COVERS THE COUNTY

Congressman Fuller Speaks to Audiences in Every City and Village

HIS POSITION MADE PLAIN

Is for Protective Tariff and Everything that Goes to Make up the Prosperity of the Country Throws no Mud

Congressman Fuller of Belvidere, candidate for re-election from the 12th district, made a speaking tour of the county last Friday and Saturday, stopping in practically every city and village in the county. He spoke first in Genoa, going from this city to Kingston, thence to Fairdale and other places in the northern half of the county. On Saturday he took in the southern half, ending the day's campaign at Sandwich. The crowds were enthusiastic wherever he went, altho in the morning hours the audiences were not large. At Kirkland there was a big turn-out and judging from the applause he received there he has a host of friends.

Mr. Fuller's speeches were all pleasing, not only to the republicans who heard him but to all factions, in that he refrained from throwing mud or in any way attacking the personality of his own opponent or the candidates for other offices. Congressman Fuller is a republican and emphasizes that fact in no "straddle-the-fence" manner. He believes in the protective policy of the party, that policy which has built up this great prosperity which the American people are enjoying today, and promises to maintain his faith with the people if sent back to Washington. The Chicago Tribune has stated that Mr. Fuller has been absent from his duties in congress days and weeks at a time. This Mr. Fuller denies and shows proof of the falsity of the statement. At no place can his opponents point out where he has been amiss in his duties as a republican or as a representative of the district. He has always been accessible to everyone, no matter which party that person represented, and no one ever wrote him for a favor that a courteous reply was not forthcoming. There has never been a bill favoring the comfort of the old soldier which Mr. Fuller has not fostered during his years in congress, and many of the bills were of his own drafting.

His opponents state that Mr. Fuller has voted with Aldrich, Penrose, Guggenheim and Cannon, but the speaker pointed out the fact that he had voted with them no more than they had voted with him. They were all republicans, sent to Washington to vote according to the republican policies and if that voting has made the United States the most prosperous country on earth, where is the crime?

Mr. Fuller has not ALWAYS voted with these men. He was not with them on several questions, among them being the duty on hides.—Mr. Fuller believed that his constituents would approve his voting to remove that duty and did so, contrary to the wishes of Cannon, et al. How much cheaper are your shoes today than before the duty was removed? The difference in cost of a pair of shoes is about three cents. Mr. Fuller asks if any of his friends have ever received that three cents benefit.

The record of years will show that our congressman has at every stage of the game been with the people, doing conscientiously what he thought was the best for the district and the country at large, and no one has as yet pointed out one instance where he has failed in his duty.

RESULT OF KNOWLEDGE

Scientific Farming Brings Money to the Pocket of One who Takes up Work

Ten years ago, when Brother Leo, manager of the farm belonging to Notre Dame University in Northern Indiana, wanted to go to the International livestock show he found that there had not been enough profit from the year's work to pay his expenses. For the past four years the thousand acres of tillable land on the place has yielded an annual profit of from $9,000 to $12,000. The story of how this change came about is told in the September 1 issue of Prairie Farmer. Brother Leo has spent five winters at the short course at the Illinois agricultural college and while there he learned that the first need of the poor soil in Northern Indiana is humus and nitrogen, and that to get them he must sweeten the soil with limestone, grow legumes, and then supply rock phosphate, if possible.

One field on Brother Leo's farm which the editor of Prairie Farmer visited August 15 was knee-deep with a luxuriant growth of red clover. Three years ago this field had been run down to the point where it would no longer produce profitable crops. Three tons of limestone screenings were applied in the fall of 1909. The next spring cowpeas were sown, but were plowed under because the stand was not good. Twelve hundred pounds of rock phosphate per acre was plowed under with them. Winter wheat was sown, and when cut last summer yielded 22 bushels per acre. The clover was sown after the wheat, and is preparing the soil for a bumper crop of corn next year.

A six-acre alfalfa field handled in a similar way produced 25 tons of hay at the first two cuttings this year, with prospects of a ton and a half at the third cutting. Last year a field of soy beans brought a return of $45 per acre. A 20 acre clover field on clover sod which had been plowed under with 1,500 pounds of rock phosphate per acre, yielded 150 bushels per acre. At the prevailing price of $1.50 per bushel these were worth $225 per acre, or enough to pay for the land several times over.

THE PROGRESSIVES RALLY

Large Audience at the Pavilion Tuesday Evening Hear Hinebaugh and Nightingale

A progressive rally was held at the pavilion Tuesday evening, attended by a large audience made up of progressives, republicans and a sprinkling of democrats and prohibitionists.

The principal speakers of the evening were Judge Hinebaugh of Ottawa, candidate for congressman from the 12th district and Mr. Nightingale of Chicago. The former has a pleasing personality and is a progressive all the way thru, according to the many planks placed in the platform of that party. He dwelt upon the many promises being made by the progressives and promises to vote for all those "isms" if sent to congress. If he should ever get to Washington he will of necessity, as will all others of the party, be compelled to install a card index system to take care of the many reforms without becoming tangled.

Mr. Nightingale is an orator of the old school, and altho he gave the republican party some shots without doing much damage, he devoted most of his time to the direct cause of Roosevelt and a denunciation of Wilson.

Both the orators told some funny stories which brought out considerable applause.

BUILD BIG PLANT AT DIXON

Such is Intention of Illinois Northern Utilities Co. which Owns Genoa Plant

(Dixon News)
In keeping with their promises of improvement of the local power properties, if the citizens of Dixon would grant the requested franchises, the Illinois Northern Utilities Co. is about ready to announce their plans for the building of a modern steam power plant in Dixon.

Aside from determining that the plant will be erected in Dixon, the plans are still incomplete. In addition to the property known as Athletic park the company now owns a tract of land adjoining this on the west. This land was recently purchased from the Watson-Plummer Shoe Co.

In a general way the new plant will be a small edition of the giant Fisk street station of the Commonwealth Edison plant in Chicago. The most modern steam turbine engines will be used and the plant will be built on the unit plan so that it can be expanded to meet the growing demands upon it.

The building of the plant, according to the general plans now contemplated, will involve the expenditure of about $200,000 and will provide power enough not only to carry the present Dixon load but also the total load of the district should other plants be temporarily shut down.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly Gray, Tuesday, Oct. 22, a boy.

HAPPILY WED

Benjamin Awe and Miss Sophia Peterson Married at Burlington

Miss Sophia Peterson and Benjamin Awe were united in marriage at the Lutheran church Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. A pretty feature was the double ring ceremony which was performed by Rev. D. H. Schoff.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of a wedding march played by Miss Wilhelmina Pfingsten. Miss May Maynard was maid of honor and Fred Peterson, brother of the bride, was best man. Miss Tillie Awe, cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid and Will Peterson, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

The bride was attired in a gown of white messaline with Irish point lace and silver beaded trimming and wore a white wreath with veil. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums which was a gift from the groom. Misses May Maynard and Tillie Awe wore blue messaline dresses and carried white carnations. The groom appeared in conventional black of handsome broadcloth.

After the ceremony the bridal party went to the home of the brides' parents where a reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Awe. The house was prettily decorated with pink and white carnations.

The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peterson. She was born and raised in Burlington and has many traits for character and disposition that readily recommend her for the part she has chosen to assume. The groom is engaged in the grocery business at New Lebanon. We heard only good reports of Mr. Awe and he is an energetic and worthy young man.

Immediately after the reception the bride and groom left on a trip to Nebraska for a visit with relatives. They will be at home to their friends at New Lebanon after December 1.—Contributed.

STOTT TO THE FRONT

A. W. Makes a Hit in South Dakota as Telephone Mechanic

A telephone system has recently been installed at Faith, South Dakota, the work having been done in a remarkable short time according to the paper published at that place, which has the following to say of the chief mechanic, a son of J. E. Stott of this city:

"Mr. A. W. Stott, who was chief mechanic on the installation work here, is to be congratulated on his excellent work."

Sandwich Sells Light Plant

The Illinois Northern Utilities Co. which has acquired many of the electric plants thruout the northern part of the state, has purchased the Sandwich plant, the sale being voted on by the city council at the last regular meeting Monday evening. The poles had, previous to the purchase, been set as far as both the east and west corporation lines so if in case the company had failed in their negotiations to purchase the local plant the wires would not have entered the city but pass on to other towns. Work on getting the poles within the city limits has already begun, which will, when completed, give users of electricity a 24 hour service instead of the 12 hour service as heretofore.

Butter Remains at 29c

The price of butter remained firm at 29c on the Elgin board of trade Monday.

Republican Rally!

at the Pavilion
Thursday Night
October 24

Speakers
Hon. Edward Yates
of Pittsfield, Ill.
Judge W. L. Pond
of DeKalb

Come out and hear sound reasons why there should be no change in the present administrative policies of the government.

SOME REPUBLICAN FACTS

Business never better.
Wages never higher.
Factories running full time.
Railroads crowded with traffic.
Labor in demand.
Bank deposits increasing.
Everybody busy and hopeful.
Why change when all's well?

The policies of any party, in operation, regulate the times. This is a fact or there would be no method in the arguments put up by any party. It is the hope for improvement which gives birth to a party and prompts that party to hustle. The republican party was born with an idea of bettering the conditions of the country. Has it fulfilled its mission? Will you listen to the argument put up by the opponents in that the republican party has outlived its usefulness? That party is in power today; the county is prospering as never before, under a republican administration. If the policies of a party have anything to do with the times (which you must concede) what is the matter with the present? Past and present experiences have proven that the tariff more than anything else governs the welfare of the nation. We know the attitude of the democrats on this question and just what democratic manipulations of the tariff means. The Bull Moosers will tell you that the tariff question as applied to prosperity is merely a campaign cry and not substantial as an argument, and this despite the fact that nearly all the present Bull Moosers were until a few weeks ago advocates of protective tariff and for years used it as the fundamental principles of their republican faith. In their great enthusiasm for the "isms" which Roosevelt has advocated they have forgotten the real foundation of the country's prosperity and their own comfort. This neglect means that while they are shouting for the big stick the tariff meddlers will slip in, unless they come to a full realization of the facts before they leave the voting booth on the 5th of November. If the dissatisfied republicans, now known as progressives, had devoted the same energy as republicans in the past, they could have accomplished the so-called reforms they desire without placing in danger those great principles which mean so much to the manufacturer, the laborer, the salaried man and the farmer.

AWE WINS AGAIN

Gets Decision in Appellate Court Against C. M. & St. P. Railroad

The appellate court last week rendered its decision in the case of Awe vs. C. M. & St. P. Railway Co., upholding the decision of the circuit court, Mr. Awe getting a judgement for $499.00.

This case has been in the courts for some time and it is to be hoped that it is now settled for all time.

On the 13th of January, 1908, some of B. C. Awe's horses got onto the right-of-way of the railway company and were killed. Of course the question before the court was to decide whether the fence was down thru the negligence of the complainant or the defendant, their being no argument as to its being down at the time the horses went thru. In the fall of the same year sparks from a passing locomotive caused a fire in a meadow owned by Mr. Awe and he also put in a claim for damages in this case.

The case was first tried in the fall of 1910, Mr. Awe at that time getting a verdict and the damages being placed at $497.00. A new trial was demanded and granted, the complainant again getting the decision, and the amount of damages this time being placed at $499.00. This suit came off in the fall of 1911 and it was this decision which was sustained by the appellate court last week.

Filling Silo, Fatally Injured

While operating a silage cutting machine near Rockford last Friday John W. McCammond suffered injuries which cost him his life. McCammond was in the act of oiling the machine when in some manner he slipped and in attempting to recover his equilibrium thrust his arm into the fan box. These fans revolve at a terrific speed, forcing the silage to the top of the silo. The instant his arm entered the opening it was torn off at the elbow. He died several hours later at the hospital from loss of blood.

White's Duroc Reds Still Lead

W. R. White received sixteen blue ribbons out of a possible twenty at the Inter-state Fair at Spokane, Wash., this month with his exhibit of Duroc Red swine. This was a remarkable record considering the sharp competition which he met at Spokane. He left but four blue ribbons to be divided among five or six other breeders. At the state fair at North Yakima Mr. White took everything. He is a son of Wm. R. White of this city and resides at Sunnyside, Wash.

Tallest Concrete Silo

The tallest concrete silo in the state of Illinois is being built by William Warford of Geneva, on the William George farm south of Mill Creek and known as the Brookline farm. The silo itself is 60 feet high and will have on top of it a water tank 12 feet high and above that a Grecian border 4 feet high. The next highest silo is at the Wilson Bros. farm at Sugar Grove and that also was built by Mr. Warford's men. It is 64 feet high.

A Big Petition

It has finally leaked out that over 300,000 Woodmen asked by petition for the referendum vote on the increased rates question. The required number was ten percent of the membership, or about 130,000, so that over twice the number necessary was obtained by the insurgents.

Show at Genoa Opera House Saturday night.

GENOA OPERA HOUSE

New Name for the Pavilion in its Present Remodeled Condition

SOON READY FOR BIG OPENING

New Stage and New Scenery Being Installed with Elaborate Electric Wiring, and Every Convenience for Handling of Properties

"The Genoa Opera House" hereafter, it you please. The name "Pavilion" has been relegated to the past and the popular amusement house has been placed under the more dignified name.

The Genoa Opera House is now one of the best in the county and will be the scene of many fine entertainments in the future if eternal vigilance on the part of the management has anything to do with it. Messrs. Quansstrong and Vandresser have established a rule that no "barn stormers" will be leased the house unless they can show that they have the goods which will please the people. There are bound to times, however, despite the best intentions of the management of any play house, when one will be slipped over on them. It will be due to misrepresentations if it happens.

The date for the big opening of the Opera House has not been settled, but in the near future a first class attraction will be advertised.

The stage is about as large as any in the county, while the scenery is all new and there is plenty of it, so arranged for the best advantage of any kind of a play or entertainment that may be put on. Watch for announcement of the opening date.

GENOA BOY TO WED

Irvine Crawford will Marry a Minneapolis Girl on the 29th

Invitations have been received by Genoa people to a wedding to be held in Minneapolis on the 29th of this month, the contracting parties being Mr. Irvine R. Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Crawford of this city, and Miss Mary Etta Halfpenny.

Easy To Run A Newspaper

To run a newspaper all a fellow has to do is to be able to write poems, discuss the tariff and money questions, umpire a baseball game, report a wedding, saw wood, describe a fire so that the readers will shed their wraps, make $1 do the work of $10, shine at a dance, measure calico, abuse the liquor habit, test whisky, subscribe to charity, go without meals, attack free silver, wear diamonds, invent advertisements, sneer at snobbish, overlook scandal, appraise babies, delight pumpkin raisers, minister to the afflicted, heal the disgruntled, fight to a finish, set type, mold opinion, sweep the office and stand in with everybody and everything.—The Wash Pearl, Palestine, Mo.

Voting Machine Tested

The International voting machine, of which J. A. Patterson of this city is agent for Illinois and South Dakota, was given a thoro test at Belvidere last Saturday when a presidential straw vote was taken. The machine worked to perfection, many of those who were opposed to the new proposition at first becoming converts. Over four hundred votes were cast and the full count was given out ninety seconds after the polls were closed. Roosevelt received a plurality of the votes cast with Taft second.

A ROMANCE

SYNOPSIS.

Garrett Coast, a young man of New York City, meets Douglas Blackstock, who invites him to a card party. He accepts, although he dislikes Blackstock, the reason being that both are in love with Katherine Thaxter. Coast fails to convince her that Blackstock is unworthy of her friendship. At the party Coast meets two men, Dundas and Van Tuyl. There is a quarrel, and Blackstock shoots Van Tuyl dead. Coast struggles to wrest the weapon from him, but the police discover them. Coast is arrested for murder. He is convicted, but as he begins his sentence, Dundas names Blackstock as the murderer and kills himself. Coast becomes free, but Blackstock has married Katherine Thaxter and fled. Coast purchases a yacht and while sailing sees a man thrown from a distant boat. He rescues the fellow who is named Appleyard. They arrive at a lonely island, known as No Man's Land. Coast starts out to explore the place and comes upon some deserted buildings. He discovers a man dead. Upon going further and approaching a house he sees Katherine Thaxter, who explains that her husband, under the name of Black, has bought the island. He is blind, a wireless operator and has a station there. Coast informs her that her husband murdered Van Tuyl. Coast sees Blackstock and some Chinamen burying a man. They fire at him, but he is rescued by Appleyard, who sets him to the Echo in safety, and there he reveals that he is a secret service man and has been watching the crowd on the island, suspecting they are criminals. Coast is anxious to fathom the mysteries of No Man's Land, and is determined to save Katherine. Appleyard believes that Black and his gang make a shield of the wireless station to conduct a smuggling business. Coast penetrates to the lair of Blackstock's disguise. Katherine enters the room and passes him a note which tells Coast that neither his life or her own are safe. Coast feels that Blackstock suspects him. Appleyard and the Echo disappear. Coast assures Katherine of his protection, and she informs him that they are to abandon the island immediately. The blind man and his coolie servant overpower Coast.

"But this boat—you say you have found it—the row-boat?" Coast demanded excitedly.

"Yes. When I had called Chang, I went down to the beach. I wanted to be alone, so that I might think. Today has been dreadful to me—alone there with him, the man I was married to, knowing he was a murderer; always fearing he suspected and trying to behave as if nothing had happened."

Coast folded her close. "I know, I know," he said softly.

At their feet the dog stirred restlessly, whimpering; and alarmed, the woman deftly disengaged herself, with a terrified glance up the straggling, deserted street. But still they were gratefully if desperately alone and unwatched.

"Then—the shock of being told we were to leave the island . . . I wanted to think . . . I went west along the beach, without noticing—some distance beyond the western point. Then suddenly I found the boat, drawn up close under the bluff, invisible from above. . . . At first I thought it meant Mr. Power had come back, and then I saw how unlikely that was, and tried to explain it. And suddenly it came to me—the real meaning of it. And I hurried to find you . . ."

"Thank God!" said Coast.

She looked up, wondering at his tone.

"I mean it's one way out," he said soberly; "a mighty slim chance—but yet a chance; I mean, the boat. I've been puzzling all along—if worst came to worst, there was the catboat—but how to get you aboard her? You couldn't swim that far . . ." She shook her head. "I could; but even then would it be possible to work her inshore and take you aboard unobserved? For if they saw us, I'd be under fire and . . . Blackstock has my pistol," he ended lamely.

She uttered a low cry of distress; but he could only shake his head in melancholy confirmation of the tidings, detailing the way Blackstock had seized the weapon.

"But now," he wound up with a sorry show of optimism, "it's another story. With the rowboat, we can get off. As things stand, Appleyard . . . Well, we'd better not risk waiting for him. The cat flies out of easy range, and if they try to swim out to stop us, I can beat them off with a bathhook or an oar. I think we can make it—at least, it's worth trying. I'll go now and have a look at that boat."

She drew a deep breath, with a nod endorsing this forlorn hope. "Very well," she said tersely. "Go, then. I must hurry back, for fear he may miss me. Yes, I can brave it out; don't worry—I shan't let him suspect. And there's another reason," she continued stubbornly, when he tried to object; "I can get you a revolver if I go back. Yes, my own. I have it in my trunk; I'm sure he doesn't know of it, for I never thought to show it him. It is loaded, too; and I can get it easily. . . . Now I will go."

"Very well," he consented reluctantly. "They won't miss me, that's sure; but you . . . Try to slip away about dusk. Make some excuse, and—"

"I'll be waiting here, all prepared, and make sure of that revolver, first thing you get back. Take care of yourself above all things. . . . Oh, don't worry about me; he doesn't; with my fangs drawn, I'm no longer a factor in his calculations. . . . Go, then, and—God keep you, Katherine."

He could imagine the effort that her brave smile at parting cost her. . . . Unsmiling, somberly thoughtful, he watched her away, then hurried down to the beach.

Ten minutes of steady walking brought him to the place where he had bathed that morning—ages ago! A scant hundred feet further on, at the very foot of the bluff that arched a slightly concave face above it, lay a rowboat, bottom up, screened by a huge boulder. Hope palpitant in his bosom, leaping and dying like a candle in the wind, he hastened to it, bent over, hands beneath the thwart, and stood it on its side. A low cry of disappointment sighed out from his lips. He let the boat fall back to its original position.

There were neither oars nor rowlocks. Despair blackened the sky for him. He swung about mechanically, in a daze of frustrated hope, and started back, plodding heavily as with weighted feet.

Fifty yards away from the boat, a resounding crash behind him brought him to the about face with a start. Whether by accident of nature or human design a portion of the overhanging bluff, just at its verge, had given way, precipitating upon the boat, in a cloud of pebbles, earth and dust, a rock several hundred pounds in weight; one entire side of the dory had been crushed in.

Coast's gaze ranged upward. Along the edge of the bluff nothing moved. He listened intently. Not a sound.

A pale smile edged his troubled lips. "Check!" he said; and with a shrug resumed the backward way.

Unheeded at his heels the blind dog

I Wanted to Think.

dragged, muzzle and tail adroop, uttering now and then a wailing whine so faint that it seemed hardly more than a sigh.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Evening was advancing in utter calm when Coast regained the beach before the deserted village. The wind had died away to mere vagrant breaths, barely strong enough to darken that dully polished, unquiet floor of water, widening in loneliness from those desolate, fog-bound shores.

Pausing beside the beached catboat Coast stared hungrily at the little vessel off shore, gently swinging at its mooring. How to reach her, how make use of her if needs must? . . . He shook his head in doubt, strongly assured now that he would set foot upon her decks only through exercise of force.

His hopes reverted now to Appleyard as the last resort. Without the little man and the Echo—or some other boat—he was powerless, a figure for the mirth of his enemies.

At his feet the blind dog crouched, motionless as stone, seeming to search the infinite with the uninking stare of its dead, colorless eyes. . . . Abruptly a sound of pelting feet transformed the scene. The blind dog lifted up with a jump and faced round, growls, rumbling in its throat. Coast turned, startled and apprehensive.

Down the way to the beach Chang was running at a curious, outlandish jog-trot, head low between his broad, gaunt shoulders. Apparently he was heading directly for Coast.

With a little thrill of fear the American glanced round for some means of defending himself. He had no doubt that the Chinaman had been commissioned to dispose of him even as poor Power had been done away with. In a sudden flush of anger he laid hold of the first thing that caught his eye—which happened to be the half rotted tiller of the catboat, a heavy and formidable club if it did not break with the initial blow—and moved a pace or two forward, holding himself in a position of defence.

But within a hundred yards the Chinaman swerved widely, then held on steadily toward the northern sand spit. A moment or two later he arrived at the water's edge, and while Coast stared half stupefied, stopped and stripped to his linen drawers, then took to the water, wading out until he lost footing, then swimming with long, powerful, overhand strokes, straight off for the catboat.

Watching the round, shaven poll with its colled pigtail cut swiftly through the glimmering silvery sheet of water, Coast lost himself in anxious speculation until recalled by a quick movement of the dog at his side, accompanied by a deep-throated growl. He wheeled then to discover Blackstock close upon them, his burly body swaying heavily as he came on at a moderate pace.

A second growl, that more resembled an angry roar, brought the man to a standstill, with a hand moving nervously toward the side pocket of his coat, in which a firearm sagged visibly.

"If you're on speaking terms with that brute," said the man brusquely, "call him off before I take a pot-shot at him."

"Keep your hand clear of that pocket," said Coast sharply, advancing, "or I'll take a chance at you myself."

"You?" Blackstock's thick lips curved, contemptuous. "Take your chance, by all means, with that silly, worm-eaten tiller, if you've got the nerve; but call off that dog, or I'll shoot him dead. I want a little talk with you."

Coast, without ceasing to watch the man, for fear of treachery, had stepped to the dog's side and caught his fingers in an aged and weather-worn strap round its throat, before he appreciated the full significance of Blackstock's words. Then his jaw dropped and his eyes widened.

"FUR SETS" OF PLUSH

SOLVES PROBLEM OF ACHIEVING RICHNESS WITH ECONOMY.

With Proper Shade of Material the Effect Desired May Be Achieved Without an Undue Strain on the Family Purse.

It is impossible not to see that the most extreme of the present fashions are only intended for the rich. To begin with, the various suits, gowns, hats and muff sets, with that flashing something we have come to know as "chic" are all too elegant and startling for any but the most fashionable thoroughfares and, nine times out of ten, they seem to need some species of equipage as well. It is only the fairly simple tailored costume that will dare to pick its way along common paths, and even then it will be remarked if it is in the latest agony, for the most somber tailor makes are now decorated with coat trimmings in rich eastern colors and fabrics, and, to be up to date, it must still hamper locomotion a good deal. In other words, despite a little tendency toward an effort at drapery, despite a side slashing here and there, the walking skirt is still first cousin to the pillow case the smartness of plush offers her the very best possible solution of the problem of the needed fur set—for who can be properly dressed in winter without a muff and neckpiece? And whether it is of a real fur or an imitation fur matters little now, for so far as dress materials go we are at the age of make-believe. So if you are needing these cozy muffings which give so charming a winter stamp to the plainest suit, go and look at the plush fabrics and cut the accessories according to the set in the illustration.

Here a plain seal plush is used in a shade of taupe called "eclipse," one of the vaguer, more shadowy tones. The scarf of the set is straight and has bias ends, which last feature is matched by a bias trim of the flap of the pillow muff. The pillow style, by the way, is still eminently smart for muffs and nothing is easier to make at home than such a muffing; in fact, fabric muffs are rarely in any other form.

The edge of the set is of marabout in the same shade of taupe, and despite its delicacy this feather trimming is an admirable substitute for fur and wears very well.

A set like this in similar fabrics, or of broadtail plush, could be got up for fifteen dollars, while a mole set, which it costs very cleverly counterfeiters, would cost a hundred dollars or a hundred and fifty.

TO MEND KNIT UNDERWEAR

Crochet Needle, in Combination With Embroidery Frame, Will Be Found Most Effective.

A crochet needle is a good thing to mend knit underwear with. To do this, place the worn portion in an embroidery frame; then, with thread to suit the mesh of the garment, wool, silk or cotton, pick up the ends of the stitches where they are broken off and unite them, working back and forth until the holes are filled in evenly and smoothly. Perhaps the neck of the underwear has stretched in the washing until it is all out of shape; in that case run a drawing around the neck, wet it and draw it into place; then when it is dry it will be the proper size. You may then crochet a neat heading in place of the one which has worn away; and if the buttonholes have worn out, rip off the old facing in the front and stitch on in its place a new strip of sateen. Sew the old holes together as closely as you can to their original size and shape, then catch them down to the sateen and cut that to fit; then work the hole as you would if it were a new one.

Fringed Four-in-Hands.
Some of the prettiest four-in-hands that ever were come in two contrasting shades of crepe de chine. Some are fringed—and such pretty knotted fringe as it is! These may be had in solid color, though the arrangement of two stripes lengthwise is decidedly smart. These the college girl wants surely.

Lace Insertion.
When lace insertion is set crosswise in a thin skirt the weight of the cloth below soon causes it to tear. This may be remedied by putting a piece of net a little wider than the insertion back of it. The net strengthens the insertion, but does not detract from its daintiness.

MUTTON IN REVOLT SWIMS TO SAFETY

Captain Kichner's Ram Starts Riot on New York Pier—Upsets Small Boat.

ESCAPES THE KNIFE

Efforts of a Ship's Commanding Officer to Get the Better of the Cold Storage Trust Did Not End in Success.

New York.—When the Ramenfels, of Hamburg, which took aboard a cargo of oil for Bombay, India, at Tenth street, Long Island City, the other day next appears in this port her commander, Captain Kichner, will not feel kindly toward the ship news reporter who mentions mutton to him. Likewise, the butcher who suggests that the captain get the better of the cold storage trust by taking his meat on board on the hoof will encounter a surprise. In fact, it is doubtful even if luscious lamb chops will appeal to the captain after his experience.

It is proverbial that sheep are meek. There are sheep and sheep, though, as one butcher's apprentice, Robert Henty, discovered when he arrived at the pier with two ewes and a ram. (See dictionary for the difference.) The sheep were destined for the ship's mess, and every man of the crew had visions of fresh mutton when he saw the animals arrive.

These visions were dispelled soon after Henty had led one of the ewes on board the steamship. In some manner the ram, which had been left in the delivery wagon, escaped from his bonds. Possibly it was an anti-trust ram, for the animal immediately demonstrated his dislike for all things oily. Coincidental with his demonstration the men on the pier left the vicinity. Some were assisted by the ram.

Then the mutton-which-was-not-to-be journeyed into the oil yard and created further disturbance. Not daunted by the efforts toward his capture he returned to the pier, wagging his head in defiance. His path was not obstructed. Then he plunged overboard into the East river.

When Captain Kichner saw his mutton swimming away in the water three boats were lowered to the rescue. The ram swam placidly into the middle of the stream. When the first rowboat drew near him he turned and charged. In their excitement and efforts to capture the ram the sailors upset the boat. Fortunately the craft was righted and the sailors discreetly withdrew.

By this time the commotion in the river had attracted the attention of Harry Murray, superintendent of the stables on Blackwell's island, and he valiantly started out aboard a motor boat to capture the ram. The engine refused to work when the motor boat reached midstream, and Mr. Murray's craft was ignominiously towed to land by the men he had tried to help.

In the meantime, the ram, preferring a sojourn on land to an appearance as a leg of mutton aboard ship, swam to the island, where he was caught. Mr. Murray locked the ram in the stables, and at the latest report, still has him a prisoner.

"He's my mutton," said Mr. Murray, "and anyway, this is where he ought to be. He has a disposition as crooked as a ram's horn."

WOMAN SICK TWELVE YEARS

Wants Other Women to Know
How She Was Finally Restored to Health.

Louisiana, Mo.:—"I think a woman naturally dislikes to make her troubles known to the public, but complete restoration to health means so much to me that I cannot keep from telling mine for the sake of other suffering women."

"I had been sick about twelve years, and had eleven doctors. I had dragging down pains, pains at monthly periods, bilious spells, and was getting worse all the time. I would hardly get over one spell when I would be sick again. No tongue can tell what I suffered from cramps, and at times I could hardly walk. The doctors said I might die at one of those times, but I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got better right away. Your valuable medicine is worth more than mountains of gold to suffering women."

—Mrs. BERTHA MUFF, 603 N. 4th Street, Louisiana, Mo.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

SELECT YOUR SEED CORN EARLY IN FALL

A Profitable Selection.

A Very Unsatisfactory Lot.

By PROF. LEONARD HEGNAUER, University of Illinois.

In planning for next year's crop it is well to bear in mind that work should begin at once. Some work must be done early this fall if it is to be at all. If it is neglected now it can never be done afterwards. There should be picked, since the ripening period depends somewhat upon the date of planting, weather conditions and the variety of corn used. However, in every instance, if good germinable seed is to be obtained it must be taken when the crop has reached sufficient maturity and before any injury has been done by the frost.

A Strong and Vigorous Individual. It is but one time for selecting seed corn and that is before freezing weather has done its injury. There is no exact date when seed corn

SELECTING TREES FOR THE ORCHARD

By ASST. PROF. A. W. NOLAN, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

The commercial orchardists seldom plant more than four or five varieties of fruit trees, best adapted to their location and markets, but the farmer requires many varieties to supply the demands for fruit throughout the year. Early summer, late summer, early fall and winter, late winter and early spring fruit, all are necessary for his table. There are hundreds of varieties from which to choose but those varieties adapted to soil and climatic conditions should be selected. The trees grown successfully in the community will indicate to the buyer what varieties are suitable. The personal tastes of the owner and his family will also guide in the selection of varieties.

A few of the standard varieties of fruit for family orchards of Illinois may be mentioned as follows:
Peaches—Elberta, Champion, Crawford's Early, Heath Cling, Carman.
Cherries—Early Richmond, Montmorency, Deyehouse, English Morello, Tartarian.
Pears—Kieffer, Flemish Beauty, Garber, Bartlett, Howell.
Plums—Burbank, Dameron, DeSoto, Wild Goose, Abundance, Surprise.
Grapes—Moore's Diamond, Niagara, (white), Concord, Worden, (black), Woodruff, Brighton, (red).
Much valuable advice is given upon buying at the nursery grounds, but the practical thing for the farmer to do is to order such varieties as he may decide upon from a thoroughly reliable and reputable nurseryman, and the chances are that he will get better stock than he would if he selected the trees himself. The good nurseryman will know that the young trees should not be dug until the leaves have nearly all fallen, for this means that the buds are well ripened and that the wood is hard and mature.
Whether it is better to buy straight whips one year old, or more expensive two-year old trees on which the main branches are already started, is an unsettled question. Professor Al-

SHIP'S BOY GETS SACRED BLACK CAT

Strays Into Hindoo Temple at Bombay and Escapes with Life and Feline.

SOMETHING HIT HIM

Daring Apprentice of Tramp Steamer Who Went in Search of Adventure at an Indian Port Had Plenty of Excitement.

Philadelphia.—A daring apprentice who had the audacity to steal into a Hindoo temple and kidnap a sacred cat is the tale that a tramp steamer brings to this port.
The apprentice, Albert Berrige, passed behind the veil of one of the most sacred temples of the Hindoos in Bombay, saw with his Caucasian eyes the great idols and returned to the outer world with the sacred cat. The cat once bore, no doubt, a strange Indian name, but since joining the tramp ship the sacred feline has been dubbed Tommy. Tommy is as black as the conchshell of a bigamist and is not very different from other cats. Black cats bring good luck to ships that plough the seven seas, so Tommy is held in great esteem. While Berrige's ship swung at her anchor off "The City of the Dreadful Night," as Kipling has called Bombay, the towering domes of the Hindoo temples kindled Albert's imagination, and he chafed at the bit until he had obtained shore leave.

"Be back by sundown, young man," ordered the captain as the apprentice went over the side about midday.
There was so much to interest Albert that he forgot altogether the captain's injunction to be back by sundown. Darkness had enveloped the city when Albert reached one of the Hindoo temples, probably the most sacred in all Bombay.

"It was all dark and scary in that temple," said the apprentice in telling of his adventure. "There were big pillars all round with the most scary looking carvings you ever saw. I got behind one of these pillars all by myself and tried to see what was going on. Away off in the distance I saw some lights burning in front of a row of big idols that looked like huge monkeys. The Hindoos who were coming into the temple were making their way toward those idols, bowing and sort of sing-souging. They were so busy in their worship of the big gilded monkeys and things that they would not have seen me if I had been on fire."

"I was so encouraged by my success in getting to the front, near the big show, that I kept on the move through the dark. Suddenly, as I tipped along, I put my foot down on something soft. The next thing I knew there came a yowl and screech that made my backbone feel as though a bolt of lightning was running up and down it. The sing-song and the moaning had ceased. There was absolute silence for a moment.

"Suddenly I felt something hit me in the middle of the back. Then I felt sharp claws digging into my hide. The next instant I was traveling like a meteor toward the temple entrance and every manjack of these Hindoos in pursuit."
"When I reached the door two husky Hindoos jumped in front of me. I lowered my head and struck one of them amidships. He went down with a gulp like a man swallowing his own adam's apple. I dodged the other fellow and jumped and half tumbled down the steps from the temple doorway. When I hit the street I kept up my running. The Hindoos were soon distanced. I must have run for a mile with that cat clawing at my spinal column. Then when I got up a dark street I stopped and tried to dislodge the cat. I finally had to take off my coat to get the beast to release his claws."
"When I got Mr. Cat into my arms he was as docile as you please and purred in real cat fashion. So I says to myself, 'It's a black cat and that means good luck, so I'll take him on board.' I had some explaining why I was so late, but I had the cat to prove my adventure in the temple and the old man let it go at that."

HIS MIND UP IN THE CLOUDS

Professor Imagined Appeal Was From Fido, and the Situation Became Embarrassing.

A great lover of animals, Professor Dryasdust was much given to having his pet dog sitting beside him at meal times eating tidbits from his own little plate.
The other evening he was at a dinner party, and his partner was a very great lady, who was proud of her title.

"But the professor paid absolutely no attention to her. His mind had switched off on to some abstruse point and he was lost to the world over the problem."
The duchess did not approve of this, and presently, to attract his attention, she pulled him gently by the sleeve.
Then the professor woke up. Grabbing a half-picked chicken bone from his plate, he thrust it under her startled nose.

"Don't bother just now, Fido," he said curtly. "Here, take this and go and eat it on the mat, like a good doggie!"

"We had medicine and salve and it kept getting worse all the time. I got some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after washing his hands with the Cuticura Soap and putting some of the Cuticura Ointment on two times a day and tying cloths on them for about six months they got well and have not broken out since. Open Air Schools Grow in Favor.
With the opening of the fall school term, over 200 open air schools and fresh air classes for tuberculous, and anaemic children, and also for all children in certain rooms and grades, will be in operation in various parts of the United States, according to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. All of these schools have been established since January, 1907, when the first institution of this character was opened in Providence, R. I. On January 1st, 1910, there were only 13 open air schools in this country and a year later the number had increased only to 29. Thus, the real growth in this movement has been within the last two years. Massachusetts now leads the states with 86 fresh air schools and classes for tuberculous, anaemic and other school children. Boston alone having over 80. New York comes next with 29, and Ohio is third with 21. Open air schools have now been established in nearly 50 cities in 19 different states.

Is H. W. Fay a "Real Republican"?
Mr. Editor:—

As you have mentioned my opponent's candidacy as being a "Real Republican," the question above has arisen. In 1890 Mr. Fay and his paper boldly supported a Democratic candidate against a regular Republican nominee for County Superintendent of schools. In 1898 he and his paper again bravely supported an Independent candidate against the regularly nominated Republican candidate for County Superintendent of schools. These facts should not condemn Mr. Fay if fraud and unfairness had been committed in the nomination of the regular Republican candidate and Mr. Fay was so convinced he had a right as an American citizen and as a true Republican to protest with his voice, pen and vote against such fraud. That is the position I have taken with reference to Mr. Fay's nomination for I believe it was unfairly obtained. Within the last few days after listening to the "swan-song" of seven ex-office holders and professional politicians, he has transformed into a "real Republican," whatever that means, whose past record has been proclaimed as always loyal, steadfast and true.

Now, all I ask of Mr. Fay is fair, consistent treatment; if he believes now that a "real Republican" must blindly support men and not principles without protesting with his vote, pen and voice against fraud, his conduct in 1890 and 1898 was not Republican, but a deception upon the party. If he believed then that principles, not candidates, should govern his conduct in his criticism of me is equally deceiving and un-Republican now. If we must support candidates unfairly nominated in order to pass muster as "real Republicans" then I rejoice that there are other avenues left open for me and for all self-respecting Republicans. We may still retain all the essential characteristics of true Republicanism by allying ourselves with Progressive Republicanism, and vote for Roosevelt and Johnson.

In conclusion I desire to say that there is no Progressive party County ticket in DeKalb County, and if any Progressive desires to support me upon the position I have taken he will find my name in the regular Republican party column where it was placed by the Republican and Progressive voters of this county before the idea of a third party was conceived and before any necessity for it had arisen. A cross before my name will count a vote for me, and will, in no way, impair his vote for the Progressive ticket as a whole, but will enable him to have a vote upon county officials, none of whom were nominated by the Progressive party. Respectfully yours,
WALTER M. HAY.

JUDGE FULLER'S RECORD MEETS TEST AND RINGS TRUE

HAS STOOD IN FRONT RANKS FOR PROGRESS
BATTLING "INTERESTS" SINCE ENTERING PUBLIC LIFE.

PIONEER FIGHTER FOR DIRECT ELECTIONS

HAS FOUGHT FOR CHANGING METHOD OF ELECTING SENATORS SINCE 1879—HAD FIERCE CONTEST WITH RAILROAD "INTERESTS" AND WON—KILLED CUT-THROAT MORTGAGE LAW—VOTED FOR LONG LIST OF PROGRESSIVE LAWS IN HOUSE—SUPPORTED IMPORTANT LABOR BILLS—HERE IS THE ANSWER TO CAMPAIGN MISREPRESENTATION AND IT IS THE STORY OF A SPLENDID RECORD BY AN ABLE, FEARLESS REPRESENTATIVE OF THE PEOPLE.

(From The Belvidere Daily Republican.)

Thousands of circulars are being mailed to voters of the Twelfth district in behalf of Judge Hinebaugh, candidate for congress, attacking Judge Fuller partly by misrepresentation, partly by innuendo and partly for not voting with the Democrats in the last house. The article in the Hinebaugh circular is quoted from the Ottawa Free Trader, the leading Democratic newspaper of LaSalle county. The Republican is surprised that Judge Hinebaugh should permit himself to be sponsor for the circulation of such unfair campaign literature. Trying to fool the people never made votes for any candidate for any office. The charge made that Judge Fuller has always voted with Cannon, Dalzell and the "special interests," which is the burden of the attack, is the rankest kind of misrepresentation. It is a well known fact that Congressman Fuller showed his independence by opposing Messrs. Cannon and Dalzell on some of the most vital questions before the house. Has Always Fought "The Interests." One conspicuous example was in the case of the Anti-Injunction Bill, a measure championed by labor and labor unions and bitterly opposed by "the interests."

CONGRESSMAN FULLER'S VOTE WAS RECORDED IN FAVOR OF THIS BILL. It was one of the most important measures ever asked in behalf of organized labor and the labor lobby specially thanked Judge Fuller for his support. Another case recalled to mind was the LaFollette Wool Tariff Bill which was strenuously opposed by Cannon and his friends. Congressman Fuller went the extreme limit in support of this bill. CONGRESSMAN FULLER'S VOTE IS FOUND RECORDED IN FAVOR OF EVERY EIGHT HOUR BILL INTRODUCED IN THE HOUSE.

Other instances may be cited but these ought to be sufficient to show the utter unfairness of the Hinebaugh campaign of misrepresentation. The Hinebaugh circular asks what Congressman Fuller has ever done to entitle him to call himself "progressive." FOR SEVEN YEARS CONGRESSMAN FULLER SUPPORTED EVERY ONE OF THE ROOSEVELT PROGRESSIVE MEASURES. JUDGE FULLER'S PUBLIC RECORD HAS BEEN ALONG PROGRESSIVE LINES SINCE 1879 WHEN HE CHAMPIONED THE MOVEMENT FOR DIRECT ELECTION OF U. S. SENATORS. Hinebaugh Lays Himself Liabilities. Congressman Fuller made a ringing speech in the house in support of the Corrupt Practices Act, which was not especially favored by "the interests." The bill became a law. It is a noteworthy fact that Judge Hinebaugh himself must be in ignorance of this for he has failed to comply with the law by filing his statement of campaign expenses at Washington and in plain English is liable to prosecution for this failure if any one cared to be mean enough to press the case. Friends of Judge Fuller would not take advantage of Judge Hinebaugh's violation for they attribute it to his ignorance of the law. It goes to show, however, that Judge Hinebaugh has not taken the pains to investigate Congressman Fuller's record which may explain why he stands sponsor for misstatements. If he had made an investigation he would have discovered the existence of the Corrupt Practices Act and would not now be guilty of failure to comply with its provisions. Couldn't Vote Alone. It is true that Congressman Fuller supported some measures in congress which were also supported by Messrs. Cannon et al. He couldn't be a Republican and not do so and he couldn't prevent Cannon and other Republicans from voting as he did but every one of the measures was for the benefit of the people and some of them especially for the benefit of the people of the Twelfth district. Would Hinebaugh Deny Protection? Judge Hinebaugh's campaigners

Plain Case of Hypocrisy.

It is rank hypocrisy for Judge Hinebaugh's campaigners to attack the tariff vote of Judge Fuller. Down in LaSalle county Judge Hinebaugh would lose hundreds and hundreds of votes if he permitted his Winnebago county campaign speakers to say the same things they are saying in this part of the district.

The attempt of the Hinebaugh campaigners to make people believe that Congressman Fuller has not been a supporter of progressive legislation would be extremely funny were it not for the fact that on account of the difficulty of getting the real truth home to all the people of such a large district many good voters may be misled into believing the unfounded charges. We do not suppose that the Hinebaugh speakers would even give Congressman Fuller credit for voting for such a bill as the Free Hides Act.

Real Progressive Laws Supported by Fuller.

Borrowing for a few moments the Hinebaugh "sole and exclusive rights" to the term "progressive," let us examine the subject and see what it means.

Congressman Fuller gave his hearty support to the Employers' Liability Act. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller helped pass the Safety Appliance Act for the benefit of labor. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller gave his moral help and vote to the law for the Regulation of Railroad Employees' Hours of Labor. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller favored a bill for the establishment of a Bureau of Labor. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller gave his cordial support and vote to the Pure Food Law. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller voted for the Federal Meat Inspection Bill. Isn't that Progressive?

ing. He has since always advocated direct primaries, and "Little Boone" county set the example in direct primaries in local and county affairs years before the state woke up to the present primary. Would Mr. Hinebaugh call that Progressive?

His Titanic Battle With Railroad Interests.

One of the most notable achievements to his credit was his successful warfare against the powerful railroad interests of Illinois in behalf of the people. This was one of the bitterest fights of the earlier public career of Judge Fuller. One of his biographers referred to his record made at that time as follows:

Charles E. Fuller, of Boone county, won his way to early recognition in the State Senate. His resolution for the direct election of U. S. Senators caused some of the staid members to gasp and his fight against the sacred railroad interests of Illinois, at first regarded as a joke but later as the serious move of a sincere man and an uncompromising fighter who never quits, made the members sit up and take notice of this vigorous crusader from the little county of Boone.

He pressed his fight against the railroads to a magnificent victory, despite the opposition of the state administration and many members of his own party, compelling a revision of freight schedules by the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, resulting in a great reduction of such rates, and saving to the shippers of the state MORE THAN TEN MILLION DOLLARS PER YEAR. At the first session the man from "Little/Boone" introduced bills to reduce the contract rate of interest, to abolish sale mortgages and permit foreclosure to be made only in court with the right to redeem from any foreclosure sale; and to compel manufacturers of butterline and oleomargarine to label their products and to permit the same to be sold only for what they actually were, being the first anti-butterline legislation ever attempted in this state. Each of the foregoing bills, although bitterly opposed, was passed at that session and became the law of the state.

Had Much Hard Work on Pension Committee.

It is unnecessary to mention Congressman Fuller's splendid devotion to the cause of the old soldiers. His work speaks for itself. He has always had a big, warm spot in his big heart for the boys who wore the blue. His youth prevented his participation in the conflict, but when the Spanish-American War broke out Congressman Fuller under a commission from the Governor promptly raised a regiment and with himself at its head tendered it for active duty. During that period he carried the title of "Colonel."

Working When Others Sat Idly in House.

When he became a member of Congress Judge Fuller was named on the committee of Invalid Pensions and that is why he gained prominence in pension legislation. His committee had thousands and thousands of bills to investigate and report out each session and many days when absent from sessions of the House he would be working hard in his committee room and for hours after the day's session was over. The labors of this committee kept him absent from numerous regular sessions. His unfair political enemies have tried to make it appear that he was absent without good reason when as a matter of fact he was working much harder than were those sitting idly in a dull session of the House.

Always an "Early Bird."

At Washington Congressman Fuller has the reputation of being one of the hardest-working committee members in Congress. During his boyhood days on the farm Judge Fuller formed the habit of "getting up before breakfast." He follows the same practice in his office duties at home and could not get over the habit at Washington. While official Washington slept in the morning Congressman Fuller was found in his committee room working like a beaver. When one stops to think that his committee sometimes had as many as 30,000 bills to consider during a single session it is not surprising that he did not have time to sit in many House daily sessions and enjoy a quiet smoke with other "industrious" members, listening to windy oratory.

Fuller, The Man.

The writer of this article has known Congressman Fuller intimately for over twenty years. He is one of the biggest, kindest hearted of men, one of the most magnanimous, one of the straightest, squarest and most upright. He has a charming personality that draws like a magnet. Of a gentle, kindly nature he could not do an unkind act if he tried. Of a modest, unassuming disposition no one ever hears him boast of the countless kind and charitable acts he performs for his less fortunate fellows. Gifted with a powerful, giant intellect he has commanded the admiration and respect of all who came to know his brilliant qualities. And he has ever been on the side of right and justice for humanity. That is the main reason why he has always had the people behind him ready and willing to fight for him if need be. He is one of the great men of Illinois, a statesman capable of filling high public position and one worthy of the highest confidence and trust.

Let not the voters of the Twelfth district be deceived as to their present able, high-minded and courageous Congressman November 6th. His is a record of notable and progressive achievement. He is the tried and trusted friend of the people. Can you afford to lose the services of so good and valuable a representative in Congress?

Congressman Fuller favored with his whole heart a change that he had advocated for more than 33 years and that is The Election of United States Senators by the People. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller fought for and helped enact into law the bill for Publicity of Campaign Contributions and Expenditures. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller advocated and voted for the bill forbidding Corporations to Contribute to Political Campaign Funds. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller supported and voted for the Inheritance Tax. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller was one of the men who made it possible to have Postal Savings Banks in postoffices. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller gave his vote to the Parcel Post because he was convinced that the majority of the common people wanted it. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller voted for the bill placing Petroleum and all its products on the free list. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller supported the Dooliver-Hepburn Railroad Act. Isn't that Progressive?

Congressman Fuller voted for the National Irrigation Act. Isn't that Progressive?

A Progressive Always.

And so on down the list can be recited the congressional record of Judge Fuller justifying his right to say that he is "Always a Progressive Republican." His public record for years before the people sent him to Congress was in line with desirable progress.

Fuller Favored Movement for Direct Election of Senators in 1879.

A public servant cannot be justly called a "standpatter" whose whole public career has been one of advanced progressive positions. Judge Fuller was a member of the Illinois State Senate in 1879. On January 21 of that year he introduced a joint resolution for a change which was then considered "too progressive" for the times and that was the direct election of United States Senators, a constitutional amendment which Congressman Fuller had the pleasure to support in Congress and which he hopes to see realized before long, for, as the people know, the measure has been adopted by a two-thirds majority of both branches of Congress and will become a law just as soon as this action is ratified by the necessary three-fourths of the state legislatures.

Thirty-three years have passed since the present Congressman started the ball rolling in Illinois to bring about the progressive way of electing United States Senators. During all these years Judge Fuller has advocated the change in and out of season. It is interesting at this late day, when Judge Fuller's resolution of 1879 in substance is about to be written into law, to note the advanced position taken by him at that time.

If there are any doubters they will find this record on Page 92 of the Senate Journal of January 21, 1879, on which day Senator Fuller introduced the following:

Text of Fuller Resolution.

Resolved by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring herein, that it is the sense of this General Assembly that United States Senators should be elected by a direct vote of the people at a general election.

Resolved, that our Senators in Congress be instructed and our representatives be requested to propose an amendment to the Federal Constitution so changing Section 3 of Article I thereof as to make the office of United States Senator elective by the people and to use all honorable means to secure the adoption of this amendment.

Fought "Interests" Years Ago.

While a member of the Illinois Legislature Judge Fuller won his way to become one of the most conspicuous leaders of the sessions and was always on the side of the people fighting for progress. He was the man who fought the cut-throat mortgage laws passed at the instigation of heartless money changers. He made such a vigorous assault on these unfair laws and for lower interest rates that the money lenders appealed to certain Chicago newspapers to come to their rescue and these newspapers tried to scare the people by saying that Fuller's warfare if persisted in would drive capital out of Illinois. But they couldn't scare "the big man from Little Boone" not for a minute. He kept at them hammer and tongs and won the fight. He had the vicious cut throat mortgage laws repealed, substituting in their place the present laws throwing legal safeguards around the man who had to borrow money and made the legal rate of interest five per cent, and the maximum seven. Before Judge Fuller led his relentless warfare on these cruel laws if a farmer had a mortgage on his farm, or a laborer a mortgage on his little home and failed to meet the exacting terms of his mortgage in every particular he might be sold out bag and baggage without notice and without recourse. Judge Fuller changed all this and now a man has one year's time in which to redeem his property and in the first place cannot be sold out without due notice and orderly process of law which often takes months.

Would Judge Hinebaugh call this the work of a "standpatt" or a man who is "always progressive"?

A Pioneer in Primary Cause.

Judge Fuller advocated primary reform when he was in the Illinois legislature many years ago and managed to get a limited primary law through. It was not what he wanted, but it was the best he could get, and taking crumbs is preferable to getting nothing.

THE SAVING HABIT.

One of the most difficult and at the same time most essential of habits to form is that of saving. Of course, there are many persons in all walks of life who, although they are in comfortable circumstances, are so penurious as to be absolutely opposed to parting even with their pennies. Their very lives are controlled by the idea of getting along with as little as possible even at the risk of earning for themselves a reputation for stinginess. Such persons, however, make up a class all to themselves, and generally deserve the contempt in which they are held by their fellow-beings. On the other hand, the spendthrift deserves as much, if not more, condemnation, perhaps, for the facility with which he allows his often hard-earned money to slip through his hands. There is a golden mean between these two extremes of character and it is found in the ability of a man to save from his earnings sufficient for the proverbial rainy day. The advantages of saving may be demonstrated to us in many ways and on many occasions, but it remains for necessity to impress its importance upon our minds. It may be that the manner of living may account in large measure for the universal habit of spending all that we make—the opportunities for doing so are very great and at the same time seem very real and imperative, and it is only after the pocket is empty and we face stern necessity that we are able to discriminate between opportunity and temptation.

Palestine is fast becoming one of the great orange-growing countries of the world. Much fruit of excellent quality is being shipped every year to London and other markets in northern Europe, and this year the crop of the district near Jaffa, the port of Jerusalem, is estimated at 1,500,000 boxes. Further up the Syrian coast Tyre and Sidon are expected to reach a total of 400,000 cases of oranges exported and 200,000 cases of lemons. For a small country Palestine has many interesting and valuable products. Its olive groves are as productive as they are ancient, and its vineyards yield grapes of fine quality in great abundance. Notwithstanding the drawback of a sometimes very deficient and usually scanty water supply, Syria produces a large quantity of excellent food. But it is not easy to think of Palestine's exports of oranges without thinking of the immeasurably more important exports and ideas and ideals from that little country. By comparison with the moral and spiritual forces which have gone out from Syria to enrich the world, all the products of the soil which can be shipped from the ports as long as the earth shall endure will be of little significance.

There has been a great deal of gossip to the effect that the little Don Jaime, younger son of King Alfonso of Spain, is physically and mentally defective. A recent dispatch from Madrid announces that nine physicians recently held a consultation on his case and pronounce him perfectly normal, though he is afflicted with an affection of the ears which has persisted since his birth. When there is any shadow of basis for sensational statements concerning members of royalty, correspondents who thrive on gossip are sure to make the most of it.

North Pacific whalers are not unanimous in accepting the theory that whale fisheries are playing out on account of the extinction of the whales. One captain who notes that his ship and another made a kill of 187 last year and only 54 this year, thinks the recent volcanic disturbances have made changes in ocean currents that have diverted the small fish on which the whales depend for food. He thinks that in their old-time haunts, or discovered in their new ones.

The United States consul at Prague says there are practically no flies in Bohemia. He attributes the phenomenon to the fact that "everything is made of brick, stone or concrete, and the streets are cleaned several times a day." The reason why the fly is feared is that his habits are so dirty. Yet where he is numerous, his numbers indicate the presence of dirt. Undoubtedly the best way to get rid of flies is not to "swat" them, but to clean up.

COLONEL IS HOME

FORMER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ARRIVES AT OYSTER BAY— STANDS TRIP WELL.

POLICE GUARD HIS JOURNEY

Silent Crowds in Chicago Watch Wounded Man on His Way From Hospital to Train That Carried Him East—Weakened by Journey.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived home today, none the worse for his long journey from Chicago, where he was taken following the attempt made on his life at Milwaukee last Monday by John Schrank, an assassin.

Colonel Roosevelt was removed from his private car "Ideal" and carried to an ambulance that conveyed him and his physician, Dr. Lambert, to the Roosevelt home. Almost the entire population of Oyster Bay welcomed the former president home, but no demonstration was made, as the colonel was weak from the tiresome journey from Chicago.

Bids Chicago Good-Bye.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—With a "good-bye, good luck," to the crowd which had gathered at the Twelfth street freight yards, the Progressive standard-bearer walked the few feet between the automobile ambulance which had carried him from the hospital and the car which is taking him home. As he reached the car platform he paused before entering the door, and waved his farewell to Chicago.

Stern Procession Through Streets.

It was a stern and serious procession of automobiles that moved down Michigan avenue with the wounded Progressive leader as the chieftain was borne to his car. In the midst of it was the white ambulance in which Colonel Roosevelt was lying. In charge of Dr. Alexander Lambert and Dr. W. B. McCauley.

Ahead of the ambulance and plotting the way was an automobile in which were Assistant Chief of Police Schuetzler and four plain clothes men, who were to guard the Roosevelt special car as far as Englewood. A guard of six motorcycle policemen spread out on either side of the ambulance. Close behind was the machine carrying Mrs. Roosevelt, Theodore Roosevelt Jr. and Ethel Roosevelt. Several autos carrying newspaper men followed, and others bearing moving picture machines darted about, taking views of the party from every angle.

Care was taken to avoid crowds at every point of the journey through the city.

Positive Quiet is Ordered.

Positive orders were issued before the departure of Drs. Murphy, Bevan, Terrell and Lambert that absolutely no visitors could see the colonel while en route. He suffered so apparently from nervous exhaustion after setting out on Saturday to resume campaigning by proxy that the physicians held a serious conference on the advisability of delaying his departure.

It was decided, however, that as Oyster Bay probably would be much more quiet than Chicago. It would be advisable for him to depart as planned. He will be under strict surgical care for another ten days at least. Dr. Lambert and Dr. Scurry L. Terrell accompanied him to Oyster Bay and will continue their close watch for symptoms of tetanus, still possible, though far from probable.

In addition to the two physicians and the Roosevelt family, those in the private car, which was named "Ideal," included Col. Cecil Lyon, J. W. McGrath and Elbert E. Martin, the colonel's secretaries, and Fred Ledisch.

Leaves Hospital in Ambulance.

Colonel Roosevelt left Mercy hospital at exactly 7:20 o'clock. He was taken from the hospital in a wheel chair to a waiting automobile ambulance, in which he made the trip through the city. The colonel was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, who rode with him in the ambulance.

The colonel's last night at the hospital was rather a restless one. He slept only about four hours in the aggregate from the time he first fell asleep at 11:15 p. m. He awoke frequently and seemed nervous. It was said by Night Nurse Fitzgerald that this was chiefly due to the excitement of his approaching departure and not to any untoward symptoms which had developed in the course of the night.

21 TAKEN OFF BURNING SHIP

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 22.—While high seas, wind and rain lashed the steamer Berkshire of the Merchants & Miners Transportation company on which fire was discovered, the 21 passengers on board were taken off at Look-out Cove near Cape Lookout, N. C.

Although the fire is still burning the crew believed they have it under control.

MEXICAN TROOPS DESERT TO STANDARD OF DIAZ

U. S. Sailors May Be Landed on Mexican Soil at Any Moment Now.

Vera Cruz, Oct. 22.—The towns of Alvarado and Tuxpan, the latter with a garrison of 400 men, went over to Felix Diaz. This gain, taken in connection with the accession of 1,000 men through the mutiny of a federal regiment, has placed the Diaz revolt on a firm footing.

General Diaz expressed confidence that within a few days the entire federal army will desert Madero and that he will be enabled to take control of the government without opposition.

General Diaz and Commander Hughes of the United States cruiser Des Moines have exchanged visits. The American asked and received assurances that there will be no bombardment of the city and that the lives and property of Americans and other foreign residents will not be imperiled.

Washington, Oct. 22.—American sailors and marines may now at any moment be landed on Mexican soil. Commander Charles F. Hughes of the United States cruiser Des Moines, who arrived in the port of Vera Cruz, Mexico, has taken complete charge of the complex political situation in that city.

The situation as it appears now to the state department is that there can be no other end to the Diaz capture of Vera Cruz than the fall of the Madero government and the taking over of the government by some adherent of former President Diaz.

Havana, Oct. 22.—The new revolt in Mexico, led by Felix Diaz, is the first step in a plan for the return of the exiled ex-president of Mexico, Porfirio Diaz. This is the substance of mail advices received from Vera Cruz within the last few days.

FIFTY HURT IN TRAIN WRECK

Illinois Central Passenger Plunges Over 10-Foot Embankment—Slow Speed Saves Many Lives.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 21.—A broken rail caused an excursion train on the Illinois Central to leave the track at Green's crossing, six miles from here, and at least fifty people were considerably injured, while all of the one hundred and eighty passengers aboard were badly shaken up.

The accident occurred on top of an embankment about ten feet high, and the four passenger coaches plunged off of this, three of them turning over on the side as they fell.

Only the slow speed at which the train was running, about fifteen miles an hour, as it approached Green's crossing, saved more disastrous results. As it was none of the cars were badly torn up and the injuries received were chiefly due to the passengers being hurled about inside.

TO FLOAT FIGHTING GIANT

Huge Battleship Marlborough to Be Launched in England This Week, Setting New Mark for World.

London, Oct. 21.—The launches of the new battleship Marlborough this week is attracting much attention in naval and shipbuilding circles. The details concerning the new vessel have been kept rather dark, but it is known that she has been designed to show an increase in size, speed and fighting power over any ships of her type now afloat. She will be almost twice the size of the original Dreadnought, which displaces 17,500 tons. The cost of the Marlborough will be approximately $13,000,000. Her armor plate will be on an increased scale and she will mount ten of the latest type of 12-inch.50 caliber guns.

SULTAN'S TROOPS LEAVE DHISIKATA IN PANIC, PURSUED BY GREEK SOLDIERS.

900 ALBANIANS DIE IN FIGHT

Defenders Retreat Before the Montenegrins Only When Entire Town is Enveloped in Flames—Women and Children Victims.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 23.—The Turkish army is fleeing in panic from Dhisikata on the way to the Turkish town of Serbia in the north, according to a semi-official statement issued here. The Greek troops are said to be pursuing vigorously.

When the Turks precipitately abandoned the town of Elassona, it is said, they left their staff maps and 1,000,000 cartridges. They also dropped during their retreat much of their clothing and most of their engineering implements.

900 Albanians Are Slain.

London, England, Oct. 23.—The fighting at Plava, which was captured Sunday by the Montenegrins, was severe. According to a Cetinje dispatch to the Standard, the Albanian force fought desperately and retired only when the whole place was in flames. Nine hundred Albanians were killed, including many women and children, who were found dead with arms in their hands.

The Sofia correspondent of the Daily Telegraph reports that the Bulgarians have captured Kirk-Kiliseh, east of Adrianople, where 20,000 Turks surrendered, and communication with Constantinople was cut. It is added, however, that there is no official confirmation of this.

Ancient Monastery Bombaraded.

Bombardment of St. Constantine monastery at Euxinograd by the Turkish warships, says a Sofia dispatch to the Times, and the destruction of this venerable and interesting building which nothing can justify.

"It may be taken as an omen of the barbarous character of the struggle which civilized Europe has failed to prevent," adds the dispatch.

The monastery formerly was the residence of Prince Alexander and subsequently that of King Ferdinand.

Big Battle is Imminent. Constantinople, Turkey, Oct. 23.—It is admitted here that the Bulgarians are established about 12 miles from Adrianople and that a big battle is imminent. The governor of Adrianople has issued a proclamation asking residents to husband their food owing to the possibility of investment of the town. He advises those able to leave to do so.

It is announced that an important concentration of the Bulgarian forces has taken place at Koestendil, in the southern part of Bulgaria, the objective of which is doubtless the Struma valley, the easiest road to the heart of Macedonia.

The Turkish government will issue a proclamation to the people of the European provinces in the form of a reply to King Ferdinand's manifesto, enjoining Moslems to good behavior and assuring Christians that they have nothing to fear if they remain loyal.

It is asserted that in the fighting around Elassona the Greeks lost 1,500 killed.

Attaches Go to Scene.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 23.—The military attaches, including Lieut. Sherman Miles, the American attaché at Bucharest, with the war correspondents, proceeded to the Bulgarian headquarters at Stara Zagora, eastern Rumania.

Newspaper reports tell of the bombardment and capture of Losengrad by the Bulgarians after several hours' desperate fighting, and of the capture of Tcherimen, an important point six miles west of Adrianople.

After the bombardment of Kavarna one of the Turkish warships left in the direction of Balchik. Four others cruised along the coast between Kavarna and Kalkola, bombarding the villages.

Turkish warships also bombarded the barracks and monastery at Euxinograd, near Varna, which port they bombarded several days ago. The customs house and two warehouses were damaged. The Turks attempted a landing, but the boats launched encountered a heavy fire from the Bulgarian soldiers and returned to the ships.

The Bulgarian government has entered a protest against the bombardment of Kavarna as a violation of the principles of international law laid down by The Hague conference. The town is a trading port only and is not defended. No warning was given of the attack.

200 Turks Die in Wreck.

Berlin, Germany, Oct. 23.—Two hundred Turkish soldiers were killed and as many more were seriously injured by the derailing of a military train on the railroad from Smyrna to A'ala, it is said, in a special dispatch from Constantinople. The entire train fell over a steep embankment.

BECKER TRIAL AT END; ACCUSED DOESN'T TESTIFY

Chauffeur of Murder Car Swore That Neither of the Alleged Gunmen Were Present at Killing.

New York, Oct. 23.—The evidence by which Police Lieut. Charles Becker hopes to refute the charge that he investigated the assassination of Herman Rosenthal was concluded before Justice John W. Goff here. The defense closed without having placed the accused officer on the witness stand, and apparently added strength to the case through the testimony of the last few witnesses called.

William Shapiro, chauffeur of the murder car, offered in rebuttal by the district attorney, furnished a startling climax to the proceedings by swearing that neither Rose, Webber, Vallon nor Schepps was present when Rosenthal was shot in front of the Metropolitan hotel on the night of July 16.

The case will go to the jury tomorrow morning. Justice Goff announced, after a consultation with the lawyers on both sides, that Attorney John F. McIntyre would be given four hours for his summing up address. District Attorney Moss will make the closing argument for the people, and has been allotted four hours. The jury will be given a night's rest before hearing the charge from the court which will guide them in reaching a verdict.

The mayor was thrown forty feet by the explosion which ended. The crowd was swept by a blast of flames and several persons were trampled upon in the panic which followed.

Giovannitti and Jose Caruso, who are charged with complicity in the murder of Anne Lopez in a Lawrence strike riot, was revealed today. The defense will attempt to show that the rioters at the mills were not inspired by Industrial Workers of the World agents or sympathizers, but were the result of disorder precipitated deliberately by persons imported for the purpose.

RYAN GAVE $450,000

FINANCIER SHOULDERED PART OF DEBT OF DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL COMMITTEE IN 1904.

WAS OPPOSED TO NOMINEE

Tells Clapp Committee at Washington That He Contributed $50,000 to Harmon and $30,000 to Underwood This Year—G. W. Perkins Also Talks.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Thomas Fortune Ryan appeared before the senate campaign contributions committee and told the committee that he shouldered $350,000 of the debts of the Democratic national committee in 1904.

"Early in the campaign," he said, "I gave $50,000 to the fund, although I was opposed to the nomination of Parker. I gave probably $50,000 in smaller contributions. When the end of the campaign was drawing near and it was apparent that Mr. Parker could not be elected, some of my friends came to me and told me the campaign would collapse unless the committee received financial assistance. I finally agreed in order to pay the party workers and preserve the integrity of the party, to furnish $350,000. This made a total of $450,000 I gave throughout the campaign. "This was a personal contribution and did not represent any one except myself. I did not give the money to try to elect Parker. I merely wanted to preserve the Democratic organization."

Tells of Gifts This Year.

In reply to questions concerning the pre-convention campaign of 1912 Mr. Ryan said he had contributed between $75,000 and $80,000 to Governor Harmon's campaign and more than $30,000 to Representative Underwood's.

George W. Perkins on Stand.

George W. Perkins was the next witness. He gave his occupation as "retired working man." Asked as to the campaign of 1904, Mr. Perkins said that he was requested by Treasurer Bliss to take a place as a member of a local committee in New York to aid in collecting funds for the campaign.

Denounces Charge in Campaign.

Perkins denounced as an "unmitigated falsehood" the charge that he had underwritten the Roosevelt pre-convention campaign this year in the sum of $3,000,000. He testified that his total contributions were $122,500. Rising from the witness chair and shaking a clenched fist, Mr. Perkins shouted:

"On the long list of unmitigated lies throughout this campaign that statement perhaps ought to be placed at the top, because it is the largest."

"I was in hopes that Senator Penrose would be here this morning. He made that statement on the floor of the senate, and he ought to be required to prove it, or, like a gentleman, he ought to take it back. There is not a scintilla of truth in it, from a to z."

Optimists.

For non-committal brevity of speech, commend us to the Yankee lord of the soil. One such, who was obliged to make a physician daily visits, had an unvarying answer to the question, "How do you feel today?" "Well," he would reply, showing as little interest in the subject as possible, "I ain't no wuss." Further than that he wished to say nothing, and it took the cunning of a serpent to discover his real feelings. A man who was knocked down in the street by a snowslide was assailed by a sympathizing crowd with condolence and question. "Did it hurt you?" inquired one of his rescuers as he brushed the snow from the clothes of the well-powdered victim. "Well," was the cautious answer, "it ain't done me no good."—Argonaut.

A DOCTOR'S TRIALS.

He Sometimes Gets Sick Like Other People. Even doing good to people is hard work if you have too much of it to do. An overworked Ohio doctor tells his experience:

"About three years ago as the result of doing two men's work, attending a large practice and looking after the details of another business, my health broke down completely, and I was little better than a physical wreck. "I suffered from indigestion and constipation, loss of weight and appetite, bloating and pain after meals, loss of memory and lack of nerve force for continued mental application.

"I became irritable, easily angered and despondent without cause. The heart's action became irregular and weak, with frequent attacks of palpitation during the first hour or two after retiring.

"Some Grape-Nuts and cut bananas came for my lunch one day and pleased me particularly with the result. I got more satisfaction from it than from anything I had eaten for months, and on further investigation and use, adopted Grape-Nuts for my morning and evening meals, served usually with cream and a sprinkle of salt or sugar.

"My improvement was rapid and permanent, in weight as well as in physical and mental endurance. In a word, I am filled with the joy of living again, and continue the daily use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and often for the evening meal.

THE RED TRAIL OF THE "RED ROBINS."

HAVE before called attention to the passing of the old "gangs" in New York city. This has largely come about through the reclamation of those sections of the city which were their breeding places. Mulberry Bend is no more. The Bowery has lost its criminal character. The Gas House district is a Sunday school compared with what it used to be. Many sentimentalists deplore the passing of these old landmarks and lament the "good old order of things." But while crimes of violence still exist, and probably will continue to do so for some time to come, I think I am safe in saying that life in a great city is being made safer all the time.

If any one is disposed to call attention to recent crimes in dispute of this statement I wish to put in evidence the record of the famous "Red Robins," who left a trail of robberies, beatings and murders around New York something like a generation ago. After reading "Left" Flannelly's story I leave it to any student of criminology whether in this day of Bertillon measurements, the finger-print system and the portrait parlie, such a gang of acknowledged murderers could go long undetected and unpunished.

"In the days when I was a kid," said Left Flannelly, "the Bowery was a stream of life and joy, and there were more Indians to the square inch than ever ran loose on the plains. Among the old shiners who used to sparkle and overflow with such wisdom as delights the heart of a crook was Jeff Henry, who was born and died in State prison.

"Jeff was a dandy and no mistake. His mother was just a shade the best confidence woman that ever lifted a yaller ticker. She was doing a stretch of five years when Jeff saw the light of day. His early education was picked up in the books during the off hours in the penitentiary. Well, you'd be astonished to hear the old cove's talk. There never was a book sharp who could give Jeff any points when it came to shooting off genuine chunks of learning.

"I was a young fellow then, and I guess it was the cheerful words of Jeff that led me away from the job that I had as an apprentice to a butcher, and started me on the road lifting other people's coin and jewels. I never was sorry that I met Jeff, even though his advice never brought me anything but trouble.

"I heard Jeff say one time, talking to Sam Perrin, as he sat on a billiard table in Sheeny Backus' joint, that he had in his day tried his hand at every line of crooked work from lifting bank vaults to tapping hills, and he found that of all the tricks that he ever worked he picked up the most money in country jobs in localities where the people were simple-minded and hid all their money in different places around the house.

"Jeff went into the business so carefully that he had a lot of statistics showing the wealth in the country, and how much of it was out of banks and locked up in houses. It was my luck when Jeff got nailed for the robbery of Aaron Burr's old house on Staten Island to get his list of places, which promised well if worked. I was in that job, but, being new to the business, I was left on the outside to watch the house. I had their extra clothing to look after. In some way the constables of New Brighton got a tip on the movements of the gang and nailed them.

"Maybe I was not tickled when I found Jeff's books in his overcoat. It was a rich prize to me. I landed on the Bowery bigger than one of Bill Dooley's fighting cocks. I got under cover for a couple of weeks just as a matter of form. When I came out I got together the gang that will go down into history as the 'Red Robins.' There was not a bloomer in the gang that did not have a murder to his credit, and they would every one of them rather fight than eat. I was always a bit lively in any game, and I won my spurs by doing Jim Bradley with a pitcher in his sailors' boarding house in Cherry street when Jim was in his prime and nobody else dared go near him. I got the gang by giving up Jeff's book. As I had all the facts I was made the pilot. Then we started off on the tour that set Long Island crazy and made the name of 'Red Robins' feared as the devil by all good people.

"Jeff not only had the names of persons living in each house, but he had plans of the houses, the easiest way to attack them and the obstacles that might be met with. In some instances he had gone so far as to give the number of dogs, and their breed as well. After studying over the book carefully I laid out a route which began at Riverhead and wound up in Jamaica. This would give us altogether about sixty places to visit—a very fair amount of work for the dull season. I arranged the program so that the homes to be robbed were widely scattered for the first week. After that they were all close together, the idea being that people, after hearing of the first robberies, would think that they were safe, as the lightning did not seem to strike twice in the same place.

"We had to get transportation from place to place. I had a rig of my own to start with that was fitted up as a farmer's wagon. It was large enough to hold the gang and such property as was worth taking away. This scheme did not work well, as the wagon became known by being seen in different parts of the island, so it had to be given up. We relied after that upon the farmers' own rigs, which we picked up as the occasion required.

"The 'Red Robins' consisted of Mike Feeney, Jim Wilkes, Zip Ireland, Slasher Kelly, Nigger Foster and Joe McGinnis. There was no reason for having so many in the gang, for the game was dead easy, but our numbers gave us a chance to work tricks in different parts of the island on the same night. This drove the people and police into a frenzy, and they did not know which way to turn. The work at Riverhead was very hot, and I was surprised at the large amount of money that these old miser farmers had stowed away. The first six houses that we called at turned up $15,000 in cash and quite a wad of bonds. It took about two months to get down to Babylon, and from there over to Oyster Bay, where there was a rich mine among the old retired fishermen and oystermen.

"The last place we struck was the home of August Struble, in Oyster Bay. He lived with his wife and an idiotic daughter. The general impression about him was that he had a big boodle stowed away somewhere on the premises. Jeff had marked his name with a double cross. That meant that he was away up in money matters. We started for Oyster Bay on a Saturday night, but got there a bit too early. There were lights burning in Struble's house. We did not know who might be there. We stopped in the rear of a shanty, and Zip Ireland picked up a piece of an axe handle and an old cap. He had lost his own hat on the ride to the place and put the cap on his head.

"When the lights went out in the Struble house we went to it in single file. On the way we met a negro who had left the place by the back door. He did not see any of us and disappeared down the road. We listened for a moment at the door and heard the old man talking with his wife. The door was unlocked and I stepped into the place.

"Is that you, Rube?" said Struble. "I replied that I was Rube. Then going to the bedside of the old man I flashed a lantern in his face. He was terribly frightened, and so was his wife, but when it came down to getting him to give up the hiding place of his gold he would not budge. I hit him over the head and gave him a couple of twisters in the ribs, but he wouldn't tell a thing. The old woman was just as ugly as he was. They both said they would die first. They got a bit of rough treatment, but it was no use. While we were at work the idiot girl came out of a room and gave up the whole business. She took us to where old Struble's money was hidden and turned up a rich prize. After we got everything in sight we took the old man's team and lit out. We made the idiot girl come with us and then lost her in the woods."

DETECTIVE O'CONNOR'S STORY.

"The very business of the detective makes him an intense hater of criminals," said Detective O'Connor. "He gets an idea that they have not any rights which an honest man is bound to respect. It is this feeling of indifference and desire to see a criminal punished which sometimes leads policemen to stretch the truth, and to find circumstances, where none exist, which can be used as evidence.

"I speak for myself when I say this. Even with a strong desire to do what is right, I have found myself distorting evidence to suit my own purpose and to cause a conviction in cases where there was ground for a reasonable doubt. I have seen men sent to State prison for a long term of years whom I was satisfied in my own mind, were innocent; but it is always a satisfaction to get rid of the pricks of conscience by the reflection that the conviction is the verdict of the jury. It is a good way to shirk the responsibility in doubtful cases, but many a policeman has slept uneasily after the verdict of a jury, although few will be honest enough to admit it.

ulator at a good figure. He had a wife and a silly daughter. The wife was a nice old lady, and everybody had a good word to say for 'Aunt Maria,' as she was known.

"There was common talk among the villagers in Oyster Bay that the old man's daughter became silly through the starvation treatment which she received in her younger days. Be this as it may, the old law of compensation got in its usual work, and she gave her father the hardest blow that ever he received in his life.

"When I got over to Struble's cottage, which was in a pretty spot, I found both him and his wife in a sort of stupor, the result, the doctor said, of concussion of the brain. Their faces and heads were covered with bruises, and they were unable to give an intelligent account of the affair. They had been found lying in their beds early in the morning by Rube Thompson, a colored man, who had for years done chores for the family. He gave the alarm. In the first instance there was no thought of robbery.

"The silly girl, whose name was Sarah, was missing, and it was my belief that she had something to do with injuring the old folks. She had been abused for many years, and it was only natural that the worm should turn and strike some time. The first suspicious circumstance was the absence of the horses and wagon from the barn. Sarah was afraid of horses, and she would not go near the barn.

"While I was trying to settle Sarah's connection with the case and her disappearance she turned up unexpectedly, footsore and weary after a tramp of many miles. The neighbors were all anxious to talk with her, but I got her alone as soon as I could, and she told me in her simple way the story of the visit of several men to the house in the night, and all about her giving away the hiding places of the old man's money to save his life.

"Then I made a thorough search of the place. I found in the corner of the room a torn cap and a piece of an axe handle which were covered with blood. As soon as the girl saw them she said that they belonged to Rube Thompson. Several of the neighbors corroborated her. I sent for Rube. When I showed him the club and cap he seemed to change color and to shake like a leaf. I charged him with taking part in the crime, and, as many another innocent has done before him, he lied in the effort to explain away the presence of his cap and club in the house. He denied being there the house at all, although I had positive evidence of his being there from several witnesses. I arrested Rube and sent him to the Queens county jail. He was indicted for the robbery two days later.

"I believed that Rube was in the plot as much as ever I believed anything, but he maintained his innocence, and I was able to prove it afterward. I tried in every way possible to get a confession from Rube as to who his confederates were, without success. I looked then in other directions for information.

"When old Struble's senses returned I learned that every piece of paper money that he had in his possession, amounting to about $28,000, had been marked by him with a red cross on the margin. There was no reason for his doing it, and it was only one of the miser's eccentricities, but it turned out to be a very valuable factor in the discovery of the criminals and the release of an innocent man.

"I sent a notice to all banks, in New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Philadelphia, requesting them to look out for any bills that were deposited with a red cross on them. In three or four days I got word from the old Bleeker Street bank to the effect that money that had been deposited by the money had been deposited by Lena Chadwick, whose address was 19 James street, a notorious sailors' boarding house.

"I investigated Lena, and learned that she had sold her interest in the Boarding house and liquor store attachment to Left Flannelly, the leader of the 'Red Robins,' two days after the robbery of Struble, and he had given her $1,500 in cash. She had deposited this sum in the bank. Every one of the bills had the red mark. I brought Struble over, and he identified every one of the bills as his money. He had handled the money so often that he could tell every wrinkle in the bills.

"Flannelly took charge of the joint that he had bought, and I became a frequenter of it as an old sailor fresh from India, with plenty of boodle. There was a lot of crooked work going on. I picked out Jim Wilkes, Slasher Kelly, Nigger Foster, Joe McGinnis and Zip Ireland as belonging to the 'Red Robins' gang. On different occasions, when I was out on a racket with these worthies and blowing in my wealth, I noticed that each one of them changed a bill which had a red cross on it.

"I managed by getting money changed also to get possession of bills with the red sign of guilt on them. I was satisfied that I had enough evidence to land them. In order that there might not be any trouble or shooting, I arranged it so that each one of the gang could be picked up by the police when I was with him alone. In this way we got the whole gang in jail without it being known by their friends that they had been arrested.

"Old Struble identified each of the bills I had secured as evidence. The silly girl recognized each of the men as being in the party which had carried her from home. I learned that she had stopped in the rear of Rube's cabin, and picked up his cap and the axe handle. This cleared Rube, and each of the 'Red Robins' was sent away for twenty years."

SUCCESS FOLLOWS JUDICIOUS FARMING

IN WESTERN CANADA IT IS CERTAIN.

The story of the Big Farmer in Western Canada, and the immense profits he has made in the growing of grain, has been told and retold. He has been found in all parts of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. His splendid farm buildings have been pictured, his traction outfits described and his princely surroundings, resultant of his success in growing grain, have been portrayed by letter, press and camera. It certainly is not to his discredit that by successfully applying common sense and up-to-date methods to the conditions that climate, a good soil, and splendid market have placed at hand, that he has made the best use of them. He is not too proud to admit that he came to the country a very few years ago handicapped as to money, leaving behind him unpaid mortgages in his old home land (which are now wiped out), and he is still today the same good-hearted fellow he was in the days that he had to work for a neighbor, while the neighbor broke the land on his homestead, which went to make up the settlement duties.

Then, there, too, is the farmer and the farmer's son, already wealthy, who has bought large holdings in Western Canada, in either Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, who has made forty to one hundred per cent. on his investment, whose big grain crops and whose immense cattle herds are helping to improve the country. Health and strength, energy and push, and bull dog grit are as essential in Western Canada as in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, or any of the states from which so many of these people come, and then, when you have added to that a fair amount of means, with which to make a start, the land which is only waiting for the skill of the husbandman will quickly respond.

But there is the smaller farmer, the man who has not made sufficient in four or five years, that he might comfortably retire if he felt like it. There are many of them in all the three Provinces. It is not the less to his credit that he has earned his homestead by the three years residence, that he is free from debt, and has a reasonable bank account. He, too, came to the country handicapped by debts, and with very little means. He is contented, has a good home, land free of encumbrance, some stock, and with good prospects. One of these writes: "I formerly lived near Dayton, Ohio, on a rented farm, had as good a chance as the average renter, but after ten years of hard work, satisfied myself that if I ever expected to secure a home, I would have to undertake something else. Hearing of Western Canada, I investigated, and seven years ago last Spring settled in a homestead and purchased (on time) an adjoining half section, arriving with a carload of household effects and farm implements, including four horses and three cows, and $1,800 in money—my ten years' work in Ohio.

'The first year our crops gave us feed, the second year 100 acres of wheat gave us $1,800; no failure of crop since starting here. I have now 22 head of horses, 15 head of cattle, and 35 hogs. We own 1,120 acres of land, and have same all under cultivation. Was offered at one time $35,000 per acre for a half section where we live, and all the other land could be sold today on present market at $30.00 per acre. Should we care to dispose of our holdings, could pay all debts and have over $30,000 to the good, but the question is where could we go to invest our money and get as good returns as here?

"We have equally as good, if not better prospects for crops this year, as we had three years ago, when our wheat reached from 30 to 48 bushels per acre. I never believed such crops could be raised until I saw them myself. I had 15 acres that year that made 50 bushels to the acre. Our harvest will be ready by the 12th. We have this season in crop 400 acres of wheat, 125 of oats, 90 of flax, and run three binders, with four men to do the stooking.

"We certainly like this country, and the winters, although the winters are cold at times, but we do not suffer as one would think. What we have accomplished here can be duplicated in almost any of the new districts. If anyone doubts anything I have said in this letter, tell them to come here, and I can prove every word I have written."

The name of the writer can be had from the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, who can give the names of hundreds of others equally successful. Adv.

Diplomacy in Small Things. Little Eloise Cave, aged seven years, was visiting her grandmother in Madison, Va., and was sent to carry a saucer of ice cream to a neighbor. By the exercise of infinite care she conveyed her burden safely to the house and gave it into the hands of the lady for whom it was intended. The lady, however, was less careful than Eloise had been, and dropped the saucer and broke it.

"You needn't mind about that," said the little diplomat, without an instant's hesitation. "I don't think grandma has a cup to match the saucer. If she has I will go right home and break it myself."—Popular Magazine.

"Why not?" "Because comets nearly always have their trains telescoped."

FRED P. SMITH, CORRESPONDENT

Obituary

Ernest Walter Dale, who committed suicide by hanging himself to a ladder on the Ira Nichols' farm October 15, was the son of Edward and Elizabeth Dale. He was born in Lincolnshire, England, in July, 1888. Twenty years ago he came with his parents to this country and has lived in this community for about four years, spending the last year at the home of Ira Nichols. In his infancy he was baptized and became a member of the Episcopal church. Ernest was an honest, straightforward, conscientious young man, always cheerful and hopeful until about a year ago when he suffered a severe attack of rheumatism, during which he seemed to be very discouraged and melancholy. After his recovery he seemed to be as cheerful as ever until a month ago when he was again a sufferer of rheumatism. He said he couldn't endure as much pain as he did a year ago. He was engaged to Miss Verna Lettow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lettow. He spent Sunday, Oct. 13, with Verna and her parents at the home of John Ollman and seemed to be quite cheerful although he was suffering intense pain. STORY OF A DIAMOND.

Pitt's Purchase of the Great Mogul and Its Sale to France.

In his "Feuilles d'Histoire" M. Bioges publishes a mass of correspondence that had not hitherto seen the light relative to the history of the diamond of the great Mogul. This correspondence consists of letters of Thomas Pitt, grandfather of the Earl of Chatham.

In 1701 Pitt was governor of Madras, and at the same time he represented an English company. One day a man came and offered to sell for £89,000 a diamond of an extraordinary size, evidently stolen from the mines of the great Mogul.

In his position of governor Pitt should have denounced the theft; in his position of commercial agent he should have thought first of the interests of his company. He did neither, but used his authority to intimidate the man and beat down his price, and eventually the precious stone came into Pitt's possession for the sum of £20,000.

He committed it to the care of his son Robert, ordering him to take it to England and have it cut. When his son had started on his journey the father began to have qualms. He calculated the value of the diamond at £800,000, and the very idea of such a vast sum frightened him.

His wife was already a great spendthrift, and he feared his son would take after her. His fears were not groundless, for Robert hastened to marry a dowerless girl and began housekeeping on a ruinous scale.

The diamond when it came into the hands of the cutter, Cope, by no means fulfilled all the expectations founded upon its value. Impurities and fissures necessitated a wholesale cutting down, and from 426 carats it fell finally to 128.

To make matters worse, Thomas Pitt found himself in hot water. His political enemies made things warm for him, and his company talked of bringing an action against him to recover the value of the diamond. He judged it wise to return to Europe himself and get rid of the stone and wind up the whole affair.

His patriotism would have liked to see the diamond remain in England, but Queen Anne's funds were always at a low ebb and were not equal to the strain of buying the great Mogul's stone. George I. admired the stone wholeheartedly, but declined to buy it on the ground that it was parliament's duty to make him a present of it. So Pitt resolved to offer the jewel to the regent of France, who decided to purchase it for the sum of £100,000.—Paris Journal des Debats.

THE HEALER

Parents Think a Miracle Has Been Performed

Facts are often stranger than fiction. You have heard that said. For this reason you will hardly believe the simple statement of a fact. It sounds like a miracle. Possibly it is, though it is only one of many similar and wonderful cures that have been wrought by The Healer without other means than that of the laying on of hands.

Miss Nellie Parker of Weldon, Ill., who is now 25 years of age, had hip trouble when a child three years old. She was in bed for a year and then recovered sufficiently to get about with crutches. She had not taken a step for 21 years, without the aid of crutches. Her limb was in a paralyzed condition, being numb and cold, no life in it what ever; therefore, had no use of it. She was in a very nervous and weak condition physically. Was not able to do any kind of work, could hardly take care of herself and was what would be called a complete invalid.

In about 15 treatments, this young lady was in perfect condition. She laid aside her crutches and has not used them at all for the past three months. She does not even limp. Her walk is perfect. Her nervous condition has disappeared and she is now doing as much work around the house as anyone. Her parents think a miracle has been performed.

W. C. T. U. Notes

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Jerry Patterson on Emmett street Thursday, October 31, at 2:30 p. m. A good attendance is desired. Everybody welcome. A good many were present and a very interesting meeting was held last week with Mrs. Lila Young. The president of the L. T. L. reported the work well planned and we are hoping that much good may be done by teaching the children the great truths connected with the infamous liquor traffic. Plans were made to distribute literature and for observing Temperance Sunday. We all feel we have work to do. Sisters, women of Genoa, do you know that some of the men say we do not care for the ballot because we do not use the right we already have to vote on school matters. At the coming election while we cannot vote for the president we can vote for the University trustees and we hope every woman entitled to a vote, who has not already done so, will go next Tuesday and register and then on election day go and cast their vote and maybe after a while the men will give us a chance to vote against the saloon and its attendant evils. We hereby quote the words of our sainted chieftan, Frances E. Willard, "We are a world's republic of women, who recognize no sectarianism in religion, no sectionalism in politics and no sex in citizenship. There are bands of ribbon white around the world, and you and I, bound by their pure white clasp thank God and take courage to wage our peaceful war for God and home and every land." We belong! let every lip echo the words, let every heart cherish them. Each of us is as much a part of the world's union as is any other woman. The white ribbon includes all reforms and whatever touches humanity touches us. All women over 21 years of age are entitled to vote.

His Speaking Eyes.

Aunt Caroline and the partner of her woes evidently found connubial bliss a misnomer, for the sounds of war were often heard down in the little cabin in the hollow. Finally the pair were haled into court, and the dusky lady entered a charge of abusive language against her spouse. The judge, who had known them both all his life, endeavored to pour oil on the troubled waters.

"What did he say to you, Caroline?" he asked.

"Why, judge, I jes' can't tell you all dat man do say to me."

"Does he ever use hard language?"

"Does yo' mean cussin'? Yassah, not wif his mouf, but he's always givin' me dem cussory glances."—Lippincott's.

Optimist and Pessimist.

An optimist is a man who does not care what happens so long as it does not happen to him; a pessimist is a man who has lived for a long time with an optimist.
