in the United States, instead of going clear to northern Canada. Like all wild life they are quick to sense their protection and to take advantage of it. In consequence the hunter, from his viewpoint, is pleased with the working of the law because it gives him more ducks to shoot in the fall.

The judgment of the hunter is confirmed by that of the biologist. The United States Biological survey is engaged in a study of the conditions at the larger breeding places in various parts of the country. A 1920 report on "Waterfowl in Nebraska"—an illustrated bulletin of 77 pages by Harry C. Oberholser—says on this point, in part:

"In its natural state—that is, unaffected by the presence of man—the sand hill region of Nebraska is an ideal breeding place for waterfowl. It is, indeed, one of the very best of the remaining breeding grounds. The great number of marshy lakes, with their abundant supply of food, shelter, and breeding places provide advantages which it would be difficult to surpass.

"It is the universal testimony of residents and of sportsmen that the myriads of ducks which in former times frequented the sand hill region, particularly during spring and fall, have been greatly reduced. This diminution is due in part to spring shooting, but also to a number of other causes, including the slaughter of ducks in great numbers both south and north of Nebraska. The migration flights here, however, are still large and show that there remains a good supply of waterfowl, which with proper protection and reasonable regulation of shooting will continue indefinitely to furnish excellent sport. The breeding waterfowl of the sand hills also have suffered from hunters, particularly in spring. On many of the lakes there are club houses owned by sportsmen from cities outside of the county, who were long in the habit of shooting here regularly in spring.

"Since the enactment of the federal statute of 1913, known as the federal migratory bird law, there has been comparatively little spring shooting in the sand hill region, for the law seems to have been very well observed.

"In all the localities that the writer visited he made careful inquiries regarding the effect that the stopping of spring shooting has had on the numbers of waterfowl, particularly ducks. It is very gratifying to note that after the federal law went into effect ducks began steadily to increase in Nebraska, particularly in the lakes of eastern Cherry county, those about the headwaters of the North Platte river, and at the Cody Lakes. As one resident expressed it, as soon as the ducks find out that they will not be disturbed in spring, they come back in increasingly large numbers."

Some Logical Reasons Why the First Mortgage Real Estate Notes We Offer are Stable Investments

They are safe at all times, during financial and business depressions, as well as in prosperous times. Our serial method of making a specified number of the notes payable annually or semi-annually reduces the outstanding indebtedness without releasing any of the security. The reduction of the loan is more than sufficient to cover any reasonable depreciation in the property mortgaged.

You will receive an unchanging income payable semi-annually. This income will be paid promptly and with no more trouble to you than cashing a check, regardless of where you reside.

Your investment will run for a certain number of years and then mature. The date when the note matures will depend on your selection when investing.

The genuineness of each note is certified thereon by the Mercantile Trust Company, thus preventing forgery or over-issue. The Legal Department of this Company has examined and approved the title to the property securing the notes.

The property mortgaged has been personally inspected and appraised by experts in our employ. The loan in each case has been closely investigated and judgment passed upon the same by the officers and directors of the Mercantile Trust Company. If the loan is approved, we buy the entire issue of notes and then offer them for sale so as to be in a position to make other loans. Our profit is the commission charged the borrower.

You can invest $100, $500 or multiples thereof and are not required to confine your entire investment to any one issue.

As Trustee in the mortgages securing these notes we require that insurance of a specified amount and character be kept in force for the protection of the note holders, all policies being held by us.

In many instances the ground alone is valued at more than the total loan. We have sold these Real Estate Serial Notes to discriminating investors throughout the United States and foreign countries, including many banks and bankers.

Write for detailed circular describing the First Mortgage Six Per Cent Real Estate Serial Notes of $100 and $500 denomination that we are offering and recommend as conservative, high-grade investments.

We particularly invite comparison between these loans and the average real estate mortgage loan, with reference to excellence of location, class of construction, and actual (not estimated) income.

Reservations made for immediate delivery or delivery within sixty days. Delivery of notes to any bank or post office made at our risk.

What's the Use?
Cortlandt Bleeker, the New York clubman, sold at the Ritz:
"I have just come from a spring display of new gowns. The gowns were superb—daring, you know, but superb. The mannequins who wore them were also superb—lovely girls of eighteen or nineteen summers. But the women who bought those superb, those daring gowns—
Mr. Bleeker made a gesture of hopelessness and disgust.
"Pshaw, what's the use," he said, "of old hens wearing chic clothes?"

ASPIRIN
Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Drugists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

Cause of Indignation.
"Confound them good roads fellers to thunder!" grumbled the turtle-headed yeoman. "They held a meeting in the county seat tuther day to fols good roads on us, whether we wanted 'em or not. A lot of us fellers made it up to go in and protest in the name of our free American citizenship and tell 'em what was what. And I got stuck in the mud six miles out and when I finally reached town the meeting was all over."—Kansas City Star.

His Idea.
"Here's a technical engineer writes an article on the beauty of mechanics."
"What of it?"
"After watching my wife make up her face I think I could write something good on the mechanics of beauty."

A nation and a church seem to be liveliest when they have a debt to pay off.

New Zealand.
Discovery of the island of New Zealand is attributed to Tasman in 1642, but exploration did not take place until the time of Capt. James Cook, 150 years later, while colonization was delayed until 20 years before the American Civil war. Colonization resembled the settlement of the American colonies in that settlements were made in half a dozen places instead of being promoted from a central base, according to the usual British method.

if You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best
Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parole Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Brighton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Italian "City of Crime."
The only town in the world which can boast of possessing more criminals than law-abiding folk is the Italian city of Artene, which is known as the City of Crime. For several hundred years nearly every criminal who has escaped prison or done time in Italy has emigrated to Artene, and today practically every inhabitant of the place is a criminal or the child of a criminal.

CUSTOMS FIFTY YEARS AGO.
Who among us would say to-day "I never use a Dentifrice; I never have to?"
Yet Fifty years ago, odd as it may seem, not one person in 1,000 used a Dentifrice—or even a tooth brush.

So to-day, after more than 30 years of persistent publicity of Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder for the Feet, not many well-turned-out people care to confess, "You know I never have to use a Powder for the Feet!"

More than One Million five hundred thousand pounds of Powder for the Feet were used by our Army and Navy during the war.

The reason is this: Confining the feet in Leather or Canvas Shoes is bound to create friction more or less. Allen's Foot-Ease removes the friction from the shoes. It is this friction which causes callouses, corns and bunions. You know what friction does to your motor-car axle. Why not remove it from your footwear by Shaking into your Shoes to-day, Allen's Foot-Ease, the cleanly, wholesome, healing, Antiseptic powder? Get the habit, as millions now have it, who inhabit our, as yet, imperfect world.—Adv.

The Ill-Timed Spotlight.
"Why are you so resentful of your celebrity as a 'favorite son?'"
"It has totally destroyed my chance of being a 'dark horse.'"

Pressing Question.
"Is your candidate a good man?"
"Oh, yes, he is a good man, all right, but I am not sure he is one of the elect."

Planets Without Moons.
The only planets that have no moons are those nearest the sun, namely Mercury and Venus. Counting our own moon, the system of planets possesses no fewer than 27 moons.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED
"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."
"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 25 cents a large box."
Dear Sirs—
"I was an untold sufferer from old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars' worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 3 inches by 1/2 inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again."
"You may use this to recommend your ointment, if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Out of the more than 3,000,000 Ford cars now in use, about sixty percent have been sold to farmers. Probably no other one thing has brought to the farm so much of comfort and profit as has the Ford car. It has enlarged the social life, doubled the facilities for marketing, brought the town next door to the farm, multiplied for the farmer the pleasures of living. A family car without an equal in low cost of operation and maintenance. We solicit your order for one now because the demand is large and continually increasing.

PIANO PLANT SOLD

Independent Harvester Co. Failed to Make it Go

The Independent Harvester Co. has sold its plant at Plano, Illinois and will liquidate its business. The affairs of the company are now in the hands of William Deering Steward former president of the organization.

The Plano plant has been purchased by the Moline Plow Co., Moline, Illinois. Finished machines and material were not included in the sale, although it is understood that the Moline company will furnish repairs for the line for the present. The Moline company's plans for utilization of the plant have not been completed.

The Independent Harvester Co., was organized about fifteen years ago with W. C. Thompson as president. It was called "The Farmers company" and stock was sold to thousands of farmers throughout the entire country. The product was sold direct to farmers. Stockholders were quoted lower prices than were available to non-stockholders.

The business proved to be a failure and Thompson and others connected with the concern were indicted on a charge of using the mails to defraud in the sale of stock. During trial the court halted proceedings and ordered a verdict of acquittal, holding that the foundation of the business was sufficient to warrant the sale of stock.

The officers resigned after the indictment was returned and the business was reorganized in 1913, with William Deering Steward, of Plano as president. In October, 1914, Mr. Steward realized that the selling policy originally adopted was impractical and induced directors to authorize a change to the regular method of selling through dealers. Branch houses were then established in several important distributing centers. In December 1917, a group of stockholders made application for appointment of a receiver and Mr. Stewart was chosen for that position. This was the first step in a plan of reorganization. The second reorganization took place six months later, the business being sold to a Milwaukee syndicate headed by Grant Fitch, a banker of that city. The syndicate then sold the business to a newly organized company known as the Independent Harvester Co., Ltd., and it was reported that capital would be forthcoming to finance the enterprise. But after two years experience the company has decided to liquidate.—Farm Implement News.

REMEMBER the time the first automobile parade was organized? Even the good old torchlight procession had to give way before the advance of progress.

He needs it more than anyone else. It's part of our job, as we view it, to see that he gets it.

Our tire service starts with good tires—U. S. Tires. All sizes made to a single standard of quality—none graded down to the price of the car they will go on.

U. S. perfected the first straight side automobile tire—the first pneumatic truck tire.

The U. S. guarantee is for the life of the tire, and not for a limited mileage.

When we recommend and sell U. S. Tires we do so in the interest of greater tire economy. It is our experience that that is the best way to build up a sound and sizable business.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Cords.

ROYAL CORD—NOBBY—CHAIN—USCO—PLAIN

Tires are often sold the same way politics are.

The last people to wake up to what they are getting are the people who pay the bills.

The bills are getting too big these days in both cases. And the man who is feeling it most with respect to tires is the man who owns a moderate-price car.

The idea that the small car owner doesn't need a good tire is rapidly going the way of all mistaken ideas.
