THE YALL WANT BETTER ROADS

BIG MEETING IS HELD IN GENOA

All Want a Hard Road from Chicago to Rockford, Via Camp Grant

SEVERAL TOWNS REPRESENTED

Senator Wright Gives Instructive Talk—Many Join the New Organization at Once

"Chicago to Rockford, via Elgin, Hampshire, Genoa, Kingston, Kirkland, Fairdale, Monroe Center and Camp Grant" is the slogan adopted, or the one uppermost in the minds of the majority of those who attended the booster road meeting at the auditorium in Genoa last Friday night.

It was a real good roads meeting, and boosters were present from all the towns mentioned above, except Elgin and Hampshire. The latter towns have been working along the same line for some time, and we need have no apprehension regarding their sentiment. The Elgin Motor Club is out for the construction of a hard road from Elgin to Chicago via the Lake street route. Hampshire enthusiasts have joined the Elgin club and are as enthusiastically working for a continuation of that hard road system to their village.

If one has any doubts regarding the enthusiasm of the residents of the other towns along the line, he should have been at the meeting in Genoa last Friday night. There was nothing to it but the boosting spirit, and those from the towns west went home with the firm determination to awaken their fellow citizens to the fact that immediate organization is necessary. There was no division of opinion regarding the necessity of a hard road from Chicago to Camp Grant, and the opinion is just as firmly established in the minds of those who attended the meeting that the route mentioned above is the logical one. The trucking business between Camp Grant and Chicago is all done over this route when the roads are at all navigable; this fact alone being evidence that the route is the one that will be selected by the government if it has any voice in the matter. With a strong local organization (or several organizations) working in sympathy with the federal government for the one improvement there is every reason to believe that some real action will come of the effort.

There were no drones at the Friday night meeting. It was the "booniest" meeting the writer has ever seen in Genoa, plainly proving that the subject of good roads touches the popular cord. Kingston was well represented and to show that they were in earnest brought their band with them to toot the horn of enthusiasm. There were so many from Kingston way that it would be impossible to name them all. Anyway, Genoa and Kingston are as one in this matter of good roads, for Kingston's township line is a little more than a half a mile from Genoa's postoffice.

From Kirkland there was a goodly delegation. Among these were John McQueen, H. B. Rowen, Dr. Field, E. Turner and Geo. Heyward.

In the Fairdale delegation were Frank Miller, John Blake, James Milligan, E. L. Woodard, Homer Jewitt.

Monroe Center was represented by George and Henry Crill, the former being highway commissioner of that town.

County Highway Commissioner Russell was also present and gave an interesting and instructive talk on the subject of good roads.

Senator Wright, who is looking after the interests of his constituents if any senator ever did, was present and delivered the principal address of the evening. The senator brought out several good points, but he emphasized more forcibly than anything else, as a preliminary move to securing good roads, the necessity of organization. That his advice was taken seriously was evidenced in the eagerness with which most of those present joined the organization on the same evening. Seventy-five signed the application cards at once and paid their three dollars membership fee to the "Genoa Good Roads and Motor Club." The number increased to 100 the next day and has been growing rapidly since that time.

There was considerable discussion regarding the advisability of the several towns uniting in one organization, or whether it might be better for each of the towns to organize independently. The matter was left unsettled and may not be determined until the other towns along the line have mass meetings, which they should do at the earliest possible opportunity.

Relative to organization there are now two plans suggested, either one of which will work out to good advantage, it being a matter of decision for the several towns along the line between Hampshire and Monroe.

It was proposed at the meeting Friday evening that one organization be formed, with the head in Genoa (this city being located midway between Rockford and Elgin) and a board of managers being made up of representatives from each of the several towns. At the close of the meeting this plan seemed to meet with favor, but after deliberation later, it was thought that perhaps it would be better to organize distinct clubs in each community. These clubs as separate units could work to better advantage in looking after local interests in the matter of road improvement as well as in perfecting by-laws pertaining to local motoring conditions.

After each community has organized, for the necessary work involved in building a through highway, joint action may be taken by the several units, united in a body of representatives from each club.

Every person in this vicinity should join the local club at once. A number of members have application cards. If you are not personally solicited, ask for a card. Call S. T. Zeller, the president, or James Hutchison, the secretary, for information. Do not wait to be asked. This is something in which every automobile driver is interested. Be a booster.

A NEW MILKER
A new electric milker, the invention of F. A. Gessler of Barrington, was demonstrated in that village for the first time last week. The machine is to be placed on the market by the Electric Milker corporation of Chicago, with offices in the Tower building. The machine is called a self-contained milker, the feature which distinguishes it from other milkers being that the vacuum apparatus is incorporated with the pail and all pipe line or tanks are done away with. All that is necessary is to plug in at the nearest light socket and the machine is ready for work.

SHORT IN CORN

County's Quota not Filled Last Friday, Says Roberts

If the farmers in all the townships of DeKalb county had been as generous as those of Clinton, Malta and Atton, in the corn-giving proposition of last week, DeKalb county would have been marked up with more than 20,000 bushels of gift corn, which was the county quota. As it was, according to figures available from the offices of the DeKalb county Agricultural association the county failed to make the quota by 8,000 bushels.

It was stated at the offices of the association that it is probable that many farmers, perhaps, did not understand the matter thoroughly as considerable corn was brought in the following day.

Those who hauled corn to Waterman are at the top of the list as Waterman is credited with getting 1700 bushels, while Malta ranked second with 1400 bushels. At Elva a total of over 1,000 bushels was received.

Tom Roberts, who had charge of the gift corn project is making arrangements to get the grain shipped out from the various points of the county. It is not known at this time whether another corn day will be held or not, but it is the belief of many that DeKalb county in the heart of the corn belt, should not have failed in its quota.

SOME FILL-OTHERS FAIL
I'll tell you, fellows, it's pretty tough to leave the table without enough. I know what it is to go without grub. For my wife has just joined her 14th Club.

Last Friday was the day to give. That a million or two starving might live.

The day was fine, the weather warm. But what we lacked was mostly corn. Genoa's quota was just one car: Did it happen? No by far.

Twelve hundred bushels, to be exact; Seven hundred bushels was all it lacked!

Some fellows with a great big heart Loaded up their wagons, not their cart.

There were others, too, with a great big gall, Who failed to come across at all. Still others, too, as it would seem, Have heard the story of the Old Mill Stream.

And still another, the big chesty skate, Said "How in the world can I do nate?"

"My corn is getting very low" But he sold the stuff and got the dough.

Another gin' not far away Wouldn't give corn, but would give hay.

Just twelve bushels of each man's crop Would have filled the car clear to the top.

But it's too late now, it's on its way It's going clear through without having to pay.

—H. E. Vandresser.

LETTER FROM A GENOA MAN

Geithmans Sight Seeing, Working and Making Most of the Winter's Holiday in West

Alhambra, Calif., 3-14-21
Mr. C. D. Schoonmaker, Genoa, Ill.

Dear Sir:

I see you have been jostling people's memory in regard to subscription so enclosed you will find check for $2.00 for another year. Now will tell a little about this country and the wonderful trips we have taken since we left home, Nov. 23rd.

We started out on the I. C., stopped at Omaha for the day then on to Denver, Colo., for a few hours' stay, then on to Colorado Springs. Here the scenery is becoming more beautiful; stopped over there three days, took in an auto trip called "sight seeing circle trip," which took us to Garden of the Gods, Seven Falls and Cave of Winds, which sure were some sight. Wanted to go up Pikes Peak but as there was six feet of snow on top, decided we wouldn't this time as we forgot our snow shoes.

We had intended to stop off at Williams, Arizona, to see the wonderful canyon and at Flagstaff to see the petrified forest but the train men advised us not to on account of snow and sleet, so we were rather disappointed again. Next stopped at Albuquerque, saw the wonderful Indian exhibit and took pictures of Doherty (Clay) houses—very crude looking but warm, they say. They build them in a square and have the bake oven, which resembles a large beehive in appearance, in the center and all families use the same oven. At Needles, Calif., we found our barren desert land was over and now we began to see Orange, Olive and Walnut groves which sure looked good to us, as we had never seen any before nor such mountains and canyons and large rocks. It doesn't seem possible such extraordinary things exist. As we neared Los Angeles the palm trees began to show, up and huge palms, both date and ornamental ones, all new to us. Then we reached the land of roses and sunshine.

Alhambra, the city which we live in, is located 8 miles from Los Angeles and journeying to Pasadena you never know when you get in or out of a town as they are so close together. We have seen some wonderful sights, among them the submarine gardens at Catalina Islands, also Busch's sunken gardens at Pasadena and on New Years day the rose tournament which was some sight; could hardly believe there were so many roses at that time of year.

Then Mrs. G. had a chance to go over the mountains in an aeroplane, so she went. She says it can't be described for it sure was thrilling. We have seen Long Seal and Redon beaches also Venice which is the Coney Island of the west and a good place to spend your loose change if you have any. Have seen several great canyons, some of which are a mile above sea level. When you get to the top you find it difficult to get your breath as it comes in short "puffs." Have visited the old San Gabriel Mission, the alligator farm, where there are several thousands of them ranging in age from six weeks to one hundred and thirty years old. Some are trained to "chute the chutes" and will let you ride them, but "no thanks" for us. Also the Selig Zoo where the lion they have trained for the movies and saw how the pictures of the jungles are taken but it spoils the pictures to see it done.

While on our way to call on Fishbacks at Pomero and Hammonds at Fullerton saw a large oil well on fire took several days to put out but finally put it out by using straw pressure. Have called on most all of the Genoa people who live near here.

The weather here has been ideal with a little rain off and on until Saturday morning it rained all day and still raining but they say this no doubt will be the last rain until next fall. We find we can live here as cheap as there, for vegetables are very cheap, also oranges, for we went to the packing house the other day and bought a box for 40c and

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Another Eastertide is near, the most glorious day and most memorable in the Christian Calendar. It is one of the brightest, the best and most inspiring days. As pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Genoa I bring you greeting and extend to each and all a cordial invitation to our Easter services next Sunday. Help us to make this a great Easter Day in our church. Plan to be at the services and make it a day of new consecrations and decisions.

We have a splendid program for the day and know that each service will be inspiring and helpful.

The Epworth League will begin the day with a sunrise prayer service beginning promptly at 7:00 a. m., after which breakfast will be served to those attending the prayer service. A cordial invitation is extended to attend early morning service. Each one attending is requested to bring an egg.

The Sunday school session will open promptly at 10:00 a. m. Brief opening exercises and discussion and teaching lesson as used by classes after which the entire school will meet in the auditorium where the closing easter program will be given by the school.

At 11:00 a. m. the morning Easter service, "The Sacrament of Baptism" will be administered and a reception to new members. Splendid Easter music by the choir. Sermon by the Pastor: "The Broken Tomb."

In the evening the chorus choir of thirty voices under the splendid leadership of Albert Morehouse will give the Easter Cantata "Now is Christ Risen," by Carrie B. Adams. This promises to be one of the best Easter Cantatas ever given in our church. Every member and friend of the church should be present at these services. We desire that this glad Easter day maybe a day of great spiritual refreshment for you.

J. E. Robeson, Pastor.

found we had 7 1/2 dozen. Ask Frank Swan if he can beat that. Well I could ramble on like a little Ford for ever about California for we sure do like this country, but now after I tell you about my fish story will close. I go fishing twice each week from Long Beach and always catch plenty. See many shark and one day I saw at least 12 large whale but as yet haven't caught any altho had a shark on my line one day, and not a land shark either. We have all been very well this winter and hope you all the same.

Yours Truly,

P. S. forgot to tell you this is not all pleasure for I work Friday and Saturday every week in a market cutting meat, and Cecile goes to kindergarten every forenoon; likes it fine.

IN GENEVA JAIL

Two Genoa Men Arrested Last Saturday Night

Thefts of harness and other farm equipment around Hampshire in the last six months may all be cleared up as the result of the arrest of Lawrence Andrews and Stanley Maurer, two young men who have admitted taking two harnesses belonging to farmers near Hampshire.

Andrews and Maurer were arrested Saturday by Constable Harrison H. Ream, who has placed charges against them of burglary and larceny.

Three separate cases, each for a different robbery, have been filed against the two men who have admitted two of the thefts. Evidence was presented showing that Andrews and Maurer undoubtedly committed the third theft.

Held over to the Kane county grand jury the two men were taken to the county jail at Geneva Monday to await a hearing before the grand jury. Their bonds are set at $3,000 each.

In possession of the two at the time of their arrest Saturday were two harnesses, which had been stolen from W. J. Rosborough and J. H. Carson. In preliminary hearing Saturday night in Police Magistrate George R. Thompson's court at Elgin the two waived examination and were bound over to the grand jury for the theft of the two harnesses. Monday they were bound over for the third theft, the taking of a saddle belonging to Fred Bartelt.

Search warrants were taken out Saturday when an investigation showing that Andrews and Maurer, who were going to Minnesota, were filling a freight car with their belongings which included two harnesses. This was at New Lebanon. The two were arrested and because the thefts were committed in Kane county the men were brought here from DeKalb county.

Following their denial of the theft of the Bartelt harness inquiry was made and it was found that Raymond Lang was in possession of the harness, having purchased it from Andrews for $30, and taken it to his place at Genoa. He was brought here and testified to the buying of the stolen harness.

Other thefts throughout the vicinity of Hampshire are being investigated with a view of fastening the blame on the two now under arrest. Reports were that six sets of harness have been stolen at Hampshire in the last six months.

Lang, who purchased the harness stolen from Bartelt, was repaid his $30 by the father of Andrews following this morning's hearing. The harness he then purchased from its rightful owner.

The father of Andrews who resides north-east of Genoa, has offered to remunerate those whose harnesses were taken.

State's Attorney Charles L. Abbott prosecuted the case this morning and threatened to bring the elder Mr. Maurer into the case. The other two have denied that he has taken any part in the thefts.

Maurer came to Genoa several years ago, being engaged most of the time as a farm hand. Recently he has been living at the home of N. A. Montgomery, east of Genoa.

AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS HELP

Valuable Information Gathered by Assessors of State of Illinois

DISCOURAGE FALSE STATEMENTS

Gives Speculators No Chance to Misrepresent Crop Conditions in the State

Assessor's schedules to be used in the collection of agricultural statistics have been sent to the various county clerks in the state by the Division of Agriculture Statistics of the State Department of Agriculture. This is the second year the data has been collected in this way under an act of the General Assembly adopted in 1919. The act makes it obligatory on assessors to collect, when making their regular assessments, such agricultural statistics and information as may be required by the Department of Agriculture.

The results of this census last year were very satisfactory and it is anticipated that the results this year, with the experience gained in the previous census, will be even better. It is pointed out by the Department of Agriculture officials that the information gathered in this way has no relation to taxation and that under the law it cannot be used in any way to affect the assessment of property.

The purpose is to gather annually accurate and exact information on the agricultural business of the state in order that the public may be informed. The statistics will show the acreage of each of the principal crops, the number of the different classes of live stock, the number of fruit trees of different kinds in the orchards and other like information relative to the farms of the State. The United States census provides this information once in every decade, but there is a great need for the information annually and it is to supply this need that the law of 1919 was enacted.

The information and reports gathered in this census, by showing the State, are proving valuable to all classes, department officials say. The business man is interested in the statistics because they help him to distribute his wares economically. The manufacturer also is able better to regulate his output according to the probable needs of the people. The railroads are enabled to estimate accurately the size of the crops and therefore, can provide a sufficient number of cars to handle the grain and livestock efficiently and without delay. Farmers are benefitted by this information both directly and indirectly, it is declared—directly by being kept informed of the prospects outside of their own immediate districts, and indirectly because the frequent publication of accurate and interesting agricultural information will tend to discourage the false and misleading statements by speculators who are interested in controlling or manipulating prices.

The act is one of a number of statutes which have similar laws and in all of them the system is working satisfactorily.

BERLIN SEES BIG VICTORY

Germans Win Silesia, Is Report Received at the Teuton Capital.

BLOODLESS BALLOT BATTLE

Reports Indicate That the Election Went Off Quietly in the Entire Area, Except for a Few Minor Incidents.

Berlin, March 23.—Berlin and other German cities are gaily belaguered for the first time in many months, in honor of the bloodless German ballot victory in the plebiscite in Upper Silesia.

The new colors of the republic—black, red and gold—are floating over the reichstag building.

In Wilhelmstrasse, the still more popular black, white and red, the former German national colors, now the navy flag, is floating from many masts along the republican flag, giving expression to the two strong contrary political currents in Germany.

As hardly a flag has been seen in Berlin since the revolution except the international red which has been carried in demonstrations, the floating colors attracted general attention.

Aside from that there was no more manifestation of enthusiasm over the plebiscite victory than there were outward signs of depression when the British and French troops marched into the Ruhr district a few days ago.

The returns reaching Berlin indicate that 61 per cent of the plebiscite went for Germany and 39 per cent for Poland. The big industrial district is considered safely German.

A number of smaller border sections, including Rybnik, Pless and Tarnowitz, have chosen to go with Poland. The result as a whole, so far as can be judged now, indicates a big disappointment for Poland.

Of the total votes counted thus far 1,011,500 are for remaining with Germany and 368,900 favor going over to Poland.

It is understood that the German government is already getting together the necessary documentary evidence to protest the plebiscite vote in Pless and Rybnik, which went to Poland.

These two districts contain large virgin coal fields which have not yet been developed.

Notwithstanding ominous predictions both by the Poles and by the Germans that the plebiscite would be marked by much bloodshed, it appears that the election went off quietly in the entire area except for a few minor incidents.

The task of taking to their homes throughout Germany the 250,000 former Silesians who went to their old homes to vote required 225 special trains.

The plebiscite was carried out everywhere in perfect order, according to a semi-official statement made here. There is no confirmation of reported collisions with British troops.

The area involved in the plebiscite, comprising some 5,000 square miles, was the largest section of territory to have its fate submitted to a popular referendum under the treaty of Versailles, but even more important than the size of the district was the material wealth contained in its varied mineral resources, mainly coal, but also including iron, zinc and lead.

A noticeable feature of the plebiscite was the influx of both Germans and Poles, former residents of the district, who were invited to cast their ballots. It is not known here how large a number of Poles were thus enabled to vote at the election.

Fresno, Cal.—Disclosure of a girl market, where young Armenian women were sold to the highest bidder, after having been brought to the United States, has been made in Fresno, Cal., by George W. Moore, United States commissioner. He arrested seven of the girl victims and Harrobian Selvian, alias Harry Selvian, charged with bringing the girls here, through misleading statements, for the purpose of selling them.

He Could Buy Her for $850.

by Selvian, where, it is alleged, he obtained the women and brought them to this country as his relatives for the purpose of selling them to his countrymen.

Prices for the girls ranged from $1,000 to $4,000, the commissioner said. The marriage deal was discovered when one of the men, who had agreed to purchase a girl, found that she had been sold to another for a higher price.

The scheme was betrayed by an Armenian who said he had visited the home of Selvian, and admiring one of the girls, proposed marriage. Selvian, the Armenian alleged, told him he could buy her for $850. In a few days the Armenian paid $500 on deposit. After procuring a marriage license and new clothes for the bride-to-be, he returned with the balance of the money. But Selvian in the meantime had raised the price of the girl. The Armenian refused to pay, and the girl was sold to another.

MUTE TERRORIZES KENTUCKY

Predictions of Calamity by Deaf and Dumb Woman Preacher Cause Panic.

Lexington, Ky.—A deaf and dumb woman preacher has thrown superstitious people about Madisonville, Ky., into a state of panic.

She is a Holy Roller evangelist, and is holding a revival at Madisonville, which is a coal mining town in the western part of the state. She has predicted in sign language from her pulpit that a great calamity will befall the town soon, but has not specified the date.

She can not read or write, and her sign language is interpreted by one of her co-workers. The prophet is Mrs. Jessie White, and she has been a preacher for several years. Scores have been converted by her sign language piens. She has gained a great hold upon her congregation, and hundreds attend every meeting at which she appears.

Several people are reported to have left Madisonville and vicinity because of the prediction.

The Holy Rollers recently predicted a calamity at Louisa, in eastern Kentucky, but it has not materialized.

Fair Patient Picked

Pockets of Physicians

"Oh, doctor, you're hurting me." That is what Miss Bessie Alma Reta, who is known to the police of Chicago as the "tonsillitis girl," told a dozen Chicago physicians during the last few days as they leaned over her to treat her throat. Then she would squirm and wave her hands around the doctors as if in extreme pain.

After their client had left, the doctors would find their jackets picked and watches missing. Eight pocketbooks and five watches belonging to the doctors who had treated the "tonsillitis girl" have been recovered from pawn shops by the police.

It is not enough to be industrious; so are the ants. What are you industrious about? —Thoreau.

WHAT TO SERVE FOR DINNER.

A soup which is somewhat out of the ordinary and provides a nourishing dish for the bill of fare is:

Cauliflower and Tomato Soup.—Rub a head of cooked cauliflower through a colander, mix with two cupfuls of sifted tomato, add two cupfuls of water in which the bones of a roast turkey have been cooked. Season with three teaspoonfuls of salt and one tablespoonful of pepper. Cook one tablespoonful of minced onion in three tablespoonfuls of fat until brown. Stir in four tablespoonfuls of flour and add the vegetable pulp and stock. Stir until boiling. Serve with rings of sweet green pepper as a garnish.

Mock Venison.—Hang a leg of mutton in a cool place as long as possible, while it keeps sweet. Then take off the skin and put the mutton into a dripping pan or kettle and pour over the following pickle: Take three heads of garlic or three sliced onions, one-half ounce of peppercorns, one-fourth ounce of allspice berries crushed, six bay leaves, a dozen sprigs of thyme and a dozen sprigs of parsley, all brought to a boil in three cupfuls of vinegar. This pickle should be rubbed into the meat, rubbing and turning for at least thirty minutes.

Allow the meat to remain in the pan, covering the top with thinly sliced onions until the next day, then repeat the rubbing and lay in the pan the other side up, covering with onions again. Continue this for four days, then wipe the meat dry and rub for half an hour in a pint of hot molasses. Let the meat hang in a cool place until the next day, then wipe dry and roast the same as a leg of mutton. Serve with melted currant jelly. This sounds like a good deal of work but it is worth it.

Date Bran Muffins.—Sift one cupful of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful of sugar. Add one beaten egg to two cupfuls of bran and one and one-half cupfuls of milk. Beat thoroughly, add one-half cupful of dates cut in small bits, combine with the flour mixture and bake in muffin pans twenty-five minutes.

Rhubarb Soup.—Take six stalks of rhubarb, cut in small pieces. Add the rhubarb to one quart of veal stock, one small onion, two thin slices of bread and salt and pepper to taste. Let the mixture boil, removing the scum as it rises. Simmer gently until the rhubarb is tender. Strain and serve with toasted bread.

Even in ordinary life the unselfish people are the happiest—those who work to make others happy and who forget themselves. The dissatisfied people are those who are seeking happiness for themselves.—Mrs. Besant.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

The leather cushions of chairs and couches may be treated with ordinary tan or black shoe dressing, the cleanser and polishing wax. Rub it in with great care and scratches and stains will be removed, the leather preserved and made new looking.

The leftover pancakes broken in bits and added to scrambled eggs make a palatable dish and a saving on eggs.

Before roasting the leg of lamb place it in a kettle with one-fourth of a cupful of rice, salt, pepper and one onion, celery and parsley; add two quarts of water and simmer one hour. Remove and roast as usual. The broth will make a delicious soup.

Old hair brushes may be renewed when soft by dipping the bristles into a strong solution of alum water.

Hair brushes are good to clean the brushes in the carpet sweeper.

When rendering lard grind it through the sausage grinder and there will be much less waste. They will do this at small cost at the market if you request it.

Casters which drop out from furniture can be fixed by pouring in a little hot paraffin and inserting the caster while the paraffin is hot.

Scrap strips of old rubbers on the corners or sides of rugs that bother about slipping.

To remove wall paper from walls a thin paste put on hot will soak the paper and will not dry as quickly as a clear water.

A large pink-lined sea shell makes a pretty receptacle for a bunch of growing violets or violets and ferns.

To mend old cloth, lineoleum or conglomatum that has become cracked, place a strip of adhesive tape under the crack, bringing the edges together, then put under a weight to dry.

Use any bits of leftover paint to paint the inside and outside of the garbage can. It will keep it from rusting.

House ferns, if stemmed by setting them in a pan of rather hot water once a week, will throw out new shoots very soon.

BIRDS

Beatrice Whitney

Many robins are here again building their nests. First, they bring coarse sticks and weed stems and place them in the crotch of a tree. Then they bring more straw and clay with which to cement the nest. The mother bird molds the nest into shape with her feet and body. In less than a week, the nest is finished and several bluish green eggs are ready to hatch in another eleven days. Because robins are very fond of fruit farmers look upon them as destroyers of the fruit crop and many are killed each year. But people should remember that robins also eat a great many insects which destroy crops.

Other birds are already here. The blue bird is one of the March arrivals. Hang some pieces of string on your trees and watch them disappear, for the orioles will soon claim them for their swinging nests. The phoebe, which is one of the first fly catchers, will be seeking a shelter for her nest. Will you welcome her to your porch?

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

The "Little Ten" Tournament held at Maple Park last Friday and Saturday was a decided success from the standpoints both of local interest and of experience for the teams participating.

Eight schools were entered, Wasco, Burlington, Plato Center, Maple Park, Hampshire, Elburn and Sugar Grove sending teams.

Genoa played the first game with Wasco winning easily by a score of 34-8. The Wasco team lacked experience and the play on either side was of tournament calibre. The Genoa boys showing decided nervousness. The first five were practically all replaced by the second string men for the last half. In the second game Plato Centre won from Burlington without extending themselves.

In the evening Sugar Grove eliminated Hampshire and Elburn defeated Maple Park in hard fought matches, the victor in both cases showing flashes of very pretty team work and accurate basket shooting. Both contests kept the big crowd of spectators on their feet every minute.

On Saturday afternoon Genoa met Plato Centre to decide the right to play in the finals. The Genoa boys showed much better team work than against Wasco, but played in very hard luck on baskets so that in spite of good defensive work the half ended with Plato leading 9-6. In the second half the boys came back fighting, but failed to win a lead before the machinery was wrecked by the removal of Geithman on four personal fouls. Plato finished the match with the score 21-14. Adler played usual aggressive game and Bartle showed well at guard. Lackner showed a much better eye for the basket than the others. Gustavison and Geithman got into most of the passing. The team will gain in steadiness with more experience and a tournament like that at Maple Park should be the very best thing to put them in shape for another year. The loss of Captain Gustavison as guard will be a heavy one, but the boys have made big gains in team-work this season and willingness to work, with knowledge of their weakness will do much for them next year. Adler and Bartle with another season's experience will be dangerous for their opponents and Geithman and Lackner, while not strong enough to play at top speed all the way, can develop enough to work through all but the stiffest defense when going right. Both should be more valuable another season.

The second game on Saturday brought the climax of the tournament with the meeting of Elburn and Sugar Grove, for it was conceded that the winner would take the meet. The Sugar Grove team, the heaviest in the tournament, outweighed the Elburn five considerably except at centre, where the men were evenly matched, but the light Elburn boys by smooth fast team-play penetrated the Sugar Grove five man defense repeatedly and scored a lead at the start that they held almost to the finish. Both teams after the start relied considerably on shots from deep centre, making a spectacular but somewhat loosely played game, in which Elburn showed better floor work. Both were in fine practice and condition and the match was unusually hard fought. Just before the close one of the Elburn forwards was knocked out in a scrimmage under their goal, and the time-out running over the limit. Sugar Grove scored a point from the free throw line, winning 16-15.

All games were well attended, many being turned away from the Friday and Saturday games. A large number of Genoa rooters went over for the tournament besides the high school contingent with Mr. Mackenzie, Mr. Moore and Miss Irwin, Messrs. Adler, Tischler, Evans, Merritt and Sell.

As the game with DeKalb scheduled for Friday night has been cancelled, basketball is over for this year. The school wishes to thank the people of Genoa for their help in making the past season a successful one.

Comparatively few persons, if the feeble minded and a large number of the insane are excepted, are entirely free from the tendency to bouts of more or less mental depression. BODY BROUGHT HOME

Lieut. Geo. Gustafson First DeKalb county Man to Die in France

The remains of Lieut. George Philip Gustafson, first DeKalb county man to die of wounds received in action in the late war, and one of the most promising young men Sycamore sent to the war, arrived in New York last Friday says the True Republican.

The remains will be brought to Sycamore, and the funeral services will be held under the auspices of the American Legion in which the people generally will join, and show their appreciation of the noble sacrifice of this young man who died that his country's honor might be maintained.

The date and place of the services have not yet been determined, but will be announced in The True Republican next Tuesday.

Second Lieutenant George Philip
Gustafson, Co. B. 1st Bn., 26th Inf. 1st Div., was born Dec. 8, 1894, son of William and Deba Gustafson. He attended the Sycamore High school and was one of the most promising members of his class, with which he graduated in 1912. He then entered the University of Illinois, from which he was graduated in June, 1916. The was coming on, he immediately entered the First Officers Reserve Corps at Ft. Sheridan, and was one of the five Sycamore boys, the others being Harold Betty, Martin Rogers, William Joslyn and C. S. Conrad, who passed the examination and were commissioned second lieutenants.

JUDGMENT AFFIRMED

Judge Cliffe's First Jury Case Before the Appellate Court

Judgment in the first case tried by a jury before Judge Adam C.
Cliffe in the Kane county circuit court following his appointment last spring has been affirmed by the appellate court of the second district of Illinois at Ottawa says the Elgin News.

According to an opinion given out by the court Fred Klahn, a Dundee farmer, must pay Charles Braseman, as administrator of the estate of the late Frank Braseman, $2,400 for the death of the latter while at work on the Klahn farm.

According to the plaintiff, Frank Braseman was in an accident while at work on the Fred Klahn farm, October 7, 1919. He died November

6, 1919 from the injuries received when he was caught in a belt of a tractor which was being used in the filling of a silo. The case was tried before Judge Cliffe in June, 1920 and a decision awarding the plaintiff $2,- 400 was given. An appeal was taken by the defense and the opinion affirms the decision of the Kane county circuit court.

The case was not only the first to be heard by a jury before Judge Cliffe but was also the first to be appealed from the jurist's court since his appointment to this circuit. It was also the first appeal case of Charles Seldel, one of the attorneys for the plaintiff.

The case was marked by hot contest which prevailed at every hearing.

MAYFIELD RESIDENT DEAD

causing complications.

Julia Thomas was born April 3, 1846, in New York, and when a girl of ten years moved to this vicinity with her parents. When a young woman she was married to Andrew Listy of Mayfield township and always made her home on the farm there, enjoying the associations of a wide circle of loving friends and devoted family. She is survived by her husband and two sons, Floyd at whose home she spent the last weeks of her life, and John, who remains at home.

their disposition towards again selling their milk to the company. A new milk plant is now in the course of construction at Grayslake by the Milk Marketing company and the prospects for the reopening of the Nestle plant look anything but encouraging at this time.

BUTTERICK PATTERNS with complete directions for finishing

Deltor is a new and wonderful addition to Butterick Patterns which does for the skill and cleverness of your cutting, sewing and finishing, what the pattern does for the style of your garment.

As the pattern enables you to reproduce in your garment the style originated by a master designer, so Deltor enables you to reproduce, in the cutting of your goods, the dash and accuracy of its original cutter; to reproduce the skilful precision and niceties of its original tailor in your sewing and making; and to reproduce in the finishing those subtle touches, the very individualities of method, of its original creator.

Stop at our Butterick Pattern Department when you come to the store, and have this new system explained to Mrs. Trautman was the recipient of gifts from a miscellaneous shower. After various card games had been indulged in the hostess served a delicious lunch.

Genoa will have a base ball team this summer, if plans of some of the real fans materialize. An organization has already been perfected with John Sell as manager, J. L. Couch as secretary and W. J. Jeffery as treasurer. Subscription papers are now scattered about the town in the several business houses. Five hundred dollars is wanted to start. This sum will be necessary in defraying expenses of renting and preparing grounds, buying uniforms, bats, balls bases, etc. Then it is always advisable to open the season with a small working capital in the treasury. Mr. Sell informs the writer that a good batter will be secured and it is expected that a stated salary will have to be paid the pitcher and catcher of the right calibre. Genoa can and will support a good base ball team. Let's help make it a good one.

A lady subscriber states that several flocks of chickens have been shut up since the publication of the article regarding chickens running at large in the last issue of The Republican. This same lady now asks us to suggest that it would be quite neighborly if people would use the sidewalks "all the way" instead of "cutting corners" and spoiling lawns. This is a bad habit and one that is decidedly aggravating to property owners who are trying to beautify their lawns. The saving of time and distance in cutting corners is nothing. The act is merely a thoughtless habit.

Tottering for 600 Years. The famous Leaning tower of Pisa is of pure white Carrara marble in the Gothic style. Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Ford Ton Truck Cuts Delivery Costs

THE Ford One-Ton Truck has cut "delivery costs" for thousands of business houses, farmers, factories, corporations, etc. Thousands of owners attest to its economy of operation and maintenance. They call the Ford a real "necessity" in their business. Ask us for a copy of the "Ford—A Business Utility." Read what pleased owners say. It will cost you nothing.

Built of tough Ford Steel with the ever-dependable Ford motor transmitting power to the aluminum-bronze worm-drive, with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, front and rear, together with the mechanical simplicity have helped to give the Ford Ton Truck the lowest possible operating and maintenance cost. It is the lowest priced one-ton motor truck on the market. Add to these practical merits our after-service organization, which insures every truck owner of genuine Ford parts and skilled Ford mechanics so that the Ford Truck need never be out of service.

To sum up: Serviceability, flexibility, power, durability, lowest first and operating costs, service, all together, are the Ford qualities which cut down expense and will help you cut your "delivery costs".

MRS. NANCY SHARP, of Los Angeles, who says she received the greatest surprise of her life when Tanlac completely restored her health after she had almost lost hope of ever getting well. Suffered twelve years.

"After seeing the wonderful results my husband obtained from Tanlac I began taking the medicine myself, and now we both agree that it is the greatest medicine on earth," said Mrs. Nancy Sharp, a prominent and highly esteemed resident of Los Angeles, Calif., living at 921 Camulus street, whose husband is proprietor of the Merchants' Express Co.

"During the twelve years that I suffered with indigestion and stomach trouble I tried nearly every medicine I heard about, but nothing helped me and I lost faith in everything. So, my wonderful restoration to health has been the greatest surprise of my life.

"I began to feel an improvement on finishing my second bottle of Tanlac, and now after taking six bottles I am like a new woman. I have a splendid appetite, eat three hearty meals a day, enjoy them thoroughly and am never troubled in the least with indigestion or any other disagreeable after effects.

"Before taking Tanlac most everything I ate caused my stomach to rebel and I would suffer for hours afterwards. I was so dreadfully nervous that many nights I never closed my eyes in sleep, but now I am not the least nervous, and I sleep like a child. My strength has been wonderfully increased, and I have much more energy.

"I just wish it was so everybody troubled like I was knew about this wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

"Cold in the Head"

An acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the system, cleanse the Blood and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrh may lead to Chronic Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. MARIO, NOT RED.

Synopsis.—Vaguely conscious of a double personality, but without any idea of its meaning, the girl Leonora makes her accustomed way into the Street of Strange Faces in the underworld of New York. Mario joins her. Greatly in love and seeing the fine qualities which the girl really possesses, Mario seeks to turn her from the path of inevitable destruction. She promises to marry him. At Ristori's cafe, gathering place of criminals, Leonora meets her partner, "Red" Carnehan, and his associates, and is accused of betraying a fellow criminal to the police. Police crash into the room and two are killed by Carnehan. Leonora and the rest escape. In her studio, Priscilla Maine, wealthy artist, awakes from troubled sleep with a distinct feeling of having her life linked with Leonora's. Priscilla has painted a picture of herself in fancy dress—a gipsy—which has a strange effect on her. Unnerved, and fearful that her mind is affected, Priscilla calls to her aid a dear friend, Dr. Phillip Fosdick, who is in love with her. He is stunned to find that her dream story of the police fight is confirmed by the newspapers. Priscilla tells him about the mystery of her mother, who died when she was born. He sees the effect of the painting and pronounces it a case of auto-hypnosis. Priscilla makes him promise not to go to the police and she begins investigating it for herself. The personalities of Priscilla and Leonora become more closely identified. Red sends word to Leonora to come to him in hiding. Treacherous Inez, in love with Red, volunteers as guide.

V. THE HAVEN.

"So you have come to me . . . at last!" She lifted her rain-swept face from the warm haven of his shoulder, blindly yearning toward his lips . . . and remembered. Fear lanced that ecstasy like pain. With a convulsive movement she wrenched away her lips and struggled from his arms.

IV. THE ROOFS—Continued.

"That's no dick," she declared impulsively. "How d'you know?" "I don't know, but somehow I do. Seems like I must've seen him somewhere before." "Well, if he ain't no pussyfoot, what for's he followin' us?" "I don't know," Leonora repeated vaguely. "Maybe I'm wrong . . ." She was not, as the Self knew that journeyed with her, though she did not suspect its company. . . . An iron ladder rose to a trap door through which they crawled out upon the roof.

Here the blackness was oppressive, relieved only by a dull reflection of the city's glow on the low-hung canopy of cloud; and the tempest had unhindered sweep. Time and again vicious blasts all but carried the two women off their feet. Rain driving in vast sheets half blinded them and rendered their passage of the roofs doubly perilous. They slipped, stumbled, blundered, bruised their bodies against unseen obstacles, their shins upon low copings dividing house from house (for the roofs were fortunately all on a level) and more than once by the narrowest of margins escaped pitching headlong to death at the bottom of some dark airshaft.

Leonora soon lost all sense of reckoning and was beginning to wonder how Inez could hold on so confidently when the latter stopped, knelt, and began to tug at the heavy hatch of another trap door. Leonora assisting, between them they threw it back, descended a second iron ladder into a hallway indistinguishably unlike that which they had just left. But Inez seemed to recognize it instantly.

"It's all right," she whispered harshly, pausing half way down the ladder when Leonora stood on the landing below. "The door on the left, at the back. You know the high sign. I'll be shutting this trap. Look sharp—before somebody lumps us!" She climbed back a couple of rungs to wrestle with the hatch, while Leonora, turning to the door designated, saluted its panels with the peculiar rap which alone would be acknowledged by Red.

For some time she waited, hearing no sounds from the far side of the door, hearing indeed nothing other than the bluster of the storm and Inez petulantly anathematizing the clumsy and obstinate hatch. Presently the thing fell into place with a crash, and the girl turned, looking to see Inez drop to the landing and surprised that she did not, but with a surprise no sooner conceived than smothered in a greater. For the door swung open suddenly, and a voice she knew, for whose accents she had hungered ceaselessly for days on end—neither Red's voice nor Leo's—cried in amazement:

"Leonora!" And looking up into the face of the man Mario, the girl uttered a broken cry of wonder and gladness. She did not understand how this thing had come about, that she should find here the man she loved where she had thought to find that other whom she feared with fear so profound that it was twin with hatred. But it didn't matter; in the stunning joy of that surprise, nothing seemed to matter except that chance had led her at last said nothing of him in connection with the affair, only the man Bielinsky." "It was Red done up those two at Ristori's. Leo wasn't even in the room. Because Red killed 'em both, we all beat it without anybody seeing us except Ristori. He was in the hall, just outside the door, and saw everything. Maybe he didn't tell anything, like the papers say. Maybe he got the third degree and spilled everything he knew. Then there's Harry. He's gone south—I mean, disappeared—and if he once gets where he thinks he's safe he'll squeal sure as death. Likely he has already. Only headquarters knows, and it isn't saying. Sometimes, you know, they have sense enough to work that way, keep all they know under their hats and pretend they're gunning for somebody besides the bird they're really after. So now it's maybe Red they're laying for on the quiet, all the while they're kicking up this row about Leo, making out they think he's the only one . . . Don't you see?"

"All but why you had to hide . . ." "Because I was in the room when it happened. Ristori saw me. Harry knew I was there. Besides, the cops are looking for anybody who knew Leo—and they know I know him. If they get me on the carpet, and then a warrant's sworn out charging Red with murder, no matter if I haven't peeped a word I'll get the credit for squealing."

"I see now. My poor, hunted love!" Mario gave a gesture of decision. "No matter. Now you are with me, there is no more fear. . . . All that is ended! I shall take you away with me tonight—far, far from these haunts of crime and terror—and make you my wife!" "Oh, if you only could!" "What is to prevent?" She hesitated, then cried in passionate protest: "I can't, Mario, I can't. The risk's too big. I tell you, you don't know Red. He never gives up. He'll follow us to the end of the earth. It isn't me alone—it's you. How can I do anything I know'll mean your death?" "Never fear!" The Spaniard had a short laugh of scorn. "Do you imagine that good Mr. Carnehan will remain long at liberty, now that I know what you've just told me?" "You don't mean you'd squeal, Mario?" "Why not?" "It means the Chair for Red!" "Shall that stop me when your life and happiness are at stake? Am I to let the life of a thug continue to stand a constant menace to the woman I love?" She started forward and caught the lapels of his coat with frantic hands. "Mario, you mustn't! You mustn't go to the cops! Mario! If you do, they'll get both of us—sure!"

"But, every word you say proves there is no room for the three of us in this world. It is his life or ours . . . Resign yourself, Leonora. No argument can move me." "But you can't, Mario—you can't! I won't let you. I won't be the kind of girl that'll squeal on a pal!" "It is no fault of yours, dear, if I make proper use of information which came to me by chance." "No, Mario—please!" she sobbed. He shook his head. She flung angrily away, then swung back, her countenance ablaze. "Do you think I'd go away with you if you did that—marry you—go on loving you, even? Well, you're wrong, you're dead wrong, Mario. Get me right: I love you but . . . You do like you say, and I'll see you d—d!"

VI. RECALLED. Somewhere a tiny bell began to ring. At first no more than ghostly echo in the dimensionless and silent vast which lay between intelligence and body, that shrill small voice gained strength of its very perseverance, became a thin thread of importunate sound, calling, calling without pause or pity, till it fairly ground its character into that indefinitely dissociate mentality; a telephone was ringing. The body resting on the bed in that darkened chamber stirred uneasily and flung out a hand of ineffective protest. The noise persisted relentlessly. The somnambulist started up on an elbow, made as if to rise, sank back again with a sigh of relief when the ringing was suddenly interrupted. She lay with open eyes, unwinning, in a confusion of divided consciousness ness aware of the snug darkness of that room so intimately her own, of the rain clashing outside the window, of the wan light streaming in from the street, of the blank, moonlike face of the little clock upon the dressing table; and at the same time living intensely in that distant place where two wills were contending, striving each to impose upon the other its conception of what was right, fair, just, and inevitable. It was as if her mind were a photographic plate upon which two scenes had been developed: one wherein her common self of everyday was resting securely at home, one in which that wild other self of her dreams disputed hotly with the man she loved, in surroundings strange to both selves till that hour.

Of the two scenes, the stranger was the stronger; all her interest was centered therein, and all other things were negligible beside the issue of that struggle, since that issue must be (this she knew the passionate certitude) nothing less than life or death, life with love or death with shame. And she was racked with the imperative need of making Leonora understand that Mario was right, that no good could come of standing out against him, that nothing but good could come of yielding to his insistence, the fruit of his great love and greater wisdom. Perception of her bodily environment was waning swiftly; with all her strength she was willing herself back to Leonora . . . The telephone began again to gibber, in short, strident bursts of sound demanding her heed. She faltered, hesitated, looked back. In bitter resentment, she understood she could go no further, accomplish nothing, till that insensate thing had been silenced.

In sleep-walking, the girl roused with measured movements that cost her incalculable effort, sat up on the side of the bed, drew the telephone to her, and she had said: "Hello?" Out of the enigma of night Phillip Fosdick's voice cried: "Priscilla!" She answered without emotion: "Yes, Phillip." "Did I wake you up? Sorry! I had to. Listen to me Priscilla: I've seen Leonora! I saw her in the street, followed her for blocks, lost her when she entered a tenement; and now I'm on the watch, waiting for her to come out. I had to be sure you were at home—safe—so I called up from a pay station. Are you all right?" "Yes, Phillip." "Are you quite awake? You don't seem to understand. I tell you, I have seen Leonora—the girl you dream about—a living woman so like you I couldn't at first believe it wasn't you in disguise!" "Yes, Phillip." "So now you needn't worry any more. In on the right track at last. The problem will be solved in no time, once I clap my eyes on that girl again!" "Yes, Phillip." "Priscilla! Can't you say anything else? Is anything the matter?" "No, Phillip . . ." She pursued in the same level accents, speaking slowly, as if with difficulty finding words: "I am quite all right . . . I . . . Mario will take good care of me. Good-night."

Without waiting for his reply, she hung up the receiver replaced the telephone on the bedside stand, sighed, and again stretched out upon the bed. Immediately deep sleep enfolded her senses like a warm cloud of darkness, and her soul fared forth once more on its far quest.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Hutchins. In Use For Over Thirty Years CASTORIA THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

SUCH A NICE YOUNG MAN! This Minister Evidently Not One of the New School of Blunt and Direct Speech. Though scare-head scoops and front-page news "stories" do not come often from the department of Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, nevertheless peppery drones who buzz around the bee division of Mr. Wallace's domain may count always on at least one good daily story. Here is the latest one: He was a young minister of the old school. He did not follow the modern doctrine of frankness in his speech, especially with the lambkins of his flock. Flustered and "fussed," he stood before a large gathering of snailing, good-looking up-to-the-minute peppy lamkinettes and in guarded tones reminded them of the pitfalls and evils of this wayward world. He reached the climax of his address and with a blush of ultra-modesty he said: "And, my dear young friends, do you know that even this very day there has come to mine ears a rumor that there is in this very community a band of bold, bad bootleggers!"—Indianapolis News. Good Manners a Business Asset. The teaching of good manners in the public schools is being agitated in the state of New York by Dr. John H. Finley, state commissioner of education. "Good manners," he declares, "not only lead to added friendships, social standing and progress in business, not only are one of the keys to the gates of wealth, but practice in manners is the most valuable kind of spiritual discipline." Doctor Finley goes on to explain that training in good manners has enabled more than one person to retain his self-control in a trying situation. "And self-control," he says, "is the edge you have on the other fellow."

MRS. HAYDOCK SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Followed Advice of Her Druggist's Wife and Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6824 St. Lawrence Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved Mrs. Haydock from an operation we cannot claim that all operations may be avoided by it, but many women have escaped operations by the timely use of this old-fashioned root and herb medicine.

Don't Go From Bad to Worse!

Are you always weak, miserable and half-sick? Then it's time you found out what is wrong. Kidney weakness causes much suffering from backache, lameness, stiffness and rheumatic pains, and if neglected brings danger of serious troubles—dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. Don't delay. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Illinois Case
Mrs. John Hicks, 321 S. Thirteenth St., Mt. Vernon, Ill., writes: "I had a severe case of kidney trouble. I used to be so dizzy I would often topple over. My back ached and pained all the time and there was a heavy, dragging feeling through my hips and joints. Headaches were a lot of trouble and my kidneys acted too often. I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me."

Jerusalem

the Latin Emperors of Constantinople, had assumed the title of King of Jerusalem as a heritage of his consort, a princess of Navarre and a descendant of Godfrey de Bouillon.

No less than four other princes besides the German Emperor Frederick II were indebted for their title of King of Jerusalem to their marriages with heiresses of the first Crusader sovereign. One of these four—John of Brienne—has already been mentioned; the other three were Henry II of Navarre, Foulques, Duke of Anjou, and Guy de Lusignan. Each of the four transmitted the titular sovereignty of Jerusalem to his descendants.

Guy de Lusignan even went further, for he actually ceded it in due form to the English Crusader monarch, Richard Coeur de Lion, in 1192, in exchange for the throne of the island of Cyprus. Later, with utter disregard for his pledged word, he took advantage of Richard's captivity in Austria to resume the title of King of Jerusalem, which was used by all his successors on the throne of Cyprus.

The Lusignan princes reigned prosperously in Cyprus for nearly three hundred years, and in the fourteenth century their house also furnished five kings to the throne of Armenia. Their rule ended in 1480, when Caterina Cornaro, widow of James II of Cyprus, ceded her kingdom to the republic of Venice. The remainder of her life was spent in retirement at Asolo, in Venetia, and with her death the royal line of Lusignan became extinct.

James II of Cyprus was also Duke of Savoy, and it is through him that the house of Savoy, which now holds the throne of Italy, inherited its claim to the title of King of Jerusalem.

The family of Lusignan has had a long and checkered history. It took its name from the town and castle of Lusignan, in the French department of Vienne, about a dozen miles to the southeast of Poitiers. Both the castle and the family were founded, according to tradition, by the fairy Melusine, of the Forest of Broceliande, who with the magician Merlin figures so largely in medieval romance and in the traditions of French chivalry. Descended from the ancient Kings of Brittany, Melusine married Raymond, sovereign Count of Poitou, and the children born of this union became known as the Lusignans.

A later Sieur de Lusignan, Guy by name, married Sybil, only daughter and heiress of Amaury, one of the crusader Kings of Jerusalem, and on the occasion of his wedding he was created Count of Jaffa and of Ascalon. On the death of his father-in-law, this Guy de Lusignan was proclaimed and crowned King of Jerusalem; but in 1187 he was defeated by the Sultan Saladin in the battle of Tiberias, was taken prisoner, and was obliged to surrender Jerusalem to the Saracens. A few years later, as has already been related, he became King of Cyprus.

While his descendants ruled in Cyprus, the Lusignans who had remained in France lost both power and prestige, and were deprived of their petty dominions. Finally the family became extinct, at any rate, in the male line.

During the reign of Nicholas I of Russia, some Armenian agitators, on the lookout for a man who could serve as a pretender, to form the nucleus of a nationalist movement, found an adventurer named Klenko, who was wont to boast that he had in his veins the blood of the former Lusignan rulers of Cyprus, of Jerusalem, and of Armenia. They dubbed him Louis de Lusignan, Prince of Armenia, Cyprus, and Jerusalem. They concocted parchments endowing him with a pedigree that traced his descent to Guy de Lusignan, the crusader sovereign.

It suited Russia's policy, at the time, to countenance his pretensions. Klenko, alias Louis de Lusignan, was invested by the Czar with the rank of colonel in the Russian army, and hailed as Prince—not King—of Armenia, Cyprus, and Jerusalem. But later the Czar declined to have anything further to do with him. This Louis de Lusignan died in poverty at Milan, leaving a only son named Michael. Michael earned a precarious living as a waiter at Milan and at Florence and repeatedly endeavored to ameliorate his lot by marrying some rich woman. About ten years ago he addressed to the head of the marriage-license bureau at the New York city hall, a remarkable letter inviting the assistance of that official in securing a rich American wife for "a prince of royal blood, Prince Michael de Lusignan, Prince of Armenia, Cyprus, and Jerusalem; Comte de la Marche, fifty-seven years of age, and without a fortune." His matrimonial designs were as fruitless in America as they were abroad, however, and he died in October, 1912, at Petrograd, in the Oboukofsky hospital, in the utmost poverty and obscurity, and without leaving any heir.

With him there disappeared the sole and only person who in modern times has ever been officially, if erroneously, recognized by any foreign government as entitled to bear the name of Lusignan. More than questionable as was his own status, he was never tired of denouncing the so-called Prince Guy de Lusignan of Paris, and the latter's son Leon, as utter frauds.

With regard to this Prince Guy de Lusignan, who persuaded a number of credulous English and Americans into a belief in the authenticity of his claims, and induced them to accept the bogus orders of knighthood which he conferred upon them, his real name was Kalfajan. He was the son of an Armenian stone mason, and was educated by public charity at the Armenian monastery of San Lazzaro, at Venice.

In Paris he first gave out that he was a grandson of the great Napoleon's famous Mameluke, Roustan, and subsequently blossomed forth as Guy de Lusignan, King of Jerusalem, Cyprus and Armenia. It was previous to this that he had succeeded in winning the hand and fortune of the wealthy widow of one of the great French art dealers. After her death, he married a rich Englishwoman named Brodley; and it was on the strength of the money thus acquired that he ordered his royal titles and founded his ridiculous orders of knighthood. These last were the Order of Melusine, named after the legendary ancestress of the real Lusignan family, and the Order of St. Catherine of Mount Sinai, which was restricted to women, and which this self-styled King of Jerusalem had the impudence to confer upon Miss Clara Barton, then head of the American Red Cross.

No sketch of the Kings of Jerusalem, past and present, bogus and authentic, would be complete without a mention of the deposed Kaiser's extraordinary pretensions to the title. He boldly assumed it on the occasion of his theatrical entry into Jerusalem in 1898, when he rode into the Holy City arrayed in the white mantle of the crusader sovereigns, and carrying their emblem, a cross. In the almost blasphemous sermons that he preached on the Mount of Olives and in the Lutheran church at Jerusalem, he emphasized his claim to the kingly title once held by Frederick II of the old German empire. At home, however, he never included it in the official list of his multifarious honors as German Kaiser and autocrat of Prussia.

The former Kaiser was not content to ascribe his rights in the matter to descent from one of the medieval rulers of Jerusalem. He goes back to an epoch much more remote—to King David of the Old Testament, whom he claims as an ancestor. Hanging in a conspicuous position in his workshop in the Neues Palais at Potsdam is, or was, a huge and beautifully framed genealogical tree, showing the name of King David at the root and that of the Emperor William at the top. According to this tree, the deposed Kaiser is descended from King David through the eldest daughter of Zedekiah, who, with her sister, fled to Ireland in charge of the Prophet Jeremiah, to be married to Heremon, King of Ulster.

This genealogical tree is the work of a clergyman of the Church of England, named Glover who devoted most of his life to the study of genealogy. In 1869 he wrote to Queen Victoria, informing her that he had discovered her to be descended in an unbroken line from King David. The queen sent for him to come to Windsor, and to his amazement informed him that what he thought he had been the first to discover had been known to herself and to her late husband, the Prince Consort, for many years.

It is quite natural that Victoria's grandson, the former Kaiser, with his intense, if somewhat curious, religious ideas, should have been deeply interested in this family tree. Soon after his accession to the throne of Germany he requested his grandmother to let him have a copy, which was sent to him handsomely engrossed and gorgeously framed. His contemplation naturally tended to increase his belief in the divine origin of his sovereignty.

"I noticed a young woman pounding something against the curb. Looked funny to me, and I could not figure what it was. People passing by started to run, looked again and crowded around her. I headed for the middle of the bunch and saw she had busted open her package and was breaking a lot of mirrors on the sidewalk, one by one."
"What's all this about?" I asked.
"Oh, mister officer," she says, "I broke a mirror a while ago and if I don't break seven more right quick I'll have seven years bad luck. By rights they should be broken all at once, but I could only do it one at a time. And now, please, won't you help me get out of this crowd?"—New York Sun.

REALLY DESERVING OF PITY
Those Who Allow Themselves to Get Into the Habit of Self-Excuse Are Unfortunate.

The tendency to self-excuse is typical of the conceited. They simply will not see themselves for what they are—persons who have a great deal to learn. And because they will not admit even to themselves that they need self-improvement they remain perpetually in need of it.

Are not persons thus conditioned more deserving of pity than of contempt? Even their monumental self-satisfaction should not make people laugh at them. Poor souls! Life to them is a game of blind man's bluff, in which they are forever "it," forever groping wildly, but never grasping.
No truer words have been penned than Ruskin's, "Conceit may puff a man up, but not prop him up." And how sadly hard it is to convince the conceited that they are conceited, and thus save them from the painful penalties of conceit.—H. Addington Bruce in Chicago Daily News.

French Peasant and Machine

Introducing the French peasant to the great value of machinery in tilling soil is probably America's best contribution to the work of reconstruction. The holdings of land often cover but a few acres, and the peasant and, on large farms, that the tractor will plow more land than six horses. This is a revelation, a discovery of astonishing moment to him, writes Herbert S. Houston in the World's Work. And he has formed hundreds of co-operative societies to buy and operate tractors. He has claimed the wheel hoe for his own, and wants to see his tribe increased.

A Great Difference.

"What's the difference whether we say 'A League of Nations' or 'The League of Nations?'"
"Charley, dear," protested young Mrs. Torkins. "I'm surprised at you. Suppose I were to ask you what difference it made whether we said 'A baby' or 'The baby.'"

FACE TELLS TRUTH

Not Infrequently Reveals One's Calling to Observer.

Characteristic Look Is Partly Developed by Nature of Work Which Is Individual's Occupation.

It seems to be pretty well agreed among those in a position to speak authoritatively that associated with the various occupations in life there is undoubtedly a type of face which more or less betrays the calling of its owner.

Medical men, especially in hospital practice, find acquaintance with these types valuable. They may not be able, with the shrewdness of Sherlock Holmes or of other acute persons, to read a man's past, present and future by a glance at him in the street, but they are able to gauge with considerable accuracy how far the history of the case, as given by the patient, is a truthful one, and how far it fits with his probable occupation in life.

Calling must certainly have some influence over the physiognomy of the cabman, the butler or the groom. Each frequently possesses a type of face which wears so characteristic an expression as to make it not difficult to identify the vocation accompanying it.

We speak also of the legal face, the musical face, the dramatic face and the military face. This is merely a broad classification, and the best authorities disbelieve the claims of the keen observer that he can differentiate to a finer degree.

There are tales of hospital physicians who claim to be able to say from a glance at the face that this or that man is a butcher, a grocer, a bank clerk, a lawyer's clerk, a commercial traveler, a stock broker, and so on. It is thought that the fame of these medical men as rough and ready detectives has been largely manufactured for them by enthusiastic friends.

But that many medical men do possess great insight into the occupations of those who come before them is true.

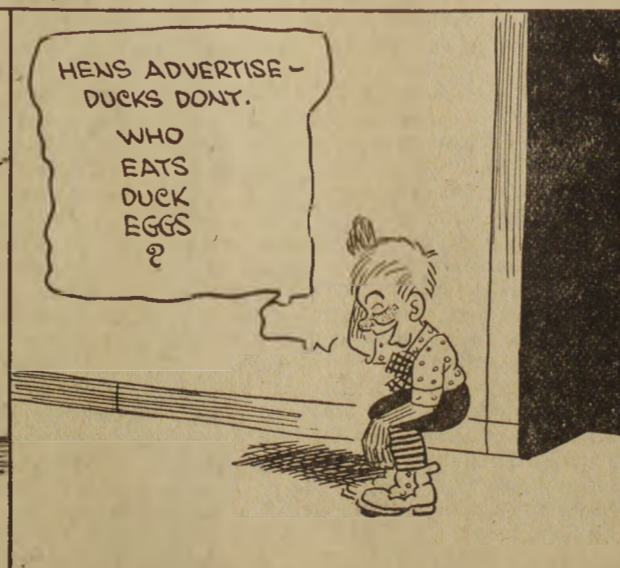

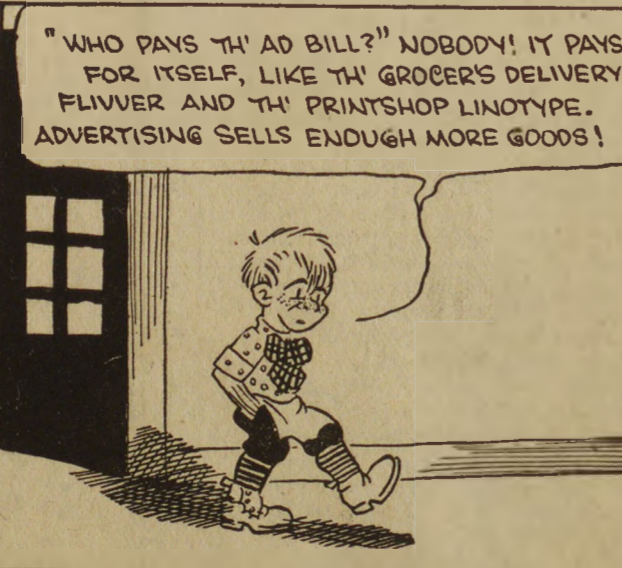

The question is often debated whether physiognomy is a growth of vocation or whether it shows that the vocation chosen is in accordance with the particular capacity and ability of the person to whom it belongs. In other words, if the lawyer does not show the "legal face," the aspiring minister the "ecclesiastical face," the medical student the "physicianly face," the soldier the "military face," the question arises, Is that a sign that they have mistaken their calling?

Is the man who "doesn't look a bit like a doctor" likely to fail because his physiognomic qualification is wanting? Or will he, whatever his original features, gradually come to acquire the type of the profession to which he belongs?

Dam Saves India's Crops.
With the object of saving crops and averting the terrible famines of the region's past history, the construction of huge storage dams in India has been proceeding for years. In the Ahmednagar district of the Deccan, east of Bombay, a masonry dam now being completed at Bhandara reaches the enormous height of 270 feet, and 85 miles of canal will be necessary to utilize the water for irrigating 75,000 acres of Ahmednagar land. At Bargha, farther south, another great dam is being built for watering 125,000 acres in the districts of Poona, Satara and Sholapur. A still larger project is the Nira right-bank canal, now nearly ready, which cost about $20,000,000.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Long Range Fire.
A gossip is never willing to repeat unkind remarks to your face. We recently heard one when accused of this try to justify herself by saying: "Gossip, madam, is a social attack conducted on the approved principles of modern warfare—you are not supposed to see the person at whom you are shooting."—Boston Transcript.
