Emma Riggs of DeKalb Starts Divorce Proceedings

H. LUNDBERG STARTS $5000 SUIT

G. E. Stott and E. W. Brown are Defendants in Suit Brought Out of Defunct Piano Mfg. Company

Emma F. Riggs of the city of DeKalb brought suit for separate maintenance against her husband, Ellisworth Riggs, now residing at Peoria, Illinois. It is alleged in the bill that she was joined in marriage with the defendant on December 25, 1902 and lived with him until November 23, 1920. That on the last mentioned date on account of her condition of health the defendant placed her in a sanitarium for treatment and paid one week's board for her and since that date has not contributed to her support. Further that on February 7, 1921, the defendant moved to Peoria and abandoned her. She further states that the defendant is the owner of real estate of about $2500 and is a carpenter earning about $50 per week and abundantly able to support her. She asks that the defendant return to her all her clothing, jewelry, furniture and that he account for all rent collected from the property occupied by them as a homestead.

The DeKalb Chronicle Publishing Company brought action known as trespass on the case on promises against D. De Witt, Wm. Frederick Trustee for D. De Witt Plank, Mary Wheeler, Leonard Wheeler, Marcus E. Plank and Fay Plank, for the sum of $2000. The action is brought to recover for the printing of a record, etc., in an action in which the defendants are involved and which is now pending in the Supreme Court of Illinois.

An appeal was filed in the circuit court from an order of the county court entered February 13, refusing probate of the will of Michael Quinn, who died on December 29, 1921. The heirs and legatees under the will are Anna McGowan of Grand Rapids, Mich., Mary Bremer of Grand Rapids, Emma O'Rourke of Grand Rapids and Nellie Bender of Kirkland. The subscribing witnesses to the will are Daniel Hohm and Joe. F. Quin. After hearing their testimony in the county court it was not deemed sufficient and probate of the will was refused.

Bessie Hortense Osborne, daughter of Nellie Cotton of DeKalb, was adjudged insane by a jury in the county court on Tuesday and ordered committed to the Elgin hospital. She suffered with delusions that her mother was only a friend and not her mother, and with proper treatment she will probably recover shortly.

The last chapter was written into the case of John Mason, formerly of Hinckley, but lately of Aurora, when he was taken by Sheriff Decker to the penitentiary at Joliet last Wednesday. He has now begun to serve his term of from 1 to 14 years for the assault upon Mary Charmsis, his own niece. The fact that he is back of the prison bars is a great relief to State's Attorney Poust.

Robert Thornton and Arlie Reams, both of DeKalb, were brought into the county court on Monday, charged with violating the Prohibition Act on information filed against them by State's Attorney Poust.

They were arrested last October by the police in DeKalb for bringing liquor in a machine from Chicago and have been in jail ever since. On their pleas of guilty to possessing and transporting liquor they were each fined $100 and costs amounting in each case to $149.50 by Judge Pond. In sentencing the men Judge Pond told them he hoped this was their first and last offense as a second violation means a penitentiary sentence.

A declaration was filed in the action brought by H. Anderson against E. W. Brown and G. E. Stott of Genoa. From the papers filed the suit is an echo of the defunct Genoa Piano Mfg. Co. It appears that the plaintiff was a wave claimant of the Pierce company, for the sum of $213.30 and states that number of conferences were had as a result of which certain stipulations were entered into by him and the defendants and afterward an trust agreement was executed for

SHABBONA'S SCHOOL BURNS

New High School, Built Last Year, Destroyed by Fire Friday

Fire of undetermined origin, but believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, destroyed the Shabbona high school early Friday morning, entailing a loss of $60,000 partially covered by insurance.

According to reports from the village during the day, the roof in the center of the building was discovered to be on fire about six o'clock. The alarm was sounded and while the fire department was endeavoring to get the blaze under control hundreds of people worked on the task of removing the contents from the building.

The fire gained such headway, however, that it was almost impossible to get much of the equipment of the school to a place of safety. The firemen worked diligently with the available fire fighting apparatus, but the building was almost entirely in flames within a few minutes after it was discovered.

The Shabbona school was completed about one year ago and was a modern small town high school made of brick veneer, one story and about 150 feet square.

It was at first thought that the fire might have been caused by the furnace. Bob Stewart, the janitor of the building, discounted this statement, however, as he stated he was at the school the night before and had little or no fire in the heating plant.

The Shabbona authorities appealed to fire chief McEvoy shortly after seven o'clock Friday morning. With Jack Cook and his truck and Quinn's chemical tank he started for the village. By the time the chief arrived, however, the building was a mass in ruins. A few minutes after the first call for help was received, another message was sent, telling the department here, the building was burned to the ground.—DeKalb Chronicle.

G. A. A. DIVIDES DOUBLE HEADER

Wallops Burlington and in Turn is Stepped on By Hampshire

In a slow and wozzy combat last Friday night Burlington was completely outclassed and lost the first game of the evening 17 to 7. In fact Burlington only registered one field goal. On the other hand the boys of that town had no place to practice and thereby hangs the tale of the score.

The second game between Hampshire and Genoa was a rather fast game, but superior team work and eyes for the basket spelled defeat for the locals. The Hampshire aggregation is a fast bunch of players and having played together for a few years they are naturally pretty well used to each other's tricks. However next year may find a different story lauding on the belts of outside victors. The score of the game was 15-35.

carrying on the business and liquidating the wage claims. It is further alleged that the stipulations were not carried out and subsequent litigation and court costs, used up the assets of the Piano company, which could have been devoted toward the paying of the wage claims. That as a result he received only 20 per cent of his claim and now claims that the defendants are liable to him for the remaining sum of $170.64.

A $5000 damage suit was brought in the circuit court some time ago by Hugo Hindeberg against Robert L. Murphy, the owner of Electric Park in which the declaration has recently been filed. From this it appears and it is claimed that on July 7, 1921, the defendant assaulted the plaintiff, dragged him along the public streets of DeKalb to a certain police office and imprisoned him for about two hours. That the defendant represented himself to be a deputy sheriff and that he detained him in prison, whereas it was a wave claimant of the Pierce company, for the sum of $213.30 and states that number of conferences were had as a result of which certain stipulations were entered into by him and the defendants and afterward an trust agreement was executed for

SOMETHING WORTH WHILE

Public Health Nurses Are On the Job Throughout DeKalb County

CAUSE WORTHY OF YOUR TIME

To Keep the Children Clean, Well Fed and Properly Instructed in the Right Mode of Living

Recently mention was made of the organization and work of the Public Health League. We are now enabled to give publicity to some of the active progress made in the work by the public health nurses.

Mrs. Harriet Springer of the nursing service has been devoting her chief energies to the schools at Sycamore. In her work as with the work of the other nurses she gives to each child as examined individual instruction as to its particular health needs. After the school has been completely examined a half hour health talk is given pertaining to general health and how to grow up to be healthy men and women. If necessary a return call is made to observe the progress made. It is surprising to note the zeal with which the hands, face ears, necks, teeth and finger nails are cleaned up when it is known ahead that the nurse is coming. The teachers are instructed to keep tabs on the cases where the children get careless. The remark is often made by the children and is what the League neglect of the simple health habits, "used to do it when the other nurse was here" indicating that Miss Pickrell's work as Red Cross nurse for two years had brought results but which were not followed up last year for want of a nurse. This demonstrates the need of follow up work among the children and is what the League is attempting to do. Mrs. Springer with the assistance of local health officers and Dr. Rodney Wright, district health officer has also been fighting some outbreaks of contagious disease and has done much to keep down a general epidemic by watching the schools, the children and families who have been quarantined. It is desired that if necessary to stamp out this kind of contagion a call can be made for the other nurse to come and help until the trouble is under control with such assistance as the health authorities may offer.

At Shabbona, after the health examinations as made by Miss Cora Hearne developed that quite a few children were under weight for their age and height more than 7 per cent. The teachers in the grades organized with Miss Hearne's assistance a nutrition class for these children. Some 12 to 13 enrolled. Mr. Stout, the principal, and Miss McGinnis, one of the teachers are especially interested and each Thursday afternoon the parents of the children meet at the school to observe the work and Miss Hearne has also endeavored to be there. As this is one of the first nutrition classes in the county, the results will be observed with interest and beneficial results are already becoming apparent and will later be given publicity. Dr. Smith, the dentist at Shabbona, has offered, free of charge, to be present at the Shabbona schools and examine every pupil in the grades for mouth and teeth troubles and to make a record of the same. It is the aim of the teachers and parents to have a 100 per cent perfect school as far as mouth and teeth are concerned and with this in mind Dr. Smith has also offered to do such corrective work as may bring this about at a very material reduction in charges. The grade that attains 100 per cent first will be given a half holiday with a picnic or something equally as good attached. Miss Hearne and Miss Kruger have been busy of late with the schools at Hinckley, Mrs. Franklin at DeKalb and Miss Lockwood at Sandwich. The average of major and minor defects as suspected by the nurses is very nearly equal to the number of children examined.

It is the ambition of the nurses to establish baby clinics on Saturdays and to which all mothers will be invited to bring their babies for weighing and other examinations. To show what has been done we will take the American Dr. and Wire Co. at DeKalb which employs a nurse among

BUGGY TURNS TURTLE

Failure of Autoist to Dim Lights Nearly Causes Tragedy

Last Saturday night while enroute to their home in the country via the horse and buggy mode of transportation, Mr. and Mrs. Luman Colton and baby were blinded by the glare of the headlights of an auto near the Deer creek bridge north of town and driving too close to the edge of the road the buggy and occupants turned over. Mrs. Colton sustained an injured shoulder, Mr. Colton several bruises and the baby was not even scratched, despite the fact that Mr. Colton fell on it in the mix-up. After getting their bearings, the young couple righted the buggy and drove home.

It is a state law that all lights on autos must be dimmed when approaching any vehicle. Failure to do so is punishable with a fine or imprisonment or both. A little action on a few laws and not so much red tape on all the law would make this a much safer country in which to live

LIGHTENING STRIKES LAUNDRY

During the severe electrical storm Tuesday afternoon, lightning struck the Genoa laundry building, causing a small fire to be started in the roof of the building. The fire department was summoned and the small blaze was quickly extinguished. Owing to the fact that the building is full of steam pipes, the bolt of electricity must have grounded, otherwise the building would have been a mass of flames.

it workers has now over 100 babies enrolled in its clinics and the interest has spread to the parents of other babies outside the workers of the steel company and these babies have also been given the benefits of the clinic.

Another thing that is needed is volunteers among the doctors of the county to give monthly or semi-monthly lectures to the boys of the high schools as are now being given by Mrs. Springer to the girls of the high school at Sycamore. These health lectures are aimed to acquaint the youth of high school age to a realization of what the use and abuse of health does for him and is vital to better living and a better community. Shall it be done?

Hampshire Divides Honors with Genoa

It will be remembered that last year, Genoa teams were greeted by a slippery floor and that the Hampshire teams used belt dressing on their shoes to keep from slipping. After slipping around all evening, both teams were defeated.

Last Saturday the boys went to Hampshire prepared to stand up and play ball. Before the first game the Genoa boys had their shoes chalked and some carried a sprinkling out with them in order to help maintain an upright position. The game was played and the boys were able to keep their feet and the long end of the score. When the first team trotted out on the floor they were ordered by Prof. Morgan to either sweep all the chalk of the floor or go home. After great suspense on the part of Genoa for fear that they would not be able to play at all, the Hampshire management relented and the game was played.

The Genoa seconds stepped on Hampshire's pride by defeating them 19 to 15. Genoa scored first and kept the lead through the game. It was a fast game, but that our boys were ever on top was certainly encouraging to both teams and to the large delegation from Genoa. Score 19 to 15.

The first team met the same old Hampshire team with Kuhl at center. Genoa fought hard from start to finish and although their floor work outclassed Hampshire's, Kahl's splendid basket shooting won the game. Score 33 to 15.

Triple Header Saturday Night

A triple header will be played in the Genoa gym next Saturday when the Genoa 7th and 8th grade teams play Sycamore; the Genoa heavies play DeKalb lightweights and Hampshire heavies play DeKalb heavies. Admission 50 and 35 cents.

U. A. D. Meets

Owing to the game next Saturday the U. A. D. club met last Friday evening at the home of Bertha and Irving Peterson at Charter Grove. To give the meeting a little variety, the club members dressed backwards, the result was humorous. There were eleven members present and Helen Peterson was an honorary guest. A lunch was served at a late hour.

The state inspector of schools, J. Calvin Hannah, visited the high school last week. His comments on the building were very satisfactory and he asked permission to refer other school boards to us for details. Our class work impressed him very favorably.

Eighth Grade Assembly

A very interesting program was given by the eighth grade last Friday. It was exceptionally good considering the fact that it was their first appearance before the school.

Esther Austin gave a piano solo, "Dixie"; the chairman, Kenneth Cooper told a story about "Lincoln." James Reid described the "Life of Lincoln"; Kenneth Tilley and Rosa Gordon gave anecdotes on Lincoln and Marjory Rosenfeld told a story about the great Emancipator, Edna Holmes played a piano solo, "Twilight Dreams." Lorene Homenway gave a reading entitled "My Captain." The assembly ended with the singing of America by the school.

COOPERATIVE MARKETING LAW

The national co-operative marketing bill, backed by Illinois county farm bureaus, the Illinois Agricultural Association and the American Farm Bureau Federation, is now a United States law, after having been signed by the president and passed by both houses by decisive majorities. The bill had been before congress since last April. The agricultural block was a strong factor in its passage.

The bill authorizes farmers' associations to establish cooperative producers' marketing organizations and contains provisions for the protection of both producer and consumer.

CORN ROOT ROT VERY DANGEROUS

Tests in Genoa High Laboratories Show Many Defective Ears

HAVE CORN TESTED SATURDAY

A Large Number of Farmers Attended The Lecture at the Opera House in Genoa Last Saturday Afternoon

Over half of the corn growers near Genoa gathered at the opera house last Saturday to learn about the corn root rot disease that is becoming alarmingly prevalent throughout the state. Slides showing the various stages of the disease and the steps necessary in selecting disease free corn were shown. The slides were kindly supplied by Mr. Funk, who has been working on this disease for some years, and is now in a position to give definite advice. The slides were explained by Mr. Allyn, crop expert of DeKalb county.

That much of the disease free seed corn may be obtained by proper selection in the fall from the standing corn was shown very well at the high school, to which those interested went after the talk at the opera house.

Samples of corn from many of the farms near Genoa were inspected for the presence of this disease. They had been placed in the rag doll testers, and kept at a temperature of 75 to 80 degrees for one week. In almost every case the smooth type ear with a clear shank tested far above the rough type in freedom from disease.

In making the test, six kernels were taken from each ear. Those ears which showed at the end of the week six kernels with strong, healthy sprouts and roots, with no mold, and which appeared a clear white when cut open lengthwise were called disease free. That this disease is, indeed, very serious was shown by the high percentages of diseased ears in the samples submitted. In several cases, out of twenty ears, there was not a single sound ear. In others there were only two or three. One sample of smooth type corn showed up fairly free from disease and one smooth type yellow sample.

A test conducted by Mr. Funk on his farm at Bloomington, Illinois, gave the following results in 1921: Diseased seed corn 79 bushels of 54 pounds each to the acre, and disease free seed corn yielded 86 bushels of 59 pounds each under the same field and weather conditions.

Every corn grower should make a thorough attempt to procure disease free seed corn this spring. Unless this disease is checked, the yield of corn in Illinois will be cut in two in the next five years. Those who have seed corn are welcome to submit twenty ears each at the high school for testing on Friday, February 24.

TAX EXPERT HELD FOR THEFT

F. W. Berg, income tax expert who has been doing business for several large firms in Elgin, was arrested Saturday night on a McHenry county warrant charging him with the theft of an automobile.

Berg was in his room at the Kelley hotel when he was arrested by the police. He was locked up in Elgin and later taken to the county jail at Woodstock, the McHenry county seat, where he was to be given a hearing.

Kelly Brothers of Marengo asked Berg's arrest, stating in the larceny warrant that he rented a car from them July 4, 1921, and never returned. He has been in Elgin for some time.

Berg is thirty years old and claims Rockford is his home. He is an expert accountant.

Berg is known in Genoa, having put in a system of account books for several business houses here.

DOES LAUNDRY WORK AND HOUSEWORK TOO Surprised to Find Herself Feeling So Well

Taunton, Mass.—"I used to have pains in my back and legs so badly, with other troubles that women sometimes have, that my doctor ordered me to stay in bed a week in every month. It didn't do me much good, so one day after talking with a friend who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about the same troubles I had, I thought I would try it also. I find that I can work in the laundry all through the time and do my housework, too. Last month I was so surprised at myself to be up and around and feeling so good while before I used to feel completely lifeless. I have told some of the girls who work with me and have such troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I tell them how it has helped me. You can use my testimony for the good of others. Mrs. BLANCHES SILVER, 59 Grant St., Taunton, Mass.

Care of the Farm Pump

Cold weather and possibly some spare time on the part of the farmer should bring the farm pump into the limelight.

The pump, like most of the farm implements, requires periodic inspection and repairs, else it may stop work just about the time the farmer needs it. After a pump has been working for several seasons satisfactorily the chances are that it is approaching the time when it will need attention.

When time and weather permit, the pump and cylinders should be raised and overhauled. New leather washers should replace the old ones. The valves, unless they are of the "glass-rubber" type, should be ground in or at least be inspected to see that they are properly seating. Also in case there are any defective rods, pipes, etc., now is the time to make these replacements.

In case the pump is exposed to freezing and has no method of draining, it may be advisable to drill a small hole in the pipe above the cylinder, thus affording a means of draining down to the cylinders. A small pet cock together with a long rod may be utilized to open and close this drain hole as desired. The hole need not be more than 10-15 feet below the pump. Or it may be that a small opening not more than one-eighth inch be made, and allowed to remain open continually. This will, of course, waste a small amount of water when the pump is working, but it affords a pretty safe way of draining the pump and pipe down to the level of the hole. The amount of water wasted is negligible.

A few of the more general pump troubles and methods for remedying them include:

1. Packing glands or boxes are tightened only sufficiently to prevent leakage. Having them too tight causes excessive friction and wear.

2. All bearings and rubbing parts should be oiled or greased. Lost motion in bearings causes short life and breakage.

3. Loss of priming in a hand pump is caused by the lower valve either wearing out, or not seating properly. Continual trouble in this respect indicates a worn or faulty valve. Occasional trouble is probably due to sediment under valve.

4. When the pump works hard and the handle is inclined to jerk, either the strainer or the suction pipe is stopped up or else the bottom valve is stuck. Generally the strainer is plugged with sand.

5. An unsteady stream of water mixed with considerable air indicates a loose joint or corroded pipe through which air finds its way on the suction stroke.

6. In a double-action pump, when no water is thrown on down stroke, the trouble is with the valve in lower plunger; if water is thrown on down stroke but not on up stroke, look for the trouble with the check valve.

7. A little care occasionally expended on the pump is always repaid in steadiness and efficiency of operation and in long service.

What Shall We Eat?

What foods do the 110,000,000 people in the United States consume every year? Anyone might enumerate a vast variety of cereal, vegetable, fruit, oil, fish, meat, and dairy products, such as bread, cornmeal, potatoes, cabbage, apples, prunes, cottonseed oil, lard, butter, salmon, steaks, milk, and so on through an almost endless list.

But it is very interesting to know that the great bulk of our food comes from an extremely limited number of sources. From wheat alone comes over one-fourth. If to this is added the foods from milk, cows, hogs, and the sugar-producing plants (each contributing about 15 per cent), we have accounted for more than 70 per cent of all our food. And this total is raised to 88 per cent by including corn, beef cattle, potatoes, and poultry.

All other sources contribute to our food in only a very minor degree so far as their energy value is concerned. Thus all vegetables (other than potatoes) add only 1 per cent; apples, another 1 per cent; all other fruits, barely 1 per cent more, and in the other animal products, all kinds of fish have to be thrown in with mutton to aggregate a further increase of 1 per cent. We may like our dish of strawberries, containing more water than the bluest milk milk, but for the sustenance of life, truly wheat is the stuff.

We are accustomed to regard our country as a great food exporting nation; yet it is well to know that before the war our food imports exceeded, slightly, our food exports. While war demands changed this relation somewhat, we are rapidly tending back to the line of balance if it has not already been passed. That would seem to mean that foods must grow more and more costly.

Admittedly, foods from animal sources are expensive of production. Yet, two-fifths of our food comes from animals. The two most efficient animals, the cow and the hog, contribute 82 per cent of the animal foods. Many writers have stated that these two, because of their efficiency, would be the surviving animals as our population increases. The above figures show that we already depend on them to a very large extent.

One of the great fields for investigation is that of increasing the efficiency of our food-producing animals; for, excepting perhaps a few vegetarians, we do not wish to be deprived of our animal foods, even to a small extent. The day of reduction can be postponed if improvement keeps pace with population. Thorough scientific investigation, co-operating with the practice of the foremost breeders, is essential to that end.

Standard Small Crop Seeds

Price has too long been the only standard used in purchasing crop seed. The same high standards should be used in securing farm seed as are used in buying breeding animals. In order to produce maximum crop yields the best seed must be sown.

Clover seeds turn a reddish-brown color with age. Many good samples are adulterated with these old reddish-brown seeds. Immature seeds can be recognized by their light, greenish color and shriveled condition. The dark purple colored, red clover seeds are to be preferred to the yellow ones. For any crop large seeds of the same variety will grow better than small seeds. Grass seeds should not be more than two years old and clover not more than three.

No one would think of buying a sick cow for milk production; neither should he be satisfied with scabby wheat, smutty oats nor diseased corn for crop production.

The farmer is the greatest offender in distributing noxious weeds through the purchase of impure seeds. An astonishingly high percentage of the worst weeds in the United States was imported from foreign countries through imported seeds. Besides containing noxious weed seeds, imported clovers will not grow as well as our home-grown product.

The progressive farmers are obtaining only pedigreed seeds, the same as most of us demand only pedigreed live stock.

No seed should be planted which does not germinate well.

Treatment for Oat Smut

Do you want a big crop of oats this year? Then don't run any risk. Treat your oats for smut. Over a period of five years several treatments were experimented with by the agricultural experiment station of the University of Illinois, and the one here given proved the most effective of all. The use of this university formula will save Illinois farmers thousands of dollars in the coming crop. Here it is:

1. Thoroughly fan and screen the oats.

2. Mix one pint of formalin with ten gallons of water for each 80 bushels of seed to be treated.

Keep this solution covered so as to prevent the formaldehyde gas from escaping.

3. Sprinkle the solution over the oats, using one pint to each bushel, and mix thoroughly.

4. Pile the oats up and cover with blankets, canvas or sacks.

5. After two hours uncover the oats. If they have been thoroughly mixed they will have absorbed the moisture so thoroughly that they will be dry enough to sow at once in a broadcast seeder or drill.

6. If the oats are not seeded at once, they should be spread out in a thin layer and stirred occasionally to allow the escape of the formaldehyde gas.

This recommendation is based on five years' investigations planned to determine a simple, convenient method of treating oats for smut.

Skim Milk and Tankage

One pound of tankage has about the same feeding value for pigs as 10 to 12 pounds of skim milk or buttermilk, when each is used in the proper proportions.

Stated in another way, 100 pounds of skim milk has a feeding value of about 8 to 10 pounds of tankage. There are several guides that may be used in estimating the value of each feed. One is that a pound of tankage should be purchased for about one-third the price of live hogs per pound. Another is that 100 pounds of skim milk should be purchased and delivered for about 40 per cent of the price of a bushel of corn.

It is also sometimes said that 4 1/2 pounds of skim milk are equivalent in feeding value to 1 pound of corn. Rather than not use any protein supplement to corn, one could afford to pay more than above stated for either feed.

Crib Measurement

To find the number of bushels of corn in a crib, multiply the length by the width by the average depth, all in feet, and divide by 2 1/2.

New Use for Old Clock. Little brass or fancy clocks, which were very popular a while back, but which have lost their "going" powers and stay stopped, the face indicating a time that is wholly wrong all the time, can be saved for a new purpose by taking out the glass crystal with ease, inserting a picture and pressing it back in. Thus the little clock will be transformed into a picture frame and its prettiness will still adorn the mantel shelf.

Reason in His Madness. "John, your face looks terribly battered up," said the teacher to John, age seven. "You haven't been fighting on the way to school, have you?" she inquired.

"No," said John, "we moved yesterday and I had to carry the cat."

This is of Vital Importance to Every Woman. You Should not Overlook One Word. Decatur, Ill.—"I was all broken-down in body and in spirits and had given up to utter despair. JEWISH FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS

Has Been Held for Centuries as a Memorial of the Dedication of the Altar.

Hanukkah, the Feast of Dedication, also called "Feast of the Maccabees," is a Jewish festival beginning on the twenty-fifth day of Kislev (December) and continuing for eight days, chiefly as a festival of lights. It was instituted by Judas Maccabeus, his brothers, and the elders of the congregation of Israel, in the year 165 B. C., to be celebrated annually with mirth and joy as a memorial of the dedication of the altar, or the purification of the sanctuary.

After having recovered the Holy city and the Temple from the Greeks, Judas ordered a new altar to be built in the place of the one which had been polluted by Antiochus Epiphanes, who had caused a pagan altar to be set up in the Temple of Jerusalem, and sacrifices to be offered to his idol. When the fire had been kindled anew upon the altar and the lamps of the candlestick lit, the dedication of the altar was celebrated for eight days amid sacrifices and songs.

In the Talmud the festival is principally known as the "Feast of Illumination," and it was usual either to display eight lamps on the first night of the festival, and reduce the number on each successive night, or to begin with one lamp the first night, increasing the number till the eighth night. The lights are supposed to be symbolical of the liberty obtained by the Jews on the day of which Hanukkah is the celebration.

FIND HEALTH IN SUN'S RAYS

Ancients Had Full Faith in Treatment Now Practiced in the Most Modern Sanitariums.

In a small village in the Adirondacks there is a sanitarium where patients take sun baths. And a high price is charged for the treatment.

Bathing in the sun's rays for health is an ancient ceremony, handed down from the earliest ages. Wiseacres in bygone times used to bathe in the sunshine, believing in the great value of light as a destroyer of disease. Light was the secret and universal medicine by which they cured many diseases.

Sunlight is the greatest factor in our planetary existence; if it failed all life would perish. One has only to look at nature for potent examples. In vegetable, animal and human life the influence of sunlight is strongly manifest. Compare the vegetation in the gardens of a back street away from the sunlight with similar growth in the open country. Compare the children of the country with those living down a narrow street of the city slums.

For creating good general health and happiness no medicine is so effective as the direct rays of the sun. A sun bath consists of letting the rays of the sun bathe the skin each day, preferably during the morning. The body is, of course, wholly or partially uncovered.

Marine Phenomenon.

Late one January the steamship Trafalgar, when within ten miles of Wolf rock, off the southeast coast of England, met with a remarkable accident.

A report like that of a cannon was heard, and a large fiery body with a tail 80 or 40 feet long struck the water 20 feet from the vessel. It was accompanied by a loud hissing, and a column of water rose where it struck the sea. Immediately afterward the ship seemed to be on fire, the engine room glowing with a violet light filled with multitudes of sparks. The mate engaged at the wheel suffered a violent shock through the steel rod in his hand. The crew fled to the deck. It was found that all the compasses had been demagnetized, and the ship had much difficulty in making her way to Falmouth. It was probably a strong lightning flash which struck the water and the subsequent electric phenomena were produced by the dispersal of the charge supplied to the surface of the sea.

"Gibraltar of Canada."

Quebec citadel, sometimes called the "Gibraltar of Canada," is a strong fortification covering 40 acres of ground, and in its present form it dates from 1828. The more modern fortifications were constructed in 1820-30, substantially on the lines of the French works of 1820. The citadel has been garrisoned by Canadian soldiers since the withdrawal of British troops in 1871. It incloses a parade and drill ground, 42 acres in extent, surrounded by barracks and magazines under the ramparts. A large stone building forms the "Officers Quarters," with the "Governor General's Residence" (occasionally occupied by him) at the east end, overlooking the river.

A splendid vista can be seen from the king's bastion at the northeast angle of the ramparts. The west ramparts overlook the Plains of Abraham.

All the Symptoms.

"Was Mr. Grabco in his office when you called?"

"No, he must have been playing golf."

"Are you sure about this?"

"Reasonably sure. The office force seemed to think he wouldn't be back soon. Most of the clerks had their feet up on their desks and three stenographers were glued to telephones."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name, its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

GEORGIA.

GEORGIA has a deeply religious origin among the Maritime Christians who have a tradition that Georgios was a Christian sentinel at Damascus who connived at the escape of St. Paul when he was let down in the basket, and was therefore put to death. The next Georgios was a Cappadocian saint and martyr in whose honor Emperor Constantine erected a church at Byzantium. Throughout all early church history Georgios appears as saint, martyr or hero until, finally, the famous St. George of the Dragon legend became renowned in England.

Curiously enough, though George penetrated every country of the west, being adopted by England, France, Hungary and Germany, the feminine is quite a modernism. It was not until comparatively recent years that Anne of Denmark was instrumental in having a godchild of hers christened Georgia Anna. She was the first English Georgia, though the name is said to have existed previously on the continent. It is possible that this same Georgia Anna coupled her two names for the sake of euphony and is responsible for the Georgiana which is now so popular in all English-speaking countries.

The French adopted Georgia, but quickly changed her to Georgine and Gergette. Germany liked Georgine and took her over, making her one of her most popular feminine names. England has a form Georgia and Portugal is responsible for Gergetta. In America alone does the original Georgia seem to flourish.

Georgia's talismanic gem is the bloodstone, which has strong therapeutic powers and not only preserves its wearer from danger and disease but it is said to be a curative in hemorrhages and other disturbances of the blood. Tuesday is her lucky day and 4 her lucky number. The violet, signifying modesty, is her flower. (Copyright.)

Canadian Cities Far Apart.

The distance between Halifax, N. S., and Vancouver, B. C., by the most direct railway route, is 3,646 miles, which is 615 miles more than the distance between London, England, and Constantinople, Turkey, by the trans-European railway.

Cat Took Nap in Limousine.

The cat that looked at a king was only slightly more ambitious than a Hyde Park tabby that took possession of a limousine standing by the curb, remarks the Chicago Post. The cat, a bedraggled stray, was pussyfooting through the rain of one of the recent cold days, evidently in search of a comfortable place for a nap. It passed by doorways and fliters as not up to its aristocratic demands, then spied the limousine standing at the curb and promptly decided to move in.

Unfortunately for the cat, the doors of the car were closed. Tabby found this out after a thorough inspection that started at the left side running board, included the top and then the right side running board. Finally the cat tried the front, but the windshield was closed, too. Then tabby picked out a spot on the hood that still retained some heat from the engine, curled up and went to sleep. Tabby held possession until the owner appeared.

Weeds.

What hidden virtue is in these things that it is granted them to sow themselves with the wind, and to grapple the earth with this humiligrass stubbornness, and to flourish in spite of obstacles, and never to suffer blight beneath any sun or shade, but always to mock their enemies with the same wicked luxuriance? It is truly a mystery and also a symbol. There is a sort of sacredness about them. Perhaps, if we could penetrate nature's secrets, we should find what we call weeds are more essential to the well being of the world than the most precious fruit or grain. This may be doubted, however, for there is an unmistakable analogy between these wicked weeds and the bad habits and sinful propensities which have overrun the moral world; and we may as well imagine that there is good in one as in the other.—Hawthorne.

Domestic Stuff.

"Oh, goodness gracious mercy, I'm most distracted! I've looked for it everywhere and I simply can't find it!" wailed Mrs. Worrylotte.
"Why don'tcha look where you're sure yuh didn't put it?" inquired Worrylotte, who knew his woman.

Sensitive Tobacco.

Havana tobacco is the most delicate and sensitive of any tobacco grown. You can test this by subjecting a box of Havana cigars to extremes of heat or cold, moisture or dryness. The best temperature for Havana cigars is 60 degrees Fahrenheit. You may get a box of a good brand and find it a failure. But before you condemn the brand be sure that it is not the fault of the dealer, says a tobacco expert.

Air-Carrying Spider.

The water spider (Argyroneta aquatica), though an air-breathing creature, spends nearly its whole existence in the water. It is enabled to breathe beneath the surface by means of a bubble of air, retained in the long hairs that cover the spider's abdomen. It also weaves a dome-shaped nest under water, attached to some plant, and fills it with air, which the spider carries down from the surface, a bubble at a time.

Fifty Men and One Elephant.
Interesting tests were once made to determine the respective pulling power of horses, men and elephants. Two horses, weighing 1,700 pounds each together pulled 3,750 pounds, or 550 pounds more than their combined weight. One elephant, weighing 12,000 pounds, pulled 8,750 pounds, or 3,250 pounds less than his weight. Fifty men, aggregating about 7,500 pounds in weight, pulled 8,750 pounds, or just as much as the single elephant. But like the horses, they pulled more than their own weight. One hundred men pulled 12,000 pounds.

Lacking Human Sympathy.
Most of us have come across people, otherwise good, but lacking entirely in the softer human qualities. They are austere, feelingless, hard, utterly devoid of sympathy. And, all because they have been denied that gift of affection when they were in the molding. Statistics prove that children from institutions are sadly lacking in affection. It is one of the greatest problems social workers must deal with.—Exchange.

The Wonderful Tigris.
From Bagdad to the sea, more than 600 miles, the Tigris is navigable for any boat not drawing more than about eight feet. River steamers go to Bagdad, though they often run aground on the shifting sands.

From Experience.
"Isn't this a pretty slow railroad?" said Brown. "That depends on circumstances," replied Green. "The only time it seems in any great hurry is when you happen to be running to catch the train."

Perhaps, Indeed!
A Brooklyn man is being sued for divorce because he objected when his wife had her hair bobbed. Don't be too quick to denounce him. Perhaps her cuts are bigger than he supposed them to be.

That English Weather.

Spot Removing.
One of the secrets of successful "spotting" or stain-removal is to have plenty of pad underneath the spot to absorb the liquid that is used to remove it, and to employ a circular motion, working from the outside toward the center of the spot in order to keep a ring from forming. Change the pad as it becomes soiled, and pat the spot gently until the cleaner evaporates. Certain spots with color in them, such as a black grease spot, come out more easily if turned face down on the pad so that the spot can be carried out without passing through the fabric.

Seasoned Timber.
Experiments made by the United States forest service have demonstrated that thoroughly air-dried timber has about double the strength of green timber. Moreover, in order effectively to apply preservative agents to timber, it must be first seasoned, because it is very difficult to inject antiseptics into the green wood. The loss of weight by seasoned timber is quite surprising. Western pine loses half its weight after three to five months' seasoning.—Washington Star.

Sow Has Adopted Kitten.
A strange case of maternal devotion is reported by an Ontario farmer who has a sow with a litter that has adopted a half-grown kitten and permits it to nurse with her babies and to sleep with them. The kitten has been a member of the family of pigs for several days and will no longer touch cow's milk when offered it. At night the kitten curls up at the sow's side.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

"By the tall o' the Great Sacred Bull," chattered Scraggs, "Gib's right." McGuffey was plainly disappointed. "I hadn't thought o' that at all, Gib. I been cherishin' the thought o' lammin' the whey out'n that mate, but if you say so I'll give up the idee. But if bringin' the Maggie II into home waters is invitin' death, what in blue blazes're we goin' to do with her?"

Mr. Gibney smiled—an arch, cunning smile. "We'll give her to that murderin' mate, free gratis."

Captain Scraggs bounded out of his chair, struck the hot deck with his bare feet, cursed, and hopped back into the chair again. McGuffey stared incredulously. "Gib, my dear boy," quavered Scraggs, "say that agin."

"Yes," continued the commodore placidly, "we'll just get shet o' her peaceable like by givin' her to this mate. Don't forget, Scraggs, old tar-pot, that this mate's been passin' himself off for you in Honolulu, an' if he's ever an investigation, the trail leads to the Maggie II. This mate's admitted being Captain Scraggs, an' if he's found with the schooner in his possession it'll take a heap o' evidence for him to prove that he ain't Captain Scraggs. We'll just keep this here mate in the brig while we're disposing of our black coral, pearl, shell and copra in Honolulu, an' then, when we've cleaned up, an' got our passages booked for San Francisco—"

"But wh. says we're goin' back to San Francisco?" cut in McGuffey.

"Why, where else would men with money in their pockets head for, you soaked piece of ignorance? Ain't you had enough adventure to do you a well?" demanded Captain Scraggs. "Me an' Gib's for goin' back to San Francisco, so shut up. If you got any objection, you're outvoted two to one in the syndicate."

"When we're ready to leave Honolulu, we'll bring this mate on deck, make him a kind Christian talk an' give him the Maggie II with the compliments o' the syndicate. He'll think our sufferin's on that island has touched us with religion an' he'll be so tickled he'll keep his mouth shut. Then, with all three of us safe an' out o' the mess, an' the evidence off our hands, we'll clear out for Gawd's countin' an' look around for some sort of a profitable investment."

The commodore sighed. "She's a love of a boat an' it breaks my heart to give up the only command I've ever had, but the fact is, Mac, her possession by us is dangerous, an' we don't need her, an' we can't sell her because her record's got blurs on it. We can't convey a clean an' satisfactory title. Anyhow, she didn't cost us a cent an' there ain't no real financial loss if we give her to this mate. He'd be glad to get her if she had yellow jack aboard, an' if he's caught with her he'll have to do the explainin'. When you're caught with the goods in your possession, Mac, it makes the explainin' all the harder. Besides, we're three to one, an' if it comes to a show-down later we can outswear the mate."

Captain Scraggs poked his snaggle teeth with the little blade of his jack-knife and cogitated a minute.

"Well," he announced presently, "far be it from me to fly in the face of a felon's death. I've made a heap o' money, follerin' Gib's advice, an' bust my bob-stay if I don't stay put on this, Gib, it's your lead."

"Well, I'll follow suit. Gib's got all the trumps," acquiesced the engineer. "We got plenty o' dough an' no board bills comin' due, so we'll loaf along-shore until Gib digs up somethin' good."

"How about Nells?" queried Captain Scraggs. "Do we continue to let that ex-deckhand in on our fortunes?"

"If Nells Halvorsen had asked you that question when he come to rescue you the day you lay a-dyin' o' thirst on that desert island, wouldn't you have said yes?"

"Sure pop."

"Then don't ask no questions that's unworthy of you," said Mr. Gibney severely. "I don't want to see none o' them green-pea trade ethics croppin' up in you, Scraggs. If it wasn't for that Swede the sea-gulls'd be pickin' our bones now. Nells Halvorsen is included in this syndicate for good."

"Amen." This from the honest McGuffey.

"Meetin's adjourned," said Captain Scraggs idly.

Under the direction of the crafty commodore, the valuable cargo of the Maggie II was disposed of in Honolulu. During the period while the schooner lay at the dock discharging, Captain Scraggs and McGuffey prudently remained in the cabin with the perfidious mate, in order that, should an investigation be undertaken later by the Treasury department, no man might swear that the real Phineas Scraggs, filibuster, had been in Honolulu on a certain date. The Kanaka crew of the schooner Mr. Gibney managed to ship with an old shipmaster friend bound for New Guinea, so their testimony was out of the way for a while, at least.

When the Maggie II was finally discharged and the proceeds of her rich cargo nestled, in crisp bills of large denomination, in a money belt under Mr. Gibney's armpits and next his rascally skin, he purchased tickets under assumed names for himself, Scraggs, McGuffey and Halvorsen on the liner Hilonian, due to sail at noon next day. These details attended to, the Maggie II backed away from the dock under Mr. Gibney's own power and cast anchor off the quarantine station. The mate was then brought on deck and made to confront the syndicate.

"It appears, my man," the commodore began, "that you was too anxious to horn in on the profits of this expedition, so in a moment o' human weakness you did your employers an evil deed. We had it all aggered out to feed you to the sharks on the way home, because dead men tell no tales, but our sufferin's on that island has caused us all to look with a milder eye on mere human shortcomin's. The Good Book says: 'Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass agin us,' an' I ain't ashamed to admit that you owe your wicked life to the fact that Scraggs's got religion an' McGuffey ain't much better. But we got all the money we need an' we're goin' to Europe to enjoy it, so before we go we're goin' to pass sentence upon you. It is the verdict o' the court that we present you with the power schooner Maggie II free gratis, an' that you accept the same in the same friendly spirit in which it is tendered. Havin' a schooner o' your own from now on, you won't be tempted to steal one an' commit wholesale murder a-doin' it. You're forgiven, man. Take the Maggie II with our blessin', organize a comp'ny, an' go back to Kandavu an' make some money for yourself. Scraggs, are you a-willin' to prove that you've given this errin' mate complete forgiveness by shakin' hands with him?"

"I forgive him freely," said Captain Scraggs, "an' here's my fin on it." The unfortunate mate hung his head. He was much moved.

"You don't mean it, sir, do you?" he faltered.

"I hope I may never see the back o' my neck if I don't," replied the skipper.

"Surest thing you know, brother," shouted Mr. McGuffey and swatted the deluded mate between the shoulders.

He banged the chiffonier with his great fist. "Meetin' o' the Maggie syndicate," he announced. "Meetin' come to order. The first business before the meetin' is a call for volunteers to furnish a money-makin' idee for the syndicate."

Nells Halvorsen shook his sore head. He had no ideas. B. McGuffey, Esquire, shook his head also. Captain Scraggs wanted to sing.

"I see it's up to me to suggest somethin'." Mr. Gibney smiled benignly, as if a money-making idea was the easiest thing on earth to produce. "The last thing I remember before we went to that Turkish bath was us four visitin' a fortune teller an' havin' our fortunes told, past, present an' future, for a dollar a throw. Anybody here remember what his fortune was?"

It appeared that no one remembered, not even Mr. Gibney. He therefore continued:

"The chair will app'nt Mr. McGuffey an' himself a committee o' two to wait on one o' these here clairvoyants and have their fortunes told agin."

McGuffey, who was as superstitious as a negro, seconded the motion heartily and the committee forthwith sallied forth to consult the clairvoyant. Within the hour they returned.

"Members o' the syndicate," the commodore announced, "we got an idee. Not a heluva good one, but fair to middlin'. Me an' Mac calls on this Madame de What-you-may-call-her in the minute she gets a lamp at my mitrime. I've committed one or two myself. Good luck to you, matey. Hope you make a barrel o' money with the old girl."

"Thanks," the mate mumbled. "I ain't deservin' o' this nohow," and he commenced to snivel a little.

Mr. Gibney forgot that he was playing a hypocrite's part, and his generous nature overcame him.

"Dog my cats," he blustered, "what's the use givin' him the vessel if he don't give him some spondulicks to outfit her with grub an' supplies? Poor devil! I bet he ain't got a cent to bless himself with. Scraggs, old tar-pot, if we're goin' to turn over a new leaf an' be Christians, let's sail under a full cloud o' canvas."

"By Neptune, that's so, Gib. This fellow did us an awful dirty trick, but at the same time there ain't a cowardly bone in his hull carcass. I ain't forgot how he stood to the guns that day off the Coronados when we was attacked by the Mexicans."

"Stake the feller, Gib," advised McGuffey, and wiped away a vagrant tear. He was quite overcome at his own generosity and the manner in which it had touched the hard heart of the iniquitous mate.

Mr. Gibney laid five one-hundred-dollar bills in the mate's palm.

"Good-by," he said gently, "an' see if you can't be as much of a man an' as good a sport hereafter as them you've wronged an' who's forgive you fully and freely."

One by one the three freebooters of the green-pea trade pumped the stricken mate's hand, tossed him a scrap of advice, and went outside into the small boat which was to take them ashore. It was a solemn parting and Mr. Gibney and McGuffey were snuffling audibly.

The next day, as the Hilonian steamed out of the harbor, bearing the syndicate back to San Francisco, they looked across at the little Maggie II for the last time, and observed that the mate was on deck, superintending three Kanaka sailors who were hoisting supplies aboard from a bumbout.

Commodore Gibney bade his first command a misty farewell.

"Good-by, little ship," he yelled and waved his hand. "Gawd! You was a witch in a light wind."

Seven days after leaving Honolulu, the Hilonian steamed into San Francisco bay. The syndicate could not wait until she had tied up at her dock, and the minute the steamer had passed quarantine Mr. Gibney hailed a passing launch. Bag and baggage the happy quartette descended to the launch and landed at Meliggs wharf. Mr. Gibney stepped into the wharfinger's office and requested permission to use the telephone.

"What's up, Gib?" demanded Captain Scraggs.

"I want to 'phone for a automobile to come down an' snake us up town in style. This syndicate ain't a-goin' to come rampin' home to Gawd's country lookin' like a lot o' Eyetalian peddlers. We're goin' to the best hotel an' we're goin' in style."

With the assistance of the wharfinger an automobile was summoned, and in due course the members of the syndicate found themselves ensconced in a fashionable suite in San Francisco's most fashionable hotel. Mr. Gibney stored the syndicate's pearls in the hotel safe, deposited an emergency roll with the hotel clerk, and banked the balance of the company funds in the names of all four; after which the syndicate gave itself up to a period of joy unconfined.

At the end of a week of riot and revelry Mr. Gibney revived sufficiently to muster all hands and lead them to a Turkish bath. Two days in the bath restored them wonderfully, and when the worthy commodore eventually got them back to the hotel he announced that henceforth the lid was on—and on tight. Captain Scraggs, who was hard to manage in his cups and the most prodigal of prodigals with steam up to a certain pressure, demurred at this.

"No more sky-larkin', Scraggs, you old cut-up," Mr. Gibney ordered. "We had our good time comin' after all that we've been through, but it's time to get down to business agin. Riches has wings, Scraggs, old salamander, an' even if we are ashore, I'm still the commodore. Now, set around an' we'll hold a meetin'."

He banged the chiffonier with his great fist. "Meetin' o' the Maggie syndicate," he announced. "Meetin' come to order. The first business before the meetin' is a call for volunteers to furnish a money-makin' idee for the syndicate."

must have meant Scraggs or Nells, both bein' blondes—an' she come out of her trance shiverin' an' shakin'.

"Your fortune lies at sea, my friend," she kept on sayin'. "Go forth an' seek it."

"Gimme the longitude an' latitude, ma'am," I says, an' I'll go out."

"Look in the shippin' news in the papers tomorrow," she pipes up. "Five dollars, please."

"You didn't give her five dollars, did you?" gasped Captain Scraggs. "Why, Gib, my dear boy, I thought you was sober."

"So I was."

"Then, Gib, all I got to say is that you're a sucker. You want to consult the rest of us before you go throwin' away the funds of the syndicate on such tom-fool ideas as—"

McGuffey saw a storm gathering on Mr. Gibney's brows, and hastened to intervene.

"Meetin's adjourned," he announced, "pendin' the issue of the papers tomorrow mornin'. Scraggs, you oughter 'line the Band o' Hope. You're ugly when you got a drink in you."

Nells Halvorsen interfered to beg a cigar of Mr. Gibney and the affair passed over.

At six o'clock the following morning the numbers of the syndicate were awakened by a prodigious pounding at their respective doors. Answering the summons, they found Mr. Gibney in undress uniform and the morning paper clutched in his hand.

"Meetin' o' the Maggie syndicate in my room," he bawled. "I've found our fortune."

The meeting came to order without the formality of dressing, and the commodore, spreading the paper on his knee, read aloud:

"FOR SALE CHEAP

"The stern-wheel steamer Victor, well found, staunch and newly painted. Boilers and engines in excellent shape. Vessel must be sold to close out an estate. Address John Conkley, Jackson Street wharf."

"How d'ye know she's a fortune, Gib?" McGuffey demanded. "Lemme look at her engines before you get excited."

"I ain't saying she is," Mr. Gibney retorted testily. "Lemme finish readin' it!" He continued:

"REPORTS PASSING DERELICT

"The steam schooner Arethusa, Grays Harbor to Oakland Long wharf, reports passing a derelict schooner twenty miles off Point Reyes at six o'clock last night. The derelict was down by the head, and her rull just showed above the water. It was impossible to learn her identity."

"The presence of this derelict in the steamer lanes to North Pacific ports is a distinct menace to navigation, and it is probable that a revenue cutter will be dispatched today to search for the derelict and either tow her into port or destroy her."

"Gentlemen o' the syndicate, them's the only two items in the shippin' page that looks likely. The question is, in which lies our fortune?"

Nells Halvorsen spoke up, giving it as his opinion that the fortune-telling lady probably knew her business and that their fortune really lay at sea. The derelict was at sea. How else, then, could the prophecy be interpreted?

"Well, this steamer Victor isn't exactly travelin' overland," McGuffey suggested. He had a secret hankering to mess around some real engines again, and gave it as his opinion that fortune was more likely to lurk in a solid stern-wheel steamer with good engines and boilers than in a battered hulk at sea. Captain Scraggs agreed with him most heartily and a tie vote resulted, Mr. Gibney inclining toward the derelict.

"What're we goin' to do about it, Gib?" Captain Scraggs demanded.

"When in doubt, Scraggs, old tar-pot, always play trumps. In order to make no mistake, right after breakfast you an' McGuffey go down to Jackson street wharf an' interview this man Conkley about his steamer Victor. You be goin' to sea long enough to know a good hull when you see it, an' if we can't trust Mac to know a good set of inner works we'd better dissolve the syndicate. As for me an' Nells, we'll go down to the front an' charter a tug an' chase ou-after that there derelict before the revenue cutter gets her an' blows her out o' the path o' commerce with a stick o' dynamite."

Forthwith Mr. Gibney and Nells, after snatching a hasty breakfast, departed for the waterfront, where they chartered a tug for three days and put to sea. At about ten o'clock Captain Scraggs and McGuffey strolled leisurely down to Jackson street wharf to inspect the Victor. By noon they had completed a most satisfactory inspection of the steamer's hull and engines, and bought her in for seven thousand dollars. Captain Scraggs was delighted. He said she was worth ten thousand. Already he had decided that heavy and profitable freights awaited the syndicate along the Sacramento river, where the farmers and orchardists had been for years the victims of a monopoly and a gentlemen's agreement between the two steambot lines that plied between Sacramento, Stockton and San Francisco.

On the afternoon of the third day Mr. Gibney and Nells Halvorsen returned from sea. They were unutterably weary and hollow-eyed for lack of sleep.

"Well, I suppose you two suckers found that derelict," challenged McGuffey.

"Yep. Found her an' got a line aboard an' towed her in, an' it was a tough job. She's layin' over on the Berkeley tide flats, an' at low tide tomorrow we'll go over an' find out more than half of the circumference by removing the bricks. Two of the shoring blocks were removed and the center block, soaked with kerosene, was burned out. The stack crashed with such force that some of the bricks were hurled 2 feet in the ground, but most of them remain intact and can be used agin.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"Dead whale," suggested McGuffey.

"I hope it ain't Gib's fortune," replied Scraggs drily.

"Shut up," bellowed Mr. Gibney. He was sniffing himself by this time, for as the launch swiftly approached the derelict the unpleasant odor became more pronounced.

"Betcher that schooner was in collision with a steamer," Captain Scraggs announced. "She was cut down right through the fo'castle with the watch below sound asleep, an' this here fragrance appeals to me as a sure sign of a job for the coroner."

Mr. Gibney's eyes flashed, but he made no reply. They had rounded the schooner's stern now, and her name was visible.

"Schooner Kadlak, Seattle," read Scraggs. "Little old three sticker a thousand years old an' cut clear through just abaft the foremast. McGuffey, you don't s'pose this here's a pirate craft an' just bulgin' with gold."

"Sure," retorted the engineer with a slow wink, "tainted wealth."

Mr. Gibney could stand their hackling no longer. "Looky here, you two," he bawled out angrily. "I got a hunch I picked up a lemon, but I'm a-willin' to tackle the deal with Nells if you two think I didn't do right by the syndicate a-runnin' up a bill of expense town' this craft into port. I ain't goin' to stand for no kiddin', even if we are in a five-hundred-dollar towage bill. Man is human an' bound to make mistakes."

WIG TOO SMALL FOR FRANKLIN

Representative From the New America had to Appear Before French King in Bald Pate.

Benjamin Franklin was about to be presented to the French king on the occasion of his first visit to France in the capacity of representative from the new America. The court custom of the time demanded that one going to an audience with the king must wear a wig of the proper fashion. A count, who had Franklin in tow, sent a wigmaker the day before to take Franklin's measure and fit him out for the audience. The wigmaker arrived at Franklin's lodgings, measured the poll of the great American fore and aft and around and about and took his departure. An hour before the audience the wigmaker returned with the wig. But when Franklin attempted to put it on it would not fit; he couldn't begin to get it on his head.

"Sir," said Franklin to the wigmaker, "your wig is unfortunately too small for my head."

"Pardonnez-moi, monsieur," replied the wigmaker, "your head is vastly too large and quite beyond the fashion of the court."

Franklin appeared, therefore, at court with his bald pate and shaggy gray hair.—Detroit Free Press.

Smokestack Quickly Wrecked.

Five workmen recently brought a 148-foot smokestack to the ground in 55 minutes, by a new method. This stack, on Staten Island, N. Y., measured 47 feet in diameter at the base and weighed 350 tons. Three openings were made at the base, and wooden blocks, 4 feet high, 4 inches in diameter, were inserted as shorings. A gap, 4 feet high, was then made in more than half of the circumference by removing the bricks. Two of the shoring blocks were removed and the center block, soaked with kerosene, was burned out. The stack crashed with such force that some of the bricks were hurled 2 feet in the ground, but most of them remain intact and can be used agin.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

On Her Dignity.

Sir Peter O'Brien, a lord chief justice of Ireland, was going as a commissioner of assizes on the Munster circuit, on which he had been for years a leader. A somewhat illigous female witness of the peasant class, with whom the chief just when practicing at the bar had been professionally acquainted, was giving evidence.

The chief justice interfered with a question, and commenced thus: "Now, Peggy, tell me—" The witness, with a ludicrous expression of offended dignity, thus rebuked his lordship's familiarity of manner: "Mrs. Moriarty, Pether, if you please."

Republicans Struggling With Problem of Financing the Soldiers' Bonus.

DENBY TRIES TO SAVE NAVY

Asks Personnel of 90,000 and Appropriation of $350,000,000—General Strike of Coal Miners Impends
—Collins and Craig Coming to Agreement.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

N EARLY everyone is in favor of giving the ex-service man a bonus, but no one is willing to help pay for it. Every plan so far proposed for raising the necessary revenue—estimated at $350,000,000 annually for the next three years—has aroused determined opposition. Members of the house ways and means committee thought eight special taxes would turn the trick, but every element of the population that would be directly affected by them raised an immediate wail.

Republican leaders appealed to President Harding to suggest something feasible, and he undertook to do so on Thursday. But what should his plan be but the same old general sales tax proposition which it has been admitted by nearly everyone cannot possibly get through congress! Because this was his only plan, and because he also criticized the plan of providing for the payments of cash bonuses in installments over a period of two and a half years, it was assumed by many in Washington that the President really wished the bonus legislation again postponed, though he hesitated to say so flatly. The situation was plainly uncomfortable for the Republicans, and the Democrats were joyously taking every advantage of the discomfiture of their adversaries. The leaders of the agricultural bloc in both the house and the senate reiterated their unqualified opposition to any kind of general sales tax.

Some of the Republican leaders strongly favored the passage of a house bill without any plan of financing.
They thought the necessary money might be made available by further reduction of appropriations for certain departments, especially the army and navy. Mr. Mondell prepared a statement to show how nearly $300,000,000 could be saved this way. But even that would not be sufficient, and many congressmen urged again the issue of bonds. Of course the deficit, after the problematical saving of $300,000,000 in appropriations, could be made up by issuing short term certificates of indebtedness, which it was asserted the market would readily absorb. Both the President and Secretary Mellon declare that a big bond issue would seriously embarrass the extensive refunding operations that must be undertaken during the coming year, causing an increase in interest rates and disturbing the Liberty bond market. Some other government officials do not agree with them.

SENATOR BORAH is consistently opposing the bonus because, he says, it will interfere with the care of the soldiers now undertaken by the government through the veterans' bureau. He predicts that within ten years the annual expenditure for disabled soldiers will have reached $1,500,000,000, of which no one will complain "so long as the appropriations are based on the necessities and requirements of the disabled soldiers."
Director Forbes of the veterans' bureau calls attention to the fact that the total government expenditure required for disabled soldiers for 1922 is $510,000,000, and thus sets forth the ways in which the bureau is using the money.

Paying out $1,000,000 cash every day, including Sunday, directly into the hands of the ex-service man or his dependents in compensation allotments.
Providing, without cost, hospital care
and treatment to 80,000 veterans.

This care includes board and lodging and represents an expenditure by the government of $60,000,000 a year.
Giving vocational training, without cost to over 100,000 disabled ex-service men at an annual expenditure for tuition and supervision of $30,000,000.
Mailing out 650,000 checks every month, representing $42,000,000.
Conducting an insurance business for over 600,000 ex-service men, without cost of administration to them, at premium rates below that of private companies for like policies. Insurance in force $3,500,000,000.
Conducting over 50,000 medical examinations every month.
Giving outside treatment in cases where hospitalization is not required to 20,000 ex-service men every month.
Receiving 1,000 new claims a day in addition to the 1,200,000 already on file; employing 4,000 ex-service men and woman in carrying out the work.

eral Daugherty as to the legal limits within which such associations could holds that their activities do not contravene the provisions of the antitrust act unless in actual practice they suppress competition, curtail production or enhance prices. They may standardize grades, quality and processes; furnish information as to financial responsibility; handle insurance and engage in co-operative advertising; gather statistics of production, distribution and wages for the information of the secretary of commerce; and they may provide a standard system of cost accounting, but should be warned to guard against uniform cost as to any item of expense.

IT APPEARS likely there will be a general strike of coal miners on April 1 unless it is prevented by government intervention. The United Mine Workers of America are in convention in Indianapolis and have received the report of the scale committee positively declaring against the wage reductions which have been demanded by the operators. Indeed, some increases are asked by the men, though they do not demand the six-hour day and five-day week. The report says:
"In event no agreement is reached by April 1, we declare in favor of a general suspension of mining operations, such action being subject to a referendum vote of the membership of the United Mine Workers of America, such referendum to be held prior to March 31."

RELIGIOUS factions in Belfast fought bitterly throughout the week and about two score persons were killed and many wounded. The British troops there took a hand in the melee, making bayonet charges on both sides and were unable to stop the slaying and bomb throwing.
Michael Collins, head of the Irish Free State, went to London and after a conference with Sir James Craig announced that they had agreed upon the appointment of liaison commissions from the Free State and Ulster that will patrol the frontier and prevent bloodshed. He also said he had secured the release of the kidnapped Ulsterites. The evacuation of the Free State by British troops had been halted, but on Mr. Collins' representations it was resumed.

FROM Paris comes the prediction that the conference on the economic rehabilitation of Europe will be postponed until May, and shifted probably from Genoa to Rome, Milan or Verona. The reasons advanced are the delay in forming a new Italian government, the insistence of France on a preliminary meeting to decide on the agenda, and the alleged fact that the United States will not determine the extent of its participation until the senate has acted on the Washington conference treaties.
The German delegation to the conference, which will be headed by Dr.
Walther Rathenau, foreign minister,
will be armed with elaborate arguments to prove that the reparations clauses in the treaty of Versailles must be abandoned or radically altered if the financial salvation of Europe is to be accomplished. Rathenau's idea is that the interests of all will be best served if there is almost a complete cessation of payments during 1922 and if Germany is permitted to pay in goods and work instead of cash.

HUGO STINNES, industrial magnate, learned on Wednesday that he is not so much the master of Germany as he thought. After a debate in the reichstag in which he and his Peoples' party were bitterly assailed the government was given a vote of confidence. This was a victory not only for Chancellor Wirth but also for Doctor Rathenau and the industrial group that is opposed to Stinnes.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine.
A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.
A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify.
No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr.
Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

MERELY MONKEYS, AFTER ALL

Scientists Unduly Agitated Over the Reported Discovery of New Human Race in India.

Recently there was announced the discovery of a new human race in the Himalaya mountains. They were the "abominable men of the snows," particularly hideous, haired ferocious beings, of whom an explorer had revealed traces.
Well, these abominable men, says
the Petit Parisien, are no men at all, but big monkeys, already known by science. One of them can be seen in the galleries of the museum. To tell the truth this langur (such is its name) is stuffed, which, however, does not prevent its having been alive and its having come from the regions of the Himalayas, where its fellows are living in numerous troops.

This revelation, so unpleasant for the manufacturers of prodigious adventures, comes from Mr. Goodwin-Austin, who has given in La Nature the most complete details about this monkey of Tibet, which for a moment was promoted to the superior rank of man.—New York Tribune.

ISLANDERS SHOULD BE HAPPY

Fortunate Inhabitants of Lundy Altogether Free From Visitations of the Tax Collector.

The stipend of £60 ($300) a year
offered by the ecclesiastical commissioners to any clergyman disposed to take spiritual charge of Lundy island seems a fair one, in view of the fact that the island measures only three and a half miles by one mile and numbers barely two hundred inhabitants.
The people of Lundy pay neither rates nor taxes; there are no poor, because all the inhabitants have work found for them; and there are no police, because there are no law-breakers.
Lundy has twice been in the hands of foreigners—once when captured by a band of Turkish pirates, and again, in the time of William III, when French privateers gained temporary possession.—London Tit-Bits.

A crank's theory often needs only a rivet or two more to become a valuable discovery.

Save the bird in hand— The others may be hard to catch

With enough money, enough time and enough luck, a man may get back the health he has lost—or part of it.

It takes patience, too.

And then there may be no success, or only a little.

It's better to save what you have than hunt for what you've lost—as the most successful health-restorers will tell you.

Much of the loss of health is due to faulty, careless diet. Wrong meals at all times and right meals at wrong times load the long-suffering digestive organs with elements of destruction, or starve the tissues and glands of needed elements.

Grape-Nuts is a delicious cereal food which has the qualities of scientific nutrition. It supplies the full richness of those splendid food grains, wheat and malted barley, together with the vital mineral elements, so often lacking from foods. Served with cream or good milk, Grape-Nuts gives full nourishment without over-loading the stomach.

A splendid thought for breakfast or lunch, for those who would keep health—

Always a Reverse Side.
Seems that most of the plans for prolonging life are also plans for making it miserable.—Nashville Tennessean.

President Washington's Deafness.

"Nor did his hearing remain entirely good. Machay noted, at one of the President's dinners in 1789 that he seemed in more good humor than I ever saw him, though he was so deaf that I believe he heard little of the conversation, and three years later the President is reported as saying to Jefferson that he was sensible, too, of a decay in his hearing."—From "The True George Washington," by Paul Leicester Ford.

Asthma From Animals.

It has been found that asthma is often caused by inhaling particles of the hair of animals, particularly that of the horse, the cat, and the dog, and, above all, of the pet dog that sleeps on the bed. Chicken feathers also cause the disease. There are many other factors in the production of asthmatic attacks, but the first step in curing the disease is to avoid the source. If the cat or the dog is to blame, then these animals should be kept out of the house.

Confidence.

The following scrap of conversation was overheard in a London motor bus, and deeply impressed those fortunate enough to catch the words. Said one fair passenger to another: "Between you and me, I don't seem to like your husband so much as I did." "And between you and me," said the other, "neither do I."—London Morning Post.

Red Letter Day.

This phrase means just what it says—a day so important that it is recorded in red letters on the memory. It originated in the custom of the Bank of England of recording all saints' days, holidays, and other times when no banking was done in red ink on the calendars.

Oldest Man-Made Forest.

The oldest living forest planted by man is said to be that set out by St. Francis and his monks in the city of Florence, Italy. It was started in 1221 and since that time has been under the care of some supervisor interested in forestry. The forest is of silver fir and beech.

You wouldn't buy a pair of paper-soled shoes simply because the price alone appealed to your fancy. Any expenditure, no matter how small, is a poor investment when paid for necessities which soon outlive their usefulness.

Good shoes are an economy; so is good weather-proof roofing. Cheap, flimsy, brittle roofing costs more because they give less service.

MULE-HIDE Roofing is strong, durable and weather-resisting. Its lasting qualities and toughness are emphasized by its service record:

The first cost is the last cost when you buy MULE-HIDE. It is the Roofing that survives years of hard wear without constant attention and repairs. Pay us a visit and see for yourself.
